THURSDAY This Town—That World

WANTED — An "idea man" We're just fresh out.

SOMETHING MISSING

The fellow who robs the boat isn't the one who is pulling at the oars.

THE REASON?

Why are folks afraid of so many things—of the future, of unusual situations, even of crowds—or, as in my case, of standing up before others and speaking their mind (if any)? Maybe they are like the little boy who ran home bawling, frightened out of his wits.

WDOC STARTS BROADCASTS

Second Daytime Only Radio Station Located Here Begins Operating

Radio station, WDOC, went on the air here Saturday noon. The new station, located on the Auxier Road, had been testing nighttime, for two weeks, according to Rex Osborne, manager, and reports of reception were received from many distant points.

WDOC will operate on 5,000 watts 1170 on the dial, and will broadcast from 6 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. Gordon Collins, of Lacey, is owner of the station.

Osborne, in commenting on the site of the station, said that it had been worked out by a consulting engineer and found to be the best in the area. Plans for the new station had been underway since December, last year, Osborne said.

The station manager said that while it was always possible to reach many distant points in Northern Kentucky, the new station would be able to reach many more distant points in Northern Kentucky, and reports of reception were received from many distant points.

SECOND MEET CLEARS OFFICE SPACE MIXUP

COURT VOTES OFFICE SPACE RE-SHUFFLING

New Tax Commissioner Regains Usual Spot; Highway Crew Cut

A mix-up as to which officials would occupy what office spaces in the courthouse required two meetings of the fiscal court last week to untangle.

Tax Commissioner Mania Conroy approached Monday, the date for beginning his term of office, with the prospect of occupying rooms down a hall in the second floor of the building which the Floyd County Health Department had used before moving to the new Health Center here. He complained that the second floor offices occupied by Tax Commissioner Clive Akers until shortly before the November election were his.

By Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill had moved his office into the room formerly occupied by Akers. In the meantime, Magistrate Grover C. Holbrook had renovated the office on the same floor formerly used by Akers, health department administrator, and had moved in.

Everybody was in good shape except the Tax Commissioner, and that presented the court a knotty problem. Last Wednesday's meeting produced no results. A second meeting was held Saturday afternoon, and the mix-up was unscrambled—and yet nobody was satisfied.

The fiscal court was unanimous in voting to restore the Tax Commissioner to the offices ordinarily used by that official. But when it came to a place for Judge Hill's split Magistrate Grover C. Holbrook and Edgar Howell voted to give Judge Hill the office into which Magistrate Holbrook had moved.

of the cost with the community (plus any state aid) paying the remainder.

Improvements planned for state parks in Eastern Kentucky were described to the Commission by Deputy Commissioner of Conservation George O. Canter. He said the new facilities, to come from a $3.5 million revenue bond issue for improvements at all state parks, will help attract more tourist dollars to Eastern Kentucky.

Canter urged the Commission to launch a program to "educate" Eastern Kentucky businessmen and residents to the importance of knowing and advertising the historic, scenic and recreational attractions in their communities to bolster the tourist trade.

The Commission asked the State Highway Department for more detailed information concerning plans for new and improved roads in Eastern Kentucky under the state's three-year $30 million major highway program and other projects.

TAVERN ERECTED BY DUNCAN IS SHRINE OPEN TO TOURISTS

FRANKFORT, Nov. 28—Turn back the pages of history and live again in serenity, graciousness and hospitality of early Kentucky as you visit Duncan Tavern and adjoining Anne Duncan House on Public Square in Paris. It is now known as Duncan Tavern Historic Center.

For this is one of the great historic attractions of the Commonwealth. Completed four years before Kentucky became a state, Major Joseph Duncan was very proud of his great 20-room native stone inn, built in the Wilderness.

He enjoyed showing the guests the great ballroom, billiard room and huge kitchens where venison was kept turning on spits to whet the appetite of travelers.

Restored in 1910 when Paris gave the building to the Kentucky Society, Daughters of American Revolution, the tavern is now a shrine, museum and library.

Thousands of visitors from all the states and many foreign countries walk through rooms where Daniel

FOOD NOTES

By Dixie T. Higgins
Home Demonstration Agent

The stuffing is such an important part of the Thanksgiving dinner that it is worth trying out with roast chicken in advance of the big day. Roast pork, spare ribs or pork chops are also good with bread stuffing, the amount of fat being reduced in the recipe.

All stuffings have more or less the same pattern of bread crumbs, melted fat for richness (except with pork or goose) and seasonings. Celery, parsley and onion are vegetable seasonings. Herbs seasonings include sage, thyme, majoran and savory used in small amounts to enhance the flavor of the poultry or meat. Remember that seasonings are used to bring out the flavor of the food. A French chef will tell you if you can taste the seasoning, too much has been used.

Some stuffings are the dry type, in which little or no liquid is used; other stuffings are moist. The amount of liquid in any recipe may be adjusted to suit personal preference. Certain combinations are often used in poultry stuffings: in goose or pork, which are rich in fat, salt apples or fresh cranberries are a good addition.

In estimating the amount of bread to use, allow three slices of each pound of poultry, dressed weight.

