Mrs. Music, the president, presided, opening the meeting with Peter Marshall's Christmas prayer. Miss Hazel Hill introduced Miss Collins, state supervisor of Home Economics, a guest. Mrs. Ernest Osborne, program chairman, was assisted by Miss Mary E. Powers in reviewing the many legends of Christmas decorations. One of the first decorations was the fir tree in 1609 A.D. during Martin Luther's ministry. The tree was called the tree of the Christ child. The pine tree legend was that the tree mourned the birth of the young Holy, was used by the Romans and called the "God of Agriculture." Joseph of Nazareth was the first to use mistletoe. It was used for legal decoration. Then came the legend of the decorated tree for Christmas. The Polonaise was first used by Dr. Joel Robert Poinsett, and was called "The Flower of the Holy Night." The bay tree was called a symbol of protection.

Extension Agents Head Is Honored At Jackson For 44 Years Service

Nearly 44 years of service to Kentucky's farm folk was marked at Jackson today (Thursday) when William C. Wilson, one of the first county agents in the state and for 24 years head of Kentucky Agricultural Extension Service agents in southeastern Kentucky, was honored by his co-workers.

Wilson was given a farewell-and-surprise-party by agents of District No. 6 at a luncheon meeting at the First Methodist Church.

The gray-haired, bespectacled Wilson got a special gift for his up-coming leisure time—a television set purchased by his district agents and other agents who worked with him but who are no longer under his jurisdiction.

Wilson is to retire Jan. 1, 1958, after 44 years of service that saw him make his rounds by foot, horseback, bus, train, and automobiles of all types.

Only vehicle he hasn't ridden during his service is a motorcycle—simply because one was not available when he needed it.

He started his career in agriculture as a small boy, helping out on the family farm near Green Hall, Ky., Jackson county. He attended Berea College preparatory school for six years, went one summer to the University of Tennessee, a couple of years to the University of Wisconsin—then went to work for the Infant Extension Service in 1914 as county agent in Pulaski county.

It was not until 1930 that he was able to finish his college education. That year he was graduated with a bachelor of science degree in agriculture from the University of Kentucky.

Sola (Wayne county) is in a bend on the northern bank of Otter Creek. A water-power grant and four mill stood here for more than a century.

Shop Early, Mail Early, Advice Of Postmaster

Postmaster Ben S. May this week re-emphasized to the citizens of Prestonsburg the need to shop and mail early this Christmas season, to speed the processing of Christmas mail.

She cautioned that putting off mailing Christmas cards and parcels until the last moment results in an extremely heavy burden being placed on the postal employees and postal facilities of the post office and slows up the processing of mail.

Every facility of the local post office, she added, will be pressed into maximum service again this year so that the post office will be cleared of all Christmas mail that has been deposited in time for delivery by December 23.

"There are still some people who retain the mistaken idea that a gift or card arriving on Christmas Eve has a special significance," the Postmaster noted. "It is the thought behind the gift or card, not the time of arrival which is the important consideration."

Shop Early, Mail Early, Advice Of Postmaster

Special Circuit Judge Lawrence F. Speckman entered the judgment. The officials appealed to the Court of Appeals.

The appellate opinion said the first question was whether the plaintiffs had a right to prosecute the suit against Burchett on the ground that it would have been futile to call upon the fiscal court to take such action.

The trial court on February 10, 1953, ruled that such a request would have been futile. "This finding of fact should be sustained unless clearly erroneous," the appellate court said.

It added: "The evidence is convincing that the defendant members of the fiscal court, prior to the institution of this action, had ample information that Burchett was being paid and was retaining public funds contrary to law."

The opinion said the new fiscal court in January, 1950, illegally raised the salary of Burchett and that of the incoming County Judge, Henry Stumbo.

Burchett, who was paid the higher salary during 1950, 1951, and 1952, also retained money collected from fees and other sources substantially in excess of the constitutional limit, the opinion said.

In similar cases instituted by the Tax League Special Judge Lawrence Grauman held that the League had not made proper request from the fiscal court for it to take action. The Court of Appeals has upheld the Grauman decisions.

Columbian Fuel Co. Authorized To Sell To Atlantic Seaboard

A power commission examiner ruled recently that Columbian Fuel Corp., New York, should be authorized to sell natural gas produced in Pike county, Ky., to Atlantic Seaboard Corp., Charleston, W. Va.

The decision by Examiner Emery J. Woodall will become a final commission order unless a review is initiated within 30 days.

Columbian originally sought permission to sell gas to United Fuel Gas Co. for resale to Seaboard, with delivery to be made directly to Seaboard by Columbian. However, during hearings United's counsel announced the company would assign the contract to Seaboard.

Let The Man Work!

James W. Martin threatens to become the best highway commissioner Kentucky has ever had. His stature in that position remains in the "threatening" stage at this time because he has not yet been put to the acid test of withstanding political pressures from within and without.

A top economist and a former University of Kentucky instructor, Martin apparently is interested only in getting a tough job done; in going from here to there via the straight line; in assuming in a fashion strange to Kentucky politics that the laborer is worthy of his hire and that he shall not be hired, or remain hired, unless he will work for or toward the building of roads rather than political fences.

It is encouraging, even refreshing, to read of the man's plans and policies. It even creates wonderment—Can this be a Kentucky highway commissioner in action?

Let us all wish for Mr. Martin the best in his declared purpose of handling his office as an individual who has little or no taste for politics, Kentucky bred. Let us at the same time hope that those who do like their politics will let him work.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

DECLARES HUMAN RIGHTS ABUSED

Editor, "The Times":
I was called to a year since I began work as a gas service inspector for the Public Service Commission of this Commonwealth, and having traveled over Floyd, Pike, Knott, Johnson, Lawrence, Martin, and Magoffin, I am convinced that many operators in the truck mine industry have declared the first six words of the "Golden Rule" null and void. Only the first four hold any meaning for them.

You and I have every reason to know about those who travel these hills of ours a generation ago, wheedling and cajoling until they persuaded our forefathers to sell their mineral rights for a song. Many old-timers died in the process, observing that had justice prevailed he could have spent his declining years in the midst of wealth.

But the moans of the present day are far from satisfied with the rotten deal perpetrated in the region, they have now called and they own the surface wherever and whenever they choose, be it in a garden plot in the heart of the hollow standing the most aged pensioner and the specter of starvation, or a little piece of the backwoods earned by the sweat of some honest man's brow.

Roads up the hollows, most of them representing constant effort throughout the years by the people living there, have been taken over and gutted by heavy trucks and lumbering up and down them with enormous loads of coal, sold to fatten the bankrolls of those who prosper at the plight of the poor and down-trodden. Little boys and girls are forced to wade the filthy, black mud as best they can to and from school. In many, many instances the bents, or hoppers, are built directly over the road so that the rightful owners thereto are forced to wait the truck driver's pleasure before they can get in or out.

