THURSDAY

PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY

This Town That World

Almost every Thanksgiving, I recall that old record in the court-house here by which Jacob Mayo...

COUNT YOUR BLESSINGS

We have no affinity for this rash of special occasions especially those "Weeks" that this official or that designates from time to time...

Sometimes that reminder comes as a jolt from a turn of fortune or illness or death. Then we stop to think. All too often, it is only then that we do stop.

THE FABLE OF THE BIG MOUTH

Once upon a time there was a man who hid into the Thanksgiving turkey with such abandon that he developed a king-size stomachache.

His slumber was perturbed however. First of all, his broken camped so effectively with the TV that members of the family decided he was dispensable and carried him off to a distant room in the house, leaving him his gun, a television program advertising another remedy for what ailed him lulled him to sleep.

In his dream he went far back in time—he was known as Pili Murphy — to the first Thanksgiving. He was one of the Pilgrims "sent out" to hunt wild turkeys for the coming feast.

He was of course, was a blunder-bug with the largest that fared in the woods.

CIRCUIT COURT FINES ONLY 2

Trial of Mrs. Little For Murder Delayed; Shell Lawyers Quit

Circuit court dragged on this week with few cases brought to trial, now dismissed, and a number continued to future date.

Two $100 fines have been assessed within the week of defendants who submitted "law and facts" in their cases. Those fined were Earned Isaacs, cutting and conveying, and Joe Brantley, unlawful conversion of property.

The trial of Mrs. Mary Jane Little of Byrns, charged with the murder of her husband, was continued July 27, and the armed robbery trial of Norman B. Hamilton has been set for Dec. 2.

Jerry Shell again this week was obliged to go looking for new attorneys to represent him in his trial for the slaying at chief of Keke Vaughn as Jarvis Allen and Bert T. Combs were permitted by Judge Edw. B. Hill to withdraw from the case. They had been appointed by the court, after Shell's original attorneys, Paul E. Hayes and Barkley J. Sturgill, had withdrawn.

The one-year term probably given Charles Hall was probated with the probationary period to cover two years.

CONLEY'S OFFICE TERM STARTS NEXT MONDAY

EARLY START BECAUSE JOB STATE OFFICE

Manis Conley will be the first of those officials-elect named at the Nov. 5 Floyd county election who will take office, with his induction to the office of Tax Commissioner scheduled for next Monday.

Other officials will not take office till Jan. 6. The Tax Commissioner, it is expected, will take office at the earlier date because he is a state, not a county, officer. This status of the Tax Commissioner was also defined some years ago by the Court of Appeals in a ruling which held that the state should be divided into taxing districts. The taxing districts later were conveniently placed according to county lines.

What the future of the "Floyd County's" Magistrates, as well as those of other counties will be, is a matter of conjecture. What will be the office by term, now that the Court of Appeals has abolished the "Floyd County" Magistrate system is the question occupying a prominent place in the minds of many as new terms loom ahead.

MARTIN PICKS 3 FLOYD MEN

For Education Study In First 12 Grades; December Meet Set

Charged with the responsibility of strengthening and sharpening the course of study in the first 12 grades of public education in Kentucky, the State Board of Education committees appointed last Friday the three groups were named by Dr. Robert Martin, superintendent of education, at the State Board of Education.

P.T.A. GROUP TO ORGANIZE

Association To Serve High School; Principal Meets With Delegation

Organization of the first Parent-Teacher Association to serve Prestonsburg high school since its occupancy in the new school building will be effected in a meeting scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 6, it was announced this week.

The first move toward a P.T.A. in the school was made Tuesday at a meeting where about 25 parents visited Principal James V. Bolen at the school.

Members of the delegation explained that the purpose of the organization is that of all P.T.A.'s—to work with teachers, who are related to the school as well as to the parents their responsibilities for helping the school secure vital needs and not to interfere with school administration.

It was emphasized this week that every parent of a pupil in the school should be invited to the organizational meeting. Many of these parents live some distance outside Prestonsburg but their help is needed and they are being urged to attend and take part, it was said.

FLOYD GROUP GETS $3,500

Craids for Children Aids Retarded Council; Grant Is Fourth Made

The Floyd County Council for Retarded Children has received a grant of $3,500 for its work from the 1957 WHAS Crusade for Children. It was announced this week.

The grant, one of 35 allocated by the ministers of the "Moral Side of the News" radio panel, was made possible by contributions totaling $178,210.48 by citizens of the county and southern Indiana to the program which was broadcast on WHAS Radio and Television, September 21 and 22.

The grant will be applied to the operation of the Council's School for Retarded Children at Martin during the current 1957-'58 school year and will underwrite its expenses for the first two months when it reopens in October, next year.

The ministers of the "Moral Side of the News" panel extended their congratulations to the members of the Floyd council upon their recent successful fund-raising.

Joe McKinney, 28, minister, and Tom Martin, 16, Drift, marriage solemnized Nov. 22 at Martin by the Rev. J. D. Payne, Johnson Johnson, 21, and both reside in...

Surviving, besides Mrs. Frasure, is a son, Henry Boto, of Martin, and another daughter, Mrs. Reva Belle Fairchild, of Allen.

Funeral rites were held at the home of Luther Evans, of Martin, Saturday, the Rev. Robert Martin officiating. Burial was made in the Western cemetery at Mossy Bottom, Pike county, and the direction of Turner-Ryan Funeral Home.

WAR VETERAN FATALLY HURT

Brake Failure Named As Cause Of Accident That Kills Salisbury

Blaine Salisbury, 39-year-old World War II veteran and a former resident of Hunter, was fatally injured Saturday afternoon at St. Mary's, O., as his auto and another collided at a street intersection. He died at 8 p.m., 30 minutes after arriving at St. Mary's hospital.

Mr. Salisbury had lived in St. Mary's five years and was employed there by the Goodyear Corporation. It was said that the fatal smashup resulted from failure of his car brake to hold at the street intersection. His neck was broken and his skull fractured.

Riding with him at the time the tragedy were his wife, May Nitch, and his 11-year-old son, Mattie Nitch. His wife suffered a fractured pelvis, but both legs were broken. The victim was a son of Link Salisbury and the late May Bentley Salisbury, and his mother and father, survivors include four children, Anthony, Danny, Kenneth and Francis, all of St. Mary's, and three brothers and three sisters, Bert and Jay Salisbury, both of Hunter, and Wayne Salisbury, Malcom, Mrs. Cassie B. Hall, of H. H. Hat, Mrs. Dessie Rowe, of Malone, and Mrs. Gertrude Boggs, Huntington, W. Va.

