This Town... That World

NOTE TO WAREHEN SCHWEDER, of The Union Leader: Much about Prestonburg. We have the word of Tom Leake for it that a certain Prestonburg businessman is leading food stamps for fish' worms.

DON'T SHAKE THE FAMILY TREE!

I have never gone in for this hereditary business and coats of arms with those Latin inscriptions for embellishment and the mystification of the ordinary reader. It was just too much trouble. Besides, I shared with Mark Twain a fear that if I got to backtracking on my ancestors too far I might wind up at the end of a plank and a projecting yard arm.

And ever since Harry Caudill's book, NIGHT COMES TO THE CUMBERLANDS, got into circulation, I've been downright pleased that I wasn't any more vain about my forebears than they would be of me if they were around to make a proper evaluation of my shortcomings.

For this Caudill takes out of our original families, says they didn't leave the hills to central castle for the wilds of Kaintuck or any other part of this New World, for the simple reason that they had no castle, and that their reason for leaving wasn't to seek religious freedom, at all, at all. They left the Old Country, says Caudill, because they were deported, or were tired of living in the fifth of London slums, or were only a jump ahead of the High Sheriff of Nottingham or some other official who wanted them to hold down a cell in debtors' prison for a spell.

And, by the way, in this article of Caudill's almost equaled about Ben Adair. We were right up near the top in that department—probably because our competitors weren't too anxious about leading the pack, anyway.

WELLS QUILTS STATE POST

Prestonsburg Man, Tax Body Attorney Out As Probe Made

James Milford "Toodies" Wells, of Morehead, formerly of Prestonburg, this Friday quit the post of state director of probation and parole.

Britton P. Franklin, an attorney for the State Tax Commission, resigned the same day at the request of Governor Bert T. Combs.

The resignations culminated a strange and elaborate explanation of events developing from an investigation instituted by State Police at Frankfort. Mr. Wells himself has not made any official statement.

Wells began his connection with the Division of Probation and Parole during the administration of Ex-Governor A. B. Chandler. He had been a senior investigating officer and was named in June, 1961, to the post of state director.

Franklin has an attorney record for Frank O'Leary, 36, and Kenneth Lee Crady, 38, both of Louisville, when the pair were convicted of conspiracy to receive stolen bank money.

Parole arrangers for the men were made through office of Wells, as director of probation and parole, and he was identified as having arranged for Frankfort lawyer.

Franklin has an attorney record for Frank O'Leary, 36, and Kenneth Lee Crady, 38, both of Louisville, when the pair were convicted of conspiracy to receive stolen bank money.

Each of the complaints alleges that the company has negligently and carelessly dumped earth, slate, rock and other debris so as to obstruct the flow of the stream, thus causing it to flow onto their land. Plaintiffs contend that, as a result, the land is unfit for use and occupancy.

In each suit a permanent injunction to restrain Inland from further dumping is sought.

The plaintiffs in each case and amounts sought in both general and punitive damages:

Bert and Bessie Dye, $3,000. Clyde and Evelyn Griffith, $40,000. Isom and Mollie Hall, $20,000. Herbert and Sarah Combs. Mary Ellen and Nancy Anderson, $20,000. Combs, Evelyn and Clyde Griffith, Dorothy and Girdle Moore, $30,000. Mary Jane Anderson as administratrix of the estate of Melvin Anderson and in her behalf individually, Clarence and Elvyns Olson, Milford and Nancy Anderson, Zella and J. O. Howell, Zelma Anderson, John and Florence Anderson, Richard and Nancy Anderson, Zebra and Mary Elizabeth Campbell, Robert and Sarah Kidd, $40,000. Viola Bailey, $11,000.

BLASTING OF DEPUTY'S AUTO AT HI HAT BEING PROBED

Deputy Sheriff Harold Johnson Said This Week That he saw in the dynamiting of his automobile before daybreak last Sunday morning re-

Photo shows part of the damage caused by the blast. Interior of the car was also damaged, and every window in the Johnson home was shattered.

The officer quoted State Detective Chester D. Potter, who led the investigation of the dynamite, as estimating that 10 to 12 sticks of dynamite were used. The car was parked in front of the home, about 10 feet from the porch. Force of the blast injured Mrs. Johnson from her bed onto the floor.

