Court Acts To Procure 2 Landfills

County's Purchase Of Road Machinery Made at Meeting

The Floyd fiscal court in its special meeting last Wednesday invested $63,036 in road machinery and moved toward acquisition of two additional solid waste landfills sites.

County Attorney James R. Allen was authorized to prepare leases on tracts owned by Sam Hale, on Middle Creek, in Magisterial District 1, and by Harry Martin, of Drift, in District 3. The leases will provide that Hale is to be paid $4,000 rental a year, and Martin, $1,200.

If the leasing of the two tracts becomes final, the county will have three of the four disposal sites originally recommended for the county's solid waste program. Only Magisterial District 3 would have no such facility.

The one landfill now in operation is in Magisterial District 2, on Turkey Creek. If no other landfills are put into use, relieving the load on this one site, it is estimated that it would be filled to capacity within a matter of months.

Machinery purchases were made on the basis of low bids. They follow: A crawler dozer, Model 623, $31,985, trade-in allowed on the county's TD15, purchased from the Whayne Supply Co., Louisville, a loader-backhoe for $12,554 and a General Model 1000 Tagalong trailer for $2,439, both from Machinery, Inc., Charleston, W. Va.

In other action the court paid Geisler Rhodes Associates $3,071.67 for core drilling the site of the proposed core-house annex here.

Johnson Couple Held Here After Deputy Slaying

A Johnson county man and his wife were brought to the Floyd county jail early Sunday from Johnson county for safekeeping after a Johnson county sheriff had been shot and instantly killed.

Charged with first degree murder in the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Robin Fairchild, 31, at Kears, are Johnny and Vera Preston. Bond has not been set for either, and a formal arraignment is not expected until after the victim's funeral.

Fairchild was shot in the back of his head with a bullet from a .38-caliber revolver. The shot was apparently fired from a second-floor apartment of the Prestons and at a distance of about 17 feet.

This Town... That World

This weather somehow brings to mind the story illustrating the power of kindness by telling of the wind whooping and whooping and failing to make the man take off his coat and of the kindly sun then turning on its power. The only weakness of the story is this: Kindly, old Sol couldn't make the man put on his coat again.

TWO VERSIONS

The first sign posted on my office wall after we returned to this location read: "Bless This Mess." Then, whether by design or by accident, somebody placed directly beneath that a picture of Dewey Lake.

The latest adornment of the wall reads, in part:

We have done so much
With so little
For so long
We are now qualified
To do anything
With nothing.
That's layin' it on pretty thick, we admit, but we are not the only ones who changed the lines to read like this:
We have done so little
With so much
For so long
We are now qualified
To do nothing
With anything
Take your choice

New Lab To Serve Coal Industry

Preparing a "bomb" used in determining the b.t.u. content of coal are, left, John A. Sallsbury, and Mike Jarvis, technicians at the new coal-testing laboratory recently opened near Sugar Loaf. At far left is Cleo Akers, of Dwaile, former technician for the Princess Elkhorn Coal Company, who acted in an unpaid advisory capacity in equipping the laboratory.

The region's newest coal-testing laboratory, TEMCO, Inc., opened in this new structure on old US 23, near Sugar Loaf, last week. Cleo Akers, of Dwaile, who for 22 years was a technician in the Princess Elkhorn Coal Company's laboratory at David, acted in an advisory capacity in most of the selection of equipment for the new lab and in the training of personnel. "This is the best in Eastern Kentucky," Mr. Akers said last week. The 50 by 20-foot, three-room building was erected by Harry Hale Ranier, Prestonsburg coal operator, adjacent to his headquarters near Sugar Loaf. "And," said Akers, "he didn't spare himself when he bought the equipment—he bought the best, although cheaper equipment might have done the job."

Heading the laboratory are Mike Jarvis, who has a mathematics degree from Eastern Kentucky State University, and John A. Sallsbury, graduate majoring in chemistry from Eastern Kentucky State University.

UMW Sets Labor Day Rally Here

Miners of District To Observe Holiday In Varied Program

The celebration of Labor Day by the United Mine Workers of America, which annually attracts to Eastern Kentucky its biggest single gathering of the year, will be held at Archer Park here, next Monday.

The annual observance is sponsored by District 30, United Mine Workers of America, one of the heaviest coal-producing areas in the nation.

The Archer Park Labor Day rally will begin at 10 a. m., and a full day's program of music, contests and varied entertainment has been planned, according to George Vaughan, chairman, and Bill Loone, secretary, of the UMW Labor Day Celebration Committee.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins and Squire Felner, president of District 30, will be on the speaking program. Arnold Miller, UMW president, may not be able to attend the celebration, it was said this week.

The Labor Day committee will give away during the day a new 1975 automobile, a color TV set and an automatic shogun. The oldest UMW member present will also receive a prize. Internal executive board members and all presidents and members of other districts have been invited to attend the celebration, and the committee emphasized that all members of the UMW, their families and friends are urged to be present for the occasion which historically honors working people.

Raid Not End Of Day's Work, Lewis Learns

Sherriff Joe W. Lewis thought he had done a fair night's work with the confiscation of 61 cases of beer and a small quantity of whiskey and the arrest of two men, shortly after Monday midnight, but he hadn't finished.

He had just retired for the night, sometime after 2 a. m., when a call came from Jack's Creek that a man had been shot there. Within an hour he had arrested Harold Bolen, Jr., who allegedly had shot and wounded Henry Hall, of Perry county.

Bolen ended only a week ago a year's stay in jail here and in two hospitals for examination after he had blinded Hillard Akers with a shot fired in the vicinity of the Tuesday morning shooting.

Hall was taken to a Whitesburg hospital, suffering wounds in the face and leg from a .25-caliber automatic pistol. Bolen was returned to jail.

Arrested earlier in the night by Sheriff Lewis and Deputy Sheriff Eddie (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Employees' Vote On Union Viewed

It became almost certain this week that a National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) election will be held to determine if employees of the Highlands Regional Medical Center will be unionized.

Certainty of an NLRB-conducted poll of hospital employees rests on three facts:

1. Employees last Thursday presented a written request for recognition of the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees (NWHU-AFL-CIO) as their bargaining agent.

2. At the same time a petition for an election was filed with the NLRB regional office in Cincinnati in the event that the hospital management will not comply with the request.

3. The request has not been granted. (The alphabetical RSU used in identification of the union refers to the Retail and Wholesale Department Stores Union, it was said.)

Dan Stewart, organizer for the union, said in the written request for recognition of the union, it was pointed out that "the vast majority of all fulltime and regular part-time employees of the Highlands Regional Medical Center" joined in the request. "We are willing," the request added, "to substantiate the authenticity of our representation rights through a third party and to commence contract negotiations on wages, hours and terms and conditions of employment for these employees."

Perkins Speaks At Head Start Training Meet

"The program is here to stay," Congressman Carl D. Perkins assured a large group of Head Start teachers and staff members who gathered at Prestonsburg Community College last Friday for an in-service training seminar.

Addressing the group in the auditorium of the Pike Technology building on the PCC campus, the Seventh district congressman called the Head Start program "one of the greatest programs we've ever enacted in Congress in terms of what can be done for rural child development," and he vowed that bills would be passed supporting the program.

Perkins pointed out that he considered the primary importance of the Head Start program was "to assure that children from rural areas having early preparation more closely approximating the backgrounds of children from more affluent situations."

Third Drowning At Dewey Lake Claims Boy, 7

Dewey Lake, which for two years had escaped tragedy, last Sunday afternoon claimed its third victim within a month.

Seven-year-old Christopher Watkins, of Salsersville, drowned in the Stratton Branch arm of the lake, a short distance from the state-owned swimming pool.

Although the area was crowded, nobody apparently saw the child drown. Hillard Hall, who was walking along the lake shore, discovered the victim in about four feet of water at 4:30 p. m. It is believed the child had drowned as long as 30 minutes earlier.

Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation by David Allen, lifeguard at the nearby pool, and other efforts at artificial respiration failed.

Other recent lake victims were Lester Howard drowned in the German area, and Robert Dean Thomas, who drowned near Goble Branch.

The week-end was one marked by water tragedies in the area. At Grayson Reservoir Naomi Johnson, 66, of Ironville, was killed when the motorboat in which she was a passenger was rammed by another craft which was towing two

Gas Company Claims Firm Uprooted Lines

A restraining order in each case and a total of $112,201.85 are asked in three circuit court suits filed last week.

The Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company last Friday asked of the Triple Elkhorn Mining Company and its head, Harry Hale Ranier, $27,201.85 damages to its gas lines during stripmining operations and $25,000 punitive damages, plus a permanent injunction against further destruction of its lines.

Two days earlier, the Black Hawk Mining Co., a Prestonsburg-based partnership composed of Max E. Kofford and Wesley Blackburn, claimed $50,000 damages of Winston G. Taylor and William E. Damron. Plaintiffs alleged that Taylor and Blackburn closed a roadway and refused them permission to enter on coal property which they have under lease on the Crooked Branch of Johns Creek. The temporary injunction which they ask would restrain defendants from interfering in any way with them in beginning mining operations and specifically, from denying them the right to use the surface of the property for the purpose of moving equipment across the road to the property to be mined.

In the third action Paul R. Gearheart, Elaine Gearheart, Jim Steele and Mae H. Hinchman claim $2,500 damages each and ask an injunction against Max Kofford and the Harold Paul Company. Plaintiffs allege defendants have barricaded a road and prevented access to their property, near Bidlam. Specific claims of damage made by Kentucky West Virginia follow.

"Talking" Books Fill Vital Need

A recording of Hillbilly Women by Kathie Kahn made a Top Ten list last year in Kentucky.
 Hillbilly Women is not a song, however. It's a talking book, and one of the most popular titles circulated during 1975 by the Kentucky Regional Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped (LBPH).

Other favorites were Memories of Old Jack by Wendell Berry and Walter de la Mare's Stories from the Bible.

The LBPH provided 101,455 free books and magazines on a regular basis to more than 2,000 Kentuckians last year, according to LBPH director Dena Wilson.

LBPH readers include not only blind Kentuckians, but also people with other handicapping conditions (such as cerebral palsy and stroke) that prevent them from reading or holding conventionally printed material.

Figures for the 1975 fiscal year show that the most frequently used LBPH materials were long-playing records on which books and magazines are read by persons certified by the Library of Congress. The LBPH circulated 72,789 talking books and 16,567 magazines on record last year.

Another popular talking book format is the tape recorded cassette "Between February, 1974 and July, 1975 the number of our readers regularly using cassette players increased from 43 to 860." Mrs. Wilson said. The Library of Congress, which provides most of the material the LBPH circulates, plans to concentrate on cassette books in the future, she noted.

The library circulated 296 magazines and 9,303 books on cassette tape during fiscal year 1975.

Participants in the LBPH program receive record players and cassette players at no charge. They receive and return books by mail, postage free, for loan periods of one month.

Some readers use catalogs to pick reading material. Others choose to receive books selected by LBPH staff members who are familiar with the categories of books each reader enjoys. The LBPH served about 150 Kentuckians with Braille material last year. However, for many people blindness came with old age, making it difficult for them to master Braille. "These people rely on recorded material for information and entertainment," Mrs. Wilson said. "There are about 60 nursing homes on the LBPH mailing list."

Mrs. Wilson said that the LBPH hopes to increase the number of blind and physically handicapped readers during the coming year. "Many Kentuckians who could benefit from the talking book program don't realize they are eligible," she said. "We are trying to inform as many people as possible about the free services we offer."

Proposed Courthouse Move In Rowan Draws Protests

Morehead businessmen have joined residents in protesting Rowan county fiscal court's decision to locate the new courthouse two miles from downtown.
 Businessmen said they feel the courthouse relocation will cause deterioration of the downtown business district.

The proposed new site, formerly the Pine Crest Children's Home, is located on the connector road to Interstate 54 in a newly annexed section of Morehead already populated by businesses and homes.

Besides a Holiday Inn and other commercial enterprises already in the area, a Heck's discount store and a 20-business shopping center are planned for the area.

The site includes two buildings and 25 acres of land, and plans call for rebuilding an existing house to be used as the jail and jailer's quarters.

The present jail was condemned four years ago following an unexpected investigation by county officials and local media representatives. The jail was a Works Projects Administration structure built during the depression.

With that in mind, an effort was made to plan for a courthouse complex that would house county and city jails, city hall, courthouse offices and fire station, but no plans were made.

The brick courthouse, built in 1890, has been in bad repair in recent years and has come under fire from grand juries. The present courthouse took the place of a building which stood from 1863 to 1890.

