Judge Rules TV Controls Legal

Judge Anderson Says Resolution Constitutional

The resolution of the Floyd fiscal court which divided Floyd county into areas for the granting of franchises to operators of community television systems was upheld Monday by Judge Reed Anderson, of the Pike circuit court, who had presided as special judge in the hearing of a suit attacking constitutionality of the court resolution.

The case at issue was that in which Everett Akers, et al were listed as plaintiffs, and during the time a decision had been pending—since May of last year—a temporary injunction had stayed further action by the fiscal court.

Judge Anderson's opinion held, in part: "The resolution as adopted by the Floyd fiscal court, . . . not being unconstitutional and not depriving plaintiffs of any vested rights, is hereby declared to be legal and a proper act of the fiscal court."

The temporary injunction was dissolved.

The fiscal court resolution, adopted Feb. 6, last year, set off a special legal fight. The court proposed to divide the county into areas for cable television franchise purposes and for the stated intention of preventing a monopoly. It specified that in accepting bids for franchises it would award franchises to the highest and best bidder, "taking into consideration the ability financially and educationally to operate such system."

City Treasurer, Tax Collector Resigns Friday

The City Council at its special meeting Tuesday morning named Mrs. Anna Jean Tackett to succeed Mrs. McCauley. Mrs. Tackett is the wife of Joe P. Tackett, Jr. and has for several years been employed in the offices here of the Floyd County Board of Education.

Mrs. Jeannette McCauley resigned the post of city treasurer and occupational tax collector, effective last Friday, and Mayor William O. Goebel announced Monday that a special meeting of the City Council was being called for 9 a.m. the following day to accept the resignation and name a successor.

Mrs. McCauley declined to discuss her resignation. (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

Flu Hits Floyd Co. Hardest Among Eastern Counties, Report

Although Eastern Kentucky counties have suffered relatively little from the flu epidemic according to reports received by the Department for Human Resources, Floyd was the heaviest hit of those reported.

A survey of hospitals and doctors, made by Mrs. Pauline Sparks of the Floyd County Health Department, showed that in the period Jan. 10-20 there were "roughly estimated" to have been 1,374 flu cases in this county. The Martin area reported the largest number of cases with 810. Prestonburg physicians and the hospital here reported 314, and McDowell had 150.

"These estimates were based on patients reporting for treatment, and it is believed the estimate is low rather than high. There has been, however, no closing of schools or other public gatherings."

Reports from other Eastern Kentucky counties for the same period were: Harlan, 69; Lee, 204; Menifee, 1; Rockcastle, 60; Wolfe, 43; Rowan, 105.

Kentucky has 18,786 reported cases as of Tuesday, Jan. 21, according to reports received by local health departments. Records are based on reports from physicians; therefore, a case must have been severe enough to warrant contacting a physician and the physician must file a report before it is included.

Christian and Clinton counties are the two hardest hit in the state, according to these reports. Health Services Bureau

Board of Education OK's Can Contest Sponsored by Club

The Conservation Department of the Prestonburg Junior Woman's Club is sponsoring an aluminum can drive contest for all Floyd County graded schools. This contest provides a cash prize of $75 to the school turning in the highest poundage of aluminum cans and has been endorsed by the Floyd County Board of Education.

Rules of the contest are:
(1) Aluminum cans only will be accepted and must be enclosed in plastic bags.
(2) The cans must be brought by a school official or other person to the place of weighing, Mountain Metal Co., West Prestonburg, on Saturday, before 12 noon.
(3) The days of weighing will be Jan. 25, Feb. 1, Feb. 8 and Feb. 15.

The total poundage will be announced Feb. 15, and the prize will be awarded shortly thereafter.

Those who wish to help their schools in this contest may take their collection of aluminum cans to their school principal for transporting to the weighing station.

This Time the Transporting Was Legal

Several county officials were on hand at the courthouse last Tuesday to watch as Alcoholic Beverage Control Board workers loaded a large truck with beer and liquor which had been confiscated over the past year in numerous liquor raids in the county and had been stored in the offices of the county judge and sheriff. Workers loaded a total of 13,440 cans of beer and 1,526 pints and half-pints of whiskey, vodka and wine. The intoxicants were transported to Frankfort where they will be redistributed to sales outlets. In photo, from left, are: County Judge Henry Stumbo, Deputy Sheriff Green Stone, Assistant County Attorney Don Goble, Beverage Control Board escort (standing in truck bed), County Detective Sam Hale, Commonwealth's Attorney Harold Stumbo, Beverage Control Board truck driver, and Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis.

Murder Hearing Near End; Venue Change Refused

The murder trial of Greenbury Tackett on a charge of slaying Charles Hall was in its second day here Tuesday. The case was expected to reach the jury sometime during the day.

The Tackett case is the only murder trial docketed for the present term. New murder indictments will be docketed for the April term of circuit court, which may be one of the busiest of the year.

One of the cases to be set for April trial is that of Eddie Jones and his father, Agard Jones, who were jointly indicted last September for willful murder; aiding, abetting, etc.

The charge grew out of the slayings of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley at Garrett and James Clayton Conley, near . . . (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

This Town . . . That World

I have the solemn word of a member of the family that a frog was heard the other night, out back at our house where a little stream carries off the water from the hillside. Two croaks. Period. Don't know if the sound froze in his throat or if he had only two protesting grunts to make and, having made them, adjourned without a motion.

THE ITINERANT CAT

That must have been the same night our missing cat showed up for a handout. Since the day I threatened to have this, the sole surviving member of our menagerie, come on in and share common grub with the rest of us, the cat has been making brief appearances only every three or four weeks or so. I feed him, if he isn't too snooty to partake of common fare, and then he high-tails it for an abandoned coal-bank on the hillside. If this cat isn't hibernating between calls, how can he manage to look so well-fed is something of a mystery. If I thought this critter was responsible for the scarcity of rebirds about the place this winter, so help me, I'd grab the old fowling piece and be ready for him, next time he makes his rounds.

QUESTION

At the risk of being called a traitor to the profession, I am about ready to concede that the newspapers, magazines, television, radio and an assortment of individual nincompoops . . . (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Broad Form Deed Act Loses Court Decision

The 1974 law setting aside the ancient Broad Form deed provisions for strip-mining without the consent of the surface owner ran into its first roadblock last week when Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs, Jr. voided the legislation unconstitutional.