KIWANIS CLUB HONORS FLOYD FARM WINNERS

National Farm-City Week was observed here last Thursday evening with the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club having as its guests winners of the Floyd county corn derby, sheep and strawberry program awards for 1957.

Purpose of Farm-City Week is to promote a better understanding between rural and urban residents, and the Agricultural committee of the Kiwanis Club sponsored Thursday's program. County Agent Robert Jones was the speaker.

The corn derby was conducted by the Lafferty family of Cliff, with J. L. Lafferty, his son and granddaughters receiving all three top awards. And it was the granddaughter Barbara Lafferty who won first award with a crop yield of 146.8 bushels on a one-acre plot. Her grandfather, J. L. Lafferty, ranked second with 133 bushels, and her father, J. L. Lafferty, Jr., third with 123 bushels.

For the third year in a row Virgil Smith, of Allen, received first-place award in the county sheep program which was judged by residents of the section who also on pasture, equipment and production. Billy Merritt, of Bond, ranked second, and Ward B.

MOORE HEADS RADIO "HAMS"

Amateurs Are Licensed By FCC; Organization At Pikeville Planned

Among the lesser known activities of Eastern Kentuckians is that comparatively small group of residents of the section who are known as "hams", the appellation applied to amateur radio operators.

Wade Moore, of West Prestonsburg, is emergency coordinator of area "hams" as they participate in the section. He was during the January, 1957 flood when regular means of communication from this section with the outside world were severed to a monumental effort, serving as contact relief agencies, state and national organizations and to transmit private messages.

All this work last January was free to fact, hams are not licensed to charge for their services.

There are four active hams in Floyd county—Mr. Moore and Stanley Head, of Prestonsburg; Dean Lafferty, of Martin, and Jim Daniels at Axwiler. There are approximately 25 in the Floyd-Johnson-Pike area.

These, as are all amateur radio operators, are all licensed by the Federal Communications Commission.

Boy, Caught In Fireworks Probe, Avows He Ordered 'em From a 'Funny Book'

Prestonsburg police were trying to locate this week the source of fireworks being sold to juveniles here. A bit of luck came chief of Police Vir Lafferty's way after several days wrestling with the problem when he caught a West Prestonsburg boy with four boxes of illegal noise makers. The boy revealed where he had bought them, according to Lafferty.

Prompting police interest in the illegal sale of fireworks is the fire of residents who want to sleep. One Prestonsburg businessman offered a $25 reward this week for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a merchant-vendor; source of the fireworks he would sell at 50c per conviction.

Lafferty pointed out that the sale of fireworks is not only a violation of the state law but is forbidden by city ordinance imposing a fine of $100.

Lafferty's efforts in dropping a source of the kid's noise-makers had come book this week when he apprehended a boy with a shoe-box full. When questioned as to where the fireworks came from, the boy averred solemnly that he ordered them out of a "funny book."

ENGINEERS BEGIN JOB OF LAKE ROAD SURVEY

Wells Says All Roads Maintained by State In Floyd To Be Paused

The Times erroneously reported in last week's edition that Jim Miller was given a two-year term along with Bill Smith on their plans of guilty to a charge of breaking and entering.

The two men were accused jointly, but only Smith entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced. Miller pleaded not guilty, and his case was continued.

FLASH FLOOD WARNINGS SET

Five Observation Points Are Designated In Region; System Is Tied To Radar

The United States Weather Bureau designated five observation points in Eastern Kentucky to warn of flash floods during the mountain area.

One of the five stations will be at Martin. Ralph Kresge, Washington, hydrologic engineer for the Weather Bureau, and Carl M. Relyea, meteorologist of the bureau's Cincinnati office, said observers at the points will gauge rainfall and river stages to forecast floods and warn of danger.

The observers would report to the Cincinnati, Huntington, Nashville offices of the Weather Bureau.

The system will be tied in with the radar warning system of the Weather Bureau which has been in operation within two years, Kresge said.

The designated points and observers are: — Forrest Willis, — Albert K. — Moore, — Hall Brothers, — Hall Brothers, — Pulcher, — Harlan—Homer — Jones, and Corbin — Fire Chief James W. Wyatt.

In addition, there are river and rain gauges at Whitesburg and Nepon. Forecasts for Pikeville will continue from Cincinnati.

Communications is a problem, there are no observation points at Hyden and Manchester. Because of small drainage areas.

SUIT CLAIMS BIG DAMAGES

Stephens May Claim Million-Dollar Loss From Company, Said

Federal court action instituted at Pikeville last week by attorneys for D. C. Stephens, Prestonsburg, owner of radio station WPERT here, may develop into a million-dollar claim for damages, it was said Wednesday afternoon.

The amount of damages to be sought was not definitely fixed in the suit filed for Stephens by Francis Dale Burke, Pikeville attorney, and Atty. J. P. Tackett, of Prestonsburg, but the total asked may be heavy, since the suit claims Stephens was compelled to surrender his 1700-watt, 800-watt permit for radio station operation here because the electronic equipment supplied him by an Illinois firm was defective.

The 1720-kilocycle spot was later granted to radio station WDCO here as a competitor of Mr. Stephens' station, but the spot was actually Stephens' suit is a counter-action to one filed against him by the Gates Acceptance Corporation, III, for $12,000 allegedly due on a $10,000 bill for the equipment which was purchased from the Gates Corporation, also of Quincy. The acceptance firm is the credit agency for the Gates Corporation. The latter firm had made a third party to Stephens' answer and counterclaim action against Gates Acceptance.

Joe P. Tackett said here this week that depositions of Floyd county residents will be taken next month, and that these persons will testify that the signal received from the new equipment was inadequate.

The tower for the radio station on 1270 kilocycles which Stephens proposed was erected and still stands monthly meeting, November 20 at Paintsville.

The district director, Mrs. Dixie T. Higgins of Floyd county, presided. Mrs. Mary Ruth Cochran of Pike county, was elected secretary.

'FLU' EPIDEMIC COSTS SCHOOLS $16,400.00

The cost of absenteeism to the Floyd county school system up to the end of the fourth month now ending for most schools stands at approximately $36,224 according to the County Superintendent's office.

The figure was arrived at by multiplying the total absences by 80 cents per day per pupil, which is the amount the state allows the school system, based upon average daily attendance.