Savory Stuffing
2 qt. soft bread crumbs (or one qt. corn bread and 1 qt. soft bread crumbs)
2/3 c. turkey fat or combined with butter & margarine
1/4 c. chopped parsley
1/4 c. chopped onion
1 t. savory seasoning
1 t. salt
1/2 t. pepper
1/4 c. chopped celery
1/2 c. turkey stock

Cook the gizzard, heart and neck of the chicken or turkey in salted water to cover until tender, from 1 1/2 to 2 or more hours. Allow the giblets and neck to cool in the broth, then refrigerate. Use broth or stock for stuffing.

To make the stuffing, cook the parsley and onion in the fat for 3 minutes, then add all other ingredients. Add more or less liquid as desired. Stuff the bird lightly, as it swells in cooking.

When! the Cards Mailed At Last—Sans Stamps!

It seems incredible, but it's true: many people at Christmas time will spend days getting Christmas cards ready for mailing, and then dump some or even all of them in the mail box without stamps.

This unusual behavior of some Christmas mailers was related early last week by Mrs. Deas G. May, postmaster here.

"Often," she explained, "we will find a large batch of Christmas cards in the mail pick-up boxes—all in the same handwriting and all without stamps."

"The only thing we can do in such a case is to return the envelopes to the sender. If he has indicated a return address. This, of course, constitutes an annoyance for the addressee and destroys much of the goodwill value of the Christmas card."

So, in addition to her standard tip of urging mailers to mail early for Christmas, Postmaster May added that it is a good idea to make certain before leaving the house with your Christmas cards that each and every one contains postage.

Own Their Homes
One third of U. S. Negroes own their own homes, writes Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell in the December Reader's Digest. The Negro population as a whole has a yearly purchasing power of 17.5 billion dollars. Since 1940, he reports, the number of Negro men in professional jobs has jumped 103 percent; as craftsmen and foremen, 113 percent; as operators and technicians, 181 percent; and clerical and sales workers, an astonishing 223 percent. There are ten times as many Negro women in clerical jobs as there were in 1940.

Dog Finds Lost Articles
A German Shepherd dog named Rolf has made a career of finding lost objects on the Danish island of Funen, reports the December Reader's Digest. In the past seven years, Rolf, aided by his master, Svend Anderson, has recovered almost $400,000 worth of lost watches, jewelry, tools, currency and other valuables. His master merely repeats several times the name of the thing Rolf is to find, leads him to the area and turns him loose. Anderson thinks Rolf does it by smelling out whatever does not match the other scents in the area.

Cadillac

A Masterpiece... Even by Cadillac Standards!

The magnificent Cadillac car for 1958 is, without question, a rare masterpiece in all the things that make a Cadillac... a Cadillac!

Certainly, it has had no precedent insofar as beauty is concerned. In its graceful symmetry of line and in its remarkable look of stature and substance, it is in a class all of its own.

Questionably, it is without counterpart by the way of interior elegance. Never before have Fleetwood coachcrafters combined such graciousness and luxury and spaciousness in a single interior design.

And, most assuredly, it has set its own extraordinary pace in modern motor car performance. Its dynamic new engine, its more responsive transmission, and its new air suspension, now available as an extra-cost option, are simply a revelation.

We earnestly hope that you will take the time to see and drive this extraordinary new Cadillac at your earliest possible convenience.

Your Cadillac dealer will be delighted to give you full details on Cadillac's twelve new models, including the incomparable Eldorado Brougham.

THE FLOYD COUNTY TIMES

Official Organ for Floyd County, Kentucky

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Kentucky, under the act of March 3, 1879.

What About The "Old" Business?

Floyd county needs new and varied industries if it is to have a stable economy and is to stop the outward drift of its people to distant industrial centers. On that issue Floyd county's people are more nearly agreed, perhaps, than on any other.

But there is another matter that we should consider while we work toward the day when such industries may be located here. And that is what shall we do with the business that we already have.

This county already has heavy payrolls outside its mining and natural gas industries. Almost every business in this county has a payroll overhead that means spending money in Floyd countians' pockets. But what is Floyd county doing to help the business that it already has?

It is admitted that many businesses competing with these already established in this county—businesses which are located in neighboring counties or barely across the state line—are drawing heavily on Floyd county's purchasing power, thus reducing the earnings of Floyd county enterprises, retarding their progress and threatening eventually to cut down on the employment of people working here at home.

A few weeks ago, Floyd county students attending a Lexington school declared they could not find a store there that supplied their needs as well as a certain Prestonsburg store. While they were at home they bought at the local store. At the same time, many of their friends who had not yet left home for college, or who had finished college work and had returned home to stay, were driving a round trip of 150 miles to shop in Huntington.

You wonder why those away from home like to come home to shop while those at home go elsewhere, and we do not have the answer. Sure, distant pastures appear greener, and some find traveling and getting away from home for a day interesting, but we do not offer that as anything approaching an analysis of the public psychology.

If we at home would consider what Floyd county loses when Floyd county money is spent elsewhere, and what that money could mean to Floyd county if it were kept at home, there would be a new interest in business at home. No man lives alone, nor does any business.

Consider, for instance, a local business which employs six. This means a payroll of about $20,000, besides the owner's profit if any. But let Floyd countians stay away from that place of business enough, buying in another town, for instance, and soon that employer is forced to reduce the number of his employees. Let this go on long enough, and the business will fold up. Gone will be $20,000, perhaps $30,000, a year that formerly was spent in Floyd county for foodstuffs, clothing, taxes, home building, etcetera.