The opinion will be appealed by Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock and Dean Rivkin, attorney for the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, and may eventually go to the Supreme Court.

At issue is the controversial "broad-form" deed by which mineral rights were acquired separately from the land surface in many Eastern Kentucky areas in the late 1800s and early 1900s—deeds which give mineral owners almost unlimited rights to use the surface in mining operations.

Even though today's widespread surface mining was not contemplated at the time, Kentucky's Court of Appeals through the years has upheld the mineral owners' right under the deeds to damage the surface during strip-mining without paying further compensation.

Over stiff opposition, the 1974 General Assembly passed a law, commonly referred to as House Bill 9, to require written consent of surface owners before a state strip-mining permit could be issued. The bill took effect Jan. 1.

In ruling against the new law in a case from Knott county, Meigs relied on previous Court of Appeals decisions.

The high court "has consistently upheld the superiority of the rights of mineral owners to the surface under 'broad-form' deeds over any competing rights of owners of the surface . . . Meigs held.

The deed in question, signed in 1906, gives the mineral owner the right to use the land surface "in any and every manner that may be necessary or convenient for mining said coal."

HB9, by attempting to add the requirement of the surface owner's consent to strip-mining, violates contract rights slated in the Kentucky and U. S. Constitutions, Meigs said.

"No . . . law impairing the obligation of contracts shall be enacted," Section 19 of the Kentucky Constitution states.

The contract-impairment argument was a key issue during legislative debate on the bill, which was sponsored by Rep. Raymond Overstreet, R-Liberty, and others.

Meigs' ruling was in the form of a memo opinion. A judgment is to be prepared and entered within about 10 days, the judge said in an interview.

Until the judgment is entered, House Bill 9 remains in effect, Meigs said. The question of whether the law will be in force during the appeal period likely will be brought up at the time the judgment is entered, he said.

The case decided by Meigs arose last August when No. 8 Limited of Virginia, a Clintwood, Va., corporation, applied for a state permit to strip and auger mine 13 acres of the area covered by the 1906 deed. (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Floyd Strip Miner Among 5 Restrained

A Floyd county strip mine operation was one of five named in connection with temporary restraining orders issued last week by Franklin Circuit Court Judge Squire Williams.

Defendant in the Floyd case was listed as Elwood Parker, of Pikeville. Parker, who was charged with strip mining without a permit, was cited for illegally removing 1,800 tons of coal from a one-acre site on Toler Creek. Filed by the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, the suits seek $1,000 for the alleged violations and also $1,000 per day for each day of violation.

The four other defendants were listed as Berry Mitchell, Middleboro; Jeffrey Coal Sales, Lexington; L and L Coal Co. and Linville Lee, both of Crony; Ed Grubb, Sexton Creek, and Emery Hibbit, of London.

Time Schools Lost in Snow To Be Made Good Next June

Recent snows closed Floyd county schools seven days in a row, and before that the schools had lost four other days because of weather conditions.

If there had been no interruptions, the school term would have ended May 21, the office of Supt. Charles Clark said. With the 11 days missed—and if there is no further loss of time—the term will end June 6.

The snow that blanketed Eastern Kentucky forced widespread school closings, although no financial loss to the systems was incurred since the students will make up those days spent outside the schoolroom.

In fact, Fred Johnson of the state Education Department's Finance Division noted that some districts might come out slightly ahead financially. He explained that pupils are more likely to attend school in the warmer months and that the institutions also could save on heating bills by turning thermostats down lower than they normally would if classes were in session. And, many local boards are now paying roughly 300 per cent more for coal, as well as a 100 per cent increase for electricity.

Supt. Eugene Sebastian, of Breathitt county, noted that his schools had been closed an entire week, adding that the snowfall was the heaviest experienced by his area in several years.

"January and February are bad months in which to have school, since the weather is unpredictable and so many children have to be bussed across rough terrain," he said.

Supt. Earl Clemons, of Jackson county, said his system also was closed the entire week, but added that widespread reports of flu might have forced the shutdown in spite of the weather. Nevertheless, Clemons said the make-up days will extend the school session "far into June," and this would be a burden for those teachers who take collegiate summer courses.

Perhaps Laurel county is experiencing some of those earlier dire fall predictions of bad winter months. Richard Morgan, director of pupil personnel there, said closings thus far have advanced the last scheduled school day from May 16 to May 30 and that only about four or five days had been missed at this time last year.

With at least two more months of winter weather remaining, that figure could very well continue to climb.

Winter, Old Man of Many Moods

You don't like winter? Many don't. They abhor its gloom, its dreariness and the inconveniences of slippery roads, snow and mud. Others enjoy winter, with all its fine sports such as skiing and skating.

If you don't like Old Man Winter, blame the earth, which is tilted away from the direct rays of the sun. If man had the power to tilt the earth's axis back 23½ degrees to the vertical position, we'd have perpetual summer. But that would be sort of monotonous, wouldn't it? The earth and the sun play a game of cosmic chess, with the moves timed to the fraction of a second. The sun heads south, as it were, and on Dec. 22nd we have the winter solstice, which literally means, "Sun, stand still." At the precise moment the sun turns at the winter solstice, it literally stands still for one split second as it reverses its course and heads north. So we have three months of winter. This cosmic chess game the sun and earth play to give us the four seasons was all divinely computerized and timed to never vary through countless ages. So it often seems that Old Man Winter is a slow poke, long and dreary. But, lingering too long, winter chills the lush lap of April.

Old Man Winter is a dyed-in-the-wool gloomy Gus. Often he drapes a thick gray curtain across the heavens and fills the land with a pall of gloom so thick you could slice it with a knife. Winter is also a capricious prankster; he hangs rows of dragon's teeth on the jaws of water-seeping cliffs, giving them a formidable appearance. Winter is grim and merciless at times. He freezes to death many of the feeble, emaciated creatures and nurtures the bold and strong. He hates on the young and eliminates the old and weak. He wraps the winter woods in a silence so deep and profound, the very silence itself seems to shriek: "Wake up!" But the silence is like that of the tomb—not a bird note, not a cricket chirp, not the ghost creaking of a tree in the bitter wind. Winter is a cradle that rocks a trillion living things to tomblike sleep; winter is a coffin filled with last summer's dead.

Winter earth is nature's seed bed, where a zillion tiny seeds, bulbs, nuts and roots lie dormant, waiting the first warm breath of spring to come alive. Winter is earth's deep freeze, when the soil is frozen hard, cracked and opened to the entrance of air, when the earth thaws, the soil will be porous and crumbly.

