THURSDAY

This Town... That World

Just now, as I sat down to try my hand at this column, a headline on a newspaper which has joined other miscellany on this morning's edition caught the hunted eye. It reads: "WEEKLY EDITOR WEALTHY." Once before, I heard of one of these weekly news paper editors. His uncle had died and left him $100,000—and the poor sap hadn't had time to waste it.

WE PHILOSOPHIZE Friend of mine, back home from a distant state this week, spoke gratefully of how she and her husband were happy in their new home, though far removed from family, old friends and what had for a little time been home to them. Then we perhaps admitted our awe when we agreed that happiness is not a matter of place, or material possession, or anything in all creation outside one's-self.

A Great Spate of Words, No Cure for Our Sickness

It is a simple, elemental thing to register anger, horror, sorrow, even to join the long gamut of poignant emotions, at such a monstrous offense as was committed in Birmingham, Alabama last Sunday morning.

Let our lament, then, be for the land and the age. In other years, black men were lynched—hanged, burned, butchered, almost literally drawn and quartered—for a variety of offenses which white men committed with a monstrous degree of impunity.

The question of human rights now has become, literally, a far-flung battlefield. The right of a human being to walk among his fellow humans has become confused with a multitude of things: on the part of whites, fear—fear of the growing power of a minority, of its potential, of inter-marriage, and fear of loss of superiority; on the part of Negroes, of generations-old fears and prejudices, suspicion of the race which has been their masters, suspicion of motives as well as acts, strident demands for immediate action on their behalf without thought of the consequences for both white and black.

Hated walls up in the North as well as in the South. In many cities there is a Negro "ghetto," true; and in many cities the white who strays into Negro quarters does so at the risk of his life.

It may be considered a naive approach to the subject, but the fact remains that the solution of this and all other man-made quandaries must come from outside of man. Only the spirit of Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me"—and who looked as he spoke, it is almost certain, upon not a white-skinned child among all those around Him—will end "man's inhumanity to man."

"Christian America! A black man and a white will battle each other in a prize-ring and embrace each other's sweating, sinking body, and pound and punnett each other, until they are both dead." This is the hand-saw—and yet the two will not sit down together in friendly conversation. Cultured individuals of the white race will by the thousands pay dearly for seats at Carnegie Hall to applaud the glorious, God-given voice that is Marian Anderson, the first Negro American to sing in the Lincoln Memorial.

Who speaks for "the Brotherhood of Man," and who makes the very meaning of the words? And who mouths the hypocritical claim that "I live by the Golden Rule?" Sounding brass and tinkling cymbals—almost a mere beating of tin pans and blowing of horns, mostly our own. Last Sunday morning, just before the dynamite exploded, those colored children in Birmingham, Alabama were studying the Sunday School lesson, "The Love That Forgives." An almost forgotten lesson—one which all of us need so desperately to recall.

Camp KySoc Plays Host

State Blind School Students Explore Outdoors Kentucky

Twenty-two children from the Kentucky School for the Blind, Louisville, spent a week recently at Camp KySoc near Carrollton. The camp, operated by the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children, provided the blind and partially-sighted youngsters an unusual opportunity for first-hand nature study.

Boys on a nature hike were led by L. E. McElain, teacher at the State Institution for the blind. Children also did regular classroom work during their stay.

Young Kenneth Stinson, Valley Station, wearing life preserver, holds a bluegill. Hands substitute for eyes for the blind.

Anthropologist Leslie Stephens, Louisville, fasciastes listeners Kenneth Stinson and Betty Jo Edmonds, Russell Springs.

Activities also included regular school work. Rose Cannon Meyer, Louisville, uses a Braille writer.

Indoor nature study included Birmingham. Youngsters also gathered wood for fireplaces, served meals, and cleaned tables.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D. Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

A GREAT LEVELER

The winter of 1962-63 has demonstrated again how much some out-of-the-ordinary weather can make us all more conscious of other people, can tear down some formal walls that keep us from being as friendly outwardly as we know we actually are.

