Shale Gas Study Now Under Way

Ky. W.Va. One of 2 Firms Researching Potential in Area

The Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company has already begun work under a $169,700 contract awarded by the Energy Research Development Administration (ERDA) to study and evaluate new techniques for increasing gas or oil production from Appalachian formations with low permeability.

The research program assigned Kentucky West Virginia was to drill a standard hole to the top of the Devonian shale (black shale), and from that point to core drill through the shale to the surface. A well already drilled to the top of the shale is being used. The core-drilling has been done, and the company is now evaluating the four-inch core removed from the formation.

The study and evaluation is directed toward finding a means of stimulating the shale formation to increased production.

Another phase of research, possibly to be undertaken next year, may involve conventional drilling to the top of the Devonian shale and from that point drilling at an angle of perhaps 45 degrees with the hope of finding more fissures or other permeable areas in the shale and thus tap an added natural gas source. ERDA's study also may later include stimulation of old, abandoned gas wells. Water flooding has already been extensively used to renew production from "dry" oil wells.

At the same time the contract was awarded the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, another amounting to $30,000 was awarded the Physics International Co., of San Leandro, California. It was not known here if its research will deal with oil or gas.

Father-and-Son Murder Hearing Set Sept. 8th

Special Judge Ralph N. Walter, of West Liberty, last week set down for trial the murder charge against Agnes Eddie Jones, father and son, who are accused of the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley at Garrett.

Trial of the two was set for Sept. 8. Johnnie Martin, who also was named in a murder indictment in connection with the slaying, is not booked for trial at that time.

Trial of the defendants in the slaying of James Clayton Conley, near Wayland, a few weeks after the Lawrence Conley shooting, has not been set.

Commonwealth Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said he has been assured requisition has been made by Governor Carroll seeking the extradition from Michigan of Bobby Workman, who was charged some months ago in a grand jury indictment with the slaying of James M. Chaffins on Arkansas Creek. Workman has not been returned here, however.

Development In Communities Led by Clubs

No longer the objects of numerous federally funded programs which have, in many cases, proven ineffectual and have been discontinued in the "war on poverty" in Appalachia, communities in Floyd and other Eastern Kentucky counties are proving, through the organization of community development clubs, the social and civic benefits which can result from community self-help.

The recent formation of the Wayland Community Development Club brings to nine the total of clubs in the county and, although Weeksbury, the oldest club, was organized in 1962, most of the others have formed since the Rural Development Act of 1974 provided the stimulus for the organization of such clubs. Other clubs in the county include Wheelwright (junior and adult), Prater Creek, Tram, West Prestonburg, Abbott Creek and Auxier.

Floyd county's clubs are part of a larger 12-county North Eastern Ken-

Howard Is First Drowning Victim Of Year at Lake

The body of Lester Howard, about 19, of Martin county, who drowned in the German area of Dewey Lake shortly after 1 p.m. Sunday, was recovered at 2:00 p.m. through dragging operations by the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad.

The youth's body was found in about 30 feet of water, approximately 50 feet upstream from the German bridge. Witnesses to the tragedy told Capt. Graham Burchett, of the Rescue Squad, that young Howard had swum across the lake, back to the starting point and was swimming across the impoundment again when he showed signs of trouble. A spectator, Bill Mann, threw a life jacket to him but he made no visible attempt to seize it. Attempts to recover the body by diving failed, prior to arrival of the Rescue Squad.

Young Howard had been residing at the home of Toney Williamson at Varney, Pike county, and had gone to the lake with a friend, Scott Ray, of that community. His body was brought to the Rescue Squad building here, then taken to Inez to the Richmond-Callahan Funeral Home.

The drowning was the first recorded at Dewey Lake this year.

Pretty, Tho Pretty-Well Dead

Bordering trees are reflected in the clear water of Middle Creek where it flows through Archer Park here. But the serenity of the scene is deceiving. The water has been acid-laden for years because of mine water flowing into it near David, 10 miles away, and there is no fish-life there.

Country Preacher Leads His Community

Daniel's Creek's new church stands as a monument to minister's leadership and community effort.

Two years ago, there was no church on Daniel's Creek—the congregation of the Daniel's Creek Free Pentecostal Church of Christ gathered in the creek's one-room school for services. Then, through the leadership and determination of the pastor, Rudolph Lewis, church members began working, raising money, and contributing time and more than a little "elbow grease" toward the goal of a proper church structure for a growing congregation.

In May, 1974, the first service in a brand-new, modern church was held. Lewis, now 60, had dreamed of a new church ever since he was named pastor in 1972, but with only $305 in funds, there was little to work with. It was then that Daniel's Creek residents began "pitching in" to stage chicken suppers and other fund-raising projects so that by May of the next year the church fund had grown to an impressive sum of $2,914.

Most of the money came from various individuals' donations of walnut timber, much of which was hauled by the pastor and stockpiled near the present site of the church. The valuable wood was then sold to lumber operations as far away as Ashland, Kentucky.

A site for the church, located beside the Daniel's Creek school, was donated by former Prestonburg resident, Monte Scott Harkins, now living in Massachusetts. "Mr. Harkins gave us a 150 by 100-foot lot, plus a donation of $400 for each year of construction of the church," Lewis said. He added that Harkins had long taken an interest in the community donating money to teachers at the school to buy all the children gifts. "All he asked in return," said Mr. Lewis, "was that we dedicate the church to his grandmother, Josephine Davidson Harkins."

Although professionals were hired to lay the block for the main structure, all the finishing work—wiring, paneling, carpeting, sheet rock and installation of all fixtures—was done by the pastor and members of the congregation. The building is air-conditioned and two much-improved roads for residents of the creek valley. "I'd use machinery the county would let me have and sometimes the slate would let me use some of their equipment," he recalls. The road was constructed after regular work hours and on week-ends between 1946 and 1961.

Rudolph Lewis and the residents of Daniel's Creek have brought about significant improvements to the quality of life in this relatively isolated hollow, providing a dramatic example of how leadership in a community determination can often prove effective in situations in which material resources may be lacking.

Leaving the church house with a visitor, the other day, Lewis paused, looked for a moment and said, "We might use a little more gravel right over here."

The minister-builder is a brother of Floyd Sheriff Joe W. Lewis.

This Town . . . That World

TRAVELER'S LAMENT
I do not, as a rule, add to the hazards of the road by driving on long trips, these days; instead, I usually "ride shotgun" while leaving the driving to those who have a better idea of which side of the road they are on, once night comes on and other drivers' headlights begin staring and swinging.

So it was that on a trip last week into Virginia that my daughter, who has a yen to see strange places and explore lesser known roads, wound up at Smith Mountain Lake, a place I have often dreamed of visiting. And here we are—water and plenty of it, boats going out for an evening's fishing, and a girl speaking in breathless fashion of a 30-pound rock fish brought into the dock only a few days ago.

And here I am—without rod, reel, tackle of any kind. I tell you, it was plumb exasperating, especially so because I had nobody to blame but myself. At Smith Mountain lake of dreams, without even a night-crawler and a pin hook? It was almost as unfunny as the time I was on the verge of launching my boat on Nolin Reservoir, only to find that somebody in our crowd had been so dumb that we had failed to bring along a gas tank.

DENIZENS OF THE WILD
There are those (and I sometimes am tempted to join them) who hone for the good, old days so devoutly they would welcome a scolding party or would go to sleep to the pariah's scream. If you belong, stick around. Prestonburg may be on the way.

Humane Society Is Organized To Comply with Bequest Terms

A significant first step was taken by Floyd citizens toward the fulfilling of a Middleboro woman's wishes for the founding of a humane society animal shelter in this county when the organizational meeting last Tuesday evening of the Floyd County Humane Society.

Nineteen area citizens met at the Clark school gymnasium, elected officers and discussed the necessary action the society must take to meet stipulations set for the proposed animal shelter by Susan Hawkins Liebig, the Bell county woman who left $25,000 at her death several years ago for the construction of a shelter to serve Floyd county. The total amount at this time is near $40,000, including interest.

Newly-elected president of the humane society, Johnny Burke, Jr., of Prestonburg, said the group must elect a board of directors, establish bylaws, go through the process of incorporation and finally

New Water Rules Skip Lake Needs

Regulations Apply To Dredging, Filling After July 1, 1976

Publication last Friday of rules in the Federal Register implemented a nationwide program of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers to protect the quality of the nation's waters against environmentally harmful discharges of dredged or fill material.

But, the Huntington District office of the Corps of Engineers, in a response to an inquiry by The Times, the new regulations will have no immediate effect in this area.

"But, they will never have any effect on coal mining, as such, in its relation to stream quality, a Corps spokesman said. Sherry Moran, acting public relations officer at the Huntington office, said, after conferring with staff members, that the principal mining damage to Dewey Lake, for example, is a result of runoff, and that is covered by state mining laws. Phase II of the published regulations, effective July 1, 1976, will initiate regulation of the discharge of dredged or fill material into primary tributaries of all U. S. navigable waters and of natural lakes greater than five acres in surface area and of their adjacent wetlands.

In short, the federal regulations will not apply except to dredging or filling operations.

In reply to The Times' request for findings resulting from the Corps' sedimentation study of Dewey Lake about two years ago, the Huntington office said the findings are now under review in Washington and are not expected to be released as a matter of public information for a month or more.

Prisoner Return To Magoffin Co. Begun Monday

Magoffin county authorities Monday afternoon began transferring prisoners from the Floyd county jail to the Magoffin jail, which had been closed since a fire damaged the facility at Satersville two weeks ago.

Forty-two Magoffin men were booked at the jail here over the past two weeks while repairs were being made on parts of the Magoffin county jail which were damaged when a prisoner reportedly set fire to bedding in the jail's main cell. Transfer of the Magoffin county prisoners was expected to be completed by Tuesday afternoon.

Charged Saturday with receiving stolen property was Billy Younce and a juvenile who were both booked at the jail. Two tires and rims reportedly taken from the premises of the Big Y Auto Sales on South Lake Drive here. Arresting officers were City Policemen Ronnie Newsome, Bill Potter, Jim Lafferty and Ralph Thornsbury.

Others booked at the county jail over the past week, charges against each and arresting officers follow:

Harbit Hall, contempt of court, by State Trooper Stepp; Oliver Hall, drunk driving and attempt to elude police officers, by State Trooper Bevas; Willie secretary.

Humane Society Is Organized To Comply with Bequest Terms

Burke stressed the point that the shelter will serve the county and was in no way a facility only for Prestonburg. "In fact," he said, "none of the priorities is that the shelter be centrally located."

Officers elected at the meeting, besides Mr. Burke, included Maria Fitzpatrick, vice-president; Bert Lee Corder, treasurer; Susie Branham, secretary, and Debbie Burke, corresponding secretary.

The next meeting is set for Tuesday, August 5, at 7:30 p.m. at the Clark school gym, and meetings will be held regularly on the first and third Tuesdays of each month. Anyone desiring additional information on the humane society may call 885-8738.

