WE WERE WAGGING
Now to get away from the nostalgia. Back to dogs. I misquoted my young son recently when I wrote in this column that he told me a psychologist had decided a dog was only a notch above the intellect of a cat in mentality. It was a horse that the man was writing about. And this guy says that of all the horses the thoroughbred is the dumbest. Says a mule is the smartest of the equine lot, and anybody who has known the lovely packers' tricks will agree. To atone for libelling the dog, I print here a new dog story, or one which was until a few days ago new to me.

This bound, it seems, was on the decrepit side, whether from injury or age, it isn't clear. Anyhow, his neck was so stiff that he couldn't get his nose to the ground for trailing purposes. But did that stump the hunter? No street! All you had to do was set him down where a rabbit or fox had been, and off he would go. A little on the slow side, but off he would go, shaking the mast with his thumping bawling and veering never a foot from the trail.

How did he do it? Simply set his paw down, then lifted it to his nose and snuffed it.

Clarence Flanery Dies In Washington, D. C., At the Age of 73

Clarence Flanery, 73, a former resident of Prestonsburg, died December 14 in Washington, D. C., where he resided.

He was the son of the late Melvin V. and Belle Langley Flanery, Prestonsburg residents. Mr. Flanery spent his childhood here and in early manhood went to Washington, where he had a U. S. appointment under his Congressman-uncle, John W. Langley. He was a veteran of World War I. Surviving him are his wife and one brother, William Flanery, of Washington, D. C. Burial was made December 16 in Arlington cemetery.

Thirty Years Ago
(December 22, 1933)

Nine persons, eight of whom are listed as having taken part in the dope traffic locally, were arrested here Sunday and Monday by federal officers. It was the second narcotic raid to be made in this county during 1933. Garland Howard, former Prestonsburg high school student and supervisor of Magoffin county Circuit Judge-Elmer J. Brack Howard, was shot and killed Monday night, a few miles from Royalton. Representatives of the American Friends Service Commission were here this week preparing to begin the Friends' third consecutive year of work in feeding undernourished children of this county. Convicted as a result of his first trial on a charge of biting off the thumb of Officer George W. Spears, Art McDouart, of Van Lear, was acquitted on a second trial Monday, where a defense produced proof showing that the officer's thumb was cut with glass from the windshield of an automobile. Five new members appointed to the Board of Health were announced Monday: H. D. Fitzpatrick, Prestonsburg; J. D. Hatfield, Melvin; M. J. Meador, Prestonsburg; Claude Flanery, Martin; and W. T. "Bip" Hatcher, of Laakey, Claude Woods, of Allen. Is the only member retained from the old committee. Charlie Yates, of Hunter, is in the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, in serious condition as a result of a knife wound. There died: Mrs. P. L. Hunt, 36, of Harlot, December 15, in the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin; James Newell, 31 years old, at his home at Wheelwright, Friday.

Twenty Years Ago

Of approximately 165 Eastern Kentuckians supplied through Selective Service and accepted for service in the armed forces within the last week, 61 were Floyd countyans. The supply of "cavin squeeze-ins" for the holiday season in this county was appreciably diminished last week as federal alcohol tax unit agents raided moonshiners in the Middle Creek and Salt Lick sections. Cecil Mueck, 33-year-old miner of Wheelwright, was fatally injured by a slate-fall in the mines of the Inland Steel Company at Wheelwright, Saturday. Interest in polio-vaccination in this county was given added impetus last week with the visit of a paper company representative here to advise farmers on this vital war work. Pvt. Bill Smith, Jr., of Prestonsburg, a prisoner of the Italians for six months, arrived here this week after having gained his release from prison camp as a result of the Italian surrender to American-British forces. Fire caused an estimated damage of $3,000 Saturday morning to the W. H. Jones residential property on First avenue, occupied by Mike Pasros and family. Miss Helen Reed, of Drift, is among those college students who will be listed in the 1944 issue of "Who's Who among Students in American Universities and Colleges." Married: Miss Pauline Arriaza, of New Braunfels, Texas, and S. Sgt. Frank Bailey, of Hippo, December 9, at Kenton, Ohio. Born: To Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Jefferson, of East, a son. Three died: Belle Williams, 50-year-old Wayland colored woman who was born in slavery, died Saturday at her home on Steele's Creek; Mrs. Lou Martin, 101 years old, believed to be the county's oldest resident, Wednesday at her home at East; Mrs. Elizabeth Deressett Merritt, 75, at the home of her son in West Prestonsburg, Saturday; Parker Woods, 81, at his home in Prestonsburg, Friday; Ernest Niche, 73, native of Germany, Friday, at Drift.

