Last-minute filing flurry loads May ballot :

DeRossett will "inherit" clerk's office

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A last minute shuffle Tuesday has virtually assured a transfer of power from father to son in Floyd County's Circuit Court Clerk office. Long-time incumbent clerk Frank DeRossett, the only announced candidate for the office through most of Tuesday, withdrew his name from the ballot minutes before the 4 p.m. filing deadline, just in time for his son, Frank DeRossett Jr., to file for the post.

With no time left for opposition to form, the younger DeRossett virtually inherits the office from his father, who has served as Floyd County Circuit Court Clerk since 1964. Candidates for circuit clerk are required to pre-qualify for office by successfully completing a state examination. Frank DeRossett Jr. apparently was the only Floyd County to take and pass the state exam when it was given in January. A flurry of activity Tuesday also provided for May Primary battles in virtually every race except the offices of district judge, circuit court judge, coroner, property valuation administrator and county attorney. Incumbent Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo faces two opponents—one Democrat and one Republican—both of whom own local radio stations. Dale McKinney, owner of WMDJ radio station at Martin, and Gorman Collins Sr., owner of WQHY/WDOC radio station in Prestonsburg. Also Tuesday, Collins' son, Gorman Collins Jr., filed on the Republican ticket for the office of District One Magistrate. Collins joins Ernie R. Lafferty, O. Sam Blankenship, Jack Rice and Roger Rowe in a bid to unseat incumbent Gerald DeRossett. Incumbent Floyd County Court Clerk Carla Boyd faces opposition from Willis R. Hall and Republican Linda Richmond Salisbury. A third candidate, Larry Shortridge, jumped into the sheriff's race Tuesday. Incumbent Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson will face challengers John K. Blackburn and Shortridge in the May Primary. The hottest race in the May Primary is expected to be the one for Floyd County Jailor. Fourteen people have filed for that office since Jailor Lawrence Hale announced he is retiring.

Candidates, all Democrats, for jailer are: Junior Joseph, Carol Jean Neeley, Onda L. Hunt, Edgel "Bide" Click, Roger Webb, Homer Johnson, Clifford Hamilton, Robert A. DeRossett, Ollie Jay Leslie, Oscar E. Rice, Ernest Graham Burchett, Herman Conn, Luther Johnson and Joseph Jody Mullins.

Other filings:
• Floyd County Circuit Court Judge Division II—John David Caudill;
• Floyd County District Judge—Danny P. Caudill;
• District Two Magistrate—incumbent Jackie Edford Owens, Kenneth Roberts, Mike Layne, Calvin Howell, Earsel Lee Frazier and Republican T.A. Combs;
• District Three Magistrate—incumbent Betty Caudill, Tommy Neil

Suspect released on bond :

Officer held at gunpoint

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A 38-year-old Floyd County man was released on bond Tuesday when he pleaded not guilty to various charges resulting from an altercation Saturday night before a city commission meeting when he pointed a loaded pistol at the head of Wheelwright Police Chief Bob Moore and threatened to shoot him. Rodney Thornsberry was arraigned in Floyd County District Tuesday on charges of first degree wanton endangerment; first degree assault on a police officer, with a weapon; resisting arrest; and criminal mischief. Thornsberry pleaded not guilty and was released on a $19,000 surety bond. The incident happened Saturday evening at Wheelwright City Hall prior to the beginning of a special called Wheelwright City Commission meeting. The first hint that there could be trouble at the meeting came when Mayor Kenneth Johnson announced that he had been told that a certain individual, not Thornsberry, had said they were coming to the meeting to "shoot two or three." Shortly after the mayor's statement, Thornsberry, apparently displeased with the operation of the heater in the meeting room, pulled a pistol from his pants pocket, cocked it, pointed it unsteadily at the heater and threatened to "kill" the heater if it kicked off. Commissioner Andy Akers, who was sitting near the heater, ducked to his left when Thornsberry pointed the gun at the heater. Thornsberry put the pistol back in his pocket and said something about being "fed up" with a lot of things, apparently in reference to the city government. Thornsberry's action put a feeling of apprehension in the air for audience members, some of whom laughed nervously. Chief Moore entered the meeting hall a short time after Thornsberry pointed the gun at the heater. Commissioner Akers and Moore left the room for a short time and when they came back, Moore stood

Two terms enough, mayor says :

Latta bows out of race

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Ann Latta, the first woman ever to be elected mayor of the city of Prestonsburg, choked back tears Tuesday afternoon when she formally announced that she would not seek re-election. At a press conference Tuesday, Latta said that her decision to drop out of the mayoral race was based on the fact that the competition for the office has heated up prematurely and that she would rather focus on the important issues currently facing the city of Prestonsburg.

"With the city elections not coming up until November..." Latta said, "it was my hope that city business would see precedence over politics for at least a little longer." Latta added that her decision would allow another candidate, who supports her goals and programs, an opportunity to compete with city councilmen Jerry Fannin and George Archer for the mayor's seat. Latta refused to comment on who that candidate might be.

Fate of local Sears' store not yet known

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The jury is still out on whether or not employees of the Prestonsburg outlet of the Sears, Roebuck and Company will lose their jobs in the wake of the national headquarter's decision to close more than 100 retail stores, cut more than 50,000 jobs and completely eliminate its $4 billion catalog operation. "We just don't know," Minnie Hamilton, supervisor of the Prestonsburg store said Tuesday following the announcement. Hamilton said that the regional district manager and personnel from the Chicago, Illinois-based headquarters would meet next week to decide the fate of the Prestonsburg store. Industry analysts say that the Sears, Roebuck and Company, which has in the last three years fallen from the country's number one merchandiser

Court issues temporary restraining order over policy :

County barred from axing candidate

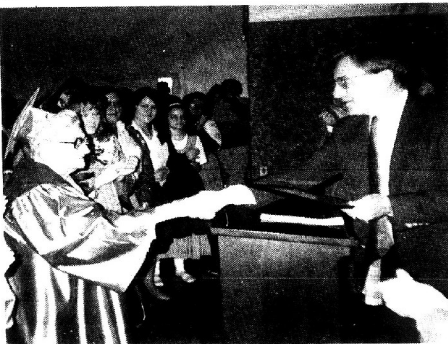

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A restraining order was issued against Floyd County Fiscal Court members Tuesday, barring the court from terminating the employment of a deputy jailer who has filed to run for jailer. Deputy jailer Jody Mullins filed a lawsuit against the fiscal court Tuesday claiming that a 1985 amendment to the county's personnel code is unconstitutional. The amendment says county employee's seeking to run for elected office must take a leave of absence without pay. The lawsuit names Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo and magistrates Gerald DeRossett, Jackie Owens, Emsel Tackett and former magistrate Eddie Caudill. Floyd County Circuit Court Judge Harold Stumbo signed a restraining order Tuesday which says the fiscal court is prohibited "from terminating or effecting in any manner the employment status" of Mullins. A motion for a temporary injunction against the is set to be heard in Floyd Circuit Court at 9 a.m. Friday, January 29.

An affidavit filed with the motion for an injunction says that Mullins will "suffer immediate and irreparable injury" if he is forced to quit his job. Mullins would seek of the office of jailer on his own time and that running for office would not "inhibit or limit" him from performing his duties as deputy jailer, the affidavit said. The declaration of rights lawsuit filed by Mullins Tuesday claims the county's personnel code is "without merit and abridges (Mullins') constitutional right without proof of a compelling state interest."

"That the restriction of the fiscal court is not rationally related to the interests which are thought to (be) protected and is a deprivation of equal protection under the law since other public office holders are allowed to continue their employment while seeking re-election," the lawsuit said. Mullins is seeking a judgment setting out his rights under the law and to continue his employment while seeking the office of Floyd County Jailor. Note: a civil suit complaint list only the plaintiff's cause of action.

Patton changes mind, gets back into contest

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

First he was in the race, then he dropped out... now he's back in. No, it isn't Ross Perot, but Floyd County's own Commonwealth Attorney, Jerry Patton. Last week, Patton removed his bid for re-election to the office of Commonwealth Attorney, a position which he has held since 1988, citing a desire to devote more time to his private legal practice and to his five-year old son. On Monday, however, Patton announced in a press release that he had re-entered the race so that he could continue serving the people of the Commonwealth. He said that his original decision to pull out of the race was based primarily on the fact that he was concerned about the strain that a campaign would put on his parents, since his father had earlier experienced heart problems and underwent coronary bypass surgery. Patton said Monday that the announcement that he planned to withdraw from the race prompted an outpouring of support from friends and family who wanted him to remain in the race. "They were really making it tough on me..." Patton said, "I just want everybody to know that we're back in (the race) and we're in for the duration."

Win some, lose some

The Floyd County Times captured three first place awards, four seconds and an honorable mention in the Kentucky Press Association's Better Newspaper Contest for 1992. The awards were presented in Louisville Friday evening during the KPA's annual winter banquet. The Times competes in the KPA's multi-weekly division, which includes state papers that publish at least twice a week. For the second consecutive year, Times staff writer Susan Allen won first place honors for investigative reporting on issues relating to the Floyd County School System. Allen also picked up second place awards for story series and extended coverage reporting and received honorable mention for general news reporting. Times editor Scott Perry won first place honors for the third straight year for his editorial column "Coffee Break," and also picked up a first place award for best column on a single subject. Perry took second place for best editorial and was second to Allen in the investigative/analytical reporting category. Budsstown's Kentucky Standard was the overall winner of the gen- eral excellence judging for multi-weekly newspapers. The Times finished fourth overall.

Partners in education

Volunteers at Pikeville College stuff envelopes, paint classrooms and improve the education process.

Pikeville College volunteers are partners in progress

Pikeville College is fortunate to have a number of dedicated friends and alumni from Pike, Floyd, and surrounding counties who have volunteered to help with campus activities and special events.

Volunteers like postmaster Diane Sharp; accountant Ken Kinder II; engineer John Rasnick; retired teachers Georgia Muncy, Lola Doane, Irene and Chester Goble, Goldie Benedict, Ruth Wheeler, and Edith Roberts; teachers Ken Kinder and Sharon Johnson, members of the Pikeville Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs; and many others who have worked on weekends and after hours on projects to help the College.

The volunteer program is one of Pikeville College's new programs designed to foster the "partnership" concept.

During the past month volunteers have studied envelopes, made copies, typed, made signs, painted classrooms, and made phone calls.

Ability and skill are not prerequisites for Pikeville College volunteers. The college's personnel are happy to train individuals or clubs who are interested in becoming more involved.

Annual audit shows city in the red :

City wooing county school board

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Earlier reports that the Floyd County Board of Education may move its headquarters from Prestonsburg city limits may be unfounded, Mayor Ann Latta told the Prestonsburg City Council Monday evening at its regularly scheduled meeting.

Latta said that members of the school board had contacted the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Properties Corporation and asked that they to draw up a proposal to build a new central office and then lease it back to the Board of Education.

The Properties Corporation has begun work on that proposal, Latta said, and is currently studying a site on a portion of the Route 114 Lowe's property where the proposed Mountain Arts Center, future home of the Kentucky Opry, is scheduled to be built.

Subject to preliminary feasibility studies, Latta said, the site seems to be well-suited to the school board's needs because it will have all the needed water, power and sewer lines and will provide easy access to the Mountain Arts Center's 1,000-seat auditorium and other facilities.

Floyd County Development Authority Executive Director Darrell Gilliam said Tuesday that the Properties Corporation has already contracted with Ted Naim to review the site and prepare a cost-estimate. The Properties Corporation has until the third week in February to submit the proposal to the school board, Gilliam said. He added that although the Lowe's site was one of the properties being studied for construction of the central office, the Properties Corporation was under no obligation to study another Prestonsburg site if that one proved not feasible.

Among other topics discussed at Monday's meeting:

• A representative of Jones, Paek and Associates presented results of an audit of the city's finances to the council. Among his findings were that the city ended the last fiscal year with a $19,466 deficit. Suggestions for improving the city's business included maintaining a general ledger to control receipts, disbursements and comparisons; and maintaining an inventory of general fixed assets necessary to establish control of property and equipment.

• William O. Goebel and Johnny Berkholder requested and were granted permission from the council to discuss possible retirement benefits with city employees. The benefits would be a supplement to the Kentucky state retirement fund.

• Councilman Billy Ray Collins led yet another spirited discussion of the city's parking woes. Further study is required.

• Councilman Jerry Fannin said that members of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad had offered to turn the rescue squad's Highland Avenue building over to the city after unfounded reports that city officials were attempting to take right of way.

• Mayor Latta said that the city's usual grant from the Municipal Road Aid Agreement was lower this year because the latest census showed that the city had fewer citizens.

Only Councilman George Archer was absent from Monday's meeting. The Prestonsburg City Council meets on the second and fourth Mondays of every month. The public is welcome.

State highway official's court hearing delayed

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County District Judge Danny Caudill postponed a preliminary hearing Friday for a state highway official charged with driving while intoxicated because Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond withdrew himself and his staff from the case.

A preliminary hearing was scheduled Friday for Bill "Crash" Dingsus, 59, of Martin who was arrested twice New Year's Day and charged with two counts of first degree wanton endangerment and driving while intoxicated. In a letter to state Attorney General Chris Gorman, Hammond asked permission to withdraw from the case because, he said, Dingsus is a close personal friend and that Dingsus had been his little league baseball coach. Hammond said he was stepping down "to avoid even the slightest appearance of impropriety."

Deputy attorney general Brent Caldwell said in a letter to the court that he would need at least three weeks to prepare for the case and asked that the hearing be postponed until after February 12.

Judge Caudill granted the postponement and Dingsus' attorney, Gerald DeRossett, had no objections to the request. No date has been set for the hearing.

Dingsus, who is an assistant to State Highway Commissioner Jerry Anglin, was driving a state-owned vehicle when he was first arrested. Dingsus has been suspended without pay from the job pending the results of an investigation by the highway department.

As of December 1992, the Cabinet for Human Resources Division of Licensing and Regulation listed 1,686 child day care centers approved to operate in Kentucky.

A symbol of hope

Student in coma; crash site marked

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

An Allen Central High School student's life hangs in the balance following an auto accident last week at Hippo after a high school basketball game.

Traci Dings was a passenger in the vehicle of her friend and fellow Allen Central student Jennifer Steffy, 16. According to a report issued by the Pikeville Post of the Kentucky State Police, Steffy was driving west on Route 850 at the foot of Hippo Mountain when she apparently lost control of her vehicle, fishtailed, and struck a power pole on the passenger's side. The accident occurred at around 12:40 a.m. Thursday.

Dings, 16, apparently struck the pole with her head, suffering multiple injuries, including severe head trauma. Dings was removed from the vehicle by members of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad.

Also responding to the scene were members of the Kentucky State Police, the Floyd County Sheriff's office and Respond Ambulance service.

Both Dings and Steffy were transported to Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin. Steffy was later transferred to Highlands Regional Medical Center and Dings was transported to the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington, where she remains in a coma in the intensive care unit.

The accident is still under investigation by Trooper Hansford of the Pikeville Post of the Kentucky State Police.

Dings' aunt, Diane Akers, said Tuesday that medical personnel had informed the family that Dings has a 50-50 chance for survival.

Akers said Monday that she had decorated the power pole erected in place of the one damaged by the auto accident as a symbol of her niece's fight for life.

Akers said that she had wrapped ribbons around the pole, including Allen Central's school colors and a yellow ribbon. The yellow ribbon, Akers said, will be removed when Traci regains consciousness and the school colors will be removed when she comes home.

"I just felt helpless," Akers said, "like I couldn't do anything. This was my way of helping the family cope and letting Traci know we're praying for her."

Police capture burglar

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Martin City policeman and a Floyd County Deputy Sheriff thwarted a burglary at a Martin pharmacy early Sunday morning when they captured the suspect inside the store.

Eric Collins, 27, of Ermine in Leitcher County was arrested by Martin patrolman James Burke.

Floyd County deputy sheriff Johnny Layne said Tuesday that Burke called for assistance from the sheriff's department when he saw the subject inside the Martin Prescription Center putting items into a garbage bag.

Layne said that Collins gained entrance to the building by throwing a rock through the drive through window. He added that Collins had attempted to deactivate the alarm system inside the pharmacy.

Collins was charged with third degree burglary, alcohol intoxication, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. He remained lodged in the Floyd County Jail Tuesday under a $10,000 bond.

Burke and Layne are investigating the incident.

Neeley charged in shooting

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

An apparent friendly argument turned ugly and erupted in graphic violence Saturday night when a Hueysville man allegedly shot another after a brief altercation at Salt Lick.