If we think this thing through, the logical conclusion must be that it will profit Floyd county little if it has a thousand new businesses as long as Floyd county insists on doing business elsewhere.

The cities do not have to repay the federal grants. But if the money is not used within a year, it reverts to the Federal Government.

The grants Tuesday were distributed according to priority and readiness of the cities to use the money.

Basis for determining priority includes whether sewage pollution a stream and if the city is financially able to build necessary facilities.

Cities that did not receive money and the amounts they sought are:

Ashland, $250,000; Elizabethtown, $138,000; Flatwoods, $114,000; Lawrence, $103,000; Brandenburg, $90,000; Shively, $117,000; Calvert City, $90,000; and Beechwood, $20,852.

Ashland—high on the priority list—will not be ready to begin construction within a year. Jackson said. Should federal funds be available during 1938-39, Ashland will be first on the list, he added.

Jackson said he hopes other cities that did not receive federal grants will also be eligible for federal grants if Congress appropriates more funds next year.

The Board at Tuesday's Meeting voted to repair rest rooms in the Maytown school and to install three manholes in the sewer line leading from the new gymnasium here.

A study is being made of the advisability of placing metal expansion units between the gym expansion floor here and the wooden bleachers which will support the wooden playing floor. The Board has been told that floors laid on 2 x 4's which rest directly on the concrete eventually lose their resiliency, and that metal expansion units prevent this condition. If the cost is not too great, this feature will be added, it was said.

A member of the contracting firm of Akers & Akers told the Board that the new gymnasium-auditorium here will be ready for official acceptance by February 1. He said, however, that the gym can be used for basketball play around Jan. 1.

The Board employed Joan Wiley to replace Earl Lawson, who resigned his teacher post in the Lackey school, and Avella Hall to replace Mrs. Reynolds at the Treberry school.

Stanton, Powell county, was first called Beaver Pond for a small lake created by a beaver dam in the swampy lowlands just east of the village. Renamed in 1823, the town honors Richard H. Stanton of Maysville representative to Congress from 1849 to 1855.

A GOOD WORK

Hiram M. Brock, Jr., who married Eulah Nunmyer, of Prestonsburg, his father and his brother James C. Brock—all Harlan, Ky., lawyers—are following in an unusual way the biblical injunction to tithe their incomes. The father and sons have pledged to give one-tenth of their incomes to a manufacturing firm they have established.

The company is called the Brock Charter Tinting Corporation, and it will manufacture "useful or usable articles" and will provide services necessary for "human comfort, use or happiness." And the profits from such manufacturing will go toward helping needy ministers, small churches that have financial problems, and poor children whose parents are unable to finance their education.

It's nice to know that one of these three has Floyd county connections and we will be pleased to learn of their progress in this fine "adventure in living."

1. That the department seeks competitive bids from prospective contractors.

2. If the department rejects all bids it may use its own forces to do the work.

It could not be immediately determined whether bids had been advertised for on the numerous Knott county projects.

C. J. West, the department's Pikeville district engineer, said he could not recall who ordered the contract with Hall.

Another order, superceding the 1952 bulletin, was handed down August 5 of this year by acting Governor Harry Lee Waterfield, Highway Commissioner Robert Humphreys, and Highway Department Business Manager Mark S. Petty. It said, "Effective on this date, no equipment will be rented from individuals or private companies except movers."

"Information has come to the Governor's office that the Licking River Limestone Company of West Liberty leased to the Hall Trucking Company of Hindman, Ky., three pieces of equipment used for highway purposes," Waterfield said.

We have information that the Hall company pays $11 per hour for one piece of machinery and leases it to the state for $15; $11 per hour for another piece of equipment and leases it to the state for $18, and $15 for a third piece of machinery and leases it to the state for $22.50," he added.

Then acting Governor, Waterfield said he felt that the failure of the department to lease at the lower rates directly from the owner of the equipment "is a serious mistake and might involve us in considerable trouble."

A Highway Department investigator reported the Licking River Limestone Company rents two bulldozers, one for $11 an hour and the other for $15 an hour. The rental cost of one of a 12-yard scraper when needed.

The investigator also reported that the firm of Marshall & Sheats, West Liberty, rented another bulldozer to Hall for $11 an hour and for two weeks rented the firm a crane at $10 an hour.

Department records last August 9 showed that 10 highway contracts with Hall called for payment of bulldozer rental at the rate of $15, $18 and $22.50 an hour. The contracts issued up to that time came to $68,420.

PRESTONSBURG 1797-1957

Prestonsburg, the oldest town in Big Sandy, has grown slowly but steadily in the 160 years since it was founded in 1797. The first census in 1800 showed only six persons residing in the wilderness enclosed town but today 6,000 people make homes in a modern, good church and good school community.

Col. John Preston of Virginia procured a grant of 100,000 acres from the State of Virginia in 1797 and sent John Graham, deputy surveyor of Mason county, Kentucky, to lay out the town under the direction of Major Andrew Hood, Solomon Stratton and Matthias Harmon. They were known as the Adventurers on Sandy. The town was called Preston's Station. John Spurlock, Montgomery county, Virginia, pioneer settler had preceded the Adventurers and built the first house in 1791.

Floyd county, Kentucky, was created by an act of the General Assembly in 1799 to become effective in July, 1800. Preston's Station, the name changed to Prestonsburg, became the county seat. It was the seat of government for a long time of a vast section of Eastern Kentucky.