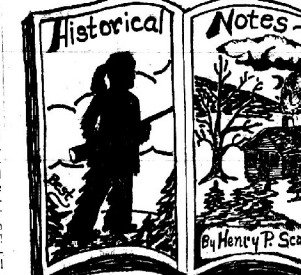

When I was a boy at Fidelity, I seem to have remembered the winters more than any other seasons. Somehow, the domesticated animals seemed so dependent on mankind, so helpless without feed and water and shelter.

Probably the most vivid memory of winter as a leveler came one day after there had been snow on the ground for days, and food for birds must have been hard to find.

At Fidelity School, if it were still in session when snow came, we probably rose to our highest levels of being good citizens. It took lots of energy to drag up wood to be cut, to chop it up for fire stoves, to keep the long stoves burning and hot. Fat, youth was still young, and snowfalls and scuffling in the snow had as great a come at Fidelity as anywhere else.

Occasionally, in such mischievous tossed a warm, which Eden never lost.

It was a little less than another five feet and he'd be over by a window to watch the snow come down. Our desks were out in the middle of the cold room, rather far from a window. We gathered enough courage to ask our lady teacher if we might sit by the window, on ordinary days a teacher would be afraid to go so far from the rather strict discipline of the school, also the teacher would not have been so kind. I fear that it was winter, snow was falling outside the shabby little schoolhouse, and poetry—call it whatever you like, it was still poetry—had prompted two little boys to want to watch snow.

WILLIAMSON The following biography of H. Williamson was copied from Kniftee. Perin and Battle's History of Kentucky, published in 1887.

William Williamson was a native of Pike County, Kentucky, was born July 21, 1822, and is a son of Ferrell and Sarah Pinn Williamson, also natives of Pike County.

William Williamson was a farmer and one of the earliest settlers and the largest real estate owner in Pike County, Kentucky. Allen Pinn, the maternal grandfather of H. Williamson, also came to Kentucky from Virginia and settled on John's Creek about the year 1802.

William Williamson was a farmer and cattle dealer, served as justice of the peace in Pike County, Kentucky, and was deputy sheriff at the time of his death, which occurred in 1882 at the age of forty-five years.

February 18, 1877, he married Miss Mattie J. daughter of Alva Massey, a native of North Carolina, who resided in Pike County, Kentucky, in 1822. Mr. Williamson was elected county clerk of Pike County by the Democrats, over John C. Grey, who was re-elected in 1890 without opposition, receiving the largest vote ever polled in Pike County. He is a member of the Grand Old Law of the World.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky By JOE JORDAN (Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week article." In conformity to Journal policy the Louisville Journal, which a few days had been as influential as any other all U. S. newspapers, the editorial one factor in keeping the Commonwealth in the Union, proposed in an editorial that President Lincoln issue "a positive and solemn assurance to the people in rebellion friend of Crittenden," was "the fact that whenever they return to their allegiance, they shall be protected in all their constitutional rights, as the highly respected elder statesman left Louisville for his home in Frankfort July 26 at the age of 75. The Journal editorial said: "Mr. Crittenden spent in this city the greater part of the fortnight preceding his death, and was a friend who visited him during his stay here and conversed with him all on public affairs can bear witness to his exceeding anxiety that the President should at once send a proclamation of amnesty or some act of like effect. Two white women were jailed at some act of like effect. "But it is not so generally known Louisville for a persuading two that, prompted by his absorbing Negro slaves, a boy and a girl, to subjugate on the subject, he had, in a letter to the President in response to address a private letter to the President, urging him in the Jeffersonian ferry, but were out delay to take this step. Yet such not permitted to go ahead. Taken in the fact, as it well known, that the number of the friends of Mr. Crittenden, including the writer of this article, the writer of this article.

PERSONALS

Sewing Pupils Appear In Fashion Review
The parlor of the First Methodist Church was the scene Tuesday night of the second annual fashion review held by the Sewing Center. Upon the completion of summer sewing classes for teen-agers, Mrs. Joe Buchanan, sewing instructor, presented 12 girls, modeling dresses they had made.
Each girl had completed an eight-lesson course of instruction in dressmaking. Ranging from 11 to 19 years of age, the girls are Brenda Horn, Marilyn Rose, Betty Allen, Rebecca Haywood, Cathy Hale, Pat and Pam Terry and Joyce Hall, of Prestonsburg; Marsha Hughes, of Pippa Passes; Sharon Prrazier, Sharon Hall and Deanna Campbell, of Allen.
The pupils were divided into two age groups to be judged for their work. Mrs. Sue May and Mrs. Helen Wells judged each dress for workmanship and fit. Two prizes were awarded to each group.
Miss Sarah Clay Stephens and Mrs. Frank Layne presided at a refreshment table for approximately 30 friends and relatives of the pupils.