Johnson said he and Deputy Sheriff James Hall had ended their Saturday night patrol and that he had reached home about 2:30 a.m. The explosion came around 4 a.m. "I had just got to sleep," Johnson said.

An automobile driven at high speed, was seen passing the Johnson residence, shortly before the charge exploded, but officers have not uncovered any definite clues to the identity of those responsible for the dynamiting.

Two warrants for the arrest of Ford were issued here by Magistrate E. W. Burdett, on the statement of Gilbert Adkins, of Salversville, who alleged theft of checks. A similar warrant was issued by the magistrate for the arrest of Mollett.

This Work Also Needs Doing

Prestonsburg has filed with the Housing & Home Finance Agency applications for grants and loans of funds to do two jobs which are of much importance to the community.

One of the proposed projects is the improvement of streets and sidewalks. The other is a water system improvement to afford better service, greater fire protection and a consequent reduction in fire insurance rates.

It is explained that funds procured for street improvement would include the surfacing of old and broken-down streets, the surfacing of some thoroughfares which now have only a coat of gravel, replacing old, dilapidated sidewalks with new concrete and providing storm sewers to spare existing streets the heavy load of silt and gravel which is washed down from the hillside at every rain of any consequence.

The water improvement would enlarge lines in the area north of Court street where present lines are too small to carry a volume of water sufficient to meet homeowners' needs and afford fire protection to the economical fire insurance rate. It also would include a second water reservoir in the vicinity of the Prestonsburg Community College.

Not all the money needed for such work can be expected from the federal agency as a gift. Some of it will be the responsibility of Prestonsburg and its people, as it should be. The water system improvement can be financed by an addition of 25 cents to the minimum on water bills. The street improvement financing would be by taxation, based on the value of property.

The water system improvement, it is calculated, would in fact cost nothing, inasmuch as the saving in fire insurance would offset any outlay in the increase of 25 cents on the minimum water bill charge.

The improvements made within the last three or four years or in the making, around the visitor to Prestonsburg. We who live here may be losing sight of values as many projects are completed or begun. The community college, a modern highway entering the town and munitly from two directions, a splendid new lodge and an amphitheatre at Janny Wiley State Park, a court-house under construction, and urban renewal well toward realization—all these may be commonly taken for granted, but to others they mean a miracle of community progress.

With such advances as these, already made or in the making, it becomes more obvious that the job should be finished, and that these needs should be filled now while federal help is available.

RICE AND BRANHAM RECALL OLD BANK MULE GRID TEAM

(Russell Rice, sports editor of the Lexington Leader, and Estill C. "Eck" Branham, formerly of Prestonsburg, shared reminiscences of their college days when they were members of the Van Lear high school and its "Bank Mules" crewed into the conversation at a practice session prior to the West All-Star games. Eck coached them. Russell was a student at Van Lear. The following, written by Rice, came out of their down-hill ramble. —Editor.)

Various coaching assignments and directorship of the East-West All-Star games have made Estill C. "Eck" Branham in close contact with hundreds of ball players, including some of the greatest ever produced in Kentucky.

But etched deepest in his memory is the Eastern Kentucky mines camp of Van Lear, where he met a challenge which perhaps helped turn his hair prematurely gray.

He took over the Bank Mules at an inopportune time. The country was on the verge of World War II. Only one of the camp's previously rich mines was running. Football was declining. Basketball was just bounding off the dirt court and into a small gymnasium which seemed to take the WPA forever to build.

The big football problem was lack of personnel. The new coach dug up rugged timber in boys like "Coy" Blair, who showed up eagerly on game days but liked to remain at the head of No. 5 hollow when school was in session.

There were also a couple of players who were into school daytime, worked in the mine at night and clocked out on the field in the afternoon.

Others included Bill Dutt, who once kicked a football to yards; a fullback who didn't do with a defensive on; Honel Adams, a shifty back who always knocked himself out when he tackled a ball carrier; and fullback Clyde Groves, who loved to run good helmets by meeting defensive men head-on.

Clyde was also the basketball longshot artist. Many times he would stop at the center circle and loft a rifle-trying two-handed shot. Sometimes it went in the basket.