Named Co-Administrators

Sister Mary Catherine Hunt, CDP, president of the governing board of Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin, has announced the appointment of co-administrators of the hospital. They are Sister Loreta Anne Hummelord, CDP, (left in photo) and Sister Mary Felix Muehl, OSF (right). The former, a graduate of Xavier University, Cincinnati, has been affiliated with the hospital as associate administrator since 1972, and prior to that as a member of the governing board. She is a native of Covington, Kentucky. Sister Muehl, a graduate of the Hospital and Health Care Administration Program of the University of Iowa, has been laboratory supervisor at the hospital since October, 1974. She is a native of Little Falls, Minnesota. The appointments were effective July 14.

Menifee Couple Married 77 Years

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Lynn and Lydia Rupe Wells will have been married 77 years Friday (July 25), and Mrs. Delphia (Addison) Manley, one of their 13 children (nine living), said their words she overheard her mother utter were, "dog gonnit".

Mrs. Manley remembers that as soon as her mother said the words, her lips formed a plea for her Lord to forgive her. Lynn Wells will be 95 next April's and Lydia will be 92 on Sept. 20. Both have worked hard all their lives, but Mrs. Manley recalls her dad always told the children to "take your time — you're going to have to work the rest of your life."

The couple met when Lydia was 13 and on her way to attend a "working" at a neighbor's home in Menifee county. Her future husband saw her walking toward the house, turned to a companion and told his friend, "That's my woman and I aim to wed her."

The couple lives in a small house beside U.S. 460 not far from Denniston post office in Menifee county. They manage to do their own work, though their children keep watch over them, some of the nine visiting or calling every day.

"They have a garden and she already has canned 36 pints of peas, 21 quarts of green beans, made kraut, cucumbers and several jars of apple sauce."

"Mother still does her own cooking, washing and ironing and cleans," offered Mrs. Manley, who spent Tuesday with her mother and father to help with more canning.

Mrs. Wells still does some sewing and last winter pieced a quilt top. "She has more pretty quilts than you can count," Mrs. Manley said, adding "She asked me to thread a needle for her last winter and I didn't have my glasses, so she took the needle and thread and did it the first try."

According to the daughter, her parents have an innate goodness. "They've been good to us and everybody. When each of the girls got married, Mother told us to obey our husband and be good to him and we'd get along. Dad told us that, too. He told the boys to be good to their wives and said it works both ways. Dad really thinks a woman ought to toe the mark, but he was always fair."

Soon after the couple married they were building a "little plank house in Possum Holler." Another daughter, Mrs. Lexie McCoy, of Menifee county, recalled a story about how her mother stood below trying to boss her new husband while he built a chimney. "Finally, Dad quit working, looked down at her and said, 'I'll crawl down and give you the britches now, if you think that's the way it ought to be.'"

It was one of those times when both learned that "maybe she could have her say, but he would have his way."

Mrs. Manley said the couple always lived by the Golden Rule and advised the children to use it in their lives. "They've both been so good. I remember when we were all at home, every evening after work and supper we'd gather around Dad and listen to him read from the Bible and pray. It was like story time to us, it was so interesting."

For several years the children had been preparing lots of food for their parents' anniversary, but this year will be different.

"We're all going to meet Sunday afternoon (July 20) at about one o'clock at their house and just have a good time talking, taking pictures and visiting," Mrs. Manley said.

The children and grandchildren dote on Lynn and Lydia Wells, and the couple returns love to them.

"No one ever had a better mother and dad," Mrs. Manley commented, "and if they don't make it to heaven some day, there must won't be anybody there."

The Symbol of Opportunity Is Not the Open Hand

Would you believe that almost every other resident of Floyd county is eligible to receive food stamps? Really?

The state Department for Human Resources says this is the county's plight. Moreover, says DHR, some other counties are in worse shape than Floyd.

So the Welfare State mushroom spreads. This newspaper has never been critical of any effort to help the aged, the sick, those who are helpless for any cause, but it cannot believe it is fair to either the taxpayer who must foot the bill or to the recipient for public assistance to be doled out to those who are able to work but refuse to do so because it is the easier thing to remain "on the draw."

It isn't fair to the able-bodied recipient, because the dole dishonors him. "Equality" is the American dream, these days. But as dreamers work for economic equality by adding to the incomes of Americans who should be producers rather than drones they compound the inequalities, depriving millions of the free gifts of ambition and self-respect.

There doubtless are some residents of Floyd county who truly deserve such help and who aren't getting it. The search now being made for those eligible for food stamps should center on those who are truly deserving. The honest effort should be made to find those who are befitting themselves and practicing fraud by accepting such help when they do not deserve it.

America, the Land of Opportunity, should be represented by the Open Door, not by the Open Hand.

KY 80—a Two-Lane Table

Ever drive a two-lane table and wonder what would happen if a wheel should drop over the edge?

Any motorist who has faced the heavy traffic of KY 80 in the Right Beaver Creek section of this county has approached that experience. Repeated coats of blacktop resurfacing, with the berm left unfilled and in places a foot or more below road-level, have made of that narrow, twisting, heavily travelled road a test of driving skill and a sore trial for the nerves.

This road needs replacing with a modern highway. All are agreed on that, but the search for funding may be over long.

Then, while a suffering public is denied a new or improved KY 80, the Bureau of Highways should do something toward reducing the dangers of the present route.

No road should be left in such disgraceful condition. Filling in of the berm, or shoulder, of all roads should accompany every resurfacing.

Fests, Reunions Set August Scene

August is filled with festivals, homecomings, family reunions and other occasions that are wonderful times for discovering history.

More than 200 young men were present for the recent Benton reunion held in Morgan county. Even more relatives attend the Bach-Back reunion held in Breathitt county, where family records show a direct line to the famed John Sebastian Bach.

Tracing one's lineage to a noted ancestor may uncover kinship with royalty, as is the case with the Stuarts, Coxes and other East Kentucky families, but finding out that someone in the family's past cleared land and became a leading farmer has its merits, as does admiring a great great-grandmother who made a home for a large family during trying times.

On Aug. 10 at Carr Creek Community Center at Pine Top in Knott county, the family invites area musicians to help entertain the crowd and asks for displays of photographs, Bibles and family records. The all-day event this year will honor Revolutionary War patriot John Amburgey.

In Western Kentucky, Fulton's 13th annual International Banana Festival, scheduled for Aug. 13-16, gives families a chance to entertain out-of-county relatives who will make it back in time for the reunion.

For those interested in Eastern Kentucky history and checking records of ancestors who settled in Floyd county—from which all or parts of 15 other counties were carved—the Highlands Folk Festival at Jenny Wiley State Park, Aug. 29-31, is the place to be.

Mrs. Edith James, festival director, is knowledgeable in her field of folk arts, as well as in early family history. If Mrs. James cannot supply needed information, then Henry Scalf will have it in his book, "Kentucky's Last Frontier," or in an issue of his genealogical quarterly.

The Clay family has many connections, and the Skurshin at Richmond's White Hall on Aug. 30-Sept. 1 will provide an opportunity to check the papers and records in the historic home of Cassius Clay. An arts and crafts show is scheduled as part of the entertainment with noted artists exhibiting and selling their works.

Entertainment is also a big part of the Northeast Powers reunion set for Aug. 9 in Menifee county. The families trace ancestors to pre-Revolutionary days and have connections with soldiers of the War of Independence, including John Day.

The Northcote produced well-known doctors who served over a wide area, but they also were skilled musicians. This event will take place at the ancestral Northcott log house on Tarr Ridge, Route 77, near Frenchburg. It will be a time of remembering and a time of mountain music and delectable hill foods.

Instead of meeting at the old home place, some families choose to carry picnic baskets to the family cemetery, here, instead of hearing family history, interested persons may spend some time copying records directly from grave markers.

Such gatherings are ideal searching grounds for Revolutionary War ancestors, whether or not one wishes to become a member of a patriotic organization. According to Edward Everett, "There is no real interest in what was done by his forefathers."

HERE FOR VISIT Richard N. Beidling who has been attending a historical seminar in Williamsburg, Va., arrived here Sunday for a visit prior to returning to his home in Austin, Texas. He was met in Roanoke, Va. by Mrs. Beidling.

"I Can Go In with Them"

I remember reading once of a person who dreamed a dream when in great distress of mind about religion. He thought he stood in the outer court of Heaven, and he saw a glorious host marching up the steps of light, singing hymns and bearing the banners of victory... "Who are they?" he asked. "Don't you know?" was the reply. "They are the glorified spirits of the Prophets who have gone to be with God."

He still waited and lingered, in the hope that he might yet go in, but the next multitude did not encourage him, for they were the noble army of Martyrs. He could not go with them, nor wave their palm branches. He waited still, and saw that the next was a company of Preachers of the Gospel and earnest Christian workers, but he felt he could not go in with them.

MISSING—ONE GROUNDHOG Ralph Marshall said he had never heard a groundhog whistle until the other day. He declares the animal had been foraging, ever since groundhog day, on the "bumper crops" of some neighboring gardeners and had grown so thin he couldn't make a shadow. This groundhog, so the story goes, was watched as he weakly wended his way from those gardens and up the hill to the top from which he could look down into a real garden.

Our Bull Creek informant solemnly declares the groundhog rose onto his haunches, viewed the prospect below, whistled a bar of "Dixie" and hasn't since been seen back on that side of the hill.

HOW REFRESHING!

Press release handouts are generally credited with that fishy stare most newspapermen give even their closest friends. But the editor of THE MOUNTAIN UNIVERSITY of Texas publication which I have appreciated more since the day it featured an article by my son-in-law, recently reprinted a release supplied him, some years back, by the Stroud & Muddley Railroad Station in West Virginia. Now it's our turn to reprint the release: "As a special service to newspaper readers throughout the vast area it serves and in which it is known, the Stroud & Muddley Railroad today issued a list of the news stories its Department of Community and Public Relations will not release during the coming year: (1) The arrival of the first robin on the banks of Stroud's Creek. (2) Railroad slang, with translations, all of which appropos of nothing (3) Quaint happenings to train crews. (4) Quaint happenings to quaint residents along the SC&M's right-of-way. (5) The ramp crop and how it grows. (6) The SC&M's unique position in West Virginia's colorful history (this will eliminate, as well, stories about the proclamation by the SC&M of SC&M Day (week, or month). (7) Whether the groundhog comes to live 15 yards west of Milepost 40 or does not see his shadow. (8) Whether or not woolly-bear caterpillars measured by SC&M news crews do or do not indicate a rough winter. (9) Retired conductors who collect vinegar cruets. (10) Retired conductors who collect anything. (11) Noble dogs who stop SC&M trains, under the impression they are presently derailing them and are unpleasant. (12) Noble children who behave as in No. 11 above (13) The SC&M in the Civil War (we weren't even founded then, praise be).