THE

DRIVING SEMINAR SCHEDULED AT MAY LODGE BY SULLIVAN

DRIVER SIMULATOR — This driver simulator, which consists of all the standard automobile controls, will be demonstrated at State Department of Public Safety seminars in Kentucky in September and October. The device looks and drives like a car but stands still while the operator "moves" along a motion picture highway at speeds up to 60 m.p.h.

The driving simulator, one of the most significant developments in the detection of weak driving habits of experienced drivers in the United States, will be demonstrated by the Kentucky Department of Public Safety at a seminar to be conducted October 18 at Jenny Wiley State Park.

Don C. Sullivan, director of driver licensing, said, "There are two important reasons why driving simulators have enjoyed a growing use. First, they cut the cost of instructing people on correct driving procedures. Second, without danger to himself or others, the driver is able to face all kinds of traffic problems."

The new Aetna Drivotron, which is designed for use in motor vehicle safety training programs, is a simulator sponsored by Aetna Casualty and Surety Company and produced by Rockwell Manufacturing Company.

This new device will be demonstrated in three departments of state safety seminars throughout Kentucky in September and October. Sullivan said the apparatus consists of a small, wheelless car equipped with all the controls used in standard automobiles, such as the steering wheel, brake, accelerator, speedometer, turn indicators, ignition switch. It looks like a car, drives like a car, but stands still even when the driver is "rapping along" a motion picture highway at speeds up to 60 miles per hour.

In operation, the driver sits in the car and follows instructions from a full-color movie projected on a screen immediately in front of him. The effect is essentially the same as the driver would experience in highway traffic. He is confronted with a series of emergencies as the film progresses and his reaction to each is registered electronically on a complex recording device.

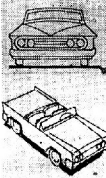

Following completion of the 10-minute driving test, a trained instructor analyzes the score sheet and discusses with the driver the strong and weak points in his driving attitudes and habits. It's this sort of "preventive maintenance" of driving skills that can help prevent highway accidents before they happen.

This machine will also be in use at the Kentucky State Medical Association meeting at the Phoenix Hotel in Lexington from September 20 to late September 26.

The Division of Driver Licensing in the Department of Public Safety requests the Rockwell Manufacturing Company to send the Drivotron for these highly important sessions. The Rockwell firm agreed and assigned two specialists to operate the unit.

(Continued from Page One) For injuries suffered on Lake Drive here last Nov. 12 David Patrick Allen, suing by his father, Jarvis Allen, seeks recovery from Lloyd Hall $15,480.38 damages. Negligence of Hall in the operation of a motor vehicle is alleged. Medical and hospital expenses were listed at $490.38, with $15,000 as permanent damage. Loss of three toes to a hawmowner is involved in the $12,500 suit filed by William Hackworth against J. A. Dickerson. Plaintiff alleges that he was supplied a lawnmower to cut the grass on Dickerson's lawn and that the housing of the mower was so broken that when he slipped and fell his toes entered the opening created by the break and thus came in contact with the mower blade. He claims $945 for loss of work, $10,000 for permanent injury, $2,500 for physical and mental pain and $145 for medical and ambulance expense.

HOMEMAKERS MEET The South Prestonburg Homemakers Club met Sept. 16 at the home of Mrs. Otis Bussay. The lesson, "Good Lighting in the Home," was given by Mrs. Theckley Short and Mrs. Homer Runyon. It was pointed out that 87 percent of one's knowledge comes from vision and that therefore, the home should be well-lighted. After members had filled out club calendars for the coming year, refreshments were served to Mesdames Lillian Poliproy, Rebecca Derocetti, Violet Ward, Grace Derocetti, Yvonne Runyon, Ora Bussay, Theckley Short and guests: Mesdames James Haselden, Clarence Haselden, Ray Davis, Ollie Watts, Garland Godsey.

