Eastern coalfields quiet as time lapses

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Although the United Mine Workers of America's massive walk-out at all Peabody Coal Company-owned mines has yet to affect any Eastern Kentucky miners, UMWA President Richard Trumka announced Tuesday that more walk-outs, nationwide, may follow.

The union strike against Peabody, the nation's largest coal-producer, began Monday in protest to what Trumka termed "unfair labor practices." Trumka said that Peabody and other companies affiliated with the Bituminous Coal Operator's Association had failed to respond to UMWA negotiators concerning the expiration of the 1988 National Bituminous Coal Wage Agreement since contract summits began last November.

The wage agreement, negotiated between the union and the Coal Operator's Association, covers more than 7,700 working miners at Peabody and more than 60,000 other miners at smaller operations nationwide.

"(Peabody has) failed to respond to even the most simple information requests," Trumka said. "For a contract settlement to be reached, both sides... have to be prepared to negotiate. Absent that, you don't have collective bargaining, only a collective waste of time.

"Today, thousands of UMWA coal miners are seeing the coal companies they've worked years for open new mines and closing old ones," Trumka said. "(When) it's time to fill the jobs at those new mines those long-term employees are being shut out... What we want to bargain for is job security so our members don't see their family's future go up in smoke when coal operators open new mines."

Trumka added that the union's campaign might even dwarf the 1989 strike at Pittston Coal, and said that more than 150,000 retired miners' pensions could be affected if a new wage agreement is not discussed, but those and other benefits would continue unabated during the strike.

Kevin Myers, a spokesman for the Pikeville branch of the Coal Operator's Association, said Tuesday that the walk-outs have not yet affected Eastern Kentucky because the closest Peabody-owned mine is located in Western Kentucky and because there are no union mines in the local 150-member association.

However, Myers said, if non-union

Three weeks before her murder, Ella Frances Hunter called Kentucky State Police and said she feared her estranged husband would follow her to Karate class at Betsy Layne High School and "cause trouble."

Last Sunday at the gate to Betsy Layne High School, police say Hunter's husband, Phillip Hunter, shot and killed his wife and her boyfriend just prior to the beginning of her Karate class.

KSP captain Robert Forsythe said Tuesday that Ella Hunter called the Pikeville police post on Sunday, January 10 saying she feared her husband would follow her. Forsythe said Ella Hunter, 41, was advised to call the post if her husband showed up. Apparently, her husband did not follow her that day.

Phillip Hunter, 46, of Honaker was charged with two counts of capital murder Sunday afternoon after he allegedly killed his wife and Darrell Blackburn, 45, of Pikeville. Police said Phillip Hunter went to a pay phone and called state police and told them what he did. He was arrested by state police a short time after the killings.

Both victims suffered gunshot wounds to the head and chest. Their bodies were found lying on the ground in front of the locked gate to the campus of Betsy Layne High School at 3:45 p.m. Sunday.

Ella Hunter was a Karate instructor who had a class scheduled January 31 at the school, police said.

Ella Hunter had been granted an emergency protection order against her husband last October and it has been reported that Phillip Hunter had violated that order on several occasions.

KSP captain Forsythe said Tuesday that five complaints had been made against Phillip Blackburn since October, two by Ella Hunter, two by Blackburn and one by Ella Hunter's co-worker at Happy Mart at Harold.

Captain Forsythe said reports that state police failed to arrest Phillip Hunter for violating the protective order were false.

"I know of no incident where a police officer went to the scene and asked Phillip Hunter to leave," Forsythe said. "That didn't happen. I have no record of that."

Forsythe said he answered a complaint several months ago called in by Ella Hunter's co-worker at Happy Mart. The caller said Ella Hunter and her husband were having a domestic problem in the parking lot which was causing a disturbance, Forsythe said. "She was standing beside his truck talking to him and I asked her if there was a problem," Forsythe said. "She said there was no problem. He was sitting in his truck."

Captain Forsythe said that the two complaints from Blackburn, made on the same day, October 25, were in Wheelwright City Commissioners met in special session Tuesday and rejected a proposed settlement in connection with two suspended police officers.

Wheelwright police chief Charles Harmon and assistant chief Rodney Newsome were suspended without pay in December for alleged police violations and citizen complaints.

A memo from city attorney Greg Isaac said the policemen's attorney, Larry Webster of Pikeville, had agreed to a 30-day suspension for Newsome and a 60-day suspension for Harmon which stipulated that both officers would be reinstated after their time off.

Harmon, however, said at Tuesday's meeting he had not agreed to those terms and asked that his due process hearing set for February 13 be waived and that his case be sent to Floyd County Circuit Court to be resolved.

"There seems to be a bit of confusion between myself and my attorney," Harmon said. "If my attorney said that it was totally against my will, I'm not willing to accept any suspension because it is an indication of guilt and I'm not guilty."

Commissioner Lowell Parker moved that the city not accept any proposal at this time.

Commissioners Parker, Andy Akers, Luther Johnson and Alan Taylor voted to reject the offer and Mayor Kenneth Johnson abstained from voting.

Commissioners did not act on Five counties in the Big Sandy region will go their separate ways in an effort to come together with a vision for the future.

Following a mandate from Governor Brereton Jones and the state's General Assembly, the Big Sandy Area Development District on Thursday, January 28, launched the local version of "Kentucky 2001," a state-wide project aimed at assessing needs, setting goals and implementing strategies for Kentucky's development into the next century.

Each of the state's fifteen area development districts will undertake similar planning processes to contribute to an overall strategic plan for the commonwealth.

Thursday's organizational session at Jenny Wiley State Park included representatives from Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties, who have been invited by the Big Sandy ADD to serve on individual county steering committees.

Floyd County businesswoman Dolores Smith was appointed to chair the Floyd County committee, which will conduct four public hearings throughout the county to acquire input on development needs and goals.

Smith said this week she would incorporate information compiled two years ago by a wide-ranging civic organization known as "We Are Floyd County" as the basis for the Floyd County survey.

Kentucky 2001 is the product of legislation enacted by Kentucky's General Assembly which calls for statewide, community-based planning for economic development in the 21st century. Planning will encompass programs for the economy, human resources, area infrastructure, transportation, the environment and natural resources and area organizations and governance.

Strategic area development program reports are expected to be completed for presentation to the governor and the legislature by May. Regional programs are then expected to be incorporated into a complete statewide plan.

Second death at junction baffles state road officials

"Why?" the sign placed anonymously on the rock wall abutting the intersection of new U.S. 23 and Route 1428 asks. While the reader infers, have two people been killed and four critically injured at the site in 30 days... the latest victim an infant, barely past her first birthday.

Katherine Baker, one-year-old, of Clintwood, Virginia died early Saturday morning after her mother, Kimberly Sue Baker, failed to stop at the intersection, crossed all four lanes and struck the rock wall.

Katherine was pronounced dead less than an hour later at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Kimberly Baker remains in the surgical intensive care unit at Saint Mary's Hospital in Huntington, West Virginia.

A second passenger, Teresa Cottrell, 30, is still listed in critical condition in the intensive care ward at the University of Kentucky Medical Center at Lexington.

The accident occurred one month to the day after Jimmy Howard Brenner, 34, of Seagrave, North Carolina, drove his tractor-trailer through the same intersection, struck the same rock wall, and died in the ensuing explosion.

The accident occurred less than a week after Matthew Mullins, of released after a brief stay at Louisiana, Humana Hospital for orthopedic care, Bentley, 24, remains in critical condition at Saint Mary's Hospital in Huntington, West Virginia.

All three of the accidents have occurred under similar conditions. Each of the accidents occurred in the dark, with visibility at a minimum;

Floyd County deputy jailer Jody Mullins will be allowed to keep his job while he is seeking the elected office of jailer.

Last Friday in Floyd County Circuit Court, Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond filed a response to a civil lawsuit filed January 26 by Mullins.

Mullins' suit challenged Floyd County's personnel policy which required county employees seeking public office to take an unpaid leave of absence.

