coach at Auxier high school. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Wallace, Mars Creek, the youngest, unnamed athlete is a namesake of Grady Sellards. The Wallace at one time lived on the Mars Creek farm of Mr. Sellards' parents. The Hall of Fame meeting, however, was the occasion of the first meeting of Mr. Sellards and the younger Wallace.

Chalmers H. Frazer, president of the new Floyd County Historical Society, presided at the Hall of Fame ceremonies, held in the grade school auditorium. Vocal music was provided by the widely known Patsy Teen-Agers, directed by Mrs. Chalmers H. Frazer, and the invocation and benediction were said by the Rev. J. Baldwin Siliz, pastor of the Community Methodist Church, Prestonsburg.

The speaker for the occasion was Dr. Thomas D. Clark, of the University of Kentucky faculty and well-known historian and author. Dr. Clark gave his unqualified approval of the idea of a Hall of Fame to honor those who have brought honor to their country.

"I think it is a very fine thing for a community to stop and take stock of its human resources," he said at the outset of a thoughtful and scholarly address. "Human beings are important. I think the American people need to stop often and give some thought to the value of the individual."

By way of emphasis he referred to those countries where the individuals who have meant much to Kentucky—Boone, Kenton, others.

Of all the Kentuckians who stand out in his esteem, the speaker declared, the two who stand at the top are Henry Clay and Dr. Ephraim McNewell. A close third, he added, would be Thomas Hunt Morgan, the scientist-nephew of John Hunt Morgan, famed Confederate valider.

"I think Kentucky has produced more brilliant sons than Clay," Dr. Clark said, quoting from a letter written by Clay in which Clay pointed out that he did not have an original or deeply perceptive mind. "But," the speaker added, "the rewards of his service and the place he gained in history are perhaps greater and far more important than those gained by many who have gone to the White House."

Speaking of Dr. McDowell, the pioneer physician who performed the first ovariectomy, he added, "If I were to choose the one human act in Kentucky history that deserves credit above all others, I would choose that quiet act of Ephraim McDowell's."

"This is a changing world, and changes must come, even if they are 'fearsome and awesome things,'" the speaker said. Of the A-bomb, he said, "Why go to the trouble of saving civilization if what you save is a maimed, crippled, sterile population? Still, I am not a pessimist. I believe civilization will be made, and for the better... I hope this is not just wishful thinking," he remarked as an afterthought.

Industry is coming to Kentucky and it must come, to stop the outward flow of human resources. "The democratic system means that the individual is important and that the individual stands out. Kentucky faces this problem with its youth and its communities."

He added that each community needs to improve its educational and cultural facilities, and that its teachers must be retained at all costs. Where such facilities are lacking industry will not locate, he pointed out.

The Rev. Jean S. Miller, for the past 30 years pastor of Second Presbyterian Church, Indianapolis—a pulpit once occupied by Henry Ward Beecher—surveyed his own ministry at last week's commencement exercises held at Fourth Ave. Presbyterian Church, Louisville.

From "just an average ministry serving average churches," he told the 38 graduates of several things "I have learned that the Christian ministry is far happier, far fuller than I could possibly have anticipated. If I were 20 tonight—instead of 63—without a moment's hesitation I would choose again this work to which you have dedicated your life."

He said he had learned, too, "to respect more deeply some of the subtlest features of the ancient orthodoxy of our faith."
When he was in seminary, doctrines such as the innate depravity of man, the utter helplessness of man, and his need for the grace of God, Mr. Miller said, "seemed a bit far-fetched, overdrawn, and unrealistic. But two world wars and their aftermath taught me to see man's real dilemma."

In 1900, the first Federal census of Kentucky was taken with the population tabulated as 73,677.

necessary men and vehicles to curtail violation of speed limits and to prohibit excessive speeding and reckless driving through our streets, inasmuch as we believe our school children are endangered when going to and from school. We propose crosswalks to be placed at certain designated spots and that they be observed. It is our firm opinion that all of these things can and must be done to make our town a better place in which to live."

Councilman C. W. May said the blame for the situation here—ones which is marked by broken speed limits and reckless driving—lies with the Council, inasmuch as the law has not been enforced. During the discussion the Council was told that the police car was seen at the Drive-In Theater here last Sunday night.
Other business of the meeting included employment of Joe Jack Harris for $80 a month to work four hours a day in conducting the Little League baseball program here, and an agreement to pay $50 a month to work on the garbage truck.

West Virginia Guard Unit Will Go Through Pburg

A convoy of trucks composed of units of the 156th armored cavalry regiment, West Virginia National Guard, will pass through Prestonsburg June 13, traveling on U. S. 400 from Pikeville and leaving on Ky. 114 toward Salersville.

This convoy will consist of 42 trucks traveling in three separate groups of 14 trucks each, arriving at fifteen minute intervals. The first group will arrive at approximately 1:30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The road and back alley turned up first on our premises more than a year ago. At the time he was down to the whimper of a purr, his coat was the worse for lack of hair, and one eye was missing. But the youngsters saw he had possibilities though they haven't yet listed or even hinted at what they may be—and laid out for him about the best we had.