According to a report issued Tuesday by the Pikeville Post of the Kentucky State Police, Russell Neeley, 36, and Stevie Gibson, 22, both of Hueysville, were fighting when Neeley allegedly shot Gibson in the side with a .357 Magnum.

Gibson was rushed to Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin and later transported to the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington.

At the request of both Gibson and his family, medical center personnel were unable to comment on his condition.

Neeley was admitted to Highlands Regional Medical Center for the treatment of minor injuries received in the altercation, was released, and transported to the Floyd County jail. He has been charged with first degree criminal assault.

The incident is still under investigation by Detective J. Newsome of the Pikeville Post of the Kentucky State Police.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Editorial :

Fort America . . .

by Scott Perry

In Carter County, authorities are installing security systems at a high school where a teenager last week shot and killed a teacher and a janitor.

In Texas, special precautions are being used in Houston courtrooms, after a man with a gun shot and killed his estranged wife and then himself.

At Wheelwright, city commissioners are discussing safety measures after a man last week held a city police officer at gunpoint after he and the officer struggled over the loose and loaded weapon.

A school.
A courtroom.
A city commission chamber.
Frightening.

The people involved in these incidents aren't drug lords fighting over turf or crime bosses punishing their competition.

They're basically ordinary people who have for one reason or another stepped into the Twilight Zone, armed and ready to make their points at the end of a gun barrel.

What kind of world have we created when teen-agers must pass through a metal detector before they can pass an English test? When armed guards must patrol our halls of justice? When average citizens must look over their shoulders at city hall to see who may be aiming a gun at their backs?

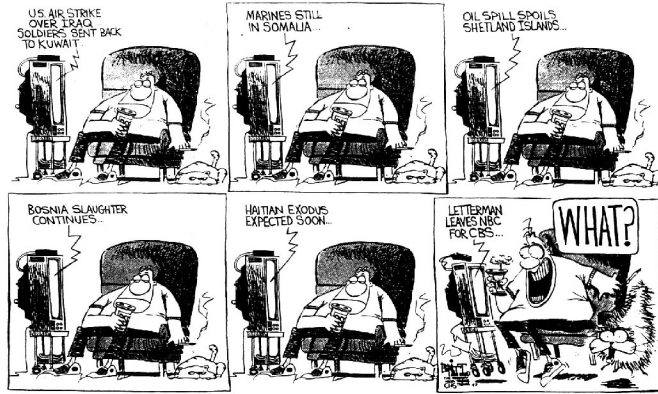

Our constitution says the people of this country have the right to bear arms.

It also guarantees us the rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Meanwhile, our public facilities are being made into fortresses, innocent people are dying and we can't go to a basketball game without worrying about ducking bullets.

"We have met the enemy," Pogo the cartoon possum once said, "and he is us."

Armed and dangerous. What a way to live.

LOW INTEREST FACILITATES CREDIT CARD USE

Americans hooked on easy credit at high interest rates are getting a break for a change. Some of the nation's largest banks are stealing customers from competitors by offering lower-priced credit cards with no annual fee.

The rate-cutting campaign is aimed at good credit risks—people who pay their bills but maintain outstanding balances in their credit card accounts. Such customers are sent checks to pay off balances on old cards. The amount of the checks is added to the balance of the new card with a much lower interest rate. Instead of 18 or 19 percent, the new interest rate might be 12 or 13 percent.

This is not a new idea. Lists of regional banks offering low rates are issued by Bankcard Holders of America and other organizations. But the entry of national banks into rate-cutting creates more competition among banks and more options for consumers, many of whom pay hundreds or even thousands of dollars in interest each year on credit card debt. Paying stiff interest on debt makes no sense in the old days, but it makes less sense now that such interest no longer is tax-deductible.

Banks argue that high rates are necessary to defray the high cost of defaults and the expense of servicing accounts. The argument might be more convincing if banks would stop issuing credit cards to high-risk individuals who wouldn't qualify for any other type of loan.

Because interest rates are so high, credit cards are a money-making enterprise. Despite serious problems at some banks, the industry earned record-high profits in 1992. One reason: The gap between what banks pay for deposits and what they charge for loans is unusually wide—a nice cushion for lenders, but a drag on borrowers.

The best advice to credit-card holders is to pay off the balance each month, thereby avoiding interest charges of any kind.

Members of Kentucky's General Assembly ought to be charged with practicing comedy without a license.

The legislative debate over ethics laws is as laughable as any stand-up routine we've seen lately.

Legislators have been throwing pies at the proposed legislation ever since recommendations were adopted by a task force and one even suggested that the plan be sent to the solid waste committee, where "garbage" belongs.

Hahahahahahaha.

What a riot.

New House Speaker Joe Clarke predicts the ethics legislation will be rewritten into a "rational but tough" ethics law.

Heeheeheehee.

Stop, you're killin' us.

Come on, these are the same guys who haven't uttered a word of criticism against their colleagues for getting trapped in an FBI influence peddling scheme.

And they're going to clean up and make something respectable of themselves?

Who's kiddin who?

The eldest of our family's third generation, Mitchell Hale, shipped out Sunday for a tour in the U.S. Air Force, evoking a wide variety of feelings from those of us who remain behind.

While we tend to see Mitchell as the tuxedoed, five-year-old ring bearer in our own wedding ceremony, we do acknowledge his decision to join the service as one of the few opportunities this area offers 22-year-olds for all-expense-paid travel, education and, potentially, a career.

Mitchell's brother, Scott, ever the opportunist, sees the occasion as a chance to refurbish his wardrobe at no expense.

Of course the rationality of the occasion is totally wasted on mom, Marjorie Hale, who compares the issue with Ramses murder of Hebrew first-borns in ancient Egypt.

The last we saw of her, she was standing on the banks of the Big Sandy, attempting to part the waters, and muttering something about "letting my baby go."

A pitiful sight, indeed.

Inaugural notes, the sequel.

Those who make note of such things suggest that inaugural addresses are the theme-setters for presidential terms and that each new president tries to deliver one memorable line to define his upcoming presidency.

Kennedy's "ask not what your country can do..." quote is an example.

Bill Clinton's speech offered no unforgettable lines, but there was one post-speech scene that may or may not characterize the new administration...

First-Daughter Chelsea yawning through the National Anthem.

That's not a good sign for Clinton's call to the country's youth, urging them to join his fight for an "age of renewal."

Let's sleep on it.

In just a few short winter days, the celebration will begin.

Yes, February will soon be upon us, and with it comes Return Shopping Carts to the Supermarket Month.

Sound the whistles. Bang the drums.

We are not kidding.

As a matter of fact, hardly a day goes by that isn't something "Day" and, if you like, you can name one of your own.

According to Chicago Tribune columnist Jean Latz Griffin, anyone can proclaim a day, week or month, publicize it and use it for any purpose.

Just about everybody does it, why not you?

Don't mess with July 27, though. Everybody will be busy.

That is Take Your Houseplants for a Walk Day, after all.

Spread the word.

 Pastor, First Presbyterian Church
 Thus far I have not spoken much about the role of the church in the sweeping changes in Berlin and Germany. Since my message is about "The Church in Central Europe Today," that seems appropriate. Of course, the church here, as anywhere, has to respond to the needs and concerns around it.

When one thinks of the church in the East, what a tumultuous time it has been. Someone about the age of Jimmy Goble would have faced in his lifetime: the terrible aftermath of World War I, desperate economic times, Hitler and the Third Reich, the devastation of another war, Communism for 40 years, and now, democracy and freedom. No wonder the people are bewildered and confused. Yet the church has had to continue its proclamation, service, and witness through it all. During the Third Reich, a number of brave pastors and lay people formed the Confessing Church, to affirm that God and not the "Führer" was their Master and Lord. For that they paid dearly, including the famed Dietrich Bonhoeffer who gave his life in a concentration camp, just before it was freed by the Allies.

During the time of the GDR (the Eastern Communist State), the church had to determine how it would continue and what its stance would be toward the state, which officially proclaimed and promoted atheism. Children of Christians were persecuted and forbidden entrance to the best universities and opportunities. To be a believer was to be part of an unwanted minority by the state.

Nevertheless, the church was the only place where free speech could take place, and so it became a sanctuary for many who were displeased with the state. The churches in East Germany opened their doors for community meetings of all kinds, and even though the Stasis (state secret police) sought to infiltrate these meetings and did so successfully, they were not able to stop the people's movement.

In the eighties, as bigger and bigger groups met in the churches, pastors had to try to persuade the people not to take to the streets. But, eventually they did, facing the possibility (and sometimes reality) of brutal treatment and arrest. The church tried to keep the protests nonviolent, and so it was. Worshipers would leave the churches with lighted candles signifying that they intended no violence.

Eventually, it was these mass marches and demonstrations which brought the end to the GDR, and in the process, the Wall. But the efforts had started with a very few, with many others joining as the movement gained momentum.

Now, in a period of very dramatic change, pastors and church leaders are again in the forefront. For years, they were the only persons (outside the party) to be trained in public speaking and with experience in community leadership. Many now are taking part in the new political processes and providing badly needed leadership for the Eastern part of the new Germany.

At the same time, our hosts noted a drop-off in church attendance after the Wall came down. People were too interested in going to the West and becoming consumers! When the crisis was over, material needs became paramount and spiritual ones forgotten.

Now, however, one pastor told us, people are returning to the church in East Germany, because they need "something to hold on to" in such perilous, changing times. Everything has changed, and some may even long to go back the enslavement of Egypt in preference to the difficulties of getting to the Promised Land.

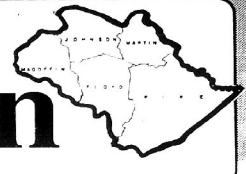

So, the church has played—and continues to play—an important role in these historic days. However, in the rest of Germany and Europe, interest in the church declines because of increasing secularization. I would not want to let my congregation know that people in Western Europe attend church far more poorly than they do!

In fact, I will be mighty glad to be reunited with my faithful congregation and experience once again their warm fellowship, support, and love. "You never know what you have until it is not there!"

So, I am thankful for the opportunity to learn and study how fellow believers have endured in hard times. Whether we live in easy or difficult circumstances, people everywhere need. I am convinced, a sense of community and faith to bring them through. We have had that for generations in Eastern Kentucky, and I hope we don't lose it—because we too have become seduced by the materialism and "business" of our "West."

I plan one final report after returning home in which I will contrast the culture and values of Europe and America, East and West Germans, and even East Kentucky and the rest of the state.

Repairs began on Wickham Memorial Hall

Repairs began Thursday to Pikeville College's Wickham Memorial Hall. The 65-year-old structure sustained fire and smoke damage Wednesday night, January 20, when a blaze broke out in the dormitory director's room. The building is the only men's dorm on campus and houses the basketball team, which was away for a game when the incident occurred. Pike County Sheriff's Deputy Dave Coleman arrested James White, 41, of Canada early Thursday evening on sexual offense charges.

An arrest warrant signed by Deputy James Williams alleges that, on four different dates last year, White "subjected two minor children (both females), ages nine and eleven, to illegal sexual activities."

White was charged with four counts of first-degree sexual abuse and unlawful transaction with minors.

1993 OFFERS MARGINAL IMPROVEMENTS

By Kenneth Eskye
 Scripps Howard News Service
 Twenty economic predictions for 1993:

—It will be a better year than 1992.

—A better year, but not a great year.

—Despite the euphoria that goes with a new president, the economy will improve only moderately, with much of the improvement coming in the second half of the year.

—Economic problems in Europe and Japan will make it harder for U.S. manufacturers to sell more American goods overseas.

—The unemployment rate will come down gradually, staying close to 7 percent for much of the year.

—Mountain Valley spring water from Hot Springs, Ark., will be a popular beverage, especially at Washington, D.C., dinner parties.

—College tuition again will rise at twice the rate of inflation, prompting educators to explain that tuition is increasing but at a decreasing rate.

—Social Security benefits will rise 3 percent to keep pace with the cost of living. The average monthly benefit for an aged couple, both of whom receive benefits, will be $1,106. Workers will pay Social Security taxes on the first $57,600 of income in 1993. They will pay Medicare taxes on the first $135,000.

—Sen. Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., will replace the newly appointed Treasury secretary, Sen. Lloyd Benetton, D-Texas, as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Moynihan will renew his call for a reduction in Social Security taxes.

—Congress will approve, and President Clinton will sign, a bill granting workers up to 12 weeks of unpaid leave for family emergencies. The new law will apply to companies with 50 or more workers.

—A baseball player will create a national sensation by giving back part of his $2 million salary after hitting only 225 and sitting out much of the season with injuries.

—A business school graduate will surprise and amaze his friends by marrying a classmate who tells him she doesn't want to work, she just wants to stay home and have children.

—As the economy improves, the high cost of health care and the lack of health insurance for millions of Americans will become the Clinton administration's No. 1 problem and priority. Reforming the present system will not be easy.

—After much haggling, the North American Free Trade agreement with Mexico and Canada will be approved by Congress.

—Ten banks will offer you a credit card. At least one card will be decorated with your college coat of arms.

—Graduating seniors in the college class of 1993 will have a tough time finding the jobs they want in the places where they prefer to live. Companies will continue to hire sparingly even though their sales and profits will improve.

—Real estate agents will have their best year since 1979. Some home buyers will insist on bathtubs with built-in Jacuzzis.

—Selling a car for the sticker price, with no bargaining, no inflated numbers and no phony consultations between salesman and sales manager, will gain popularity. More dealers will try it.

—The inflation rate will stay in the 3 percent range, but it won't seem that low. Everything you already have will be dirt cheap. Everything you need will be expensive.

—Other Voices—

The following is an open letter to President Clinton from ASIM Executive Vice President Alan R. Nelson, M.D.

As a student of history, you may remember that Teddy Roosevelt, running for President under the banner of the Progressive Party, first talked about providing health insurance for all Americans back in 1912. Of course talk, like health care, was cheap back then.

Today, talk is still cheap, but health care is not.

After eighty years of debate over the best way to provide health care for all Americans, 35 million Americans have no health insurance and millions more are woefully uninsured. Add to that a national health care bill totaling $800 billion and rising, and it becomes clear that debate alone will not solve our nation's health care woes. The time has come for action and leadership that will put America on the path toward comprehensive, quality health coverage for all Americans at an affordable price.

New government estimates show health care costs rising by 12 percent this year alone. If this growth is not checked, efforts to create universal access to health care will be severely undermined. Yet, the importance of cost control does not mean that quick fixes are the answer. Reject calls for global budgeting that would cap overall health expenditures. Such budgeting could lead to rationing of services during periods of economic hardship.

As an alternative, consider reasoned cost containment proposals that will slow the rate of medical care expenses without resorting to measures that might limit patient access to needed services or reduce incentives for the provision of quality care.

Five such proposals are as follows:

- Primary care should be expanded and encouraged. There is convincing evidence to suggest that a medical system predominated by primary care physicians is more cost-effective than our current system, which is made up overwhelmingly of specialists. By stressing health management, preventive care and early detection of disease, primary care physicians save lives and money. Yet primary care physicians make up only 15 percent of the U.S. physician workforce—a percentage that is steadily declining. Work to reverse this decline through reimbursement reform that enhances recognition of the value of primary care services; and by offering loan deferments and other financial incentives to medical students who choose careers in primary care.

• Consider a tax cap to help control costs. The current unlimited tax deduction for employer-provided health benefits is an incentive to spend money, not save it. Don't eliminate the deduction; instead, limit it to a fixed amount that is no higher than what is sufficient to purchase a reasonable health benefits package. This would encourage cost-effective health care plans that provide basic benefits and discourage costly overutilization of health care services. Politically, a tax cap may not prove popular, but in the long run this is a necessary step to bring more accountability into the health care system.

• Examine the cost-effectiveness of new technologies. The Commerce Department says the expense of new medical technology is one of the top five reasons that health care costs continue to rise. The creation of a national technology assessment committee would be one way of examining the relative worth of new and emerging technologies before they become common medical practice. A national board, armed with appropriate data, could make recommendations that would reduce the demand for technologies of unproven benefit.

• Target administrative costs and government red tape. Administrative costs needlessly drive up health care spending. By cutting burdensome bureaucratic requirements and streamlining the payment of insurance claims, much of this wasteful spending can be eliminated. Repeat rules that add a costly level of bureaucracy and overhead to the provision of health care. Administrative costs associated with insurance can be cut through the use of standardized claim forms and increased use of computerization to both pay claims and provide a national data bank with easily accessible information on patient eligibility and benefits coverage.