The original courthouse, built 119 years ago, burned during the Civil War, the victim of a torch.

The current site is part of a 117-acre tract purchased in 1950 from Mr. and Mrs. Glennis Fraley by Kentucky Baptists, who operated the Pine Crest Home for 15 years. After that, the state leased the facility and used it as a detention center for boys and a treatment center for girls.

Wanted: Return to Simple Life

What a relief and blessing it would be to parent and children alike, if the past could be lifted from the present and the old-fashioned one-room schools brought back again to teach the lessons of morality for which they were noted.

A flick of the mind, and the massive monuments to knowledge become silent. Their frightening corridors are empty of turbulence and crime, and the arrogant wave of delinquency loses its sting.

The thought is but a wish, the vision but a dream, and reality gives a denial to both. Time and circumstance build new paths over the old, and there is no way of separating the one from the other.

Yet, there is strength to be drawn from the past. Memory is not a stand-in for reality; it is reality, and we live the fuller life today by making yesterday a part of it.

As long as there is remembering, there is hope for a return to the simple life with its firm emphasis on morality and spiritual and social values which give us strength and nerve.

Children fortunate enough to study the McGuffey books not only became well grounded in the three R's, they learned to practice the virtues of a moralistic society which degraded honesty and individual effort and consideration for others.

At Athens, he expelled so many students that in the class of 1841 only one senior remained to receive a diploma.

Today's revival of the McGuffey tradition is understandably limited in scope. However, the Readers are in use as textbooks in private and parochial schools in certain states, notably Ohio, Pennsylvania and California.

As in their earlier days, the books are a wonderful source for teaching reading and spelling, to say nothing of their value for establishing moral habits.

McGuffey, born in 1800, was himself a college professor at Cincinnati College and later at Ohio University at Athens. He was a stern disciplinarian at the college level, practicing what he preached throughout the moral context of his books.

From such a hope come our dreams, giving life to memory.

Our Yesterdays

(Items taken from The Floyd County Times, 10, 20, 30 and 40 years ago)

Ten Years Ago

Fire of undetermined origin partially destroyed the Wayland Fountain building, early last Thursday morning. The Appalachian Regional Commission last Wednesday allocated $747,000 to Kentucky for conservation purposes. Oliver Price, 48, formerly of Cliff, was fatally crushed Monday when a truck passed over his body at the Ohio state fairgrounds in Columbus.

Twenty Years Ago

Beginning of classwork at the new Floyd County high school here will be delayed a week to 10 days while important features of the big structure are being completed. Otis D. Spurlock, principal, said Wednesday. The Floyd County Council for Retarded Children, the class organized for the training of retarded youngsters is now in its third month of work in Martin. County Clerk Duffan Moore told The Times this week that whoever made changes on the election commissioners' book containing the tabulated vote of the recent primary election failed to achieve anything, because two tally sheets signed by the election commissioners for each of the county's 60 precincts and bearing the correct returns had been kept by him under lock and key.

Thirty Years Ago

Following last week's primary, election contest suits were filed by D. H. (Dave) Hatcher, Joe W. Tackett, Circuit Judge Henry Stephens and B. B. Salisbury. Approximately $200,000 worth of building is being carried out in or near Prestonsburg as post-war construction indicates a boom. Prestonsburg is one of 150 other locations across the country under consideration as the site for the U. S. Bureau of Mines' experimental coal hydrogenation plant. New highs in coal production are anticipated by Eastern Kentucky coal mine officials with the end of the war and the prospect of many former miners returning from the service.

Forty Years Ago

In addition to construction and rock surfacing of farm-to-market roads on Mud Creek, Salt Lick Creek and Abbott Creek, new Works Progress Administration projects approved within the last few days include street paving here and beautification of the Wayland school grounds. Recount of the vote in the Representative's race in this county, a result of the election contest suit filed by Mel Petty, was announced Wednesday afternoon. The smallest murder docket in years is in prospect for the September term of the Floyd circuit court—only four murder cases were booked for hearing.

HELP Line Runs Both Ways

Robert Castle (standing), MCC Help Center staff member, supervises Glen Franko, Prestonsburg High School senior in his work as a Volunteer HELP Line worker.

School has reopened, and Glen Franko, a senior at Prestonsburg High School, is facing the year of his big decision. "Where to from here?" Perhaps his decision may be favorably influenced by his experiences of the summer.

As a member of Teens Who Care, Young Franko volunteered his services to Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's HELP Line Service at the HELP Center here.

In preparation for assisting with the telephone answering service which is geared toward offering help in a variety of ways, he attended a seminar on Crisis Intervention, conducted by Dr. Kim Ahlusaad for MCC's staff members who are involved in working with crisis situations. In addition, he received private tutoring and on-the-job training from his supervisor Robert Castle, one of MCC's permanent HELP Center staff members.

Asked about his seemingly unique ability, he said that he has always enjoyed helping people, that communicating with them adds a sense of richness to his life, a feeling of relationship with the past, and a deeper understanding of the things in life's experiences which constitute the diversity in attitude between the young and the old.

"I feel like I have gained more this summer than I have given by working on the HELP Line," he said, "and especially through my opportunity to work with the two elderly callers. I really feel as if I became friends with them, and I think they feel the same way."

Perhaps it was a valuable experience for three levels of people—those who called for help, Glen Franko, the volunteer, and the staff at MCC. Robert Castle, who supervised young Franko's summer experience, admits that he was at first dubious about the benefit of having a teenage volunteer for the summer.

"I felt that there was a good chance that Glen's service would constitute more of a liability than an asset," he said. "But it wasn't long before I changed my mind. Glen was both willing and capable of accepting responsibility. In addition, he has a surprising amount of insight and just sheer capability. His services have been worth as much to us as any fulltime paid staff's. He has certainly helped change my mind about teenagers."

Such damage suits as filed represent only the claims of plaintiffs.

Andrew Jackson Case

Andrew Jackson Case, 90, of Roseville, Michigan, formerly of Harold, died Monday at Mt. Clemons, Michigan after an extended illness.

A member of the Free Will Baptist Church for 15 years, he was born August 15, 1885 at Harold, a son of the late Henry and Phoebe Collins Case. His wife, Dolly Case, survives.

Also surviving are six sons, Jim Case, of Blounts, Tennessee; Findlay Case, of Betsy Layne; Bert Case, of Harold; Thomas Case, of Roseville; Jack Donald Case, of Adrian, Michigan; and A. J. Case, of Lucasville. There are eight daughters, Mrs. Mary Roberts, of Harold; Mrs. Cindy Kidd, Dana, Mrs. Couchie Tackett, Printer; Mrs. Margaret Baldrige, of Prestonsburg; Mrs. Margie Conn, Fort Huron, Michigan; Mrs. Mae Conn, Banner; Mrs. Jacqueline Ganison, of Cincinnati; and Bernice Case, of Lexington. Two sisters, Mrs. Cindy Price, of Mesa, Arizona, and Mrs. Mary Blevins, of Pikeville, two half-brothers, Josh Case and Dallas Case, both of New London, O., and a half-sister, Gannie Spears, of New London, Ohio. Mr. Case also leaves 77 grandchildren, 116 great grandchildren and 18 great-great grandchildren.

Burial services were conducted Thursday at 2 p.m. at the Little Salem Church at Dana with Robert Owens and Eugene Case the officiating ministers. Burial was made in the Moore cemetery at Harold under the direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Ruth Stephens Allen
Mrs. Ruth Stephens Allen, 65, of Sunnyvale, Calif., formerly of Wayland and Langley, died Thursday, August 21, at March Air Force Base Hospital near Sunnyvale following a brief illness.

Born June 12, 1910, she was a daughter of the late Eli and Fannie Patton Stephens and was the widow of Charlie Allen who died in 1948.

Survivors include a son, Chief M-Sgt. Delmar Allen, of Honolulu, Hawaii; four daughters, Mrs. Doris Robinson, of Langley; Mrs. Velma Pruitt, of Sunnymead, Cal.; Mrs. Anna Faye Uria, of El Centro, Cal.; Mrs. Nancy Wicker, of Loveland, O.; two brothers, Millard Stephens, of Langley, and Ballard Stephens, of Martin; a sister, Mrs. Betty Lou Riley, of Baltimore; three stepdaughters, Mrs. Hazel Coburn, of Ashland; Mrs. Ruth Hancock, of Cincinnati; and Mrs. Edna Bentley Belcher, of Garrett. Thirteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services were conducted at 10 a.m., Tuesday, at Hall Brothers chapel by ministers of the Methodist Church. Burial was made in the Bradley Allen cemetery at La Grley.

D.A.V. PICNIC SET SEPTEMBER 7

The Disabled American Veterans, Chapter 128 of Garrett, and the DAV auxiliary unit 128 of Garrett are planning a picnic, September 7, at Red River Gorge, near Slade, Kentucky. All members are cordially invited to attend this picnic. Bring a picnic lunch along with soft drinks and an extra chair or two.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

After much thought and consideration, and in a combined effort to better serve this community in their capacity as funeral directors, neither the Hindman Funeral Home nor the Caseloft, Hoskins and Cox Funeral Home will offer an ambulance service as of September 1, 1975.

The two establishments mutually agree that it is no longer financially feasible to offer an ambulance service. This is no longer possible due to substantially increased operating costs and recently enacted governmental requirements.

This is a necessary step in order that both Caseloft, Hoskins and Cox Funeral Home and Hindman Funeral Home will be able to offer the same high standard of service in the future as they have in the past in their capacity as funeral directors.

Animal Shelter Site at Martin May Be Chosen

Well on its way toward establishing an animal shelter to serve the county, the recently formed Floyd County Humane Society designated the Martin vicinity as the area best suited for construction of the shelter.

"We decided that a central location in the county would better serve all sections of the county," said society secretary Debbie Burke. Society meetings, which were for a time held at the Clark school, near here, are now being conducted at the Martin Grade School due to increased involvement by persons from all over Floyd county.

"We need at least two acres," said Mrs. Burke, "and we'd rather lease, although we'd certainly consider purchasing a good tract of land."

Money for the founding of the animal shelter will consist primarily of approximately $30,000 which was donated to Floyd county as part of the bequest of a Middleboro woman, Susan Hawkins Laebug, who left similar amounts to other communities in the state for the founding of humane societies and animal shelter construction.

The Floyd society has thus far established an accepted by-laws, elected a board of directors, and has applied for incorporation as well as membership in the U. S. Humane Society.

The next meeting will be held next Tuesday at the Martin Grade School at 7 p.m. President of the group is John Burke, Jr., of Prestonsburg.

Asks Squad Search For Missing Man

Capt. Graham Burchett of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad, said Tuesday morning that he has been asked by Mrs. Harford Burchett, wife of Betsy Layne area, to make a search of the Upper Dewey Lake section for her husband who has been missing since Saturday.

Unless other traces of his whereabouts are found, it was said, the lake may be dragged in the German area.

The Burchetts, the Rescue Squad leader was told, regularly spend their week-end in the area. Last Saturday morning Mrs. Burchett was delayed in her departure from home. Her husband left for their campsite, and was seen driving his truck up the mountain between Cow Creek and the lake area. When Mrs. Burchett arrived at the place where she was to meet her husband, she found no trace of him, it was reported.

Hearing Slated September 9 On New Assessment Formula

A proposed formula for assessing farm land based on its income-producing capacity will be the subject of the legislative hearing in the Senate September 9 at 1 p.m. in J. 111.

Representatives of farm organizations, county property valuers, administrators of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and several state agencies will be invited to comment on the formula, which is designed to carry out the intent of a 1960 amendment to the Kentucky Constitution.

The amendment called for farm land to be assessed based on its value for agricultural use, rather than its potentially greater value for residential, commercial or industrial development.

Members of the public are invited to speak on the proposed formula as well. Those wishing to testify at the hearing must notify Brooks Tuley of the Legislative Research Commission staff, State Capitol, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, 7 days before the September 9 hearing.

The 1970 General Assembly passed legislation directing farm land assessments to be based on the sale price of comparable land in the area.

Critics, including Senator John M. Berry, Jr., of New Castle, who is chairman of the subcommittee on Assessment of Agricultural Land, say the current basis for assessments is artificial. Often, they contend, speculators and "hobby farmers" buy land at prices far exceeding its value for farm purposes which, in turn, causes assessments on other property in the area to increase.

The proposed legislation says that in order to qualify for the lower assessment a farm must produce a minimum annual gross income, which would vary according to the size of the farm but in no case would be less than $100.