The nomad gazed himself regularly and, relating hungrily, gave all indications that at last he had found a place where he calculated to settle down and spend his declining years. But, after two or three months of sedate living, the cat disappeared overnight. His disappearance threw certain neighborhood dogs into disrepute with the youngsters, but there was no proof of foul play, and so at length a circulating cocker pistol, a canary, a rabbit that almost brought the health department down on us and finally a turtle took the place of the cat, in that order.

Then the other day three emerged from the woods back of the house this same one-eyed tom-cat, again in a sad state of disrepair. It took a bit of coaxing, but he finally condescended to come in and lap up a saucer of milk, even if he did appear to have lost the eating habit.

But this time our wandering minstrel of the catwalk didn't even stay an hour. Having licked the platter clean, he disappeared. Why he left in the first place, or came back in the next, I do not know. It may be that he left after this last call because we refused him the best bed in the house.

Greatness Is Never Achieved Suddenly!

It has long been true, in the affairs of men, that only time can confirm the gift of greatness.

Artist, statesman, writer, craftsman—each must await the years for the maturity of his talent and for the verdict of his judges.

And as it is in the affairs of men, so it is in the world of commerce. Nothing great was ever created suddenly—whether the product be that of an individual or of an organization.

Here, most certainly, is the very genesis of the unique position which Cadillac currently occupies in the hearts and minds of the world's motorists.

Since the first Cadillac car made its appearance more than fifty-five years ago, it has always been created to a single objective: to make it as fine a motor car as it is possible to produce.

And, without question, the mission and the accomplishment have been one and the same.

The goodness of Cadillac has, in fact, been so apparent ever that lengthy span that the Cadillac name stands today as an accepted synonym for quality wherever highways exist.

The pretenders have come—and they have gone. For time is an exacting taskmaster—and only the principles that have created the great Cadillac car and only the devotion that has given it being have been equal to the challenge.

Never has this fact been more deeply etched in the public consciousness than it is during the present automotive year.

If you have yet to take the wheel of a 1957 Cadillac, you should hesitate no longer to visit your authorized Cadillac dealer.

Waiting for you in his showroom is proof beyond doubt that Cadillac is—in fact as in reputation—the Standard of the World!

Prestonsburg Student Awarded Education Loan From Scholarship Fund

Adrian M. Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Collins, of Prestonsburg, is one of 17 young Kentuckians for whom the Rural Medical Scholarship Fund has approved loans for their first year of medical education under the plan.

Under the requirements of the fund, students granted loans of $900 a year must promise to practice after graduation in rural Kentucky.

Those who practice in any of 10 "critical" counties will not have to repay their loans and may obtain free tuition from the state if they attend the University of Louisville medical school.

The "critical" counties are those which head the list of those with a shortage of doctors — include Jackson, Powell, Martin, Knott, Magoffin, Elliott, Knox, Cumberland, Leslie and Breathitt.

Pikeville, Ky., June 3 (Sp1) — The first class of graduating seniors from Pikeville College and the last graduates of Pikeville College Academy shared Pikeville's commencement platform Sunday.

They heard Dr. E. Fay Campbell, Philadelphia, head of college work in the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. (northern), advise, "Be in the center of the group that understands real issues—act on what you know."

"Either we learn who Jesus Christ is or we go down in chaos," Dr. Campbell continued. He was speaking on "Accepting God's Direction."

Alphess P. Hatfield, of Hardy, won Pikeville's highest scholastic honor, the Dr. W. C. Condit prize of a gold watch and its affiliated man. Pikeville, placed second and received the Margaret E. Record prize cash award.

Cincinnati Bowler Hits '300' Jackpot

Bob Burns, 31-year-old Cincinnati bowler, produced the city's fourth sanctioned perfect game of the season here Friday evening, May 16, while bowling with Midwest Tiville in the Credit Men's League at Merzard's Twentieth Century Lanes. This record he credits to his wife the former Anna Lou Rorer, of Prestonsburg. She had taken the family car and with it his bowling equipment.

Burns picked up an alley ball with little hope of success and began racking up strikes. For the record he made the first 300 score in the 28-year history of the Walnut Hill establishment.

Bowling with a strange ball and wearing a pair of rental bowling shoes, Burns tossed 12 beautiful strikes in his opening game to pick up something like $800 in cash and numerous other awards from the American Bowling Association, the Cincinnati Bowling Association and the Greater Cincinnati Bowling Proprietors' Association.

Burns who had games of 155 and 172 after the 200 opener, said he can thank my wife for the perfect game. She used the car last night and I neglected to remove my bowling equipment from the trunk before she drove away. I didn't feel like bowling after that happened. I had little hope of shooting a 200 game without my own ball and shoes. I just picked up an alley ball and threw. After I racked up seven straight strikes, I figured I had a good chance to go all the way. I kept hitting my spot on alleys 13-14 and the pins continued to fall. My last four strikes were solid 1-3 pocket hits. I'm not complaining a bit. My wife wanted the car and I rolled a perfect game so we're both satisfied.

PRESTONSBURG TOLL BRIDGE

The Prestonsburg toll bridge was erected in 1907 by a stock company chiefly initiated by the brothers, A. J. and W. H. May, Prestonsburg attorneys. Other stockholders were R. E. Stanley and J. M. (Bartee) Weddington, one time officers of the First National Bank and two Pikeville businessmen, Fon and Lon Rodgers, Andy Stephens served as chief toll collector for years.