• Protect health care providers from frivolous lawsuits. The current malpractice system promotes unnecessary "defensive" medicine—that is, the overtesting and overtreatment of a patient to protect against malpractice claims. Appropriate tort reform could eliminate this costly overuse of health care resources. The medical liability system should also be reformed to limit incentives for filing frivolous malpractice claims.

One final note. As you and lawmakers move forward with plans to reform our health care system, you should know that you have the support of the vast majority of physicians across the country. We have seen first-hand the many inequities of our current system, and are eager to work with you to help reform and improve it.

near the door, behind Thornsberry and to his right.

Thornsberry glanced over his right shoulder several times and told Moore that he "didn't like" him standing behind him and said "come up here and stand in front of me."

Moore responded that he would remain where he was standing.

Thornsberry stood up, reeled right and the gun fell from his pocket onto the floor. Both men lunged for the weapon and a struggle ensued, with the weapon being pointed at various areas of the meeting room, at times in the direction of citizens.

Thornsberry came away with the gun and the two wrestled to a corner near the door. Thornsberry put the pistol to Moore's head and said "I'll blow your... brains out."

The men continued to struggle and Thornsberry eventually put the weapon back into his pocket. As Moore was attempting to apprehend Thornsberry, he reached for the gun in his pocket again and Moore got Thornsberry in a bear hug and the two crashed to the floor near the center of the small meeting hall.

While the two men were on the floor, many of the people in the meeting hall fled outside. Commissioner Akers apparently went to Moore's aid and Akers was slightly injured.

Thornsberry emerged from the meeting room a few minutes after citizens ran from the room and jumped into a vehicle parked across the road and fled the scene.

Moore attempted to pursue Thornsberry but his police cruiser would not start.

Several people who witnessed the incident, later said they were "scared to death" when the men were struggling for the gun.

Thornsberry surrendered to Floyd

County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson later that night. He complained to the sheriff that he had injured his leg and he was taken by a deputy to the McDowell Appalachian Hospital where he was admitted.

Chief Moore went to the hospital Monday to arrest Thornsberry but he did not have the proper paperwork. While Moore was en route to the county attorney's office to get the necessary papers, Thornsberry left the hospital and went to Sheriff Thompson's office where Moore later arrested him.

After Saturday's incident, city commissioners held a special meeting Tuesday morning and voted to implement strict security measures at future meetings.

Although thousands of Sears employees around the nation will be rotated to other stores or offered early retirement in the face of the massive cuts, the fate of the Prestonsburg employees is still undecided.

"We'll probably know around next Tuesday," Hamilton said. "Until then, all we can do is wait."

Weeksbury home burns to the ground

by Geoff Belcher Staff Writer

Tragedy struck a Floyd County couple Sunday when their Weeksbury home was destroyed by fire, moments after they had left it.

David Boyd, chief of the Wheelwright Volunteer Fire Department, said Tuesday that the home belonged to Tommy and Barbara Roop, parents of Floyd County Sheriff's Deputy Shawn Roop.

Boyd said that eight members of the Wheelwright department and about 14 members of the Southeast Volunteer Fire Department battled the blaze for over three hours, nearly extinguishing it, but were thwarted by a lack of water pressure that allowed the fire to resume.

No injuries were reported. The cause of the blaze has not yet been determined, Boyd said. The incident is still under investigation.

To the People of Floyd County:

Recently I announced that I am a candidate for re-election to the Office of Commonwealth Attorney for Floyd County. This is based upon my desire to continue representing you in a job which I love. Last week I became concerned about the strain that a campaign would put on my parents. My father, as many of you know, had coronary bypass surgery five months after my election to this office in 1987. This is the only reason I had second thoughts about my candidacy.

However, for the past few days my family and I have had a great number of people contact us with words of encouragement and support. We are very moved by your kindness and we want you to know that I am a candidate for re-election to the office of Commonwealth Attorney.

We would greatly appreciate your continued support.

People, Places & Things ...by Beth Jones

When Alicia Cox and Steve Dawson graduated from the University of Kentucky School of Pharmacy, they could have opened up a pharmacy business just about anywhere. But they decided to return to their native Eastern Kentucky and start their business at McDowell.

Three weeks ago Cox and Dawson opened the doors of their new business, the McDowell Professional Pharmacy.

Cox is a native of Knott County. She attended high school at Knott County Central. After graduation, she attended Alice Lloyd College and the University of Kentucky. She is now a registered pharmacist.

"My chemistry teacher really influenced my decision to be a pharmacist," said Cox. "I wanted a job in the medical field but I didn't want to be a doctor. I think pharmacy is a wonderful profession, especially for women. Women pharmacists can work and also have time to have a home life, a family, and childreep."

Dawson hails from Price, here in Floyd County. He is a graduate of McDowell High School. He went to Prestonsburg Community College and then transferred to the University of Kentucky.

When asked why he wanted to be a pharmacist, Dawson said that he really enjoyed the medical field. "I love medicine, but I didn't want to be a doctor. Sure, they have lots of money, but most of them don't have a personal life. They don't get time to enjoy their wealth."

Both Cox and Dawson are very glad they came home to work. They explained there is a huge need for their services in this area. They also said that many of their friends who are pharmacists are working in Lexington or Louisville, where pharmacists are not in great demand. Those friends aren't making as much money as the pharmacists in the Eastern Kentucky hills, they said.

The partners are also enjoying being their own bosses. Cox said, "It's really great to be the owner of your own business. It is so much different than working for someone else. It is a good feeling to be a boss."

These two young pharmacists are good examples for others to follow. They show that if you choose a profession and study hard to attain that goal, you can succeed. They are living proof of that. With that much hard work, they hope the McDowell Professional Pharmacy will be another success for them.

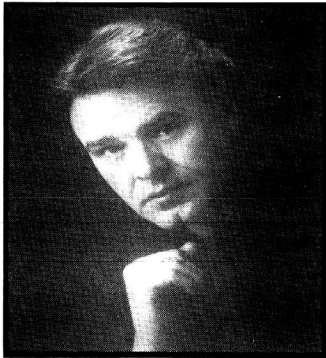

Back home
Alicia Cox and Steve Dawson brought their expertise back home to Eastern Kentucky to open their own business, McDowell Pharmacy. Both are believers that new businesses can succeed in Eastern Kentucky.

Together We Can Change Things

WITH A FIRM CONVICTION, HOPE AND BELIEF IN YOU,
THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTY...

I have filed the necessary papers and announce my candidacy for County Judge-Executive, Democratic Party.

We see firsthand in this county the cruel result of the awful legacy of greed and unprincipled power...and our frustration grows.

We are brought once again to the inescapable conclusion that the only true change that can take place in this county must first come from within each of us.

We must believe that what we do matters. That one can make a difference...not only in our lives, but in the lives of those around us.

The era...of self-serving, deal-making politicians must end. Together we can change things.

IF NOT NOW...WHEN?

IF NOT US...WHO?

Together we can give our county and people the pride and dignity we deserve. We've waited long enough!!!

Mystery Mardi Gras Masquerade Ball

In some areas of the country, most notably New Orleans and Galveston, the season between the end of the Christmas holidays and the beginning of lent (40 days of fasting and penance) is a time of festivity and feasting. This season culminates in Mardi Gras celebrations. Mardi Gras is noted for two types of festivities, extravagant parades and costume balls.

This year, for the first time, the people of Eastern Kentucky have the opportunity to join in Mardi Gras fun at the Mystery Mardi Gras Masquerade Ball. The dance will be held at the Mayo Mansion on third street in Paintsville and will benefit Our Lady of the Mountains School. Those attending are encouraged to come in costume. The costume can be very elaborate or as simple as street clothes and the half mask which will be provided with the purchase of the ticket.

The ball will be held on February 20, from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. The evening will include dancing, hors d'oeuvres, beverage and a silent auction of great items (including a catered dinner to be served in your home, a Cincinnati get-away package, autographed sports items, etc.). In addition, during the ball a mysterious murder will occur. The murder victim will be a regional celebrity. Everyone attending will be considered a suspect. Each person at the party will be given a clue and/or information that incriminates others or themselves. There will be a $100 cash prize for the first person who correctly solves the mystery. This event is limited to 40 couples, so make plans soon to attend! For additional information or ticket reservations, call 297-2011 or 638-0304.

MSU-Big Sandy ECC launches campaign
Morehead State University's Big Sandy Extended Campus Center has launched a campaign to raise $15,000 of which $5,000 is earmarked for instructional equipment, including computer hardware and software. The remaining $10,000 will go for a special student aid program. Fundraising effort will aid student program

Morehead State University's Big Sandy Extended Campus Center is launching a campaign to raise $15,000 of which $5,000 is earmarked for a special student aid program and the remainder for instructional equipment needs.

"While state funds and students fees do much to offset the Big Sandy Center's operating costs, there are other areas that need funding to ensure a quality educational experience for our students," said MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin.

"We can only address those needs with help from private donors, individuals and businesses who benefit from the educational opportunities that our Big Sandy Center offers the region's citizens," Dr. Eaglin added.

"Many of us already have seen the difference that the physical presence of MSU through its extended campus center has meant to people here," said Gary Frazier, assistant superintendent of the Floyd County Schools who chairs the center's advisory committee.

Chairing the drive for the advisory committee is Tim Hites of Prestonsburg. Other members of the fund raising subcommittee are: Pat Burchett of Paintsville, Linda Hueseman of Salyersville, Carlos Cassidy of Inez, and Dr. Margaret Lewis, center director.

Appalachian Research and Defense Fund to receive summer law intern

Appalachian Research and Defense Fund in Prestonsburg will receive a law intern sometime during late summer.

Shawn Boehringer, a third-year student at the State University of New York at Buffalo School of Law, is one of 25 students nationally who will practice public-interest law this year as a Skadden Fellow.

The $10 million Skadden Fellowship program was established in 1988 by a New York City law firm. The fellows are paid $32,500 a year for the two-year fellowship. Many Skadden fellows remain in public-interest law once their fellowships are completed.

"It's really wonderful and we are really pleased that we are going to have Boehringer as a summer intern," said John Rosenberg who heads the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund in Eastern Kentucky. "He will be doing some work with day care centers in Eastern Kentucky."

Boehringer, a native of Adamstown, Pennsylvania, will also handle issues related to coal mining.

Completes vehicle mechanic course

Army Reserve Pvt. Keith S. Griffith has completed a light wheel vehicle mechanic course at Fort Jackson, Columbia, South Carolina.

During the course, students were trained to perform maintenance and assist in the repair of automotive vehicles and associated equipment.

He is the son of Keith R. Griffith of Garner and Reba L. Griffith of Langley.

The private is a graduate of J.H. Allen Central High School.

Inventory lists properties for sale

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) has from time to time various inventory real properties for sale through brokers having executed a listing agreement with the agency. Licensed real estate brokers may obtain additional information by writing or visiting the local FmHA Office located in the Post Office Building, Third Avenue, Prestonsburg, 41653, or telephoning (606) 886-9545.

such as working with the Kentucky congressional delegation to enact legislation that is more favorable to miners applying for federal black lung benefits, and representing miners on safety issues and in retirement benefits claims against the United Mine Workers.

Boehringer also plans to use his experience to help groups in the Prestonsburg area that want to start day care centers.

"I knew early that I wanted to do legal services, public-interest work," he said.

Boehringer says his home county in eastern Pennsylvania borders the coal region, so he was familiar with the coal industry and the problems associated with it.

"I was impressed with the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund; it does a lot of non-traditional legal services and a lot of proactive work on behalf of coal miners," he said.

Boehringer received a bachelor's degree in history and religion from Gettysburg College in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania.

In Loving Memory

To Our Dear Brother, S.R. Hatcher

Do not stand at my grave and weep.
I am not there. I do not sleep.
I am a thousand winds that blow;
I am the diamond glints on snow.
I am sunlight in ripened grain;
I am the gentle autumn's rain;
When you awaken in the morning's hush,
I am the swift uplifting rush
Of quiet birds in circled flight.
I am the soft stars that shine at night,
Do not stand at my grave and cry
I am not there. I did not die.

New MRI unit installed at Pikeville Methodist

The Radiology Department at Pikeville Methodist Hospital recently announced the installation of its new Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) unit at its permanent site in the building addition.

MRI has become a well accepted modality, especially in the examination of the central nervous system, the head, neck, and spine, and the musculoskeletal system.

The new unit, the Siemens 1 Tesla Impact, not only provides routine studies with images of superb contrast resolutions, but has advanced medical applications that few MRI units in other facilities can match. The Siemens Impact has a high field superconducting magnet which is one of few in the state. Patients can expect less time for their exam because of the rapid imaging speed compared to low or medium field strength magnets.

A unique feature called "Turbo Flash" allows for sub-second imaging, useful for dynamic processes in the head and body. This advanced technology sets the stage for the future in brain and cardiac perfusion imaging.

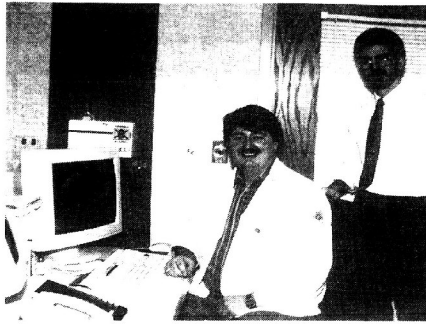

The ability to achieve multiplanar reconstruction for 3-D imaging is amazing. This feature allows the radiologist via computer to reconstruct areas of complex anatomy from any orientation or plane. This has been particularly useful in the joints, such as the knees where complex anatomic planes require non-traditional projections which will complement more conventional studies.

Another exciting feature which makes the unit at Pikeville Methodist so unique is MR angiography (viewing of the blood vessels). At this time, the technology does not have the fine resolution and large field of view of conventional angiography. It does, however, provide a quick, inexpensive, non-invasive screening test superior in many respects to Doppler Ultrasound. Unlike ultrasound, it is not obscured by overlying fat, air, or bone. Unlike both ultrasound and conventional angiography, MR angiography is quick to acquire and provides 3-dimensional images of vessels that are useful for surgical staging.

Vascular technology is evolving rapidly. In 1993, pending EPA approval, Siemens will provide software with better resolution and a larger field of view for neck vessels. This will approach the quality of imaging seen in subtraction digital angiography. Many MRI experts are predicting that MR angiography in a short period of time will overtake conventional angiography as the main diagnostic tool in vascular imaging.

Pikeville Methodist's unit also complements the new software and coils used for breast and cardiac imaging.

MRI technicians

Floyd County residents Donnie Tackett and Kevin Hall perform the MRI procedures at Pikeville Methodist Hospital. Both Tackett and Hall are graduates of Betsy Layne High School. They continued their education at Morehead State University and the Kettering College of Medical Arts in Dayton, Ohio, where they received CT/MRI certification. Tackett and his wife, Lisa, reside in Harold and have one son, Cory. Hall also resides in Harold. He and his wife, Pam, have two children, Ashley and Jarod.

The grant will fund a statewide effort to change the way math is taught in the middle grades in Kentucky schools. The service grant was given to the eight state universities of Kentucky.

The Kentucky Middle Grades Mathematics Teacher Network will create a comprehensive statewide network of middle grades (5-8) mathematics teachers in middle and elementary schools in the state.

By March 30, 26 top math teachers of grades 5-8 from across the state will join 12 teacher educators, eight mathematicians and two administrators as teacher coaches for the program. The coaches will attend a three-week Summer Institute in 1993.

In the fall of 1993, those coaches will put the training to the test in their own classrooms. A $500 kit of manipulatives (physical materials used to demonstrate mathematical concepts) will be provided to the teachers.

In the summer of 1994, the 48 coaches will meet again to create two courses, and then will help deliver the courses to 300 middle grades mathematics teacher leaders in 1995. By spring 1996, every middle grades math teacher in the state will have had the opportunity to benefit from the training.

The grant from the NSF's Teacher Enhancement Division will provide participating teacher coaches with more than $9,000 in stipends over three years and a half-year sabbatical from teaching. Teachers interested in the program may contact UK at 257-2927.

A Look At Sports
by Ed Taylor

LAST MONTH OF SEASON HERE....

The basketball season is moving swiftly by us and before you know it, it will be district, regional and state tournament time. Tournament sites haven't been officially announced where the regional tournaments (girls' and boys') will be held. The word is, that if the Shelby Valley gym is completed in time, the boys' regional will be held there.

It is going to be a fine facility and will seat around 4,000. It is accessible and there is plenty of parking space. Again, there has been nothing announced about the site.

The girls' regional hasn't had too many rumors flying about it. One rumor has it that the site will be at Allen Central. Again, if that is true, you couldn't find a better place to have it. Principal Jody Sward and his staff did a great, great job of hosting the boys' regional last year and they know how to do up the big show. Last year the girls' regional was staged at Betsy Layne.