Heaviest contributor to absenteeism in the school month closing was Asian Flu. It is calculated that the influenza epidemic cost the county $16,400.00, since there approximately 20,500 pupils were out of school. The figure does not include the Asian flu outbreak had an absenteeism total of 12,728. This was more than the total pupil enrollment of 13,959.

Walter Frasure, social worker with the Board of Education, noted this week that not all absenteeism is due to illness.

Walter Frasure noted also that many children were using the Asian flu as an excuse to remain out of school. He said that it is practically impossible to bring the parents into court because court processes are not served. Statistics gathered by the County Superintendent's office show the steady climb of absenteeism in the county since school started. The first month of operation of the rural schools showed $3,990 absenteeism, it rose to $1,177 the second month.

Representatives Lon C. Hill and Senator-elect Jerry F. Howell will be in the county last week with Governor A. B. Chandler and highway officials on road plans and State Road Improvement. They discussed, in particular, the "package plan" submitted to the governor for a large number of state parks, some of which are non-existent, and were assured by Chandler: "We will take care of Dewey Lake."

Rural Highway Commissioner J. B. Wells told the Floyd men that all the Floyd county state-maintained, gravel-surfaced roads not already blacktopped are set up for paving. These routes scheduled for improvement represent approximately 24 miles of highway.

Included in routes to be blacktopped, according to plans announced by Wells, are Stone Coal, Whitesburg, and the Floyd-Huntington route line to the southwest.

"Christmas for Christ" Emphasis Planned Here at Committee Meeting

The theme, "Christmas for Christ," will be used this year on the people of Prestonsburg and Floyd county through different media, it was announced this week following the meeting of the Christmas for Christ committee of the Local Council of Churchwomen last Wednesday.

The committee, meeting at the home of Mrs. L. B. Fairchild, chairman, planned to stress the importance of "Christmas for Christ" through "Christmas for Christ" stickers, by posters emphasizing the theme and placed in business places, a 15-minute radio program beginning at 2 p.m. on the Sunday preceding Christmas, also spots on radio programs and church bulletins.

Merchants will be asked to carry out their Christmas window decorations. Wives of the ministers of the five churches participating in the Local Council of Churchwomen will take part in the planned radio program.

BETSY LAYNE

The Betsy Layne Women's Club held its regular monthly meeting November 21 at the home of Mrs. Edward Lykins. The program was given by Mrs. S. Salisbury as leader. Mrs. Salisbury introduced the guest speaker, Jerry Combs, of the Hazard district, Trooper State Police, who gave an interesting talk on highway safety. Trooper Combs stressed the fact that speed is one of the greatest causes of highway accidents, and noted that this excessive speed is caused by various factors, such as drunkenness. Highway mufflers, which require speed to make them operate, and other contributing factors. It was also noted that improper passing, and bad brakes also cause accidents. The record shows that women drivers have fewer accidents than men, the speaker said. Trooper Combs discussed the length of the dangers involved in the use of highway mufflers on cars driven by younger people. He stated that he is one of the greatest dangers because of the excessive speed required to make these mufflers operate. He urged parents to read and consider what a car could do to their child, and to be sure that their child can handle it properly before he or she is allowed to drive. Among other things, he stressed the importance of having your car checked often before driving; see that the lights and brakes are in good condition; in other words, have your car in top condition at all times. Trooper Combs pointed out that the speed regulations in school zones are in effect from the hours of 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., and urged everyone to be especially cautious in these zones because he felt that the one who stopped the lowest to help a child stood the straightest.

A business session followed the program, with Mrs. O. J. Williams presiding. A letter was read from the chairman of the KPWOC veterans division, asking that each member add a veteran to her Christmas list by contributing $1 for a gift. The group agreed to this request, with all members making a contribution. The KPWOC chairman asked to her secretary, who participated in all activities at the veterans' hospitals by gifts for Christmas. Mrs. Williams presented the indulgent patients, magazines for the library and in many other ways. At the close of the business session a salad was served. Mesdames Glenn Blackburn, T. S. Salisbury, O. J. Williams, Bessie Hardwick, Miss Edna Williams and Patricia Lykins and the hostess Mrs. Lykins. The next regular meeting will be the annual Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Glenn Blackburn, December 19.

About three-fifths of the "berry crop" comes from Floyd County, Mass. New Jersey and Wisconsin are also important in the production of this crop.

operators, are licensed by the Federal Communications Commission to operate on their own electronic equipment on various frequencies after passing a very strict examination. This amateur radio is one of the very few hobbies that is licensed and controlled by the federal government.
Hams are miners, business men, farmers, electronic engineers—anybody who is interested and will apply themselves enough to meet federal requirements.
These amateurs of Eastern Kentucky recently participated in the simulated emergency staged by the American Radio Relay League. The range of a local operator varies between 400 and 500 miles, and by the ham relay system a message can be communicated from Floyd county, Ky., to any place in the world within a few hours.
Ham operators of the area now are in process of organizing a club, with headquarters in Pikeville. Its members will work toward providing better service in time of flood and other emergency by establishing mobile and automobile units. The decision to install more radio units that can be moved from place to place was made after many home units were flooded last January.

at the end like a trumpet. Old Blunder was heavily charged, and as the hunter watched, slung a turkey, a noble gobble in full strut.
Up went the blunderbuss. The gunner, however, was off the gun, and the hunter pulled the trigger. The weapon went off with a mighty roar and when the hunter staggered to his feet he looked to behold only a wing and some tail feathers left of what had been the finest turkey he had ever seen.
The moral, if any, of this story is: BIG MOUTH GOBBLES TOO MUCH GOBBLER.

DIANA AND THE UNLUCKY MEMPHIS
A more modern story of hunting frustration is that of Hence Terry, his son-in-law, Truman Messer, and Jack Dingus, who reportedly led Martin recently on a deer hunt with high hopes, spent a cold night in the open, hunted the hills and themselves out and saw nary a deer. Up to the next morning Mr. Messer's daughter (Mr. Messer's wife) turned up deer-hunting for the first time in her life, walked out on a neighboring hillside—and in an hour or so returned with a nine-point buck.
Incidentally, the lady's name is Joy. Compare with the names of the other three.

MARTIN GRADUATED
Murnau, Germany—Specialist Third Class William J. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Berlin Martin, Dema, Ky., recently was graduated from the demolition, mine and booby traps course at the Army's European Engineer School in Murnau, Germany.
During the five-week course, Specialist Martin received training in laying and removing mines and booby traps and firing demolition charges on roads and bridges.
He entered the Army in February 1946 and received basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. He was last stationed at Fort Gordon, Ga., and arrived in Europe in June 1956.
The 18-year-old soldier was graduated from McDowell (Ky.) high school in 1955.
The first telephone exchange opened in Louisville in 1879.