Clyde now lives in Lexington. So do James Earl Dixon, team manager; Frankie Cunningham, safety man; and Mrs. Claude (Elk) Hall Frady, cheerleader.

Coach Branham asked about these people and many others who he met at court-side Tuesday in Memorial Coliseum and watched the Commonwealth's finest basketball players go through practice drills.

"I was particularly warmed about one member who would run out on the field and faint if he got hurt," he said. "The first time it happened, I put her off the field and told her never to do that again. Frank goodness, she didn't."

Poohball proved a nightmare of patching up enough boys to finish the schedule. The sport was dropped and the final game forfeited with Prestonsburg, a bitter pill for Branham, who had started there before enrolling at Western State College.

The basketball team was asked to fill. But the ranks were depleted when Denver Wells, one of the most natural basketball players to ever hit the mountains, decided the Army needed him more than Branham and Van Lear. Oral Franklin, a star guard, followed.

The Navy and went down with one of the first ships sunk after the war broke out. Bank Mules struggled through the season, pulling a big upset by defeating hated Paintsville 19-10, a big score for those days.

Branham asked about a certain center who played for him at Van Lear, but "just decided he didn't want to play" when the Bank Mules met Meade Memorial in the semifinals of the 39th district tournament in 1941.

"Meade beat us by the same margin they beat Inez in the finals," he said. "But Meade got best in the regional and Inez went on to win the state championship."

Which is the only Bank Mules ever got.

KENTUCKY BAPTISTS NAME FUND CAMPAIGN LEADERS

V. V. Cooke and Joseph E. Sloper have been named co-chairmen of the $9 million capital funds campaign for higher education in the Kentucky Baptist Convention, it was announced by Convention President E. K. Judy, of Henderson, and Teddy G. Gilbert, Louisville, chairman of the Convention's Christian Education Committee.

Judy, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Henderson, in making the announcement, said that the action of the Convention last November authorizing the campaign was the result of more than five years of study and planning which included the services of educational consultants. "It is the desire of Kentucky Baptists," he said, "to offer the youth of our churches and of the state the advantages of Christian higher education on superior academic levels." The studies made, he continued, revealed that new and improved physical facilities were needed in all seven schools controlled by the Convention and that the campaign will result in the erection of 23 buildings and the renovation and expansion of 13 existing structures on these and seven other Southern Baptist Seminary student centers are located. In addition, boys' and girls' camps will be built at Cadornora, Baptist Assembly near Bagdad.

Originally set at $12 million, the campaign goal was revised downward to the $9 million figure by the Convention's Executive Board in June to preserve the major educational emphasis. Baptist influence to receive allocations from the capital funds program are four seminary colleges: Georgetown, Georgetown, Cumberland, Williamsburg, Campbellsburg, Campbellsburg, and Kentucky Southern. Louisville; one junior college, Bethel, Hopkinsville; one Bible institute, Clear Creek School, Pineville; and one secondary school, Onida, Onida.

Cooke, an outstanding Louisville businessman, has been prominent in denominational and civic life for many years. His personal and philanthropic interests have ranged over a wide area with special emphasis on education. He was one of the founding trustees of Kentucky Southern College and currently serves on its board. Sloper, prominent Louisville attorney, has likewise been active in community and denominational affairs. He is the attorney for the Kentucky Baptist Executive Board and a trustee of Southern Baptist Seminary.

The campaign, which has been named Christian Education Advance, is in its initial phases of organization among the 2,200 churches within the state. It is scheduled to end March 1, 1964.

TEAMSTERS UNION SEEKS CONTRACT WITH QUARRIES; TRUCKERS HERE INVOLVED

The Teamsters Union will seek to negotiate a contract with two firms at West Liberty for quarry trucks and independent truck drivers, Jesse Webster, president of Local 770, Lexington, said Wednesday.

Webster said he would seek open negotiations in a letter to the companies—Kentucky Road and Oiling, Company and Licking County Valley Limestone Company. Both operate quarries at West Liberty.

If the firms refuse to negotiate, the Teamsters will petition for an election through the National Labor Relations Board, he said.

Webster's comments came during a meeting with 50 contract truckers and employees of the firms. He said about 70 have signed up with his union.

There are about 150 truckers and quarry workers in Morgan, Magoffin, and Breathitt counties, who would presumably be eligible to participate in an N. E. B. election.