The 58th District tournament will, more than likely, be held at Prestonsburg this year, although it is Betsy Layne's turn to host the event. However, with construction going on in the gym, Betsy Layne will trade with Prestonsburg, hosting the tournament next season.

One has to wonder how long the girls' Class "A" basketball tournament will be a reality? Attendance at the event that was held at Elk Horn City last week had to be a bust as far as paid attendance goes.

Very few fans came out for the tournament. The largest crowd in attendance was on Thursday night when host school Elk Horn City met the Lady Tigers of Paintsville.

After the two teams completed their first game, it was like an empty gym thereafter. Of course, the boys' tournament usually draws good attendance. The tournament is being held at Pikeville again this year. Pikeville is another good place to stage a tournament of this caliber. They do a great job of putting on the show.

But, again, I would like to see it brought to Floyd County and other counties as well.

BASEBALL TALK....

The days are getting longer and it won't be long until spring training begins (if the owners don't lock them out). The boys in the pros start moving to Florida next month with the catchers and pitchers being the first to report.

Don't you just love springtime? Things begin to come to life. The weather warms up. I love the sound of a bat meeting the baseball.

The Cincinnati Reds have made some positive moves this winter. I believe they have strengthened their team with some additions.

I must confess that Paul O'Neil was one of my favorite players. He will have a good year for the Yankees. But "Spud" (Chris Sabo) will be back this year (my favorite) and I look for him to have a banner season if he stays healthy.

There's still a question mark on Kevin Mitchell as to whether he can leave all his problems behind and return to his old form this year. If he does, and John Smiley lives up to expectations, the Reds could definitely finish second again. WHO IS GOING TO BE ABLE TO COMPETE AGAINST ATLANTA'S PITCHING STAFF? No one, that's who!

Plenty of baseball left yet and we will talk more about baseball later. Have some interesting insights about baseball you would like to share? Give me a call. PRESTONSBURG JR. PRO.... This past Saturday I did something that I have been wanting to do all season and that is to take in a game of the Prestonsburg Junior Pro basketball league.

Lady Rebs are state bound

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Four nights of traveling up U.S. 23 toward Elk Horn City had to take a lot out of the Allen Central girls' basketball team last week, but the Lady Rebs found there was still enough left in them to pull off a big win over the Paintsville Lady Tigers in the championship game of the Kentucky All "A" 15th Regional tournament.

Allen Central posted a 59-42 win over Paintsville to earn the right to journey up the interstate to Eastern Kentucky University where they will meet the winner of the 11th Region in a 1:30 p.m. game Wednesday, February 3, in the first round of the state tournament. For coach Bonita Compton the victory was sweet.

"This is the best I have felt as far as winning a basketball game," she said. "The first district that I won was probably the best feeling, but this one is special because it is a trip down state."

"We will be playing in Richmond and that's my alma mater," continued Compton. "I've always wanted to take a team back to Richmond."

Staci Moore led the Lady Rebs with 25 points and Veronica McKinney added 12 for the victory. Marsha Brown tossed in 10 points. Moore said it was something that the Lady Rebs had long awaited.

"It's what we have been waiting for. We want to win the district again this year but right now McDowell is inching upon us. I'd like to win a fourth district and then the regional."

A fourth district title is much on the minds of these Lady Rebs because it is something no team has ever accomplished in the history of 58th District basketball. The Lady Rebs know that they have the opportunity and for Coach Compton that would be the highlight of the season.

"Winning a fourth district title would top even this victory," she said. "We want the district we want it bad."

While the trio of players shined for Allen Central, it was the sixth man who made this one possible. The "sixth man" was defense.

It was a complete defensive effort on the part of the Lady Rebs as they took Paintsville completely out of their game, forcing numerous turnovers and cutting off their passing lanes.

For assistant coach Charlotte Moore, words could not come easy about the win.

"I'm excited about it," she said. "I'm really lost for words. It's a special win for us because it's the last year for some of the girls. They've worked together for four years and finally they made it."

Moore said that she was tickled for them because they won a tournament.

When it comes to playing the point guard in girls' high school basketball, they don't come much better than Allen Central's Jenny Wiley. Trojans roll past Phelps, 75-47

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Brian Johnson and Greg Johnson combined for 37 points to lead the Wheelwright Trojans to a 75-47 win over an adversity-stricken Phelps Hornets basketball team. Brian Johnson tossed in 20 points and Greg Johnson added 17 for the Trojans.

The trojans band was never better tuned and neither was the Trojans' basketball team as they used precision passing and solid defense to post the win in the Kentucky All "A" Regional tournament and advanced on to face Mullins Thursday night.

Phelps, a center of controversy of late, played most of the game without their leading scorer Bo Wolford who suffered an injury to his ankle. Wolford played the first half but did not return to the floor after the first half.

The Hornets head coach Clay Campbell has been suspended for one week because he knowingly used an ineligible player this season. Rhonda "Sissy" Charles, former Betty stand-out and girls' junior high coach, filled in for the suspended coach during the Wheelwright game.

Wheelwright put the Hornets away in the third period when they went on a run to zero run to open up a 50-31 lead.

Brian Johnson was unstoppable underneath as he constantly found himself open down on the block.

Greg Johnson used his long-range shooting to help the Trojans run out to a big lead. Johnson hit three treys in the game but the one that brought the crowd to their feet was when point guard Muntia Oden banked in a three-pointer.

Wheelwright owned a 15-6 lead after the first quarter of play. (By Ed Taylor)

McCoy gave Phelps a 2-0 lead but John Hall tied the game with a 12-foot jumper. A field goal by Greg Johnson and his first three-pointer put the Trojans on top 7-4. After a lay-in by McCoy, Wheelwright scored the next eight points to take the first-quarter lead. Oden completed a three-point play, Brian Johnson scored on a layup and Greg Johnson hit his second three-pointer.

Johnson's third three-point basket came at the start of the second period but after the trey, Phelps ran off seven unanswered points to make it a five-point game at 18-13.

Steven Shelton kept the game in perspective as he answered the run with a three-pointer. Chad Stone's three-pointer gave Wheelwright a 14-point lead, 32-18, and the Trojans led at the half 34-23.

Wheelwright's biggest lead came in the fourth period when they went up 30 points on Jason Rogers' layup. Rogers scored four points in the final period as coach Jackie Pack played all his bench.

Oden's three-pointer came near the end of the game. The point guard had control of the basketball and the bench was encouraging him to sink another. He was fouled before he could set the attempt off.

Hall finished with 11 points for the Trojans. Oden added eight and Shelton netted five. Phelps was led by Danny Kidd's 17 points. McCoy finished with 11 and Daniel Lester scored 10.

Wheelwright (5-12) will face the Tigers of Mullins this Thursday (tomorrow) in a 9 p.m. start.

Newsome scores 38 points as Stumbo routs Martin, 80-53

The John M. Stumbo Mustangs may be ready to return to their glory days when they "ruled the roost" in grade school basketball.

Coach Dwight Newsome has one of the top eighth-grade players in the county in Rocky Newsome. He lived up to all that billing by tossing in 38 points as the Mustangs dismantled the Martin Purple Flash 80-53.

Newsome buried six three-pointers in the game and four of six from the free-throw line.

Jason Tackett tossed in 18 points in the Mustangs win and Billy Rogers added 12.

Another top flight eighth-grade player is Thomas Jenkins and he was on the heels of Newsome for scoring

COURTSIDE COMMENTS
by Ed Taylor

It is interesting all the things you can find to talk about around the basketball court as you await the start of a basketball game.

You also meet many interesting people.

DWAYNE GARZA SEZ.....

At the Prestonsburg and Johnson Central game last Tuesday night, I had a chance to sit and talk with running back Dwayne Garza of Prestonsburg. Dwayne had knee surgery just before Christmas after injuring his knee in the regional finals against Russell back in November.

Dwayne reported that the knee is fine and the doctors say that he will be 100 percent recovered when football season begins this fall.

"I can't wait until it starts," he said. "We're expecting to have a good team back next season, and I will be ready to play."

Garza said that he came home on Christmas Eve but he is still limited in what he can do with the knee. "I will be able to start running on it next week," he explained. "I can't lift on it just yet."

The power runner for the Blackcats said that several players have come out to the weight room in preparation for next season. Garza looks for the Blackcats to have some tough competition from Whitesburg in the Cats' bid to repeat as district champions.

"They are going to be a tough team," he said, "and we have to go there and play them."

He looks for Russell to be the strong opponent in the region next season. "They are so quick coming off the blocks," said Garza. "They were the quickest team we played against last year."

With the addition of Clay County to the Blackcats' schedule next year, Garza looks forward to going to Manchester to play the 13th Region foe.

"They have a good program at Clay County," he said. "I'm looking forward to going up against them."

The new South Floyd High School (Wheelwright and McDowell), as well as the new Pike Central High School (Mullins and Johns Creek), also appear on the Blackcats' schedule.

Garza said, just before the junior varsity game had ended, that the Blackcat basketball team would be all right after they became more consistent in their schedule.

A strong defensive and offensive line is expected to be in place for the Blackcats. The entire backfield will be back for Coach Bill Letton but quarterback Aaron Tucker will graduate this year. Thomas Ratliff is expected to step in and fill the void.

DIFFERENT VIEWS....

Prestonsburg coach Gordon Paridio and Allen Central coach Jonny Martin had different views of their teams' performances in the just completed WYMT/Whayne Supply Invitational Classic at Knott County Center.

Coach Paridio liked what he saw from his improved ballclub, while Coach Martin said that his team did not perform too well. Martin said that the defensive part was good but his team lacked on offense.

Speaking of the WYMT Classic, I don't know if you caught any of the games on the radio (WOHY) but I think that Jim Ed Allen, Joe Back and Jerry Grass did a great job of bringing all the action into fans' living rooms or car radios.

There is a lot more there for all the games except the finals which were aired on television. All the games, with the exception of two, were close and several overtime games were played. The Classic is just that.

Well, we'll look for you around the basketball court and will be interested in hearing your comments.

Maytown finishes season with 70-49 win over Osborne

Maytown basketball coach Rick Hancock can hang a sign on his basketball team this season that reads "successful season."

It was a sign that was Hancock guided his squad to a 19-5 season and closed the regular schedule with a 70-49 win over the Osborne Eagles.

Lady Rebels hold off McDowell in 56-53 win

By Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Allen Central Lady Rebels and McDowell Lady Daredevils met in the semifinals of the girls' Kentucky All "A" 15th Regional basketball tournament held at Elk Horn City Thursday night with the Lady Rebels having to hold off a good McDowell team to post a 56-53 win over Jimmy Hopkins' ballclub.

Staci Moore tossed in 25 points to lead Allen Central. Moore hit three three-pointers in the game. Jenny Wiley added 12 and Veronica McKinney scored 11. Marsha Brown finished with eight points and one three-pointer. Wiley also had a trey in the game.

Michelle Hall led the Lady Daredevils with 23 points. Shelby Howell tossed in 15 with Lisa Brown scoring six points on two three-pointers.

Allen Central held a 46-44 lead going into the fourth quarter but Howell scored on a lay-in to tie the game at 46 and then hit another basket to give McDowell the lead, 48-46, with 6:01 left in the game. Howell was fouled on the shot but missed the free throw attempt.

Three of four free throws by Moore netted Allen Central the lead at 49-48 with 4:16 left in the contest.

Both teams went cold as they went over two minutes before Marsha Brown's layup gave Allen Central a three-point cushion at 51-48. Hall hit a nine foot jumper to close to within one point, but Marsha Brown carried a three-point basket to keep the lead at four, 54-50.

Kristy Mullins picked up her fifth personal foul with 1:06 on the clock and sent Brown to the free throw line where she missed the two attempts. Shey Shepherd took the ball to the middle where she was fouled by McKinney, her fifth. Shepherd canned the first of two and the score stood at 54-51.

Allen Central had the basketball and the three-point lead with less than a minute remaining. Wiley took the ball to the basket and pulled up for a short jumper instead of taking the ball back outside. The ball rattled off the rim with Howell pulling in the rebound. With 11 seconds showing on the clock, Hall hit a 16-foot jumper that made it a one point, 54-53 game.

McDowell called a quick time out. With six seconds left to play, McDowell put Moore on the charity stripe where she calmly connected on the bonus shot. Time ran out for the Lady Rebels.

The score was tied five times in the first quarter before McDowell took a 16-15 first quarter lead.

Wiley gave the Lady Rebels a 2-0 lead but Kristy Mullins tied the score with an eight foot jumper. McKinney's free throw made it 3-2 and Howell hit the back side of a two-shot foul to tie the game at 3-3.

After McDowell took a 5-3 lead, McKinney's turn-around jumper tied it again at 5-5. Allen Central went on top 10-7 until Lisa Brown drilled a three-pointer to tie the game for the third time at 10. The final tie of game at 14 came on two free throws by Marsha Brown. Wiley's charity toss with 22 seconds left gave Allen Central the lead at 15-14 but Hall hit a three-point jumper for the 16-15 McDowell lead.

Lisa Brown hit a long three-pointer to give McDowell the lead, 19-15, to start the second period. With 3:54 left in the first half, Shepherd scored on a layup to give McDowell their biggest lead at 26-21.

With 56 seconds left in the half, Moore canned two free throws to tie the game for the sixth time at 30. It was tied again at 31 before two free throws by Hall and Crystal Newsome's basket made it 35-31, McDowell at the half.

A basket by Wiley made it a one-point game with McDowell on top 37-36 in the fourth quarter. McKinney put Allen Central back in front 38-37 on a six-foot jumper. The lead exchanged hands four times before Allen Central took a 46-42 lead on a long jumper and free throw by Moore. Hall scored on a short jumper just ahead of the horn for a 46-44 game with Allen Central in the lead.

The Lady Daredevils dropped to 5-10 on the season and Allen Central improved to 11-4.

Shelby Valley places five in double figures in 92-73 win over McDowell

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Like so many games they have played this year, the McDowell Daredevils continue to get off to a slow start only to finish strong.

Against Shelby Valley last Friday night, the Wildcats scored 54 points in the first half to McDowell's 24. In the second half McDowell outscored Shelby Valley 54-38 but lost the game 92-73.

Chris Hamilton led the Daredevils with 20 points with Scotty Stanley adding 18. Wally Sexton scored in double figures with 16 points.

Shelby Valley placed five starters in double figures as they pushed toward the century mark. Jeremy Johnson had 22 points to lead Shelby Valley. Center Bobby Keys and Nathan Berger each scored 18 points with Matt Baker adding 17. Jamie Roberts, with 12 points, was the fifth starter with double figure totals.

Jeremy Johnson drilled five three-pointers in the contest.

Shelby Valley led by 17 points at the end of the first quarter, 28-11, scoring 15 unanswered points to build a 26-9 lead. The score was tied at 6 on a layup by Stanley. After that it was a 20-2 run for the Wildcats with the last 15 coming consecutively.

McDowell had trouble getting in the game in the second quarter as Shelby Valley continued to build their lead and led by 30 points at the half.

The Daredevils trailed by as many as 34 points early in the third period until McDowell went on an 11-4 spurt of their own.

McDowell had a 14-2 run in the fourth quarter that cut the margin to 18 points and did manage to narrow the difference to 15 points with two minutes left in the game.

Lady Rebels

"They're happy and that tickles me," said Moore.

The Lady Tigers came into the game with three six-footers and a big team seems to give the Lady Rebels trouble. But with an adjustment in their full court pressure defense, Allen Central was able to neutralize the height disadvantage they had.

The game was close going into the final quarter. In fact, Paintsville had taken a 29-27 lead on a basket by Jennifer Davis to start the third period. From that point on it was all Allen Central as they scored the next 11 points to forge ahead 38-29 as Paintsville hit a cold spell. In that run, Allen Central's defense caused the Lady Tigers to turn the ball over five times. They stole the ball four times and forced the Lady Tigers to shoot from the outside.

A 10-foot jumper by Jenny Wiley got the 11-0 run underway with Angela Bailey scoring on a rebound basket. Moore hit a three pointer with 5:47 left in the period and Wiley followed with another jumper from nine-foot out. Brown completed the spurt with a rebound jumper.

Allen Central took their biggest lead at the time when they went up by 11 points, 45-34, as Brown waded into some tall timber and hit a four-foot jumper. But a three-point play by Meredith Mullins cut the lead back to eight, 45-37, at the end of the third quarter.

The lead was seven, 45-38, to start the final period of the championship game as Terri Blair hit one of two free throws. But the Lady Rebels got a free throw from Moore and two field goals from McKinney to roll out to a 12-point lead, 50-38.