Ten Years Ago

An estimated 4,300 persons attended the formal opening here Saturday of The First National Bank in its new building at the corner of Court street and Broadway near Lake Drive. If the current court docket is a true barometer, crime is at an all-time low in the county. Not a murder case is set for trial, and only eight defendants in all are charged with violence of any kind. There is 18 deaths in the county this year is a record low from that cause, the Floyd County Health Department reports. Coal production in the field represented by the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Operators Association was down during the period of December 3-December 12, with a production drop in that time of 15,000 tons. Fifteen-year-old Jimmy Hopson, of Hueysville, and William N. Mammal, 29, of Laakey, were injured in a auto wreck at the mouth of Henry's Branch near Maytown. Married: Miss Katherine Akers, of Lancer, and Mr. Edsel Moore, of Cliff, December 21, at the Methodist Church, Prestonsburg; Miss Lita Mae Durban, of David, and Mr. Thomas J. Durban, of Dallas, Georgia, December 5, at Washington, D. C.; Born: To Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Reed, of Drift, a daughter, at St. Mary's hospital, Huntington, December 18. There died: Joe Lindsay Lavin, 64, of Stillhouse Branch, near Harlot, last Thursday; Deborah Lynn Waddles, four days old of Topmast, at the Samba Memorial hospital, Laakey, Sunday; John Ray Campbell, eight months old, at home at Weeksburg, last Sunday; Mrs. Mary Patton, 88, former Auxier resident, December 15, at a Detroit Michigan hospital.

session was accompanied by Congressman Perkins. Senator John Sherman Cooper assured the group of his support and himself called on Lee White, one of Prestonsburg's White House assistants to solicit his help. When the delegation, accompanied by Senator Cooper's administrative assistant, visited an ABA representative they were told that street improvements are considered a "dead project." Water and sewer work apparently have priority.

"What Do You Want for Christmas?"

(A guest-editorial)
 One of the Christmas cards that I received this season begins with that question. Following it is a quotation from Norman Vincent Pease calling attention to the fact that when we hear that question we recall to our minds the many items on our lists that we have hinted to our families about.

But do the tangible things that come to our minds really answer the question for us? In fact, do the readily recalled intangibles that are always held before us by the preachers and lately by the politicians who would remind us of all things from birth to death or even after death, answer? The freedom from want, fear, hatred, war, and the desires for happiness, health, security, and plenty—these are the things that man has sought, and in the long run we realize that these are gifts from God rather than from the state or fellowman.

However, these are not the real wants of mankind at Christmas or at some other time. Our real need is to have within us the greater gifts of God—responsibility not only for family and friends but for our fellowmen, the responsibility that will cause us to see the needs and rights of all men, which cannot be satisfied by slogans or baskets of food. Another of these gifts of God is the dignity of man, and of all men, not just those whom we are touched by, but all, both rich and poor, sick or physically healthy, but all, "without regard to race, religion, culture or possessions," even Tiny Tim, rich of soul but poor of worldly goods, and Old Scrooge, rich in worldly goods and poverty-stricken in heart and spirit.

John Alex Weddington, nine-year-old third grade student and son of Mrs. Callow Weddington of Prestonsburg, knows a bit of history and recognizes an item of historical value when he sees it. Recently he found an item he bought cheap for a quarter and turned down early offers for high sums.

He was browsing in a Prestonsburg antique store and discovered two old albums for sale. One of the best pictures in the smaller book was that of Abraham Lincoln, made in 1865, evidently just before his assassination. Pictures of General Grant and other Union officers filled the book as well as scores of distinguished looking men and women of the period immediately following the Civil War. Most of the pictures were made by Cinemat and other Ohio city photographers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

IN RE FLOYD COUNTY TIMES EDITOR, The Times

I have just received your paper, or maybe I should say our paper, The Floyd County Times. I have been reading it for some time. Although it goes to me about one month late, it keeps me well informed about news. I would not otherwise know much, especially the one on September 1, stating your paper's support of Edward E. Breathitt and endorsing him for Governor. I want to thank you for your endorsement. I don't see how you or the people of Floyd county could have made any other decision. Looking back over the years, one can see when the most was done for not only Floyd county or Eastern Kentucky but Kentucky as a whole.