The bridge connected Prestonsburg and the railway station on the west side of the river and served the public until the bridge across Big Sandy at the mouth of Middle Creek was built. It was torn down in the mid-thirties.

Shown in a picture, with foot on block and near old First National Bank now the Municipal building, is Beverly C. May who served Floyd as County Judge. The First National Bank, organized in 1904, was three years old when the Prestonsburg toll bridge was erected.

Corn Nitrogen Needs Listed by Specialist

Nitrogen needs of corn vary according to soil in which the crop was grown and on fertilization practices, says George Corder, University of Kentucky Agricultural Extension Service specialist.

If corn follows a legume crop which has been plowed down, 30 to 50 pounds of actual nitrogen (100 to 150 pounds of ammonium nitrate or its equivalent) should be applied for yields of 70 bushels or higher.

If the soil is silt or clay loam, all the nitrogen can be applied at planting time with as good results as smaller applications at planting and in side-dressing operations later.

If the soil is sandy, it will pay to apply the smaller amount (30 lbs. of nitrogen) at seeding and the remainder in side-dressing, Corder says. All the nitrogen can be side-dressed if the corn follows a legume, plowed under.

If the recommended amount of nitrogen was not applied at planting, it should be side-dressed, Corder says.

"We Were Amazed" Says CAR LIFE, The Family Auto Magazine. We were amazed as we drove the Special Buick hardtop, for we had completely changed yet came so much of the former appearance and character. The former Buick has all the features, solid Buick virtues.

THE ABOVE brief clipping tells you worlds about the '37 Buick. It tells you we went all out to make this car completely new—yet we didn't sacrifice a single Buick virtue. So you still get that unmistakable Buick styling. You still get that big-car room and comfort and that solid Buick quality. But you also get so complete a change in the vitals of this car that the driving of it is a wondrous new experience. You get a brilliant brand of performance that's different from anything else that goes on four wheels. Words won't describe it. Telling you there's an all-new engine, an instant new Dynaflo, a completely new power train—none of that will convey this news to you.

College Board Approves New Building Proposals; Fall Construction, Hope

Pikeville, Ky., June 3 (Sp.)—Pikeville College's Board of Trustees has approved preliminary plans for the college's proposed chapel-science building, it was announced today.

Norman Christman, Jr. of the firm of John T. Gillis and Associates, Lexington, is to proceed with work on the chapel section of the building. He was instructed to complete construction drawings and specifications in the hope that construction may begin this fall, it is possible, Dr. A. A. Page, college president, said.

The proposed chapel, one story high at the front and five at the rear, is to stand on a steep hillside facing the college's principal buildings across Sycamore Street in Pikeville. The building, covering 800 square feet of ground will have 31,000 square feet of usable floor space. Estimated cost is $275,000.

With a stage 24 x 44 feet, the entire chapel will occupy three stories of the building. It will seat 600, including 240 in the street-level balcony and 360 on the main floor below.

Beneath the chapel is to be a lecture-rectal hall, seating 108, with a stage 19 x 28 feet. It will be surrounded by small studios and music-practice rooms. The lowest floor of the building will provide an entrance foyer, storage rooms, and a landing for a proposed elevator to carry freight to the level of the chapel stage.

The 1957 Michigan State Relays attracted more than 300 athletes from 18 colleges and universities.

Denver golfers paid $118,060.38 in green fees to local courses during the last three years.

Every school participating in the contest had a winner in each class, according to Mrs. Kate Ball, French teacher at Betsy Layne. Certificates of award will be presented to Barbara Monk and Emmitt Hall at the school's commencement exercises, June 18.

BIDS ON BREAKS PARK REJECTED AS TOO HIGH

Lowest of four bids received last week for a group of construction projects at the new Breaks Interstate Park Commission was $25,000 above the state's estimate for the work.

K. J. Day, Pikeville, chairman of the commission, said all offers, ranging from $90,000 to $175,000, were rejected and would have to be renegotiated.

The bids were for construction of concession stands, a superintendent's residence, and a maintenance garage at the park straddling the Kentucky-Virginia border.

Sruegs & Hammond, Lexington, Ky., architects, had estimated the work some months ago at $75,000, and their figure was incorporated in the budgets of two State governments.

Day said, "Rising costs may have accounted for some of the difference." The commission canceled its schedule June 9 meeting and will meet June 17 to try to find contractors willing to bid lower for the work.

The low figure of $90,000 was from the McClure Lumber & Supply Company, McClure, Va.

Astronomer, 15, Got His Start At the Age of 8

Los Angeles—Timothy Choate is only 15, but he's already a full-fledged astronomer.

"It all began when I was 8," Timothy said. "I picked up a book on astronomy at the Public Library and read it in one night. I've never slowed down since."

The youngster, who belongs to several astronomy societies, taught himself the finer points of stargazing, which probably explains his complaint.

"They don't teach astronomy where I attend school."

CAPITOL NOTEBOOK
Frankfort, June 5 — A Boy Scouts of America troop recently was installed at Central State hospital near Louisville.

Known as the "Dr. Frank Gaines Post of the Old Kentucky Home Council," the troop consists of 12 boys. All are patients in the children's unit of the hospital of the state mental health department.