PESTICIDE SAFETY: Many farmers fail to use safety precautions when they use pest sprays. There is great danger when mixing or diluting the poison concentrate, say Extension entomologists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. They urge you to be very careful not to get pesticides on your skin or in your eyes, or to breathe the fumes.

tucky Rural Community Development Association (NEKRCA) established by the University of Kentucky Extension Service as a pilot program for community development clubs in the state. Floyd County Extension Agent John E. Sparks, a Lawrence county native, and active in the organization of area clubs, is quick to point out that although Carter County has had more community development clubs than any in NEKRCA, Floyd won the award this year for greatest increase in number of clubs in one year. In the 12-county area included in NEKRCA, 44 of the 77 clubs with 106 set as a goal by the end of 1976. "Our clubs are basically community self-help groups," said Sparks, "and the leadership and goals are decided on by the club itself. Besides Mr. Sparks, Community Development Resource Specialist Gene Ball, of Boyd county, is available to make suggestions to community clubs and, in effect, "get the clubs off on the right foot." "Although each club will direct its efforts toward those areas which it considers most in need of improvement in the particular community, overall goals of the whole community development club concept are the establishment of leadership and some type of organization through which interested citizens can work together," Mr. Sparks pointed out. Goals of clubs varied, dictated by the specific needs of each community. They may be long range goals such as local road work, improved water or sewage systems or may fill more immediate needs such as library facilities, community parks or the establishment of youth or senior citizen centers. Some clubs have established adult sewing classes, senior citizen activities and the most basic area cleanup and beautification programs. Weeksville, for example, has worked with the David Appalachian Crafts group in the production of handmade mountain crafts and with Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in establishing educational programs for developmentally disabled individuals in the Weeksville area. The Abbott Creek club, NEKRCA winners in the farm category, are presently involved in providing road signs along the creek and the East Point club, which includes residents of both Floyd and Johnson counties, is dedicating its efforts toward the production of apple butter for sale at the county Apple Festival in Paintsville this fall. The UK Extension Service is encouraged by the success of the community development program in the county and especially by the results in Floyd county. According to Sparks, "With enthusiasm high, as it is now, the extension service is planning on continued growth in the program."

Crafts Hobby Becomes Profession

Mrs. Ross Caudill, native Floyd woman, 18 years ago began the study of arts and crafts as a form of therapy after she had established residence in Ashabula, Ohio. Now, the products of her craft go to every state of the Union except Hawaii and Alaska, and in Japan, and during the winter months she teaches a class of upwards of 35. The former Alma Henson, Mrs. Caudill works in several media including ceramics, ceramics sculpture, fantasy fur, paper, bread dough art, dip and drape and the like. Interior decorators have used her decorator lamps, clocks and fountains, among other items. She also works in China paint overglazes and with precious metals in liquid form. A sister-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Terry, of Martin, who recently visited Mrs. Caudill, said Mrs. Caudill is considering returning to this county after an absence of 23 years and establishing a studio in the Prestonsburg vicinity. Mrs. Terry is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Henson, who resided at East McDowell.

Start Your Wildflower Garden From Nursery, Not from Wild

From early spring until late autumn the Appalachian mountain chain that stretches all the way from Alabama to Canada is a veritable garden of wild flowers. On the slopes, along the valleys, and in the marshes blooms a remarkable diversity of some of the most beautiful plants in America.

First to appear are the low growing bladders such as the spring beauties, blood-root and quaker ladies. Last to go in October are the farewell summer, the evening primrose, and the blue mist-flower. In between are the ladyslippers, lilies, rhododendrons, azaleas, and a host of others that call out botanists, garden club members, and others with guide books and cameras in hand to identify, photograph, and to enjoy this wild heritage.

Unfortunately, some of these land rovers take along trowels and dig up these wildflowers. Others pluck them only to have their business fade within minutes after the plucking. In most cases, especially in parks, this is against the law, and those caught doing so may be subject to arrest, a trip to the courthouse, and a fine.

Digging up wildflowers in the hope of transplanting them to other areas is a risky business as well as bad practice. Removed from their natural habitat, most will refuse to grow or survive for more than a year. If, in an attempt to start a wildflower garden, a lot of people make a practice of doing this, many wildflowers could become extinct. As a matter of fact, many wild beauties like the ladyslipper, showy orchid, wild lily, and Sampson's snakeroot are fast disappearing from many areas and are not likely to ever come again.

For those who love and enjoy wildflowers and would have them growing in their own backyards, there is a better way of securing them. Perusing the new seed catalogs coming out this year, it has been found that several commercial firms are offering wildflower seeds, bulbs or transplants for sale.

In attempting the establishment of a wildflower garden, it should be kept in mind that most wild plants are highly selective as to types of soil and nature of habitat, she points out. This applies to the commercially produced as well as those secured from the wild.

Most of the prettiest wildflowers require the moist, shade-dappled floor of the forest. Others like swampy ground and each must have similar habitats before they will grow. Therefore, a potential wildflower gardener should read up on the flowers and find out their requirements before trying to grow them.

The wildflower season will be starting soon and the temptation may be great to dig some of them up from the wild for transplanting, but don't do it. Instead, look photographs and leave them alone. If you want wildflowers, secure them from a nursery and not from some wilderness area. By purchasing wildflowers from a nursery, there will be no risk of trespass or vandalism. In the bargain, if you can make these plants grow and thrive, you will be contributing to the cause of conservation.

Feeder Calf Sales To Begin August 8

How can you get better prices for feeder calves this fall? One way is to get together with other farmers and sell calves in large, uniform groups, according to Everett Mackey, Extension livestock marketing specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

You can do this by selling your calves at any of the 55 special graded and grouped feeder calf sales to be held across Kentucky this fall. The sales will take place at 20 different locations, with the first sale to be held August 8 at Smith's Grove. The final sale of the fall series will be on December 12, and will also be at Smith's Grove.

The special sales will be conducted by farmer-members of local feeder calf associations in cooperation with local auction markets, the UK Cooperative Extension Service, and the Kentucky Beef Cattle Association.

When you bring calves to one of these special sales, they are sold in groups with calves brought in by other farmers. The calves in each group are similar in size, sex, color and quality. This system of selling gives buyers an opportunity to buy large, uniform groups of calves.

Marketing studies have shown that large groups of calves are more attractive to buyers," says Mackey. "A calf sold as part of a large group will bring more per hundredweight than similar calf sold by itself."

"The average farmer in Kentucky has only ten calves to sell at one time, and his calves are not likely to be uniform," the UK specialist continues. "He must put farmers if he is to get a price advantage from group selling."

Some 60,000 head of calves are expected to be sold in the fall series of sales. Included will be Angus, Herefords, Charolais, black whitefaces, other crossbreeds, and Holsteins.

The 55 special sales will be held at Albany, Campbellsville, Catlettsburg, Danville, Edmonson, Guthrie, Lancaster, London, Martin, Mayesville, Monticello, Owensboro, Paris, Richmond, Russell Springs, Somerset, Smith's Grove, Springfield, Tompkinsville, and Winchester. A list of sale dates for each location and detailed information on the number, grade, breed, and sex of calves expected at each sale is available from local County Extension Offices.

Observe 55th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hefshell Patrick, of Leander, Ky., who now are residents at Mountain Manor Nursing Home here, observed their 55th wedding anniversary July 9. This was a rare occasion for the home, and everyone joined in making it a special day for the couple. A decorated cake with a bride and groom was the center of attraction. The table was decorated and gifts were presented.

Mr. Patrick accepted the Lord as his Saviour after coming to the Home, and was baptized on April 13. He celebrated his 80th birthday, June 15, on Father's Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick are the parents of Mrs. Eleanor Robinson, administrator of Mountain Manor. They have another daughter, Mrs. Ann Snyder, New Comerstown, Ohio, and one son, Jack Patrick, Troy, Ohio.

The Class with Oneness

By BILLIE L. CAMPBELL

For many of us July 18, 1975 is a day we will remember for a lifetime. The 1955 graduating class of Wheelwright High School had its 20-year class reunion. Out of the 68 who graduated, 55 were home for the occasion, including Crawford Bradley, who was the class sponsor and a friend to each of us.

I say, "We came home," because we are more of a family than classmates. The special quality of the group can only be described in one way, "The class with oneness."

Mr. Bradley was the honored guest and I feel he summed up the key ingredient of our closeness when he referred to us as "the children." He taught us, beginning with our freshman year and continued through the senior year. He guided, directed, counseled and, most of all, he listened to each of us. He recognized each of us as an individual who had a potential to succeed in life and to make a contribution to the world. He made us feel special and important. He felt our pain in growing up. He shared our joy and enthusiasm for life, giving of himself to each of us. We did, in fact, become his children and we became a family. Still guiding and directing us after 20 years, he said, "If you are happy in what you are doing, you are a success. If you are not happy in what you are doing it's not too late to change and start again."

We all tried Saturday night to name the key ingredient of the relationship we share. One classmate's husband said he envied us for what we shared. One's daughter said she felt the spirit of love in her life she could experience what we shared. One of the contributing factors to our closeness was a tragedy we all shared as freshmen. In essence, a fellow classmate's suicide brought us all closer together. There were other experiences we shared that we considered to be part of their key ingredient. Oakie Newsome expressed the feeling that we should all be proud of our heritage and grateful we are a product of the Kentucky hills. But each of us came back to the central contributing factor—Mr. Bradley.

Saturday morning began with a coffee for the class members only at the high school building in Room 6, our senior home room. Time stood still for a couple of hours as we shared our memories. Those who were not there were missed. At 1 we met with all of our families at the Wheelwright Community Park for a picnic. The feeling was mutual—each of our families became a part of "the family". Husbands, wives and children felt the spirit of the closeness we each shared.

At 7:30 we came together again for a banquet at the high school cafeteria with our spouses who must be recognized and thanked for allowing us the freedom to share our lives with one another again. They, in their own right, have become a part of the family.

Dinner was served by mothers of two of our classmates and other women who shared our growing-up years. To them we owe a debt of gratitude and love.

David Chaffins was our master of ceremonies; Crawford Bradley was guest of honor; Bobby Blevins gave the invocation; Kenneth Dale introduced our guest, Dr. Oakie Newsome presented the awards. Committee members were Linda (Hall) Couch and Barbara (Hall) Gullett, co-chairman, Gaye (Lafferty) Osborne, class director, food and decorations, Billie Louise (Hall) Campbell, hospitality and favors. Thank you is not adequate to express the gratitude we feel for the time, effort and work involved in making this day a success.

Many classmates are still in Kentucky; others are in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Florida, North and South Carolina, West Virginia, Arkansas, California, Georgia, Washington, Virginia, Wisconsin, Washington, D. C., and one in Germany. All are alive, thank God.

Our motto, "We have crossed the bay—the ocean lies before us," has taken on a new meaning. Our song, "You'll Never Walk Alone," has become a reality.

Crop Damage in McCracken County Linked to Sulfur Dioxide Emission

By MARVA GAY

Frankfort, Ky.—Crops in McCracken County, in the area of the Shawnee steam power plant operated by TVA, have been damaged from what may be an overdose of sulfur dioxide.