Hammond's response to Mullins suit made the issue a moot point. The county attorney said that under state law the authority to appoint and remove jail personnel is the responsibility of the elected jailer of the county.

"That although a deputy jailer is treated in the same manner as a county employee for fiscal purposes, such as payroll, medical benefits, workers'

Auxier post office gets new chief, Honaker to close doors

This week marks both the best of times and the worst of times for Floyd County's branches of the United States Postal service. While one branch proudly hailed a changing of the guard, another planned to close its doors forever.

On Tuesday, regional manager of Post Office Operations Diane Sharp swore in Little Paint's Debbie Hall as the new postmaster of the U.S. Post Office at Auxier.

The future is not so bright for the Honaker Post Office, located between Betsy Layne and Harold.

Sharp said Tuesday that the Honaker branch would be closed indefinitely as of Friday, February 5 because better, more modern facilities could not be found to house it

Discussions at Monday's Allen City Commission meeting centered on the legality of the employment of the city attorney and dissolution of the city's charter.

Jerome Kinzer, an Allen resident who led a petition drive to dissolve the city's charter, asked Mayor Chris Waugh if it is legal to employ the assistant county attorney as the city attorney.

Mayor Waugh told Kinzer that the issue had been researched and that there appeared to be no conflict. "We'll check it out again and we'll see," Waugh said. "We didn't hire (county attorney) Jim Hammond, we hired Hammond Law Office (to represent the city)."

The city hired attorney John Coleman last year. Coleman is also the assistant county attorney for Floyd County.

Chester Porter, a former city official, said it was illegal for Coleman to hold two public jobs.

"I don't want us to get in trouble," Porter said. "You cannot hold two public jobs. He can't work (for) the city because it is in the same county." "It's wrong, we'll make it right," Waugh said.

Kinzer also asked if city clerk Bill Parsons could also work for the city water commission.

Kinzer's question prompted Parsons to reply, "I don't want the clerk job, it was forced on me." Parsons added that if the commission would "bring someone else in," they could have his job.

Since the city's legal counsel was absent from Monday's meeting, Mayor Waugh said he would pose Kinzer's questions to Coleman.

Kinzer also asked what procedures were necessary to dissolve the city's charter because he said 80 to 90 percent of the city's residents were in favor of disbanding the city.

Waugh said he felt that the city could not legally dissolve its charter because city leaders are under a court order to construct a sewer system. The mayor said that if the city did not assume the debt to build a sewer system, citizens of the town would bear the cost.

Kinzer suggested selling the city's water system to pay the town's outstanding debts as one way to dissolve the charter.

Although no commissioners voted on the issue, Mayor Waugh said he was willing to listen to anyone who wanted to discuss dissolving the charter.

Also Monday, Commissioners Ann Bentley and Stevie Hall, who had previously resigned their seats, but withdrew their resignations last month, joined newly-appointed commissioner Fred Nelson.

Other action Monday:

- commissioners voted to hire Verne Bradley as a part-time police officer with a $300 monthly salary;
- commissioners discussed the city's delinquent taxpayers and a problem with stray dogs;
- Mayor Waugh agreed to report an apparently illegal garbage dump to county ecology officer Cleveland Tackett; and
- Kinzer and Porter discussed removing the west side of town from the city's corporate limits.

The next regular meeting of the commission will be Monday, March 1 at 7 p.m. at city hall.

each driver passed through the intersection without stopping at the oversized stop signs, crashing into the rock wall as if they thought it was a continuation of the highway; each driver was from out of town, and familiar with neither the intersection nor the terrain.

Denton Billiter, chief district engineer for the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet, said Tuesday that he could think of no reason why the accidents keep occurring other than human error.

"The signing (at the site) is more than adequate...." Billiter said. "We have four times the amount of 'stop ahead' signs that should be there."

In addition to the two oversized stop signs and flashing red caution lights at the intersection, Billiter said, the highway department has added two symbol stop ahead signs, two electronic flashing message boards and a number of "ramble strips" cut into the road to slow vehicles and alert drivers that there is an intersection.

"It's hard to visualize people and their reactions to road signs," Billiter said. "A lot of people... just don't pay attention to them."

Others disagree. The family of Jimmy Howard Brewer, the first victim, has acquired the services of Biscoe, North Carolina-based firm of Thigpen and Jenkins, Attorneys at Law, to investigate Brewer's death.

James H. Jenkins, representing the firm, said Tuesday that he and his associates are "intensely pursuing all legal liability aspects" regarding Brewer's fatal accident on December 30.

"The two most recent tragedies," Jenkins said, "simply confirm the problems surrounding the design and construction of that intersection."

On Monday, Billiter said, construction crews began re-cutting the rumble strips on the highway in order to make them deeper and much more difficult to ignore. Billiter said that based on the number of accidents at the intersection, the highway department would continue adding signs and other warnings to passing motorists, hoping that no more motorists would realize too late that the road ahead is nothing more than a dead end.

Site-based council meeting

Harmon's request to waive his due process hearing and the issue is set to be heard at 7 p.m. February 13.

Newsome was not at Tuesday's special meeting.

Also Tuesday, Commissioner Parker informed the commission that an auxiliary policeman had resigned and the position needed to be filled.

After a short and intense discussion between the mayor and Parker, the mayor agreed to put the issue on the agenda.

Parker said he had called the city clerk at 9 a.m. Monday and asked that the issue be placed on Tuesday's agenda.

Mayor Johnson argued that Parker had not called the clerk in time to place the issue on the public notice of the meeting posted on the door of the utility office.

Commissioners agreed to place Chris Thornberry on the city's auxiliary police force.

Joseph (Jody) MULLINS

Democrat for JAILER of Floyd County

Hello, friends, neighbors and voters of Floyd County. I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself. My name is Joseph (Jody) Mullins of Hueysville, Kentucky, a lifelong resident of Floyd County. I've been a member of the Hueysville Church of Christ since my marriage to Eileen Brown 17 years ago. Eileen and I have three wonderful daughters; Chrystal, Amanda and Mary Ann.

I've been a dedicated and loyal employee of the Floyd County Jail and Lawrence Hale for the past seven years.

Since the announcement of the retirement of Lawrence Hale, I have decided to run for jailer. When elected, I would like to see:

1. A.A. meet once a week at the jail for inmate counseling.
2. People charged with a mental petition be taken for immediate evaluation and/or to a mental facility, and not be lodged in the county jail. Many of these people have broken no laws.
3. Create a work detail for non-violent offenders to clean up the county's graveyards, back roads and creek banks of garbage.

With your help we can bring these changes. With 14 people running for jailer, it will be a very tough campaign.

I need your help. If you need mine, call 358-3474. Thank You.

Important financial aid deadline nears

It's now appropriate that April is an important deadline for Floyd Countyans seeking financial aid to attend college.

For, according to Herb Vesco, it would be foolish for a student to squander a chance for assistance by delaying the application process beyond that key date.

Vesco, the long-time director of Eastern Kentucky University's Division of Student Financial Assistance, said ample dollars are available through a variety of grant and loan programs, but "certain programs run out of funds very quickly."

Students may pick up a copy of the Free Application for Federal Student Aid, as well as an EKU Request for Aid form, from their high school guidance counselor at EKU's financial aid office in the Coates Administration Building. Both should be returned by April 1 and April 15, respectively, for priority consideration. As soon as both forms have been processed, Eastern's financial aid office will determine students' eligibility for various types of assistance.

A number of financial aid options are available for Eastern students: grants, loans, employment, academic and athletic scholarships, and others.

About 70 percent of EKU students receive some type of financial assistance, which last year totaled about $34 million. About a third of that was in the form of grants, which do not have to be re-paid. The most common loan program is the Stafford Loan, for which more students will be eligible this year, Vesco said.

In addition, various assistance programs are available to veterans or families of deceased or disabled veterans.

The average annual award at Eastern is about $2,600, said Vesco, noting that would cover about half of a student's annual costs, including tuition and fees, books and supplies, housing and meals, at a state-assisted university like Eastern. The costs may be higher at a larger land-grant institution or private school.