I realize full well that the truck mine industry is vital to the life of our region. It is as sympathetic as any man toward the little operators and the men who slave in the rat-holes to earn a meager living, but I am angry and anxious to fight the High Muckety Muck who rip and tear and destroy pasture lands, gardens, orchards, roads, erect their night-marish contraptions wherever and whenever they like, cover up valuable land with state and rock simply because the bulldozer fee would be a few dollars more to go in on the bulldozer away from the roads. Any man with half sense knows it is a plain case of wanton destruction.

I am old-fashioned and hard-headed enough to believe that a man's home is really and truly his castle, he is ever so humble. But what about the High Muckety Muck of the coal industry? The evidence I can read says they believe themselves due this honor, or but to hell with the other man. Yet we live in a land where equality is supposed to be the watchword.

To most of us, a home is the only thing we have to show for a life time of self-inflicted privation; but as things stand now, a bulldozer can go to work in your yard at any moment preparing for the throwing together of a so-called "tipple, a pole-and-board monstrosity which could well be a cross between South-down ewe and a hydraulic ram. The fact that the value of your home is cut in half by this action means nothing to the greedy backers of these ventures.

All the talk in the world will take action on the part of the rank and file of the people. Such being the case, I have prepared a petition to the Governor asking these things: That no piece of garden land be molested or damaged anywhere without payment in full to the owner thereof; on a reasonable life-span basis; that no "tipple" be erected closer than 300 feet to any residence anywhere without the written consent of the occupants therein, whether tenants or owners; that no piece of pasture land be molested or damaged anywhere without reasonable payment to the owner on a just and fair life span basis; that any and all roads invaded by the heavy trucks serving this industry shall be kept in equal or better repair than that found before the mines opened; that no debris or rock shall be dumped or thrown onto hillside land adjoining roads or tipples built to serve the mines without the written consent of the owner thereof; and that no barns or other outbuildings of any kind shall be moved or damaged without being relocated in a place suitable to the owner or paid for at a reasonable and just price.

The existing law will have to be changed by the Legislature, of course, but I have talked to at least 1000 people on this subject and I am assured by them that such a bill can be easily had; and such bill will command the attention of any group of lawmakers anywhere. It doesn't take long to ascertain that people are hopping mad at the present state of affairs, and it is simple reason.

My interest in seeing some justice done along this line will grow with this petition whether you be on top of the hill, in the head of the branch or along the highway. All I need is a card or letter telling me you are ready to fight and wanting to sign.

IN PRAISE OF LESLIE

Editor, "The Times":
David Leslie, in his capacity as traffic policeman, has a rare, yet commendable record. He puts all violators in the same category. He displays no favoritism for the rich or to those with great prestige. All cars are tagged when they deserve to be, regardless of who own them.

How we wish it would be for this democracy if all officials of public trust or office would practice the same characteristics of non-favoritism. We would then deserve a more honest and straight forward government, one which would make us proud to be citizens with all of its cosmic and electronic excellence—too insignificant for comparison.

Mr. Leslie demonstrates an example worthy of thoughtful consideration.

GLENN M. CLARKE

His division, but I spent considerable time locating a typewriter that would write in red. I felt this was the appropriate color.

A little green to go along with that red would have made it more Christmas, I should say.

THEY'RE DUMB ALL RIGHT

One of the better legal maneuvers reported recently is that of a western sheriff who, with slot machines on his hands and law needed to convict the owners, dug up an ordinance which provides that it shall be a legal offense to catch dumb animals in a steel trap.

MUCH TALK—HOW MUCH DONE?

"Christmas for Christ" is a noble slogan and it deserves a movement in which we all should join. But how shall we go about it? And how the spirit of Christ last from Christmas, to start with?

These are questions that should be a good to all who profess a real faith in Christ for it is they who are responsible.

Only those who have this faith in Christ can be expected to want to restore His Spirit to Christmas. Certainly those who have not this love cannot be expected to. Then what shall we do?

What about the day before Christmas and the day after? Let us think as much about our lives, our words and actions on those days and every day of the year as well as on the Day itself, and we will have gone a long way toward keeping Christ in Christmas.

Children and women and men suffer all about us, every day of the year, not only at Christmas-time. They need a friendly word and a helping hand on days other than Christmas. Do we remember that? Do Christians stop for that friendly word, take time to pray with those who feel that they have no friends?

We get a joy out of these good things we do at Christmas-time, and that is well. But that good joy-happy our visit to a needy family made us see in the more important work of sitting down with that family and spending that fifteen minutes showing them that we have no interest in them and a concern for them, our work would be more effective.

And then there are some who have the "gro-g and nee" concept of Christmas. Christmas? They say so. Do you put Christ in Christmas?

Let us remember that the spirit of Christmas lives not for one day; that Jesus Christ was not born in a stable, that He lived and died for all and that He reckoned not bank accounts or social standing when the sick and the sorrowful sought Him.

All of which is said here not as a prescription; not to say that one of us is measuring up to the Christian ideal while others fall short, but to waste the occasions find out at each of us who talk and do about putting Christ in Christmas.

showed the confusion was false, State Police said. He gave varying versions of the murder, and when told flatly that he was lying and the machine showed that he was, he repudiated the entire original statement, insisting he wanted to get of Indiana prison.

In that repudiation statement Taylor said the name, Edward Brown, was one he had used as an alias on occasion. The blonde girl he mentioned was only a picture he had seen in a newspaper, he admitted.

State Police are proceeding with an open mind in the case. Director Smith indicated Sheriff Collins has contended that Taylor knows more about the murder matter than he could have learned merely by being in the community at the time the girl was brutally beaten.

The Sheriff has indicated that he would make it a point to get out from Indiana and brought here. State Police Director Smith said that Indiana prison officials have promised full cooperation, and that the prison psychiatrist will assist with further questioning of Taylor. Armed with all available data relating to the murder, the psychiatrist, it is believed, may plan down the convict's story to something approximating the truth.

Told of the original "confession," Smith said Taylor's confession as expressed complete disbelief, saying that their sister leaves no such man and branding Taylor's confession as a "made-up story." Consensus of local opinion agrees with the state.

Taylor was the fourth man to confess the slaying. All later repudiated their confessions. Smith at state Police headquarters in Frankfort said the state organization has been probing into the case ever since it happened. Sheriff Collins, whose term is drawing to a close, said he had been working on the case the last four years.

Smith said he was "certainly not in a position at this time to say whether or not Taylor is implicated in this case. However, we are continuing our investigation." Both Smith and Collins reported Taylor explained his confession by saying: "I would rather serve a life term in Kentucky than serve a year here."