Prestonsburg was for years but an isolated trading center. Its chief exports were bear skins to France as Napoleon's agents in the valley, chiefly Solomon DeRossett, bought them to make hats for the great general's grenadiers. After the Battle of Waterloo, DeRossett settled down in a house still standing on First Avenue and later became a Floyd County Justice. The Mayors of Virginia who assisted in the founding of the county contributed much to the culture of the area for they were teachers, clerks and ministers.

The first steamboat landed at Prestonsburg in 1837 and this mode of transportation continued to serve the valley until the railway came to the town in 1902. There was a boat landing near

Commissioner Thurman Cautions Newspapers

Insurance Commissioner C. P. Thurman cautioned all newspapers, radio stations and radio broadcast outlets to beware of disseminating advertisements for insurance companies not licensed in Kentucky.

Commissioner Thurman explained that several local radio stations had received solicitations through the mail for out-of-state insurance to broadcast their intriguingly phrased advertisements. In certain cases the exact name of the company was not known, and the advertisements were so worded that they were deceptive and misleading.

Many of these so-called cautions are not only untrue, but border on the fantastic, from the standpoint of both insurance coverage and cost.

The Commission divided all advertising agencies to determine the status of all companies before contracting to do their advertising. Kentucky Insurance Law specifically prohibits advertising agencies located in this Commonwealth to direct advertising toward Kentucky residents on behalf of any insurance company not authorized to do business in Kentucky.

Not only would these agencies jeopardize themselves because of the severe penalties involved, but they might be directly responsible for Kentucky insurance buyers purchasing inadequate or unreliable insurance protection from an irresponsible company soliciting business through the mails.

Agency Attempts To Save Coon Hunting in State

Frankfort, Dec. 5.—The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is taking steps to protect Kentucky's coon population in the interest of hunters.

It's being done to preserve the sport of coon hunting, which the agency describes as "one of the oldest, yet most thrilling sports in the field."

To assist hunters in training hounds, the agency has granted a special season during which coons may be run but not killed. Conservation agents are arresting hunters who allow dogs to kill treed coons during this season.

"Anyone should know," says the department, "that the coon population of a given area is bound to decrease as more and more wooded areas are cleared. We don't blame a coon hunter for wanting to run his hound. He surely wants to train him to the point where he can compete with others in a chase. We do not believe that a clear thinking coon hunter would want to do this, however, at the expense of the coon population."

During the dog training season, the agency says, many young coons are not able to cope with the skill of a fine coon dog. Many owners believe that a dog in training should be allowed to kill a coon to make a better hunter and are allowing their hounds to do so illegally, leaving the carcass for buzzards or crows, the agency points out.

The owner should nail off the hounds and pick up another trail for another training chore, the department advises.

Conservation officers have arrested a good many hunters who have allowed their dogs to kill dislodged coons during training season, the department said, warning that such practice "is a violation of the laws of common sense as far as a good coon hunter is concerned."

Bears Lose First Game Of '57 Season But Win Logan, W. Va. Tournament

Pikeville, Ky., Dec. 2 (Sp.)—The Pikeville College Bears absorbed their first defeat on their first road trip last week and will start another four-game tour Saturday at Jacksonville, Fla.

The only consolation in Pikeville's 59-55 loss to West Virginia Tech Nov. 25 came from holding the high-scoring Golden Bears below their favorite score of 100 points. The West Virginians, who crossed the century mark 71 times in the last three seasons, have averaged 103.9 points per game during that time.

Even in defeat, John Lee Butcher led all scorers with 31 points against West Virginia Tech. Big Garrett Mullins dropped in 20, and Carr Creek's Charles Francis also hit the double figures with 13 points.

The Bears swept the two-day Logan Interstate basketball tournament at Logan, W. Va., Friday and Saturday, dropping the Battlers of Alderson-Broaddus College, inheritor to West Virginia power, 96-74, in the opener. Butcher got 29 points; Carr Creek's R. B. Singleton took over the second scoring spot with 21, and another Carr Creek alumnus, Lloyd Mullins, also added 13.

The Beckley College Blue Hawks gave more trouble in Saturday night's finals, staying under the Bears' feet for 17 minutes before Carr Creek's Ken Swinewood, was inserted into the lineup. Swinewood sparked a rally that stretched a meager 10-8 point lead to a comfortable half-time edge of 15 points, 49-34, for the Bears who pulled out to win, 106-82.

Butcher hit his high for the year with a 38-point production, and Lloyd Mullins led the rebounding parade for the first time, snaring the ball 14 times to 13 for Jim Frazier and 11 for Garrett Mullins.

Pikeville entertained West Virginia State College, the first of six NCAA members on the schedule, Monday in the Pikeville College gym.

Opening a four-game road trip through Florida and Georgia Saturday (Dec. 7), the Bears will meet Jacksonville University, Seton University at Deland, Fla., and Georgia Teachers College at Collegeboro, Ga.

State Board Hears List of Watersheds At Recent Meet

Frankfort, Dec. 5 — Members of the State Board of Flood Control and Water Usage heard 13 proposed new watersheds listed in order of priority at their recent luncheon meeting here.

Director Robert Lee Bolin said, "only about four of the watersheds listed will get federal approval." Selection of the four will be made by Director Bolin and his field representatives.