SPUNKY?
Wouldn't advise you to sit out too long these cold nights, which, but stories we read and hear indicate you might see something interesting. Spunkies, as you know, and we have the word not of one but four Prestonsburg men that they recently saw "something" in the sky that had them guessing. The four—"Foodies" Wells, E. B. May, Jr., Jack Hyden and Bill Goebel, Jr.—were returning to Prestonsburg when, near Martin, they saw this light in the sky. The object, they noted, was larger than the lights on an airplane and, besides, there was only one; so they stopped their car, got out and took a long look, just to be sure. It moved for a time in darting fashion, then suddenly took off in a straight line over the horizon. Just wait till my youngest son gets that telescope!

raising campaign this fall. They said, "The progress of your efforts is consistent with the purposes of the Crusade—to enable any service for handicapped children to be established in the hope that eventually they may become self-supporting."
The radio auction conducted last month by the Floyd Council for Retarded Children netted about $3,500.
Having received grants from the three other Crusades as well as this year's amount brings the total allocated by the Crusade to that Council in four grants to $13,550. The Crusade also helped replenish the school's supplies after much was destroyed by the disastrous flood last spring.
It is expected that a representative of the Council will appear on a special WHAS Radio and Television program, "Crusade '57 Report," Thanksgiving Day, (Channel 11, 11:30-5:30 p.m.; WHAS radio, 9:00-10:00 p.m.) to accept the grant.
The Council for Retarded Children of Pike county also received a grant from the Crusade of $7,614.00, including $2,614.00 which was left in its treasury from last year's grant of $8,000. The money is to be used toward the operation of the Council's School for Retarded Children.
Under the rules of the Crusade, grant recipients promise quarterly reports on the use of the funds given.
Judge Bert T. Combs of Prestonsburg, and Judge Ervin S. Pruitt, of Pikeville, are the chairmen, respectively, of the Floyd and Pike councils.

U. S. Farmers' income in 1956 was 106 billion dollars out of the total U. S. income of 275 billion.

Heads Select Group

Frederic Theodore May, of Prestonsburg, has been elected president of Eta Kappa Nu, honorary engineers' fraternity at the University of Kentucky. The chapter membership is composed only of those students having a high scholastic standing.
Mr. May, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lee May, of Prestonsburg, is majoring in nuclear physics. He will spend the Thanksgiving holidays in St. Louis, to which city he will fly as guest of the McDonald Aircraft Corporation. He will be graduated next May, and plans working on his master's.

HEALTH NOTES
By Floyd County Health Department
Royalty has lost yet another job. And scientific research has scored again against tuberculosis. Time was when the touch of the king's hand was the death blow for people suffering from Scrofula—tuberculosis of the lymph nodes. Certain times were set aside when patients could be brought to the king to feel his healing touch. Artists were recorded for us this pitiful spectacle. There was hope, at least, for the few who could afford the trip. For thousands of others there was no hope at all. Even after it became known that the disease was a type of tuberculosis there was little that could be done.
Today lymphatic TB is treated with antimicrobial drugs and surgery. More recently streptococcal enzymes have been tried with hopeful results.
Here is one more example of the progress being made against tuberculosis on all fronts. The TB germ is a tough and baffling adversary. There is still much that is not known about it. Research scientists must continue their painstaking search for knowledge in order to bring about the defeat of TB.
We can all play a part in this search. When we buy Christmas Seals we contribute to research in tuberculosis. Christmas Seal dollars support research in laboratories throughout the country where work is being done on various aspects of tuberculosis. More dollars are spent to prevent the spread of tuberculosis infection and to rehabilitate the victims of the disease.
When the day comes that it can be said that TB is under control in this country, all of us who have contributed to the Christmas Seal sale can feel a glow of pride because we helped.

The wedding of Miss Carlos Evelyn Horn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Horn, 514 South Lake Drive, Prestonburg, and Charles C. Wells, of Paintsville, son of Mrs. Charles J. Wells, was beautifully solemnized on Friday evening Nov. 15 at the Prestons- burg Methodist Church.

The Rev. Harold W. Dorsey performed the single-ring cere- mony at 6 o'clock which was decorated with masses of lilies and bouquets of white snapdragons, ranunculus and gladioli interspersed with greenery.

Mrs. Chalmers Frazer, organist, played the traditional wedding music and accompanied Miss Mary Belle Layne who sang "Be- cause, 'I Love You Truly' and "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride was given in mar- riage by her father. The matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Keith S. Alley, of Pikeville, Ky. Her niece, Diana Keith Alley, of Pikeville, was flower girl.

The bride's gown was of a deli- cate rose point pattern of im- ported fabric with white en- hanced neckline and sleeves. A lace front panel, with star-like pearl beading and sequins glistened over the bodice with rick rick tulle over tulle giving grace to the skirt. Her veil was of nylon tulle with cream silk and sequins. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift from the groom. She carried a bouquet of white roses and white Fuji mums tied with matching satin ribbon and accented with a purple threated white orchid.

Mr. James S. Barber, of Paints- ville, brother-in-law of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Keith S. Alley, Pikeville, and Randolph Boyd, of Paintsville.

The bride's mother wore a sheath dress of baby blue wool jersey with a low, round pleated neckline and sequin-trimmed jacket to match. She wore baby blue shaded accessories with a pink carnation corsage. The mother of the groom wore a sheath dress of brown jersey with a low embroidered neckline of beige silk net scattered with se- quins and seed pearls. She wore pink shade accessories and nat- ural orchids.

When the couple left for a wed- ding trip, the bride wore blue wool jersey dress with blue satin cummerbund with black satin slippers and bag, blue elbow length gloves and hat.

one month and climbed to 5,325 in non-attendance at the end of the third month. The figures for the consolidated schools are similar. The first month showed 3,981 absences but the figure jumped to 8,494 the second month. Complete figures on the third month of the consolidated schools are not complete at this time.
Truancy causes, as set out in the teacher's reports, list indifferent parents as the major cause of absenteeism. Following that, teachers report, are children working at home, lack of clothing, no transportation and live over two miles from school, no excuses, illness, need of law enforcement, vacation plans to move, assisting with smaller children at home.
Frasure commented on the transportation situation. "Many truants live in places where it is impossible for the Board of Education to provide transportation due to poor road conditions. But to my mind, to walk only two miles to school poses no unbearable hardship. Certainly, parents who want an education for their children should not consider two or even three miles a barrier to their child's education."
The attendance department is exerting every effort to get children in school. Frasure said. "As much as we would like to do this, we realize we are only scratching the surface. It is a big problem, big enough to require the united effort of parents, courts and all of us to solve it," he added.