Winter paints red roses on the cheeks of the young girls, but sprinkles more frost on the heads of the old.

Winter has strange contrasts. On the sunny south slopes, there is almost perpetual warmth; on the north-facing slopes, the snow seldom melts and the sun's rays never touch the earth. The shadows on this side are black as Stygian night. But here is where the lingering snow enriches the soil with nitrogen and fills it with moisture. So on the north slopes, the lushest and finest plants grow, while on the sunny south side, there grow the scrub oaks, the dwarf pines and clumps of mountain laurel.

Winter is fond of blowing his snowy breath, often in great swirling gusts. He likes to howl on the high hills and roar a-down the valleys like a railway train. He delights in frightening the freeseid sitters by shrieking around the corners of buildings at nighttime.

Old Man Winter mounts his icy throne and with a blast of his trumpet sends raging blizzards across the land. He stubbornly refuses to relinquish his throne when Maiden Spring tries to unseat him in March. Let a warm burst of sun come to thaw up the frozen world, and he quickly draws a dark snow cloud across the horizon, blotting out the sun with a shower of swirling flakes. It takes the balmy days of April, with the grass greening in the valleys and the spring birds singing love songs to put Old Man Winter on the run.

How Deep Go Rights?

The Kentucky Court of Appeals, the lone highest state tribunal in the nation which has upheld the so called Broad Form Deed, will soon have another opportunity to make a decision which will affect the ancient document.

In past decisions the high court has ruled on the validity of the deed itself. It has categorically held that although strip-mining was unknown at the time these old deeds were signed by properly owners, such surface mining is legal under the contract blindly or ignorantly entered into by the landowners.

The Kentucky court has, on occasion, suggested that the deed be voided by the Legislature, not by court action.

So the General Assembly last year enacted what is known as House Bill 9, legislation which would make it illegal to surface mine any citizen's property without his consent. The law was enacted on the premise that the state's legislative body had police powers to protect the health and well-being of Kentucky citizens.

Will the Court of Appeals now support the General Assembly in its effort to enact legislation which it has suggested? The answer to that question will not be known until the court decision is handed down.

If that decision again goes against the landowner, we (with no knowledge of the law but with a belief in human rights) suggest that legal action be instituted to determine how deep go the rights of the surface owner—one foot, two, ten?—then attack taxation of that landowner for any holdings beyond that depth, and sue to force reimbursement of taxes paid on surface which has been claimed and destroyed by strip-mining.

No Kentucky citizen should be required to pay taxes on property that is not his to have and to hold against all encroachment.

Prestonsburg becomes the second flood community to be in compliance with the flood insurance program. Wheelwright was first. The county as a whole has not yet acted toward completion.

According to T. T. McCutchen, director of the division of water resources of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, the federal flood insurance program serves two basic purposes. Its first aim is to provide flood insurance coverage which is unavailable elsewhere. It also provides an incentive for flood plain management and provides information to local governments.

A completely voluntary flood insurance program began when Congress passed the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, amended in 1973.

"The basic theme behind the original act was to provide incentives to regulate future building in flood prone areas," McCutchen said.

"To qualify for flood insurance a community had to fulfill certain requirements," he added. "First the community had to develop a building permit system. It also had to agree to control development in flood prone areas."

McCutchen went on to explain that in 1973 another requirement was added. The 1973 amendments set time limits on obtaining flood insurance. After July 1, 1975, any federal financial assistance for acquisition or construction in flood prone areas without flood insurance is prohibited.

"The deadline hasn't passed yet," said McCutchen. "But in the future, if a community wants to build a house in a flood prone area, it won't be able to get a federal grant without purchasing flood insurance. Of, if someone wishing to build a house wanted to get a federally insured loan, he wouldn't be able to without flood insurance."

"To qualify for the national flood insurance program," McCutchen explained, "a unit of local government must submit a complete application to the Federal Insurance Administration for the entire area within its jurisdiction. Included with the application must be copies of adopted land use and control measures which are consistent with the program regulations. Items pertaining to the nature and extent of the flood hazard in the community also must be sent."

The program requires that certain land use regulations be undertaken in the flood hazard areas—those which are prone to the 100-year flood have a one percent chance of flooding each year.

A property owner in a participating community may purchase a flood insurance policy from any licensed and casualty insurance agency in order to do business within the state.

Wayland. The original murder in indictments against Eddie Jones and John Martin in the two slayings were shifted on change of venue to Pike county for trial after the defense had contended they could not get a fair trial in this county.

The Commonwealth recently filed on its own behalf a change of venue, seeking trial in Pike county, for Eddie and Agnel Jones. Special Judge Ralph W. Walters, of West Liberty, heard testimony and arguments on the motion last Friday. He held that the Commonwealth had failed to prove that public safety was endangered by a fair trial in this county. It is possible and directed attorneys to arrange trial of the case here at the April term.

In other cases the court heard a plea of guilty from Anthony Wayne Stratton, charged with breaking into a service station. Stratton's reformatory term was set at one year. Larry Wright, who had been fined $100 and jailed for 30 days on a charge of transporting intoxicating beverages, was granted a new trial, and the vehicle involved, which had been ordered impounded, was released to its owner. Paul Flannery, upon his execution of $2,587.60 forthcoming bond.

CORRECTION

According to revised information given The Times concerning the story of the dynamiting of an apartment on Riverside Drive which appeared in last week's issue, the person who rents the apartment is Mrs. Marda Bailey rather than Dolores Brantley. She is an even-aged adult and seven children were present instead of five adults and a child.

Improvement Priorities Set After Public Meeting Here

Further development of city housing, recreational facilities and expanded parking accommodations were listed at the January 16 meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council and Planning Commission as top priorities on which to base application for federal aid.

The city is currently engaged in an "all-out" effort to procure a fair portion of the $8.7 million in Housing and Urban Development (HUD) funds set aside for Kentucky communities not included in HUD's program of automatic funding which affected 21 cities throughout the state. These cities, including Pikeville, Middlesboro and Whitesburg, were guaranteed federal funds over the next five years because they were involved in some form of urban renewal in 1971 when the plan was formulated. Because Prestonsburg did not have funds for such projects at that time, the City Planning Commission is vying for the "left-over" federal money.