According to John T. Smither, director of the division of air pollution in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, the damage is believed to be the result of excessive sulfur dioxide emissions coming from the Shawnee plant. Smither said this has happened in the vicinity of the plant in the past.

Smither has sent a telegram to TVA officials advising them to take certain steps to limit the damage. That damage, which Smither said already covers an area 2 1/2 to three miles wide and several miles deep, is expected to become worse. Plants affected include soybeans, tobacco, Japanese lespedeza, red clover and ornamentals.

In his telegram, Smither advised the plant to take one or any combination of the following steps:

Immediately implement any contingency or emergency episode plan to reduce sulfur dioxide emissions. Switch to lower sulfur fuel; Reduce generation capacity at the steam plant; Purchase power from outside the affected area.

TVA was notified to advise the air pollution office immediately by telegram—of all actions taken, with daily updates until the meteorological conditions have improved and ambient sulfur dioxide concentrations have returned to a degree of normalcy.

Smither said his office has begun an investigation of the causes and extent of the vegetation damage. The U. S. Environmental Protection Agency is assisting the division in the investigation.

Feud Leader's Grave Civic Center Threat

Old Randall McCoy, leader of his family's historic ruckus with the Hatfields, now figures in a controversy surrounding the cemetery at Pikeville which holds his damaged grave.

Since 1969 plans have been made to build a $6 million civic center at Pikeville as a part of the city's gigantic Model City program. But there is the 10-acre tract on Chiole Creek which has been designated as the civic center site is the old Dils cemetery, and in the cemetery the old feudist sleeps.

Mayor W. C. Hambley said the cemetery site is a "must" for the project but expressed the opinion that the situation can be "worked out."

There are about 300 graves in the cemetery, which was established by Col. John Dils, Jr., a Union officer during the Civil War. Colonel Dils made the cemetery the first in the area to be integrated, open to blacks as well as whites.

Descendants of Randall McCoy have protested moving the graves, and it was indicated last week that legal action may be taken to prevent such a step.

Dr. Hambley indicated that the Pikeville Model Cities Development Program would be willing to erect a monument to Randall McCoy inside the civic center and that "McCoy Center" might also be established in the center to display the family history.

Claim $331,000 Blast Damages To Five Homes

Five suits filed in circuit court here last Wednesday by as many Floyd county couples ask of Harry Hale Ranier, individually, and (or) two companies which he heads a total of $331,000 damages.

The suits involve the alleged damage of four homes in the Roberts Addition to Prestonsburg and one on Prater Creek as the result of blasting in mining operations. The plaintiffs and amounts asked follow:

Clyde and Deloris McGuire, Roberts Addition, $6,500 loss of property value, $5,000 for loss of use of property and $50,000 punitive damages.

Lloyd G. and Amanda N. Hall, Roberts Addition, $12,000 loss of value, $5,000 loss of use and $50,000 punitive damage.

Johannie and Mary E. Damron, Roberts Addition, $15,000 loss of value, $5,000 loss of use and $50,000 punitive damage.

Clarence and Evelyn Inscore, Roberts Addition, $7,500 loss of value, $5,000 and $50,000 loss of use and punitive damage, respectively.

Claude and Alah Robinson Ryan, Prater Creek, $15,000 loss of value, $5,000 and $50,000 loss of use and punitive damage.

The firms listed as defendants are the Triple Elkhorn Mining Co. and the Ranier Construction Company.

Seminar on Health Needs Held at ALC

Health professionals from across the Eastern Kentucky region gathered last Thursday at Alice Lloyd College for a special seminar on health in Appalachia.

The purpose of the two-hour conference was to allow people from the diverse elements of the health services to discuss the health needs of the Eastern Kentucky region and to allow young people interested in medicine or health careers to hear and ask questions of the participating professional resource people.

Participating in the conference were several well known leaders in the area health services, including: Dr. Lowell Martin, of Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin; Mrs. Jan Melvin, director of After Care at Salyersville; Dr. Kamal Abulsaad, of Mountain Comprehensive Care, Prestonsburg; and Roger Tackett, of the Appalachian Kentucky Health Manpower Service at the University of Kentucky, and others.

The seminar was sponsored by the University of Kentucky's Appalachian Kentucky Health Manpower Service.

GIRL SCOUT DAY CAMP

The Pike County Girl Scout Day Camp was held at the Pikeville Elementary School grounds July 7-11 from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. daily. Over 100 Pike and Floyd County children attended the camp sponsored by the Pikeville Service Unit of the Wilderness Road Girl Scout Council which includes scouts from Betsy Layne, Johns Creek, Robinson Creek and Pikeville.

The girls participated in varied activities with flag ceremonies held each day. Among the crafts completed were bulletin boards, hanging baskets, wood chip name tags, clothes pins for sack lunch holders, chipmunks made of walnuts, plaques of owls and burnt-edge pictures. Two days were spent traveling to Jenny Wiley for sessions of swimming and an afternoon at Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre where everyone viewed a rehearsal of "Most Happy Fella" and was given a four back stage which includes set construction, costume design and dressing rooms as well as visits with cast members.

Wednesday special resource people were at the camp. Among these consultants were Mrs. Olive Prouditt who demonstrated the dulcimer and conducted a sing-along. Tom Sparks who guided the groups on the nature trail being developed above the school; Cordell Damron who entertained everyone with stories and tales of the area; Andrea Charles, Senior Scout, and her sisters, Susanne and Adrian, also scouts, who demonstrated scouting skills. Groups were transported to visit Mrs. Laura Keller at her pottery workshop to see her work.

On the final day of camp each of the eleven units prepared its own campers' stew and some-mores for lunch. Then each unit entertained the entire camp with a skill. At the closing ceremony on Friday, each participant in the Day Camp activities was presented a special patch.

A WSAZ-TV reporter covered the activities of the day camp and crafts made during the Black Diamond Festival, July 12.

There were a total of 93 campers registered and an additional 12 children of leaders in attendance. Of the 93 campers, 98 girls had perfect attendance.

Volunteer leaders for the week included Shirley Adkins, Cheryl Hall, Phyllis Keathley and Vickie Keathley, all of Betsy Layne; Alva Charles, Betty Francisco and Shalimar LaBrea, of Johns Creek; Sandra Potter, Sue McGinnis, Sherry Thomas, Ivalene Joyce Robinson, Ruth Smith and Peggy Newsum, of Robinson Creek; Barbara Wagner, Jeanette Robinson, Joyce Reed, Jackie Rowe, Colleen Fletcher, Flo Adams, Diana Patton, Ruth Rowe, Linda Jones, JeNell Justice, Joyce Clark, Nancy Goss, Leslie Ramsey, Shirley Layne, Anna Lou Shortluff, Judy Hall, and Holly Wright, of Pikeville. Serving as Director was Sophia Hays. Kaye Baird was assistant director and Deloris Cauley was registrar.

CELEBRATES EIGHTH BIRTHDAY

Stevie Monigumery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Reynolds, celebrated his eighth birthday with a party at his home in Allen. Stevie received numerous gifts from his friends.

Guests included Antia and Bill Smith, Roger and Rodney Garrett, Dean Smith, Missy Nester, Stacy and Stevie Chaffins, Kenny Allen, Darby and April Ratliff, Jimmie Parsons, Jimmie Lyons, Marly Lafferty, Michael and Chris Boggs, John P. Reynolds.

Road-Oiling Doesn't Satisfy

Oiling of the Frasure's Creek road last Tuesday did not have exactly the same results as the pouring of oil on troubled waters... whatever that is. Residents of the area gathered Wednesday to continue their protest of the road's condition which, they contend, forces them to eat dust in the summer, wade and drive through a sea of mud in the winter. The protest is made in an effort to gain a part of the coal severance tax money to be used for improving the road which they say must be used by two school buses and two trucks which transport children to and from school each day as well as by those who must travel to and from work.

If help is not forthcoming, the citizens group plans to go to Frankfort where they hope to get some answer to their plea for help.

MAYTOWN COMMUNITY NEWS

Mrs. Earl Webb was the luncheon guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thumral Click to celebrate her 81st birthday, July 19.

Oak Under Attack By Skeletonizer Moth In National Forest

Armies of tiny, worm-like larvae are attacking the lush green oak and chestnut foliage in eastern Kentucky, leaving gaping brown blotches in the rolling vista.

The Oak Skeletonizer, a moth, has returned to large sections of the Daniel Boone National Forest for its bi-annual feast. This year's outbreak is noticeable on the hills between Interstate 75 between London and Berea, but has been observed in areas throughout the 640,000-acre forest.

The tiny moth could produce two generations per year, the first developing in April and May. It is particularly apparent during July and August when the denuded leaves contrast with the green background.

Although this is the second year for an outbreak, national forest timber managers are not too worried because of nature's own defenses.

While the hungry moth attacks during its second, or larval stage, the quarter-inch long insect is too late and too selective to do major damage. The larva seems to prefer dining on red oak, although it will attack some pin and white oak, or chestnut.

Resource managers are confident the timber could survive several attacks without loss of production because in most cases only a small portion of the tree is damaged. They plan to survey the attacks' damage after the larvae become adult moths at the end of August.

BUYING MERCHANDISE
Mrs. Abigail H. Bolling and Mrs. Patsy Hun left last week for Chicago, where they will buy merchandise for Abby's Gift Shop.

Honored by Selective Service

Selective Service recently honored Sgt. Terry Webb, of the Kentucky National Guard, and Donald Baldrige, employee of B. F. Casual Shop here, for unselfishly giving their time to serve as uncompensated registrars for Selective Service, registering 16 year-olds for the draft in the Floyd county area. In photo are, from left, James Fitzpatrick and Mike Little, board members; Donald Baldrige, board members; Mayor William O. Goebel, Jr. and Chairman Herbert Salisbury, and guest, Sgt. Terry Webb. The Certificates of Appreciation were from Colonel Taylor L. Davidson, State Director, Selective Service of Frankfort and were presented by Chairman Salisbury to Mr. Baldrige and Sgt. Webb.

To buy or not to buy, that is the question.

Because substance and quality are absolutely essential in this questionable economy, buying an Audi[®] 100LS makes more sense today than ever before.

You'll be buying the roominess and comfort of a full-sized car, legroom and headroom usually associated with cars twice the price, orthopedically designed seats that adjust to your body, that reduce fatigue.

You'll be having German engineering, the control of front-wheel drive and independent suspension, the firmness of rack-and-pinion steering, the extra security of negative steering roll radius and outward-vented front disc brakes.

You'll be buying the added economy of fuel injection, 18 miles per gallon in the city and a startling 28 miles per gallon on the highway.

It's an elegant, finely-engineered medium-priced luxury car that is built to last. And that's substance and quality in any economy, no question about it.

The answer is Audi

Obituaries

Emmitt Tackett

Emmitt Tackett, 90, died at his home at Grethel last Wednesday, July 23, following an extended illness.