Their petition alleges that in New Martin precinct absentee ballots were annulled and voted by the following who, contestants claim, were not legal voters in that precinct: Zella Osborne, Wesley W. Curtis, Dollie Addis, Clyde Donald Hampton, Ess Ell Reed, David Paterno and Ella Reynolds, William Dorsett and Clyde Stapleton voted for contestants but are not legal voters in Martin city elections; and that J. D. Adams, D. E. Claffin and Hazel Adams voted for contestants and that each "failed and refused" to sign the comparative signature book.

They also allege that W. J. Reynolds, William Dorsett and Clyde Stapleton voted for contestants but are not legal voters in Martin city elections; and that J. D. Adams, D. E. Claffin and Hazel Adams voted for contestants and that each "failed and refused" to sign the comparative signature book.

Stanley and Hutchinson also claim there were nine more ballots in the New Martin precinct box—which, they say, served the special senatorial election, the county and the city elections—than belong there. This is explained in this way: Fourteen ballots were issued from the ballot box when the box was opened there were 344 ballots in the box when there should have been only 330, since absentee ballots do not belong in the regular precinct ballot box.

Another main point of the contention is the claim that J. D. Adams, allegedly an active supporter of the contestants, served as election clerk in New Martin precinct without appointment or oath and that he failed to sign 30 or more ballots of voters who, it is claimed, he knew planned to vote for the Benhive ticket. Had these votes been counted, the petition claims, contestants would have been elected.

Names of those whose ballots thus were allegedly "spoiled" were listed as Dewey Conley, Flo Whicker, Annie Stumbo, Hazel Lester, Margie Sanoora, Elaine Howard, E. C. Slade, Zella Newcomb, Zella Rice, L. B. Skeans, Delbert Leon, Nora Whicker, Bobby Whicker, Georgia Dorsett, Lela Slade, Lorraine Halbert, Lou Ann Hutchinson, Ella B. Stanley, Wess Halbert, Ada Halbert, John Wilson, Ann Skaggs Griffith.

Experts Expect Decline In Prices of Food

Washington — The Agriculture Department predicted the retail food prices, a key factor in the fight against inflation, should decline gradually during the rest of the year. However, prices are expected to average well above a year ago and total consumer spending for food next year will probably top the 1957 outlay, the department said.

Rising food prices were chiefly responsible for an increase of one tenth of one per cent in the cost of living last month, pushing it to a new record high for the 18th month in a row.

50-YEAR-OLD DREAM DEVELOPS INTO RIVERSIDE BREAKS PARK

BY HENRY OWEN, MAY (In The Commonwealth Magazine, Publication of Virginia Chamber of Commerce and published in The Richmond Times-Dispatch, Va.)

A dream pursued for more than fifty years by far-sighted and energetic citizens of Southwest Virginia and Eastern Kentucky seems close to full realization this fall. It is the dream of a park at the Breaks, a place where nature's handiwork is to be seen in its most magnificent form. The Breaks Park River on its way toward has cut through the rugged mountains.

The final phase in the establishment of the Breaks Interstate Park was begun on Tuesday, July 30, when a small group gathered to break ground for the first three permanent buildings. Today, the sounds of building concrete mixer, and hammers echo through the stillness of the wooded plateau 1,500 feet above the rocky chasm of Russell Fork. A $100,000 contract was awarded in July by the Breaks Interstate Park Commission to the standing lumber company of McClure, Virginia, for construction of a concessions building, a park superintendent's residence, and a maintenance building.

Designed by architects Charles Rankin and James C. Walsh, Associates of Lexington, Kentucky, the buildings will be of native sandstone and wood to harmonize with their wooded location. Near the back entrance and to the left will be the superintendent's home, a modern two bedroom cottage. The central concessions building will be located as a point about 1/2 mile back from the main park road, almost directly opposite the existing quarters. Here will be the general park offices, a restaurant, well-equipped kitchen, gift shop and rest rooms. A large shelter area for outdoor recreation. In the dining room a wide window of glass will face a spectacular view of the Breaks. The rock formation, standing 1,000 feet high in the center of the gorge, almost completely encircled by the river. Sandstone and granite boulders are to be used. It is hoped the park will eventually become self-supporting. The park commission is to be held in the woods at the end of an existing lane to the well and spring.

A master park plan prepared by landscape architects Sorgett and Hammond of Lexington, Kentucky, provides for gradual improvement over a period of five years and includes hiking trails, picnic and camping areas, and even an amphitheater. The park commission in September to approve plans and specifications for a water system, parking spaces, directional signs, guard rails and seats at the picnic, and picnic tables and trash containers. Contracts for these improvements were to be awarded this month. "Highways" have already been constructed to the most frequent overlook which in ten years ago could be approached only by slipping and sliding down several steep inclines.

Other progress has been made. One well drilled 600 feet without discovery of water, but a second well drilled successfully. It is to pump an 80,000 gallon storage tank will assure sufficient water to an area, but the drainage of water and large influx of tourists. Showdown have been gradual, widespread, and improved from $100,000 to $1,000,000.

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

The farther South you go the larger the bass you catch will be, promises Jim Lucas, Angling Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. They reach their maximum size in the Gulf states. The wild roach bass, 2 1/2 pounds, was caught in Georgia.

The reason southern bass attain about twice the size of the northern variety is because of the warmer water there permit them to feed actively and grow rapidly all year. In the North they grow only during the comparatively warm summers. But how about the persimmon chin that's northern bass are put up a poor fish when compared to their northern brethren. Lucas says that he regards southern bass as the best fish that the northern. This is because they will take surface lure more consistently; indeed most fall anglers down South seem never to use anything else for them. And a bass hooked on the surface, breaking water often, has the fighting qualities of the northern bass. Perhaps not size for size, remember, they don't run for size so the average southern bass will give a longer fight than the average northern bass.

As to the accusation that they're overfished, just for age, the southern bass are more so than the northern, though his much larger size may make his compulsion more noticeable.

In short, Lucas says that he regards the often-heralded remarks about the poor game quality of the southern bass are pure hooey, repeated only by those who know nothing about them. And very many northern anglers seem to agree with him judging from the growing number of letters he receives.

Four Establishments Entered By Thieves; No Arrests Are Made

Thieves entered the Sammons Drive-In here Wednesday night of last week bringing to four the number of breaks in this vicinity in the last three weeks. The Drive-In, owned and operated by Denver Sammons, was entered by forcing the rear dining room door. The pinball machines and a juke box were rifled of about $45 in cash.

On Sunday night preceding the Sammons robbery Shannon Greer's meat plant on U. S. 28 on Little Point was broken into by forcing the front door. Loss was approximately $15 in cash and it is thought certain meat products were taken. Friday night the Pure Oil station, operated by Sam Atkins at Lake Drive and Friend street was broken into through a window. An unnamed amount of money and merchandise was taken.