The troop is the first Boy Scout group in the mental hospital's history.

On hand for the installation ceremony were a U. S. Marine color guard and a ladies honor guard from the VFW Auxiliary. Russell Shinkie, psychiatric aide on the children's unit, is scoutmaster of the troop and Mrs. Hazel Alcorn, the unit's administrative director, is den mother.

A Warning
Dr. Walter Fox, acting superintendent of Central State hospital, has pointed out that 90 percent of the patients now admitted to the institution are over 65 and 28 percent of the hospital population are above that age. Yet, in Kentucky as a whole, only eight per cent are that old, he added.

Dr. Fox says 65 per cent of the old people in the mental hospitals do not need to remain there after initial treatment and suggests they might be sent to nursing homes.

Dr. Russell E. Teague, state health commissioner, has issued a warning to operators of nursing homes that do not meet standards.

During the nearly five years these standards have been in effect many nursing homes have made full compliance," Dr. Teague says. But he added that an indefinite number have made no effort to meet minimum standards.

He said the State intends to clamp down on such homes.

MOBILE LAB.
The state's Agriculture Department's livestock sanitation division has a mobile bacteriology laboratory. It is housed in a trailer pulled by a pickup truck. The unit is in Adair county assisting in that county's effort to become the first "certified modified brucellosis free" area. The lab is staffed by Dr. Paul Woodall and Paul Haney. It will operate in a community several weeks at a time and is equipped to extract blood from an animal and run tests on the sample.

Grant Beaver Decorates War Graves 57th Year

Pt. Pleasant, W. Va.—Grant Beaver, 90, never a soldier himself, Thursday placed flags on the graves of all the war dead at nearby Leon Cemetery, a task he has been performing every Memorial day since 1901.

He carefully put the flags on 36 graves, including that of his nephew, Carlous Crookhan, the only Korean conflict casualty buried there.

Then he decorated with flowers the graves of his wife and son. There were six soldiers buried at the little cemetery overlooking the Kanawha River in 1901. Now the 36 graves hold the victims of five wars.

Aged Cynthia Woman Observes 104th Birthday

CYNTHIANA, Ky.—Mrs. Eliza Ann Rogers, a patient at Collins Nursing Home, quietly celebrated her 104th birthday last Thursday.

Mrs. Rogers, the oldest native of Harrison county as well as the oldest member of the Cynthia Christian Church. She has been in declining health for the past two months, but is still a most remarkable woman.

At 97, Mrs. Rogers lived in an upstairs apartment and moved and cooked for herself, but moved the next year when her son, Orie Rogers, told her that it was too hard on him to climb the stairs to visit with her.

Mrs. Rogers has lived at the nursing home for the past three years.

Her son is now past 65. She also has one daughter, Mrs. Elsie Whitaker, of Harrison county, 7 grandchildren, 17 great-grandchildren and 17 great-great-grandchildren; 3 half-brothers and 2 half-sisters.

Mrs. Rogers has been a widow for over 40 years.

The two age groups that have the poorest diets are adolescents and adults more than 50 years old, says the USDA.

MAY BOOK COMMENDED BY DIGEST CONSULTANT

Among the many educators or writers commending the book, A Teacher Views the School Crisis, by Wilma C. May, former Floyd Teacher, is Frances V. Rummel, education consultant of the Reader's Digest.

"I savored every word of A Teacher Views the School Crisis, with admiration," the Digest writer and editor writes. "I hope its message is as widely read as it deserves to be. The world needs many more with the heart and spirit of the author."

Mrs. Rummel, an author of national note on educational subjects, has been writing on educational subjects for years, and is currently engaged in a book discussing the workaday life of the modern school program.

One favorable comment, out of the many by prominent newspapers, is that of the Los Angeles (Cal.) Times:

"Many years of teaching lie back of this writer's observations on standards, grading, disciplining methods and parental responsibility. Members of the P-T-A, as well as teachers will find here a general discussion of problems faced throughout the nation."

Typical of comments from writers in the religious field or from church institutions is that of Silby Bruner Townsend, of the New Orleans (La.) Baptist Theological Seminary:

"I agree with the author 100 percent and was especially glad to see the emphasis of the closing chapter."

Other endorsements of A Teacher Views the School Crisis, picked at random from favorable critics over the country, follow:

"Whether you are a member of the Old Guard, or an ardent disciple of John Dewey, who started the whole principle of progressive methods, have been, for a long time to come."—Mabel Tenover, State Times, Jackson, Mississippi.

"Where are books in the modern home? Is another lament of Mrs. May. It has been the fashion in late years to dispense with bookshelves. If books are not made available and children encouraged and guided in reading, all the blame cannot be placed at the school doorstep. There must be support in between parents and their children!"

Mrs. May is firm in her view that so-called "modern" educational methods have been, for the most part, a failure. Responsibility for young people today who are unable to read with facility or compute figures with accuracy must be placed squarely on the streamlined (and slipshod) educational system.

What has happened Mrs. May to write this book also provoked Rudolph Fleisch, for another, to author his rejoinder, Why Johnny Can't Read. Mrs. May is not one to hurl anathemas and scribble diatribes without offering some very workable solutions, found in her last chapter.