If the Teamsters are successful in organizing them it would be the first major breakthrough for this union in this Eastern Kentucky region where there are a large number of truckers in the quarry and coal industries.

Webster emphasized the union had called no strike. He said the truckers and quarry workers had asked the union to represent them.

Labor-management unrest broke out in the area last week. It was sparked by a protest from the independent truckers who were being paid $1.90 a ton to haul rock on a 116-mile round trip from the quarries to Prestonsburg. He said the trucks all had a eight-ton load limit.

"These men can't even make enough money to pay their truck payments and eat at these warehouses," he said.

Earlier Wednesday the workers met with a representative of the State Department of Labor. He said the department cannot force the firms to pay prevailing wage rates because the truckers are independent contractors and not employees.

Oh, well! The cow does not make the friar, as they say. We liked it here, to start with, probably because the hunting and fishing was good, and we did a fair job of staying. I'm not going to take a cold trail and try to learn why it was we liked hunting dogs and the wilderness so much. Maybe it was because we found a hound better company than most of the people we had been associating with. Whatever the deep yearnings or ancient recollections that beset us, they were there. One of our "sets" refused to trade his rifle gun and bound dog. I am informed, for a long branch of many acres, fine timber and rich deposits of coal, with maybe a little gas and oil, that it isn't worth it, but I would add that a number of those women and men who went ahead were of God's nobility and left a rich heritage. Some of the others I'm willing to rest, as little disturbed as possible.

We were not the creme de la creme of Merric England. I fear-but we got away, didn't we?

Childress explained the mode of operation this way:
Field investigators personally contact taxpayers who are delinquent in the payment of their sales, income or other taxes. Their job is to collect the money for the state.

Field agents have receipt books containing an original and carbon copy. When money is collected, the original is given to the taxpayer and the copy is sent to Frankfort along with the money that is collected.

In more than 40 tax files checked so far, Childress said, Howard failed to give the taxpayers the original receipt. Instead, he wrote "paid" and signed his name to their tax returns.

The duplicate receipts, meanwhile, recorded sums lower than amounts shown on the receipted tax returns. These sums ranged from $2 to $8 per return, Childress said.
Childress said some 45 tax files of cases handled by Howard had been examined, with some 400 to 600 more yet to be checked.

TWO CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS PLANNED

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 5.—The attorney general's office Monday drew up the language of two constitutional amendments that will be on the November ballot.

This was in answer to a formal request by Secretary of State Henry Carter. He must certify the questions to go on the ballots to all County clerks by September 17 and must publish both questions at least four times in two newspapers of general circulation.

In essence, one proposed amendment lifts the restriction on certain state salaries and the other makes it easier to amend or rewrite the state Constitution. But unless the voter knows something of the background, the proposals on the ballot might not be clear.

Constitutional Amendment No. 1 will say in its entirety:

"Shall Section 246 of the Constitution of Kentucky be amended so as to provide that the General Assembly shall limit the maximum compensation of all public officers and employees."

"If you are in favor of the above amendment stamp in this square."

"If you are opposed to this amendment stamp in this square."

Section 246 limits all state elective officers except the governor to $12,000 a year; all circuit judges to $8,400 and all other public officers (mainly city and county) to $7,200.

A vote for the amendment means in effect the salary ceiling is off—the Legislature would fix all pay scales as it sees fit.

Constitutional amendment No. 2 is more complicated:

"Shall sections 256 and 258 of the Constitution of Kentucky be amended to (1) Permit not more than five amendments to be voted upon at any one time; (2) eliminate the requirement that the next General Assembly shall in like manner concur in a law passed by the General Assembly to take the sense of the people in the state as to the necessity and expediency of revising or amending the constitution; (3) require that before any constitution agreed upon by a convention shall take effect and become operative, the same shall be submitted to the qualified voters of this Commonwealth, after at least 90 days' notice, and ratified by a majority of those voting."

If approved the proposal would allow the people to vote on as many as five constitutional amendments in any election instead of the present limit of two. It also would shorten the interval of issuing a call for a constitutional convention.

Currently two legislatures must agree to call the convention, the people must approve the call, and the third Legislature then issues the call.