South-siders of the list were three weeks ago when a cigarette machine belonging to William Wells, of Austin, was taken from Scott's store at the intersection of Lake Drive and Third avenue. The machine and its money and merchandise contents have not been recovered.

FBI Imposters Are Taken Sunday By Jackson Police

An anonymous phone call received by Jackson police last Sunday night led to the arrest early today of four Louisville residents, at least one of whom is listed as having a lengthy police record. Robert Joseph Murray, 38; his wife, Dorothy Murray; Kenneth Hawkins, 26; and his wife, Joan Hawkins, were arrested at 3 a.m. as they sought admission to living quarters adjoining Jet's Grocery on College avenue. They offered no resistance. The two men had previously called Graydon Jet, proprietor of the grocery, and representing themselves as agents of the FBI, they were attempting to recover a stalling machine which Jet had purchased from another Louisville resident, Dishman Hall, Murray was driving when registered in the name of John Wild, Louisville, although Murray claimed ownership. Found in the car was an automatic shotgun, a 22-caliber semi-automatic rifle, a rotary saw bearing the name of Robert Joseph Murray, a portable radio, and a quantity of auto transfer and ownership papers, police said. The Louisville Police Department reported Murray had a long criminal record there and was free on bond on a charge of knowingly receiving stolen property—a television set taken in recent break-in at Allied Freight Lines, Louisville. The adding machine the men were trying to recover from the Jackson merchant was thought by Louisville police to be one missing in another break-in there. Dishman Hall, who reportedly sold the machine to Jet, was arrested at his Louisville residence this morning. Louisville police asked the local authorities to hold the quarantined men on charges of receiving stolen property, and their wives as accessories. Pitt said FBI authorities have been notified of the arrest and will question the men about representing themselves as government agents. The four are being held in the city jail here, awaiting arrival of Louisville officers.

IMPROVEMENT NOTED IN SCHOOL ATTENDANCE BY INDIGENT CHILDREN "We are having some improvement in our school attendance problem with indigent children since we started our drive to provide them with the necessary clothing to attend," says Eric Martin, of the city personnel department of the county superintendent's office here. The Betsy Layne Women's Club and the Methodist church there collected last week a quantity of clothing and turned it over to the attendance officers for distribution in the county. The clothing has been delivered to the community hall at Allen which is serving as distribution center. "A close scrutiny is being made of all applications for school children aid," Martin says. "We do not have an excess amount of clothing for our needs and we want it to go to those actually in need," he added.

YATES WINNER OVER STATION WPRT Owner Must Return Equipment To Yates Firm; Stephens Asks $1 Million

Certain radio broadcasting equipment bought on a conditional sales contract by the Stephens Industries, Inc., of Prestonsburg, must be returned to the Yates Acceptance Corporation, Quincy, Ill. Federal Judge Mac Swinford ordered at Pikeville, Wednesday. The order was made after Judge Swinford had heard a U.S. district court suit against the Prestonsburg firm, which is headed by D. C. Stephens and which operates Radio Station WPRT here. The acceptance corporation is proposing to buy the equipment for $1,000,000. It was announced that Stephens has filed a third-party complaint against Yates, asking $1,000,000 damages. He claims that because the radio station was unable to transmit on 5,000 watts, using the equipment bought from Yates, it is losing thousands of dollars a month and asks $30,000 a month for a period of three years. Stephens bought the 5,000-watt equipment from the Yates Corporation, and had it installed at three years. Stephens claimed the equipment was defective and filed a countersuit against the Yates agency, alleging breach of warranty. The station had to be dismantled and replaced with 1,000 watts, Stephens' suit said. Judge Swinford also held Wednesday that the counterclaim against Yates is to be heard next April.

Census Bureau Conducts Household Goods Survey

The U. S. Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of durable household goods in connection with the December Current Population Survey, according to Supervisor Robert A. Yerkey of the Bureau's regional office in Cincinnati, which will participate in the survey. The questions on durable household goods will cover electric vacuum cleaners, electric washing machines, and living room rugs or carpets. Owners will be asked when these articles were purchased and whether similar items were removed from service during 1957. Year of purchase of items removed from service during 1957 will be asked also. The household goods information is being collected for the U. S. Department of Agriculture for use in preparing estimates of replacement needs, in budget counseling, and for research in family living costs. The household goods questions will be asked in addition to the regular monthly inquiries on employment. The Current Population Survey will be conducted here and in 319 other areas of the country during the week of December 16. Information will be collected locally by Mrs. Wilma Taubee, of Malone, Ky.

WORK OF FAMED ARTIST AT HISTORICAL SOCIETY

By Charles F. Hinds
Secretary - Treasurer, Kentucky Historical Society

"Frank Duveneck is the greatest talent of this generation!" This was Frank Duveneck's opinion just before the turn of the century by one who spoke with authority—John Sargent.

Few would deny that by 1890 Duveneck was one of the outstanding names among world artists. He had been a prize pupil at the Royal Academy in Munich under Wilhelm Dietz. To this period belongs one of his most popular canvases, "The Whistling Boy," the original of which is in the Cincinnati Museum.

Then, there was the Boston period, signalled by his year 1875. Five of his paintings exhibited there drew wide-spread praise from art critics and members of the press.

Three years later found him back in Munich at the head of his own school of painting. Some 40 students flocked to enroll under the now-world-famous master. In 1877 his "boy," as his students came to be called, moved to Italy. There in Florence and Venice, the Bohemian life of Duveneck's art school attracted the attention of William Dean Howells, who based a novel, Indian Summer, on Duveneck and his students.

Specialist Suggests Thread Tension Check in Sewing Fabrics

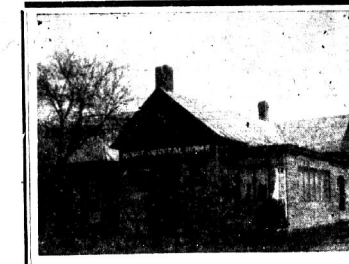

Don't expect your sewing machine to do perfect stitching on all weights of material without some adjustments, says Miss Dorothy Threlkeld, University of Kentucky specialist in clothing. The thread-tension requirement on the ordinary Christmas apron, for example, will be quite different from that on a wood-tweed skirt, and machine adjustment should be made for each one.

FARM NOTES

By Robert M. Jones

Laying Flocks
Laying flocks will require special attention during the winter, if they are to produce eggs. If hens are left to run free on the frozen ground, housed in wet draughty houses, and given ice water to drink, egg production will drop to nothing this winter. By following a few good management practices, egg production can be held up through the high egg price season.