He list included: Clear Creek, Jessamine and Woodford counties; East Fork, Clarke River, Marshall and Calloway counties; West Fork, Clarke River, Marshall, Calloway, and Graves counties; Casey county; Little Kentucky River, Trimble and Henry counties; Robinson Creek, Taylor county; Big Ready Creek, Edmonson county; Laurel River, Laurel county; Pond Creek, Muhlenberg county; Beaver Creek, Barren county and Toms Creek in Johnson county.

Glen Lane, chairman of the Board presided at the meeting with talks given by C. D. Luttrell, field representative Division of Flood Control and Water Usage, and George Land, Jr., University of Kentucky.

George Glander, deputy commissioner, Department of Conservation praised the Board and Director Bolin for the "fine work being done in flood control and conserving of water in the State."

The next board meeting will be here, Tuesday, January 22, 1958. Chairman Lane announced as the session ended.

Mexico is named for the Aztec god of war, Mexitli.

Legislature Not Restricted To Lawmaking

Frankfort, Dec. 5 — The duties of Kentucky's General Assembly, which open its 1958 session Jan. 7, are not limited to lawmaking. The Legislature may initiate changes in the Constitution by proposing amendments to be voted on by the people. Or the legislative body may provide for a referendum on calling a constitutional convention.

The Legislature may impeach the governor or any other civil officer for misdemeanor in office. The Assembly also judges contested elections for governor and lieutenant governor.

The Constitution provides for legislative oversight of the executive branch. The secretary of state must, upon request of either house, present to it a register of all the governor's official acts. Reports of the investigations of the treasurer's and auditor's offices must be transmitted to the legislature. The governor is required by law to secure the advice of the senate in appointing members of the Public Service Commission and the State Board of Health.—The Legislature must provide by law for depriving of office persons guilty of corrupt practice.

Hunting and Fishing Are Better Than Ever Wildlife Authority Says

Despite some gloomy predictions of the past that American wildlife was being wiped out by growing human population and modern farming methods, hunting and fishing are actually getting better and better.

There are more kinds and greater numbers of game and fish in the United States today than there were when European settlers first arrived here according to a wildlife authority writing in the November issue of Soil Conservation, official magazine of the USDA Soil Conservation Service.

The passenger pigeon and bison are gone, says A. E. Borell, but in their stead we have pheasants, chukars, Hungarian partridge, and tremendous populations of deer. Small fur animals, such as rabbits, foxes, and raccoons, are also on the increase in many areas. And while many streams and natural lakes have declined, we now have thousands of acres of man-made ponds, lakes, and reservoirs that provide good fishing where little or no fishing existed 100, 50, or even 10 years ago.

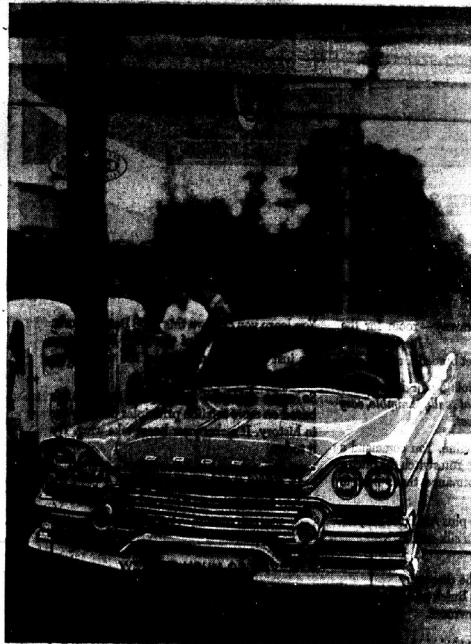

Even waterfowl—the wildlife resource which was supposedly being destroyed by drainage projects—has been on the upsurge for several years, due in part to man-made ponds which provide drinking water and resting places for migrating birds.

Reports indicate overpopulations of deer in a number of states, including Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Michigan, Texas, West Virginia, California, and Arizona. Some states are making efforts to attract out-of-state hunters to help harvest heavy numbers of deer and, in some cases, elk and antelope.

In general, modern farming methods and soil conservation practices are providing more food and better distribution of food for many kinds of wildlife, according to Borell.

"IT WAS A NICE TRY, BUT..." seems to sum up public opinion about competitive cars attempting to equal the styling and features of the Swept-Wing 58. They tried to get as low, but had to lower the roof to do it. (Low hoodroom, some high, boxy, cropped-up look.) Their windshields got smaller, while ours got bigger. Most of them still don't have Total-Contact Bumpers to absorb smooth, even, side-impact when needed. Nor do they offer push-button TurboFlite, the proven automatic transmission, and Constant-Control power steering that works full-time—no part-time as some other systems do. And Dodge no-way, no-dip Torson-Air is standard equipment. (Bus-type air springs offered by some cars cost well over $100.00 extra.) So compare all the 1958 models with Dodge. We think you'll agree: Other cars are catching on, but they can't catch up.

The Prestonsburg Black Cats

first round of the annual Floyd county pre-season tournament.

By virtue of the victory, the Black Cats advanced to the quar-

Auxier held a 16-14 first quarter lead on the strength of Porter Powers' eight points in the period, but fell behind, 29-22, as forward James Hager and Paul Hughes began to connect in the second quarter.

Jack Wells' unit used their superior height to good advantage in the last half as they completely controlled the backboards over the much smaller Hornets.
Hughes and Hager each slipped in 12 points in the hectic third period as Prestonsburg outperformed Auxier 17-15 and then coasted to victory.