At present, a farm qualifies for the lower assessment regardless of its size if it produces an annual gross income of $100 or more. There is evidence that it will produce that amount.

Berry says the bill would give more specific guidelines for assessing farm property and would carry out the intent of the constitutional amendment.

Natural Bridge

Powell - Wolfe Counties

Natural Bridge has excited Americans since long before the days of Daniel Boone; the area is full of Indian relics, shelters and burial grounds. It has been estimated that the formation of the impressive natural arch took more than a million years.

The ridge of which the bridge is a part, is the dividing line for Powell and Wolfe counties; however, the State Resort Park is in Powell, and reference is therefore generally made as such.

The park contains acres of rugged, wooded land which includes many trails leading to some of the other natural and man-made wonders, including a cave, towering rock formations, and even luxuries as a lake, a lodge, cabins, pavilion, swimming pool and camping areas.

Natural Bridge forms an arch with an opening 78 feet in length and 65 feet high. There are more than 15 million pounds of rock in suspension, supported by 600 immense abutments. The rock at the center of the arch is 40 feet thick and 30 feet wide at the top, and flat enough to actually serve as a bridge.

The view from the bridge is of the magnificent Daniel Boone National Forest. The surroundings are actually what makes this bridge so much more interesting than other similar natural arch structures, notably in Kentucky, Virginia and Utah.

The area was originally owned by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, and was a very popular excursion trip around the turn of the century. It was turned over to the state about 1926, with the intention that State ownership and more intensive improvements would give the park the place it deserved in the ranks of national playgrounds.

It was among the first Kentucky State Parks and retains the honor of being one of the most popular State Resort Parks even today.

Civil Preparedness Education To Help Students in Emergency

Frankfort, Ky.—How Kentucky students and their teachers react in case of flooded, fire or other emergency may well depend on a program being carried out by the state Department of Education.

Allocating responsibility in case of an emergency and presenting school districts with a model emergency plan are two parts of the program, directed by June Preston, a former education specialist with the Department of Military Affairs' division of disaster and emergency services.

An important part of Miss Preston's job is helping Kentucky's school districts work out definite plans to follow during specific emergency situations. She has already helped develop plans in use in eight school districts in Kentucky.

When Miss Preston works with a school district, she often gives them a model emergency plan that they can adapt to fit their particular needs.

This plan specifies who is responsible for certain emergency tasks such as notifying the police or fire department (the principal's duty) and checking to see that children are missing (the teacher's responsibility).

It also includes sample letters to be sent to parents to determine if they want their children to remain at school or to be sent home or to a neighbor's house in case warning of an emergency is received in time to permit students to reach home before being exposed to danger.

In the past there have been some effective, but scattered, programs for emergency planning in Kentucky," said John Manning, head of the Bureau of Instruction's division of program development. "Through June Preston, we hope to help local superintendents throughout the state prepare their districts for emergencies.

Another aspect of Miss Preston's job is assisting in the development of a disaster preparedness curriculum designed to help students understand the consequences of different types of civil emergencies and how to avoid these consequences, Miss Preston said.

To accomplish this goal, Miss Preston is introducing school systems to a student book and teacher's guide called "Your Chance To Live," which was produced by the national Defense Civil Preparedness Agency.

"Your Chance To Live" deals with emergencies ranging from forest fires and severe weather to atomic disasters and power failures. The material is available to schools free by contacting Miss Preston. Teachers may also borrow 16 mm films, filmstrips and cassettes to accompany the text.

"After studying 'Your Chance To Live,' we students probably know more about what to do in an emergency than most adults do," wrote a Bourbon County student whose class was asked to evaluate the program.

"The only problem with 'Your Chance To Live' is that it is aimed primarily for junior high school students," Miss Preston said. To remedy this situation the Bureau of Instruction is now developing a special disaster education curriculum for the elementary grades.

Earlier this year, Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. Lyman V. Gieger appointed an advisory committee on disaster education made up of school administrators, teachers, and curriculum specialist, other educators and Military Affairs officials who helped to develop this curriculum.

Their work should be ready for Kentucky elementary teachers this fall or by early next spring, according to Miss Preston. In addition to teaching students how to prepare for emergencies, the material will help them deal with the emotional aftermath of a disaster, with fears and apprehensions all too familiar to teachers in areas of Kentucky hit by last year's tornado.

Miss Preston attended Morehead State University and Kentucky State University. She worked for two years in the former Civil Defense area office in Paintsville before transferring to Frankfort. She has taken classes and attended workshops at the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency staff college in Battletree, Mich.

Anyone interested in future information about civil preparedness in the schools may contact June Preston at 1939 Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort 40601.

Coal Firm, Union Hearing Postponed

A hearing set last week for complaints filed against the United Mine Workers of America (UMW) and the Martin County Coal Corp. by the National Labor Relations Board has been postponed until Oct. 6, the board announced.

The complaints concerned alleged illegal activities arising from a unionization drive in Martin county earlier this year. A unionization vote apparently failed 135-127, but the election has not been certified by the NLRB because of 20 votes challenged by the union.

Charges against Martin County Coal include illegal firing of five workers involved in the union drive.

Charges against the coal workers include damaging company cars on two occasions, assaulting a newspaper reporter and assaulting three company sympathizers.

The hearing will be heard at the Model County courthouse in Catlettsburg.

Electric Power Complex Under FPC Investigation

The Ashland Daily Independent reported last Wednesday that the American Electric Power Co. which owns seven electric utility companies, including Kentucky Power Co., is under investigation by the Federal Power Commission.

Focusing on the coal dealings of the company, the nation's largest private utility, the FPC is setting a precedent. This is the first time the agency has ever investigated coal-buying practices and "fuel adjustment" rates.

Kentucky Power, based in Ashland, buys about 2.5 million tons of coal per year to serve its 119,000 customers in Eastern Kentucky. The company buys all its coal from Eastern Kentucky, which supplies coal to two other AEP companies.

An American Power company has taken option on 10,336 acres of coal land in Knott, Perry and Breathitt counties and has been conducting core drillings there.

The prices a utility company pays for fuel from an affiliated company are fixed by a Securities and Exchange Commission formula.

AEP coal companies furnish about 11 percent of the coal burned by AEP power plants, and the company wants to increase that amount.

The FPC spokesman said the commission became interested in the matter last November when it received a letter from the Appalachian Research and Defense, Inc. of West Virginia.

The letter raised questions such as the pricing of "affiliate-produced coal" in retail fuel adjustment clauses; a too-heavy reliance on "spot" market rather than long-term coal purchases; shifting of coal among AEP subsidiaries; anti-regulation advertising campaigns; and failure of AEP companies to meet federal clear air standards.

David Ellis, a rate analyst for the West Virginia Public Service Commission last September said the company made $2 million extra in 1974 by over-estimating fuel costs.

Earlier this year the West Virginia legislature abolished the fuel adjustment clause.

The FPC said its investigation would not interfere with the authority of the SEC.

AEP companies operate generating stations along the Ohio River and one at Louisa on the Big Sandy—and a new plant, near Ghent, Ky., is planned.

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT CR 10,145

Rhoda Violet Hagans Hunt . . . Pl.
VS. NOTICE OF SALE
Paul Ray Hunt, Rose Hunt, Franklin Hunt, Katherine Hunt, Emogene H. Lafferty, Thomas D. Lafferty, Buell Hunt, Charlene Hunt, Roy Lee Hunt, Sally Ann Hunt, Margie H. Crisp and Herman W. Crisp . . . Defs.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the February 5 term, 1975 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 3rd day of September, 1975 at 11 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

That certain tract or parcel of land that was conveyed the late Leo Hunt and Violet Hunt, his wife, by deed of March 29, 1971, from Henry and America Crider as recorded March 30, 1971, in Deed Book 204, page 564, in the Floyd County Court Clerk's office, lying and being on the waters of Home Branch of Buffalo Creek in Floyd County, Kentucky, described more particularly as follows, viz:

Beginning at a planted stone near the old road, thence up a drain to a steep to a marked rock, thence a straight line to a marked rock near a mulberry tree, thence across the branch to a marked rock on top of the point to Curtis Jervis's line, thence running with the Curtis Jervis line east to a marked rock near a mulberry tree, thence with the old county road down the road to the beginning, containing five acres, more or less, and including all improvements on the property, one trailer or mobile home.

This property is being sold to settle the estate of the late Leo Hunt.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 13th day of August, 1975.

Lavish and controversial ads urging the U. S. to "dig more coal," stop using sophisticated pollution devices at coal-burning power plants and reject federal strip-mine laws have been conducted by American Power, and have now become a target for the FPC.

An FPC spokesman said his group would investigate the utility's "advertising policies, practices and expenditures relating to strip mining and provisions of the Clean Air Act, learn about the procurement and use of fuel supplies throughout the AEP system; and consider the wholesale fuel adjustment charges of AEP subsidiaries."

The FPC says it has authority to investigate the company as part of its duty to regulate price of electricity sold wholesale in interstate commerce. The action was brought about by complaints that Appalachian Power Co., AEP's West Virginia subsidiary, had made unfair profits on its "fuel adjustment charge" and was lax in attempts to cut fuel costs.

Many states, including Kentucky, have approved fuel adjustment charges to allow utilities to automatically adjust their rates to match changes in the price of fuel.

The FPC says it cannot judge the West Virginia case without investigating the AEP system as a whole.

A spokesman for the FPC said "Appalachian Power is but one member of a large, complex system of interconnected companies which operate as a single, integrated system. An investigation of the entire AEP system as it relates to coal is required."

Hearings will begin Oct. 1 and could be a test of the fuel adjustment concept, the object of an increasing number of consumer complaints. Hearings have added importance since both President Gerald Ford and his critics agree that utilities will have to use more coal in the future.

AEP Chairman Donald C. Cook, responded to the Aug. 4 FPC order, and said: "We welcome the opportunity to present the facts on our total coal operations to a responsible federal agency and thus to lift the matter above the local political activity of greedy coal producers who would stop at nothing to deny us the opportunity to develop our own fuel supply at costs well below their inflated selling prices."

More Than 1,000 Workers Added To Single State Department

Frankfort, Ky. The rapid rise of unemployment in Kentucky in the past year and the accompanying increase in the demand for social services has caused an increase of 1,072 full-time workers since January in the Kentucky Department for Human Resources (DHR).

As Kentuckians felt the recession's pinch more and more, the case loads in the areas of food stamps and unemployment insurance increased.

Field service clerical and eligibility worker needs in the Bureau of Social Insurance resulted in adding 430 full-time workers in the six months from January through June.

Additionally, 354 new workers for the Administration and Operations Bureau were required to meet the need for more computer programmers, key punch operators and other clerical staff and support personnel.

An overall total of 1,520 employees, including temporary summer personnel and part-time help, have been added to the Department for Human Resources since January, but the salaries of 1,280 of them are fully or partially paid by federal funds.

The federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) provides funds through state or local governments to give work to those who are unemployed or classified by Washington as underemployed or financially disadvantaged.

There are 241 CETA-funded new employees in the state and 139 of them are working as clerks, food stamp and unemployment interviewers and mini-home and personal care home examiners in DHR.

Since January, under the CETA program, the federal government has made just under $27 million available to state, county and city governments to provide employment in public service jobs.

Approximately 4,000 Kentuckians have jobs in these programs.

The CETA jobs are, of course, entirely dependent upon the federal government's willingness to continue them.

Another factor that has had an upward effect on the numbers of employees in Kentucky government in recent months is the need to keep pace with state and federal programs. This effort to maintain high service standards has affected practically every agency of state government.

The Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection employed 85 new full-time workers in the first six months of 1975. Of this number, 34 are in the CETA-funded category.

Two new divisions, sanitary engineering and plumbing—and the need for compliance with new federal programs are responsible for the increase. These include new inspectors in the pesticides program, intensification of the forestry incentive program, dealing with new legislation on surface disturbance by underground mining and new environmentalists hired in the division of solid waste.

Between January and July, the Bureau of Public Safety had taken on 38 new state troopers. Additionally, 13 other new employees are involved in the federally-funded regional crime laboratory program and in implementing a statewide uniform accident reporting system for the Commonwealth.

A new state park and two new camping areas were opened this summer by the Kentucky Department of Parks, which increased its payroll by 120 employees. There are 37 employed at the new E. P. Sawyer State Park in Jefferson County, 43 new employees at Fort Harrod and its new camping area and 12 additional workers at the new campsite at Hough River Dam State Park.