—(The General Federation Clubwoman, Washington, by Mary McGinn Taylor).

"The book is well written, so interesting that even a laymen like me wanted to keep on keeping on all the last time it was read. Her statements are so convincing, backed up by such positive proof that I don't see how anyone could put up a successful contradiction. The book is a most valuable contribution and I predict it will be one of the best sellers. My niece read it and said 'I enjoyed it, and Mrs. May is right in every one of her statements. I agree with her in every statement and I have three boys in school.'"

Assistantship Won By Floyd Student At Berea College

Miss Ida May Martin, member of the Berea College senior class and daughter of C. B. Martin, of Eastern, has been awarded a $1,400 assistantship for further study after graduation, college officials announced this week.

Miss Martin will continue study for her master's degree in political science next year at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga. There she hopes to specialize in international relations for work in the foreign service.

The Floyd county honoree has been accepted into Pi Gamma Mu, a national honor society for those who have distinguished themselves in the field of social studies. Recently she appeared in a major role in the modern dance presentation of Serge Prokofiev's "Peter and The Wolf" for children.

Miss Martin will be graduated from Berea College with an A.B. degree in history and political science on Sunday, June 2, with exercises beginning at 6:00 p. m. in the Indian Port Theatre.

This summer, after spending a vacation of two weeks with her family, she plans to work as swimming instructor and life guard at Camp Lakeside Manor for girls at Oakland, Maine.

TROUT SAYS CHANGES ARE NEEDED IN ABSENTEE VOTING LEGISLATION

By ALLAN M. TROUT
(Frankfort, Ky., June 1) — The time is probably right and experience certainly suggests that the 1958 Legislature ought to re-examine the absentee-voting law in the light of those practices that are of legal record.

There is too much here for there not to be some fire.

On May 21, a Muhlenberg County grand jury filed an investigation of absentee balloting for the primary a week later. The grand jury reported it found no irregularities. Yet local reports to the contrary had reached such a point that Circuit Judge Arthur T. Pinner assigned the inquiry to his panel in special instructions.

The unrest in Muhlenberg county stemmed from the fact that 144 more had cast absentee ballots than did in the presidential election last year.

There is now pending in the Court of Appeals a 1956 School Board contest from Letcher county. The issue here is whether or not corruption in absentee voting warrants complete disregard of all the absentee ballots cast.

A similar case came to the high court from Green county, after the county election of 1953. With the absentee ballots counted, Willie Warren, Republican, won the race for sheriff by 137 votes. Paul Rayburn, the Democrat, contested. Both courts threw out all the absentee ballots, giving Rayburn the election by 28 votes.

The County Clerk by law, administrators absent voting. There already is enough legal literature in the Letcher and Green cases to suggest:

1. The 1948 law was drawn with bonafide absentee voting in mind; that is, members of the armed forces, Kentuckians away from home for extended periods, and the like. The law did not foresee that substantial numbers would vote in the County Clerk's office under the flimsy pretext of being away from home on election day.
2. The law is workable only if we assume County Clerks to be selfless servants of the public, well grounded in the law, yielding stickers for nonpartisan adherence to it.
3. Even if the County Clerk operates within both the spirit and letter of the law, he enjoys a marked advantage not only for his political friends, but in his own races for re-election.
4. But when the clerk leaves the law, and operates entirely by ear, the potential for corruption becomes great enough to endanger freedom of the election and, indeed, may disenfranchise a majority of the valid voters in some races.

It is general knowledge in political circles throughout Kentucky that the general practice is for self-proclaimed absentee voters to cast their ballots in the clerk's office. The clerk, being in control of the apparatus, is in position to influence it for himself, if he is running for re-election, or if not for others he wants to elect.

Moreover, the clerk is in better position than other county officials when it comes to soliciting absentee votes. While his opponents are out on a door-to-door canvass, the clerk can merely watch the stream of the public in front of him, speak to those he thinks might be away on election day, and gather their actual votes into his fold long before the election.

The specific examples that follow are taken from court records in contests in Letcher and Green counties. Neither of the County Clerks, however, was a party to the litigation, nor was either of them under charges or indictment.

According to the count in Letcher county, including absentee ballots, Wallace Kincer defeated Alvin Holbrook for the School Board by 800 to 792 votes.

Holbrook contested on the ground that County Clerk Charlie Wright's handling of absentee ballots was so irregular that all these ballots ought to be thrown out.

Special Judge Ray O. Shehan, sitting in Letcher Circuit Court, ordered Holbrook's position on February 20. This gave the election to Holbrook by 800 to 792.

Kincer appealed to the Court of Appeals, where the case now hangs. The following extracts are from testimony to be found in the record of the case sent to Frankfort.

The County Clerk was for Kincer. Of the 52 absentee ballots in that race, Kincer got 34, Holbrook 18.

The absentee ballot box, contrary to law, was prepared out of the presence of three County election commissioners. The clerk testified Harry L. Moore, the Republican commissioner, was present, but Moore denied it.

The clerk, contrary to law, had all three keys to this box until four days before the election. The box, contrary to law, rested in a room to which the public had access. Part of a political advertisement and two ballots without envelopes were found in it when the box was opened for the election.

At least 60 of the outer envelopes were unsealed, contrary to law.