I know now that Mr. Breathitt is our best Governor and I believe that Eastern Kentucky and the whole state will continue to prosper as it has in the Combs administration. I know that I'm with the majority of Floyd county, Eastern Kentuckians, and more starting things that have been done. I know that a very few people, if any, ever thought that this could ever be possible to the people of Eastern Kentucky, a super-highway connecting Eastern Kentucky with other portions of the state, that we could ever have a highway system equal to that of any other state here in Eastern Kentucky, or, above all a college, in our own county.

I have also been keeping up with the situation in Floyd county. I'm glad to hear that the law enforcement officers of the county and of the state have at last started to enforce the law and clean up this awful situation that has existed in our county and Eastern Kentucky for a long time, but at the same time not just focus all of the attention on our county or Eastern Kentucky, but the state as a whole.

I am also glad that you have these little notes in your paper about the boys in the armed services. I think it is a wonderful thing that you devote some of your space for us. It's a wonderful feeling when one is away from home, especially in a foreign country, and you read in the paper about some one who is stationed near you that you want to school with or a friend from your home town that you can go and see and talk about old times. This wouldn't be possible if you hadn't devoted this space in your paper to us.

Present Wage Statute Seems Workable, Said; Changes Recommended

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 18—Kentucky's prevailing wage statute seems to be in workable shape at least, an advisory committee reported today.

The committee, headed by Rep. Paul Young, (D-Loacan), recommended nine technical changes to fill in areas missed in previous revisions.

Prevailing wages are set by the state for workers on public projects. They are supposed to be similar to the pay scales of others doing the same type of work in the immediate area.

Kentucky passed the first prevailing wage legislation in 1914. The law—or its application—was almost constantly engulfed in controversy until an overhaul by the 1962 legislature.

Since then, and with the help of Dr. Carl Cobe of the University of Kentucky, who became labor commissioner, there has been little open criticism or litigation.

Of almost 20 wage decisions in the past two years, only a dozen have been carried to review board in a Taylor county case last week. Not one has been appealed from a board to a circuit court.

How Kentucky's revised system operates: When a public construction project is announced and there are no wage schedules, the State Labor Department holds a hearing in the affected county.

Interested parties—labor, contractors, county officials—submit information on past and comparable wages. The transcript goes to Cobe who sets the wage scales.

If one side objects to the figures, a review board gets the appeal. The board consists of one labor and one management representative chosen by the government, plus one person appointed by the county.

If someone disagrees with the review board, the case can be taken to circuit court, as was done in Taylor county.

The present Kentucky law appears to include most of the important substantive provisions found in the federal act and many of the most satisfactory state acts," the advisory committee said.

Among its suggestions for procedural improvements: 1. Counties should be required to tell the Labor Department about each public construction project coming up and contractors should be forced to submit pay roll data. Neither is required at present.

2. A 15-day limit should be placed on appeals from the labor commissioner's wage ruling. There is no time limit now.

3. There should be specific regulations to determine who is a supplier and who a sub-contractor. Suppliers are exempt from prevailing wage laws; sub-contractors are not.

4. There should be an arrangement that sets up a local prevailing wage for a longer period instead of taking up the commissioner's time with public hearings every 90 days in some instances.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky
By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, although the Emancipation Proclamation had been in effect since January 1, the selling and buying of slaves was going on in Kentucky, as though the institution would last forever. The proclamation had not applied to Kentucky, but only to the states that had seceded. Still, one might have expected people to realize that the proclamation foretold nation-wide emancipation and therefore to avoid investing in property with so uncertain a future.

Kentucky newspapers published a century ago offer ample evidence that there was still a market for slaves. In a single issue of the Lexington Observer and Reporter, four separate auctions were advertised at which supposedly six, eight, four and twelve slaves were to be sold. In addition, Speed S. Goddole, master commissioner of the Fayette Circuit Court, advertised that under a court judgment he would offer "a Negro girl and a lot of property."

At a court martial in Louisville, five Union Army soldiers were convicted of desertion and sentenced to die before firing squads on January 8. Two of them were from New Hampshire, two had been members of the Twentieth Kentucky Cavalry and one of the Eleventh Kentucky Cavalry.