The Kentucky Department of Education added 65 people during the six months ending June 30, more than half of them in the expanded area of vocational education. The School for the Deaf, the new Bureau of Education for Exceptional Children and the increased availability to school districts of surplus federal goods constituted the bulk of the increased hiring.

The Governor's Office is another agency of state government in which increases in the scope of its work added to the size of the staff.

On Jan. 8, 1975, in announcing a reorganization of his office, the governor said, "I intend to see that my office takes the lead in meeting the needs of Kentuckians in a responsible, coordinated and professional manner."

"The governor of Kentucky has the full responsibility of overseeing the operation of the largest business in Kentucky, 'the people's business,'" Gov. Carroll continued, "and we are responsible for the efficient expenditure of a $5 billion budget and the productivity of the work of 30,000 employees.

This cannot be done by the government alone and cannot be done well by essentially the same size staff governments have had for many years.

When Gov. Carroll took office the number of staff personnel that had been employed there was 19. It has increased by 13 employees.

There are state government agencies whose personnel rosters decreased in numbers during the first two quarters of 1975.

The Bureau of Highways is one example. From January to July of this year, permanent full-time employees decreased by 81. The drop is due mainly to the loss of skilled trades equipment operators in the Eastern Kentucky coal fields, skilled trades personnel who left for higher salaries and the closing of the toll booths on the Kentucky Turnpike.

The secretary's office of DHR, in another case, dropped 13 workers in the first half of this year.

On Dec. 30, 1974, two days after he took office, Gov. Carroll ordered state agencies to restrict new hiring to the upgrading or continuation of vital programs.

Divisions of state government were also directed to review vacancies and abolish any not critical.

The non-vital vacancies subsequently done away with totaled 3,054.

Using a low first-year salary of $6,000 as an average, Gov. Carroll's action prevented the potential expenditure of more than $18.3 million during this year.

When Gov. Carroll took office in late December, there were 41,645 permanent full-time workers in Kentucky state government. There are now 33,317. The increase of 1,642 is one half of one percent.

So with Gov. Carroll's action on more than 3,000 non-critical vacancies upon taking office and the subsequent employment of only 1,642 additional state workers since then, a ratio now exists of almost two vacancy abatements to every new hiring.

"The necessity to keep a tight control on Kentucky government spending is vital now, more than at any time in recent history," Gov. Carroll said. "I am insistent that every employment action be accompanied by assurances that the job is necessary and must be filled.

"It is obvious, by my actions in recent months and by the extremely low percentage of increase in the face of multiplied needs for new services, that this administration will not be a haven for needless hiring and needless expense to the taxpayer."

Alice Lloyd College Employs Farley, Fields

Lawrence E. Farley has been appointed director of public relations at Alice Lloyd College, and Simeon Fields, of Carrie, Ky., as an associate in Development for Corporate Giving. Farley will coordinate the development of publications, news releases and overall public relations for the College.

Farley comes to the position from York College, where he was director of the news bureau and coordinator of alumni affairs.

Fields will be coordinating activities designed to encourage corporations throughout the United States to take an active role in the funding of Alice Lloyd College.

A lifelong resident of Knott county, Fields has a diversified background as a former school teacher and principal, Navy officer, and as a regional health planner for the Kentucky River Area Development District.

Natural Bridge Books Dance Fest

By HELEN PRESTACAY

There are 12 great natural arches within Daniel Boone National Forest (as well as a number of lesser spans), but what an elderly Powell county man calls the "granddaddy of them all" is the one that gave the name to Natural Bridge State Resort Park, near Slade. Here, almost directly below the 78-foot-long bridge, Richard Jett's 10th annual Western Square Dance Festival will take place, Aug. 29-31.

Hoedown Island with its spacious outdoor dance floor has replaced the old but well-remembered dance pavilion that hugged the Red River on one side and long-gone railroad tracks on the other. But the fun is still the same.

Jett's popular week-end square dances held on Hoedown Island attract large crowds, with most of the dancers in conventional or tourist attire. But when the Western dancers hit the floor, they do so garbed in yards of calico and tulle and colorful men's wear.

The festival gets underway at 7 p.m. Aug. 29 with Bill Claywell of Louisville and Jim Marcum of Lexington doing their bit to make a lively night of entertainment. These two men will conduct a workshop for anyone interested in square dancing, calling and judging at 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 30.

The program from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m., Aug. 30, will feature Claywell, Larry Adams of Indianapolis and Bill Spangler of Newark, Ohio.

On Sunday, Aug. 31, starting at 6:30 p.m., Lanny Rogers and the Kentucky Mountain Barn Dance TV Gang will be featured.

Jett promises that "a good time will be had by all" and adds that the festival, like all his dance and musical programs, "are wholesome and wonderful times to bring the entire family for fun and frolic."

Natural Bridge State Resort Park has other entertainment to fill any gaps for vacationing families. Jett said some visitors might enjoy horseback riding, hiking, riding the skylift, fishing, swimming, nature studies, boating or just sitting on the lodge balcony and looking out over all that beautiful scenery.

Jett explained that more seats had been added to the island for convenience of onlookers. There is a large parking area near the island and nearby concession booths.

"Bring the family for a day or evening of good fellowship," he said. "And if the old folks don't want to do any dancing, they can have fun just watching."

Some visitors like to sit on the balcony at Hemlock Lodge, located well above Hoedown Island, and watch the proceedings. The light and colorful activity—together with Hoedown Island music—make it an experience to remember.

Church Announcements Annual Homecoming

The annual homecoming of the Hueysville Church of Christ will be held Saturday August 30, and Sunday, August 31.

Saturday evening at 7:30, Fred Klaska, minister at Hueysville, will present a history of the Churches of Christ of Floyd county and their plea for unity.

Sunday morning at 11, Cecil Sherman, minister of the Old Philadelphia Church of Christ in Johnson county, will bring the homecoming message. This message will be followed by the homecoming meal.

The Sunday evening service at 7:30 will consist entirely of praises in song, with several groups from area churches participating.

Fred Klaska, minister at Hueysville, cordially invites the public to attend and participate in these services.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the family of Kirby Lee Flannery, wish to thank every one who helped and was a blessing in any way in the time of our sorrow by the death of our loved one. We appreciate those who came, sent flowers, brought food, sent cards and helped us in any way. A special thanks to the ministers, Donnie Hall, Lee Crum and Ronald Gregory for their prayers and consoling words, and to those who sang, also to the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service. May our Lord bless you all.

TROPHYS displayed in photo were valued at $1,100 and were awarded winners and runners-up in Archer Park tournaments.

ALL STARS of the Floyd County Softball League were picked by the various team managers and this year included (front row, left to right): Danny Hamilton, Earl Stevens, Larry Burke, Wimpy Clark, Barry Hall and Phillip Tucker; (back row): Bob Feilber, Mickey Newsome, Tommy Hale, Keith Lawson, and Sam Miller. Joe Castle and Fred Setser were named "Best Offensive Players," and Barry Hall was voted "Best Defensive Player."

82 Teams Vie in Softball Tourney Here; East Ky. Auto Parts Wins Second Championship

East Kentucky Auto Parts' victory over Watts Mobile Homes, of Sellersville, in the Regional Softball Tournament recently at Archer Park here, marked the end of a season of softball competition that has seen a total of 120 mens games being played at the park by 82 teams.

The East Ky. Auto Parts team, which was also regional champion last year, won two and lost two before they were eliminated in the state tournament. East Ky. beat a Glasgow team on the first day of the tournament 9-6, lost to Sir Pizza, of Lexington 11-10, defeated LaRue county 11-10 and lost to Trigg county on the final day of the tourney 3-2.

In the District tournament here, Watts

Mobile Homes won over the Francis Staves team. Third in the district was Owens Construction Company, of Prestonsburg. Trophies valued at $1,100 were awarded tournament winners and runners-up.

Softball league all-stars were chosen by the various team managers. This year's top players include: Danny Hamilton, third base, East Ky. Auto Parts; outfield, Earl Stevens, East Ky. Auto Parts; Larry Burke, shortstop, East Ky. Auto Parts; Wimpy Clark, outfield, East Ky. Auto Parts; Barry Hall, second base, National Mines; Phillip Tucker, outfield, East Ky. Auto Parts; Bob Feilber, pitcher, A & P Coal Co.; Mickey Newsome, first base, Black Hawk Coal Co.; Tommy Hale, shortstop, B & D Motors; Keith Lawson, catcher, East Ky. Auto Parts; Sam Miller, outfield, Watts Mobile Homes; Joe Castle, of the Watts team and Fred Setser, of East Kentucky Auto Parts were named "Best Offensive Players," and Barry Hall, of National Mines, was named "Best Defensive Player."

Under the direction of Bill H. Collins, A.S.A. commissioner of the 7th and 8th "Floyd and Pike" districts, the Floyd County Softball League has become the largest and most active league in Eastern Kentucky and is well-known and respected throughout the state. Featuring a Fourth of July tourney as well as the district, regional and invitational tournaments and with 380 regular league games, it is said that more people play or watch softball in Floyd county.

Untried Cats Open Season at Home

An untried Prestonsburg Blackcat team will open its 1975 football season here Friday night against Breathitt County. With Joey Hyden injured, only three veterans, Sam Isbell, Mike Dixon and Leslie May, remain from last year's squad.

Though short on experience, Coach Phillip Haywood expressed the belief that a combination of confidence and determination can overcome this Speaking of Breathitt County, Coach Haywood said, "We have a great deal of respect for the AAA school and know we will have a tough challenge on our hands."

but for a team that is young and inexperienced, a lot of confidence in our ability to play football."

Trojans Split Two; Play at Home Friday

The Wheelwright football team has split their first two games. Losing to John's Creek in their August 15 opening game, 18-12, in a sudden death. Last Friday the team bounced back to defeat Virgie 22-14.

In their first game with John's Creek, the Trojans played a tough game, outgaining John's Creek 300 to 137 yards. Darren Little had scoring runs from the 2-yard line and the 15-yard line for the Trojans, and gained 111 yards on 20 carries. Dewey Jamerson had 179 yards on 36 carries, Joe Tackett went 2 for 6 in passing for 24 yards, and Tackett also had 16 yards in two carries. The Trojans had 11 first downs. John's Creek scored on the first play of their possession in a sudden death overtime to win the ball game.

In the contest with Virgie, the Trojans pounced quickly in the first quarter, scoring 16 points. The Trojans got on the scoreboard first with a safety, with Ricky Thornberry tackling the ball carrier in the end zone. Following the free kick, Darren Little romped 63 yards for a Trojan touchdown. Dewey Jamerson scored the two extra points. Later in the quarter, Jamerson scored on a run from the 3-yd. line. In the second quarter, Virgie came back with runs of 70 and 15 yards for 14 points. Little later scored on a 17-yard run, his fourth of the year. Darren Little had 87 yards on 17 carries, and Dewey Jamerson had 74 yards on 23 carries. Joe Tackett went two for 10 for 26 yards in the passing department. The Trojans had 12 first downs and 196 yards gained, winning 22-14.

Wheelwright's next game is at home this Friday with Fleming-Neon.

The Bridge

An old man going a lone highway. Come at the evening, cold and grey. To a chasm, vast and deep and wide. Through which was flowing a sullen tide. The old man crossed in the twilight dim. The sullen stream had no fears for him. But he turned when safe on the other side. And built a bridge to span the tide. "Old man" said a fellow Pilgrim near. "You are wasting strength with building here. Your journey will end with the fading day. You never again may pass this way. You have crossed the chasm, deep and wide. Why build you the bridge at eventide?" The builder lifted his old grey head. "Good friend, in the path I have come" he said. "There followeth after me today. A youth whose feet must pass this way. He, too, must cross in the twilight dim. Good friend, I'm building the bridge for him." — Anon.

School Bus Accidents Fewer

Frankfort, Ky.—Despite the fact that there are more school buses on Kentucky roads each year, the number of school bus accidents continues to decrease, according to Paul Jones, director of pupil transportation for the state Department of Education.

Kentucky transports 450,000 pupils each school day—67 per cent of the total enrollment. Appearing on the Department of Education radio program "Education Speaks," Jones credited Kentucky's good safety record to four factors: "better trained drivers, better school bus equipment, improved roadways and greater awareness of school buses by other motorists."

Each summer the Department of Education holds training sessions for school bus drivers around the state. These sessions train new drivers and help experienced drivers keep up with new laws, regulations and school bus safety features.

"Kentucky buys the best in school bus equipment," Jones said. He ranked Kentucky among the top four states in the nation in school bus safety requirements.