The County clerk's political record in absentee voting of past elections were reviewed in the brief filed before the Court of Appeals by Holbrook's attorneys, Bert T. Combs, Prestonsburg, and Harry M. Caudill, Whitesburg. The review follows:

"The results of previous elections give rise to the reasonable inference that something is amiss in Letcher county insofar as absentee voting is concerned.

"In 1953, Charlie Wright ran for sheriff. He received 72 votes, Napier none.

"In the general election that year, Charlie Wright supported Carl D. Perkins for Congress. Mr. Perkins received 16 votes and his opponent received none.

"In the general election of 1954, Charlie Wright supported Daniel W. Johnson for member of the Board of Education. Mr. Johnson received 30 votes and his opponent received 4.

"In the primary of 1955, Charlie Wright supported Bert T. Combs for Governor. Mr. Combs received 149 absentee votes and his opponent, Chandler, received 13.

"In the primary of 1956, Charles Wright again supported Bert T. Perkins for Congress. Mr. Perkins received 19 votes while his opponent, Ervin Pruitt, received 14.

"The results of these elections are so absurdly lopsided as to shock the conscience and give rise to a suspicion that they could not have happened without some kind of bad faith and misconduct.

"Combs and Caudill continued, in their brief, with these generalizations: 'It is common practice in many counties for a person with a party to the election to obtain for the candidate of his choice 100 or more absentee votes from persons who have migrated to Ohio, Michigan, or Tennessee.'

"Moreover, it would be perfectly possible under the present law for a county to vote by absentee ballot if the people so desired. Any one could, with complete safety, make an affidavit that he expected to be absent from the county election day.

"Many of the smart boys have already discovered that the safest and surest way to get a float is to vote him by absentee ballot. We predict that if this law is allowed to stand the time-honored practice of taking care of floaters on election day will become a lost art.

"The absentee-voting law as written by the General Assembly is full of ambiguities. It has loopholes big enough for a growler to jump through.

"It is difficult enough when administered in strict keeping with the language of the statute. It becomes an impossible piece of legislation if election commissioners and County clerks are allowed to annex various unwritten amendments to it through custom and practice.

Virtually the same theme of shocked indignation runs through legal literature of the Green county contest as written by Green Circuit Court and Commissioner Robert K. Cullen and Judge W. H. Spragen of the Court of Appeals.

Carl Wade, the Republican County clerk, was running for reelection in 1953. His Democratic opponent got two-fifths of the votes cast at the November poll; Wade got fewer than one hundredth of the absentee ballots.

Rayburn, the Democratic candidate for Sheriff carried election day polling by 137 votes. But he received fewer than one tenth of the absentee ballots—18 to 181—thereby giving the election to Warren by 137 votes.

The testimony showed that the County clerk kept his absentee ballots in a pasteboard candy box, instead of in a locked ballot box. It showed further:

"All but 17 of the absentee ballots were voted in the clerk's office.

"The clerk mailed ballots to three voters on the request of candidate Warren and Boyce Milby.

"When the absentee voters wrote for an application for ballots, the clerk sent them ballots along with the blank application forms.

"The clerk did not provide outer envelopes for absentee ballots; nor did he return the day and hour he received the voted ballots, except in three or four cases.

"On at least one occasion, the clerk examined all the ballots in his pasteboard box.

"The clerk did not provide outer envelopes for absentee ballots. Judge Spragen wrote, and Commissioner Cullen concurred: 'If the election of contestee (Warren) is upheld, it would be an invitation to every County Clerk in the state to adopt his own method of procedure in the conduct of absentee voting, and would open wide the door to fraudulent practices.'

"It was in another passage of his opinion, however, that Judge Spragen laid his finger on the apple in the law that first started blemish.

"He made the point that a candidate for public office cannot, under the law, serve as a precinct officer on election day. Nor, he said, does any one of the four precinct officers have exclusive control of the election-day apparatus in his precinct.

"But the County Clerk who is a candidate for re-election, Judge Spragen went on, serves as the equivalent of a precinct officer in his own election. Moreover, he is exonerated by three other men with equal authority. He is in exclusive control of the apparatus for absentee voting not only in his own precinct, but in every precinct of the county.

"In many counties, the volume of absentee voting has reached, or exceeded, the normal turnout of one full precinct. It is small wonder, then, that more and more close races are not decided until the absentee ballots are counted.

SCHOOL BILL WOULD ALLOT STATE $7,726,000 PER YEAR

House Group Announces Tentative Figures—Under $1,500,000,000 U.S.-Aid Proposal

Kentucky would receive $7,726,000 a year in tentative allotments under a proposed school-education bill that would provide a five-year, $1,500,000,000 program of federal aid.

The figure was announced by the House Education Committee in a list of tentative allotments for each state.

Half the $300,000,000 a year authorized by the committee's bill would be allotted on the basis of school-age population (ages 5 to 17 inclusive).

The remaining half would be allotted on the basis of relative average State income for each child of school-age and school-age population.

Kentucky's annual total would include $3,119,400 on the basis of school-age population and $4,606,600 on the income basis.

The share of each state may be modified if the state falls below the national average both in the proportion of its income spent for public education and the amount spent for each public-school child. The total amount of such reductions would then be divided up proportionately among the other states.