(Continued from Page One) TRAVEL WITH CHARLIE John Stehbeck has written a best-seller, entitled, "Travel with Charlie." Charlie is a dog, and Stehbeck has cabled in on their experiences trotting around the country together. I have a dog, too, and I do a good bit of traveling with him but I'll never be able to cook up a book out of it. You see, our travels begin and end with my loading the dogs into a car and hauling him home from the office. But we do the job in style. I drive, and the pooch assumes a haughty position in the rear seat, and you can almost hear him bark, "Home, James!"

This one I heard this week: The Sunday School teacher asked little Johnny, "Who was the first man?" "Hoss," came the answer. "No, John, not Hoss—it was Adam." "Sure, sure—I knew it was one of the Cartwrights."

Somebody said this. I don't know who: "At an age when I was lucky to get a pair of roller skates, youngsters now want their own sports car." Roller skates, he says! When I was that age the only skating I did was on the ice, and round-head laces in the soles of our shoes were the very last.

(Continued from Page One) IN PICKING UP THE TRAIL I still insist that fishing has it all over golf. If the fishing results are poor you can blame a variety of conditions—the temperature of the water, the barometer, the phase of the moon, and several other things if you're imaginative and a real good liar. But go out there on the golf course, in the presence of all these other people, and try to find one legitimate excuse. You're a duffer, and you may as well admit it and try to get a little fun out of life. Besides, playing golf you never get away from it all or every body. Now, take fishing, it's downright difficult. I've been led to believe, to track a boat.

Chal trucks, the commission said, have not been required to have weight tags since January 1, 1962. The Legislature that year passed a retroactive exemption for coal trucks that do not operate more than 50 miles from the mine. The action was taken, Curtis said, to help the industry in Eastern Kentucky. The indictment shows it was returned on the testimony of Ratliff, Erthel, White, Shobhanian, Quentin, Bulliek, Henry Clay, Jean Hytton, Jule Valley, Va.; Shelby Little, Caney Creek; Electra Parker, Marrowbone, and Elster Childers, Marrowbone Creek. During the campaign Chandler produced affidavits from Ratliff and others making the charges that Dickerson and Robinson sought to force campaign donations. Ratliff said he gave a $500 check to the two after they threatened to stop his trucks. He said that after they left he stopped payment on the check, made out to the Breathitt campaign fund.

(No. 249 in a Series)

LOGGING IN EASTERN KENTUCKY

The greatest impetus to the logging industry in Eastern Kentucky was given by the mining operations. Railroads to Catlettsburg, Frankfort and other down-state cities from the head-streams in the mountains had scarcely tapped the vast reservoir of timber but, the mining industry when it became full-grown in the area offered an almost insatiable market.

The First National Bank presents these pictures in recognition of our historic heritage.

SPORTS CHATTER

By GORDON MOORE

The Jenkins Cavaliers have taken a half game lead in the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference high school football race. Hazard is in second place with a 2-0 mark as compared to the Cavalier 3-0 state.

Hazard, champ every year since the founding of the League in 1957, visits Jenkins October 12, and game should produce this season's winner in the league. The winner in all probability will grab this year's District Two, Region Four title.

The Cavaliers are host to Prestonsburg this Saturday night. In senior quarterback Phil Green, a 5-2, 160-pound whiz, they have one of the leading all-state choices.

The 35th annual men's Paintsville Country Club tournament will be held, September 28 through October 5. All flights will be medal play, 54 holes, including the qualifying score. To enable more players to participate, the first 18 holes (qualifying) may be played any time between September 23 and October 4. The final rounds of 18 holes each will be played on October 5 and 6.

The championship flight will consist of 16 low qualifiers and ties. The low eight and ties in the championship flight after 36 holes will make up the first flight. All other flights will consist of eight players and ties. Trophies will be awarded to the three finishers in each flight.

Carl Ray Fraley, Jenny Wiley State Park recreational director, is tabbed as one of the favorites. The redhead has won the Wheelwright, Hazard, Harlan and Jenkins tournaments this season. In the Jenkins affair he downed Willard Adkins on the 19th hole with a birdie three.