At the council meeting, which was open to the public, a recently-hired Cincinnati planning consultant, Wilbur Linder, submitted his conclusions relating to community projects and needs which he feels would be most conducive to the acquisition of the funds. Cloyd Johnson, council representative to the Planning Commission, explained that it was Mr. Linder's job to look at the suggestions and ideas for use of funds which the city council and area citizens had offered and rank them according to the priority in and the moral character and fitness of such industrial and commercial sites. To prevent a monopoly, the court provided that no owner or operator of a community TV system will be allowed to bid on an area where another system is in operation; and that, should a bidder other than the operator of a system in an area become the successful bidder, such bidder must buy the existing system at the value of the bid. . . The city council praised a board representing the bidder, the owner and a large TV system at present in operation here, contended the resolution was unconstitutional because it exercised undue police power, took private property without due process and in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment deprived citizens of the right to expand his TV system.

Judge Anderson held, however, that, since the resolution applies equally to all present and prospective television system operators and systems existing in the county, there is no discrimination and that, even though expansion is curbed on one area, the same restraint is imposed on others who may desire to expand into other areas.

Cited in the Anderson opinion was the case of the Louisville Home Telephone Company vs. the City of Louisville, in which the Court of Appeals approved the elimination of a prospective bidder for the sole purpose of preventing a monopoly.

Individual TV system operators in this county contended their investments were threatened by Akers' plans for widescale development. Akers maintained that he simply offered approved services and that individual TV customers would be given a choice.

The case is expected to be appealed.

Study of Strip Mine Bill Begun in Ky.

As one of his first actions since taking over as secretary of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, John S. Hoffman has directed his department to study proposed federal strip mine reclamation bills.

Hoffman has formed a committee within his department to review federal bills on surface mining and to keep state reclamation officials aware of any changes in the bills. A surface mining reclamation bill, passed by both houses of Congress, was recently vetoed by President Gerald Ford.

Hoffman said he was initiating the study of the federal bills because he believes a bill similar to the one which was vetoed would be passed by the next session of Congress. The vetoed bill was expected to have little effect on the flat and rolling lands of the Western Kentucky coal fields. However, some state reclamation officials say the vetoed bill could have significantly affected the mountainous Eastern Kentucky coal fields because it required restoration of most disturbed land to its approximate original contours.

Hoffman said the study at a recent meeting of the Environmental Quality Commission—a citizen's advisory group—Hoffman said, "The department has identified some negative aspects of the federal bill. There are also many very good points in the bill. In anticipation that the similar bill is likely to be passed, within perhaps a year, I have initiated a number of projects that will give us sufficient lead time to take effective action."

"We are beginning this study," continued Hoffman, "so that we can participate in solutions to reclamation problems along with the congressional committee staff and federal agencies that will draft the new federal bill."

Hoffman said his department will give special attention to departmental training and manpower development activities necessitated by the federal bill, especially to the training of reclamation field inspectors.

The task force also will study information about lands which have been disturbed by surface or underground mining. "We intend," said Hoffman, "to find out how much land in Kentucky has been disturbed, where the land is and what its present condition is. Then, the study group will prepare a strategy to rehabilitate mined lands which have been inadequately reclaimed. This information is absolutely necessary if we are to be prepared to administer the federal bill when and if it is passed."

The Prestonsburg Blackcats rolled to their 18th win of the season last Tuesday night defeating the highly regarded Golden Eagles of Johnson Central, 57 to 48. This was the second win for the Cats over Johnson Central.

The Blackcats have lost only one game and that was to Johnson Central during the Sandy Valley Conference tournament at Beatty. With this win, the Cats zoomed into the top 20 teams and is ranked 15th by a statewide wire service. Coach Seltzer's team played the "Blackcat style" of game and kept the Eagles at bay throughout the entire contest. Prestonsburg at the end of the first quarter was leading 20 to 10, thanks to Dave Harrington and Gormie Collins, each of whom have scored 7 points and dominated the boards. In fact, Dave Harrington did everything right and had his best game of the season. He scored 19 points and was outstanding on defense. Collins twisted an ankle in the second quarter and, hampered, scored 9 points. Johnson Central's Rick Meek took game scoring honors with 22 points. Johnson Central has a record of 14 and 3.

The Wheelwright Trojans rolled to their fifth straight win by defeating the McDowell Daredevils, 91 to 59. This was the best offensive game of the season for the Trojans. Larry Isaacs had 26 points and Jeff Riley 21 points for the Trojans. McDowell was led by Jeff Hall with 16 points.

Earlier in the week, McDowell won over Allen Central, 73 to 69. Friday night, Allen Central lost to Sheldon Clark at Inez by a score of 74 to 69.

The Betsy Layne Bobcats finally started getting their breaks and won over Salyersville and M. C. Napier. The Bobcats downed Salyersville at Salyersville in their new gym, 100 to 97, as Bruce Stapleton scored 27 points and Rick Roberts gathered 25 Saturday night at the D. W. Howard Fieldhouse, the Bobcats won over M. C. Napier, 75 to 71. Sophomore Bruce Stapleton racked up 20 points, but scoring honors went to teammate Ricky Roberts who scored 24 points.

VA Interest Rate On Home Loans Drop

The maximum interest rate on Veterans Administration GI home loans will be dropped from 9 percent to 8.5 percent effective January 21, it was announced today by Richard L. Roudsbus, Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

Roudsbus, who established the lower VA rate after consultation with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, noted that the reduction was the second since last November 24 when the maximum interest rate was 9 percent. The new 8.5 per cent rate will also apply to FHA home loans, he added. The 8.5 per cent rate is the lowest since April 1974 when the rate was increased from 8.25 to 8.5 per cent. The rate was increased to 9 per cent last July, then to 9.5 per cent last August, and then was cut to 9 per cent effective November 25, 1974. The half per cent decrease would mean as much as $9.90 per month savings to the typical veteran home buyer, and, over the 30 years life of a $27,500 VA loan, the total saving could be as much as $3,335.

The VA Administrator said the VA home loan market was greatly expanded under legislation approved by the President December 31, 1974, when more than four million veterans whose GI home loans have been paid in full and the home disposed of became potentially eligible for new loans guaranteed by VA. The legislation also increased the maximum VA loan guarantee amount from $12,500 to $17,500, authorized loans for the purchase of mobile home lots, increased the amount of mobile home loans and broadened the possibilities for guaranteeing loans on one-family condominiums.