"Kentucky was the first to use 12-ply tires and the first to require air brakes and padded seat backs. Padded seat backs have practically eliminated face and dental injuries on the buses," Jones said.

An anti-skid, anti-lock device—operated by computer—protects all buses purchased this year. The computer is programmed to keep brakes from locking during panic stops.

It also allows the bus to come to a stop without skidding, even if some of the wheels are on ice and some are on a dry surface.

Most safety features, however, add to the cost of the school buses. The computerized brakes raise the price of each bus by $1,000, for example.

Jones said Kentucky helps to hold the line on pupil transportation costs by using standard specifications and bidding for the whole state. "Instead of each school district purchasing different kinds of school buses separately, the state buys a large number of buses that are exactly alike," Jones said.

Due to this standardization, Kentucky pays about $2,250 less per school bus than a neighboring state does for buses with comparable specifications.

A large contribution to school bus safety comes from parents, Jones said. By making sure their children arrive at the bus stop on time, parents prevent the school bus from having to wait in a dangerous position on the roadway.

To protect children who meet the school bus before daylight or after sunset, parents should dress them in light-colored clothing, Jones suggested.

He also urged parents to cooperate with school bus drivers and principals in maintaining good order and discipline aboard the buses.

Lexington Firm Makes Low Bid On Lake Work

The P & N Construction Co., Lexington, Ky., is the apparent low bidder on harbor and dock improvements at the Jenny Wiley Boat Dock but a contract had not been awarded as of Tuesday afternoon.

In fact, the low bid was about $20,000 above engineers' estimates. The Times learned it was pointed out, however, that inflation during the two years since the estimates were made is accountable for the higher bid, and it is held possible that a contract may be awarded on the basis of that bid if funds expected from the U. S. Corps of Engineers are made available. A state appropriation of $750,000 was made, months ago, for the work.

One phase of the project is the removal of 12,000 to 14,000 yards of silt from the bottom of Brandy Keg Cove where the dock is located. If this is done, the silt will be deposited in a small hollow, upstream from May Lodge and possibly create a level area large enough for recreational development.

The work there, which has been delayed a year or more, was planned to begin soon after Labor Day. But it is not known at this time when, or if, the contract will be awarded and a work order issued.

George Barker, Jenny Wiley State Park superintendent, said this week he is anxious to learn when work will begin so that boat-owners may be notified in time for the removal of all craft from the harbor.

Take 3 Top Places at Fair

Floyd county 4-H'ers took three of the top four places in the Junior Division of the state 4-H poultry judging competition held during the Kentucky State Fair. John Flanery, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Flanery, of Langley, was the junior champion, scoring 948 points of the 1,000 possible. Richard Hackworth, West Prestonsburg, was third with 880 points. He is the 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Hackworth. Bill Flanery, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Flanery, of Langley, was fourth with 874 points. Savings Bond Chain-Letter Results in Prosecution

If someone asks you to join a money making plan involving chain letters and U. S. Savings Bonds, you'd better refuse. You aren't likely to make any money. It's more likely you'll lose your "investment" to get in on the deal—and it's possible you may be prosecuted for violation of federal, state or local laws.

A few months ago a number of end-less-chain schemes were launched in Southern California. The intermingling organizations were active under several misleading names—Your March of Bonds, Inflation Defense Foundation, Century Club, Exclusive One Million, Inc., Uncle Sam Investment, Inc., Six Pack Club.

The scheme most often used worked this way. The victim became an "active member" by paying $37.50 to a "sponsor". In return, he received a membership list of 10 names and a $25 Savings Bond, recently purchased for $18.75, made payable to the first person on the list. The new "member" made two new membership lists, crossing off the top name on the original list and adding his own name at the bottom. He then purchased two $25 Bonds, payable to the person who was then first on the new lists. He delivered the Bond that came with the first list to the person named personally or by mail.

As a "new member", he was required to pay annual dues of $3 and to purchase membership books, at $1.50 each, to give to the two "new members" he brought into the scheme. The victim had spent $61, but was told he would recover most of his investment when he sold his two lists. He did, in fact, recover $75, if he was able to do so.

However, for one member to receive $19,200—the promised windfall—1,024 new members would have had to join after he did, without the chain's being broken. To achieve "optimum success", the schemes required a membership of 250 times the entire population of the world.

Since the membership lists were originally prepared by the promoters—with their names and addresses or those of their associates heading the lists—the scheme would provide Bonds for the promoters long before—if ever—new members reaped any harvest.

The promoters of that plan used two variations—the "Six Pack", involving lists with only six names, and the "Century Club", which used $100 Bonds, in lieu of $25 Bonds.

The California Attorney General, Los Angeles County District Attorney and the Los Angeles City Attorney cooperated in the investigation, arrests and convictions of the promoters, who were held in violation of the California Penal Code concerning endless-chains and lotteries.

Rather than circulate the lists or the Bonds through the mails, the promoters relied upon meetings in private homes to further their schemes. Had the mails been used, the promoters would have been in violation of the U. S. Code, Title 18, section 1302—the "lottery" statute—which proscribes the mailing of material concerning a lottery.

Potters Guild Features Events

Gibson, Eighth Titlist in a Row

For the eighth consecutive year Floyd county last week produced the Kentucky State Fair's individual senior poultry judging champion.

Top winner in the senior division (ages 14-18) of the state contest was (left to right) Philip Gibson, 14, of Langley, who placed first among senior 4-H'ers in the contest; Grady Stephens, 15, of Pyramid, second high in scoring; Donald May, 15, Elkhorn City, fourth place winner, and Thomas Reed, 14, Rt. 2, Greenup, who placed third.

These four will represent Kentucky in national 4-H poultry judging competition to be held in connection with the North American Livestock Show in Louisville, next November. They are shown with the trophy which the county 4-H'ers will keep for the coming year because their county team scored highest in the competition.

The 1975 champion is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Gibson, Jr. and a member of the Allen Central 4-H Club. He scored 1038 points out of 1100 possible.

Grady Stephens is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Stephens and is a sophomore at Prestonsburg High School. In winning second place he scored 1031 points.

Other senior judges from Floyd county were Michael Reffett, Hueysville, with 874, and Jeff Campbell, Hueysville, ninth, with 789 points.

Both the junior and senior division judges from this county were coached by Jack Friar, county agent—4-H.

Inspectors To Use 'Copter In Stripmine Surveillance

Frankfort, Ky.—Surface mining inspectors of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection will be able to more thoroughly monitor reclamation activities with a helicopter being purchased by the department.

In addition, the helicopter will be equipped with special litter gear so that it can be deployed in emergency evacuation work. In that role, it would complement the kind of injury evacuation service provided in Western Kentucky by helicopter units at Fort Campbell.

The unit is being purchased from the Bell Helicopter Co. of Fort Worth, Texas at a price of $184,734. Four companies were invited to bid.

The helicopter is jet powered and will seat four passengers and a pilot.

The fast-paced advances of modern surface mining technology have made necessary supplemental means of reclamation inspection. It is impossible for inspectors to properly oversee all surface mine activities underway in Kentucky at a time when the development of that resource holds the key to the energy problems of this Commonwealth and indeed the entire nation," Gov. Julian Carroll said.

"Along with this responsibility goes the necessity for continued good reclamation practices and therefore a more efficient method of surface mine surveillance."

State officials have consulted with representatives from West Virginia and Pennsylvania who confirmed the advantages of helicopter surveillance. Both states currently use helicopters in monitoring surface mine and reclamation activities.

Additionally, many major surface mine operators in both the Eastern and Western Kentucky coalfields own helicopters for travel between mining sites.

The state division of reclamation currently is inspecting approximately 300 permitted surface mining operations covering 18,000 acres in Western Kentucky. A total of 1,700 permits involving 60,000 acres are active in Eastern Kentucky.

While the time required under current conditions to inspect all of these sites takes from four to five weeks, the new helicopter will allow inspection of each Eastern Kentucky site every 10 days and all of the Western Kentucky surface mine operations within two days.

An added advantage is the improved opportunity of the division director and area supervisors to evaluate the performance of the reclamation inspectors and the coal operators.

Additionally, the Department of Transportation can make use of the new helicopter to allow inspection of remote or inaccessible road construction sites.

The Department of Transportation also will use the helicopter to allow inspection of remote or inaccessible road construction sites.

Mountain Music To Feature 'Our Appalachia Day'

The fourth annual "Our Appalachia Day" will be held on the campus of Alice Lloyd College, Saturday, September 6, from 9:30 a.m. until late in the afternoon.

The annual Mountain Music Festival will include a wide range of individual musicians and groups playing all kinds of instruments ranging from dulcimer, guitar, to fiddle and harmonica. The all-day affair, sponsored every year by the Appalachian Learning Laboratory of Alice Lloyd College, is designed to bring back for at least one day the original music of the mountains. Electrical instruments are not allowed in the "Our Appalachia Day" program; it's strictly an old-fashioned music festival of the type held in years past.

Last year, more than 900 persons were on the campus to hear the musicians and groups from the area entertain and observe the crafts display of homemade wares in the exhibition areas set up around the festival grounds.

Mike Mallins, director of the ALC Appalachian Learning Laboratory, indicated that this year's "Our Appalachia Day" would be the biggest yet, with more than 1,000 expected to be in attendance, more craft displays than ever before, and the largest group of musicians ever to participate in the four-year-old program. Mallins also indicated that a free "soup bean" supper would be provided free of charge by the College, but the participants themselves would need to bring lunch. Mallins issued a special invitation to everyone in the immediate area to attend the "Our Appalachia Day" program, visit with their neighbors and hear a full day of old-fashioned mountain music.

Report for EKV Football Practice

These Eastern Kentucky natives were among the more than 90 candidates who reported to Eastern Kentucky University head football coach Roy Kidd for the start of fall drills recently. Kneeling: Randy Heaberlin, sophomore tackle; Worthington; Ernie Howe, sophomore quarterback; London; Corky Prater, freshman quarterback; Vanceburg; Back row: John Garnett, senior tight end; Arjay Innan Sherman, junior split end; London; Ricky Cobb, freshman offensive tackle; Corbin; Randy Leslie, senior tight end; Prestonsburg; and EKV assistant coach Bobby Harville. Eastern opens its 11-game 1975 schedule Sept. 6 at home against the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

Attorney General's Opinions

Diane Deason, director of Pennyrite Allied Community Services, Inc., of Hopkinsville, asked if the Head Start program her corporation sponsors is eligible to purchase its own school buses. In the opinion of the office of the Attorney General that Head Start would not be able to do so. Under Kentucky statutes, such buses are centrally purchased by political subdivisions and while the area served by this program encompasses the same area as the Pennyrite Area Development District—the Head Start program, as well as the corporation sponsoring it, can only be described as an agency of the political subdivision, not the political subdivision itself.

Frank Farmer, Berea city councilman, asked if the city council holds the authority to remove members of the planning and zoning commission because of the manner in which they voted. The office of the Attorney General held that the city council neither appoints nor removes commission members. The mayor appoints a commission member with the consent of the city council, and he can also remove those members from office for inefficiency, neglect of duty, malfeasance or conflict of interest—and all commission members are entitled to a hearing in light of the above, it would appear there are no valid grounds for removal.

Jerry C. Alleyne, director of the Frankfort office of the Kentucky

Education Association, asked whether a school board policy of transferring a teacher to one building solely on the basis that he or she happens to be married to a person teaching in another building is a form of discrimination. The Attorney General's office expressed the opinion that the policy is a valid exercise of the power of the board of education and that the regulation is not discriminatory.

State Representative Arthur L. Schmidt, of Cold Spring, inquired if a group organized to support or oppose a public question when an election is not being held is required to register with the Registry of Elective Finance. Schmidt also asked if a citizens advisory council for education or a group organized to support or oppose a zone change violates the Corrupt Practices Act by not reporting contributions in excess of $1,000 to the registry. The Attorney General's office told Rep. Schmidt that such groups—when not dealing with a referendum—are not governed by the election finance act and do not have to register with, or report to, the registry.

E. C. Calman, of Sturgis, asked if a citizens' advisory committee is subject to the open meetings law when organized by citizens on a voluntary basis. The Attorney General's office held that the open meetings law only applies to public agencies created by statute, ordinance or executive order. Therefore, it would not apply to such a group as a citizens advisory committee, which is a private or voluntary group.

10% of Assaults Made on Police

Frankfort, Ky.—Ten per cent of all assaults reported in Kentucky in 1974 were against state and local police officers.