Busy Bee Homemakers Meet November 15th

The Busy Bee Homemaker Club met at the home of Mrs. Maxie Raamussen, Friday, November 15, the president, Mrs. John Conn, presiding. The business was taken care of by Mrs. Josephine Layne, secretary. Mrs. Layne gave each member a handbook which she had filled out and scheduled the meetings until August, 1958.
Lesson on Landscaping was given by Mrs. John Conn. "Busting Bugs and Coats" was the main lesson. It was pointed out that a poorly chosen garment often becomes a disappointment; that sound shopping begins at home.
Mrs. Raamussen, hostess, served refreshments to the following Homemakers: Mrs. Marie Wilson, Mrs. Emma Danron, Mrs. Jenny Wright, Mrs. Flora Hopkins, Mrs. Josephine Layne, Mrs. John Conn, Mrs. Laura Bentley, and Mrs. Edna T. Higgins.
The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Constance Lackey, December 20, at 1:00 p.m. "Holiday Foods" will be the main lesson.

Chandler Gets Honorary Medal

Frankfort, Nov. 25 (Sp.)—Gov. A. B. Chandler is the second person to receive the honorary Lincoln Trail Medal of the Kentucky Boy Scouts of America.

President Eisenhower was the first. Honorary membership in the Order of the Arrow, Boy Scout Indian tribe, goes with the medal. To receive the medal, Boy Scouts must hike the 32 1/2 miles from Elizabethtown to the Lincoln Memorial. More than 10,000 from many parts of the nation have hiked the trail.

In 1924, the U. S.'s dairy farmers got more than a billion dollars for their product. In 1956, it was 4 1/2 billions.

FOUR MEN OF THE CUMBERLANDS

- Big Ed Hall
- Devil John Wright
- Dr. M. B. Taylor
- Bad Talt Hall

By
HENRY P. SCALF

The four were badman and lawmen. Guns had ruled the Pound before they came. When they were gone the Cumberland was quiet, but only after a crescendo of blasting guns.

Ed Hall, officer, and Talt Hall, outlaw, were distant cousins, the former a Pound, the latter a Lettcher county, Kentucky native. John W. Wright, a sheriff most of the time, and bad, many said, was a man whose trigger-clappy finger bulwarked the law in a land where fugitives could hide in the cliffs and lairs and only men such as he could ferret them out. He lived on Elkhorn Creek, at the foot of Pound mountain, and supported in later years with his gun and fearful reputation the men who were building the town of Jenkins. Dr. M. B. Taylor, the Jacky-Ryle mystic and murderer, was the quarry of both Ed Hall and John W. Wright.

The foursome had picturesque reputations, bestowed by friends or foes, or given, as in the case of Talt Hall, by himself. Bill people called Ed Hall the Mountain Man-Hunter because he stalked his man indefatigably in the pine-studded hollows and on the rock-encrusted knolls. Many friends called him Big Ed, others not so friendly named him Red Ned. But his name wasn't Ned, nor was he bad. His character, perhaps best expressed by Bob Hall, of Pound River, who knew him intimately, and who said he "was nice and dangerous." Dr. Taylor became the Red Fox in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," by John Fox, Jr.

and the same pen dubbed Wright, Devil Judd Talliver. To many, particularly to enemies who said it under their breath, Wright was either Red John or Devil John.

Ed Hall reared on Otter Creek near the present site of Wiggewright, knew Talt Hall before the outlaw went on a spree of robbery and murder. Talt was not bad when Ed first knew him while both were young. Men referred to the future bad man as "that cowardly Talt Hall." Soon, though, he became tired of the epithet of detestation in a land where men were judged by the quickness of their draw or courage to stand up and fight. He borrowed a gun on election day at the Mouth of Dry Creek precinct and shot his first man.

"I've always been that coward Talt Hall," he said. "After this I'm going to be called Bad Talt Hall." He walked away from the astonished crowd, climbed a tall fence with the smoking gun in his hand, turned and crouched like a rooster. He was sure he had killed Billy Triplett, his brother-in-law, but he hadn't.

Ed Hall and Talt Hall went separate roads now, each picking the way by which he was to live. One would turn bad, the other become a feared hunter of men could not be inferred indubitably from the rearing of either, for both were from good stock and good homes in a local bordering on anarchy, with the rudiments of order held together only by the clan authority of the patriarchs.

The headstream valleys of Left and Right Beaver were gun-wrecked and insecure following the Civil War. Otter Creek, the birthplace of Ed Hall, isolated and feud-ridden, maintained its dread social mores until the turn of the twentieth century. The head of Right Beaver, home of Talt Hall, was a favorite range of feudists like old Clabe Jones and Devil John Wright.

Ed Hall, son of Wash and Cindy Hall, with his brothers and sisters in a mountain cabin near the forks of Otter, met the stern everdays of a near-pioneer existence with no complaint, as it was the only life he knew. He went to school a little when there was a school, was kept home for foddering, corn gathering and potato digging at the least excuse, as was the mountain custom. He liked school, though, for he was famed locally as fleet of foot and no schoolmate ever caught him when he was the fox being raced by the hounds. Long after he grew to manhood, even though he weighed 212 pounds, he was still noted for his fleetness of foot.

Early as a boy he took up the pastime of the creek people of throwing rocks, became proficient enough to be feared by others much

Kentucky IFYE Delegate Returns from Sweden

Miss Lois Allen of Webster county has returned home after spending five months in Sweden as an International People-to-People program for promoting understanding. In exchange, 48 young men and women from 28 different countries have lived with farm families in Kentucky to learn our way of life.

The IFYE program is financed by voluntary contributions of 4-H clubs, civic and rural groups, foundations, individuals and others interested in world understanding, said Miss Edith Lucy, Ky. 4-H club field agent. The exchanges are conducted in the United States by the Cooperative Extension Service and the National 4-H Club Foundation.

During 1957, a total of 126 rural young people from 37 states participated in home, farm and community activities in more than 40 countries throughout the free world.