Roberts Seeks Re-Election from 94th

Lee Roberts, democrat, of the Mullins Addition, Pikeville, has announced his candidacy for re-election to the post of State Representative of the 94th Legislative District in the May Primary. The 94th district consists of Pike county and parts of Floyd.

Roberts, prior to his election as State Representative, served eight years as Justice of the Peace, Pike county Magisterial District 1. He attended Pikeville College and Morehead State University. He is a former teacher and Air Force veteran of World War II.

Announcing his candidacy for re-election, Roberts said he believes 50 per cent of the coal severance tax should go back to the county of origin, with no strings attached. "I don't think any additional severance tax should be imposed on the coal industry," he said. "We have plenty of money coming in from the present severance tax if we can only get our fair share back to the county."

Roberts stated his record in the past session of the general assembly speaks for itself.

"I have voted on all bills for the best interest of the state, Eastern Kentucky, Pike and Floyd counties," Roberts said. Roberts said his vote shows his continuing interest in labor, industry, teachers, education and the needs of his legislative district.

My Mother
ANNAE HART
She was my mother.
She was loved.
God sent her to us from above.
No great career,
No one great deed could give her fame or to fortune lead.
As I recall her smiling face
I see a queen of stately grace.
She wore a life of golden lace
That time and tears cannot erase.
She was my mother, under heaven
She gave the love there was to give,
She knew no other way to live.
She never wanted wealth or gold;
What she treasured could not be sold.
As memories of time unfold
I feel the love her life did give.
When her heart could hold no more
God opened up another door
To paradise and joys unknown
To reap the love so dearly sown.
To heal her heart is what He chose.
To give her peace and sweet repose.
Her work is ended, a new life begun
In obeying God, she truly won.

On this special day so full of tender memories, I pause to thank God for my blessed mother. She was one of life's greatest joys to me. For she was a Godly mother, my mother. Still missed after 40 long, lonely years. She went to live with Jesus Dec. 30, 1934. Today is her birthday, Jan. 29, 1975.
Her daughter,
HELEN HART ALLEN

Library Still Open Part-Time, Despite Furnace Breakdown

The Floyd County Library began Monday its second week of part-time operation after failure of the main furnace in the 10-year-old structure.
The library is being kept open, despite the chill, from 9:30 a.m. till 2:30 p.m., and this is a schedule which apparently will be maintained until heat is restored.
A smaller furnace in the new section of the library is still functioning, but the only source of heat in the main library comes from an electric heater.
Needed parts for the furnace, which have been on order about two months, were expected this week.

The entry deadline this year is March 9. Any girl, age 7-13, interested in becoming Little Miss or Pre-Ten Miss Floyd County may call 874-2414, 874-2454 or 874-2752 for complete details.

Homestead Exemption Increased for Elderly

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Persons 65 and older, or who will reach that age this year, have one opportunity to keep up with inflation, thanks to the 1974 legislature. They can secure a $7,700 tax exemption on a residence they own. But applications must be made by March 1. An eligible person must apply with the county property evaluation administrator and maintain the property for which the exemption is sought as his personal residence.

Homestead exemptions are not automatic. Only one exemption per homestead is allowed, regardless of the number of 65-year-olds residing there. House Bill 436, which provided for the exemption, specified the amount as $6,500, but further stipulated that "this is construed in terms of the purchasing power of the dollar in 1972." It also provided for adjustment every two years thereafter. "If the cost of living index of the United States Department of Labor has changed as much as one per cent, the maximum exemption shall be adjusted accordingly."

This has made possible the raising of the exemption by $1,200 as a result of an 18 per cent increase.

Under terms of the Homestead Exemption Amendment to the Constitution of Kentucky, ratified in the general election, Nov. 10, 1970, properties exempted from taxation were those which were used as public places, used for religious worship, places of burial, institutions of purely public charity, public libraries and single unit residences occupied by persons 65 years of age or older. It stipulated single-unit tax exemption of up to the assessed valuation of $6,500 on each residence.

Owners of a duplex may apply if the duplex is owned jointly by two persons and each is 65 years or older or if either owner has a spouse 65 years or older. Each eligible owner must live in a separate unit of the duplex. The exemption may apply to both of them as if they owned a single homestead.

"A Working Woman's Guide to Her Job Rights" is published by the Women's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor.

HAVE I FORGOTTEN ANYTHING?—John Hughes Jr., a University of Kentucky freshman from Prestonsburg, shops at the UK bookstore the day before the beginning of classes. Speeds Reduced, Deaths Decrease

FRANKFORT, Ky.—In terms of vehicle miles traveled, Americans had in 1974 the safest highway travel year in history, according to a report released by the Federal Highway Administration. For the first time since 1963, the total number of highway fatalities in the nation has fallen below 47,000.

That's far too many deaths, but when you consider that in the intervening decade, traffic volume has increased by 50 per cent (from 805 billion to 1.2 trillion vehicle miles), the rate of highway deaths per mile traveled has never been lower.

In Kentucky, the figures are even more dramatic. According to Bonnie R. Maffei, of Kentucky's Office of Highway Safety Programs, the total number of highway deaths in the state last year was the lowest number since 1961.

In Kentucky, 707 died in the past year as compared to 722 in the year 1961. Every year since, until the advent of the energy crisis a year ago, there had been a steadily increasing fatality toll.

Asked for comparative travel figures for 1961 and 1974, Maffei said that the mileage traveled in the earlier year was 115 billion miles compared to 2.4 billion miles of motor vehicle travel in 1974. A simple computation shows that travel on

Kentucky highways had more than doubled in those 13 years, while the number of fatalities was held close to the 1961 level.

In 1961 an average 5.4 people lost their lives in Kentucky for each 100 million vehicle miles of travel. In 1974 the records show three people killed for the same volume of traffic.

Nationally, fatalities were reduced 16.5 per cent for 1974 compared to 1973. Kentucky experienced a reduction of 30 per cent for the same time period. Using the criteria established above, Kentucky drivers have a safer driving record than drivers nationally, Maffei said.

At least one transportation official gives credit for 1974's reduction in highway fatalities to the man behind the wheel, Bonnie R. Maffei, director of the Office of Highway Safety Programs, says that drivers of the Commonwealth's highways now have a better awareness of safe, energy saving driving habits.

Highway accidents claimed the lives of 785 people in Kentucky during 1974, according to fatality figures released by the Kentucky Department of Transportation. The figures indicate approximately 30 per cent fewer highway deaths than the 1,117 reported in 1973.