One of the county's oldest residents, Mr. Tackett was born December 23, 1884, a son of the late Fred and Sarah Hamilton Tackett. He was a retired farmer and a member of the Regular Baptist Church for 25 years. He was married to Nannie Hall Tackett who died in February 1969.

Survivors include four sons, Millard, Fred and Timare Tackett, all of Grethel, Mack Tackett, of Ivel, three daughters, Mrs. Fruma Hall, of Honaker, Mrs. Linda Hamilton, of Grethel, and Mrs. Dora Hamilton, of Flatwoods, a brother, John Tackett, of Grethel; 40 grandchildren and 49 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 10 a.m. Friday at the home by Regular Baptist ministers. Burial was made in the family cemetery at Grethel under direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Otis Howard Bussey

Otis Howard Bussey, 64, of Prestonsburg, died last Friday at the Methodist Hospital, Pikeville. He had suffered a cerebral hemorrhage approximately two months prior to his death.

A native of Dora, Alabama, he was a son of the late Rufus T. and Luried Clark Bussey. A retired mine foreman, he was a member of the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church and of Zion Lodge No. 273, F&AM.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Ora Sanford Bussey; a daughter, Mrs. Garland Godsey, of Prestonsburg, a son, William Thomas Bussey, of El Paso, Texas, a brother, Terry Bussey, of Marion, O.; four sisters, Mrs. Tommy Hall, of Pikeville, Mrs. Sue Giganti and Mrs. Gwen Wynn, both of Cleveland, O.; Mrs. Naomi Conley, of Florence, Ky.; five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Masonic rites were conducted Sunday evening, and funeral services were conducted at 2 p.m. Monday at Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church by the Rev. W. D. Jagers. Burial was made in the May cemetery here under direction of Carter Funeral Home.

Palbearers were Bill Conley, Tom Conley, Jeff Conley, Rodney Bussey, Johnny Bussey, Kenny Kerver, and Frank Giganti.

Honorary palbearers were W. A. Rose, Richard Sparlock, James P. Allen, Arthur Haywood, Jim DeBossett, Frank Layne, Howard Ferguson and Lloyd Crum.

RETURNERS FROM MEET

Kenneth Meade, owner of the Prestonsburg Farm & Home Store, has just returned from a two-day Southern States Cooperative Commodity Knowledge School held at the Gateway Inn in Huntington, W. Va., on July 21 and 22.

The school, one of seven held throughout the cooperative's five-state operating territory, was held for training and informing Southern States retail personnel about products and service programs so they could give maximum service to local farmers this fall.

The sessions were conducted by the cooperative's commodity specialists and supplier representatives.

Pete Dawson

Pete Dawson, 70, died at his home at Hi Hat last Tuesday, July 22, following a prolonged illness.

A native of Newport, Tenn., he was a son of the late William Louis and Lou Stewart Dawson. Before his retirement, he was employed by the United Fuel Gas Company for 37 years as a well tender, and he was a member of the United Baptist Church. His wife, Mrs. Mary Alice Lykens Dawson, preceded him in death in January, 1969.

Survivors include four sons, Carlos J. and Danny Ray Dawson, both of Hi Hat, David Lynn Dawson, of Price, Eugene Dawson, of Plymouth, O.; four daughters, Mrs. Mildred Mullins, of Hi Hat, Mrs. Anna May Little, of Wheelersburg, O., Mrs. Alice Faye Ratliff, of Ypsilanti, Mich., Mrs. Olive Rose Neely, of Prestonsburg, a sister, Mrs. Nancy Bryant, of Hi Hat, 28 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m. Friday at the Clear Creek United Baptist Church. Burial was made in the Boyd cemetery at Price under direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Palbearers were Mr. Dawson's grandsons, William Lewis Dawson, Michael, Terry, and Gary Mullins, Clemet D. Little, Ricky and Ronnie Bryant, and Keith Dawson.

Pat Eugene Simpson

A pathologist's report of the autopsy performed on the body of Pat Eugene Simpson, 38, of McDowell, who was found dead in his auto July 22 in Knott county, indicates that there was no foul play.

An employee of National Mines on Ganey Creek, near Pippa Passes, the McDowell man was found in his auto near the base of the Knott county side of Buckingham mountain.

He was a son of Bud and Tilita Cavins Simpson, of Drift. Surviving, besides his parents, are his widow, Mrs. Anna Lou Lucas Simpson; one daughter, Miss Lisa Jan Simpson, Hillsboro, O.; a stepson, Mickey Stumbo, of McDowell; one stepdaughter, Mrs. Glenn Taylor, of Martin; two brothers and two sisters, Joe Simpson, of McDowell, Earl Simpson, Dayton, O., Mrs. Betty Cooper, of McDowell, and Mrs. Marie Music, Brooksville, O., and one grandchild.

Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday from the Drift Pentecostal Church, and burial was made in Davidson Memorial Gardens under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

HARVARD REJECTED AS SITE OF KENNEDY LIBRARY, MUSEUM

BOSTON—Harvard University, the alma mater of the late President John F. Kennedy, has been rejected as a site for the library that will house the papers and records of his administration.

Before he was assassinated, Kennedy chose Harvard as the location for the library and a museum that would display his presidential memorabilia.

In February, the John F. Kennedy Library Corp. announced it was giving up plans to build the museum at Harvard because of community opposition.

Thursday night, Stephen Smith, a Kennedy brother-in-law, said the library corporation had also rejected the Harvard site and intended to build the entire complex at the University of Massachusetts.

Workshop Talks Pupil Discipline

The causes of and the alternatives to suspension of pupils from classes or their expulsion from school were discussion targets at the July 18 school discipline and due process workshop held July 18 by the Bureau of Pupil Personnel Services at Clark Elementary School.

It was pointed out that the greater number of suspensions are caused by students cutting classes and that to suspend a student for staying out of school reinforces his behavior. One alternative to suspension discussed was alternative classrooms in which the child is removed from his classroom but remains in school. Children in alternative classrooms would receive instruction and counseling. The importance of the prevention of unacceptable behavior was discussed. One means of preventing unacceptable behavior considered is to revise or expand the school curriculum to make it more meaningful to students.

It was emphasized that students who have been accused of misbehavior should be informed of the complaint against them and should be given an opportunity to present their version of what happened. Also discussed were recent court cases involving the due process principle.

Local school personnel discussed actual disciplinary cases, using aliases for students involved, and invited Department of Education personnel to comment on their handling of the cases.

Russell James, principal of Johnson Central High School, and Wilbur Shortt, Jamersson, principal of Wheelwright High, presented copies of letters sent to parents of their students in cases of expulsion and suspension. Other letters from over the state will be added to these to form a collection to be disseminated to all school districts.

This workshop, one of a series that will be held in all educational development regions in Kentucky, represents the continuing effort of the Department of Education to bring department services closer to the local school districts.

Bureau personnel participating in the workshop were Assistant State Superintendent Marshall Swain; Dr. Curtis Phipps, director of the Division of Guidance Services; Lee Tyler, director of the Division of Pupil Personnel Attendance and Accounting; Don Buchett, area guidance consultant, and Angela Wilkenson, state consultant for delinquency prevention. Participating from the Department of Education was Ray Corns, director of legal and legislative services.

Local and regional personnel assisting in conducting the workshop were Reg Johns, executive director of ROPES Region 11; Oran Teater, superintendent of Paintsville Independent Schools; Charlotte Ferguson, counselor, and Russell James, principal, of Johnson Central High School.

PLANT A FALL GARDEN. In Kentucky, the fall garden can be almost as important as the spring garden, according to UK Extension vegetable specialist C. H. Roberts. Second or third plantings of crops such as bush beans, beets, sweet corn, turnips, Bibb lettuce, and cabbage can be planted in late August in most parts of the state. See your county Extension agent for information on what vegetables do best in fall and on how late they can be planted in your area.

Folk Fest Changes Discussed at Meet Here Last Week

A meeting was held here last Wednesday of the Highlands Folk Festival Board to make plans for the Tenth Annual Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival scheduled at Jentry Wiley State Park Amphitheatre, August 29, 30 and 31.

Chalmers Frazier will act as overall director of the festival while Mrs. Edith F. James, founder of the festival, and Mrs. Katherine Frazier will serve as co-directors. Mrs. Gwen Dineen was named secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Nancy Sturgill, Mrs. Rose Collins and Miss Betty Rowland were appointed to serve on committees.

At this year's festival the poetry readings, usually held during the day, Saturday, will be dropped since May Lodge will not be available. Appalachian crafts, however, will receive a great deal more emphasis this year with displays by the David Appalachian Crafts group under the direction of Sister Mary Pineau. Crafts will be displayed on the balcony of the amphitheatre Saturday and Sunday afternoons at 3 o'clock.

Crafts will be displayed on the balcony of the amphitheatre Saturday and Sunday afternoons at 3 o'clock.

At this year's festival the poetry readings, usually held during the day, Saturday, will be dropped since May Lodge will not be available. Appalachian crafts, however, will receive a great deal more emphasis this year with displays by the David Appalachian Crafts group under the direction of Sister Mary Pineau. Crafts will be displayed on the balcony of the amphitheatre Saturday and Sunday afternoons at 3 o'clock.

The Equal Pay Act of 1963, enforced by the U. S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division, requires employers to compensate men and women in the same establishment equally for work of equivalent skill, effort and responsibility performed under similar working conditions.

According to a recent U. S. Department of Labor study, 192,000 new immigrant workers enter the labor market each year, a number equal to about 12 per cent of the annual total national increase in recent years.

The U. S. Labor Department reports that in 1974 women accounted for 48 per cent of white-collar workers but only 17 per cent of those in blue-collar jobs; in the service sector, 63 per cent of jobholders were women.

TIPS FROM SMOKEY

HOW YOU CAN PROTECT AMERICA'S ONLY RENEWABLE RESOURCE.

You're running out of many natural resources—oil, natural gas, coal, minerals, etc. Once they're gone, you'll have to find substitutes.

But you have one resource that will never diminish if you protect it: your forest.

This year you'll use more than 200 million lb. of wood for lumber and paper, and all the other things you get from trees.

But you'll lose twice that many trees to forest fires. We'll have about 100,000 forest fires this year. And nine out of ten of them will be set by people. People who never meant to do such a terrible thing.

You can help to prevent this tragic waste. If you live in or near the forest you should: BURN DEBRIS SAFELY. Obey local laws. Use a safe incinerator. Avoid setting an open debris fire on a windy day where it can spread to the forest.

KEEP MATCHES AWAY FROM CHILDREN. Many serious fires will be started this year by children playing with matches. USE SPARK ARRESTERS on tractors, cross-country vehicles, motorcycles, chain saws.

ELIMINATE FIRE HAZARDS like electric wires rubbing against trees, chimneys and stovepipes without non-flammable screens, dry grass and brush near buildings.

And when you visit the forest, smoke only where permitted, crush all cigarettes, hold matches until cool, build campfires only where permitted—and be sure they're dead out when you leave.

Protect your forest and it will renew itself for ever and ever.

Look close at a new car designed to give you efficient use of space, fuel and money. Ford Granada.