Porter Powers paced the losers with 26 points while Hager, Mc-Dowell and John Gibson tossed in 23, 22, and 11 respectively for the Black Cats. Auxier's record is

Plant Settlement High In Kentucky

FRANKFORT, Dec. 5.—For the third straight year, 50 percent or more of firms which sent representatives to Kentucky to make plant location surveys have chosen built plants in the State," says John C. Rogers, of the Kentucky Department of Economic Development.

Rogers, writing in the Commonwealth, a State publication, said 10 percent is the national average based on recent surveys.

The Department's Industrial Development Division reports the high percentage is due not only to the effective work of the department, but also the teamwork of the private firms and public agencies in coordinating their industrial development activities.

Rogers said the department is able to provide detailed information to a prospect on short notice and has an active file of 330 suitable industrial tracts from four to 1,000 acres.

In 1956, the U. S. produced 41,801,000 pounds of milk; in 1955 it was 125,868,000 pounds.

Ham-Curing Tips Listed by University, Swine Specialist Says

Retentiveness buying their own hams for curing should keep several things in mind, says Orville Selman, swine specialist, Kentucky Agricultural Extension Service.

Well-finished hogs weighing not more than 250 to 280 pounds yield hams of about 15 to 18 pounds. Cured hams after slaughter, preferably at 54 to 58 degrees; if purchased from packer or slaughterer, select those killed not more than a day or two previously, since extended maturity of carcasses increases the amount of spoilage in hams.

For curing: Use 7½ pounds of salt, 2½ pounds of sugar and two ounces of saltpeter for every 100 pounds of weight of the ham to be cured. Rub this curing-mix into the hams at three-day intervals; use 1.3 of the mixture each time. Hams weighing up to 20 pounds should cure in about three weeks; if hams are heavier than that, increase curing time by one-half day for each pound over 20 pounds. Thus, a 25-pound ham should cure in 37½ days.

Wash hams at end of curing season in lukewarm water, dry them with a cloth, then smoke until hams turn amber in color. Wrap hams in several layers of paper, and then store them in cloth bags to keep down insect attacks. Store cured hams in a dry, dark place.

Primitive Man Done It

Primitive man invented the mosaic when he arranged pebbles on the floor of his cave. Ancient Sumerians expanded the technique, cementing bright stones to a base. By 1000 B. C. Egyptians were fashioning mosaics in the form of glass jewelry.

PIKE WOMAN DESIGNS
EISENHOWER JACKET

(By QUENTIN R. HOWARD in the Sunday Courier-Journal)

It's a real believe-it-or-notter. Mrs. J. Wendell Rees, Majestic, Ky., a small coal-mining town in Pike County, made and wore the first Army jacket which became known as the Eisenhower jacket.

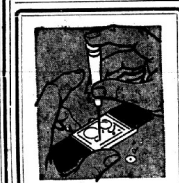

Mrs. Rees was a private in the W.A.C. stationed at Ebleven, Theford, England, when her practical mind and nimble fingers originated the jacket. At the time she assisted to a chaplain.

"One night," she relates, "I was coming down the stairs of the old mansion and suddenly I slipped myself in the mirrored walls. There I was in GI gear, from haircut to mercerized stockings and heavy service shoes. I immediately longed for a bit of glamour."

That evening while her roommates were at a U.S.O. show, she slipped up one of her GI coats and made a short, battle jacket. She pleased it around the waist, made a waistband from the shorn-off tail, and replaced the buttons with large plastic ones. The result was an attractive jacket that would launder well.

On April 13, 1944, Mrs. Rees got an order, incidentally No. 13, to report for duty the following day as secretary to the judge advocate general. She was appointed chief expediter. She had been at her new job for a week when she decided to wear, despite lack of authorization, her newly-styled jacket.

Then Col. Oreta Culp Hobby,

W.A.C. director, came by for an inspection.

"Get ready for the salt mine. Private Rees," her lieutenant told her "You've had it."

Mrs. Rees was standing stiffly at attention when Colonel Hobby came up. She surveyed the private critically.

"Why, that's a new jacket. When was it issued?" the colonel wanted to know. She put her hand on Mrs. Rees's shoulder and told her to turn around. Mrs. Rees was too disturbed for a moment to speak.

Later, Colonel Hobby ordered the Pike County W.A.C. to go to London to instruct Debenham-Freedy Talton on how to make the jacket, which was to become a favorite with General Dwight Eisenhower, now President.

Four months later the Third Air Force, W.A.C. Department, was issued the jacket. It was by order of the Secretary of War that the Eisenhower jacket was made general issue for optional wear by officers and enlisted.

Mrs. Rees has designed a gaiting costume, and a Civil Air Patrol jacket. The jacket was for women of the Bluefield, W. Va., C.A.P. It is of wool, Eisenhower style, with two pockets covered by flaps, and wide, rounded collar and lapels. There are four metal buttons of silver hue. She has submitted it to Government authorities for possible adoption as a standard uniform.

She calls her gaiting uniform Greenbrier. The skirt is made of a lightweight material in culotte style. The jacket is of hip length, with long sleeves and buttoned cuffs, a rolled collar and a front zipper.