Erman Tackett, 195-pound senior tackle, was selected as the Blackcat Player-of-the-Week in the local's loss to Elkhorn City last Friday. Chairman Howard, senior halfback, and junior fullback Lennie Harris were the recipients in the Hazard and Wheelwright games. The weekly awards are presented by the Francis Stores.

This season's Big Sandy Bowl football game will be held on October 19, with host Paintsville high meeting Millersburg Military Institute. Hazard and Paintsville are the only unbeaten football teams in the Mountains, and the season is only three weeks old. Johnny Williams, former Pikeville College player, has been elevated to head coach at Warfield high school. He replaces Johnny Marcum, who resigned because of poor health.

HAZARD AND PAINTSVILLE TEAMS ADD PRESTIGE IN TWO REGIONAL GAMES

Hazard and Paintsville saw their football teams add additional prestige over the week as each gained a victory in regional play.

The Bull Dogs rolled over cross-town M. C. Napier by a 16-0 count and Walter Brush's Paintsville Tigers belted Louisa, 47-6.

Jenkins moved atop the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference standings by downing arch-rival Fleming-Neon, 27-0, Saturday night. They lead Hazard by a half-game margin.

Elkhorn City had no trouble downing Prestonsburg, 34-0, and Wheelwright was little match for the Boyd County Lions who overpowered the Trojans, 40-0.

Belfry dropped its second game of the season in bowing 14-0 to visiting Welch, West Virginia, and Whitesburg lost a 12-0 battle to Cumberland Morgan County bit the dust for the first time in absorbing a 29-6 setback at the hands of Mt. Sterling Dubois.

Butch Green, Hazard's all-time scoring champ, raced for 15, 20 and 25-yard touchdowns while teammate Richard McFee booted six of seven extra points. Other scorers for Jack Carey's unit was done by halfback Jack Robinson, an eight-yard run by McGeer, a 30-yard pass from Ken Tate to Roger Creil and a brother-to-brother contribution of Houston Hoag to Fred Hoag.

D. B. Kazee, 170-pound senior, sped for three touchdowns and tallied a point after in pacing his mates over Louisa. The Tigers of Paintsville scored three markers on punt returns with Kazee going 53 yards for one and 85 for another.

Kazee and Hazard's Grove have each scored six touchdowns in two games, and all-state quarterback hopeful, Phil Greer, of Jenkins, has tallied four.

Bobby Brooks, Derek Potter and Benny McFall spearheaded the Cougars over Prestonsburg for their second league victory. The Pike Coustians took a 13-0 halftime lead on a muddy field and added three more six-pointers in the last half. Halfback Roger Thompson scored Morgan County's lone touchdown in the second period on a 39-yard run. Gene Davis' Pikeville Panthers bottled favored Catterburg in a 14-0 setback in a sea of mud for a 1-1 record thus far.

CONSERVATION GROUP PLANS PANEL TALKS

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 9 (Sp.) — H. Glen Stephens, Frankfort, and Dr. Perle Ayers, director of the Council of Southern Mountain Workers, have been scheduled to keynote a panel discussion at the Third Annual Conservation Congress, October 17-18, at the Kentucky Hotel, Louisville.

State Conservation Commissioner J. O. Matlack, chairman of the Natural Resources Development Committee, which sponsors the Congress, said the panel will cover conservation education and the health and social aspects of conservation. Scheduled for 9 a. m. Friday, October 18, it will be one of three panels during the two-day conference.

Other members of the panel are: Ralph Pickard, Frankfort, executive director of the Water Pollution Control Commission; Mrs. Sara C. Sice, Frankfort, director of health education, Kentucky Department of Health; Richard Van Housie, Louisville, superintendent of the Jefferson county schools; Ralph Ramsey, Lexington, specialist in rural sociology, University of Kentucky; Rev.

LAND-OWNERS QUERY MADE

Use Pattern Changes On Land Near Roads Studied by Kentucky

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 9 (Sp.) — What can land owners expect when a new access highway is built across their property?

Some of the answers to this question have been turned up by the Kentucky Department of Transportation in a study of 18 miles of interstates in Clark and Montgomery counties.

After the road was built on a right-of-way 300 feet wide, the Department went back to see what had happened. Generally, this is what their inquiry showed:

There had been no substantial change in the use being made of the land along the highway.