There is one final but important addition: Presently the constitutional convention's work would be binding without the people's approval. Under the amendment the people must ratify the convention's handwork.

PROBE THREAT IN BREATHITT

Made by Allie Watkins; Superintendent Denies Records Access, Charged

A Breathitt county lawyer said Tuesday he intends to make a thorough investigation of the financial records of the Breathitt county school system.

The probe was promised by Allie Y. Watkins, of Quicksand, after he was told by the attorney general's office that he may in any year receive a subpoena.

Watkins is a former county attorney for Breathitt. He served three terms, first taking office in 1961.

Watkins said he had twice been denied permission to inspect the records by Mrs. Marie Turner, superintendent of the county school system.

"Armed with that opinion, I intend to ask her again to see them," he added. Watkins is charged that Mrs. Turner has treated the Breathitt county schools as her own private bank.

He said that office space rented by the Board of Education in Jackson is in a building owned by Mrs. Turner. He also asserted that she or "some other member of her immediate family" is renting other property to the County school system.

His effort to see the records came shortly after taking office in 1959, he said. He added that the system was then publishing a resume of its financial activities instead of a full financial statement.

"It was like saying we got a million dollars and we spent a million dollars," he added.

But Mrs. Turner turned him down then and on another specific occasion when he asked to see the records, Watkins added.

"She's had full access over the county school system for over 30 years, dominated the board, and also been secretary-treasurer of it," Watkins said.

"She's had her own private little accounting system, and never been made accountable to the public."

At Frankfort, Assistant Attorney General Ray Coons said that citizens and taxpayers could legally inspect the records at a reasonable time and place.

He said the Court of Appeals has ruled that all financial records required by statute to be kept in books are to be considered public records, and that any interest in them is presumed.

Concrete for Kentucky Interstate highways is saving millions of dollars in future expenditures

With all its advantages of long life and low maintenance cost, concrete costs no more to build than asphalt on Interstate highways. Construction costs for the two pavements are virtually equal. And remember, on every mile of Interstate highway, the Federal Government pays 90 percent of the construction cost. The State pays 10 percent. Kentucky, in selecting modern concrete pavement, is building a network of super-highways that is equal to any in the nation. The big savings come in upkeep. Once these highways are built, Kentucky will pay 100 percent of all resurfacing costs as well as routine maintenance. Performance studies on concrete highways prove concrete will last as long as asphalt for decades.

These same studies show asphalt highways in Kentucky require not only continuing maintenance, but complete resurfacing 8 to 12 years after they are built. To resurface just one mile of Interstate highway with a two-inch layer of asphalt will cost about $24,000. That is as much as Kentucky's 10 percent share of the cost of building it in the first place.

With approximately 1,000 miles of Interstate highways and turnpikes to be completed in the next 10 years, the resurfacing dollars saved with concrete will be an important contribution to the modernization of the farm to market roads.

FIRST COST SAVINGS WITH CONCRETE ON KENTUCKY I-75
Mileage awarded	Average paving cost per mile
Asphalt 3.9 mi.	$245,500
Concrete 79.7 mi.	241,100

SAFETY IN STATE MINES PROMOTED

Preparing For Mine Foreman Exam

FREE PREPARATORY CLASSES for coal miners wanting to take the mine foreman examination given by the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals cover such subjects as ventilation, explosives, mine gasses, and first aid. Instructor here is Willard Stanley, senior State mine inspector of the Martin District. The 60-hour course prepares miners to take the test for certification as a mine foreman. Classes are held at night.

Frankfort, Ky. August 12 (Sp.)—With the taxes of "labor violence," "depressed areas" and "a dying industry" hanging like an albatross around the neck of Eastern Kentucky's coal fields, a quiet but determined battle is being fought by the state agency to bring lightning the crane hangers and laying a solid foundation for safe and economical mining in the future.

Operating on the premise that improvement must come from within, the State Department of Mines and Minerals is using its statutory, if needed powers to bring the message of safety and good mining practices right down to the men who dig the coal.

Along with its other duties, the department is charged with certifying mine foremen, firebreckers, men who check for fire and explosion hazards in mines, and various mine operators. It also makes up the tests for these positions, and by controlling the quality of the tests, exercises some control over the quality of men occupying supervisory positions.