With 3:25 left in the game, Mullins and Dena Tackett collided at midcourt with Mullins being knocked out. Both players were carried to the locker room area awaiting the arrival of an ambulance.

Allen Central hit four of six free throws to open up a 56-40 lead. With less than two minutes remaining, Central went to their stall as the clock began to run out on the Lady Tigers.

It was a close contest in the first half of the game. The score was tied at 2-2 and 4-4 before a three-pointer by Karen Hall gave Paintsville a 7-4 lead. Allen Central ran off eight unanswered points to take a five point, 12-7 lead.

Hall hit her second trey to cut the lead to two, 12-10. Brown scored on a layup for a 14-10 game but the Lady Tigers scored the final three points of the first period for a 14-13 Allen Central lead.

The two teams played even in the second stanza with the score being tied four times. Paintsville tied the game at 14 on a charity toss by Davis and after McKinney scored from six-foot out, Davis hit a baseline jumper to keep the score knotted at 16.

Moore's three-pointer and a basket by Wiley gave Allen Central a 21-16 advantage but the lead did not last long as Hall drilled a three-pointer and Mullins scored on a rebound to tie the game at 21.

McKinney rattled a seven-foot jumper home but a field goal by Mullins down in the block tied the game again at 23.

Moore hit back-to-back jumpers as Allen Central went on top 27-23. But Davis scored on a layup off an Allen Central turnover. Down the floor, again, Allen Central went to McKinney in the post only to have the ball intercepted. Mullins then hit a turn-around jumper off the baseline to tie the game at 27 at halftime.

Paintsville's height advantage wasn't anything new to the shorter Lady Rebels.

"We weren't intimidated," said senior Angela Bailey. "We've played against taller teams all the time. I feel that our pressure defense took Paintsville out of their game plan. I'm just excited about winning the regional and can't wait to get to the state."

Wiley finished with eight points for Allen Central but did an excellent job of directing the Allen Central offense. Bailey netted two points as did Dreama Kilgore.

"We told the girls before the game that if they win it for anyone, win it for us three seniors," said Wiley. "This was just a prestate game," implying that the Lady Rebels were going to win the big one in March.

Wiley said that the Lady Rebels' game plan was to go inside and try to get the taller Paintsville girls in foul trouble.

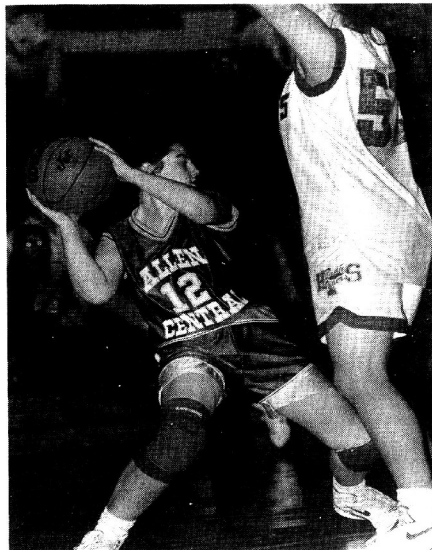

"We played hard on defense and we worked the ball good outside to inside," said junior Marsha Brown. "We got some good breaks and I just feel real good about the win."

"This is something that we have been waiting for all week," explained sophomore Veronica McKinney. "It has been a rough week for me, personally. When we went into the final quarter with an eight point lead I knew we could pull it off."

Davis led the Lady Tigers, who have an excellent ballclub, with her 13 points. Mullins scored 12 before leaving the game. Hall tossed in 10. Tackett, Amber LeMaster and Beth Blankenship had two points each.

Allen Central improved to 12-4 on the season with Paintsville falling to 9-6.

Allen Central is scheduled to play at Belfry tomorrow night (Thursday) in what will be a top regional game between two regional powers.

Maytown routs MCA in sectional to advance to championship game

Todd Howard scored a game high 25 points for coach Rick Hancock's Maytown Wildcats to lead them to the championship game of the Section I grade school basketball tournament held at Allen Central High School with a 84-40 win over the Mountain Christian Academy (MCA). MCA was allowed to play in the tournament, although they did not participate in the regular season games.

Maytown, one of the favorites to win the county this year, got additional support from three other players who scored in double figures. Levi Wells and Brandon Hicks added 16 points each while Tommy Brown poured in 15 points. Brown had the game's only three-pointer.

MCA stayed close in the first quarter as Maytown held a one point, 8-7 lead. A basket by Matthew Mayo gave MCA the lead at 2-1 after Howard had hit one of two free throws. Brandon Hicks' jumper, a free throw by Brown and Wells layup gave the Wildcats the lead at 6-2.

MCA went on a 5-0 run that netted them the lead at 7-6 when Mike Osborne scored and Mayo hit the front end of a two-shot foul. Osborne scored again on a rebound bucket to give MCA their last lead. Howard scored to make it 8-7 Maytown.

The Wildcats roared loud in the second quarter scoring the first 10 points. Howard rolled under for an easy layup and Brown followed with a short jumper that made it 12-7. Brown hit one free throw before Wells completed a three-point play, just ahead of Hicks' basket that made it a 18-7 game.

Shannon Slone, who led MCA with 21 points, ended the Falcons' drought with a jumper and after Wells scored underneath, Osborne made it a nine-point game with a basket underneath.

Maytown led by 12 points at the half, 28-16.

The Wildcats scored the first nine points of the third period to claim a 45-16 advantage. The Falcons did go on a rally of their own with a 9-4 spurt. Waru Hale hit two baskets with a field goal by Howard sandwiched between. After a basket by Wells, Slone scored five consecutive points to narrow the margin to 47 points. But when the quarter ended, Maytown was 23 points in front.

Things really got bad for the Falcons as they could only score six points in the final period.

Slone's 21 points topped the Falcons. Brian Osborne finished with six and Mayo added five. Mike Osborne had two points as did Brent Slone.

Maytown squares off against the winners of the Martin-Dunn game to night at 7:30 p.m.

Maytown

Tommy Brown tossed in 28 points and hit three, three-pointers to lead the Wildcats past a good Osborne team. Jason Shannon added 17 points for Maytown.

Kevin Bryant led the Eagles with 22 points and Bryan Triplett netted 11.

The game was close throughout until the fourth quarter when Maytown went to their full-court pressure defense. The defense was too much for Osborne. They committed too many turnovers to stay close to the Wildcats.

Maytown took a five-point, 17-12, first quarter lead only to see Osborne race back in the second period and tie the game at 27-27 at the half. Maytown led by four after three quarters, but Osborne came back in the fourth stanza and took a five-point lead. Maytown overcame the deficit and held off to win by 21.

Fodd Howard, who returned to the hardwood after suffering a hurt hand in an earlier game, tossed in 10 points for the winners. Levi Wells netted seven and Brandon Hicks, also returning to the lineup, had six points. Ethan Martin scored two.

Brian Johnson scored seven for Osborne and Daniel Hatfield tallied five. Andre Fannin scored four points.

In the junior varsity game, Timbo Hagans scored 16 points to lead the Maytown squad past Osborne in a one-sided affair, 48-8. Edmond Slone scored 11 points in the runaway. Stanley had eight and Jeremy Osborne scored four. Jeremy Hayes tossed in three with Josh Bailey and Chris Owens getting two each. Ethan Martin had two points, as well.

Allen led Osborne with four points and Matthews scored one point. Johnson and Caudill also had one point apiece.

Bobcats play Greenup County close before losing in overtime

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

When Betsy Layne point guard Derrick Newsome walked up to the free-throw line against Greenup County Saturday night, there was no time left on the clock, his team trailed 43-41 and he had three charity tosses coming after being fouled behind the three-point circle. A chance to tie and win the ball game.

Newsome launched the first attempt that bounced hard off the backside of the rim as he looked in disgust toward the Betsy Layne bench. With his coach, Junior Newsome encouraging him, Newsome sank the other two to tie the game and send it into overtime.

In the overtime, the Bobcats seemed to destruct as Greenup County outscored them 12-2 to take a 55-45 win home with them.

Greenup County, the second-ranked team in the 16th Region and coached by Randy Ward, had a scare from the scrappy Betsy Layne team. Greenup County took a 41-38 lead on two free throws by Brad Stultz, the team's leading free throw shooter, in the final quarter with 25 seconds left to play. The Musketeers wanted to keep the ball in Stultz's hands.

Betsy Layne had its own hero as Chris Potter drilled a three-pointer with 17 seconds left and tied the game at 41. Greenup County was quick getting down court and Chad Keibler found an opening in the Bobcat defense and laid the ball in the basket to send Greenup County in front 43-43.

Newsome brought the ball up court and, in attempting a three-point basket for the win, he was fouled as the horn sounded.

Greenup County scored the first six points of the extra period to take a 49-43 lead with just over a minute left. Jonathan Tackett hit a short jumper but Greenup County connected on four of five free throws and Duke Haywood scored on a layup for the final margin.

Betsy Layne's defense caused problems for the Musketeers in the first quarter of the game as Greenup County could only score four points.

The Bobcats dominated the boards in rolling out to an 11-4 lead. A free throw by Akers and Potter's first of three three-pointers gave Betsy Layne the 4-0 lead. Tackett scored on a layup before Haywood's rebound basket made it a 6-2 ballgame. Tackett connected on a three-pointer just before Eddie Gunn scored on a 15-foot jumper as the quarter ended 11-4.

Greenup County picked up the pace some in the second quarter as their defense held back the Bobcats. Betsy Layne went the first four minutes of the second stanza without scoring as the Musketeers scored the first eight points of the second quarter to take a 12-11 lead. Barry Clark broke the dry spell for Betsy Layne with a three-pointer off the right side.

The two teams exchanged baskets over the final three minutes and the game was tied at 14, 16 and finally at 18 at the half.

Greenup County built a five-point cushion in the third period on a tip-in basket to lead 27-22.

Betsy Layne reclaimed the lead with 6:52 left in the fourth quarter on Potter's three-point basket. Jason Akers' rebound basket tied the game again at 33 before Greenup County went ahead 37-33.

After Brian Hunter's two free throws made it a 37-35 contest, Cole Indestad and Akers got into a shoving match with a technical foul called on Indestad. Indestad had fouled Akers for his fourth personal foul and then the technical, which counts as a personal foul, disqualified Indestad from the game.

Betsy Layne took a 38-37 lead on Tackett's jumper with 1:31 left in the game.

Tackett led Betsy Layne with 13 points and Potter added 12. Akers, who grabbed nine rebounds, finished with seven points and Newsome scored six. Tackett had five rebounds for Betsy Layne. Hunter pulled in eight boards in scoring four points. Keibler led Greenup with 14 points with Haywood and Indestad adding 11 points each.

Betsy Layne (8-7) will host the top-ranked Belfry Pirates Friday night at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse.

Corbin 10-020

Associated Designs-Eugene, Oregon

A generous wrap-around porch greets visitors to the country style Corbin, a medium size home that features plenty of family living space, both formal and informal.

Owners of the home could confine their living to the ground floor, if they wish, since the master suite is on this level. This leaves the second floor for children, visiting grandchildren, or other guests.

A long custom shaped eating bar provides partial separation between the kitchen and the family room. Otherwise the area is wide open. Vaulted to the second floor (as is the dining room), the family room, nook, and kitchen are bathed in natural light from a wealth of windows. The second floor landing forms a unique bridge that overlooks the family room, to the back, and the dining room and entry way to the front.

Holiday and formal gatherings can spread out in the spacious dining room and living room. The living room has a fireplace and is brightened by a wide bay window. Another fireplace warms the family room.

The Corbin's master suite features access to the deck, and has a private bathroom with a huge walk-in closet, a raised spa, compartmentalized toilet and double basins. The upstairs bathroom shared by occupants of the two big bedrooms, also has two lavatories.

A utility room and powder room are equally convenient to the Corbin's kitchen and the two car garage.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $7.50 to Associated Designs, 1260 Chamelton St., Suite 2, Eugene, Ore., 97401. Please specify the Corbin 10-020 and include a return address when ordering.

Elkhorn City cruises by McDowell Daredevils 72-41 in All "A" Tourney

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Elkhorn City Cougars continue to show why they are considered one of the top teams in the 15th Region with a plastering of McDowell, 72-41, in the boys' All "A" Regional Tournament at Pikeville Monday night.

Even without their All-State candidate Todd Conley saddled in foul trouble and on the bench for most of the game, the Cougars' inside game was just too much for the Daredevils to contain.

Ethan Taylor was one step ahead of the McDowell defense as he tossed in 15 points to lead the Cougars past the Daredevils. Brandon Crum, off the bench, added 11 and Conley finished with 10 points.

The Daredevils turned the ball over on their first three possessions of the game and had nine turnovers in the first period that Elkhorn City converted five for baskets.

Conley picked up his second personal foul early in the first quarter and coach Randy McCoy removed his star player but that did not stop the rest of the Cougars as they turned up the offense a notch.

It was the inside play of Taylor and Josh Crum that was the thorn in the side of McDowell — plus the outside shooting of Crum and Jeff Bailiff.

Elkhorn took a 20-5 first quarter lead and put it in cruise from that point on as they were never threatened in the game. McDowell did, however, put together a mild rally in the fourth quarter when they went on a 10-0 run. Mike Duddleson hit four consecutive free throws. Chris Hamilton hit a short jumper just ahead of Matt Rose's three-pointer. Keith Gayheart finished the run with a free throw.

No one scored in double figures for McDowell but they were led by Wally Sexton's nine points. Scotty Stanley added eight and Chris Hamilton tossed in five.

McDowell falls to 5-14 on the season and will host the Mullins Tigers Tuesday night.

John's Creek's quickness too much for Allen Central Rebels in 75-58 loss

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Johns Creek Bearcats clawed the Allen Central Rebels in the opening game of the 1993 Kentucky All "A" boys 15th Regional at Pikeville Monday night and did it with their quickness.

Johns Creek posted a 75-58 win over the Rebels, who dropped their second straight tournament game in as many weeks. Allen Central fell to Clay County in the first round of the WYMT Classic at Knott County Central.

For coach Johnny Martin's ballclub, they saw the Bearcats spread their offense in the second half and zipped through the Rebels defense for easy backdoor layups and some close-in shots in the lane.

The game was close until just over three minutes left in the third quarter when Johns Creek raced out to a 10-point, 48-38 lead. Johns Creek was firming the Rebels to just one shot at the basket and controlled the defensive boards as Allen Central could find no inside game.

The Rebels looked confused on offense as they tried to look inside to their post players but the zone defense of Johns Creek kept the ball outside where the Rebels failed to score.

After taking a 2-0 lead on a layup by Jeremy Hall following a Johns Creek turnover, the Bearcats ran off the next eight points to take an 8-2 lead. A layup by Jason Martin off the break and Ronnie Samons' free throw made it an 8-5 ball game.

Keith Hatfield hit a jumper that gave Johns Creek a 16-11 lead and the Bearcats held a three-point cushion at the first stop 21-18.

Martin connected on a short jumper with 2:53 left in the first half that tied the game for only the second time at 27. The score knotted at 29 and at 31 before Jason K. Taylor's three-pointer gave Johns Creek a 34-31 lead.

A basket by Gary Fields to start the third period put the Bearcats on top 36-31 and Allen Central turned the ball over on their first three possessions of the second half.

Carl Watkins completed a three-point play to put the Rebs to within two points, 36-34.

With 4:07 on the clock, Shawn Thacker completed a three-point play the old-fashioned way and the Bearcats led 41-36. Martin scored on a six-foot jumper but that was as close as the Rebels would come to Johns Creek as they went on a 12-3 run for a 53-41 lead after three quarters.

Lack of good ball movement in the fourth quarter and the inability to score from the outside hampered the Rebels in catching the Bearcats.

Allen Central fell to 8-7 on the season in absorbing their second consecutive defeat.

Martin led the Rebels in scoring with 17 points. Hall added 15 before fouling out. The Rebel point guard hit three three-pointers in the game. Phillip Patton netted 11 points.

Chad Lyons led all scorers with 18 points. Jason A. Taylor, with two three-pointers, tossed in 14 and Thacker finished with 13. Gary Fields totaled 11 points.

The Rebels will sit the rest of the week and await a big, important conference game with Prestonsburg Tuesday night. The Rebels currently lead the Floyd County Conference with a perfect 5-0 record. Prestonsburg is close behind at 4-1. The only loss for Prestonsburg came at Allen Central.