Another source for financial help is the campus job. About 2,600 Eastern students help finance their education through either the Federal Work Study Program or the Institutional Work Program.

Also, various academic and athletic scholarships are available, including several automatic scholarships for qualifying students. For example, Kentucky high school valedictorians and salutatorians are eligible for Presidential Scholarships, National Merit Finalists and Semifinalists are automatically offered an EKU Honor Award, and Governor's Scholars are automatically offered a Regents Scholarship, as are Kentucky students who score a 29 on their ACT composite with a 3.75 cumulative grade point average (on a 4.0 scale). In recent years, Eastern has increased the amount of scholarships available to attract academically talented students.

Over 120 other scholarships are available, most related to the student's particular field of study.

For more information about financial aid opportunities, call EKU's Division of Student Financial Assistance, 606-622-2361. For information about Veterans Affairs benefits, call 606-622-2345.

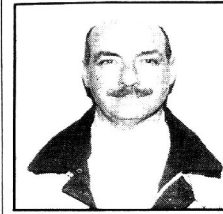

Nominated for award

Betsy Layne High School teacher Reba Sue Hammond Justice has been nominated for the Ashland Oil Teacher Achievement Award. Ashland Oil will name Kentucky's top ten teachers who will each receive a $2,500 cash award. Justice is helping students become achievers through the Job Training Program in Action at the school. Her Champions Against Drugs with 350 members is one of the largest chapters in Kentucky. She is scheduled to speak at the Jobs For America program to be held this month in Louisville and at the Prevention Dropout conference in Atlanta in March, where she will explain the program at Betsy Layne. Legislators find agreeing on ethical standards a bit difficult

State lawmakers in the House and Senate realized the first day of the special legislative session on ethics that agreeing on standards of conduct for themselves may be more difficult than they ever dreamed.

For example, the Senate—the first chamber of the General Assembly to consider the ethics standards proposed by a task force earlier this year—has already drafted a compromise bill that weakens the provision in the task force's proposal that would prohibit lawmakers from taking "anything of value" from lobbyists. The Senate compromise bill would allow lawmakers to take free meals from lobbyists.

Sen. Ed Ford, D-Cynthiana, said he was concerned the provision prohibiting lawmakers from taking "anything of value" went too far.

Ford wondered during a Monday evening public hearing on the senate compromise bill if, under the task force's proposal, it would be illegal if a lawmaker ate dinner at the house of an old friend who had just become a registered lobbyist.

"I don't want us to put ourselves in a box so the only social friends I can have would be members of the legislature," Ford said.

But while members of the Senate State Government Committee held a public hearing on their chamber's compromise bill, members of the House Democratic Caucus met in closed session to add teeth to the House version of the ethics bill. The Democratic Caucus endorsed the task force's provision prohibiting taking anything of value from lobbyists.

Most members of the general public who attended the Senate hearing also supported tougher ethical standards for state legislators. Paul O'Brien told the Senate committee members a good, strong ethics bill with teeth in it would be a good start to cleaning up the legislature's act.

O'Brien also supported the provision in the task force's proposal calling for a committee made up entirely of citizens that would monitor ethical actions of legislators.

"You could make it an opportunity available to everyone by putting it in public notice in the media asking for volunteers," O'Brien said.

O'Brien also said he would like the ethics bill to apply to lawmakers in all levels of government, from city and county officials to state lawmakers.

Al Dix, publisher of The State Journal in Frankfort and vice chairman for the Board of Ethics for the General Assembly, suggested one member of the proposed ethics committee be a legislator or state official.

Dix said past Board of Ethics discussions showed the board's legislative member had been very strict on other lawmakers. The Senate compromise bill also calls for:

- Allowing lawmakers to accept meals and drinks from lobbyists. Lobbyists would have to report all meals and drinks over $50 at a time or $250 per year.

- Limiting contributions from Political Action Committees to lawmakers to 50 percent of lawmaker's total contributions to the task force recommended abolishing all PAC contributions to candidates.

- Requiring paid lobbyists to register and disclose what they spend on legislators above certain limits.

- Creating an ethics watchdog panel composed entirely of private citizens appointed by the Senate president and the House speaker.

The Senate State Government Committee is hoping to pass the compromise bill out of committee to the Senate floor for a vote by Thursday, Senate President John "Eck" Rose, D-Winchester, said Monday afternoon.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Editorial:

Square one . . .

by Scott Perry

We've listened for years to the claims that our system of education is inadequate, and test scores released last week are the proof in the pudding.

This is a time for celebration. Say what?

The results of tests demonstrate that Eastern Kentucky, long considered an educational wasteland, is proportionately no worse or no better than anywhere else in the commonwealth.

But that is not the source of our cheer.

No, the celebration we propose is not for what was, but for what is to be.

For the first time since the state's landmark education reform legislation was enacted in 1990, we all know where we stand and, more importantly, what is expected of us.

The scores from 1992 testing establish a baseline for progress and a goal for improvement.

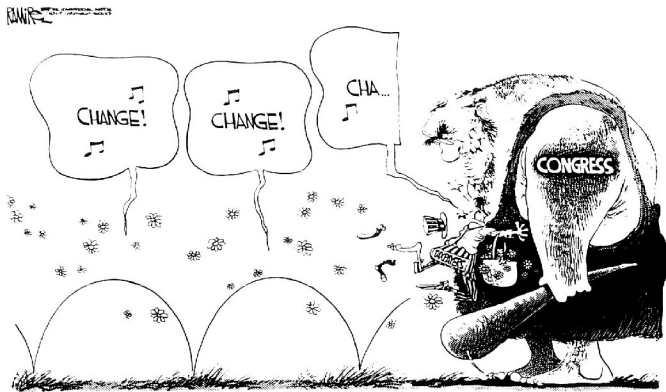

Now we know that we not only must do a better job of educating our children, we know exactly how much better we must do.

We all have a stake in the outcome. Parents, teachers, administrators and students will be held accountable. The cost of failure is high. The rewards of success are immeasurable.

Yes, this is a time for celebration because our past inadequacies are erased, the slate is wiped clean, and we stand on square one with a common purpose...to move forward.

There is just one way to do it, too.

Hand in hand.

Congratulations Trojans

Editor: I have attended many basketball games over the years, and I have observed the actions of schools and fans. I feel that this is a good indicator as to what is going on at a school.

I attended the All "A" Classic at Pikeville, Saturday night, and was extremely impressed with the class manner in which the students, fans, team, coaches, and everyone from the Wheelwright High School conducted themselves, and supported their team.

It is apparent that some very good things are happening in the Wheelwright School and community. Congratulations and Good Luck! Johnny Ray Turner Editor: I would like to take this chance to thank the Floyd County Times, and especially the sports editor, Ed Taylor, for all the articles they printed on the Auxier Hornets Basketball Team.

Operation Santa Claus

Editor: This was our eighth year to help needy families have a better Christmas. Our first year we served approximately 150 families and have served more each year since. This year we gave between 450 and 500 children toys, candy and fruit. Also over 300 families came into the fire department and picked out clothing and shoes.

We also gave between 60 and 65 food baskets. We ended by having Santa Claus here for the children. We had a good year.

We thank everyone who donated money, food, clothing or gifts to the Middle Creek Volunteer Fire Department's Operation Santa Claus.

Anyone who wants to help us this year, please call Milton Harvey, 886-1381 or Charles Hackworth, 886-3606.

We wouldn't want to smash bugs on anyone's windshield, but it seems that a plan to establish a "vision" for Kentucky's future is a typical case of reinventing the wheel.

The project, known as "Kentucky 2001" is the result of a mandate from Governor Brereton Jones and the state legislature to the state's Area Development Districts to compile strategic development goals and solutions for improving our quality of life into the 21st century.

Organizational meetings have been held throughout the state, including the Big Sandy region, to create regional and county steering committees which will be responsible for setting goals and developing strategies for implementing the "visions."

The project is ambitious, to say the least, and probably the first of its kind to include the entire state in a planning process for improving our quality of life.

It is not the first time, however, that individual counties have set their sights on the future or developed goals and strategies for improvement.