For example, a man seeking a first class mine foreman's license must score 85 or better on each section of an eight-part, 325-question written exam covering all phases of coal mining operations. He must also pass an oral exam and demonstrate his ability to assemble and use a flame safety lamp, conduct tests for the presence of dangerous mine gasses, and use an anemometer (wind velocity measurer) and plot maps to property suitable a mine.

Men who take this exam usually have one word to describe it: "Tough." Yet three-fourths of the applicants eventually pass the test, and go on to hold responsible supervisory positions. One reason for the high rate of survival in this rigorous program is the determination of the men themselves. Another is the unique preparatory classes conducted in each district by Department of Mines and Minerals inspectors.

These classes are not mandatory; they're offered free to anyone wanting to prepare for the test, and the cost is a nominal $2 for a textbook published by the Kentucky Mining Institute. Sessions are held on the evening so they won't interfere with regular working hours of the miners. And the inspectors donate their time to instruct the 60-hour course. Inspectors who aren't teaching usually show up at the classes anyway to offer help and encouragement to the men they have enrolled in the course.

Substantive material in these classes sets pretty heads for men who average educational level is eighth grade. It delves into physics, chemistry and construction of explosives and alcohol. The eight areas covered in the mine foreman's course are mine law, ventilation, mine gasses, mine apparatus, electric explosives and first aid.

Each section of the test is considered separately, and if a man fails one or two parts of the test he can come back and be re-tested. Some subjects only some applicants have returned as many as forty Jack Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Dave and six times before finally receiving their certificates. Mr. Bob Adams, Mrs. H. H. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Porter and children of Fremont, Ohio, and Mrs. Georgia Davis and daughter, Margaret and Peggy Allen of Olive Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hunter of Bluefield, West Virginia, have returned to their home after a two-week visit with his mother, Mrs. Sarah Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Evans of Drake. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chapman had as guests, Sunday, Bill Chapman and son, Dan, from Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ekins and children, of Hatfield, Kentucky. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman had an only child, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ladd Robinson, and children, Donna Jo, and George Libby, of Newark, Ohio, and Mrs. Georgia Davis and daughter, Margaret and Peggy Allen of Olive Hill.

Telephone Talk

By GUY HISLE
Floyd Telephone Manager

IF YOU'RE A DOODLER, be careful of the kind of scribbles you leave around while making phone calls. You may give away some personal secrets. According to psychologists, if you doodle animals or birds, you're affectionate and understanding. Squares and checks show logic and emotional stability. Circles mean you're a daydreamer; stairsteps mean you're ambitious.

THIS IS THE NEW TOUCH TONE PHONE . . . with buttons instead of a dial, and musical tones for each signal sent! The new phone has undergone two years of testing, and users are so enthusiastic it will be introduced to the public on a limited basis some time in the next couple of years. One of its chief advantages is faster dialing . . . as one test-user said, "It's like magic!" The Touch Tone Phone—another result of continuing Bell System research and development.

FROM LUXURY TO NECESSITY . . . that's the kind of progress your telephone has made. Back in the late 1800's when telephones were first coming into use, a phone call anywhere at all was a big event! Today, phone calls are as much a part of life as going to work in the morning, or sending the children off to school. A telephone call is no longer a major project! It's simply an easy, pleasant, low-cost way to get things done, keep friendships warm, stay in touch with the world. Use your telephone . . . for all it's worth.

TEEN-AGERS ARE SPECIAL PEOPLE! (Any one of them will be glad to tell you so!) They have special problems and needs and likes and dislikes. If you have teens in your house, you not consider giving them the privacy and sense of importance provided by an extension phone of their very own. It'll be good for them, and for the rest of the family, too.

COMBS GIVES EDUCATION AID

Callback of Program Presented by Action; Other Allocations Made

Frankfort, Ky., August 3.—Governor Bert Combs provided $752,885 from his contingency fund Friday to avoid any cutback in the state's minimum foundation education program for this fiscal year.

An Education Department official said the allocation was necessary because the 1962 Legislature's appropriation for the 1963-1964 fiscal year was not enough.

Combs said his allocation would fully finance the program for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

The 1962 Legislature appropriated $112,327,879 to finance the minimum foundation program for this fiscal year. A total of $108,722,457 was appropriated for the last fiscal year.