The Kentucky figures do not reflect any changes that may be made on the basis of the modification provisions.

The Education Committee figures came in a formal report on the bill. The report was sent to the House Rules committee, which will consider whether to clear the measure for action by the House in view of the economy drive. There was strong doubt such a program would be approved this year.

Oil Producers Seek 4-Cent Price Raise

Washington, June 4 — The Independent Petroleum Association of America Friday called for a 4-cent-a-barrel increase in crude oil prices in the wake of a 6 percent wage raise being granted generally in the oil industry.

The present average wholesale price in the United States is $3.17. The association represents 12,000 domestic oil and natural gas producers.

It spearheaded a successful drive for increased crude oil prices last year after oil workers won a 17-cent-an-hour raise.

Take a REAL Look at WHAT FOREST FIRES COST YOU!

1. TIMBER? Of course, this is a major loss. And last year alone almost 10 million acres were burned—an area larger than the states of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island combined—comprising enough board feet of lumber to build 50,000 five-room homes!

3. DOLLARS? It costs money to fight fires—especially those in remote areas. Last year the nation had to spend 70 million dollars to fight forest fires—9 out of 10 of which were preventable.

5. THE CAUSE? 9 out of 10 forest fires—and last year we had an average of nearly 500 per day—are started by well-meaning but careless people who just plain didn't think. So please—any time you're out of doors, be extra careful with matches, smokes—any fire. Your ash tray when driving. Drown your fire when camping. Make sure every spark is out—dead out!

2. WATER? Yes, surprising as it may seem, forest fires destroy water! Tree leaves and natural humus of the forest act as sponges, soaking up water and releasing it gradually. In burned areas, most of the water is lost in flood runoff—endangering property and lives.

4. RECREATION? Forest fires blacken our landscapes, clog and pollute good fishing streams, kill off wildlife and ruin beautiful vacation spots.

Specialist Asks Reports On Disease and Insects

W. W. Magill, Kentucky Agricultural Extension Service fruit specialist, asks Kentucky growers to report in writing to him if strawberry leaf-spot or strawberry leaf-roller insects are noted in their patches. The specialist said the leaf-spot disease (caused by a fungus) is widespread in Kentucky this year. There have been home reports, he said, on strawberry leaf-roller insects.

FARM NOTES
By ROBERT M. JONES

STRAWBERRIES
The local market for strawberries this year has again been above expectations. Most all berries sold locally have been of high quality. Growers have learned that a top quality product is easy to sell at a fair price. The housewife of Floyd county is demanding a high quality product and is willing to pay more for it.

Due to the small number of strawberries being shipped from Floyd and Pike counties, the East Kentucky Strawberry Association has stepped in to help. This doesn't mean that growers can't ship their berries, but they will have to deliver them to Palmetto.

Except for a few days during the rain, when berries were of low quality and market demand was light, berry prices have held up well. Most berries are now being sold direct to buyers, bypassing the broker.

Outlook for next year is improving. Some of the other states have very poor quality berries this year and are plowing some under. This, on top of smaller average set the last two years, should make a strong market next year.

With this situation, every grower should continue to take care of his patch after harvest and try and get as much production as possible next year.

The Floyd County Sheep Association handled the order of a carload of white face yearling ewes from Texas. The car was delivered last mid-week. The 10 saw these ewes thought they were the best that has been delivered.

The car load was divided among farmers from Rowan, Carter, Johnson, Magoffin and Floyd counties. O. S. Martin and John Wells of Floyd county bought sheep from this car.

GARDENS
During this wet, cool weather insects are very active in the garden. These insects will cause a lot of damage unless controlled. There are several sprays on the market that will do the job.

One of the best and safest materials on the market is methoxychlor, followed closely by Malathion. These two will kill the majority of insects that cause any trouble. Both are available as a dust or wettable spray. Vegetables should be sprayed every week to 10 days to get good results.

DDT which is a very good insecticide has one fault in that it will leave a residual effect on the vegetables for about three weeks. Vegetables eaten in less time after being sprayed with DDT may cause illness. DDT is all right to use on potatoes or any other vegetable before it sets fruit.

Start spraying tomatoes for blight as soon as they start putting out bloom pods. Use either a zinc or copper compound alternating with captan. These materials are sold under various company names. The label will tell what the spray is made of. Be sure to read the label and follow directions carefully.

LOCUSTS
The big locust year is here. They are singing a song throughout the country. Contrary to a popular belief, they are not poisonous. Their damage is done to small trees and shrubs by laying eggs in the tips of branches. Later on, these branches die and the small trees may cause the entire tree to die. Valuable trees and shrubs should be covered with insecticide. A spraying of DDT has been found helpful.

COUNTY HIGH IN EARNINGS

Net Income of Floyd Set At $31,069,000 for '56, Sales Management Shows

Floyd county is rated high as a market on the basis of its business activity in the past year. Its strength was shown in high employment and income and in large-scale buying in the local retail stores.

The findings are contained in Sales Management's new, copyrighted survey of buying power, which gives comparable performance figures for every section of the country.

Large-scale spending by residents of Floyd county was a bright spot in the business picture. Purchases in the local retail stores added up to a noteworthy $167,000.