"We cannot overlook the impact of the 55 mile per hour speed limit," Maffei said. "It has brought down the accident figure dramatically. Still, the lowered limit of itself, was no panacea. The constant reiteration of the speed limits imposed last spring has made us all aware of the hazards of driving."

Maffei referred to urban accident figures by way of example. "For the most part, urban roads have always had lower speed limits, yet urban accidents are also down."

Nor is reduced travel necessarily the cause of lower fatalities. By year's end, traffic volume was nearly up to 1973 standards. Vehicle miles traveled are currently within five per cent of their level before the energy crisis occurred. In addition to the 30 per cent reduction in fatalities, Maffei points out that state police have reported 4,000 fewer accidents this year than last year.

The director of the safety office cites a number of contributing factors to the safety record. "Concentrated enforcement has certainly helped in making us conscious of speed limits," he said.

Fertilizer Prices Higher This Spring

"Farmers may pay 10 to 15 percent more for fertilizer this planting season over all 1974 prices," said Sharon Conley of the Floyd Co. ASCS office. "Such a price advance—far less than the doubling of a year earlier—may signal the end of the price spiral, according to a recent report of USDA's Economic Research Service."

Fertilizer supplies fell short of demand in 1974. Despite tight supplies and high prices, the U. S. farmers used record amounts—47 million tons—of fertilizer on their fields, 9 percent of 4 million tons more than in 1973. On a plant nutrient basis, the rise was 7 percent.

The report also shows that farmers fertilized more acres with both more gross tonnage and more plant nutrients last year than in 1973. They fertilized 360 million acres, compared with 354 million in 1973, using 91 pounds of primary plant nutrients per acre, compared with 1973's 87 pounds.

High nitrogen fertilizers purchased in the coming spring may cost 10 to 15 percent more than those for the fall of 1974. The average price for ammonia may retail at about $250 per ton. Over one-third of nitrogen fertilizers go on corn.

Phosphate prices doubled over the 18 months between April 1973 and September 1974. Prices may average 10 percent higher during 1975 than those of the previous year, however, they may average higher during the spring planting season when demand is high.

Potash fertilizer prices advanced least of the primary plant nutrients. Supplies will likely be tight in 1975 because demand has risen and no new mines have opened or are likely to open in the United States or Canada.

With Snow Comes Tales of Treasure

By HELEN PRICE STACY

When snow falls and folks are housebound, especially in the Eastern Kentucky hills, it is traditional to tell ghost stories around a fire, or stories of great feats or buried treasure.

"Tales of gold coins buried here and there in the hills crop out with each snowfall, for in winter trees are bare and treasure seekers see more clearly the holes dug in cemeteries, on hills and beneath rocks—all evidence that someone once believed the stories and legends."

Several years ago Mrs. Estelle Rizk, of Carter county told of the Anglin cache of gold, "a goodly amount," secreted away somewhere in the vicinity of Pactolus and Oldtown.

Perhaps then as now, anyone who had no trust in regular ways of saving also might be eccentric. Even relatives of old John, Bill and Adrian Anglin admitted that the brothers had ways that seemed odd, even over 100 years ago.

The brothers were bachelors, making their home in a giant log house with one window. They would cook half a hog at butchering time for a feast, then rest long hours in front of a fireplace so large that only tree-trunk logs could be burned. In the big room were three beds, one for each of the brothers.

"Bill's bed was a high one," recalled Mrs. Rizk, "and close beside it were three chairs that he had made, each one smaller than the other." Stacking the three chairs, Bill could fashion a ladder to his bed. "No one ever dared move his chairs!"

The other brothers, though concerned about Bill's eccentricities, had a few of their own. Each time they killed a bear, they used the animal's skull to decorate the walls of the room.

Still, they smiled when winter temperatures got colder and Bill added a quilt or coverlet to his bed each night. "By spring it was not unusual to find 17 or more heavy bedcovers on the high bed."

The brothers had money. The neighborhood was well aware that they did business in hogs, cattle and corn and other crops. Since they lived almost entirely from their land and made most of their furniture, they spent little coin.

It was Bill who made Sunday trips to the general store at Oldtown, where he had his money changed for gold.

Bill had his money converted on Sunday morning, "partly to keep from taking off work during the week and partly because he knew other folks would be in church and wouldn't see how much gold he had."

With talk of a war between the states, together with rumors that the military plundered as they traveled through a region, old Bill Anglin decided to hide his gold for safekeeping. "He never revealed to anyone, even his two brothers, where he had put the gold."

The war over and the countryside settling down to serious farming, Bill became ill. In time all three brothers were buried on a hill on the farm.

Treasure seekers have made holes around the graves, and there is a legend that a neighbor suddenly became rich, made numerous purchases with gold, then left the country. But no one knows for sure that he found the Anglin gold.

Today, as travelers pass through the community of Oldtown or visit around Pactolus, they might pass by a vast treasure of gold coins.

Plan Meeting To Map Drive For Industry

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Looking toward an eventual decline in the coal boom, an interim legislative committee will try to meet in Eastern Kentucky next month to find ways to get industry to move there.

State Rep. Hoover Dawahare, D-Whitesburg, raised the subject at a meeting of the subcommittee on consumer protection. He said the state commerce department should be required by law to set up a branch development office in Eastern Kentucky.

General approval greeted a suggestion by State Rep. Thomas Burch, D-Louisville, chairman of the parent Labor and Industry Committee, that the full committee meet in Eastern Kentucky to consider the subject.

Burch said he would see if the full committee could extend a meeting already scheduled for Ashland next month so as to also have a series of meetings the next day in several other Eastern Kentucky cities.

Most subcommittee members said now would be the best time to finance any plan to attract industry to that area because the boom in the coal industry could provide the revenue.

"Coal will go down again. It always has," commented Sen. Joe Stacy, D-West Liberty, the subcommittee chairman. "If we don't do something now to bring in industry, we'll be right back where we've always been (when that happens)."

Stacy and others said the subcommittee also could help Eastern Kentucky by looking into the operation of coal-ramp operations, if that fell in its jurisdiction.

Agreeing, Dawahare said "Ramp owners make most of the money (from coal) and they don't pay any taxes."