We know of at least two counties in the Big Sandy—Floyd and Johnson—which have already laid the groundwork for addressing future needs, and seems somewhat unnecessary to start the process all over again.

We Are Floyd County and Johnson County's Project 2000 have, admittedly, stalled since their formations, but they have successfully completed much of the legwork needed to provide a clear vision for our future.

Reviving and expanding those networks as opposed to starting over from square one would be the logical step to take for Kentucky 2001 in the Big Sandy.

And, it could put us one step ahead.

When it comes to reforming the political process, state legislators are unified in their opposition to the abolition of political action committees, alias PACs.

It's easy to figure why. PACs contribute a lot of money to the political campaigns of incumbents and very little, proportionately, to the challengers of incumbents. The average is about $20 to $1 in favor of those who already hold elected office.

It would appear, then, that incumbency is more attractive to those who donate than is, say, a candidate's qualifications.

Once you're in, you're in and, if you're out, the odds of getting in are outrageous.

Money talks, democracy walks.

The state is a few million shy of making the books balance and it looks like tax refunds may be held up for the second straight year to stave off the red ink, despite an earlier vow from the Gov that refunds would be mailed on time this year.

In Washington, President Bill has discovered that the federal deficit is growing like dandelions in a suburban lawn and his campaign promise of a middle class tax cut may be delayed until the economy improves, the cows come home, Hell freezes over and Fidel Castro emigrates to Miami to open a flamenco dance studio.

In that order. Promises, promises. They're a dime a dozen and worth even less.

Sigmund Freud made a psychiatrist of himself in the early part of this century by propounding a theory that man's every move was motivated by sexual desire and the federal government is becoming a case study of that hypothesis.

Consider that the most dominant issues of today involve debates on abortion and sexual preference, and Freud's conjecture is almost prophetic.

It's about time we changed the subject. One in ten, nearly 27 million Americans, still depend on food stamps to survive. Millions awaken each day in poverty. Drugs, crime and racial intolerance grow like cancers on our society and our next generation, the leaders of tomorrow, is losing sight of the difference between right and wrong.

The longer we remain oblivious to the real problems, the closer we come to oblivion.

Sinister lib?

Editor:
I remember watching talk shows in the seventies, with their endless barrage of feminist guests who espoused the sinister, egotistic ideology of the women's liberation movement. Have a career outside the home, they told the American women, or you'll be a second-class citizen! Fulfill yourselves and put your welfare before that of everyone else. The brainwashing went on and on.

I watched the programs on a little television set that flickered inside a small three-room cabin in the woods. A dedicated homemaker and mother, I made the necessary sacrifices to stay at home with my children. Some of the practices also helped the ecology.

We had electricity, but no inside plumbing. I drew water from a cistern and at night I bathed my four little ones in a small round tub I'd bought at a dollar store. Each one was rinsed with clean water. I then mopped the floors and washed the woodwork with the used bath water. Our home was simple, uncluttered and the decor was pretty.

I snubbed expensive, environmentally hazardous disposable diapers and laundered cloth diapers on a wringer washer and at a laundromat. Meals were nutritious, made from scratch. We ate fruit for snacks, most of it bought by the bushel. I recycled clothing by purchasing some of it second-hand using hand-me-downs, and giving away what we didn't need, usually to the Salvation Army. Our favorite summer recreation was playing in the creek.

I refer to that period as my Loretta Lynn days. One time, she, Loretta Lynn, was criticized by feminists for her previous domestic lifestyle, when she was surrounded by little ones and living in so-called poverty. "I loved it," she responded, and I echo her sentiments.

Now, in the nineties, our nation is reaping the rotten fruits of women's lib. Homelessness is just one of the problems. There aren't enough well-paid jobs to go around because many families are being financially supported by two people working full-time outside the home and each one is earning a salary sufficient to meet the financial needs of a family.

While some families eat out frequently and have expensive cars and lavish homes, other families live in cars, eat in soup kitchens and shiver in the cold.

We can ease the sufferings of others by voluntarily curbing the insatiable appetite of pride and greed. As Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton said, live simply so that others may simply live. In the process, we may find that our sacrifices were a blessing in disguise.

In this, my final reflection on Germany, I want to think about culture and the value of cross-cultural experiences. We mean by culture, all the things that make up and enrich our lives, including but certainly not limited to the arts. A prime example of American culture would be the Super Bowl, which for the past month has dominated American consciousness and media hype. An outsider coming to these shores would have a hard time figuring what all the big deal was about! But, I found that I could live (for three weeks at least) knowing and hearing nothing about football or even UK basketball!

Similarly, we may look at events in other cultures (like a European soccer match) and wonder why people are so exercised about their team and winning. Overseas, we learned to say many times that things there were different, though not necessarily good or bad.

Right now a profound cultural struggle is going on in Germany as East is swallowed up by West, and the assimilation is not coming easily. Early on the way to German reunification, it became clear that it would be easier for the East to become part of West Germany's political and economic system. The East was poor, needed tremendous help, and wanted the strong Deutsche Mark currency to replace its worthless money. But, now that the decision has been made, people are having second thoughts and some regrets.

Were there not things in the Eastern culture, which had developed over 40 years on its own, that should be preserved? Was everything necessarily "better" in the West? Though socialism as a system failed miserably—in large part because of official corruption at the top—there are aspects of it that are desirable still.

People's needs were taken care of, there was little or no unemployment, and an egalitarian spirit prevailed. I am reminded how far behind we are in America when I get a call asking for help with infant day care, and have to reply, "I don't know of anything available." Such needs would be taken care of in a socialist state, where the government cares for its citizens, it is said, "from the cradle to the grave."

The West (and here I use the term in three ways: West Berlin, West Germany, and the Western bloc as opposed to the Soviet one) is not all perfect. Now, manifestations of Western culture are appearing in the East that are disturbing: homelessness, increasing alcoholism, pornography, prostitution, and other products of our capitalist, consumer society—not to speak of increased crime.

The problem is an intriguing one: how can we combine the prosperity and material blessings of Western culture and also retain a sense of community and caring for all members of society? Rather than assimilation, there is an opportunity here to take the best of both worlds and mold a better, more compassionate society.

Looking "cross-culturally" at the differences between Europe and American culture, I can see advantages both ways. I was elated at the emphasis the Germans place on the arts, and understandably so, in the land of Beethoven, Bach, et al. Concerts and art exhibitions of all sorts are an important part of life. On the other hand, I find the American system of voluntary church support far superior to the German and largely European method of established churches which are supported by the "Church Tax." Can you imagine the well that would go over in the USA? Our churches, though competitive, have a level of congregational life and participation that is enviable.

A concluding thought comes to mind as I reflect on the differences between cultures: how we East Germans have allowed our culture to be totally swallowed up by our own "West." Along with many East Germans, we have "bought" the idea of the consumer society as the only source of happiness and fulfillment, often allowing our own distinctiveness as a culture to be destroyed. We think all the best things in life are to be found to the West and so have opted for the mall and fast food as the way to success.

Were it not for a few people like Billie Jean Osborne and Carol Stumbo (and they are only representative), we would be losing even more rapidly the uniqueness of Appalachian story-telling and writing, as well as the special musical talents of our area. The present revival of crafts is heartening, but it is sometimes too late to recover a culture and its arts once they are gone.

So, I am glad to be back in the good old USA, but I will never again view my country or our unique Appalachian culture with the same eyes, having seen the cultural differences between East and West, and the struggle to find a life that frees us for the future, but also keeps the best of our past—in Berlin. Aufwiedersehen.

How Clinton can honor his promise

By Kenneth Eskey

Scriptis Howard News Service

Presidents usually arrive in office promising to balance the federal budget, or at least slash the deficit. Ronald Reagan said he would do it. George Bush said he would do it. They didn't. Together, they added $2.5 trillion to the national debt.

Now we have Bill Clinton assuming the presidency, and no one believes his promises anymore. Few in either party expect Clinton to carry out his campaign pledge to cut the deficit (expected to be $327 billion this year) in half by the end of 1996.