Prepare houses by cleaning and adding six inches of dry litter, such as sawdust, shaving or straw. Avoid draughts but provide plenty of ventilation. Provide one nest for each four hens. This will prevent cracked and dirty eggs. Use light in the early morning to make a fourteen hour day for the flock. Use one 40 watt bulb for 100 square feet of floor space. Longer days result in increased feed consumption. Hens must eat to produce eggs. Supply one foot feeder space for each four hens.

The feeding of moist feed once a day will help maintain egg production. Feed as much as the hen will eat in twenty minutes.

There is a market in the county for all the eggs we can produce. Take care of your laying flock, and sell surplus eggs this winter while prices are high.

FEDDER FIG SALE

Anyone interested in attending a meeting at Morehead, December 13, can contact our office to make arrangements for transportation. The purpose of the meeting is to decide if a cooperation sale is possible, and work out some of the problems involved. A market is needed very badly for pigs produced in Eastern Kentucky. The local market is not usually high enough to make the production of pigs profitable.

SOIL TESTING

Now is the best time to take soil samples for next year's crop. Experiments have shown that samples taken in the fall are as good as those taken in the spring. During the spring the ground is usually too wet to take a good sample, and farmers are usually in a hurry and do not take time to take samples. Samples taken now, are easier, and there is plenty of time to have them analyzed and fertilizer bought for next spring.

INTERNAL PARASITES

Practically all hogs have internal parasites. These worms are very harmful to pigs, but do not have much effect on older hogs. All pigs should receive a worm treatment at weaning.

Sodium Fluoride has proven to be one of the best and cheapest preparations to use. Mix one pound of Sodium Fluoride to 99 pounds of feed, and feed this to pigs for at least 24 hours. Caution: Do not feed in slop or water, and make sure no other livestock can get to the mixture as it is poisonous to cattle, sheep and horses.

Fertilizer

Figures compiled by the Feed and Fertilizer Department of Kentucky Agriculture Experiment Station shows that in the first half of 1957 five hundred twenty-seven tons of mixed fertilizer were used in Floyd County. These 25 were grades recommended by the University of Kentucky. This was an increase of 87 over same period in 1956.

The most popular grades sold were 4-2-8, 6-12-12, 3-9-6, 12-12-12 and 5-10-10. The only analysis not recommended which was sold in any appreciable amount was 9-6.

Internal Parasites

If your cattle have rough coats, lack of growth despite continued good appetite, and possibly bottle jaw and occurs it a good indication the cattle are infected with stomach worms.

The most dangerous period for development of stomach worms in beef cattle is during the months just before and after weaning.

Phenothiazine is the basic ingredient used in the control of stomach worms. It should be administered at the following rates: 30 grains or 1 ounce of actual phenothiazine for calves under 300 pounds; Cows and sheep 100 pounds and up are treated with 60 grains or two ounces.

Phenothiazine can be given with roughage or grain or as a drench. For more complete details call 266, Prestonsburg or come by the office in the Post Office Building.

EXPERTS EXPECT LARGE POPULATION INCREASES

Demographers — specialists in population trends — predict that in the next half century United States population will move from its present level of 171,000,000 to 342,000,000.

As a result, scientists at the University of Texas and elsewhere are seeking new sources of food—such as algae—so future generation will not go hungry.

ADVANCING EDUCATION IN KENTUCKY

By ROBERT R. MARTIN
Superintendent of Public Instruction

Vocational rehabilitation, the process of restoring handicapped persons to the fullest possible social and economic usefulness to which they are capable has become an important function of the Department of Education.

Through its Bureau of Rehabilitation Services, the Department of Education provides a rehabilitation program for any person sixteen years of age or older with physical or mental disabilities that constitute employment handicaps.

In a report issued by the Citizens Advisory Committee on Vocational Rehabilitation recently, it was noted that Kentucky led the states in the United States in the per cent of gain in the number of persons rehabilitated during 1957. There were 3,127 persons served by the Bureau of Rehabilitation Services in 1957, and of this number, a total of 871 were "closed". That simply means that these 871 persons are now suitably employed and making a productive contribution to themselves, their State, and Nation.

The significant aspect of this record number of rehabilitations lies in the fact that these persons are now realizing a 533 per cent increase in aggregate annual wages. Prior to rehabilitation, they were receiving an aggregate annual income of $187,668. Now, that income is $1,188,512. This is ample evidence that the rehabilitation program is an excellent investment.

Persons who need and desire vocational rehabilitation services are referred to the Bureau of Rehabilitation in several ways. Sometimes they apply directly to one of the eleven district offices maintained by the Department of Education across the State. Others are referred to the Bureau by public and private agencies interested in aiding the handicapped.

Still another source of referrals is by means of a member of cooperative agreements made between the Bureau of Rehabilitation and other public and private agencies. Some of these are the Kentucky Crippled Children's Commission, Social Security Administration, Department of Economic Security, and Veteran's Administration.

Upon application for rehabilitation services, applicants are interviewed and then given general medical examinations. This medical information forms the basis for determining eligibility for services and a case history is developed.

Some of the services that are available to the client are individual counseling; hospital, surgical, and psychiatric services; artificial limbs and appliances; training for positions through college, special schools, and on-the-job training; necessary tools or equipment; licenses; placement assistance; and follow-up services to make sure that the worker and the job are properly matched.

It has been estimated according to the report of the Advisory Committee on Rehabilitation that there are 36,000 disabled persons in Kentucky who are not now employed because of their disabilities but who could do productive work if they were provided with vocational rehabilitation services. In the face of this fact it is evident that Kentucky is meeting only a fraction of the problem even though we are leading the nation in the per cent of persons rehabilitated. If Kentucky is to be better able to provide services for these persons, the funds, personnel and facilities to rehabilitate a minimum of three thousand persons yearly should be provided within the next seven years.

It should be remembered that rehabilitation not only adds to the strength of the country, but contributes significantly to the educational and cultural heritage of its people. The accomplishment of Kentucky's program of rehabilitation have gone far in advancing education in this State but there is yet much that remains to be done.

Misunderstanding Exists On Social Security Tax, According To Thompson

There has been considerable misunderstanding among farmers as to the correct method for reporting their earnings for social security tax purposes, according to Thomas E. Thompson, manager of the social security district office in Pikeville.

Some of this misunderstanding is because there are many cases where the farmer has not made a net income of $600.00, and therefore does not pay Federal income tax return (Form 1040) is necessary. However, all self-employed persons must file Form 1040, with a profit and loss statement attached, if they net $600.00 a year. From this, it is plain to see that the self-employed person who makes between $400 and $600 per year must file the return and pay the social security tax even though he is not subject to income tax.