A letter from Col. Charles S. Hanson appeared in the Observer and Reporter, thanking Lexingtonians who had given him a sword, sash and belt in appreciation of the gallant defense of Lebanon, Kentucky, which the Twentieth Kentucky (Union) Infantry regiment under his command had made the previous July 5 before surrendering to a greatly superior Confederate force under Brig. Gen. John Hunt Morgan.

Hanson was one of five sons of Samuel and Matilda Hickman of Lebanon, who died in the service, had joined the Union Army, and the three others, including Brig. Gen. Roger W. Hanson, who was killed at Stone River, had rofe with the Confederacy.

The war was having a disastrous effect on most of the famous stock farms in the Bluegrass Region. Proclamation to a story which appeared in the Cincinnati Enquirer. The cavalry of both armies seemed to be perpetually in need of horses; the preference was for well-bred animals, which had more speed and more stamina than cold-blooded horses. Both sides had drawn heavily on Central Kentucky, both for horses and for the fat cattle which had grazed in the Bluegrass pastures in great numbers before the war.

The Enquirer story said the farms had "been ridden down in the way of stock," with one notable exception, "that of B. A. Alexander, Esq., which is near Spring Station, fifteen miles from Lexington. The farm consists of 3,200 acres of land in the highest state of cultivation, not forgetting the horses and cattle stock . . . among his horse stock, numbering 350 head, is the famous horse Lexington."

In 1813 when Thomas Lincoln was living on his Knob Creek farm, a man destined to precede his son, Abraham, in the Presidency stayed awhile at nearby Elizabethtown. This was James Buchanan, Jr., who came to help his father in a lawsuit. The younger Buchanan became the president of the United States.

During the Civil War, Augustus, Kentucky, was the scene of a battle between John Hunt Morgan's cavalry, then led by General Basil Duke, and the Federal Home Guards under Colonel Joshua T. Bradford. The victory was Duke's, but he suffered a heavy loss in officers and men.

One of the important defenses against widespread destruction from nuclear weapons is a well-informed population, armed with as much knowledge as possible about protection and survival.

In their endorsement statement, members of the Ad Hoc Medical Advisory Committee to the Kentucky project pointed out that, in spite of the fact there has long been effective vaccination against diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, and polio, not all susceptible children and young adults have had the advantage of opportunities for protection against death and serious effects resulting from these diseases. They agreed to urge all Kentucky citizens to participate in, support, and encourage this joint project for raising vaccination levels in these poorly protected and susceptible age groups.

Kentucky has received a federal grant of $175,000 to assist in this program for the first year. It is anticipated that additional grants will be given for the other two years of intensive work which is scheduled. This money will be used to purchase vaccine for children under five years of age who are particularly vulnerable to these diseases, to provide personnel for planning, education and promotional activities, and to help with epidemiological and laboratory evaluation of immunization protection.

Addressing the meeting were Dr. Charles Randolph Hazzard, Dr. W. Herschel Cave, Henderson, representative of the College of Surgeons; Dr. Joseph H. Miller, Benton, Dr. Sanford L. Weiler, Frankfort, and Dr. E. C. Seelye, London, representing the Kentucky Academy of General Practice; Dr. W. W. McLeod, Somerset, and Dr. Maxwell Blair, Frankfort, representing the Kentucky Academy of Pediatrics; Dr. Delmas Clark, Hopkinsville; Dr. Robert Warfield, Lexington, and Dr. James S. Williams, Nicholasville, representing the Kentucky State Medical Association; Dr. Russell E. Teague, Commissioner of Health, and staff members of the State Department of Health.

Also on the committee but unable to attend were Dr. William Boyd, Louisville, representing the College of Surgeons; and Dr. Noble T. Mearns, Lexington, representing the Kentucky Academy of Pediatrics.

RESEARCH UNIT GRANT SLATED FOR PIKE-CO.

Frankfort, December 12 (Sp.)—A $108,000 grant for a full-time social worker-nursing psychiatric team in Pikeville may establish the first such research unit in the nation.

Dr. Harold L. McPheeters, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Mental Health, announced the grant from the National Institute of Mental Health. The stipend was approved for Eastern State Hospital, Lexington, which operates the field clinic at Pikeville.