That's too bad. This is one promise that should be kept. It would be painful to do, but not impossible. Here are 13 proposals to shrink the deficit without sabotaging economic recovery at the same time:

—Forget about tax cuts for middle-class Americans. If cuts are made, they should go to families with children. Some revenue could be recovered by adding a dime to the federal gasoline tax.

—Cancel the pledge to spend an additional $80 billion on public works over the next four years. We're already spending billions on roads, bridges and other construction projects.

—Downsize military spending more rapidly. Use the money that has been saved to reduce the federal deficit, not to finance new programs.

—Tax all or most Social Security benefits. Why should young workers with modest incomes pay stiff payroll taxes so that affluent retirees can receive tax-free benefits? Even if benefits were taxable, low-income retirees would pay little or nothing.

—Raise the top income tax rate from 31 percent to 33 percent, but reduce the capital gains tax from 28 percent to 20 percent for new investments held five years or more.

Offer a one-year credit to companies investing in new plant and equipment. A permanent credit would reward companies for routine investments they would have made anyway.

—Disallow the mortgage interest deduction on second homes. Why should taxpayers subsidize somebody's beach house or hunting lodge?

—Give the president line-item veto on spending bills. Failing that, Clinton should veto bills if they're loaded with pork.

—Phase out all or most farm subsidies. Much of the money goes to wealthy corporate farmers.

—Any health-care reform should limit federal spending; promote preventive medicine, especially for children; and give states (Oregon wants to do it) the right to make choices. Reforms should favor basic care over heroic, expensive procedures, most often for the elderly, that have small chance of success.

—Eliminate dozens of unnecessary or redundant federal programs. The Small Business Administration is one candidate for extinction. The Rural Electrification Administration is another.

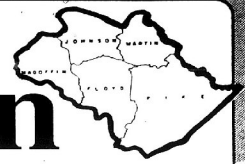

—Reduce the White House staff by 25 percent and urge Congress to make similar cuts. Capitol Hill has become a rabbit warren of committees, subcommittees and congressional flunkies.

—Freeze hiring at federal departments and agencies until new Cabinet officers have a better idea what they need and don't need.

It's doubtful that even a half dozen of these proposals will be taken seriously. Too many beneficiaries would be hurt. Too many votes would be gained. Too many lobbyists would fly into action.

One statistic should be kept in mind, however: Interest on the national debt is costing taxpayers $202 billion this year. That's more than it cost to run the country 23 years ago

Knott suit might become 'candidacy test' test case

An Eastern Kentucky case has prompted the first challenge to the state's test for circuit court clerk candidates, a state official said yesterday. Knott Circuit Clerk Carlos "Jake" Huff filed a lawsuit Thursday to have the name of James "Tonto" Combs, 45, removed from the Democratic primary ballot. Huff said Combs should be disqualified because he failed the circuit clerk's test administered January 16 by the Administrative Office of the Courts.

But Combs, an auto dealer from Mallie, is fighting his disqualification, saying the test is unconstitutional. During a hearing yesterday, Knott Circuit Judge Robert Morgan withdrew from the case on a motion by Combs. It was unclear when a special judge might be appointed. Huff cited in his suit a state Supreme Court ruling that excludes from the ballot people who scored below 70. Combs said yesterday his score was 60. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Juvenile charged with scheme to kill bus driver

Two Lawrence County High School students have been jailed in connection with incidents stemming from an alleged plot to kill a school bus driver, a prosecutor said.

A 14-year-old boy allegedly offered $50 to a 17-year-old if he would shoot driver Doris Boggs, said County Attorney Nelson Sparks. Witnesses told police that the younger boy allegedly offered $100 if Boggs was killed, Sparks said. The two were arrested last Wednesday at school.

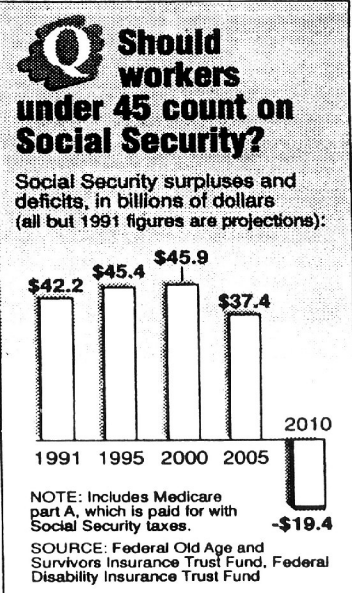

Authorities said the 14-year-old was charged with criminal solicitation to commit murder, while the older boy faces a first-degree wanton endangerment charge. That charge came after he allegedly fired a 20-gauge shotgun into the air twice as two loaded buses drove by his house January 21.

The accused are from the Blaine area and are being held in the Big Sandy Detention Center's juvenile unit pending a February 10 trial. They were ordered held following a detention hearing Thursday. Assistant County Attorney Kimberly Compton said Friday. Appalachian News-Express report

$8 million Lotto jackpot reunites family

Martha Younts has made millionaires out of her family. In a spontaneous family reunion, Martha Younts, 62, of Harlan, and her family were brought together to claim the $8 million Lotto Kentucky jackpot. The family came from Eastern and Western Kentucky and met at Lottery headquarters in Louisville. Each of her children will receive $1 million over the next 20 years and her and a family friend, Jim Coleman of Connersville, Indiana, will each receive $1.5 million during the next two decades. Younts bought her winning at The Commissary in Harlan. She picked her own numbers, using the number of some of her favorite Bible verses. The winning numbers were 22, 23, 32, 38, 46 and 49. — staff report

Communist atrocities were not a myth

It is always a mistake to imagine one has heard the worst of man's inhumanity to man.

Thus, fugitive writer Zheng Yi has just escaped from China bearing documents that tell about atrocities more gruesome than any yet known from Chairman Mao's Cultural Revolution. Robin Munro, a specialist on China and one of the few people to inspect the documents so far, along with Asia Watch, deems them authentic.

They tell of an outbreak of politically motivated cannibalism in the southern province of Guangxi in the late 1960s. At least 117 victims of the Cultural Revolution—and probably hundreds more—were eaten. High school students, for example, killed their principals, then cooked and ate them to prove how red they were.

The day may come when American children are taught that the Cold War was a misunderstanding and communism only failed because the economic scheme was askew. Assuming the horrors of Guangxi are borne out, they show how total was the threat from the all-powerful state, unconstrained by law or deference to inalienable rights.

miners or railworkers set up picket lines, which seems likely, literally thousands of Floyd, Pike, Martin and Magoffin families could be affected.

A rail strike could cause major problems for Eastern Kentucky's coal market, Myers said. CSX Transportation trains alone serve more than 233 active coal mines and provide service to 112 coal-fired power plants and co-generation facilities.

There are more than 2,500 working miners in the 18-county Coal Operator's Association area, as well as dozens of union mines, Myers said.

"We are informing our members that, at this time, our strike is limited only to Peabody," Trunka said. "If, when and how this strike expands depends entirely on whether the Bituminous Coal Operators Association companies are prepared to bargain."

Although unconnected to the Peabody walk-out, miners are currently walking picket lines at two Branham & Baker Coal Company-affiliated mines atorton and Robinson Creek in Pike County.

UMWA Local 1468 members are currently picketing Doran's Trojan Mining, owned by Branham & Baker's parent corporation, the Quaker Coal Company. More than 63 miners were laid off from that mine in late July when the company closed it.

Picketers claim that Quaker Coal currently employs 26 non-union workers, who are mining the same seam and utilizing the same equipment and belt-lines as did Trojan Mining.

Members from Union Local 1812 are also picketing a Quaker-owned mine at Robinson Creek, which has been shut down since the October, 1989 Pittston Coal Company strike. Those members say they are attempting to get workers' jobs back under a contract clause requiring future owners of the mine to hire UMWA workers. Quaker Coal President Scott Kiscaden told reporters Tuesday that the picketers outside the Trojan mine are incorrect in their assumption that Quaker is attempting to mine the facility.