Budget Director Robert Gornett said the Governor's allocation would meet shortfalls in the program for the two years.

Had the Governor not made the allocation, local school districts would have been faced with a proportionate reduction in state aid.

Two reasons were given for the need for additional funds—a Court of Appeals decision several years ago and a record number of teachers who qualified for increases in pay.

The court decision led to a reduction of local school revenue. It held that property of public service companies should not be assessed at higher rates than that of other property owners.

The minimum foundation program is based on local effort. A local school district gets state aid only when it cannot pay through local effort. The bond effort is calculated by formula.

The Governor also announced additional allocations from his contingency fund.

Kentucky Educational Television Authority, $200,000 for operating expenses in 1963-1964. This amount, plus $13,000 from the Education Department, gives the authority necessary to operate.

Commission on Human Rights, $15,400 for operating expenses, with a portion to be used for an additional field man.

Health Department, $14,000 for establishing an alcoholic clinic at Louisville. It is contingent on the City of Louisville matching that amount. Jefferson county has allocated its $14,000 share.

Commission for Handicapped Children, $5,000 for indigent patients being sent to Jewish Home for Convalescent Children in Louisville.

Athletic Control Board, $2,000 for general operations.

State Employees' Employee Surety Bond, $1,000 to cover cost of changes in insurance for bonding state employees.

MSC Classroom Named For Governor Combs; To Serve Multi-Purpose

Morehead, Ky., August 10 (Sp.)—The largest classroom on the Morehead State College campus has been named the Bert T. Combs Classroom Building.

Calling the naming of the structure for Combs "only a small token of appreciation for his efforts on behalf of education in Kentucky," the Board of Regents has continued its policy of naming structures on the campus for persons who have made significant contributions to Morehead State College.

The building which was occupied in the fall of 1961, houses the Division of Languages and Literature and the areas of business administration, speech, drama and special education. The Little Theatre is located in the building and numerous regional conferences are held in the building's conference rooms.

Two of the outstanding features of the structure are the large number of faculty offices and the multi-purpose classrooms.

What's Going On in FISH & WILDLIFE

By MINOR CLARK, Commissioner Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

It's pretty difficult to predict with a great deal of accuracy the population of a given species of wildlife at a given time. Therefore, we know when we finally forecast a great increase in the rabbit population some hunting time this fall we are leaving ourselves wide open for error.

But, nevertheless, such slow reports have been heard from the field—from the biologists through the rural mail carriers—from the district supervisors; from conservation officers and from the farmers themselves, that we are predicting a great increase in the rabbit population this year.

As of this writing all indications are for a much larger crop. This could be changed, however, by unfavorable weather conditions prior to the hunting season or by a disease of epidemic proportions. We believe that the likelihood of disease is very remote due to the healthy condition of the rabbits right now and the danger of enough bad weather to cripple the young crop of rabbits, which now is well on its way to maturity, seems slight. Therefore, our prediction.

This opinion is based on sound and simple logic. There are more young rabbits than for several years and there should be more mature fur.

And how do we know that there are more? This one instance should convince. Rural mail carriers, driving a certain number of miles over designated routes throughout Kentucky, sighted almost 24 per cent more young rabbits this past June than they saw last year, during the same days over the same routes.

This survey was conducted under the direction of game biologists who tabulated the figures submitted by the mail carriers. If further proof is needed, the nine wildlife regional offices would be glad to furnish it.

FATTEN STEERS ON GRASS Lexington, Ky.—Steers can be fattened on grass and then finished on a combination of grass and corn to a "most acceptable" market point. That was the report this week of Neil Bradley, University of Kentucky Ag Experiment Station beef researcher. Bradley ran tests three years to check the system.

Supervisors reported good to outstanding rabbit outlooks in their sections. Not one said the crop appeared to be smaller than for last season and one said indications were that the crop was the best for several years. Furthermore, conservation officers say, almost without exception, they are sighting an increased crop of young rabbits and farmers at random report the same findings. Therefore, we guess that rabbit hunters are going to have a fine season this year.

But, nevertheless, such slow reports have been heard from the field—from the biologists through the rural mail carriers—from the district supervisors; from conservation officers and from the farmers themselves, that we are predicting a great increase in the rabbit population this year.