The grant includes approximately $27,000 a year for four years. This is believed to be the first such arrangement in the nation for a social worker and a nurse to serve in an extension of a state hospital to follow released patients, says Dr. Logan Gragg, Eastern State Hospital superintendent.

The team will be most interested in former patients who need help in handling and taking medication prescribed by the hospital and assistance in family and economic problems. Former patients will be visited in their homes, and others will be seen at the office individually or in groups.

"We think," Dr. Gragg added, "that such a project will reduce admissions and readmissions to the hospital, prevent patients from breaking their clinic appointments and enable the community to develop more mental health resources."

Dr. Edward Rustin, Pike county health officer, has arranged for the team to be housed in Pikeville Public Health Building.

Mrs. Hazel G. Price, director of social services at Eastern, and co-director of the project, will recruit the staff.

The master's degree in social work and experience in mental health and community organization work will be required of the social worker. A college degree and experience in public health and psychiatric nursing will be expected of the nurse.

Their salaries will be above the national average to attract highly-qualified persons interested in research and in working in the Appalachian region.

Three Types of Sires For Lambs Studied

Lexington, Ky.—Relative performance of lambs sired by three types of rams was reported this week by the UK Ag Experiment Station's animal science department. P. O. Woolfolk, sheep researcher, said the test was conducted at the Coldstream farm here. Three types of sires were used, Southdown, Hampshire and crossbreeds (Southdown-Hampshire).

OAK WILT DISEASE DROPS IN STATE FORESTS, SAID

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 20 (Sp.)—The number of Kentucky oak trees infected with oak wilt disease has dropped by more than half in the past year, State Conservation Commissioner J. D. Matlick has announced.

A report prepared by his department's Forestry Division showed only 275 new wilting trees found in the state during 1963, as compared with 566 in 1962. All were cut down and chemically treated to kill disease-carrying agents.

The number has been declining with regularity since 1960 when a peak total of close to 800 were found, Matlick said.

Oak wilt attacks and kills all types of oaks, Kentucky's largest-volume commercial timber. There is no cure for it, other than cutting down the infected tree and treating the stump and the fallen tree so the disease will not spread further.

Oak wilt first appeared in Kentucky in 1931, when State Foresters found one infected tree. The easily-communicable disease increased with regularity until 1960, in spite of stepped-up efforts to control it.

An intensive oak wilt program began in 1957, aimed at eliminating the disease and bringing to light more knowledge of its spread.

The definite decline shown in the last three years is credited to newer methods of treating the stumps and trees and to airplane surveys of forests throughout the state. Wilting trees are easily spotted from the air, Matlick said, often resembling trees struck by lightning.

"The quicker we find these trees, the quicker we find those (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Greeting Card Increase
Poses Stupendous Job
For U. S. Post Offices

Post offices will handle more cards this year than ever before, is the prediction based on research by the National Greeting Card Association. This account of the background and development of the cards is given:

Today the greeting card industry estimates six billion greeting cards for all occasions are mailed annually in the United States. Statistically, this is estimated at about 116 Christmas cards per family on the average each year.

People often think of the custom of sending cards as modern, but the origins of the greeting card can be traced back thousands of years.

The earliest known holiday greeting was printed from a crude woodcut about 1450 in Germany. It showed the Christ Child standing in the bow of an ancient galley manned by angels, with the Holy Mother seated by the mast.

The first-known printed Christmas card made its appearance in London in 1843. It was designed by John Calverley, British painter and illustrator.

1246, 1,000 copies were lithographed, hand-colored and sold by an art shop.

The date of the first American Christmas card is not known, but an American authority on greeting cards, Ernest Dudley Chase, of Boston, found what he believed to be the first.

Authorities say there can be no question but that his discovery, a card which extends "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year" from "Pease's Great Charity Store" is a very early card. Chase believes it to be the earliest known American card.

Noting that she occasionally hears grumbles that Christmas cards are just a "troublesome, new-fangled custom," Bess S. May, postmaster here, said, "We can see that sending cards is a very old and honored tradition. Actually, I believe most of the complaining comes largely from those who wait until the last minute to get the cards and then try to remember names and addresses of those to whom they should send them. Sending cards can be a pleasure after a little preparation—having a good mailing list and mailing promptly with Zip Code on every card."