Kiscaden said that although Branham & Baker at one time bought coal from and leased equipment to Trojan Mining, the company's current permit property is at least two miles away from the mine the union workers are picketing.

"From what I can tell, they're trying to get selective strike benefits," Kiscaden said. "They're not bothering anybody.... As far as I'm concerned, they can stay out there.... We don't have anything to do with that old mine up there. It's history."

reference to Ella Hunter going to Phillip Hunter's house to discuss the couple's divorce. Forsythe said Blackburn did not want Ella Hunter to go to her estranged husband's home.

"There wasn't anything we could do about that," Forsythe said. "That was her prerogative."

He said Blackburn called back several hours later and said he had not heard from Ella Hunter and he wanted it placed on the log.

In Floyd District Court Monday, not guilty pleas were entered for Phillip Hunter on the capital murder charges and Floyd District Judge Danny Caudill ordered the accused held without bond.

Monday afternoon, Phillip Hunter was transferred by Floyd County Sheriff's deputies to the Pike County Jail for his own protection.

A preliminary hearing has been set for February 9 at 2 p.m. in Floyd County District Court.

Cotillion includes Floyd County

The National League of Junior Cotillions, a program of etiquette and social dance training for middle and junior high school students has announced plans to expand its program in Kentucky to include Floyd County and surrounding areas.

Says Anne Colvin Winters, NJLC executive director, "We will be selecting a director for the local program who will receive complete training and an exclusive territory for expansion."

The program, with headquarters in Charlotte, North Carolina, was established in 1979 and has licensed local cotillions nationwide. The Junior Cotillion includes six monthly classes plus a Holly Ball and Spring Ball. Says Winters, "The program has met with equal success in metropolitan areas including Boston and Houston, and in small communities across the country. We believe it will be an important addition to the training of young people in this area."

When A Heart Attack Strikes, We've Got The Connections To Get You The Most Advanced Treatment Possible, As Soon As Possible.

When a heart attack strikes, you need all the help you can get. That's the reason Our Lady of the Way Hospital is part of the Saint Joseph Heart Emergency Network, which gives you the fastest connection to the most advanced cardiac resources available.

The Saint Joseph Heart Emergency Network combines the resources of Our Lady of the Way Hospital and the Saint Joseph Heart Institute. It's designed to reduce the time between the onset of a heart attack and the initiation of advanced medical intervention. Because the sooner a heart attack victim receives diagnosis and treatment, the better the chances for recovery.

The Saint Joseph Heart Emergency Network brings immediate cardiac services to where they are needed most, right here at Our Lady of the Way Hospital. We can administer clot-dissolving drugs, helping minimize damage to the heart and allowing doctors to assess the patient's condition and plan further treatment. Plus we have access to the resources of The Saint Joseph Heart Institute through a direct 24-hour electronic communications link.

Of course, the most important step you can take is knowing the warning signs of a heart attack.

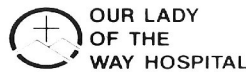

Pain, pressure, fullness or a squeezing sensation in the center of the chest, lasting two minutes or longer.

Severe pain that radiates to the shoulders, arms, neck, jaw or back.

Shortness of breath, dizziness, fainting, nausea or sweating.

Some of these signs may not be present, or they may subside and return, but any one of them needs immediate attention at Our Lady of the Way Hospital or the nearest Emergency Room.

For quick access to the most advanced emergency cardiac care, look to Our Lady of the Way Hospital and the Saint Joseph Heart Emergency Network. Where our connections could save your life.

VA 1993 insurance dividends announced

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) has announced that more than $960 million in dividends will be paid in 1993 to veterans holding active veterans' life insurance policies.

These dividends are made possible because veterans are living longer than originally predicted, and the insurance trust funds are earning high yields from U.S. Government securities.

The payout will be credited automatically to 2.5 million policyholders on the 1993 anniversary date of their policies. Policyholders may choose to receive a dividend check or select one of nine alternate payment options. VA is cautioning veterans that only those policies that have been kept in force receive annual dividend distributions.

The dividend amount will vary according to age, type of insurance and duration of the policy. No application from individual policyholders is necessary.

Government Life insurance policies were issued to veterans of World Wars I and II and the Korean Conflict who served between 1917 and 1956. The largest group receiving dividend payments will be the 2.1 million veterans of World War II with National Service Life Insurance ("V") policies who will receive an average payment of $386. Total payments to these policyholders are expected to reach $818.1 million.

Dividends totaling $8 million will be paid to the 30,377 World War I veterans holding U.S. Government Life Insurance ("K") policies for an average payment of $263.

Some 263,914 veterans who have maintained Veterans Special Life Insurance ("RS" and "WS") can expect to receive dividends averaging $399 for a total of $105.2 million.

Veterans who hold Veterans Reopened Insurance policies ("J," "JR" and "JS"), currently numbering 98,960, will share a $32.5 million dividend. Average payments to "J" policyholders are $297; for "JR," $534; and "JS," and "JS," $545.

Although VA also administers a special life insurance program for disabled veterans and a program of offering mortgage life insurance coverage, neither pays dividends. For active-duty service members and reservists, VA supervises a contract with a private carrier to underwrite Servicemembers' Group Life Insurance.

Veterans who have questions about their policy may call the VA Insurance toll-free number: 1-800-669-8477.

ADA MOSLEY PASTOR

In Loving Memory Of Betty Prater
 August 1, 1941-February 1, 1987
 You're resting now, at last,
 Because now you're on that heavenly shore.
 It hurt us a lot to say "goodbye"
 And it's hard not to question, "Why?"
 When we remember, we try and smile,
 God knows you walked your mile.
 Maybe it's selfish of us to wish you here,
 But we all held your love so dear.
 So in these parting words we say,
 Maybe we'll see you again someday.
 Your Loving Family

In Loving Memory of our Mom
 Precious memories will always be there of a dear sweet mother we had in the past.
 God picked a rose when he took her away.
 The reason is not for us to say.
 I wanted so much to keep you, I watched you day by day, until at last with breaking heart, I watched you slip away.
 God knows that you were suffering, and the hills were hard to climb,
 So he closed your weary eyelids and whispered, "peace by thine."
 It's loveless here without you, and sad has been the way. So when this life is over and time shall be no more,
 I will meet you some sweet morning on doctor's golden shore.
 Sadly missed by Your Children and family
 Rhoda Brown Jarvis who passed away Dec. 16, 1983

In Memory of Arnold Roberts
 August 25, 1928-January 12, 1993
 It would be impossible to extend our appreciation personally to everyone who showed their respect and love for my father and our family. Flower arrangements, cards, letters and food were received with utmost gratitude. The kind words and memories of my father shared with us in the last few weeks comforted us... Letting us know how Arnold Roberts touched your life is the most precious gift you could have brought to us in our time of grief. Recognition of what an exceptional individual he was and how his influence lives on in so many, alleviates some of our pain. He would have been humbled at the tremendous response of our friends.
 Each kind deed that has softened our pain will be remembered with gratitude. Our many, many friends we will cherish in our hearts forever. Remember us in your prayers.

Twenty-two University of Kentucky students from Floyd County have been named to the dean's list for high academic achievement during the 1992 fall semester. "We are excited about the increasing numbers of excellent academic students who choose to attend the University of Kentucky," said UK President Charles T. "This fall we were proud to announce that the average ACT scores

Wanted—very special families

AYUSA, Academic Year in the USA, a Government approved, non-profit exchange student program, is seeking families for the school fall semester. Being a host family to a young person from another country is a very rewarding and enjoyable experience. Host families learn as much as the students do and make new friends in the process. AYUSA currently has applications from young people in Germany, Yugoslavia, Brazil, and Scotland. There are students who are athletic, musical, and have a wide variety of other interests. These young people reflect the best their countries have to offer and must have good English skills before they can be accepted into the program. Exchange students have their own spending money, their own medical insurance, buy their own clothes and pay their way to special events. Families who host exchange students through AYUSA are asked to provide room and board only. AYUSA makes a very special effort to match the interests of students with those of their host family. There is an orientation for host families prior to arrival of the student and a community counselor available to help families and students get through jetlag and occasional homesickness.