Vanderpool-Griggs Vows Said

Miss Joanna Vanderpool and Mr. Robert Wayne Griggs pledged their wedding vows on Saturday, Dec. 14, during a candlelight service at Community Church of Oak Ridge, Tenn. The Rev. Gordon Copeland of High Point, N.C., former pastor of the church, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lucy Vanderpool, 189 Robertsville, Rd., Oak Ridge, and the late John Vanderpool. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wayne Griggs of Humboldt, Tenn.

The bride formerly lived in Floyd County.

Central arched candelabra with two side spiral candelabra, entwined with greenery, and an arrangement of white mums placed on either side of the central arch were used for decorations. Mrs. Tom Hart, organist, provided a program of nuptial music. Mr. Copeland sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the double ring ceremony as the couple knelt on the satin covered prayer bench.

The bride was escorted to the altar by Harold Trapp, a family friend. Her wedding gown was of ivory silk fashioned with a draped bodice, long sleeves, and a full skirt ending in a short train. An attached hood formed the headpiece and the bridal bouquet was of gardenias and stephanotis.

Mrs. Hugh J. Davis of Concord was the matron of honor. Her gown was of deep blue and she carried blue and white carnations.

The father of the groom served his son as best man and Terry Griggs, brother of the groom, was the usher.

The bride's mother wore a floor length gown of blue lace with a white overlay and silver accessories. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds. The mother of the groom chose a formal length dress of pumpkin knit jersey with jeweled trim and wore a gardenia in her hair.

The couple honeymooned in a chalet near the ski lodge in the Smoky Mountains.

Following the rehearsal, Mrs. Vanderpool entertained the members of the wedding party, family and friends at a dinner in the fellowship hall of the church.

Radio-Thon Set To Aid St. Jude's

The radio-thon will strive to encourage pledges from businesses and individuals for much-needed funds to finance research by the hospital in children's catastrophic diseases. St. Jude's is the largest childhood cancer research center in the world.

The radio-thon is being conducted in memorial to Ruth Ann Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Moore, of Pippa Passes, a victim of leukemia, and a former patient of St. Jude Hospital.

The telephones at the radio station will be manned by the members of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club from 7:30 a.m. until 12:00 midnight Saturday, February 8, to receive calls of pledges.

Former Student Here Acclaimed Kentucky's 'Trooper of Year'

The Kentucky State 'Trooper of the Year' for 1974 is a 34-year-old Johnson County community leader and a graduate of Prestonsburg High School. Kenneth R. DeBoard, 34, who lives at Thelma, Johnson county, is the state's "most outstanding" trooper for his overall record as a police officer during 1974.

First runner-up in the program is Trooper Detective Rodney Maggard, 30, Hazard, assigned to the organized crime section of the Kentucky State Police. DeBoard is assigned to Post 9 at Pikeville.

The two were named at a luncheon today (Wednesday) at the Galt House and presented awards by Governor Julian Carroll. The Trooper of the Year program is sponsored by the Kentucky Petroleum Council and Bluegrass Lincoln-Mercury in cooperation with the Kentucky State Police.

DeBoard spends his free time working in his eight-acre apple orchard and on community development projects. He is serving his second term as president of the Thelma Development Club, a community improvement group which also maintains a meeting facility for area groups and provides a recreation program for youth.

The excellence of the club's programming was recently cited by the North East Kentucky Rural Community Development Association. The Johnson County Extension Service uses the group as an example for other rural groups seeking help in establishing community betterment programs.

DeBoard has been assigned to Johnson county for seven of his 10 years with the KSP. His first assignment was Nicholas county, then Magoffin.

DeBoard averages more than 100 contacts (assists, warnings, arrests) per month. Some 30 per cent of DeBoard's activity is criminal related.

Johnson county, being dry, has its share of bootleggers. Liquor transporting is one of the criminal problems with which DeBoard consistently deals.

DeBoard says the volume of transport offenses heard on the courts is less than that since the courts are "tougher" now the traffic in illegal liquor has slowed.

DeBoard says he would most like to see in his job as a policeman, "courts that are not influenced by who the defendant is. We don't have a lower court that treats everybody alike." He noted that in one transport case he had to make 21 trips to court before the case was tried.

DeBoard goes on to say, though, "You do your job and the judge does his. You learn to live with a good case 'dismissed' or 'fled away'."

He feels that the most important aspect of his job as a state policeman is to "assist the public when they need it." He notes that one of the three state policemen in Johnson county is on call 24 hours a day.

So that local law enforcement officers in Johnson county could be better trained in the use of firearms, DeBoard and another officer recently set up a firing range like that used by the KSP for periodic practice.

This is the third time DeBoard has been nominated for state-level competition in the '70's program.

DeBoard is a native of Van Lear. He grew up in the Floyd coal mining town of David, and is a 1960 graduate of Prestonsburg High School. He served in the U. S. Army from 1960-64. He is married to the former Billah Campbell, of Hippo in this county. They have two children, a daughter, 6, and a son, 5.

An investigation by Maggard has resulted in uncovering what authorities call one of the largest theft rings operating on the East coast.

Last November, Maggard recovered stolen mining equipment in Letcher county valued at $140,000. It was traced to the theft ring's base in Delaware. So far, more than $500,000 worth of stolen property has been recovered. Delaware and Kentucky authorities feel that much more will be recovered. Warrants have been issued for the ring's alleged leaders.

Another recent investigation by Maggard led to the arrest of the alleged robbers of banks in Salt Lick and Sandy Hook. The robbers totaled $24,000, and a teller was kidnapped at Sandy Hook.

Maggard is a native of Harlan Co. He is a 1962 graduate of Cumberland High School. He served in the U. S. Air Force from 1953-57. Maggard is married to the former Beverly Combs of Hazard, and they have two daughters.

DeBoard received an expense-paid vacation from the Council, Bluegrass Lincoln-Mercury, Louisville, will provide a luxury automobile for his use during the vacation.

Criteria used by the state police in judging in the program are quantity and quality of work, initiative, attitude, dependability, personality, appearance, judgment, and operation and care of equipment. Troopers at each of the 16 state police posts, the criminal investigative division, and the driver licensing bureau selected their representatives in the state competition.

It's Bird Feeding Time

Most of the time Old Mother Nature provides enough food for her children, but in cold winter days, especially when snow blankets the earth, many resident birds find life extremely austere. Unless they can find sufficient fuel to stoke their tiny furnaces, many of the less hardy individuals may perish from the cold.