For most retail lines it was a prosperous year. Nondurable goods turned in the best performance, a rate of six percent. Durables, however, fell two percent below the record set in 1955. The slump in new car sales had a lot to do with it.

The ability to spend more, in Floyd county, stemmed from better earnings. The survey shows that the total disposable income locally, after taxes, amounted to $31,069,000. Arbitrarily, dividing the income by the number of families, it came to a net of $2,613 per family, compared with $3,492 the year before.

The relationship between the amount of business being done in any one community and its full capacity is shown in the study through a "buying power index." This is a weighted figure which takes into account such factors as population, disposable income and buying volume. It rates Floyd county as able to account for 6128 percent of the nation's retail business. Since a smaller amount was done last year, 1086 percent, it concludes that the full sales potential has not yet been reached.

In almost every direction, growth seems to be the watchword of the day. With populations expanding rapidly, with real income rising and with our national production of goods increasing, people now can buy more than they could a few years back.

Louisville's average family income last year was $5,982 but if you consider the Falls City is the state's richest in average income you're wrong. Harlan had the highest average with $7,700 per family. Pikeville ranked third in the state with $6,397.

The high earnings of the towns of Harlan and Pikeville do not include the probable lower rural incomes of the counties.

"BRAHMS AT FIDELITY"

A few springs ago, when I spoke at the commencement of the High School, I was exceedingly surprised to hear excellent rendition of Brahms and Handel, right at my own little corner of the world. I was told that the numbers I heard had rated high in regional, and state contests. All the time the music was going on, I was sitting on the stage, awaiting my part of the program and rejoicing that my own little village could hold up its head with the centers of population and could do its music as well as the best. That may seem strange to you; why shouldn't Fidelity do it? I know. We could have enjoyed any of them if they had been brought to us; just weren't, I could have put up with what we were given. We forget sometimes how hungry we might be for things that so satisfy us in classic music, since we had never heard such, did not exactly know the nature of our music, but the hunger itself was there.

I am just back from another commencement round in the same general area and am congratulating myself on having heard some more excellent music sung by country children. So we see that I believe that even a music critic would have applauded. As I do often tell my students, particularly the ones who imagine that they are too dumb to enjoy the best music, these country folks, music that took the top rating in their formal and sang real music, music that took the top rating of sophisticated critics from great colleges and great musical organizations. No amount of mere changes will ever quite displace this great experience.

Now we had music at Fidelity, country of a pretty good. Our voices were pretty harsh, but our spirits were willing. We did not sing pianissimo; when we sang, we literally raised the roof. Some of us stayed on the time, but everybody was expected to raise his voice in song. Out of the miscellaneous music education that we were getting, pretty badly scrambled education, some genuine values ultimately became evident. Those old church hymns, however poorly rendered, sank their message into our hearts. In stately dignity tones. Ballads, transmitted orally from the Old Country, made their mark, too. They tied us, unconsciously, with days long gone, with knights and ladies fair, with "old, unhappy, far-off things and battles long ago."

Nobody seemed to know that there was any special worth in ballad-ment; we just liked them and listened for the hundredth time of the same ones, year after year, as much impressed with "hard-hearted Barbary Allen" on the hundredth singing of the song as on the first. And there drifted into our corner of the universe popular songs, usually some time after they had become popular elsewhere, and thus we came to know of the loss of the LADY ELGIN, the sinking of the battleship MAINE, the love of an American soldier for a Filipino girl, and even "a boom-de-ay." Some of our Sunday School songs were new then and now have become as nearly classic church music as the hymns of Watts and the Wesleyes. Fanny J. Crosby was still alive and writing, her songs full of a faith that we early associated with her blindness and her clear eyes of faith.

But we needed some of the classics that now have come, along with the neighborhood high school and the well-trained musician from the nearby college, with its high-class department of music. I would not want to give up the folk music I heard or the drenched church songs, but I wish I could have had, as these younger ones are having, a touch of Brahms and Handel and Chopin and Sibelius and other musicians, whose compositions, rendered with instruments or human voices, how form a part of the musical, normal life of so many children.

State Air Chief, Roy Osborne, Dies
Frankfort, June 5.—Roy E. Osborne, 52, Kentucky's aeronautics commissioner, died at his home in Williamson of a heart attack May 27.

He was one of the first Kentuckians to fly an airplane. He was appointed aeronautics commissioner last March by Gov. A. B. Chandler to succeed John A. Dixson, who resigned.

Sometimes referred to as "Kentucky's airborne" son," Osborne served 20 years as a State police officer, reaching a captain's rank. He had been a barnstormer around Williamson, a commercial pilot who flew hunters in Mexico, a Navy test pilot and the pilot of the State Police's first aircraft.

Osborne was a native of Grant county.

Control Measures Listed For Strawberry Leaf-Roll

The strawberry leaf-roller insect has appeared in some Kentucky strawberry patches and control measures should be taken in the near future, says J. G. Hodgson, UK Experiment Station entomologist.

The leaf-roller is most abundant in new patches and in patches where insecticides have not been used for control of other pests, he says.

All the leaf-roller after harvesting is completed, but before renovation of the patches, Rodgers says. Use the material TDE, using two pounds of the 50-percent wettable powder in 100 gallons of water per acre.