The Design: Ford Granada is designed to help deal with such problems as crowded roads, increased fuel cost and maintenance. Granada is about two feet shorter and a half ton lighter than most standard-size cars. So you can expect excellent gas mileage. Yet there's family-size room inside with plenty of head room and trunk space.

The Economics: A luxurious car today has to earn its keep. Granada doesn't back away from that fact. Its trim design helps reduce needless weight and excessive fuel consumption. Granada's base engine is a Six with solid state ignition that's economical and easy to maintain. And it comes with gas-saving radial ply tires.

The Construction: Granada is put together to stay together. Precision machinery holds body parts in tight alignment as they are welded into a solid unit. In a separate process, the body panels are treated to help minimize vibration. To help protect against rust, Granada's body is covered with 13 pounds of primers and chip-resistant baked enamel. And every Granada is subjected to hundreds of inspections while it's being built. The feeling inside Granada is solid and secure; it hugs the road. It has about the weight of a Mercedes 280.

The closer you look, the better we look.

VS. NOTICE OF SALE

N & W Coal Co., Resources Development Corp., Commonwealth of Kentucky Department of Revenue, Department of Economic Security (now Department for Human Resources), and United States of America, Internal Revenue Service . . . Defs.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the July 1 term, 1975 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 8th day of August, 1975 at 11:30 o'clock a. m., same being a day of the Floyd Circuit Court, for $500.00 cash to be paid at the time of the sale and the remainder in cash or upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

A certain tract or parcel of land lying in Floyd County, Kentucky, being lot No. 79 in the Dewey Lake View, Inc., subdivision as shown by plat or map on file in the office of the Clerk of the Floyd County Court in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to which reference is made for a more particular description.

Being the same land conveyed to the defendant, N & W Coal Co., by deed duly recorded in the Floyd County Court Clerk's office of the Commonwealth of Kentucky in Deed Book 204, page 528; and being the same land conveyed to the defendant, Resources Development Corporation, by deed duly recorded in the Floyd County Court Clerk's Office of the Commonwealth of Kentucky in Deed Book 210, page 433.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $14,646.40 with interest thereon at 6 percent annually from the 1st day of July, 1975 until satisfied and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 21st day of July, 1975.

Now, People May Tell State Social Services They Desire

This summer people in every county in the United States have a chance, under a new law, to tell their state governments what social services they want to see offered in their local communities.

This unique federal law requires each state to advertise its proposed social services program in newspapers every year. The state must also give the public an opportunity to comment before the program is put into effect. The idea is to make these federally supported, state-operated programs more responsive to local needs and accountable to the local public instead of the federal government.

Each state decides for itself which services to include. Day care services, homemakers services, services to protect children and handicapped adults from abuse, neglect, and exploitation, transportation services, and counseling services are examples of services that states may decide to offer in one or more geographic areas. None of these services is required by federal law.

This new law is Title XX of the Social Security Act, signed by the President last January 4. It calls for the states rather than the federal government to decide what services to offer, who is eligible for services, and how services will be distributed in the state.

Every state is now receiving comments on the social services plan it proposes to put in effect on October 1. These plans were announced in the state's major newspapers on or before July 2. Individuals and organizations have at least 45 days from the state's publication date to get their comments to the state agency.

In most states the public review period will last until about the middle of August. Details about the plan are available from the state or local social services or welfare office. Some states also are holding public hearings.

States may offer services free to people receiving AFDC (Aid to Families with Dependent Children) or SSI (Supplemental Security Income for the aged, blind, or disabled). States may also offer services to people who do not qualify for AFDC or SSI, as long as their income does not exceed 115 per cent of the state's median income, adjusted for family size. However, states must impose reasonable fees for services furnished to people whose income exceeds 80 percent of the median income level.

Under previous federal rules, states had to offer any service on a state-wide basis. Now states will have greater freedom of choice as to what services will be offered and where offered. However, federal money available to the state is not changed. Under a continuing 1972 law, a national annual ceiling of $2.5 billion in federal expenditures was established for social services. This $2.5 billion ceiling is broken down into individual state allotments on the basis of population; most states do not use all their federal allotment. This federal allotment may be used to pay for 90 per cent of a state's family planning services costs and 75 per cent of other social services program costs. The remaining share of social services costs comes from state and local appropriations and from funds donated by individuals and organizations concerned with social services.

Folk Dancers To Meet At Morehead, August 10

MOREHEAD, Ky.—The "Knob Tigers" will be kicking up their heels next month at Morehead State University.

More than 120 folk dancers will attend the 22nd annual Kentucky Dance Institute which begins Aug. 10 and closes Aug. 15.

Nicknamed "Knob Tigers" several years ago the dancers came from throughout the United States. They range in age from early teens to over 80.

During the week-long session, participants learn new folk and square dances, practice traditional dances, plan recreation programs and dance to have fun.

Participants may receive one semester hour of college credit.

NEW SIGN LANGUAGE FOR KENTUCKY—A new and different species of road signs has begun making its appearance along Kentucky highways. Under a 1971 federal law, all 50 states must adopt the new sign language by 1977 which, safety officials say, will go a long way toward improving both motorist safety and convenience. Bill Williams, (at right), a state highway shop employee at Lexington, is one of many sign-makers currently working to help Kentucky meet the federal deadline. He is watched by William Davis, a shop foreman, who noted that the new signs will last for 20 years as compared to an average of five years for the old signs.

'My Fair Lady' To Begin Run At Jenny Wiley Theatre Tonight

"My Fair Lady," the biggest musical comedy hit in world theatrical history, will be presented at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, the weeks of July 30 through August 15 on Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday evenings. The musical, adapted from Bernard Shaw's straight comedy of 1913 about a gentleman who was turned into a lady by a haughty phonetics professor to win a bet, achieved the most striking popularity of any stage attraction of the mid-twentieth century. It ran in New York for six-and-a-half years continuously, from March, 1956 to September, 1962, and its road tours throughout America and its runs in foreign countries were similarly unprecedented. Benjamin Middelagh (Henry Higgins) and Beth McVey (Eliza Doolittle) will be starred in the Jenny Wiley Theatre's production as the aristocratic speech professor and the dainty flower girl he takes home in order to prove that by training in upper-class pronunciation he can pass her off as a cultivated woman of the world. Richard W. Pugh (Alfred Doolittle) will be seen as the drab girl's rascally father, who will sing the famous Cockney songs of the show, "With a Little Bit of Luck" and "Get Me to the Church on Time." Some of the other leading roles will be played by Jeff Geisler (Col. Pickering), as the cool observer with whom Henry Higgins makes his bet, Robert Jackson (Fredie) as the bumbling fellow who falls in love with the transfused Cinderella, and Pam Middaugh (Mrs. Higgins) as the snobbish mother of the experimenting professor. All told, a cast of more than 30 will be on hand. "My Fair Lady" contains the most abundant collection of song favorites of any show of modern times. The 18 scenes and the rich costumes of the era just preceding World War I are being designed by Mary Beth Mann and Mary Turner, respectively. The droll Shavian humor of the book is being directed by Susan Rosenstock, and the dances are being choreographed by Gary L. Vance.

Examination Set For Representatives In Revenue Cases

Persons who are neither CPA's nor accredited attorneys may represent clients before the Internal Revenue Service if they take a special enrollment examination. The two-day examination for Kentucky applicants will be given September 29 and 30 at 8:30 a.m. (EDT) in Louisville at the Post Office Building, 6th and Broadway, Fifth Floor. The application, along with a $25 fee, must be mailed to Washington no later than August 31. Applications and further information about the examination may be procured by writing Public Affairs, IRS, P. O. Box 1735, Louisville, Ky. 40201, or by calling 502-582-3577.

Hite Vocational Among Schools Accredited

For the first time, all state vocational education schools in Kentucky are accredited by the Kentucky State Board of Education. State accreditation for the Floyd County Area Vocational Education Center at Hite has been approved by the State Board of Education from July 1, 1975 to June 30, 1978. Certificates of accreditation are scheduled to be presented to the heads of the schools at the state vocational education conference slated August 5-8 at Western Kentucky University in Bowling Green. State accreditation makes more federal funds available in the form of student loans and grants.

Martin-Rasnick Vows Spoken

Miss Suzanne Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Martin, of Garrett, became the bride of Mr. John Harrison Rasnick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blake Rasnick, of Pikeville, on Saturday, July 19, at 7:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church in Allen, Kentucky.

The double-ring candlelight ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Floyd Tackett, pastor of the Vogel-Day Methodist Church at Harold. Assisting at the candle lighting were Gaylen Grant Gearheart, cousin of the bride, and Peggy Rasnick, sister of the groom. The wedding music was provided by Miss Linda Craft, soloist, a former sorority sister of the bride, and Mrs. Debbie Dunn Berger, pianist, a former roommate of the bride.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Gary D. Reed, Langley, Ky., was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Carolyn Daniel, of Louisa, Miss Donna Clark, of Allen, Miss Rhonda Cooper, Cynthia and Miss Carolyn Busby, Cincinnati, Ohio. All are former college roommates of the bride.

David Rasnick, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Dr. Quentin T. Robinette, Robert Syck and Larry Justice, all of Pikeville, and David Martin, brother of the bride, Morganfield.

The bride wore a traditional floor-length gown of soft white crepe maracaine in a free flowing skirt silhouette. The bodice, bordered with venise lace framing the deep "V" neckline, was created with long sleeves cuffed with lace and an empire waistline encircled with matching venise. Her chapel-length veil of gossamer illusion, waisted in bouffant styling. She carried a cascading bouquet of miniature carnations and stephanotis with ivy and touches of gypsophila.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids were attired in floor-length gowns of aqua poly-knit in "A" line silhouette. The bodice with short bell sleeves and "V" neck, was fashioned with an upsevel, belted waistline, looped into long the streamers falling over the back. The bride's attendants carried hand bouquets of aqua daisies, fern and touches of gypsophila.

Mrs. Martin, mother of the bride, wore a floor-length gown of soft peach poly-knit with a matching corsage of peach-tinted white carnations. Mrs. Rasnick, mother of the groom, wore a floor-length gown of pastel blue and white with a matching corsage of blue-tinted white carnations.

The reception was held in the church social room. Immediately following the ceremony. Serving as hostesses at the reception were Kathy Jones, Zanesville, Ohio; Linda Rasnick, sister of the groom, Pikeville; Sharon Martin, cousin of the bride, Langley; and Mary Combs, Pineville. Mrs. Janie Pruitt, Frankfort, a former college roommate of the bride, served as director and co-ordinator of the wedding.

When they return from a tour of the western states, the couple will reside at Mount Marthe Drive in Pikeville.

Split Dove Hunting Season Opens Sept. 1

Frankfort, Ky., July 23—Kentucky dove hunters will again have 70 half-days of hunting and bag and possession limits will remain unchanged at 12 and 24. Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Arnold Mitchell said this morning.