Duff Bulldogs fall 53-34 to Maytown Wildcats

Chuck Rowe
Sports Writer

The Maytown Wildcats needed a win against the Duff Bulldogs Monday night so they could tie Martin for the first-place seed for the sectional tournament. If Duff could pull the upset over the Wildcats, Martin would take first place for the sectional tournament.

Jason Shannon scored 17 points as he led his Wildcats to a 53-34 victory over the Bulldogs and a first-place tie with Martin in their section. Kyle Turner tossed in 18 points to lead the Bulldogs and the game in points.

Maytown took the early 4-2 lead with 5:28 left in the first quarter. The Bulldogs went on an eight-point run. They took a 12-2 lead with 1:50 on the clock behind four points by Tommy Brown. Back-to-back baskets by Duff's Turner cut the lead to six points, 12-6, with :42 left on the quarter. Maytown also recorded back-to-back baskets by Shannon and Todd Howard to end the quarter, leading 16-6.

Duff cut the lead to five points, 16-11, on a basket by Brandon Crawford and on a three-pointer by Kyle Turner with 4:45 left in the second quarter. Brown extended Maytown's lead all alone by hitting a two-pointer and a three-pointer. He placed his team in front by 21-11 with 4:10 on the clock. The Bulldogs outscored the Wildcats 4-2 in the final 4:00 and cut the lead to 23-15 before the half.

The Wildcats went on a 6-3 run to open the second half, taking a 29-18 lead with 2:15 left on the clock. After a basket by Duff's Turner, Maytown scored nine straight points seven points by Shannon taking a 38-20 lead into the fourth quarter.

Duff went on a 6-2 run opening the fourth quarter, cutting the lead down to 40-26 with 4:35 left on the clock. After a three-pointer by Maytown's Jackie Owens took the Wildcats out by 17 points, the two teams exchanged baskets throughout the remaining 1:45 of the game. Maytown held onto the lead and won by 19 points, 53-34.

In girls' action, Maytown's Chrystal Martin scored 11 points as the Wildcats defeated the Bulldogs 33-15.

The Wildcats held a late 6-2 lead in the first quarter until Duff's Tish Yates hit the front end of the bonus to end the scoring of the quarter. Maytown's Martin scored four of the six points in the first quarter as the Wildcats took a 6-3 lead into the second quarter.

Maytown's Karrie Lovins scored all four points in the second quarter for the Wildcats. The second quarter was evened up with both teams scoring four points and the lead stayed at three points at halftime, 10-7.

An early third quarter run by Maytown extended their lead out to 21-7 with 3:33 left in the third quarter. An exchange of baskets ended up in Maytown's favor as they took a 15-point lead into the final quarter of the game.

Duff scored on back-to-back baskets by Misty Scott that cut the lead to 27-15 with 1:30 left in the game. Back-to-back baskets by Maytown's Amanda Samons and Susan Scarberry extended the lead out to 33-15 at the end of the game.

I was very impressed in how organized this league is and was pleasantly surprised by the size of the crowd.

Watching those little fellas (and gals) in the training league giving it all they had was inspiring.

The director of the league and all those involved are to be congratulated on the great job they have done.

CONGRATULATIONS TO...
Coach Bonita Compton and the Allen Central Lady Rebels. They won the 15th Regional tournament at Elkhorn City Friday night and are on their way to Richmond next Wednesday for state competition.

Coach Compton has done a tremendous job in getting her team ready for the tournament. I enjoyed watching them perform and wish them the best in state competition.

Also, the McDowell Daredavils, who lost to Allen Central in the semifinals, did the county proud in the way they performed. Coach Jimmy Hopkins did a great job.

Then there's the Wheelwright Lady Trojans. Coach Tommy Pack's ballclub is young but they played well against McDowell in the second round.

Until, whenever, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Beau Tackett scored in double figures for Martin.

Stumbo used their running game plus defensive pressure to hold down the rest of the Martin team while Jenkins did his usual thing.

Late free throw costly in 65-64 overtime loss to Phelps

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Ida Dotson of Phelps was the right person, at the right spot, at the right time. But for the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats, everything went wrong in a game they seemingly had in the win column. The Lady Blackcats just could not convert some important free throws down the stretch.

The inability of Prestonsburg to convert their free throws down the stretch proved costly in a 65-64 overtime loss to the Lady Hornets of Phelps.

Prestonsburg owned a 60-57 lead with 26 seconds left in the game and Amy Reed standing at the free throw line. Reed missed the front end of the bonus shot with Phelps rebounding the basketball. Up court, Christa Blankenship was fouled by Carolyn Reffitt, her fifth personal foul. Blankenship missed the front end of the bonus shot, also, and it was Prestonsburg with the ball and the clock running.

Phelps fouled Reed again with Prestonsburg still leading 60-57. Reed, normally a good free throw shooter, missed again on the front end bonus and Phelps hauled in the rebound, dribbled up court where Crystal Coleman's three-point desperation shot was nothing but an air ball. The ball went high in the air, but when it hit the floor the ball landed in front of Dotson who was just waiting for the ball to come off the rim. Dotson, who led the Lady Hornets with 24 points, grabbed the errant shot and laid it in to tie the game with one second on the clock sending it into overtime.

In the overtime, Prestonsburg led 64-62 with 1:12 remaining and the Lady Blackcats had control of the basketball. But a mental mistake turned the ball over to Phelps and Beth Hill drilled a long three-pointer that gave Phelps a 65-64 lead.

After Prestonsburg failed to score on their next possession, the Lady Blackcats put Campanella on the stripe where she missed the first attempt. Rebounding the basketball, Jamie Clay dribbled into the front court, cut to the basket but was fouled by Campanella.

With five seconds remaining in overtime, Clay stood at the charity stripe with a chance to tie and put the Lady Blackcats in the lead. But it was in regulation play, continued in overtime, as Clay missed the first attempt.

Phelps knocked the ball out of bounds with three seconds left, but Prestonsburg could not get a shot off as time expired.

Prestonsburg made two comebacks to stay in the game and avoid a rout. Phelps jumped out to an 18-5 lead after the score was tied at 2-2. Phelps scored 13 unanswered points before Kerri Merion's three-pointer made it 15-5. Phelps led 21-13 after the first quarter.

Down 27-15 in the second period, Prestonsburg showed signs of last year's play as they fought back and pulled to within two points, 29-17, of Phelps and trailed 31-27 at the half.

After a basket by Raquel Cain to start the third period, Campanella hit a layup and Dotson buried a three to send the Lady Hornets out to a 36-29 lead. Prestonsburg trailed 47-40 entering the fourth quarter.

In the fourth, it was a whole different game as Prestonsburg came storming back from a 13-point deficit to tie the game at 58 on a rebound basket by Reffitt with 50 seconds left in the game. Phelps was called for a walking violation and Prestonsburg took the lead, 60-58, when Clay scored on a layup. Again Phelps was whistled for a violation and Prestonsburg took control when they were sent to the free throw line.

Reed led Prestonsburg with 22 points, including three three-pointers. Merion finished with nine points with Reffitt and Stephanie Music scoring eight each. Clay also finished with eight points. Stephanie Little had four points and Cain tossed in three.

Prestonsburg hit seven three pointers in the game. Phelps also had three treys.

Prestonsburg falls to 5-8 on the season. Prestonsburg will travel to Madison Central this Friday night.

TRAINING LEAGUE BULLETS VS PISTONS

It came down to a battle between Robert Hall of the Pistons and the Bullets' Michael Stephens.

The two high scorers locked up in a scoring battle with Hall winning by two, 16-14, and as a result led the Pistons to a 25-22 win over the Bullets as the two teams tied for second place in the standings.

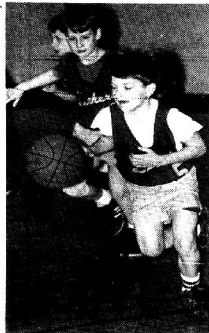

Josh Justice added nine points for the winners to account for the other points.

Shaun Newsome scored eight for the Bullets.

BULLS VS SIXERS

The Bulls edged the Sixers in the second game last Saturday, 20-17. Angela Hall tossed in eight points and Josh Shepherd added four for the winners. Matt Turner, Josh Murdoch, Josh Stone and Ramanda Music each scored two points.

Jeffery Allen's six points led the Sixers. Chris Jarrell tossed in five and Phillip Allen had four. Brian Collins scored two points for the Sixers.

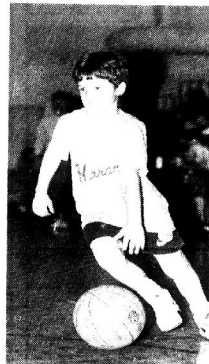

LAKERS VS HAWKS

Ryan Martin scored nine points to lead the Lakers past the Hawks, 13-9. Neither team was able to score in the second or third periods.

The Lakers led 9-3 going into the final quarter and had to hold off a Hawk comeback in the fourth.

Bo Sturgill had four points to lead the Hawks. Brandon Branham had three and Jonathan Gillispie scored two.

Kevin Maxwell and Wesley Hyden had two each for the Lakers.

HORNETS VS SONICS

The Hornets had an easy time of the Sonics as they recorded a 17-5 win to finish the regular season with a 3-5 record.

Matt Lacker scored 11 points to lead the Hornets. Matt Setser scored four and Joey Willis had two. Mikel Fannin scored all five points for the Sonics.

JUNIOR VARSITY LEAGUE LAKERS VS BULLS

Jo Jo Crockett and Robert Spradlin combined for 29 points to lead the Lakers past the Bulls in JV play. Crockett tossed in 19 points and Spradlin scored 10. David Ousley and Jeremy Caudill had four each. Stephanie Hackworth and Jeremy Reed scored two points.

Kyle Shepherd had 11 points for the Bulls. Neil Fannin and Jared Stephens scored seven points each. Gabriel Shepherd netted five points with Jason Roberts scoring four. Dustin Crisp had two and Michael Branham one.

An 18-8 run by the Lakers in the third quarter proved to be costly to the Bulls, who ended the season winless. The Lakers finished with a 2-5 record.

HAWKS VS SIXERS

In overtime, the Hawks defeated the Sixers 35-30 with Kimi Nunney scoring 16 points to lead the Hawks. Luke Luster added seven points and Mark Horne scored six. Aaron Bingham had four and Robbie Holbrook scored two.

Grant Castle scored 14 for the Sixers. Eric Price, George Hall, Brandon Patton and Evan Isaac each scored four points.

The score was tied at 29 after regulation play and Castle's free throw in overtime is all the Sixers could score. Nunney had four points in the overtime for the Hawks.

HORNETS VS SPURS

Adam Hall scored 18 points and Kalen Harris added nine as the Spurs finished the regular season with a perfect 7-0 record with a 33-27 win over the Hornets, who finished with a fine 5-2 mark.

Seth Crisp, John Dixon and Jarrod Hall each had two points for the Spurs. J.B. Hall scored eight points and Drew Brown added seven for the Hornets. Jeremy Jewell scored four. Chris Prater, Mark Burchett, Sam Shepherd and Leslie Setser had two points.

The Prestonsburg League tournament will get underway tonight as the Junior Varsity division begins.

In the first game scheduled for 6 p.m., the Lakers will square off against the Bulls and at 7:15 p.m. the Hawks will try to fly by the Sixers.

The Spurs will play the winners of the first game at 9 a.m. on Saturday with the Hornets looking to stung the winner of the second game Saturday at 10 a.m.

The championship game of the junior varsity division will be played at 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Training League will begin at 11:15 a.m. Saturday morning as the Bullets face the Hornets. Completing the upper bracket, the Lakers face the Pistons at 12:15 p.m.

In the lower division, the front running Bulls take on the Hawks at 1:15 p.m. and the Sixers will go against the Sonics at 2:15 p.m.

The semifinals and finals of the training league tournament will be announced later.

KENTUCKY'S AMBASSADOR

When our new President, Bill Clinton, was sworn in last week, Kentucky's Senator Wendell Ford was right there to see that the oath was administered on time and the many details arranged for a memorable day in America.

The senator has made quite a name for himself as an organizer. For the second time, he served as chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Inaugural Ceremonies, and the one last week was the largest in U.S. history.

Mr. Ford has the wit and personality—and the willingness to assume difficult tasks—that make him an ideal choice for this role, and he seems to be equally at ease with world leaders and the folks "down home."

He takes great pride in his home state and has an endless supply of stories about his background and people he knows. His hometown is Owensboro, but he has told about living in the nearby smaller community of Thruston as a child.

One of the stories he enjoys sharing involves the first elevator he ever saw—indeed the first in his area—at the Kresge building in Owensboro. This was a much talked about feature that area citizens were curious to see. A neighboring family had a son who wouldn't wear shoes and earned the nickname of Shoeless. He, too, was curious about the elevator and one day prevailed on his father to take him to Owensboro so they could see this modern addition for themselves.

They stationed themselves on the ground floor to observe and watched as the first passenger they saw, a very homely woman, pushed the button for the elevator. When the door opened she walked in and the door closed. They saw the numbers overhead flash—1, 2, 3, 4.

After a while they numbers changed—4, 3, 2, 1. The door opened and a beautiful woman stepped off.

"The father looked at his son and said, 'Shoeless, run home right quick and get your mama!'"

HOME OWNED

Rev. Bennett F. Hall is a retired Baptist minister living in Winchester now. He's a very kind and interesting person who writes, travels and continues to serve in churches where a minister is needed to assist in some way.

The Halls sometimes read this column and he had been amused by the story Dr. Ronald Hill shared about the two fellows who traveled across the Mojave Desert.

It reminded Rev. Hall of a story about some Yankees who passed through a small town in Mississippi. In driving around they noticed a Civil War statue. Seeing an old guy standing on the street in overalls, scrubby beard and battered hat, they stopped to inquire.

"I say, old fellow," one asked, "whose statue is that?"

The old guy spit a big splash of tobacco juice on the ground and casually replied, "Hit's our'n."

Sisters

A sister is someone I always wanted as a child.

Now, don't get me wrong, I love my younger brother. I just always wanted a sister. Someone I could share a wardrobe with, secrets, and protect like a big sister should.

My brother, now that we're grown, has filled those voids, by the way—and yes, I've been known to hit his closet now and then, for those sweatshirts he has so many of.

After Ashleigh was born and our second child was on the way, part of me wanted a girl so that Ash would have a sister to share and protect.

Well, she got her sister, and what I want to know is, when are these girls going to like each other? Once, a year or so ago, I tried making them hug one another when they got into one of those spine crawling, screaming fights. Then it wasn't long, before they learned to try and squeeze the breath out of one another while hugging until I intervened and pulled them apart.

They don't like being seen together by friends and peers. They don't like sitting on the same side of a booth in a restaurant. And oh, neither one wants the other home on the weekends. Especially if one is having a friend spend the night.

I'm constantly reminding them that they both live in the same house, contrary to their wishes.

It's absolutely amazing two totally different personalities erupt in these two sisters. Daylight and dark describes them perfectly.

I don't think poor little Tiffany can do anything right as far as Ashleigh's concerned. From eating to drinking, to walking and, even sleeping, Ashleigh can find something that this child does that irritates her to no end.

From Tiffany's point of view, Ash gets all, goes everywhere, and she, well, you know, she gets nothing.

Me, I spend 99.9 percent of my time trying my damnest to see that they get equal treatment and breaking up arguments, of course.

How I long for the day they cherish one another and become the best of friends.

For now, I'd settle for one day of them simply tolerating each other.

Till next week, cheers to tolerance!

Weightbusters battle the bulge :

Who are you gonna' call?

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

Looking for a way to lose that spare tire around your waist? Or, how about dropping those extra ten pounds or more your body started accumulating during the holidays—five years ago. Or, perhaps you've always been overweight, and you really want to lose those pounds, but diets don't work.

Where do you start?

"You make a lifestyle change," advises Jean Shalopin, community health education coordinator for Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin. "It's a lifetime pattern of eating—it's not a diet...it's learning how to substitute."

Shalopin should know. During the last two years she has lost 25 pounds simply by changing her eating patterns and lifestyle.

"I'd tried all kinds of diets (without success) until I regulated fat and portion size and chose food from a balance of food groups."

And she started walking regularly. "I had to put exercise in. Before, I exercised sporadically. I started putting in three miles a days, five times a week. Exercise has made all the difference...I have a total increase in energy, and it has increased my health."

And I'm not as hungry. Walking is a way to walk off stress and frustration, as well."

Before she educated herself on basic nutrition facts and the benefits of exercise, one of her downfall in the battle of the bulge was failing to be label conscious. "I ate crackers instead of bread. I was not label conscious. I'm a lot more educated as far as labeling is concerned."