Mrs. Rees is a busy, youngish woman. She is worthy mistress of the Freeburn Star, Mipah Shrine No. 11, and the Matewan, W. Va., Woman's Club.

She has done interior decorating and she has had experience in radio and drama in New York. Mrs. Rees also dabbles in painting. Her husband owns and operates his own business, the L & L Coal Company, at Majestic.

George Madison—First Governor To Die in Office

By Charles F. Hinds,
Secretary-Treasurer
Kentucky Historical Society

FRANKFORT, Dec. 5 — George Madison, the fifth Governor of Kentucky (1816), was inaugurated in the Presidential administration of James Madison, fourth President of the United States (1809-17). Both Madisons were Virginians by birth. The question naturally arises: Were they related, and if so, how?

Kentuckians have always claimed that they are unique people, and never more so than in the early history of the Commonwealth. The Governor and the President were some sort of cousins, but in those days, that was about as far as one needed to go. Wasn't George Madison a twice-wounded hero of two Indian campaigns (1791 and 1792)? Hadn't he been in command of the only troops who held the field at the Battle of the River Raisin in the War of 1812? And, if that weren't enough, hadn't he served faithfully for 20 years under the first four Governors as auditor of Public Accounts (1796-1816)? What Kentuckian cared in 1816 if George Madison were related to the President of the United States or not?

It wasn't until about 1800, after some rather lengthy research, that a great grandson of George Madison, Francis P. Blair, concluded that the two Madisons were first cousins, their fathers having been brothers.

Another interesting fact in connection with Governor Madison, whose portrait by Nicola Marshall hangs in the Old State House, is that he was obviously dying by 1818 of tuberculosis, incurred or aggravated as a prisoner of war, after having been captured at the River Raisin. During the gubernatorial campaign, his only opponent, Colonel James Johnson, publicly bowed out of the contest, realizing that the sympathy and the votes lay with the dying Madison.

By inauguration day, George Madison was so weak that he could hardly stand to take the oath of office. Exactly 39 days later, on October 14, Governor Madison died at the age of 53 in Paris, Kentucky. He was succeeded by Lt. Gov. Gabriel Slaughter. In 1874 the Commonwealth had Governor Madison reentered in the state burial ground in the Frankfort Cemetery.

LETCHER CLERK'S PAYROLL IS QUESTIONED BY AUDITOR

State Auditor Mary Louise Foust Monday questioned the salaries paid by Letcher County Clerk Charlie Wright for work done by his wife and a brother. She was most particularly concerned about money paid to the brother, Nick Wright, for work done in the clerk's office while she was a full-time employee of the State Department of Economic Security. Her audit showed Nick Wright received $2,197 for work in the clerk's office during 1956, although he held a full-time state job 10 months of the year. He was listed as having worked full time in the clerk's office only during January and February of that year. The brother remained in full-time employment with the state in 1955 and received $1,450 for part time work in clerk's office. His $2,400 payment for 1956 was approved by Fiscal Court, but he was not listed as having employed full time in the clerk's office only during the months of April through December. Miss Foust took exception to payments claimed for Mrs. Ruby Wright, the clerk's wife, because the auditors had to rely on affidavits as to the amount claimed. No records were kept to support the claims. The same was true in the case of the brother, she said, because the claim for payments reportedly were made in cash. The wife's salary was listed as $1,700 in 1954 and $6,000 each in 1955 and 1956. Certified statements or affidavits were unavailable to show $900 of the 1955 payment and all of the 1956 payment. Miss Foust said she found in Letcher a situation often found in other counties—poor record keeping that makes an accurate audit impossible. She said her auditors reported finding in Wright's office only cash-register rolls, with no dates, and some cancelled checks kept in a box in a corner of the office. State laws requiring systematic record keeping are "loopholes," she said, and are abused in many quarters. The clerk was unavailable for comment at Whitesburg, but his wife said she had given the state job and now was working full time as a deputy clerk. Mrs. Wright worked Saturdays, holidays, lunch periods, and ten opened the office during the year his salary was questioned. No change has been made in record keeping since the auditors visited the office, she said, adding: "We're not going to make any changes. If he thinks she can run the office from down there, let her."

HEALTH NOTES

This year you aren't going to get caught in the maze of last-minute shopping. You aren't going to rush from store to store looking for just the right gift for Aunt Min. You aren't going to take the children to see Santa Claus at a time when you'll have to stand in line for an hour. Or are you?

Just in case you aren't quite as spry as you planned to be, here are a few words to the wise to help you avoid "shopping feet." They're no joke. Besides being painful themselves, they can cause headache, backache, and other pains. And you don't want to waste time feeling miserable at this season.

The right shoes are your first consideration. It's not enough to specify low heels. Soft play shoes are fine on the beach, but you need sturdy leather for walking or standing any length of time, especially on hard surfaces. Your shoes won't be comfortable if they don't fit, and that means both feet. Shoes should be large enough to leave some space at the longest toe when standing; wide enough so that toes aren't cramped, and snug around the heels to keep the foot from sliding forward. This doesn't mean they have to be ugly, but do keep your prettiest pointed toes and spike heels for more suitable occasions.

Not only shoes, but stockings, too, must fit—should be slightly longer than the longest toe. Toenails should be smooth and well trimmed, cut straight across and not too short. If nails have a tendency to curl into flesh, a small piece of cotton or lamb wool gently inserted between nail and skin usually brings relief. These simple measures will help keep your feet and your disposition in happy holiday condition.