Miss Allen, as all IFYE delegates, will devote several months to reporting her experiences, particularly to groups in her home county.

College Bears Defeat Ky. Christian College For Third Win in Row

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Nov. 25 (Sp.)—The Pikeville College Bears took their third basketball win without a loss Friday night (Nov. 22), defeating the Kentucky Christian College Rockets, 124-65.

The Bears will take part in the Logan Invitational tournament at Logan, W. Va., Friday and Saturday. They will meet three West Virginia colleges—Booker, Concord, and West Virginia State.

After trailing Kentucky Christian for the first two minutes, Pikeville took the lead on a jump shot by John Lee Butcher, and won going away. Butcher again paced the Bears with 25 points, and Pikeville's tallest two boys contributed on both offense and defense. Lynn Mullins, former Carr Creek high school student, added 19 points and pulled down 12 rebounds, and Garrett Mullins, of Pikeville, netted 14 points and earned 14 rebounds.

Ken Smallwood, second-highest scorer for the Bears last season, dropped in five points in his first game this season. The former Carr Creek star has been sidelined with leg injuries suffered in practice.

PRESTONSBURG PLACES BASKETBALL 2 ON ALL-STAR TEAM

Jenkins high school, 1957 Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference football champions, dominated the all-loop team that was chosen in Pikeville last week.

Nick Diachenko's unit placed three men on the select team, Fleming, Prestonsburg and Hazard, each had two players selected, and Belfry and Paintsville one each.

Fleming's two all-state candidates, fullback James Hill, and center Junior Thomas, are the only repeaters from last season's team.

In the stormy three-hour session that usually marks the fall meeting of the ten-team conference, Hazard high was awarded second place in the final overall standings, although the Bulldogs the required six conference games. Their league mark was 4-1 as compared with Prestonsburg's and Fleming's 5-2 records.

To alleviate any future scheduling difficulties, the loop's ten football coaches will meet in Pikeville at 10 a.m., December 9, in an effort to have every team play an even number of league games.

The conference's basketball coaches agreed to play six games within the league. The champion of the cage sport will be determined by the Dickinson System of rating.

The All-Conference Team
Ends — Ireland Smith, Belfry; Micky Dann, Jenkins.
Tackles — Fred Stidham, Hazard; Bill Hensley, Paintsville.
Guards — Wayne Dixon, Prestonsburg; Russell Aubury, Jenkins.

Center—Junior Thomas, Fleming

SECOND TEAM
Ends—Mike Kelley, Paintsville; Richard Weems, Pikeville.
Tackles—Tommy Brush, Jenkins; Blake Belcher, Elkhorn City.
Guards — R. A. Noble, M. C. Napier; Ralph Huston, Paintsville.
Center—Jim Stultz, Belfry.

BETSY LAYNE-GARRETT

Betsy Layne and Garrett, ranked two of the 15th region's cage contenders, will put their five-game winning streak on the line Saturday night at Garrett. Both teams have several veterans returning and are co-favorites to top the Floyd County Pre-Season tournament in Martin, next week.

Tommy Boyd's rangy Bobcats have romped over Wayland 78-50. Mullins, 66-55, Martin 74-56, Virgie 73-66, and Feds Creek 114-55. Veteran forward Ray Clarke has been the big offensive threat with 152 points in the five victories.

Garrett has registered victories over Salversville 70-62, Hindman 71-63, Wayland 76-55, Maytown 77-55 and McDowell 83-55.

PAINTSVILLE TOURNAMENT

Betsy Layne and Martin will represent Floyd county in the annual pre-season tournament in Paintsville January 1-4. Garrett is under consideration for the eighth spot in the affair. Other teams already selected are Paintsville, Meade Memorial, Inez, Oil Springs and Sandy Hook.

BROTHER ACT

In being named to the All-Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference football team, Prestonsburg's Paul Phillip Hughes is the third member of the J. T. Hughes family to receive this honor. Brothers John Delmar and Lowell preceded him.

Center Wayne Dixon is also the third member of the football-playing Dixon brothers of David to be selected to the team. Dixon is expected to be named to the Courier-Journal second or third all-state team which is to be released Sunday.

HUGHES TO RESUME

Charlie's "Grassy" Hughes, popular Floyd county basketball official, is expected to resume officiating in the Floyd county pre-season tournament next week. The veteran whistle-blower lost his index finger in a mine-tippie accident recently and had to cancel part of his heavy officiating schedule.

RATINGS

The Times will begin its annual ratings of all 15th region basketball teams January 1. Coaches and school officials are expected to submit scores and box scores of all games to the Times or myself before Tuesday of each week, if they desire to have them published in the paper each week.

TUSSEY ON TOUR

Fort Knox, Ky. — Army Pvt. Billy B. Tussey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Tussey, Water Gap, Ky., recently completed the second phase of a six-month tour of active military training under the Reserve Forces Act program at Fort Knox, Ky.

Tussey received eight weeks of clerk-typist training after having completed basic combat training at Fort Knox.

He is a 1957 graduate of Prestonsburg high school.

State Prepares Plan for Attack Comes

FRANKFORT, Nov. 28 (Sp.) — The state has begun drafting plans to provide emergency services in case it and the U. S. are attacked.

Gov. A. B. Chandler reactivated his Advisory Council on Civil Defense and Continuity in Government and named Lt. Harry Lee Waterfield its chairman. It is composed of 15 representatives and heads of key agencies.

Waterfield listed some of the council's problems:

How to control critical items, such as food and medical supplies, before the federal government can act; what to do about hoarding, rationing, price controls, currency controls, tax collections; how to provide emergency services to attacked cities; how to maintain court systems and other government services.

This working staff was appointed Miss Ruth McQueen, chairman, University of Kentucky political science department; June Davis, Department of Agriculture; Marion Longmire and Haynes Bruce, Economic Security; Strawn Taylor and Clifford Todd, Health; David Seber, attorney general's staff; Marion J. O'Donoghue, Treasury; Dr. Orba F. Traylor, Legislative Research Commission; Harmon Overly, Motor Transportation; James Hughes, Public Safety; Col. Edward Milburn, Civil Defense.

Columbia or the latter-like valleys of Virginia or Kentucky. While liquor was a lucrative article of trade and there was many a rendezvous, but Ed Hall was no dealer in illicit liquor, and he followed his occupation of logger, leaving the nefarious business to others until the law beckoned for his services. He was appointed a deputy United States marshal and, with his associates, Bill Edwards and Billy Reno, began to search and seize. He became hated and feared, but Donkey breathed a bit easier and there were fewer nights when guns barked incessantly.