The law goes beyond this in the case of the self-employed farmer. He may exercise an option if he chooses. When the gross income from the farm is $100 or less he may report, for social security purposes, either two-thirds of his gross or the actual net earnings. When the gross income from the farm exceeds $1000 the net income must be figured; if the net income is less than $1000, the farmer may elect to report $1000 for social security. If the net earnings from the farm are more than $1000 he must report the actual amount of his net earnings.

To find out his net earnings he should list all expenses in connection with the operation of the farm. Expenses such as seed, fertilizer, electricity, fuel and oil for operation of tractors are counted against gross income. He should also show the depreciation on farm buildings, tractors, combines, and tools necessary for the operation of the farm, according to Thompson.

More detailed information is contained in a publication entitled Farmers' Tax Guide (Publication No. 229) which can normally be obtained from your county farm agent or the Internal Revenue Service.

AUTHOR TELLS FEUD HISTORY

Rufus Reed Rediscovers Graves Of Feud Victims; Plan Permanent Marker

Rufus M. Reed, engineer and author of Lovey, Johnson county, who rediscovered the graves of the McCoy family killed in the Hatfield-McCoy feud on the border of Kentucky and West Virginia, was requested recently to tell of his find in a recording by radio station, WLSI, Pikeville. The featured broadcast was being used state-wide this week by several radio stations.

In the broadcast, Reed tells of his experience in stumbling over a crude gravestone while surveying the John B. Farley farm on the Blackberry fork of Beaver Creek last October. On the marker there was crudely chiseled the name of "Cal McCoy," who was slain in the Hatfield-McCoy feud. Four other graves of the slain feudists, almost completely over-run by briars and shrubbery were later found. He relates of having the graveyard cleaned off and of making a survey map of it and laying out roads, so that people might have access to it. The main theme of the program is to try to have the graveyard set apart as a permanent monument of the famous feud.

In the broadcast, Reed also mentions some of the famous men who have sprung directly from both sides of the feuding houses. He once wrote of the exploits of Pvt. Pete McCoy, who was one of the great heroes of World War I and who was awarded both the D.S.C. and the Croix de Guerre for extraordinary heroism on the field of battle.

Frankfort, Dec. 9 (Sp.)—"Kentucky's third dog law (the first to be enforced) is being considered," says Agriculture Commissioner Ben Butler. "We're licensing 100,000 dogs and placing nearly that many strays every year now."

An Accolade
THE MAINTENANCE Division of the State Highway Department has received a pat on the back from a carrier of the mails "for the job your crew is doing in Owsley county."

The letter from Monroe R. Bartlett, Booneville, said: "I am a rural mail carrier and travel about 35 miles a day over gravel roads and not once have I been delayed, due to poor road damage or other causes. We had some bad storms this summer and all the roads were always open for me. They graded those roads regularly and kept them in a good condition as possible."

"I never recalled how much a good crew meant until I had to travel rural roads. Again I say, they are to be congratulated for their work."

Recollections
... RECALLS the methods women used for scrubbing wood floors before they were available.

A scrub-sop was fashioned by hand out of hickory splints, and after water was dashed over the floor, creek and was used as a cleaner. The floors were scrubbed each spring, that is, the kitchen and dining room. After the scrubbing the floors were rinsed by dashing buckets of clear water across, the surface of the floor, then swept as dry as possible with a homemade broom-com broom. Nutrition Education Aid To Better Health, Conference Is Told

In a recent food survey made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, relatively few of the families surveyed had diets that fell short of the recommended standards. But 20 per cent in shortest supply were calcium and ascorbic acid or Vitamin C.

"Three out of 10 families used less than the recommended amounts of calcium, found mostly in milk and dairy products, and one out of four families lacked sufficient ascorbic acid or vitamin C, found mostly in citrus fruits. Only one-tenth of the families interviewed were said to have "poor diets."

The statements of the USDA, reporting at the annual Agricultural Outlook Conference in Washington, D. C. on changes in food consumption in this country in the past 20 years, said Miss Elizabeth Helton, UK Extension foods specialist.

In the 1930's when a large-scale survey was made, a third of the diets was classed as "poor."

More general knowledge of the essential elements of a good diet and in how to plan and prepare balanced meals, and an abundant food supply, have contributed to improved food standards and habits, it was stated.

Economic conditions under which an increasing number of families have been able to have the kinds of food they want, and the restoration of some of the food values, previously lost in milling, to bread and other grain products in the flour-enrichment program, are other factors making for better health.

Continued emphasis on research and education in human nutrition has helped housewives to choose the kinds and varieties of food necessary to maintain good health, it was reported.

Winchester To Be First Kentucky City To Have Direct Distance Dialing

A new-type long-distance telephone service is coming to Kentucky, according to Harry M. Mitchell, district manager of the Southern Bell Telephone Company.

Beginning in November, when Winchester is converted to dial, one party and two party telephone customers there will be able to dial long distance station-to-station calls direct to many selected cities. This new feature of long distance service is called Direct Distance Dialing. Winchester will be the first exchange in Kentucky to receive this type service.

At the beginning, a limited number of cities can be dialed. Later, as the nationwide D.D.D. network is expanded and equipment is added in other communities, additional towns will be added to the list.

"D.D.D." has been operating successfully in many cities throughout the nation and has grown extremely accurate and completely dependable under the most severe tests that could be devised.

It was first put into use in Englewood, New Jersey in 1951 and has received great acceptance wherever it has been installed.

FOOD NOTES

By DIXIE T. HIGGINS
Home Demonstration Agent

The Holiday season calls for special trimmings. One of these Christmas tins is the color RED. Cranberry punch can add this color to your party table.

Miss Elizabeth Helton, extension specialist in foods and nutrition, prepared and served Cranberry Fruit Punch at the project leaders' training school, December 10. Several of the leaders requested the recipe and it is as follows:

- 1 pint cranberry juice cocktail.
- 1 cup orange juice.
- 1/2 cup lemon juice.
- 1/2 cup pineapple juice.
- 1/2 cup sugar.
- 1 cup water.
- 1 pint ginger ale (optional).

Combine cranberry cocktail, orange, lemon, and pineapple juices. Mix well with sugar and water. Pour over ice. Serves 10 (1/2 cup each).

Fresh Cranberry Juice Cocktail
2 cups fresh cranberries.
3 cups water.
1/2 cup sugar.
2 tablespoon lemon juice.
Cook cranberries and water until very soft; strain through cheese cloth (don't squeeze). Boil juice and sugar for 3 min., stirring until sugar is dissolved; add lemon juice and chill thoroughly. Makes about 1 quart.

For an attractive, thoughtful gift, you can't go wrong on Christmas cookies. Packed in a ribbon-lined box, or covered with glistening cellophane on a plate, the cookies will add to the Holiday festivities. The family, too, will like the pretty assortment that you have ready in the home freezer.