BE PREPARED
 Being prepared against unknown hazards of management breakdown is an important part of all phases of modern livestock production. One important facet of large-scale swine and beef cattle enterprises is a sound plan for auxiliary power, feeds and water in all emergencies.

A haystack in an open field can be protected against radioactive fallout with a canvas or plastic cover. The fallout will settle on the cover and can be removed with it. The protected hay can be used immediately.

Clean Up Orchard

Lexington, Ky.—When the rush of fall work is over, says James Stacey, UK Az Extension service horticulturist, is a good time to clean up the orchard. "Orchards are planted to stay in one location for many years. Since the orchard is a crop that can't be shifted or rotated, it is proper to get a buildup of insects and diseases than with a short term crop. Clean out the debris from under each tree as part of a good sanitation program," he says.

Mrs. Katherine Bentley, Succumb in Michigan

Mrs. Katherine May Bentley, 73, formerly of Allen, but a resident of Chelsea, Michigan, for 11 years, died Wednesday of last week at St. Joseph's hospital, Ann Arbor, Michigan. She was ill one week.

Mrs. Bentley was the widow of Bill Bentley and a daughter of A. L. Woods and Nannie Woods. Surviving sons and daughters are Curtis Bentley, of Allen, and Charles Bentley, of Chelsea, Michigan. Miles Bentley, Trent Bentley, of Vero Beach, Florida, and Mrs. Billy May Stephens, all of Chelsea, Michigan. Mrs. Bentley was buried at St. Joseph's church, Chelsea, Michigan, on Sunday at 2 p.m. by the Rev. James Stratton officiating. Burial was made in the Mayo cemetery at Allen under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Different Handling Of Farm Income Tax Advised by Economist

Lexington, Ky.—Kentucky farmers have to handle their income tax filing and tax-paying a little differently than the average city dweller, says S. Q. Allen, U. K. An Extension Service economist.

For instance: If a bona fide farmer's business year begins January 1, 1964, that farmer must file his return and pay any taxes due by February 17, 1964.

If the farmer prefers not to file his return and pay tax by that February 17 deadline, then he must estimate his income tax and pay that amount by January 15, 1964. He then would have until April 15, 1964, to file a return and pay any balance due.

Allen pointed out that nearly all farmers must pay some income tax. The law requires persons having a gross income of $500 or more in a tax year, to file and pay. Others may have to file a return to pay Social Security taxes even though they did not have to pay any income tax.

"Records, of course, help the farmer at income tax time. The new Kentucky Farm Record Book is available at the county agent's office. It is especially designed to help farmers keep income tax data.

WHEELWRIGHT

CHRISTMAS STORY TOLD

The Wheelwright Woman's Club held its December meeting in the Community Hall. The program was sponsored by the Fine Arts department. Mrs. G. F. Leatherman, chairman.

"The Christmas Story in Song and Legend" was presented by the children's and Junior choir of the Community Church, under the direction of Mrs. Alice Jean Gibson. The program told the origin of Christmas customs, sacred and secular. The narrators were Debbie and Donna Osborne, Cynthia and Valerie Gibson, Debbie and Donna Grimm, Kerry Pace, Jane Curry, David Locklin, Martha Greer, Sharon Sammons, Linda Thornberry and Susan Roberts.

Soloists and their songs were Greg Rossel, James Horton and James Harris. "We, Three Kings"; Valerie Gibson, "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day"; Lyle Grimes, "Prosby the Snowman"; Beata Riley, "Away in a Manger"; David Locklin, "Santa Claus is Coming to Town"; Tim Holbrook, "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

Other members of the club included: Mrs. B. L. Thores and Mary Beth Allen, James Bradley, Debbie Ferguson, Kim Pace, Karen Locklin, Cindy Harris and Denise Osborne.

The Beaver Valley Kiwanis Club and parents and friends of the club also attended. Refreshments were served to the children by Mrs. G. F. Leatherman and Mrs. G. W. Locklin. Later, members of the Woman's Club held a business meeting in their clubroom. The club voted to contribute to the community Christmas basket fund. The candies and stationery fund-raising projects of the club were distributed.

REJOICE WITH US at CHRISTMAS

Jesus looks with joy on Mary's face...
May His gaze reward you, too, with grace.
May she share with you the Holy Child...
May your life be one on which He's smiled.
May joys Mary knew at Jesus' Birth
Give peace to you and everyone on earth!