Donkey was traditionally lawless, the town and its vicinity accursed with murders. It had been that way for generations. In 1810 a Kentucky-bound pioneer and the family's "one-eyed" man, strapped on a donkey, had stopped on Pound River to spend the night. The animal died and the man awoke to find himself stranded. Travelers, noting the bleaching bones of the beast, named the place Donkey. Thirty years later, still Donkey, a village began to build up around a country store and it became a trade center for a wide area. One of the articles in much demand was "apple jack."

Illicit whiskey, bad men and the utter absence of law, made Donkey a wild, screaming town few travelers would visit. The years passed and One-Eyed Dock Mullins sat down when he was old and noted the murders, most of them unsolved. Pity had occurred within a radius of two miles to the general store. Ed Hall hadn't yet earned his reputation as the Mountain Man-hunter but that he was courageous and big no one denied. So people called him Big Ed Hall. He had his troubles in Donkey, inside and outside the law but in the main he served the town to court. He served occasional papers the court sent, but mostly he cracked a long ox-whip around his logging train on the timber trails.

One of the restless, unpredictable temporary residents of Donkey was Dr. M. B. Taylor, whom the Kentucky novelist tagged with the name Red Fox. He had been born in Scott county, Virginia, of good parentage, had studied medicine, married Nancy Booth, reared a family. One son, Sylvan, married Hattie, daughter of the prominent attorney, Col. Logan Babers of Wise.

Dr. Taylor began practice of medicine in Letcher county, Kentucky, moved in a short while to Bold Center, in Wise county, Virginia. Soon he tired of the locality and gathering up his drugs, hung out a shingle in Gladeville, now Wise. It was here he studied the religious teachings of Swedenborg, gave full vent, to his spiritual leanings and began to mix religion and medicine. He would attend a patient, often mumble a bit and express strange incantation-like utterances. Sometimes he would administer drugs, then leave the house, go out to a secluded place and stand with uplifted hands, calling upon the "spirits" to aid his medical science.

Donkey had a strange allure for this man. Here he came, stayed for days, talked to the residents, one being Big Ed Hall, about the Civil War, related how he had deserted the Confederates because killing was an ungodly business. He remonstrated about how he dodged the pursuing soldiers of both sides as he was welcomed in the isolated mountain cabins where he held preaching services.

Under President Benjamin Harrison's administration he was appointed a deputy United States marshal and so being a man of authority he sneaked himself in firearms. A five-inch belt was worn around his waist filled with rows of cartridges while the revolver for which they were intended hung from his shoulder. Across his back or lying on theommel of his saddle was a Winchester and tucked in his habituelle was a five-foot-long telescope with which he searched the hills for the tall-tale smoke of the moonshiner.

On his star-faced black mare he roamed the countryside, seeing patients, looking for distillers, preaching a sermon now and then, assisting at funerals, and what was dear to his heart, chasing men wanted by the law. Often he changed shoes, wore a pair upon which the heels were seen nailed to the sole. Many an unwarly fugitive, scanning the plain footprints, and thinking he was taking a path away from the presence of the dreaded death, walked into his arms.

Ed Hall had little respect for the Red Fox and sought his professional services only in the direst emergency. For one thing Big Ed didn't like the dual character of the doctor's face. On one side was kindness and benevolence; the other was twisted into a wolfish snarl. Neighbors of the Hall cabin in Donkey related, too, that the doctor had killed Robert Moore, set up an alibi and was acquitted. He allowed the physician to pass the Hall cabin with scarcely an invitation to "light and stay."

Other notables of the isolated valley, hidden in the depths of the Cumberlands passed the Hall cabin, or stayed the night. Tall Hall, kinsman, now had and getting worse came a few times to Ebenezer, who was to die under a posse's guns on Left Beaver in 1902, came to see him, pleaded for protection. Big Ed placed Osborne under arrest, took him to Pound Gap, turned his face towards Kentucky and gave him a kick in the pants and said: "Now you get back to Floyd county and stay. If you come back to Donkey I'll kill you, sure." Sol Osborne after that roamed the headstreams of Beaver, Shelby and Elkhorn but he gave The Pound a wide berth.

Big Ed, though a kinsman of Tall's, had little regard for him, too, one reason being that the bad Beaver man had struck up a partnership with the Devil John Wright clan. Wright, living in a fortress like log home on Elkhorn, was feuding with Old Clabe Jones, of Knott county. Both Wright and Jones had their henchmen, both carried warrants for each other.

Tall Hall was a worthy lieutenant of Devil John and the gang they organized was bound together with an affinity of meanness and divinity, and deepened by the solemnity of The Oath. Years later the oath was denied by many but residents of the Cumberlands, heard the Wright band repeat it many times.

"I swear by God Almighty, by Heaven his home and by Hell his prison home to befriend and hold in the sacred bonds of brotherhood all members of the Band," the initiate affirmed. "I swear that I will be for them, die for them, steal for them, and if they are in trouble that I will give up everything I have to save them. I swear that I will be burned in oil, cut to pieces and salted rather than inform on them. I swear that I will obey my Captain in all things, even to the killing of my kinsmen and if I break this Oath I hope God will strike me dead in my tracks and that my whole life shall be damned to hell."

In such a gang the Wright henchmen roved about a great deal, on Elkhorn, Shelby, especially the Long Park, over on Boone, deep down Troublesome when they were not afraid of Old Clabe Jones, now jailer of Knott county. Old Clabe had cut portholes in the log jail at Hindman to protect himself from the Hays family and now and then used the log structure as a sanctuary when the Letcher men rode into town.

Tall, though, a sort of lone wolf, would leave the pack at times and lodge on the head of Right Beaver. There he took fancy to a woman, had her husband ambushed and killed. Rapidly growing worse, he went to Norton, Virginia, to elude the law, watched Bove Hettler, the town marshal with cold-black, cat-like eyes. Hettler noticed him one day, too, and sought to ease up on him. Tall saw his purpose and shot him down. He fled to Devil John Wright's. The Elkhorn clansman gave his henchman money for a one-way trip to Canada.

Tall didn't think much of the Canadian climate, disregarded Devil John's order, drifted down to Memphis. Here his taste for whiskey upset his discretion and sending a little girl to school for it he spread about a bit of suspicion. Legend in the mountains has it that it was the Red Fox who learned Hall was in Memphis and tipped off the Tennessee authorities. The Memphis police took no chances on the Kentucky man but watched until he had sat down to supper and then charged in. Wilson Holbrook, Wise county sheriff, and Dr. Taylor went down and brought the wanted man back to Virginia.