According to the recently released state police Uniform Crime Report (UCR) for 1974, 382 of the 3,824 reported assaults were against police officers. That figure, however, was a drop of four from the 1973 count.

County police officers continue to be the most frequently assaulted group—29 assaults per 100 officers, an increase of 10 per cent over 1973. The next highest rates were for police in cities of 25,000-100,000 population: 22 assaults per 100 officers, up from the 1973 rate of 14.

Other agencies and their records were: State Police, 8.5 assaults per 100 officers; police in cities under 5,000, 3.2; police in cities of 5,000-10,000, 3.6; police in cities under 100,000, 3.5; police in cities of 100,000-25,000, 1.5; and sheriff's departments, .7.

The UCR also shows that while 26 per cent of the 382 assaults resulted in physical injury, no police officers were killed in the line of duty last year, as compared with two each in 1973 and 1972. The "typical" assault situation in 1974 involved a county police officer who met physical resistance in attempting to make an arrest for another crime between 10 p.m. and 2 a.m.

In developing that scenario, these facts were used:

- 32.7 per cent of the assaults took place while police were attempting another arrest, with the next most prevalent types of activity being transporting prisoners, 17.5 per cent; family disputes or tavern disturbances, 22 per cent; and traffic pursuits, 11.5 per cent.
- 49.3 per cent of the assaults were by physical force, with 2.6 per cent by firearms and 13 per cent by knife.
- 37.4 per cent of the assaults took place during 10 p.m.-2 a.m., the busiest two-hour period 33.7 per cent took place during 8 p.m.-2 a.m., and 61.5 per cent during 8 p.m.-4 a.m.

State Reclamation Agency Explains Rules To Operators

Frankfort, Ky.—More than two hundred coal miners recently gathered at Pikeville College to learn the new rules under which they must operate.

In early July, the state adopted new strip mine reclamation regulations. These rules regulate the disturbance and the recovery of land on a strip mine site. The requirements not only govern the construction and use of access roads, backfilling and grading, blasting and water quality, but also call for the planning of revegetation, sediment control and methods of surface mining adjacent land.

The recent meeting was held by the division of reclamation in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to explain those newly adopted regulations. Bill S. Lewis, commissioner of the department's bureau of land resources, expressed his intentions to firmly enforce the regulations with the cooperation of the strip mine operators.

"We want the coal operators to fully understand what the new regulations require of them," Lewis said. "Although most of the state reclamation regulations remained the same, several of them—such as requirements for access roads, revegetation and water impoundment—were tightened to better protect the natural resources, as well as the citizens of the state."

The meeting was the first in a series. Others will be held in the various reclamation regions: 7 p.m., Aug. 28, Hazard Community College, Hazard; and 7 p.m., Sept. 2, Madisonville Community College.

Copies of the new regulations have been mailed to more than 1,200 strip mine operators.

Grays Knob Coal To Pay $15,000

Frankfort, Ky.—Grays Knob Coal Co. has agreed to pay a record $15,000 for pollution of Martins Fork Creek in Harlan County allegedly caused by its coal operations. The payment of the $15,000 penalty must be made within 14 days. The coal company was charged by the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection with violations covering a seven-month period.

The agreed order, signed Aug. 20, is the result of months of court and administrative battles between the company and the department. The coal company sued the department in Franklin Circuit Court challenging its right to suspend the coal firm's operations by an administrative order. The order provides for the dismissal of that court action, a companion case and other pending administrative action.

The order further provides for remedial measures to be performed by Grays Knob Coal Co. including around-the-clock checks of their disposal processes, the keeping of log books, the cleaning of ponds, ditches, preparation plants, tipples, refuge bends and other coal washer related facilities. The company is further required to carry out a continuous program of cleaning and maintenance to protect the state's water quality standards.

The company has 45 days to furnish the department with complete engineering specifications for the modification of their coal washer and related structures that will eliminate future violation of the Commonwealth's water quality standards.

The Grays Knob Coal Co. was represented by attorney Rudy Yessin and the department was represented by attorney Joseph J. Zaluski.

Dr. Ephraim McDowell Home
Danville

Test and drawing by Kentucky Heritage Artist Robert A. Powell

The early home of Dr. Ephraim McDowell, pioneer Kentucky surgeon and "father of abdominal surgery," was built circa 1789 on a tract of land owned by Isaac Shelby, Kentucky's first governor and father-in-law of Dr. McDowell.

The two-story, white clapboard house, standing on Second Street in Danville, has nine rooms, 24 paneled windows, a transomed doorway and seven fireplaces.

Dr. McDowell, born in Augusta County, Virginia, on November 11, 1771, was the son of Samuel McDowell, one of the judges of the first Kentucky court in 1783 and president of the convention that framed the first Constitution of Kentucky. Ephraim McDowell studied medicine at the University of Edinburgh, 1792-93. He settled in Danville three years later and became the foremost surgeon west of the Allegheny Mountains.

Here, on Christmas Day, 1809, Dr. McDowell successfully removed a 20-pound ovarian tumor from Mrs. Jane Todd Crawford of Green County. The operation lasted about 25 minutes without the benefit of an anesthetic. The doctor had improvised an operating room in his house. The patient was partially dressed and conscious of every movement. To restrain any involuntary muscle movements, men held her arms and legs with force. During the operation she repeated the Psalms. Dr. McDowell's 45-year-old patient survived the operation by more than 32 years.

In 1795, Dr. Ephraim McDowell and Dr. Adam Rankin opened an apothecary shop in the brick building adjoining the house, and it was used by their successors until 1856, when the property was purchased by the Methodist Church for use as a parsonage.

Dr. McDowell practiced medicine in Danville until his death in June 1850; he was buried with his wife at Traveller's Rest, the Isaac Shelby estate six miles south of town.

The Kentucky State Medical Association on May 20, 1939, presented the McDowell home to the Commonwealth of Kentucky. It is maintained as a shrine to Dr. McDowell and the apocah event which occurred here over 180 years ago.

Nomograph Predicts Road Noise Levels

By CELIA BREWER
Frankfort, Ky. — If you are upset about the noise that a new road in your community might create the Kentucky Bureau of Highways Research Division has developed a new procedure that should ease your fears.

According to W. B. "Bill" Drake, assistant state highway engineer for research, his division recently discovered a more effective way of predicting just how noisy a new highway might be while it is still on the drawing board.

"And that technique is helping our engineers make design changes which can result in a substantial lessening of traffic noise when that highway finally is built and opened to traffic," he said.

Much of the credit for developing the newer, more reliable procedure goes to Ken Agent and Charles Zeger, engineers at the state Bureau of Highways research center at Lexington, who put upon the idea of using a nomograph to make noise level predictions.

The nomograph is a mathematical scale which can be used to plot unknown variables by using certain other known values.

In one case, said Drake, the known values were average vehicle speeds, the planned composition and density of the highway and other roadway characteristics such as grading, elevation, intersections and landscaping along the road.

The unknown variable which Agent and Zeger were attempting to plot was the noise that those known values might generate, he added.

While design engineers can do little about vehicle speeds, there is a great deal they can do to lessen future noise problems by making design changes in highway composition and roadway characteristics "if they are given the proper information early in the design and planning process," Drake said.

"Zeger and Agent have done exactly that."

The proof that the new system will work came during a lengthy testing period during which Zeger and Agent collected nearly 300 noise recordings at 40 different highway locations in Kentucky and, using a prediction procedure established by the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA), applied that procedure to the nomograph.

Drake went on to say that the method has received FHWA approval and now is being recommended for use nationwide by "those highways which are expected to carry an average of less than 10,000 vehicles daily."

Oldsters To Enjoy Low Camping Rates

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Kentucky's senior citizens will soon be able to use state park campgrounds free of charge nine months a year and at reduced rates during the summer months.

The announcement of the reduced rates was approved recently by Gov. Julian Carroll.

Kentuckians 62 years of age and older will be able to use the state's campsites free from Sept. 1 until May 30 each year. A discounted rate of $1.50 a day will be charged the senior citizens during the remainder of the year. Regular rates are $3.50 a day for recreational vehicle camping and $100 daily for tent or primitive camping at the state's 2400 campsites.

"We are glad to be able to take this forward step in creating special camping rates for Kentuckians in their golden years," Gov. Carroll said. "They have additional free time in which to enjoy these facilities now and many of them are living on limited incomes."

The National Park Service employs a similar program, said Bruce Montgomery, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Parks.

The exact guidelines of the program are still being finalized, Montgomery said. He indicated that eligible persons will probably be issued complimentary cards similar to the free fishing license granted by the state to senior citizens. In the meantime, however, senior citizens can gain free admittance to the campsites beginning next month by simply showing proof of age.

Attempts To Modify "Broad Form" Law

Representative Raymond Overstreet, Liberty, Ky. Republican, has submitted to the Legislative Commission a modified version of the "Broad Form Deed" law which was declared unconstitutional after its passage by the General Assembly last year, but they're already setting his proposed new legislation "went" work.

The 1975 legislation which was voided by Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs, Jr. and the Court of Appeals would have prevented the stripping of coal rights held under the old deed unless the surface owner agreed to such mining.

The revised act proposed by Overstreet would require approval by the landowner of the reclamation plan before a strip-mining permit could be issued.

Perry White, an attorney for the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, was quoted as saying he doubts that Overstreet's proposed legislation would be workable.

Landowners already have the right to request a hearing before the department if they feel a strip-mining permit will harm their property, White said.

The last bill was struck down on the grounds that it violated the rights of holders of the broadform deed. The Court of Appeals ruled that, while the measure was an intended as an environmental measure, all it did was give one party on the contract a vote over use of the land by the other party.

"It puts the owner in position to be paid again for what he or his predecessor has already received compensation for," an opinion by the Court of Appeals states.

Around 1890 coal companies sent Kentucky lawyers into the hills to have mountain dwellers scribble their "X" on long, complicated documents, giving mineral rights to the coal companies. The documents were so complicated they became known as broadform, or long term deeds.

Japanese Man Completes Sail Across the Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO — A Tokyo taxi driver says he played the saxophone and rode out three gales on a 9,000-mile, 48-day solo sail across the Pacific.

Yukio Tada completed the journey Saturday in a 30-foot, two-masted vessel he designed and helped build himself. He said he lived on rice, seaweed and soybean paste during his nonstop journey from Japan.

When in calm waters, Tada said, he painted, listened to jazz cassettes and practiced on his saxophone. He said he whitened three gales without use of his boat's auxiliary engine.

OFFICE OF HIGHWAY SAFETY PROGRAMS

Squire Pate's House
Hancock County

Illustration by Kentucky Heritage. Artist Robert A. Powell

Kentucky holds many legends and stories about its native son Abraham Lincoln. The prominent birthplace, homeplace, "Marriage Temple," etc., far overshadow the many delightful tales which follow Lincoln's years in Kentucky.

The home of Samuel W. Pate, farmer and justice of the peace in Hancock County, is one of the choice Lincoln lore subjects; however, the documented story is very interesting and significant itself.

This old home still stands some three miles from Hawesville, on Highway Ky. 334. It is a seven room, two-story house built in 1822 of hewn logs, with weatherboard added some years later. The front porch once had an enclosed stairway to the second floor; the stairs have since been removed.

It was in the spring of 1827 that Abraham Lincoln, future President of the United States, was tried for operating a ferry across the Ohio River without a license.

At the time, he was working on a bargeboat, earning $6 a month and board. Lincoln had constructed a scow, or light flatboat, for his own personal use. One day, two salesmen in a buggy asked Lincoln to take them to the middle of the river to catch a passing steamboat. This he did, and was paid 50¢ by each man.

The ferry operators, John and Len Dill, had Lincoln arrested for infringing on their rights. The case - Commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Abraham Lincoln - was tried in the east room of the log house before Squire Samuel Pate, the presiding justice. The testimony failed to show that Lincoln had ever set any person "over" or "across" any river or creek. He had, as Lincoln testified himself, taken passengers to the middle of the river, and no farther.

The 18-year-old Lincoln served as his own counsel. After a short trial, the case against him was dismissed. It is said that in the preparation of this, his first case, he became so intrigued with law that he continued to study the legal arts, and did in fact make law his profession after he left the state.

Samuel Pate is buried with his wife in the family burial plot several hundred feet back of the house, overlooking the Ohio River. There is also the well-marked grave of Caroline Thrasher (nee Meeker), said to have been a sweetheart of Lincoln, the subject for those many colorful local yarns.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

Soil is the most important thing on planet earth, and nature has countless helpers and infinite processes for building soil and renewing it.