BLOOD VESSELS OF YOUR EYES SUPPLY CLUES TO THE HEART

Your eyes reveal a lot about your heart and your health. In fact, one physician says it is possible to look into the eyes and say with reasonable accuracy how long a person will live.

In any case, the visible condition of the blood vessels in the retina of the eye indicates the condition of the hidden blood vessels in your body. Dr. D. R. Ratcliff explains in a December Reader's Digest article, "When the Doctor Tests Your Heart."

The retina is a mass of tiny blood vessels. Dr. Banks Anderson, of Duke University, calls it: "A screen, hazy, light-gated and vital in function; dull and seared in age. On this screen is projected the picture of the body economy." If the retinal blood vessels have thickened and hardened with age, probably the same thing is happening in the arteries of your heart. New diagnostic techniques have taught the physician that "murmur" is not to be dreaded as it was. Once, many a child was put to bed as a heart cripple because the doctor heard such a murmur. Now, researchers have discovered that most children have a murmur of some kind. Often, it is just the sound of blood rushing through a busy—but normal—heart.

TROUBLE ON TROUBLESOME AS KNOTT COUNTY FOUNDED

By GERALD GRIFFIN (From the Courier-Journal)

Worn out from their long ride, three constabulary men pulled up their sweat-soaked horses at a mountain log house one April day in 1884. They had reached their destination, the hospitable home of "Red-headed" Lewis Hays, who had just been appointed first county court clerk of the newly formed County of Knott. The house, which isn't there anymore, stood on the bank of Troublesome Creek's right fork.

A rutty, dusty track in dry weather and muddy morass when it rained was the only road, following and frequently dipping into Troublesome Creek. There were only two buildings there, both made of logs. One was a general store operated by "Red-headed" Hays. Across the creek was the one-room post office. Mail was delivered there twice a week by a horseback rider from Norton, Va.

The three commissioners, members of the State Legislature, had been appointed by Governor Proctor Knott to determine a site for the permanent seat of the new county, named in honor of His Excellency. They were not expecting any trouble, despite the name of the creek, but they found it anyway. Not at the home of the Hays family, however.

The new county had been carved out of four other counties, Perry, Letcher, Bushy and Floyd, in a backwoods area whose steep slopes were covered with virgin hardwood forests. Little farms, mostly producing corn, dotted the narrow valleys. Viable seams of coal underlay the mountains, but nobody cared.

if your husband had to do this today...

...guess what he'd do tomorrow!

If your husband had to take down the family wash every time it rains — and then put it all back up — he'd soon buy an electric clothes dryer!

Since things don't work that way, why not explain your problem to him? Maybe he hasn't even thought about it!

explain ... how heavy wet clothes are, and how you have to wrestle them out to the clothesline, basketload after basketload ... week after week ... months after month!

explain ... how your back aches after you hang out the wash ... bend and straighten ... bend and straighten ... over and over again.

explain ... the nuisance of keeping up with clothespins, wiping clotheslines clean and tightening them when they sag.

explain ... how much smoother and fluffier each piece is when it comes from the dryer ... that some pieces such as towels don't even have to be ironed, and all can be ironed without sprinkling.

If you do, chances are you'll soon own a bright new electric clothes dryer. And he'll be just as proud as you when that clothesline comes down, to tell the world that your family is modern — Living Better Electrically!

The bill authorizing the creation of Knott County had been introduced in the Legislature by Representative Robert Estes, a former sheriff of Letcher, who later became sheriff of the infant county. People living in the four counties which gave birth to Knott paid little attention to the creation of the new political unit of their Commonwealth. No trouble was expected on that score.

But feeling had been worked up by residents of three communities. Each group wanted the County seat. Seeking the Courthouse site were mountain men at McPherson Post Office on Troublesome Creek, from the Right Fork of Beaver Creek, and from Carr's Fork.

The three commissioners, after visiting all three sites, were to announce their decision the morning after they rode up to the Hays home. The word had been spread around and a large crowd was expected at the McPherson Post office to hear the decision announced.

Listening to the talk of the strangers in the Hays home that night was a little seven-year-old boy named Douglas. Next day he was right on hand to watch all the excitement and carry it in his mind for the rest of his life. The erst-while barefoot boy became well-known throughout Eastern Kentucky as State Senator "Gaw-loggin" Doug Hays of McDowell, who died the day after he told me this story.

What impressed Doug most the night the commissioners stayed at his home was the fact that one of them was smoking a cigar. It was the first time he had ever seen a cigar. Mountain men—and women, too—smoked in corn-cob pipes, or they chewed it. A cigarette, as the senator explained, "never had been heard tell of."

At any rate, the boy was so greatly impressed that he grew up to be a famous cigar smoker. Smoked thousands of them until shortly before his death, when his health caused him to switch to cigarettes.

Next morning the commissioners rode to the meeting at the post office which is now the county-seat town of Hindman, named for the Lieutenant governor who served under Governor Knott. Hindman is no real metropolis even now, but there wasn't even a village there when Senator Hays first remembers it.

To The People of Floyd County:

Although I was defeated in my attempt at election to public office, I am grateful for the loyalty of relatives and good friends in all parts of the county. I have no ill feeling toward anyone who supported my opponent because I feel we had good reason for voting the way we did.

Your friend,
ROBERT C. BARNETT.