Now Shalopin and a team of area health professionals are sharing their knowledge and enthusiasm for lifestyle change to help others who want to lose weight through a Weight-management program at O.L.W. appropriately named "Weightbusters."

The Weightbusters program is of a comprehensive, three-fold approach which focuses on diet and nutrition, physical exercise, stress management and behavior modification. Shalopin serves as coordinator. Team leaders of the program are dietician Cheryl Bentley, who teaches the importance of proper diet and nutrition; physical therapist Carla Fields who discusses the relationship between physical activity and weight management; and PCC nursing instructor Lynn Weddle, who discusses stress management, behavior modification, and eating disorders.

Designing women
Agatha Kendrick, right, and Margie Goodman, left, prepare to create a new image of themselves through designing posters of a "New Me" for the Weightbusters program at Our Lady of the Way Hospital.

The program came about due to public demand.

"We kept getting calls for a class in weight-management at the hospital," Shalopin recalls. "Weight control is a prevention for so many other health conditions."

Realizing that there was a definite demand for a soundly-based weight-management program, the first Weightbusters class began last winter. The first group of participants met once a week for 12 weeks from February to May.

Carolyn Lambert, who works at Mountain Christian Academy, was a participant in the first session, and she discovered basics of a healthy lifestyle that helped her lose weight.

"I think it's a good program," she says. "It was educational. It taught you what was in food and how to read labels...I lost weight. And it made me aware of the benefits of exercise. I walk regularly now."

Schuler Harmon, a pharmacist at O.L.W., joined this past fall's Weightbusters group. "I got a lot out of it," he recalls. "I learned to analyze my food choices. There is a lot of fat in processed food. So I choose more sensibly. I don't seem to eat high fat snacks."

He notes that while he was involved in Weightbusters, "I lost ten pounds in two months."

Analysis of food labels has helped him keep the ten pounds off.

"One day I picked up a can of potted meat and I read the label. It had so much fat! So I put it back (on the shelf) and chose a lower fat snack."

Shalopin says she enjoys the camaraderie the members quickly develop, much like a support group. But, she smiles, "What I enjoy most is seeing people's self-esteem rise as they lose weight."

She emphasizes that the program is designed to help persons be their best, and that is not necessarily what fits society's image. "Women are pressured to be thin. We have to be our own judge (as to how we want to look)—not someone else. We get the pressure from the outside (magazines, TV) come in and distort our views of ourselves. Whatever our size, we need to feel good about ourselves, to know that we are not persons."

A new group of participants started the program this month, and although this class is closed to new members, another class will begin this April and run through May.

Here is a run-down of the Weightbusters' program:

-Cost: $50 membership fee (includes a cholesterol check and consultation with a dietician, Cheryl Bentley) plus eight dollars for each session. ("If a person is on a medical card or has a hard time [financially] paying the fees, we work something out with them," says Shalopin. "Family members from the same household are charged a reduced rate.")

-Meets: each Thursday from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. at Our Lady of the Way Hospital.

-Session topics: vary with each meeting. Includes weight management tips, discussions concerning physical fitness, behavior modification, eating disorders, how to read labels, etc.

-Essentials: a doctor's slip; a private weekly weigh-in, food diary. -Pluses: a two-hundred-page notebook filled with handouts. Notebook includes health and exercise tips and recipes; videos, guest speakers, group support, uses USDA dietary guidelines; instructors are health professionals.

For more information about the Weightbusters' program, call Shalopin at Our Lady of the Way: 285-5181.

10 WASHINGTON TIPS TO HELP YOU KEEP YOUR 1993 DIET RESOLUTIONS

1. Fill up an hour before your meal. Apples are loaded with pectin, a soluble fiber that absorbs more water in the stomach and gives you a "full feeling" longer.
2. Escape the bland food blues. Tired of cottage cheese and dry toast? Tantalize those taste buds with the only fruit that crunches. And, with so many varieties, you can savor flavors like a spicy Winesap, or a tart Granny Smith.
3. Treat yourself to something special. For a "you-won't-believe-it's healthy" dessert, core an apple, sprinkle with cinnamon and microwave for four minutes. Top with non-fat frozen yogurt.
4. It's not hip to skip. Skipping meals is not the way to cut your calorie intake. This just increases your chances for snacking or overeating later. If lack of time is your excuse, crunch an apple during your morning commute to give your body energy for the day ahead.
5. Take 5 a Day. Fad diets will be your downfall. Your diet must include all five food groups (dairy, grains, meat and protein, vegetables, and fruits) to give your body the nutrients it needs. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services recommends that you eat two to four servings of fruit each day. So eat 5 a day!
6. Deck out your diet. If your meal doesn't look appetizing, you won't be satisfied. Add appleslices to fill up your plate, give it a splash of color, and great taste too!
7. Guilt-free grazing. It's natural to want to pick, so make sure there's something healthy in reach. Cut up apples and dip in orange, lemon or lime juice (to keep them creamy white) and place them "front and center" in the fridge so they'll be "quick for the pickin'."
8. Fight off those hunger pangs and energy lows. Ever get those afternoon slumps? Keep a portable, naturally packaged apple in your desk or briefcase to bring you up from the "sugar lows."
9. Arm yourself against temptation. Guarantee there'll be something nutritious and delicious even when you're not in the "safety" of your own kitchen. Equip yourself with refreshing fruit kabobs at the next potluck or for your bag lunch. Thread grapes, apple chunks, kiwi and pineapple cubes on toothpicks or bamboo skewers.
10. Give yourself a little extra. Add apple chunks to your cold cereal, oatmeal or yogurt to make your meal more filling and full of fiber.

Poison Oak

A NEW TUNE

After all the inaugural shenanigans last week, not only is everyone convinced that President Clinton plays a pretty mean sax and the Gores cut a pretty fair rug, I guess it's pretty obvious, too, that we've sure enough got us a genuine, dyed-in-the-wool, rock n' roll president.

It shouldn't have surprised anybody, though, because sooner or later someone who was a teenager in the sixties was bound to be elected to the White House.

So, quite naturally, since Clinton and Gore are members of the so-called baby boomer generation, and since as far as anyone knows Elvis couldn't be there, it follows that they'd invite entertainers like Judy Collins, Aretha Franklin, and Ben E. King to perform for their guests.

I'm sure that since Mr. Clinton, who's already been referred to as Bubba (with Hillary as Bubbette) and who's already been picked to pieces for every move he's made so far, will no doubt be criticized for liking this type of music. The older generation will think he's too fast. And, since it was Tipper Gore who led a movement to force some record companies to place warning labels on some of their album covers, the young folks are going to think that this new administration is too old-fashioned.

But, since Clinton's music is pretty close to my music, I'm sure not going to feel good about ourselves, it makes perfect sense. I mean, I don't see anything wrong with the fact that Socks is not the only cat in the White House.

Unfortunately, though, I'm afraid that, for now at least, music from the fifties generation had been by-passed. It's the world's loss, however, because the music of the fifties is the best that's ever been. At least in our day we could understand the words. Furthermore, since this was the music we all fell in love to, the lyrics then were so much more meaningful.

Who could ever forget sitting at your favorite drive-in restaurant, holding hands with the pony-tailed object of your affection, drinking a cherry coke and munching on fries (made with real potatoes), and listening to these words on the radio: "Tutti frutti, ahhi ruti, ahhi ruti, tutti frutti, ahhi ruti, a wad bob a you bob ahhi bob boom!"

Or how about looking dreamily into her eyes as your friend the witch doctor croons these tender words: "Ooo eee ooo ahhi ahhi, ting tang walla walla bang bang, Ooo eee ooo ahhi ahhi, ting tang walla walla bang bang!"

On second thought, perhaps when alternatives are considered, folks won't complain too much about the new tune being played in Wash-

Under the direction of club members, Vida Howard, Cathy Lowe, and Dianne Clatworthy, over 100 children enjoyed this event during the past Yuletide season. The clubhouse was decorated with a large Christmas tree furnishing the main attraction.

Nearby, old Santa Claus himself, and his reindeer, old children on his knee and presented each of them with an interesting, colorful book.

Cookies and punch was served to Santa, the children, and the grownups in attendance, and those responsible for this yearly event, had the well-deserved feeling of "a job well done."

Musical instrument needed

It has been suggested that since the need for an organ or piano to be used by the club is so urgent, relatives of a past president of this organization might be interested in making such a donation in her memory (or in her honor).

For a list of past president's, contact Docia Woods, society editor, or a member of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club or if anyone is interested in a contribution such as this should contact any of the members of this club.

Pancake Day, November 14, those enjoying the breakfast watched faithful member Tom O. McGuire toss and turn the flapjacks.

Kiwanis hold Pancake Day

The Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club began its yearly activities in November with its annual Pancake Day at the Prestonsburg High School cafeteria. This has become an event enjoyed and looked forward to by the whole community. Every year, say the Kiwanis members, they see the same faces throughout the day with new ones added from time to time. They are told that their pancakes and sausage are some of the best they have ever eaten.

In December of every year members gather at Riverview Manor Nursing Home and visit with the residents there. They take a small gift to each resident and sing Christmas carols, though sometimes, they confess, it's "off-key." But the resident don't seem to mind and sometimes they even sing along.

The Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club meets each Thursday night in the cafeteria at Highlands Regional Medical Center and visitors are welcome. President Robert Lewandowski has interesting, informative programs about community-related matters each week.

GFWC/KFWC Drift Woman's Club meets

During the business part of the meeting, the purpose of the Home Life Department was explained. Home Life provides opportunities for club members to gain information and to develop skills to make informed decisions on major issues that affect their lives, including economics and health. Home Life also supports the president's special project "SOAR" (Stories Offer Adventure — Read). Home Life also emphasizes the prevention of child and drug abuse.

Gifts were exchanged during the meeting and a covered dish dinner was served to Doris Lawson, Ruby Akers, Celia "Ward" Little, Karen Stone, Roberta Luxmore, Mildred Salisbury, Cheryl Hall, Geraldine Ward, Jerr Turner, Shannon Blake Turner and guests, Neva Jo Tackett and Nora Scarberry.

DEE AND TOM HARDIE

GRANDPARENTING

GRANDPARENTS FAIL TO DIVIDE ATTENTION EQUALLY

Dear Dee and Tom: I need help! Our family is pretty big. There were seven children in all. We are all grown up now, but my mother and father obviously prefer my brother's children over all their other grandchildren.

It really hurts me, and our own children are asking questions about it. I've spoken to my parents, but nothing has changed. They only want to talk about and pay attention to two of their 12 grandchildren. And these are my children's only grandparents. Please help! — West Point, Va.

Maybe the neglected grandchildren should just bite their bullets and send their grandparents little notes, cards, funny family drawings. Maybe the grandparents have to be flattered a bit, and wake up to the needs of all their grandchildren, all of whom of course should be treated alike.

One is never too old to be courted!

Dear Dee and Tom: I wish that people would change the way they look at retirement, and at getting old. Most of them think of it as the end of their lives. Instead, I wish they would realize that retirement is a new stage in their lives, full of promise and opportunities.

It is so sad that so many just retire and do nothing, or in only do what they think is appropriate to their age. My husband is one of them, and it is the reason we finally separated.

I refused to "scale down" and instead learned to play golf and tennis, became a licensed scuba diver and exercise instructor, obtained my high school diploma just for fun (I'm a German citizen) and graduated from classes in surf boarding.

I also spent three weeks with the Outward Bound School in North Carolina, where I learned to climb rocks, canoe, master a rope course high up in the treetops, carry a 50 pound backpack up and down mountains and live without a fire, shower, alcohol, nicotine and a hair salon.

Next year I'll go on a trek through the glacial valleys of Nepal and climb the highest mountains in Mexico.

My husband's comments were: "Aren't you forgetting your age?" I am 59 1/2 years young.

I learned never to say "I can't." I just try. For some there might be physical limitations—but never just because of the age on their passports. There is a lot to do, for everyone in all kinds of conditions: degrees to get, knowledge to gain, skills to learn.

Life after retirement can be the best part of our lives. We are in charge of our time, responsible for what we do. We spend up to 10 years to learn a profession, which lasts for 30 to 35 years. But we don't spend even a week preparing for our 25 to 30 years of retirement. Isn't that stupid? — Christel Subr, Englewood, Fla.

We have often written about the perils of TV, especially for the young. Here is how one enterprising family solved this universal problem.

About 10 years ago when their two older children were 9 and 7, our good friends Arabella and Buck Hubbard of Williston, Vt., made their children a formal offer: If they gave up TV completely for one entire year, they would give their two children a brand-new computer.

And it worked! Both are now experts at the IBM, which they share, using it at home and for school and college. They gave up their TV addiction for a year, as bargained, thus breaking the habit, and have gone on to other fields, including books.

Buck Jr., now 19, is a freshman studying cinematography at Ithaca College, and Phebe, 17, is a junior in high school. Both are doing well, and have survived the lack of almost-constant TV.

1993 brings some optimism for improved farm equipment sales

Sales of farm equipment, especially large tractors and combines, might rebound this year from the sluggish times of the early 1990s.

"Incentives for capital purchases are improving as a result of potential growth and an improved cash flow in agriculture," said Forrest Stegelin, extension agribusiness specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"Crop agriculture is the main driver for farm machinery investment. And acreage is the key to higher sales," he said.

"With the zero set aside for wheat, we can expect more acreage," he explained. "An increase in wheat should lead to more soybean acreage, because many farmers double crop beans behind wheat."

Stegelin believes the 10 percent set aside for corn will have minimal, if any, effect on demand for farm equipment.

"Farmers had a bumper crop in 1992, so they didn't need to make many trips through the field," he said. "With the set aside, farmers likely will go through the field more times to get the most from the crop; this would have a positive effect on equipment sales."

Farmers' aging equipment inventory is another reason sales might increase this year, according to Stegelin.

"Some farmers haven't bought equipment since 1979, when the farm economy began a down turn, and much of it needs to be replaced," he said. "Baling wire and bubble gum will go only so far."

Other inducements for sales are the absence of price shocks looming among production inputs, such as seed, fertilizer, pesticides, fuel and labor. In addition, the livestock industry is in a growth mode fostered by reasonable feed prices.

Improved cash flow is another impetus for farm equipment sales, according to Stegelin.

"Bumper crops in 1992 pushed some harvest prices down to the point that many farmers will receive deficiency payments this year," he explained. "Large-scale farmers, who would most likely receive the payments, might use the money to buy equipment."

Although many farmers took advantage of lower interest rates to consolidate loans, Stegelin doesn't believe the lower rates will be a dominant factor in equipment buying decisions.

"Farmers remember the financial distress of the 1980s, and are hesitant to get into that situation again," he said. "Plus, they are concerned about the shrinking safety net provided by federal price support programs and uncertainty of future commodity exports brought on by the North American Free Trade Agreement and GATT negotiations."

"Capital expenditures for farm equipment and machinery hit an all time high of $11.7 billion in 1979 as boom conditions of the 1970s drew to a close," Stegelin said. "The decline hit a cyclical low in 1986 at $4.6 billion, before rebounding to $8.2 billion in 1990. Sales declined to about $6 billion in 1992."

Several factors contributed to weak sales through the 1992 harvest, he said.

"Economics of ownership encouraged the trend in custom work—pesticide application, pasture mowing, baling hay, harvesting grain, grinding feed," he said. "Many farmers with mid-sized operations hire it done rather than pay dealers' prices and operating costs."

"The Conservation Reserve Program, increasing no- or reduced-tillage practices, weather concerns, and forecasts of declines in net cash income also contributed to weak equipment sales in 1992."

Extra Vitamin E can help reduce exercise-induced muscle damage

by Judy McBride
Trying to shed those extra holiday pounds, don't try an exercise that stresses some muscles more than normal.

Usually, the blame for sore muscles is placed on individual cells that tear apart as they lengthen under the force of exercising.

A new study suggests that a second kind of cell damage may also contribute to the soreness. It's caused by oxygen free radicals that are generated by the body during a workout. Oxygen free radicals damage fats in muscle cell membranes, thus destroying the cells' integrity, says Mohsen Meydani, a nutritionist at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging at Tufts University in Boston.

But, he found that Vitamin E makes a difference. Boosting the body's Vitamin E reserves before beginning an exercise program reduces the tissue-damaging oxygen radicals, he says.

That extra Vitamin E also appears to reduce inflammation of damaged tissue, says Simin N. Meydani, a nutritional immunologist at the Boston center, which is part of USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Vitamin E's benefits were found in comparing the effects of getting 800 IU of the vitamin daily versus a placebo for several weeks before doing muscle-damaging exercise. Men in their 20's, and another group age 55 to 74 were studied.