A group of students and I made a special study of the leaf mold of the forest (leaf mold is the "mother of soil"). We peeled off a large slab of leaf mold from the forest floor; we called it "the primeval mother of all life on earth." The underside of the leaf mold was turning white—the work of fungi, which help to change the fallen leaves back to soil. We discover many tiny mushrooms growing on the leaf mold; they are shaped like little parasols, and the students call them "the parasols of the wood nymphs." We learn that these small mushrooms feed on dead leaves and help to reduce them to humus.

We find countless life organisms living in the leaf mold: all of them nature's helpers in changing leaf litter to soil. Among the tiny creatures living in the leaf mold, we find roundworms, termites, earthworms, millipedes, centipedes, ants, snails and bugs. We know

Miracle of Soil-Building

There was also a great number of microscopic things living in the leaf mold, such as protozoa bacteria, molds and others. These help to set up chemical changes for converting all animal and vegetable matter to soil.

We soon see that the rich black soil of the forest is a highly complex thing, composed of billions of decayed organisms, rotted leaves, twigs, countless dead bodies, wastes of animal matter—all this forming a thick layer of humus beneath the leaf mold.

We now examine a section of the humus under the leaf mold, and find it to be the home of many small creature, such as snails, millipedes, larvae of beetles, centipedes, spiders, toads, ants, salamanders and angworms. These are nature's helpers in building the soil. The angworms alone make many tons of new soil yearly on a single acre. The ants also work together to plough the soil, to drill it full of holes to let in oxygen and nitrogen.

Here we note an endless cycle of nature. The green leaves do their work of photosynthesis and make the food to build the trees. Their work is for one brief summer, then in autumn they change color, fade and die, to fall to the forest floor. Their work then is just beginning, they return to the soil all their elements to help nourish future trees and plants.

We note the leaf mold is always moist under the trees; it is truly a sponge that soaks up moisture and retains it. Thus it prevents the rapid run-off of rainfall, and keeps the soil from washing down. Next we look at some fallen logs and old stumps. We tear the rotten ones apart and find them filled with life forms, such as bessybugs, wireworms, mice, shrews, and nests, termite colonies, which chew up and digest the cellulose inward and pass it out as a residue to mix with the soil and help to enrich it. We also note that this forest, with its thick bed of leaf mold has been stable and self-sustaining for centuries; it changes a little every day but remains forever the same. We find a number of old mass-covered stumps, indicating that some of the larger hardwoods have been cut in former years and no doubt sawed into lumber.

Men have not yet vandalized this forest by tearing it up with bulldozers; so life goes on uninterrupted and fills the endless cycles of nature. The cycles of nature for all creation are: Birth, growth, maturity, life span, old age, death, decay. Nature's stern decree is: All things born on earth must die when their life work is ended and give back to mother earth the elements borrowed for use in one short lifetime.

IN APPRECIATION

I wish to express my gratitude to the players of the Francis Store softball team for their interest and cooperation shown during the 1975 softball season. Due to their excellent play and team spirit, they finished second in the District Tournament and third in the Regional, winning the respect of many fans and opposing teams. Also, I want to thank the Francis Stores for their financial support and encouragement. It has been my pleasure to have been a part of this team, and I am looking forward to an even better season next year. My thanks again to: Roy Conn, Steve Halbert, Allan Halbert, John Chaffin, David Chaffin, Larry Crum, Davy Davis, Mike Yates, Caner Hall, Ronnie Blackburn, Jeff Conley, Mike Howard, Bobby Bentley, James Johnson, John Salisbury and Jeff Jones.

Indian Pow-Wow Slated in Pike

August 30-31 and September 1 will be the third annual Indian Pow-Wow in Pike county.

John Jenkins promoted the first annual pow-wow. It is now being sponsored by the Central American Indian Society. One reason they are expecting nearly 200 Indians to come to Pike county from different parts of the United States and Canada. Some tribes expected to be present include Cherokees from North Carolina, Chippewas and Potowomac from Michigan, Winnebagoes from Wisconsin, Ottawaes from Canada, Puellos from New Mexico and Miami from Indiana.

Not only will there be traditional dances and story telling but visitors will be able to watch Indian life, since the visiting tribes plan to camp at the site of the Pow-Wow.

The public is invited.

Letcher Grocery Removed From Stamp Program

Atlanta, Ga.—A Letcher county food store—Maloney's Fruit Stand, of Neon has been removed from the federal food stamp program because of violations. The U. S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) reports. The store, which is owned by Raymond Maloney, was disqualified for 30 days, starting Aug. 14, after being charged with selling ineligible items for food coupons. Among them were cigarettes, tobacco, cleaning and paper products.

Cline-Pope Vows Said July 26 at Lexington

Miss Deborah Lynn Cline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cline of Danville and Joseph Yoder Pope, son of Dr. and Mrs. William M. Pope of Maysville, were married at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, July 26, at Centenary United Methodist Church in Lexington by the bridegroom's father.

The double ring ceremony was performed in front of an altar with colorful decorations. The altar was flanked on both sides with bouquets of carnations, roses and greenery, which were in tall, pre-fal flower holders.

Wedding music played included "One Hand One Heart," "You Are The Sunshine of My Life," "We've Only Just Begun," "Wedding Song," "We Do Joy" and the bridal chorus and wedding march. Organist was John Tremaine of Lexington.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a floor-length gown of white organza over taffeta with a sweetheart neckline, empire bodice and long fitted sleeves, all accented with gajure lace.

A carried headpiece held the bride's cathedral length illusion veil which was also edged in matching lace. She carried a bouquet of white gardenia, white sweetheart roses and baby's breath. Maid of honor was Daris Harmon of Louisville, Karen Young of Eldersly, N. D. and Vickie Judd of Connersville, Ind., were bridesmaids.

All attendants wore whipped cream floor length gowns of floral print with short puffed sleeves, empire bodice and a V neck with wide collar edged in white lace. They wore pink picture hats and carried nosegay bouquets of pink carnations and white sweetheart roses framed in blue net.

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother wore a belted street length dress of pink polyester knit with fitted bodice, under a matching waist length long sleeved jacket. She wore matching white accessories.

The bridegroom's mother was attired in an aqua belted street length dress with a high round collar with pink accessories. Both mothers wore a white gardenia corsage.

Best man was Sam McNeill of Flemingsburg. Ushers were Eldon McCartney also of Flemingsburg, Bruce Grant of Louisville, and Steve and Scott Cline, both of Danville, brothers of the bride.

The couple took a wedding trip to Nags Head and Cape Hatteras in North Carolina. They plan to make their home at 37 S. Ridge Dr., Lexington.

The bride is employed at International Clinical Laboratories in Lexington. She is a graduate of Georgetown College and St. Joseph Hospital School of Medical Technology with a BS degree. She was a member of Sigma Kappa Sorority at Georgetown.

The bridegroom, an employee of University of Kentucky Medical Center, received his BS degree from Eastern Kentucky University, where he belonged to Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity. He is a graduate of St. Joseph Hospital School of Medical Technology, also.

Awarded Fellowship

Stephen H. Benedict, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Benedict, Jr., former Virgie and Wheelwright residents, and who now reside at Mt. Vernon, Illinois, has been awarded the coveted Waksman Graduate Fellowship Award in Microbiology.

Benedict is currently working toward his Ph.D. degree under the direction of Dr. A. S. Kaplan in the Department of Microbiology at the School of Medicine at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn. He is studying interactions of the herpesviruses with cells which have been oncogenically transformed by RNA tumor viruses.

Benedict has co-authored three papers in major scientific journals and also presented a paper on his current work at the national meeting of the American Society for Microbiology in New York last May. Benedict was selected from seven thousand applicants who were candidates for this award.

The Waksman Fellowship is awarded to assist highly qualified candidates for the Ph.D. degree in Microbiology. It was established to fill a pressing need for the support of microbiological education at the graduate level. Awards are made with the purpose of supporting education which will satisfy developing world needs.

Benedict was graduated from Wheelwright High School, received the Bachelor of Science degree in 1968 and Master of Science in 1971, both were from the University of Kentucky. For the Master's degree he studied aminopterin resistance in diplococcus pneumoniae with Dr. Thomas C. Gray. Benedict then spent two years at the U. S. Army Medical Research Laboratory at Fort Knox, where he worked with Dr. Ed Spoerl on sugar transport in saccharomyces cerevisiae.

Benedict is married to the former Paula Banks, of Wheelwright, and they have a year old daughter, Angela Marie. He is the grandson of the late Steve and Susan Benedict, of Virgie, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hayes, of Lackey.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Judith Gail Leslie Shepherd wish to express our appreciation to the friends and relatives who were so kind to us during our bereavement; also, to extend our appreciation to the nurses at Highland Regional Hospital and the doctors and nurses at St. Joseph Hospital in Lexington, Ky. We would like to thank all the people for the beautiful flowers and those who visited at the funeral home.

Kentucky state parks had 647,820 guests in camping areas from April through October, 1974.

Disaster Applications Down in Floyd County And Throughout Nation

The nation's farmers are filing fewer disaster applications this year than they did last year. Figures recently compiled by the U. S. Department of Agriculture show that disaster applications are down 35 percent from a year ago. Generally favorable weather conditions throughout the country are thought to be the cause of the reduction. To date, a total of 86,003 applications have been received, while at the same time last year, 115,627 applications had been made. Three applications have been received in Floyd county so far this year, compared to 20 last year.

Under provisions of the disaster payment program administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), farmers who have a feed grain allotment may be eligible for payments should a natural disaster affect the production of these crops.

ASCS made disaster payment of about $524 million to 318,000 farms during the 1974 program year. Of this total eighteen farms in Floyd County received about $2560.

Participation in USDA programs is open to all without regard to race, color, sex, creed or national origin.

Floyd County Health Notes

The Floyd County Health Department will conduct a pap smear clinic, Thursday, August 28, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Each year Kentucky physicians may report as many as 1,000 new cases of cervical cancer, but by means of this simple test, signs which foretell the development of this kind of cancer can be seen even before obvious symptoms are noted by the woman or her doctor.

Remember too, that in order to have continuing protection against cervical cancer, you must have a regular pap smear at least once a year. Deaths caused by cervical cancer could be completely eliminated if all women would take this simple precautionary step.

This clinic is free to all women

Monday, September 1, the Floyd County Health Department will be closed in observance of the Labor Day holiday. Regular business hours will resume September 2 at 8 a.m.

Due to this holiday, the Martin outpost clinic regularly scheduled for Monday, September 1, has been postponed until the following day. The public health nurse will be at the Beaver Valley Clinic from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., providing immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening, blood pressures and pap smears.

All persons in the Martin area are welcome to attend this clinic.

Here's a message from the Floyd County Health Department to all new parents: D.P.T. stands for diphtheria, pertussis (or whooping cough) and tetanus. These are the three "baby shots" every child needs to ward off these serious diseases. A baby needs four series of D.P.T. shots. This series should begin at two months of age and should be completed by the time the child is two years old, after which only booster doses will be required before ye enters school.

The health department offers not only these immunizations but also immunizations against polio, measles, rubella and mumps, free of charge.

If your child isn't fully protected against these diseases, see your doctor or go to the Floyd County Health Department, Monday through Friday.

Diabetes mellitus is the sixth leading cause of death in Kentucky and the third leading cause of blindness in the United States. Diabetes results when the body can't transform sugars and starches properly, thus the amount of sugar in the blood is abnormally high.

It is estimated that more than two million Americans are victims of diabetes without even knowing it. These people are known as "Hidden Diabetics". This disease is most likely to occur in people who are over 40, people having diabetic relatives or women who have had a baby weighing over nine pounds at birth. Other common symptoms of diabetes are being overweight, constantly thirsty, eating excessively, tiring easily or finding that wounds heal slowly.

Anyone in these categories should be tested for diabetes. The Floyd County Health Department does diabetes screening, free of charge, Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

IN APPRECIATION

We, the family of Eva Stone, wish to express our appreciation to all those who were so kind to us during our time of bereavement. We would like to thank all the people for the beautiful flowers and those who visited with us at our home. Our heartfelt thanks to the Revs. Oscar Traylor and Roger Reed for the comforting words and to the singers. We also want to thank the Floyd Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

End Comes for Feltner 4-H Camp

One of the existing facilities at the new Irish Acres 4-H camp is this swimming pool.