Holiday Cookies
From a good standard recipe, such as the following, a variety of cookies may be made by dividing the dough into several parts and treating each one in a special way.

- 1 c butter
- 2c sugar
- 4 eggs
- 2 t vanilla
- 4 c sifted flour
- 4 t baking powder

cream the butter and sugar thoroughly, add well beaten eggs and vanilla. Mix sifted flour, baking powder and salt and stir into the first mixture until well blended. Chill several hours until firm enough to handle. Divide into four parts.

FILLED COOKIES: Roll and cut in circles one portion of dough. Top each one with a spoonful of fruit filling made of 1/2 pound of finely cut dates, 1/4 cup of sugar, 1 3/4 cup water and a few grains of salt. Cook filling for five minutes over low heat. Cool. Top the filling with a second circle of dough, and press edges together. Bake at 400 degrees for about 10 minutes.

PECAN COOKIES: To another portion of dough add 1 t of graded orange rind and 1/2 c of finely chopped nuts before chilling. Chill thoroughly. Form in small balls on cookie sheet and press lightly with bottom of jelly glass. Top with pecan-half.

DECORATED ROLLED COOKIES: Bake cookies in hot oven, 400 degrees, for about 10 minutes. Remove from pan and cool. Holding a cookie at an angle over a bowl, brush with slightly beaten egg white, then with colored sugar. (Sugar may be colored by adding a drop of fruit coloring to 1/4 c of granulated sugar. Mix with fingers and allow to dry.) Slightly toasted or tinted coconut may be applied in the same way.

Bisnett Named Vice-President Of Pike College

The Rev. Russell Gregg Bisnett, Lodi, California, will become vice president of Pike College, Jan. 1, it was announced Wednesday.

New pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church at Lodi, he has held other pastorates on the west coast and in Ohio. Dr. A. A. Page, college president, said. As executive of the Cincinnati (Ohio) Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., Mr. Bisnett directed the work of that organization from 1947 to 1951.

He was chosen by Pike's board of trustees to work in the field of public relations, it was said.

He headed the Presbyterian Restoration Fund campaign for the Synod of Washington from 1942 to 1944, and directed the Red Cross Fund campaign in Monterey, California, in 1955. He has served on the board of trustees of the American Red Cross since.

The new Pikeville official holds the degrees of bachelor of divinity and master of arts from San Francisco Theological Seminary, and has done further graduate work at the University of Washington and Yale University. A graduate of Seattle Pacific College, Seattle, Wash., he earned his A. B. degree there with English literature as his major subject.

He spent five years as a Y.M.C.A. secretary in membership and boys' work.

Mr. Bisnett is a native of Norton, Kansas. He is married, with one son, a college freshman.

PIKEVILLE FLOOD HERO GIVEN CITATION, $500

Robert E. Lamb, Pikeville, investigator in the Wage-Hour and Public Contracts Division of the U. S. Department of Labor, has received a citation for meritorious service and a cash award of $500.

The citation and award are for outstanding, heroism and devotion to the public service during a flash flood that occurred in Pike county last January.

The citation is signed by Clarence T. Lamquist, Acting Administrator of the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Division. The check is from the Department's Incentive Awards Committee, which is authorized to make cash awards up to $500 for "performance of a special act or service in the public interest over and above normal job requirements, of an unusual or distinctive character."

James T. Tolson, administrative assistant secretary and acting chairman of the Labor Department's Incentive Awards Committee, has expressed the hope that the award will aid Lamb in replacing, at least in part, personal belongings which he sacrificed in order to save government property.

Last January 29, the waters of the Big Sandy River rose unexpectedly to a height of 58 feet, the highest in Pike county's history. That morning Bob Lamb had started out in his car to complete an investigation assignment in a nearby town. At two points, he was turned back by flooded streams. On a third attempt, he might have crossed, but could not return if the water continued to rise. So he drove back to Pikeville and the frame jump-along that was both home and office to Lamb.

Since the house was on high ground before he reached it, he had time to save his car. The radio announced the river would not go over 49½ feet at the crest. Lamb felt assured he and his family were safe. That night, however, he went outside and found his yard awash, so he knew he had better do something.

By then, the only way for Lamb to save family clothing and household effects was by piling them on a bed which had been placed on top of a table, which had been placed on four chairs. Instead, he used the space for stacking government equipment and Wage-Hour files which he felt were irreplaceable. This resulted in saving several boxes of files, which had taken hundreds of hours to compile, as well as other valuable Government property.

Then he made three separate trips on foot in pitch darkness, through the steadily climbing, turbulent flood waters, to carry his wife, his daughter and a neighbor woman on his shoulders, to a two-story house over a hundred yards away. Lamb is 6 feet 7 inches tall; for the third time, to rescue his neighbor, the water was up to his chin. There was also danger of electrocution from fallen electric power lines. It was definitely a life-saving operation, since none of the three whom he carried to safety could swim.

During the next few days, he assisted the Red Cross and other emergency organizations to relieve hardship and prevent disease. When he finally got home again, he found most of his personal belongings ruined and his car a total loss. The government property which he had stacked near the ceiling, however, was still in good condition.

As an example of single-minded devotion to duty, the report Lamb sent to his supervisor on February 3rd is probable unique. "I don't know where to go to investigate," he wrote, "since all of the areas in which my present case files are located have been flooded. Perhaps you can send me some other files or advise me on this."

Pat Melton, Nashville, acting regional director, Wage-Hour and Public Contracts Division, presented the citation and award to Lamb at a ceremony in the Division's office in Louisville, December 4.

HISTORIC PASS

Pound Gap on the Virginia-Kentucky State Line is an historic mountain pass that connects the south with the Big Sandy Valley. It has been a highway of adventure and romance. The Kentucky, the Cumberland and the Big Sandy rivers have had it; Indian trails passed through it and pioneers eventually utilized it.

Kentucky plywood producers got nearly a million dollars for 50,000 cords of wood in 1956.

Capitol Notebook

A letter received by Director George L. Johnson of the Division of Weights and Measures from two inspectors of the division who witnessed the havoc created by the flooding Little River at a burley sales warehouse at Hazardville.
 "We agreed that it was about as bad as anything could be, shorts of human suffering and death. Now, go with us to a large tobacco warehouse containing 456,000 pounds of burley awaiting the first sale. See it today, loaded and loaded about by the surging waters of the Little River, baskets on top of baskets, some turned over with black streams of nicotine running everywhere and standing in puddles on the floor.
 "Now go with us behind locked doors where the owner and his staff debate and ponder what can be done. What is the best way to proceed. Many suggestions are made but each seems to lead to a dead end. It was very noticeable and pleasing to note that the owner, Mr. McConnell, always kept the interest of the owners of the tobacco foremost in his thinking.
 "Now go with us out on the floor where some 150 to 200 farmers, including a number of women, are searching around, trying to find their particular crop. Their faces are drawn and sad. We were sad too, realizing that to many that little crop of tobacco was the only hope for a brighter Christmas."