Mohsen Meydani says the group that got the vitamin, which included both young and older men, had less damage due to oxygen radicals. And the data suggest that "the older men were better protected," he adds.

He says he wanted to compare the effects of Vitamin E—an antioxidant—in young and older men because body levels of antioxidant enzymes reportedly diminish as people age.

Open a tree trunk and discover more about the wonders of wood!

That's the invitation of a new interdisciplinary teaching tool being offered to Kentucky teachers by the Kentucky Forest Industries Association in cooperation with the Kentucky Division of Forestry.

The Tree Trunks are 2' x 3' x 1/2" wooden chests that contain activities for both primary and intermediate levels. Teachers can choose from a variety of activities in a teacher's guide to help students explore and experiment with various woods and wood products.

Each Tree Trunk contains oak veneer, Kentucky coffee tree seeds, tree leaf and twig identification keys, baseball bats, paper pulp, carbon storage modules, and many other activities and exercises that will help everyone understand their daily interdependence on wood.

Tree Trunks can be borrowed free of charge for classroom use. To schedule a Tree Trunk for your classroom, contact the Kentucky Division of Forestry, P.O. Box 189, Betsy Layne, Kentucky 41605. The phone number is 478-4495.

Auctions grow in popularity and success, NAR survey finds

The use of auctions by real estate professionals as a viable marketing tool is steadily gaining ground, dissolving the perception that this selling technique is limited only to distressed properties, according to the results of an auction market activity survey conducted by the National Association of Realtors.

The survey, conducted in June 1992, is based on the responses of 131 U.S. auction firms and tracks auction activity from the first quarter of 1990 through the second quarter of 1991.

The data collected includes the number of real estate auctions held per quarter, the number of bidders attending, and the types and selling prices of the properties offered.

Among the survey's findings was a 1 percent increase, to 4,400, of the number of real estate auctions held across the country in 1991, compared to the number held in 1990. In addition, the survey found that the number of bidders who participated in real estate auctions rose by 27.6 percent in 1991 to more than 625,000. In addition, the number of registered bidders per real estate auction climbed by 26.5, to 134 in 1991, from a year earlier.

The survey also revealed that the number of properties offered through auctions more than doubled in 1991 to just over 81,500. Of those properties offered, the survey found that 83 percent, or 68,000, actually sold.

Survey findings also showed that during 1991, the dollar volume of real estate sold at auction totaled nearly $6.4 billion, nearly 65 percent more than the value of the property offered in the previous year.

Single-family homes, condominiums, and residential lots accounted for 86.4 percent of all sales, and together, accounted for 61.6 percent of the value of real estate sold at auction.

According to the survey, the average price paid for a single-family home offered at auction during the second half of 1991 was $80,100, compared to the $125,000 average price for all single-family homes sold through a traditional sale during the same period. By contrast, condominiums during the same period drew an average price of $106,900 at auction. During the second quarter of 1991, single-family homes sold at auction represented roughly one-half of 1 percent of the dollar value of all single-family homes sold, while sales of condominiums through auctions accounted for 1.5 percent of all units sold.

The survey also found that the composition of the auction market changed markedly between the first and second halves of 1991. Unit sales of single-family homes, multifamily structures and office buildings all more than doubled, while retail and industrial property sales were at least 50 percent higher.

"The selling prices revealed by this survey show us that auctions are not always primarily comprised of distressed properties for sale," said 1993 NAR President William S. Chee, a Realtor from Honolulu.

"Auctions are a relatively new approach to selling real estate here in the United States. This survey clearly shows that the method is catching on in our market, attracting more and more companies and drawing more quality properties," Chee added.

"The basic change that is slowly happening is the perception among Realtors and the public that auctions are not always the last resort to selling a property. They are another option and another way of successfully marketing real estate," said Delbert D. Ludlow, a Realtor from Indianapolis, Ind., and 1992 chairman of NAR's Real Estate Auction Committee.

"I think Realtors are recognizing this fact quicker than the public. But I think it's also starting to catch on with the public too," Ludlow added.

This latest survey also provided NAR researchers with some of the first insight into the impact of properties owned by the Resolution Trust Corp. and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., (RTC/FDIC) in the auction process. The survey found that nearly 42 percent of the real estate properties sold at auction in the second half of 1991 were RTC/FDIC-owned. These properties were especially prevalent in the multifamily and residential lots categories, where they represented 84 and 62 percent of the total sales, respectively.

The National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association, is the voice for real estate, representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of

Department of Veteran Affairs promotes LAPP

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) has a relatively new program designed to speed-up the processing of VA home loans. Called the Lender Appraisal Processing Program, it's better known as "LAPP".

Under LAPP, lenders who already have the authority to determine a VA buyer's creditworthiness can also be approved to receive appraisal reports directly from VA-assigned fee appraisers, review those reports and close the loans on the basis of their reviews. That helps lenders close loans sooner by eliminating the mailing and processing time needed for VA to receive and review the property appraisal report and issue a notice of value to the lender. The amount of time saved can be particularly significant in very active real estate markets.

In addition to the obvious advantage of improving customer service by reducing loan processing time, as the program's popularity increases, lenders with LAPP authority are expected to have a definite competitive edge.

VA is strongly encouraging eligible lenders who have not applied for LAPP approval to do so. The relatively simple approval requirements are outlined in the VA Lender's Handbook. Lenders who have questions or need more information should call their local VA office. VA expects that inquiries and encouragement from veterans, real estate agents and other parties to real estate transactions, as well as lender competition, will cause most eligible lenders to seek LAPP approval.

The evolving real estate professional crossing lines

As real estate professionals seek to balance financial obligations to homeowners with fair representation to prospective buyers, the role of client representation in a housing transaction continues to evolve, according to an article in Real Estate Today, published by the National Association of Realtors.

Real Estate professionals face unique challenges when dealing with the issue of agency, as profiled in Steele V. Propp's article, "Loose Lips Sink Ships." Agency involves the obligations a real estate practitioner must uphold when representing buyers, sellers, or both. Propp illustrates potential problems agency conflict can cause by featuring typical situations involving real estate professionals and consumers in a housing transaction. One general example has a real estate professional offering information to prospective buyers that the seller has not explicitly approved. Although brokers and sales associates work with the good intention of completing the transaction on the client's most favorable terms, revealing certain information to buyers can foil the entire sale and even result in legal penalties.

The author notes that in residential real estate, brokers/sales associates traditionally represent the seller, and act in the best interests of that client. But when a real estate professional agrees to represent a buyer's interests, the client relationship is referred to as buyer brokerage. Consumers can choose real estate professionals to represent them under traditional seller arrangements, buyer brokerage or dual agency, the representation of both seller and buyer.

The scenario of an open house is presented as a case where agency problems could easily arise. To avoid mistakes regarding price, terms, or other selling conditions, the seller should provide the broker/sales associate with written directions. A written agreement will prove especially useful if another salesperson in the real estate company holds the open house.

Real estate professionals must also clearly understand when the reasons for a client's move should be respected as confidential. Since net-working among real estate salespeople often results in more potential buyers for a client's property, the listing broker/sales associate should make it clear to colleagues whether certain information can be revealed to buyers.

The article offers tips directed to real estate professionals which, if understood by buyers and sellers at the start of a transaction, would end in a more satisfactory result. The following advice applies to real estate sales associates exclusively representing the seller:

- The buyer should not be told a personal opinion on the value of a client's property. Answering a buyer's question, "Seems overpriced, doesn't it?" by honestly and openly restating allegiance to the seller will prevent any inadvertent misrepresentation.

- The buyer should not be advised on how much should be offered for the property. If the buyer is aware of the real estate professional's role and has turned down an opportunity to work with a buyer/broker, a response by the sales associate reiterating professional loyalty to the seller is appropriate at that stage of the transaction.

- Real estate professionals can explain the buyer's offer, but can never negotiate on a buyer's behalf. Additionally, if a buyer says he/she is willing to pay more for the property than originally offered, the sales associate must provide the sellers with that information if asked, and can even volunteer the information on how much more the buyers are willing to pay.

- Regarding inspection clauses, a sales associate must ensure that they are clearly defined, understandable and include an expiration date. The question that should be asked regarding any real estate service provided is, "Will what I am about to do or say enhance the seller's position?"

Representation of the seller continues to be the most common role of the real estate broker/sales associate, yet with increased use of buyer brokers and interest in dual agency, that role is becoming more complex in a developing marketplace. Propp concludes.

Renovate or move? Which is the best?

DEAR BRUCE: We purchased a 35-year-old home in decent condition, but very little has changed since it was built. The kitchen, with the exception of the appliances, is 35 years out of date.

There are rooms we don't need that could be enlarged

We are very happy here and the neighborhood is stable. Our neighbors are super and the school system is at least adequate. What would you do?—Y.H. Middletown, Pa.

DEAR Y.H.: The same rationale that would apply to expanding a home also applies to its renovation. You mentioned that your house is valued at around $125,000. If you renovate by adding $50,000, you're making it $175,000. How much is the most expensive home in $6,000. Plus expenses for the most modest move, even across town, can run $5,000. Now we're at $11,000.

Before you get done with any home that you're moving into, with the possible exception of a new one, you're going to spend $4,000 or $5,000 on just the little things to make it your "home." So, you will spend about one-third of the amount of renovation costs just on a move.

In addition, built into the total cost of the new house is the cost of that particular sale, which you, as a customer, will also pay.

Given that, if the neighborhood is as stable as you say, and if your current house will not be disproportionately priced, it may well pay you to do the renovations you've described.

The kitchen and baths are the most expensive. You certainly will want to do some shopping around. It may be there are some savings, such as resurfacing or refacing your cabinets rather than replacing them altogether.

Finally, a home is more than just a cash investment—it is lifestyle. It may be that you will not recover all the money that you invest in renovations. But how do you put a value on your comfort for the next 10 or 15 years?

There's no one-size-fits-all. Yet I think you will find there's a great deal less hassle involved in a renovation than there is in a move.

DEAR BRUCE: For the first time, I read the fine print on my savings account deposit. You can imagine my shock, when I found out that if the bank chooses to, they can withhold my withdrawals until 60 days after I request a withdrawal. Can they do this? I can't imagine waiting for two months for my money out of my regular savings. That's why I keep it there. It's for emergencies.—R.M., Venice, Fla.

DEAR R.M.: This is not an innovation. That verbiage has been common, certainly for the last half century. While the bank reserves the right to withhold your withdrawal for 60 days, it's seldom ever enforced.

There have been some exceptions in some states, as contrasted with federally insured institutions across the country.

But on balance, if your commercial or savings bank is heavily insured, I'm quite confident that if you go down to make a withdrawal, it will be honored at the time you make the request.

simply by moving partitions and brought up to modern standards. The problem is that all of these things are not inexpensive, particularly the bathrooms and the kitchen.

Our question is, does it pay to do the remodeling in our current home, which will exceed $50,000 (the house currently is worth about $125,000), or should we sell the house, which may be difficult to do in today's market and look for a new home?

the neighborhood worth? If it's under $175,000, the answer, on balance, is probably don't do it. It doesn't pay to have the most expensive home in the area.

It may well be that it would pay to move—but the cost of moving is far more substantial than most people believe. Let's just take your case:

Chances are that you would have to use a real estate broker's salesperson with a commission in excess of

What to take to a lender when applying for a mortgage loan

by Steve Becker
Regional Director
Century 21 of Indiana/Kentucky

You've shopped months for your dream home, signed the sales contract, deposited earnest money and are ready to meet with your chosen lender. Unfortunately, applying for a loan is much more complicated than just filling out a few forms, and it is only the first step toward mortgage loan approval. You must be prepared to field many questions and prove the accuracy of your answers with documentation. To speed up the application process, be sure to take the following with you:

Signed and accepted purchase contract—This is the legal document that you signed with the home seller that contains a description of the property, including an engineer's survey (map that charts the property). Don't forget to attach any and all riders, and if there's a governing association for the property, have its rules and regulations. Also, give the lender a copy of the check or money order you used for the earnest money (deposit) on your soon-to-be new home.

Signed tax returns for the last three years.
All entitlement documentation—If you receive social security, pension or disability payments, you must disclose the amount. In most cases, two recent check stubs for each entitlement is sufficient.

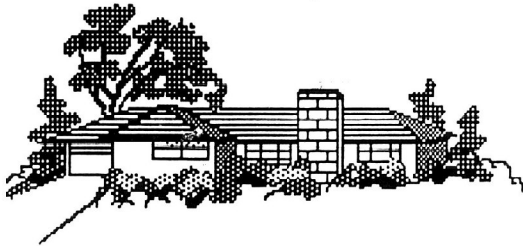

Proof of your annual gross salary—The last two years' W-2 Forms is the best way to show your earnings; if you're paid bonuses and/or overtime, list these separately. If you want to show that your salary is increasing over time, it doesn't hurt to take the last three or four years' W-2s and the most recent salary check stubs.

Social Security numbers for all persons to be listed on the title.
Bank statements—Take the last three months' bank statements for each type of account and investment you have, including checking and saving accounts, Certificates of Deposit, Individual Retirement Accounts, 401k's, stocks and bonds. For the last five items, make sure their current cash values are documented.

Amount and cash value of all life insurance policies.
Employment records—If you haven't been with your current employer for more than three years, you need to have the names and addresses of previous employers during that period. If you're self-employed, provide year-to-date profit and loss statement/balance sheets and three years of corporate tax returns. If you were a student any time during the last three years, provide school transcripts.

Other real estate/rent documentation—Take 12 months of canceled checks for rent and/or mortgage payments. If you own other real estate, you must provide the lender's name and address, the account number and what you still owe on the property.
List of monthly expenses, such as auto payments and insurance, alimony and/or child support payments, credit card debts, student loan payments and any other ongoing payments. When applicable, be prepared to supply current balances and account numbers so the monthly payments can be verified.
Divorce decree—Supply a copy of all decrees and separation agreements. This verifies the amount of alimony or child support paid or received.
Gift letter—If someone is giving money toward the down payment, you must show the signed "gift" letter.

VA loan documentation—If applicable, be prepared to show the certificate of eligibility or what is called the DD-214.
Finally, if you're using an attorney instead of an escrow firm officer for your closing, have her or his name, address and phone number handy. And, don't forget your checkbook. You'll have to pay the lender for credit reports, appraisals and miscellaneous paperwork; but request that the lender explain each charge and why it is levied.
If you're armed with all of these documents when applying for your loan, you'll eliminate or reduce any delays toward loan approval. If all the needed proof of your finances is presented up front, loan processing takes an average of 30 to 45 days to complete.

"FIXER-UPPERS": FIRST THINGS FIRST
by Joe Zorc
PM Editorial Services

Before you begin work on a major "fixer-upper," some serious planning can help save money. Start by outlining a budget, based on available finances. Knowing your options and their financial impact will result in better choices in your project.

While you can save a lot of labor costs by replacing dry-wall, plastering and painting yourself, the major infrastructure items and appliances will most likely have to be installed by others. Here are some items for your consideration:

Electric: You may have to upgrade the service (amperes being fed to the house from the street) depending on the existing capacity. The first step will be to decide what major appliances will be installed in the house. The big energy users are air conditioning, the hot water boiler, washer and dryer, furnace or heat pump, refrigerator, disposal, dishwasher and the oven. You have a choice with most of these appliances to use gas, oil, electric or even propane.

If you plan to put in separate air conditioners for windows, you probably need to run separate circuits to have adequate power at each location. Central air conditioning requires major energy sources at both the fan and compressor. At the same time, consider if you will want "clean" computer outlets for certain areas, which would require running new wires in the walls and would take up room in an electrical panel. Also remember to plan for adequate heavy-duty kitchen appliance outlets.

After you have decided what electric appliances you will be installing, total the usage and consult with an electrician to verify if an upgrade is necessary.

Kitchen: Remember to include all those appliances listed above in your budget and add the microwave, range hood and venting, and special lighting.

The cabinet costs will be at least as expensive as, if not more than, the cost of the appliances combined. All laminate cabinets are usually on the lower price scale and look clean and modern. With wood cabinets, look for solid fronts. In all makes, sturdy hinges and rollers are the most important considerations. Solid hardwood custom cabinets can be two to four times the cost of laminate.

Flooring: If you plan to refinish hardwood floors, first interview several contractors and inquire how many more "sandings" the floor has left in it. Try to have as little of the floor removed as possible, in order to maintain the strength in the wood. This is one job better left to the professionals, but make sure to get references and several bids. If the floors are in poor shape, your money may be better spent by installing a new layer over the top of the existing floor. Obtain bids for both options. If you are not sold on the wood floors, check out carpet samples and get bids to compare the difference in price for alternate flooring.