If your family would like to join a select group of very special families or if you would like additional information about the program, please call Marie Conn at 478-5227.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY WISH TO...

Justin Hopkins, that running guard from the McDowell Elementary Dared evils, Justin turned 14 yesterday (February 2) and is two years away from getting his license. A great big HAPPY BIRTHDAY Justin.

BEST WISHES TO.....

The Allen Central Lady Rebels as they journey to Richmond today to face Berea in this afternoon's (1:30 p.m.) first round game of the girls' state tournament.

The Lady Rebels, I'm sure, will represent our region well in the state meet. Coach Brent Compton has done a tremendous job with this team and they are one of the area's best.

By the way, Jim (Allen) and Joe (Back) will be in Richmond to air all the action of the Lady Rebels/Berea game. So, tune in to WQHY-FM, 95.5 for all the play-by-play.

CONCERNED AND MORE...

The South Floyd High School boosters club has called for a meeting at the Wheelwright High School auditorium this Saturday at 10:30 p.m.

The group has become concerned over the fact that athletic facilities at the new school is not in the planning.

The high school, as we know of right now, will play their football games at the old Brackett Field instead of the new school whose field has been declared too small.

Also, according to Donnie Daniels, the proposed gym seems to be too small to stage a tournament in and the group hopes to convince the necessary people that a larger facility is needed.

Second class facilities with a first class school should never be in the mind of those administrators who want the best for our kids. They deserve the best facilities that we can give them. For many years now, the Wheelwright and McDowell area has been without new facilities and now is the time to give them what they deserve. If we are going to build up there, let's build the best and nothing second-rate.

I know the cry is for better academic standards and it is much needed. This may be true, but let's not neglect physical education and sports which have always been and always will be a big part of Floyd County education.

PACK AND HIS PACK.....
Hats off to a great Wheelwright basketball team that went to Pikeville and displayed a great form of basketball. All of Floyd County is proud of the way you handled yourselves and the good brand of basketball you played.

Coach Jackie Pack and his crew did an excellent job and almost went on to Rupp Arena. I personally believe the team was tired and I'm not trying to make excuses for their loss in the championship game. But figure this: they played three consecutive nights and always the final game of the evening. That put the team getting home around midnight each night.

I think Chad Stone put it well when he told me that "our legs just gave out." The final score of the Pikeville game was not indicative of how close the contest really was.

I was glad to see fans from McDowell and other parts of Floyd County sitting in the Wheelwright section. If there is one thing I enjoy seeing it is Floyd Countians supporting Floyd Countians.

To all Wheelwright fans who turned out to support your team, you were great. You displayed good sportsmanship and your vocal support for your team was outstanding. Dennis, your band couldn't have sounded any better.

ELEMENTARY COUNTY TOURNAMENT...

The Floyd County Elementary Basketball Tournament is currently being played at the Adams Middle School gym all this week except Friday night. The tournament resumes Monday and concludes next Tuesday.

If you want to see some good basketball, tune in to WQHY-FM, 95.5 for all the play-by-play.

Trip to Rupp Arena ends for Trojans in 80-58 loss to Pikeville

The Wheelwright Trojans basketball team had visions of playing this Thursday at Rupp Arena in Lexington. All that stood between them and the journey was the Pikeville Panthers.

Wheelwright and Pikeville met in the finals of the Kentucky All "A" boys regional Saturday night with the Panthers posting a 80-58 win and earning the right to represent the 15th Region in the state tournament. Wheelwright was all charged up for the trip after winning their first three games of the tournament, especially after recording a 80-73 win over the Paintsville Tigers in the semifinal round.

A 21-8 split by Pikeville in the final five minutes of the game broke open a close game that sent the Trojans to their 13th loss of the season.

The Trojans appeared tired in the final quarter after playing three consecutive nights and at a late hour.

However, it was a very good

Pikeville team that prevailed in the championship game.

Pikeville first-year coach Kevin Garris guided his team to the championship in front of a huge crowd. Wheelwright also had their large following. One had to wonder if anyone was left in the Left Beaver city.

It was the quickness of the Panthers in the fourth period that wore down the Trojans. Pikeville spread their offense and got several back-door layups.

Leading 59-50 with 5:29 left, Pikeville ran off six unanswered points off of two Wheelwright turnovers to take a 15-point lead 65-50. They led 74-54 later in the quarter as the Trojans could not get back in the game.

Pikeville put some distance between them and Wheelwright in the third quarter when they ran off eight consecutive points to open up a 47-34 lead with less than three minutes remaining in the period. Greg Johnson led a Wheelwright surge that cut the lead to 10 points, 53-43, at the end of the third quarter.

After a layup by Tyrone Mullins to start the four period, Muntu Oden and John Hall scored on back-to-back baskets to make it a four point margin, 55-47. The Trojans stayed close until the late run by Pikeville.

Pikeville led 16-13 after the first quarter with the final basket of the period by Stephen Kreutzer coming on a six-foot jumper just ahead of the horn.

Greg Johnson gave Wheelwright the first lead at 2-0 when he banked home a four-foot jumper off the baseline. Mullins tied the game with two free throws but Hall gave Wheelwright the lead at 4-2 with a layup.

Wheelwright led 6-3 and 8-7 before Pikeville took the lead at 9-8 on a layup by J.P. Blair.

A three-point basket by John Coats and a Blair layup gave the Panthers a

Mullins finds Duddleson no "dud" in 67-62 setback

by Ed Taylor

While it was a night of honoring a former McDowell standout, it was also a night of snapping a four-game losing streak in front of the home crowd.

The McDowell Dared evils took time-out to honor former Dared evil standout Henry Webb by retiring his jersey, and then they took to the hardwood to post a 67-62 win over the Mullins Tigers Monday night. Webb plays for the Alice Lloyd Eagles (story and photos in Friday's sports edition) and is one of the top scorers nationally in the NAIA.

It was the first win for McDowell since they went on the road and defeated Millard back on January 15.

It was Mike Duddleson that led the charge that did the Tigers in. It was Duddleson's long rainbow three-pointers that came with just over three minutes left in the game that opened up some daylight between the Dared evils and the Tigers.

Duddleson hit back-to-back treys with the first one coming at the 3:34 mark and the other one followed at 3:14. The consecutive treys gave McDowell a 61-54 lead. McDowell took their biggest lead on a basket by Alan Joe Moore that made it a 65-57 lead. Two free throws by Chris Hamilton made it 67-59 before Shane West buried a three-point just ahead of the buzzer for the final 67-62 count.

six point cushion at 14-8. Hall scored for the Trojans on a layup when he was fouled, but he missed the charity toss. Wheelwright rebounded the miss and a pass to Hall resulted in a three-point basket to make it 14-13.

Wheelwright fought back in the second quarter with some good defense and good shot selection to take their first lead of the game at 24-23. Blair's layup at the start of the second stanza gave the Panthers a five point lead at 18-13. But Oden, who was very impressive in the tournament, scored on a layup, was fouled and he connected on the free throw to pull his team to within two points, 18-16. Hall scored on a strong inside move to cut the lead to one, and with 3:18 left in the first half, Pikeville turned the ball over. Hall scored on an easy basket inside to give the lead to the Trojans. The lead was short-lived and never repeated again for Wheelwright. The Panthers went on a 7-0 run for a 30-24 advantage, ahead they never relinquished. Hall did not try to make it a two point game, but the Panthers led 33-28 at the half.

Pikeville placed three players in double figures, led by Blair's 23 points. Krutzer finished with 15 points as did J. J. Joplin. Mullins had nine points and Coats had seven points.

Greg Johnson led Wheelwright with 21 points. Hall tossed in 19 as the only other double-figure scorer.

Ivan Johnson, who had a tremendous first three games, was held to just four points and they came in the second half. Oden tossed in six points and Charles Johnson had four.

The three wins and one loss in the tournament improved the Trojans record to 7-12 on the year, but coach Jackie Pack hopes to build off of it for the remainder of the regular season schedule.