The split dove hunting season will open September 1, continue through October 31, and then reopen for the period December 15 through December 21. Shooting hours will be from 12 o'clock noon until 1/2 hour before sunset, prevailing time.

Also announced today were split hunting seasons for woodcock and Wilson's snipe and a nine-day teal hunting season.

The woodcock and Wilson's snipe seasons will open October 10, continue through December 5, reopen December 13 and continue through December 20. The limits for woodcock will be 3 daily and 10 in possession, after two or more days of hunting, and for snipe, 8 and 16. Shooting hours for both species will be from 1/2 hours before sunrise until sunset, prevailing time.

The nine-day teal hunting season will open September 6 and continue through September 14. During this statewide season, blue-winged, green-winged or cinnamon teal may be taken from sunrise until sunset, and the limits will be 4 daily or 8 in possession. In addition to a valid Kentucky hunting license, waterfowl hunters are required to have a federal waterfowl hunting stamp.

Other waterfowl hunting seasons will be set in late August, Commissioner Mitchell said.

Name of Boyd Boys' Home Changed in Honor of Estep

The Boyd County Boys' Farm was renamed last week to honor the late Hack Estep, former Boyd county jailer and at one time a resident of Prestonsburg.

The new name of the farm is the Hack Estep Home for Boys.

"Hack Estep was a special and rare kind of man," said Dr. William E. Leadingham, chairman of the farm's board of directors. "He was concerned about the welfare and treatment of abandoned and orphaned boys—enough to found a home for them, using much of his own capital, encouraging others to lend their help and financial support."

Estep founded the home in a two-story house on a 160-acre farm at Pigeon Roost, near Rush, in 1953, culminating a four-year drive for funds.

The farm became home for any boy who needed one, and soon there were as many as 20 boys.

Estep died last July, with a large part of his dream realized. Leadingham said the name change was an overdue tribute and in line with continued programs to improve care for boys at the home.

CORRECTION

In the report of Mable Goble's death in last week's Times, a sister's name was listed incorrectly. Her name is Mrs. Madge Clark, of Prestonsburg.

MARTIN FAMILY REUNION

The Martin family reunion will be held all day Sunday, August 3, beginning at 10 a.m. at Archer Park, Prestonsburg.

All those related to the Martin family are invited to attend. Bring your picnic lunch.

Special entertainment will be provided by Andy Martin, who is the originator of this first Martin family reunion.

Ozone Tolerance Is No Protection

Many Kentuckians have been bothered by high levels of ozone in our air the last few days. But chances are that people who live in places where smog is an everyday occurrence—often much worse than we ever see even in Kentucky's urban areas—would not find our pollution so irritating.

A recent study shows that people do develop a tolerance for concentrations of the toxic chemical—concentrations which cause illness in those from ozone-free areas. However, this type of tolerance should not be considered protection, and the same study indicated that ozone can be harmful long before it reaches the smog producing level.

Exposure to ozone can result in significant changes in lung function and blood chemistry, as well as more obvious discomfort such as coughing, headaches, sore throats and fatigue. Burning eyes also are associated with ozone excesses, but actually result from a different chemical.

Staying inside under air conditioning and limiting physical activity will help. And to help stop the problem on a full-time basis, you can limit the use of your car and take advantage of carpools and buses whenever possible.

For additional information contact the Kentucky Lung Association.

SOYBEAN INSECTS: Now is the time when many farmers are watching their soybeans for insect damage. At least 25 per cent defoliation from bloom to pod set is needed to justify chemical control for leaf eating insects. That is pointed out by Harley Kromy, Extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Respiratory Clinic Has Opening

Alex Hall, a disabled miner from Galveston, Ky., with "20 some years inside the mines," receives a forced breathing treatment. Mr. Hall is a member of the community Board of the Mud Creek Health Project.

The Mud Creek Respiratory Clinic officially opened Sunday, July 20, as miners and their families, eastern Kentucky residents, and health workers gathered on the Mink Branch of Mud Creek for an Open House. The sponsoring health facility is the Mud Creek Health Project, a community-run clinic now in its third year of operation.

The respiratory clinic program is designed for treating breathing problems for men, women and children. It is set up in sessions which last for two weeks, with 16 patients in each session. At 9 a.m., one group of four people come for treatment. Four more arrive at 10 to join the first four for an education hour. Then, the second four stay for treatment. The same schedule operates for eight more patients in the afternoon. Each patient spends two hours a day at the clinic for eight days. The respiratory unit began operation with 16 patients on Tuesday, July 22. Eighty people, including six women, were on a waiting list for treatment when the program began.

There are four kinds of treatment. Two involve the use of machines. A bronchial dilator is used for forced breathing in damaged parts of the lung. An aerosol treatment of warm mist then loosens mucus so it can be coughed up.

A third treatment, a set of exercises, uses weights to recondition breathing. Abdominal breathing emphasizes the diaphragm as the major muscle for easier breathing, especially during spasms. A fourth treatment is based on the use of vibrations and gravity to drain different sections of a patient's lungs. "Clapping," or rapid slaps around the diaphragm area by a therapist, loosens accumulations of mucus and material like coal dust, which are then drained with the help of gravity by body positioning.

Treatments for victims of black lung and respiratory ailments have not yet been definitely linked to a longer life expectancy. However, there is no question that they bring relief from pain and guarantee that patients have more versatile use of their bodies, increasing their enjoyment of life.

Besides victims of black lung disease, patients are treated for such respiratory ailments as emphysema, chronic bronchitis, and asthma.

Family members join patients for education. Classes are designed to teach ways to cope with breathing ailments.

Eula Hall, of the clinic staff, works with patients on black lung and Social Security disability claims. Other staff members make home visits to follow up on home-administered treatment. In some cases, patients may keep portable machines in their homes for aerosol and bronchial treatment.

The immediate medical supervisor at the Mud Creek unit is Dr. James Squire. Dr. Rivera, of the Highlands Regional Medical Center is the medical director of the three-health facility program. He does most diagnostic work. Douglas Fleming, director of cardio-pulmonary and respiratory therapy at Highlands, is the technical administrator for the program. He is available to all three facilities for consultation, technical advice, instruction and continued education of program staff.

Dara Fumagalli is the R.N. supervisor for the Mud Creek unit, and Butch Payne is the respiratory technician. Other services are provided by staff members, Tim Pence, pharmacist, Janice Stone, secretary and billing clerk, and Pat Little, administrator.

Two other Floyd County health facilities are part of the respiratory treatment program, sponsored by the United Mine Workers of America and funded by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health and the Appalachian Regional Commission. Highlands Regional Medical Center in Prestonsburg and the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital in McDowell have jointly named their units the Big Sandy Breathing Clinic.

INVITATION FOR PRELIMINARY PROPOSALS

The Department of Housing and Urban Development will accept Preliminary Proposals for housing units under the Section 8 Housing Assistance Payments Program, to be located in: Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, and/or Pike Counties, Kentucky.

Proposals may be submitted by private owners or Public Housing Agency (PHA) Owners or by PHAs in combination with private owners for newly constructed and/or substantially rehabilitated units not to exceed 200 units.

Proposals must be received by 4:00 p.m., E.D.S.T. on September 18, 1975. Detailed information is contained in a Developer's Packet which may be obtained from the Kentucky Area Office of the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, 601 South Floyd Street, Louisville, Kentucky 40202.

OPINIONS

From the Attorney General

Treasurer in Violation—Darvin K. Estes, superintendent of Bath County Schools, asked if the school board treasurer, who receives an "honorarium," can be a partner in an insurance agency supplying coverage for the board. Estes wished to know if there is a violation, and what, if any, is the penalty for the treasurer, as well as other members of the board. It is the opinion of the Attorney General's Office that since the treasurer is an employee of the board of education, he is forbidden to have any direct or indirect interest in the sale of goods or services to the board. The penalty for such an offense is a fine of not less than $50 and not more than $500, including expulsion from office. This penalty only applies to the treasurer and no other board members who might have allowed such a conflict to arise.

Lump Sum Not Allowed—Pat Tanner, Daviess County judge, asked if it is legal for the sheriff to receive a monthly lump sum expense allowance to cover the cost of field deputies' vehicles in addition to a uniform allowance. It is the opinion of the Attorney General's Office that a lump sum expense allowance is not legal since there are no statutes that allow it in a county with the population of 75,000 or over, such as Daviess County.

No Longer Qualified—After selling his house, David Kelly of Clay City asked if he is qualified to serve on the city council. Kelly, who now rents a house, owns such property as livestock, trucks and cars. It is the opinion of the Office of the Attorney General that to qualify as a Clay City councilman, one must be a registered voter and own real estate in the city. Since Kelly rents his home, he cannot be allowed to serve on the council.

CHOOSING VEGETABLE VARIETIES FOR FALL GARDENS: It takes longer for a vegetable to mature in a fall garden, since the cool nights of autumn slow down plant growth. Keep this in mind when buying seed for fall planting and check the average days to maturity on seed packets. UK Extension vegetable specialist C. R. Roberts recommends it will probably be best to purchase seed with the shortest time elapse between seeding time and harvest.

IN APPRECIATION
We the family of Phillip Newsome, wish to express our deep appreciation to all those who were so kind to us during our time of bereavement. We would especially like to thank Dr. Mary Hall and her nurses, friends and relatives who sent flowers, food, cards of sympathy, or called to express their love. Special thanks are extended to the Regular Baptist Church and ministers for their comforting words and generosity. We also wish to express our gratitude to the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its excellent service.

Appalachian Coal Output Could Triple in 25 Years

Appalachia could be producing 135 million tons of coal per year by the end of the century, more than three times its present output, a new study shows.

The study by the Appalachian Regional Commission, Council on Environmental Quality and the National Science Foundation said this growth in production could provide from 70,000 to 140,000 new jobs within the 13-state Appalachian area.

This region now produces about 400 million tons of coal per year, about two thirds of the total U. S. output.

In response to the energy crisis and the new emphasis on coal production, this figure could double by 1985 and even rise to 500 million tons annually by 1985, according to the report.

The report was prepared for the three organizations by Resource Planning Associates of Cambridge, Mass. The study concluded that Appalachian coal and synthetic gas production—gas made from coal—will become increasingly important during the last quarter of the century in meeting the nation's energy needs.

The Ford administrator's goal of energy self sufficiency by the 1980s calls for a doubling of U. S. coal production. Much of this increase was expected to come from strip mining of western coal.

However, the study said Appalachia will play a more important role in meeting the nation's energy demands than first expected. It listed these three major reasons:

—The shift by industrial, commercial and residential energy users from natural gas to coal and electricity.

—The expected location in Appalachia of a substantial number of coal gasification and liquefaction plants, new fossil fuel and nuclear generating plants and refineries—to convert coal and crude oil into electricity, gas and refined products.

The projected doubling of external and internal demand for Appalachian coal within ten years.

The projected growth of the Appalachian energy industry will require more than $3 billion for new community development and urban expansion and new land-use requirements of 500,000 to 1.3 million acres, the report said.

However, the report noted that the region's ability to supply projected coal production levels could be restricted by insufficient transportation systems.