A bird feeder set up in the backyard, on a window sill, or on some other protected spot will help prevent this eventuality. The person feeding the birds will benefit, too. He will derive pleasure from doing a humane deed and will no doubt enjoy bird company. He can learn to identify birds, appreciate their beauty, and then have them around to sing to him and catch his bugs come spring.

A bird feeder need not be an elaborate thing and the more rustic the better. It can be an open-ended box, a plastic milk jug with a square hole cut in its side, or just about any other kind of a small container that can be easily slucked. It should be erected in a spot sheltered by a building, a tree, or some other object and where it can be easily viewed when birds come to feed.

Birds do not eat just about anything humans do, but a combination of foods will attract the most kinds of birds, according to John Tuttle, poultry specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Members of the sparrow family like the cardinal, junco (snowbird), and song sparrow are able to handle hard seeds and grains. Sunflower seed is a favorite, especially of chickadees, titmice, and nuthatches. They will also feed on a seed mixture, and like woodpeckers and the Carolina wren, are also very fond of suet, of which a large piece can be put in a mesh bag, like those onions are sold in, and hung from a tree.

Peanut butter, mixed half and half with cornmeal, will drive most birds half out of their minds. Be sure, however, to mix the peanut butter thoroughly with the meal until it is no longer sticky, else it may choke the birds to death. Chopped nuts, cracked walnuts, popcorn, oatmeal, bread crumbs, meat scraps, raisins, and table scraps also make good bird food, Tuttle notes.

Sometimes squirrels can cause a problem at a bird feeder and may take more food than the birds. If the cute little varmints are not wanted around, their designs can be thwarted by swinging the feeder from a limb on a long wire or by placing the feeder on a pole with a funnel-like tin guard or baffle below the box.

Starlings often present a problem, too, and, unfortunately no method has ever been devised to keep them away. Since they are wider than most songbirds, they scare off easier. Whenever they appear, step out in the yard and shoo them off. Unless powerfully hungry, they will stay gone for a hour or so and in the meantime songbirds can eat their fill. feeding whole corn may help, too, since grains of corn are a little too large for starlings to eat but are fine for cardinals, jays and doves, Tuttle says.

Birds also need water in winter, especially when ponds and streams are frozen. Those who provide birdbaths for their feathery friends should fill them with water daily. Many people even go to the trouble of putting electric heaters in their birdbaths.

There is some question as to whether or not feeding birds is actually beneficial—beneficial to the birds, that is. Those questioning the practice say that feeders cause birds to congregate and become less wary, thus making it easier for predators to catch them. Another argument is that birds accustomed to being fed lose the incentive to forage for themselves and starve when the feeding stops.

Both arguments may have some merit, but the latter may be circumvented in this manner: when a bird feeding program is started, it should be kept up as Solmon sang, until "o, the winter has passed." Personally speaking, we have wintered birds for several years. We have had no trouble with predators and have found that when spring comes, the birds prefer to dine on insects rather than the foods we provided them. There has been no difficulty at all in weaning them from the bird feeder.

Appellate Court Judge Sees No Problems With Penal Code

By RACHAEL KAMUF LOUISVILLE, Ky.—The new chief justice of the Kentucky Court of Appeals does not foresee any major problems in implementing the state's new penal code.

Scott Reed began his term as chief justice soon after the code became effective. His tenure will be an active one. As he said, "In no event will there be a lack of grit for our mill."

Interviewed at a state justice department seminar on the penal code given for circuit judges, Justice Reed said he expects the appeals court to be asked to rule on many of the new laws in the penal code. Anytime there is a new law, he said, there will be challenges to determine what it means and whether or not it is constitutional.

Reed said he does not anticipate any particular problems with the code. "In the major areas, I see no apparent reason for concern," he said, adding that some passages appeared to be vague and unclear and would need to be reworded and clarified.

He declined to comment on specific passages, noting that it would be improper for him to do so as his court may be asked to rule on challenged passages. One issue he does expect the court to study is the death penalty. Kentucky has been without a death penalty since 1972, when the U. S. Supreme Court (ruling on another state's law) said it was cruel and unusual punishment, therefore unconstitutional.

The penal code has reenacted the death penalty. Now certain crimes, such as multiple murders, carry an automatic death penalty. Because it is a new law, Justice Reed anticipates an appeal the first time it is invoked.

The penal code has been a controversial issue since before its authors began rewriting it six years ago. Some have argued that such sweeping changes will result in chaos. Justice Reed disagrees.

A certain amount of confusion can be expected during the initial period of adjustment, he said, but the changes are an "inherent aspect" of the law. "It is apparent there will have to be amendments and changes, but these can best be developed by experience, which is the way the law has always evolved. Law is simply a natural process of development and response," he said.

She announced the department's crafts workshop for clubwomen will be Tuesday evening, Jan. 21, at Prestonsburg High School. The workshop will feature flower arranging, rag dolls and various other crafts. Mrs. Wallen also announced that the arts and crafts show will be held on Sunday, February 9, from 3-5 p.m. at the PCC Student Center.

Two prospective members, Mrs. Rosenberg and Mrs. Everly, were introduced to the membership. The president reminded clubwomen to bring prospective members to February club meeting in order to begin active membership in March.

Reports were heard from Rosalee Rose regarding the New Year's Eve dance, and from Jeanne Brown and Geraldine Hall on the Miss Floyd County Scholarship Pageant to be held on April 12 at Prestonsburg High School.

The club voted to sponsor a Radio-Thon for St. Jude's Hospital in Memphis Tennessee. Canister chairman for the project are Joan Rosenberger and Lora Hamilton. Telephone volunteers were obtained to man telephones at WDOC radio from 7:30 a.m. to 12:00 midnight and Lora Hamilton and Rita Allen volunteered to attend the PCC meeting on Jan. 20 on the club's behalf. Martha Johnson is overall project chairman.

The membership was reminded to procure immediately the Jenny Wiley Drama Association patrons to which they had been assigned and it was reported that $2800 had been collected to date by the club.

The membership approved the sponsorship of the 1975 horse show and Mrs. Allen told of a Central Kentucky horse show association class sheet meeting in Morehead, Feb. 4.

The clubwomen voted to be countywide sponsors for the 1975 Heart Fund Drive of which two members, Jeanne Brown and Patty Beatty, are chairman and vice-chairman, respectively. February 4 has been designated as Coffee Day, with Faye Miller as chairman, and February 23 at Heart Sunday with Earlene Spears as chairman.