About half the property owners sold part or all of their remaining property.

The number of farms decreasing through purchases by outside landowners.

Farms did not lose tobacco because the right-of-way.

The study was conducted by the Department in cooperation with the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. Similar studies have been made along other portions of the system of interstate and defense highways, which eventually will cover more than one million acres of American countryside.

In Kentucky, between July, 1958, and February, 1962, $45 million was spent to purchase 3,300 parcels of land along 200 miles of interstate right-of-way.

On the section of interstate highway that is the subject of the first of these studies to be made in Kentucky, the right-of-way was acquired primarily during 1958 and 1959. The 18 miles of super highway built on this right-of-way was opened to traffic in 1961. The study was limited to 54 parcels of land which were of significant size and which were on the right-of-way of the main line.

It was found that where property was sold, it usually was bought by an adjoining landholder. The price range centered around $200 an acre in these sales, which generally took place soon after the right-of-way transaction. Owners whose properties were next to landlocked parcels, held by the state have shown an interest in buying these, too. Other property has been bought at interchange in anticipation of future commercial development.

Highway Commissioner Henry Ward said he considered the study "a valuable tool for use in the vital job of securing the right-of-way needed to build the modern highway system we are developing here in Kentucky."

SBA Loan Aid Explained

New Program to Help Small Business

The story of how a typical small business owner can get help from the Small Business Administration (SBA) is explained in a new booklet, "SBA Loan Aid Explained." The booklet, which is available from the SBA's Office of Small Business Development, is a 16-page booklet that explains the SBA's loan program and how to get help from the SBA.

The booklet is available from the SBA's Office of Small Business Development, 1370 Ontario Street, Cleveland 44113, Ohio.

In addition to the photo brochure, SBA recently mailed "Prescription for Progress" folders explaining the loan development program to about 4,500 local development companies, chambers of commerce and similar organizations; to more than 15,000 mayors and county officials; and to members of SBA's advisory councils.

THEY'VE GOT THE JOBS... AND WE'VE GOT NUNN!!

Mr. Breathitt and his administration says they have nothing for any Happy supporter. They take the attitude—we beat you in May and we can do it again in November. Mr. Waterfield now admits that he was only interested in himself in the primary. (We suspected that all the time.)

I was for Happy in the primary and I am proud of it; but, being a Republican, I couldn't vote for him then. I now urge every Happy supporter to join a new team determined to bring an end to graft and corruption. They have picked up every worn-out politician that local people have discarded and put them on the State payroll at fantastic salaries. But nothing for the little man who voted for Happy. Support a team that believes in sharing. Support NUNN and LAWRENCE and we will have a spring housecleaning in the middle of January.

Notice of Public Hearing

Notice of Public Hearing on the proposed plan for the development of the South Lake Drive Area Project Number 10-10-63, R.S. 68, Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

The Prestonsburg Municipal Commission will hold a Public Hearing on the proposed Urban Redevelopment Plan for the Central Business District in the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, at 7:30 p.m., E.S.T., on Monday, September 23, 1963, at the Municipal Building in the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

The Urban Redevelopment Area designated as appropriate for the Urban Redevelopment Project is generally identified as follows:

Beginning on a line between the Baptist Church and Richmond Hotel, thence said line intersects First Avenue; thence north with First Avenue 75 feet, more or less, to a private alley, line of Richmond Hotel; thence east 294 feet, more or less, to Arnold Avenue; thence west 75 feet, more or less, to the line of Elizabeth Garrison; thence west 294 feet, more or less, with the line of the Baptist Church and Elizabeth Garrison to the point of beginning.

The purpose of such hearing is to consider a proposed urban redevelopment plan for the undertaking of the urban redevelopment project, under the Kentucky Urban Renewal and Redevelopment Law (Public Law 171, 81st Congress), as amended. Such project consists of the acquisition of land in the Project area, the demolition or removal of buildings and improvements, the installation, construction or reconstruction of streets, utilities and other site improvements, and the sale of project land for redevelopment to the City of Prestonsburg, to be used for public parking facilities.

The proposals and plans for relocation of persons and businesses to be located within the defined urban redevelopment area will be open for discussion.

Any person or organization desiring to be heard will be afforded an opportunity to be heard at this hearing.