SELF-EMPLOYED FARMERS AND SOCIAL SECURITY

Thousands of self-employed farmers (share-croppers as well as land-owners) will file returns on their social security returns after December 31.
 The 1956 amendments to the Social Security Act extended OASI coverage to this group for the first time. The 1956 amendments extended farm owners who rent out their land on a cash rent or share basis if, by arrangement of the lessor, they participate to a material degree in the production or management of the production of the crop or livestock raised.
 To receive credit for earnings from self-employment, a Federal income tax return must be filed. The social security report will be made on "Schedule F" and included with the regular Form 1040.
 Only net earnings of $400 or more can be credited to a social security account for one year. The amount of net earnings over $400 in a year are not reportable for social security credit. The present social security tax rate—3 3/8% of net earnings—is paid to the District Director of Internal Revenue whether or not any income tax is due.
 Reports filed by the self-employed farmer eventually become the social security record for the individual. To assure proper crediting to his account, it is necessary that the individual's social security account number appear on the Schedule F.
 Each year that a report is filed credits are added to the individual's social security record. These credits are the basis for monthly payments upon retirement or after retirement, disability payments starting at age 50, or monthly payments to survivors in the event of death of the self-employed farmer at any age.
 The necessary forms and information are needed for filing the return and paying the social security tax may be obtained from any district office of the Internal Revenue Service.

 Information concerning social security may be obtained from any of the more than 850 social security district offices strategically located throughout the United States and territories.
 The newly-covered farmers, especially, are urged to learn more of their stake in social security. Free literature and information are available at any of these offices upon request.

Korea GI Students To Get Checks Early, VA Manager Announces

Veterans in school under the Korean GI Bill will get a Christmas present from Uncle Sam in the form of extra-early mailings of their GI allowance checks this month, Veterans Administration said this week.
 A special time-saving system will enable VA to get GI checks in the mail before most veteran-students go home for the Christmas vacation.
 Normally, GI allowance checks are mailed around the 20th of the month. But in December many schools and colleges begin holiday vacations before that date. Ray R. Adams, manager of the Louisville VA Regional Office, said Kentucky veterans should receive their checks on or about December 18.
 "VA reminded veterans and their schools to make certain that monthly GI allowance reports have been sent to VA. Under the law, these reports—signed by the veteran and a representative of his school—are required before VA may authorize payment of GI allowances.

Mathematics Teacher At Pikeville College Heart Attack Victim

Boyd Randal, 69, mathematics teacher at Pikeville College since 1941, and Eastern Kentucky church and civic leader, died last Thursday evening.
 He collapsed at a meeting of officers of the Pikeville Kiwanis Club, of which he had been secretary for four years, and was pronounced dead on arrival at the Pikeville Methodist hospital. Death was attributed by the attending physician to a "vascular accident."

A native of West Virginia, Randal spent most of his 48-year career as an educator in that state. He was a former member of the faculties of two West Virginia colleges, Salem College at Salem and Shepherd College at Shepherdstown. For 28 years a high-school principal, he headed Williamsport high school for 10 years.
 Besides his mathematics teaching, he held the post of acting dean of the college from 1951 to 1952. He went to Pikeville from Kermitt (W. Va.) high school, where he taught mathematics for three years.
 Randal held the A. B. degree from West Virginia University and the M. A. degree from Columbia University, New York. He had studied further at West Virginia University and the University of Chicago.

A life member of the National Education Association, he belonged to the Department of Higher Education of the N.E.A., and was an associate member of the West Virginia Education Association.
 He had been an elder in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) since 1948. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Pikeville and secretary of the organization of Presbyterian Men in the local church.

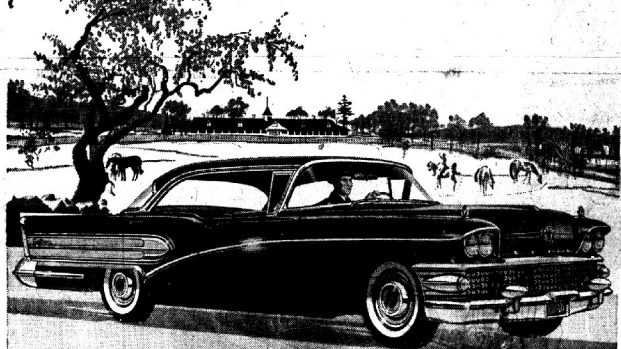

A Kiwanian for 34 years and secretary of the Pikeville Kiwanis club since 1953, he was voted Pikeville Kiwanian of the Year in both 1954 and 1955. He also was a 52nd degree Mason and had been a Past Master in the Masons since 1925.
 Survivors, besides Mrs. Randal, include two sisters, Mrs. Jacob Myers and Mrs. John Myrick, both of Martinsburg, W. Va.; two daughters, Mrs. O. T. Burgess, Marietta, Fla., a member of the University of Florida staff, and Mrs. J. E. B. Frazier, Princeton, N. J., and two grandsons.

Members of the Circle K Club of Pikeville, which Randal sponsored, were pallbearers at the funeral, which was conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday in the First Presbyterian Church of Pikeville by the pastor, the Rev. Charles H. Moffett. Graveside services were held Sunday at Martinsburg, W. Va.

Farmers Advised On New Cash Crop

A new crop possibility for Kentucky farmers could turn hillside and brush wasteland to an economic asset worth up to $200 an acre each year, says William Weisman, assistant director of the State Division of Agricultural Development.

Weisman said the possibility lies in the production of Chinese chestnuts from these trees are now being produced successfully on a small scale in Rockcastle County, he said.

He said the trees should be planted 40 feet apart in early Spring in areas where there is unobstructed sunlight. While the trees are young the orchard ground may be cultivated and when the trees begin to bear in from five to seven years the labor required would consist of grass mowing, spraying and harvest. Care of the trees is similar to that of any orchard crop.

The trees will yield approximately 1,500 pounds an acre and the current price is 20 cents a pound. There is a ready retail market for chestnuts in metropolitan areas.

Weisman said the United States annually imports from 7,000 to 10,000 tons of chestnuts from Italy. "Some of the cash from this crop could offer additional financial assistance to Kentucky farmers through home production," he said.

"Farmers desiring more information on chestnut production may write to my office in Frankfort," Weisman added.

The Nantucket pin-tip moth has infested many southern plantations; the insect attacks the growing tip of bud of branches, causing die-back of the leaders.