Huddleston To Speak At Commencement

RICHMOND, Ky.—U. S. Senator Walter D. Huddleston, Kentucky, will be the speaker at Eastern Kentucky University's 68th summer commencement, Thursday, August 7.

The program will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the VanFursem Pavilion, and the university will award the honorary doctor of laws degree to Senator Huddleston and to Circuit Judge James S. Chenaud, Richmond.

Dr. Robert R. Martin, EKU president, will present the honorary degrees and the academic degrees during the graduation program.

Huddleston, a native of Cumberland County, was elected to the U. S. Senate in 1972.

Judge Chenaud was appointed judge of the 25th judicial district in 1966 to fill a vacancy and re-elected to the remainder of the term in 1967. He was re-elected to a full six-year term in 1969.

The U. S. Department of Labor reports that employment in mining has declined by nearly 15 percent since 1960, primarily due to technological changes.

Good Grain Seed Produces Best Crop

Use Good Seed: It will be operating in small grains, legumes, or grasses this fall, you will be money ahead if you use the best seed you can buy. Using quality seed is the best way to insure getting high crop yields, says Dennis Tekrony, Extension seed specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

TeKrony points out that a small percentage of total operating costs on a farm go into buying seed. Therefore, seed is not a good item on which to economize.

The best way to determine seed quality is to read the label on the seed bag, according to the UK specialist. He recommends using certified seed, which bears a blue label. Certified seed has been inspected for genetic purity and has met minimum standards for germination, seed purity, and freedom from noxious weed seed and certain diseases.

Good seed which costs a few cents per acre more than bargain seed is likely to return extra dollars per acre at harvest time, TeKrony concludes.

The shape of things to come.

By LARRY BURKE

There is a story told on the light side, that goes something like this:

A young man was writing to his girl friend, "Darling, there is nothing I would not do for you. I'd swim the widest ocean. I'd climb the highest mountain. I'll see you Saturday night, if it doesn't rain!"

It's remarkable how sometimes inconvenience can change a person's attitude. Some people will do anything as long as it is convenient. The great people of the world are those who are helpful and considerate regardless of conveniences. The world becomes a better world because of such people. A community becomes a better place to live when you have considerate neighbors. Nothing stands in the way of people who are determined to be helpful. And for these people—we breathe a prayer of thanks.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: "CONSIDERATE PEOPLE, ARE THOSE WHO ARE MOST LOVED."

Bad Roads Limit Production Of Kentucky Coal, Is Claim

Kentucky will have great difficulty doubling its coal production to meet national energy needs unless more than 4,000 miles of roads used for trucking coal are upgraded, says a study released in Frankfort last Wednesday.

If Kentucky is to help meet the goals of Project Independence—the federal program to develop adequate U. S. sources of energy by 1985—a $1.1 billion road-renewal program is needed, reports The Road Information Program (TRIP) of Washington, D. C.

Kentucky is the top coal-producing state in the nation and could easily double its coal output within the next 10 years, except for the poor condition of roads serving activated and expanded mines, says the research agency.

Ninety-six per cent of the state roads and all county roads used for coal hauling are too badly worn to handle any increase in truck traffic, TRIP found. The study involves 3,747 miles of state-maintained roads and 636 miles of county roads used for coal hauling.

"The state and counties cannot afford to spend $1.1 billion to upgrade coal-haul roads and also adequately fund their overall road and bridge needs," said TRIP state chairman Buckner Hinkle, who released the report.

Hinkle said the nation will be the major beneficiary of Kentucky's increased coal production, so the federal government should fund the improvement to the state's coal-haul roads.

Hinkle added that upgrading the state's coal-haul roads would benefit all road users—including farmers, truck and bus operators, school-bus riders, tourists and local residents.

The 4,228 miles of substandard roads essential to increased coal production account for only 10 per cent of the total deficient mileage in the state, the study found. However, upgrading these worn out roads would consume 23 per cent of the estimated $5 billion needed for statewide road and bridge improvement between now and 1985, the report notes.

The study found that 39,715 miles of the state's 80,900-mile total road system are rated "poor" or "very poor" by federal engineering standards. Also, 3,780 of the state's 12,000 bridges are inadequate to handle all of the traffic on connecting roads, says the report.

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT CR 19,128

First National Bank, Prestonsburg, Kentucky . . . plf.

VS. NOTICE OF SALE

Melvin Martin and Joan Martin, Teaberry, Kentucky . . . Defts.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the June 19 term, 1975 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 30th day of August, 1975 at 11 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the Floyd Circuit Court, for $500.00 cash at the time of the sale and the remainder in cash or upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

A certain tract or parcel of land lying in Floyd County, Kentucky, on Big Mud Creek near mouth of Tinker Fork, containing four acres, more or less, and more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at Highway 879 running up the hill with John D. Martin line 150 feet and then around the hill following the John D. Martin's line to the center of a drain; thence up the drain to the John D. Martin line to the Henry Hamilton; thence up the hill to the Jimmy Mitchell line; thence down the road to the beginning, and this being all the interest that Nollie Hamilton and Alpha Jean Hamilton, his wife, have in said boundary.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $3,877.91 with interest thereon at 6 percent annually from the 19 day of June 1975 until satisfied and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 21st day of July, 1975.

Ruellia—Flower of Midsummer

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)
Reflecting the vastness of the heavens and the glory of the midsummer sun, and representing the unadorned purity of nature, the small blue flower of the ruellia deserves more recognition than it usually gets in wildflower books. The ruellia, which resembles a petunia, is not only an unconventionally beautiful little wildflower but is reputed to possess magical powers. Transplanted to the dooryard from woodland margins and old pasture fields where it commonly grows, it will banish ghosts and ward off poisonous snakes. Why this is so is unknown, but no snakes or ghosts have ever been seen in the vicinity where ruellia takes root and blooms, old timers say. A case in point concerns an old 19th century house still standing away back in the hinterlands of the North Fork of the Kentucky River country.

Time and the disfavor of inconsiderate persons unknown have converted this old log structure into picturesque ruins. The windows are glassless, the gaping doorways doorless, and abundant foliage half obscures it from view. It possesses all the classic aspects of a haunted house which, upon the word of the few persons still living in the community, indeed it was. It all began many years ago when the last tenant of the house, an aged man, fell from an upstairs porch and killed himself. Soon after that, even in daytime, passersby started hearing sounds like those made by falling objects—sounds accompanied by pitiful whines like those of a dog trapped in a woven wire fence. Some also saw lights and other manifestations of the supernatural and the house was well on its way toward acquiring an evil reputation.

'Enforce Law,' Hoffman Says

By MARVA GAY
FRANKFORT, Ky.—Few state reclamation inspectors were in their offices or at the mines one day recently. Instead, most were in Frankfort for a meeting with John S. Hoffman, secretary of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. At this meeting, the first time these inspectors have gathered to hear their new boss, Hoffman stated and explained the policy they must follow. "The policy laid down by Hoffman, who took over as head of the agency in January, was one of consistent law enforcement and backing of enforcement actions begun by the reclamation inspectors. "If Kentucky is going to be the top producer of coal in the nation," said Hoffman, "our reclamation efforts must be the best in the nation. With increased production of coal, we cannot relax our reclamation efforts. We will insist on good reclamation." Calling them the front line of reclamation, Hoffman pledged support to the inspectors and urged them to report all violations. "Our job is to enforce the law," said Hoffman. "No more and absolutely no less. "If you've seen a violation," Hoffman added, "turn it in to us, and we'll follow through to enforce the law and regulations I hope, when it becomes evident that the laws are being enforced consistently, there won't be so many violations."

The owner readily agreed and the next day after scurrying around in a back pasture, the herb doctor came in with several bunches of ruellia which he transplanted at the northeast corner of the house. Needless to say, the strange noises and peculiar lights stopped immediately and were never heard or seen again. The ruellia, however, still grows at the northeast corner and can be seen today.

As in the case of Hecate, goddess of night, who used the dandelion to entertain Theseus and bring him under her spell, this story of the ancient herb doctor and ruellia should be taken with a grain of salt. Nevertheless, it does lend much to the lore of yet another native plant whose crushed leaves mixed with mashed juniper berries reduce swelling and make hair grow again, or so it is said. A member of the Acanthus family of plants, ruellia is a flower of midsummer and a very charming one at that.

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carleton Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

By JOHN WILSON Perhaps the best way to describe the relationship between the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and the hunters and fishermen of Kentucky is by an analogy to business.

If the department were a corporation, then the sportsmen of the state would be the stockholders in this company. Their 'stock certificates' are the hunting and fishing licenses which they purchase each year and, as in a corporation, these 'certificates' entitle the stockholders to a voice in the operation of the department through their selection of members of the Fish and Wildlife Commission.

The dividends of these stock purchases are not, of course, returned in the form of financial gain, but there are dividends nonetheless—the assurance of continued quality hunting and fishing for the residents of the state, clear streams and lakes and of healthy wildlife populations.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife, which receives no general revenue funds from the state, operates almost entirely on money from its 'stockholders.' During the 1973-74 fiscal year, hunting and fishing license fees accounted for 82 per cent of the department's total income. Another nine per cent of the total also came from hunters and fishermen, but in a different form.

There is an 11 per cent federal excise tax on all sporting arms and ammunition and on fishing tackle sold in this country. The money collected from this tax is then prorated back to the states for fish and wildlife programs—research projects, management programs and land acquisition for wildlife.

In 1973-74, Kentucky's share of this federal money amounted to $344,000—about 9 per cent of the total departmental income. The remaining nine per cent was derived from miscellaneous sources, including commercial license sales, fines, camp fees and 'Happy Hunting Ground' magazine subscriptions.

The money collected by the department is placed in a separate account—the Fish and Game Fund—and can be used only by the Department of Fish and Wildlife. A provision of the federal laws governing fish and wildlife restoration money stipulates that any state diverting license revenue to other uses besides fish and wildlife will lose its federal funds.

The sportsmen of Kentucky, then, provide the support for the Department of Fish and Wildlife and are indeed its 'stockholders.' Like stockholders in a corporation, the sportsmen of the Commonwealth do have a say in how their money is spent.

Their voice in the running of the department is through their elected representatives, the members of the Fish and Wildlife Commission. This nine-member group, with a representative from each of the Wildlife districts in Kentucky, is the governing board of the department. The commission has a voice in the department's major policy decisions, including the setting of hunting seasons, bag and creel limits, license fees and size limits.

The commission members are selected by the licensed sportsmen of each district at an open meeting, where five nominees are selected for the post. These five names are submitted to the governor, who then appoints one of them for a four-year term.

According to state law, no more than five of the commission members may be from the same political party. Should a vacancy occur before the expiration of a member's term, the appointment is made from the names remaining on the list originally submitted by the sportsmen.

These meetings to nominate commission members are publicized in local newspapers well in advance. The only qualifications for participating is that the individual be a Kentucky resident who has purchased a hunting or fishing license for the past two consecutive years.