Ed Hall went to his kinsman's trial but he sat discreetly on a back bench. He saw the elaborate precautions taken to guard against rescue of Tall by Devil John Wright's men, whom, rumor said, were coming in force to take him out of custody. The Big Stone Gap Vigilantes under Josh Bullitt, the mobster who had organized them and cleaned out the Tennessee gun-fighter employees of the booming town there, were marched into Wise and detailed to hold the jail. Officers were at all strategic spots in the courtroom, their Winchester staked in the center of the building, looking like Indian wigwams. Portholes were gouged in the courtroom sides and all visitors had to submit to search.

Charged with Hall in the murder of Hifton was a Kentucky comrade, Miles Bates, and also to be arraigned soon was William Bates, accused of the lesser crime of carrying a concealed pistol and of assault and battery on David Short. The lawyers having disposed of many preliminaries among them being a septuagenarian and the other a young man from that of Tall's, the trail got under way Jan. 28, 1892.

Five days later, Jan. 30, the jury had short deliberation filed into the court, headed by B. O. Perzun, with a verdict of guilty. Tall Hall was sentenced to hang "by the neck until dead." The doomed man whined that the Bateses had sworn his life away in order to clear themselves. Judge H. W. Shoon ordered him taken to the Lynchburg jail for safekeeping until the Virginia Court of Appeals should act.

Obtrusively evident at the Hall trial was the Red Fox. He was no longer a deputy United States marshal but had been made a county patrolman for the occasion. He exhibited himself near the bar a great deal, with guns on both hips, paraded around the courtroom. Often he cast mocking eyes at the sullen Hall.

Then, three months after the Hall trial, he disappeared, went out to commit a crime himself. At a place, called afterwards the Killing Rock, several rods on the Virginia side of Pound Gap, he and two others ambushed the Ira Mullins family. Hiding within the cluttered rocks, with

Hancock Taylor's Rifle on Display At Old Capitol

By Charles L. Hinds
Secretary, Treasurer, Kentucky Historical Society

The State Historical Society has on display in the Old State House the rifle which Hancock Taylor, a deputy surveyor of Fincastle county, Virginia, had with him when he fell mortally wounded in 1774 while surveying lands in Kentucky.

Hancock Taylor was the brother of Richard Taylor, father of Zachary Taylor, 12th President of the United States. Hancock Taylor followed his father and his grandfather in the occupation of surveyor. He had no known military service. Nor was he interested particularly in the military life. Shortly after the end of the French and Indian War (1756-63), he became a surveyor on the frontier.

Richard Taylor was more of a family man and a political citizen. He served as an officer in the American Revolution. In 1785 he headed his family on an estate near Louisville, where he died in 1839. He was a member of the first two constitutional conventions, a member of the State legislature and several times a Presidential elector.

Hancock Taylor was busy as a surveyor. In 1766 or 1767, he attached to himself a hunter and guide by the name of Abraham Hemplingstall (spelled various ways).

Hemplingstall was with him when Taylor and another companion, James Strother, were shot in ambush by Indians. Strother fell dead. Taylor was shot in the back and shoulder but managed, with help of Hemplingstall, to regain the safety of a larger group of surveyors.

Taylor's friends decided to try to get him back to Virginia where he could receive proper medical aid; but he died enroute at a site just southwest of the present city of Richmond.

Before his death, Hancock Taylor gave Hemplingstall his rifle, who kept it until the latter's death at the home of "Big-foot" Billy Taylor in Shelby county. The rifle remained in the Taylor family until 1928 when it was presented to the Society.

Throughout the Revolutionary War, Harrodsburg was the seat of Kentucky county, which was organized in December, 1776. The town had a population of 198 persons.

FIVE HUMAN ERRORS HELPED JAPANESE AT PEARL HARBOR

Five simple human blunders by Americans helped the Japanese at Pearl Harbor, writes Walter Lord in the December Reader's Digest. He is author of "Day of Infamy," a book-length study of the attack. He says the episode proves that "man's best chance to avoid disaster is very simple: we have only to learn to recognize danger signals when we see them."

Stick to Balanced Diet, Advises Food Specialist

Proof is far from conclusive that persons who eat high-fat diets have high cholesterol levels in their blood, and that such high levels can lead to heart trouble, according to Miss Elizabeth Helton, UK Extension food specialist.

Diet is only one of at least four factors which are being studied further to find the answers to heart ailments, she said, the others being hormones, an existent disease and heredity. At this time, it is impossible to say which are the most important factors in the development of heart disease, she reported.

It is the total amount of fat, rather than a specific kind that should be limited, Miss Helton said, many people getting as much as one-third to one-half of their total calories from fat, an amount far too great.

However, competent authorities see dangers in eliminating fat from the customary diets of healthy people, as the unguided dieter may upset his nutritional balance and actually injure his health problems. They recommend moderate amounts of fat.

Individuals under medical care should of course follow dietary recommendations. A good rule to follow for a well-balanced diet, said Miss Helton, is to eat daily one or more servings of a wide variety of foods in these classifications:

Leafy, green and yellow vegetables, citrus fruits, tomatoes, and raw cabbage; potatoes and other vegetables and fruits; milk, cheese and milk products; meat, poultry and fish (less 3 or more a week); bread or cereals; 3 servings a day; fats, 2 or 3 tablespoons daily. Fats used in seasoning and in cooking may meet this requirement.

MARTIN

The Martin Homemakers met November 19 at 1:00 at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Jerry Martin, who presided. The landscape lesson was given by Mrs. Florence Marshall. She pointed out that this is the month to feed lawns, using 15 pounds high grade fertilizer to each 1,000 square feet of lawn. Also tulips should be mulched after the ground has frozen to prevent damage to the bulbs by alternate thawing and freezing.

Mrs. Gladys Prater gave the lesson on "Styng Stuffs and Coats-Ponits developed were: It is important to try on a garment to get the right size and type; manufacturers grade suits and coats, but do not give the grade on the label; therefore, Homemakers should learn to recognize good construction in ready-made garments. Mrs. Prater demonstrated "How to Make Sugar Bolls."

Refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be held December 19 at 7:00 p.m. in the Christian church basement, and hostesses will be Mrs. Maude Billips and Mrs. Marge Sammons.