J. M. Feltner 4-H Camp, rustic Johnson county facility where thousands of youngsters have spent part of their summers since 1933, has been closed with the end of the camping season, and 4-H members and leaders in the 10-county Northias area are purchasing Irish Acres in southern Boyd county as a new camp for youth, O. T. Dorton, chairman of the Feltner board of trustees, announced today (Wednesday).

The long-time camp at Fishtrap on Paint Creek will be purchased by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers for construction of the Paint Creek reservoir.

Much of the leadership involved in Feltner will transfer to a new non-profit corporation, Irish Acres 4-H Center, Inc., Dorton said. The Paintsville banker will remain chairman, serving along with one representative from each of the counties, plus a representative from agriculture, home ec, and 4-H extension agent.

The group has agreed to pay a net of $197,000 to the owner, Arch Hannigan, for 50 acres of Irish Acres, which he operated as an exclusive riding camp for girls. Dorton said another $41,500 will probably be needed to make the camp completely operational for the summer of 1976.

Dorton said the Corps' purchase hastened action which was becoming necessary because of the interest and growth in summer camping. "We had 600 4-H clubbers here in 1970 and a thousand this summer. Additionally, the existing facility was, by crowding, becoming less satisfactory and under constant scrutiny by enforcers of fire and health codes. Another factor was vandalism. For the first time, we had to employ, this summer, week-end watchmen to look after the camp while campers weren't here since most of those owning property near J. M. Feltner Camp have already sold to the Corps of Engineers."

Dorton said alternatives considered were to stop camping, construct a new camp on either Paintsville or Yatesville Reservoirs and thus lose momentum of the camping program, or buy Irish Acres.

Payment for the new facility, plus its upgrading, is expected to come from two sources: first, county-by-county goals, based on size and participation and raised by local groups through campaigns, second, through an area-wide special gifts committee concentrating on securing donations. The county total is $113,000, the area total $125,500. County participation expected is: Boyd, $21,000; Carter, $12,000; Elliott, $8,000; Floyd, $11,000; Greenup, $14,000; Johnson, $10,000; Lawrence, $10,000; Magoffin, $7,000; Martin, $8,000; Pike, $16,000. A special gifts committee will contact the various industries, organizations, individuals, etc. located in the area.

Dorton said the new facility would be suited, at least in part, to year-round use, whereas Feltner was usable only for summer camping. "We'll have winterized rooms where Extension meetings or Homemakers meetings can be conducted in cold weather." He indicated that a separate operations committee would draw up guidelines on usage of the camp, subject to the approval of the Board of Directors.

Irish Acres presently includes a lodge and girls' dormitory, pump and storage house, a lake, a second dorm which can be paneled and used by boys, and a swimming pool. Plans call for adding a shelter house, ball field, manager's trailer, volleyball and basketball courts, nature trails, an amphitheater and another lake.

Watercolor Demonstration Given at Guild Meeting

Tom Whitaker gave a demonstration of his watercolor techniques August 14 to members of the Prestonsburg Community College Art Guild. A painting of an old farmhouse evolved from the blank watercolor paper.

Joan Whitt and Joyce Freels provided refreshments. Several paintings were exhibited and discussed.

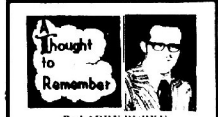

Members interested in exhibiting at the Folk Festival area asked to bring their work to the weekly meeting, August 28. The next regular meeting, September 11, has been called "Bring a Friend Meeting".

INVITATION TO BID

The Mayo State Vocational School will accept sealed bids on one 13-inch engine lathe. Separate bids will be accepted on a 1956 10-wheel Army truck, 2 1/2 ton, 6 x 6, 6,000 miles. All bids must be received at the Mayo State Vocational School by 11 a.m. September 15, 1975.

The machinery and truck may be inspected at the school between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. The school reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

CHARLES COMBS
Department Head

It is told that a visitor from a foreign country made this comment about America when he returned home: "The saddest thing about the United States is everyone is trying to run away from themselves."

It does appear that in our search for happiness, adventure and pleasure we are in a constant race to find it. We run, and many times we appear to be running away from ourselves.

You can't be against modernization, it has made life much more enjoyable. You can take time, though, to pause and "catch up."

The happiest people are those who take time. Time to enjoy time to plant a garden, time to watch it grow. You are then waiting and you can't run away from yourself if you wait.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: The greatest rewards come to those who wait.

Constitution Do's, Don'ts Listed in Publication

The U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has come up with the "do's and don'ts" for environmental protection on construction sites. USDA has released a new publication covering the subject.

William J. Cantrell, district conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service here, said, "Even though construction in Floyd county damages soil, water, and other resources, the new publication shows ways to reduce or eliminate environmental hazards." He said, "The safeguards listed in most cases have little or no extra cost to the contractor during construction, and, in most instances, will save huge sums of money over a period of a few years."

Conservation practices such as sediment basins, silt netting, grassed waterways, dust control and the use of trees for windbreak and site beautification are illustrated in the brochure.

Single copies of "Environmental Do's and Don'ts on Construction Sites," MH-1291, are available at the SCS office in Prestonsburg. Additional copies may be ordered from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20464, at 65 cents each.

To Subscribers

Please note date shown opposite your name on your copy of The Times or on the wrapper. If the date reads, for instance, "July 75," your subscription will expire at the end of July.

Because of increased mailing costs, notices to subscribers of their expiration dates will be discontinued. Subscriptions which have expired must be cancelled within one month of the expiration date.

Yearly subscription rates are: $30 in Floyd county; $7.35 elsewhere in Kentucky; $8.50 outside Kentucky.

Fershing Hayes, of Tyner, and Dr. W. W. Campbell, of Jackson, have been named by Governor Julian M. Carroll to serve four-year terms on the state Fish and Wildlife Commission.

Hayes, an insurance agent, will represent the Ninth Wildlife District on the nine-member commission and replaces James McGlothy, Baxter, whose term expired this month. Dr. Campbell, an optometrist, replaces Dr. C. L. Allen, of Martin, who represented the Seventh District and whose term also expired in August.

The appointments were made by the Governor after licensed sportsmen in the Seventh and Ninth Districts met and selected five persons from each district as candidates for the posts.

The new commission members will be formally sworn in Friday, just prior to the commission's regularly quarterly meeting.

Ninety-five persons died by drowning in Kentucky during the first half of 1975. Twenty-three of those fatalities occurred in boat-related activities. The 12-month toll for 1974 was 150.

Three Cave Run Boat Docks To Close from Oct. 1 to May 1

Several recreation areas will temporarily or permanently close, and many others will operate under a new clean-up system, according to plans released last week by the Daniel Boone National Forest. The closings are timed with the normal shutdown of areas at the end of the summer season.

While most recreation sites within the 640,000-acre forest will reopen next spring, three sites will be permanently closed. They are the Auger Springs and Indian Trail picnic areas in Laurel county and Hemlock Grove picnic area, in McCreary county.

About a dozen areas will temporarily close, including eight camping sites on Lake Cumberland.

Most of the seasonal closings are staggered from after the Labor Day week-end to Columbus Day, October 13. The heavily used campgrounds at Twin Knobs, on Cave Run Lake, and Koomer Ridge, in the Red River Gorge, will remain open, week-ends, until October 13.

White Oak Boat-In Campground, on Laurel River Lake, near Cochran, will remain open year-round, but under the pack-in, pack-out system. Campers will be responsible for carrying away their own trash.

Forest managers in Winchester emphasize recreation areas will be closed if the public does not cooperate with the pack-in, pack-out method. The cost of providing a trash pick-up service would close many of the 23 sites open under this system.

The program is an economy move by managers of the 640,000-acre forest to bring the cost of administering sites in line with the fiscal year '76 budget. While there was a moderate increase in the total recreation budget, commitment to recreation programs at Cave Run and Laurel River Lakes reduced the funds for recreation throughout the remainder of the forest.

Cave Run Lake will remain open all year, although Bangor, Claylick and Twentysix boat ramps will close, October 1 to May 1. Scott Creek boat ramp will close from after Labor Day until the middle of October for improvements and will reopen when construction is complete. Poppin Rock, Leatherwood, Longbow and Wartus boat ramps will remain open year-round. Twin Knobs camping area will remain open for week-end camping until Columbus Day week-end.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to thank all our friends and neighbors for the beautiful floral arrangements, food and kindness and sympathy shown at a time when it was deeply appreciated. We would like to thank all the employees at Mountain Manor Nursing Home and the Carter Funeral Home for their kind and efficient services, and Revs. Clifford Austin and Doug Burkett for their comforting service. A special thanks to Ethel Click.

You can deposit your check directly ...

Do you have a checking or savings account in a bank, savings bank, similar institution, or a Federal or State chartered credit union? Did you know you can have your check deposited directly in your account in one of these organizations? If you don't have an account now, you can open one and have your check deposited directly.

Direct deposit of your check has certain advantages. For example:

- Even if you are away from home, your check would be deposited instead of sitting in your mailbox.
- You don't have any problem in cashing your check because it goes directly into your account.
- You don't have to stand in line to cash your check or to deposit it.
- You don't have to worry about losing your check after you receive it or having it stolen from your mailbox.
- The decision is yours. It's entirely up to you whether you want your check deposited directly.

(please see other side)

If you want your check to continue coming to your present address, don't do anything. It will keep on coming just as it has in the past.

But if you do want your check mailed to a financial organization or if your check already is mailed to one, this is what you should do:

Contact the financial organization where you now have or where you want to have an account and ask for a direct deposit form SF-1199. (Completion of the form does not permit withdrawals from your account by anyone other than those authorized by you.)

If you want more information, get in touch with your financial organization or contact any social security office.

READ THESE FACTS ABOUT DIRECT DEPOSITS ...

- Why is there so much interest today in the direct deposit of social security checks?
 The Treasury Department has initiated a program to encourage the recipients of all recurring Federal payments to deposit these directly into a financial institution. Under this plan, an individual can have his check sent directly to his financial institution for deposit.
- How will I benefit from direct deposit of my social security check?
 It saves a special trip to the bank just to deposit your check. It eliminates worry about the check being lost or stolen in the mail. And any time you are away from home or cannot come to the bank, your check is automatically deposited for you.
- Can I have it deposited to my savings account as well as my checking account?
 If you want a portion to go into the savings each month, ask your bank about an automatic transfer of a specified amount each month from checking into savings. By law your Social Security check must be directed to one specific account, either checking or savings.
- How do I sign up for this service?
 Simply complete the government form (SF1199) available at any bank. Personnel at your commercial bank will be glad to help you complete the form.
- How do I get the information needed to complete the forms?
 All the Social Security information you will need is on your monthly check or in your initial award's letter from Social Security. If you need any assistance or have any questions, your bank will be glad to assist you.
- Do I send the form directly to social security?
 No, you should complete the top half of the form only and take it or mail it to your bank. They will complete the form, sending one copy to you and one to Social Security.
- After I sign up, when will the bank start receiving my check?
 It should take about a month for the form to be processed. At the start of the program, it could take slightly longer.

It's easy and safe and saves you a trip to the Bank each month.
 Your check will come right to us on checking or savings, or both.

To Head Girl Scout Fund Drive

Mrs. Delores Smith, of Prestonsburg, has been named fund drive chairman for the Floyd county Girl Scout fund drive to be held this fall. Mrs. Julian Carroll, general chairman of the Wilderness Road Girl Scout Council fund drives, made the announcement at a luncheon August 15 at the Governor's Mansion. The luncheon was held for the chairmen of the 39 fund drives to be held in those areas of the local Girl Scout council with no federated campaigns such as United Way or Community Chest. The goal of these local fund drives has been set at $25,000 or 7 percent of the $392,610 budget. The remainder of the support for Girl Scouting in 55 counties in Kentucky and one county in Tennessee and one in Ohio comes from United Fund contributions, gifts, grants, foundations and from the annual Girl Scout cookie sale.

Pike Grocery Store Loses Food Stamps

Atlanta, Ga.—A Pike county food store—the Jean Stone Grocery, of Raccoon—has been removed from the food stamp program for one year because of violations, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) reports. The store, which is owned by Jean Stone, was disqualified for one year, starting July 15. It had been charged with selling ineligible items for food coupons. Among them were cigarettes, clothing, kitchen utensils. The store was also charged with exchanging cash for coupons.

Robert Cunningham, in charge of the Prestonsburg field office of the Food and Nutrition Service, explained that the store will not be allowed to accept food coupons during the disqualification period.

MEMORIAL MEETING SET

The Layne memorial meeting will be held Aug. 31 at the usual place, Ivel ball park. All are welcome. Come bring a basket.