"That's what I want our kids to understand," he said of their tournament effort. "We've talked about that."

Pack said that this year's team has overcome their slow start and is now starting to put their game together. He said that their confidence is the difference.

"They are playing with a lot of confidence now," said Pack. "and they play with a lot of heart."

While Pack admits that his team doesn't have that one great player like most teams, that it is a team effort every time out because this team returned only one starter from last year's squad.

Wheelwright will swing back into action (after playing Betsy Layne in a conference game last night) this Friday night when they travel to Johnson Central.

McDowell

McDowell's half-court trapping zone defense was confusing to Mullins. They could not attack it for good shots. Poor shot selection by Mullins resulted in some easy baskets for McDowell on run outs.

McDowell took a 55-51 lead on a free throw by Duddleson, but a West free throw and a charity toss by Edmunds, both the back-end of two shot fouls, made it a one point, 55-54, game with 4:28 left.

It was the second consecutive loss for Mullins and coach Joe Marson thinks tomorrow's didn't help any.

"We've lost two tough games in a row now," said Marson. "The Tigers dropped a 58-55 loss to Wheelwright in the Kentucky Class 'A' regional at Pikeville. We had many turnovers in the game. We missed some key free throws and that didn't help any."

Chris Hamilton tossed in 18 points and pulled in five rebounds to lead McDowell in the scoring column. Duddleson, who had a good all-around game, finished with 10 points that included three treys.

Sexton scored nine points and Stanley netted eight. Stanley hauled in five rebounds also. Matt Rose did not score in the game, but he led the board attack for McDowell with eight rebounds.

Hamilton, Rose and Moore each had four assists in the game. McDowell turned the ball over 22 times and Mullins ended up with 16.

Bud Barnett led a scrappy Mullins team with 18 points. West, who had three, three-pointers in the contest, tossed in 14 points from the point guard position. Edmunds has 11 points as the only other double figure scorer.

McDowell (6-14) travels to M. C. Napier tomorrow night to face the Navajo's and will entertain the region's number one team, Belfry, Friday night.

Gearheart, Bevins lead McDowell junior varsity past Mullins Tigers

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Byron Gearheart and Jason Bevins combined for 40 points to lead the McDowell junior varsity past the Mullins Tigers 83-48.

Gearheart scored 23 points and Bevins tossed in 17 as McDowell ran their record to 7-3 on the year. Ryan Hamilton netted 10 points in the victory.

Jeremy Eplin was the game's leading scorer with 27 points for Mullins. McDowell opened quickly in the first quarter racing to a 16-2 first quarter lead behind the inside play of Bevins.

The Daredevils extended the lead to 24 points in the second period on a layup by T.T. Pack and led by 17 at the half 36-19. McDowell led 36-13 until Mullins scored the final six points of the period.

The junior Daredevils led by 30 points, 63-33 at the third stop. Their biggest lead came in the fourth quarter at 34 points on a six-foot jumper by Joe Bryant.

Terrance Mullins drilled two long three-pointers. Gearheart hit two treys and Kevin Thacker had one. Pack scored seven points in the game. Bear Stephens and Mullins finished with six points for McDowell. Brandon Stumbo and Bryant netted four points with Thacker finishing with three. Nick Little added two points with Clayton Tackett scoring one.

COURTSIDE COMMENTS

by Ed Taylor

The news release from the Kentucky High School Athletic Association has made it official that the 15th regional boys' basketball tournament will be held at the new Shelby Valley High School gym. The facility is a beautiful place and will seat, I have been told, 4,000 fans. The school is easily accessible with plenty of parking.

The girls' 15th regional tournament will be played at good old Allen Central High School. Judy Sword and company will once again be able to do their thing and I am sure they will do an equally great job this year just as they did last season with the boys' regional.

The Lady Rebels of Allen Central will be trying as hard as ever to win their district and play in the regional on their home floor.

Jackie Osborne, that "hospitality room" fanatic, says that right now he favors Wheelwright to win the district tournament considering the way they performed in the recently completed Kentucky Class "A" regional. But he also still likes Prestonsburg's chances also.

I was talking to Perry Jones at the regional tournament at Pikeville this past week and, as everyone knows, Perry just recently tied the knot and moved to Ivel. I wondered why I hadn't seen Perry at many of the Wheelwright games this year. Now we know.

"But I still will get to go to the state tournament this year," he hastened to explain. "That was in the contract."

We'll wait and see, Perry. Perry hasn't missed a state tournament in the past 37 years. Wow! He has always been a big supporter of Trojans sports.

Caught Howard Wallen (former Allen Central/former Pikeville coach) at the tournament. Wallen's son Dustin (I remember him when he was just a runt) plays for the Pikeville Panthers and had four points against Wheelwright Saturday night.

Several of the Wheelwright fans were wondering when they were going to move the Class "A" tournament somewhere else besides Pikeville. The tournament has been played there since its first year.

Outside of the blow-outs that Allen Central and McDowell suffered in the first night of the tournament, it was a well-played tourney with about all the games being close.

The attendance was great and there was a lot of excitement in the air. The Wheelwright and McDowell bands again were outstanding. Reese Music, (football coach at Elkhorn City, remarked that Floyd County may not be able to play basketball, but they sure do have good bands. Enough of that Royce.

Moore, Brown lead Lady Rebels past Belfry, 60-58

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor
Coach Bonita Compton's Allen Central Lady Rebels continued their winning ways in preparation for state tournament play (today at 1:30 p.m.) as they edged the Lady Pirates of Belfry, 60-58 last week in a top regional matchup.

Belfry, the third ranked team in the 15th Region, battled number five Allen Central through 32 minutes of nip-and-tuck basketball. The game had its anxious moments when the Lady Rebels, clinging to a one-point lead, 59-58, missed two straight bonus attempts in the last 27 seconds of the game. Barb Lewis tried to improve and if we are going to be able to compete with the rest of the region.

"I agree with Henry. I think we must go in this direction if the quality of play is to improve and if we are going to be able to compete with the rest of the region.

"We are the only district in the state of Kentucky that plays a schedule like this," he said. And he is right. Pike, Johnson and Martin counties play separate schedules, which gives them extra game to play for the junior varsity.

The reason is that some of the girls' coaches are afraid that their teams will not be able to play before a large group of fans. More on this later!

Coach Johnny Ray Turner asked me about turning in a letter-to-the-editor. Coach Turner did something that just made me proud. He wrote a letter congratulating the Wheelwright Trojans for their showing in the regional tournament. I think that was big of Coach Turner, but again, that's the kind of person that he is.

Speaking of McDowell and Coach Turner, the Left Beaver school held special ceremonies this past Monday night to retire the jersey of one of the best to play at McDowell - Henry Webb. Webb certainly has made his mark in the college game at Alice Lloyd. He is a big reason the Eagles are ranked 11th nationally in NAIA play. Webb is averaging just over 26 points per game. Way to go Henry!

We need Judge John M. Stumbo to sign a proclamation designating February 8 as "Henry Webb Day" in Floyd County. What this young man has accomplished has been tremendous. Last year honorable mention All-American. Twice NAIA Player of the Week. Again, this year, a potential All-American candidate.

Fourth-leading scorer, nationally, in NAIA basketball. Well, we hope to see you around the hardwood this weekend and we are interested in what you have to say.

treys in the contest and Brown had four.

Belfry did cut the lead back to two, 41-39, before Allen Central led 49-45 after three quarters. Moore tossed in 21 points to lead Allen Central. Brown was close behind with 19 points. Wiley finished with 10 points and Veronica McKinney added eight. Angela Bailey scored two points.

Heflin led Belfry with 17 points. Thacker had 14, Hinkle netted 13 and Runyon scored 12. Lewis finished with two points.

Belfry had problems with Allen Central's pressure defense, turning the ball over 23 times. Allen Central had 15 turnovers which is uncharacteristic of this club.

The Lady Rebels shot just six free throws in the game, connecting on three. Belfry hit 12 of 15 attempts. Belfry out rebounded Allen Central 35 to 21 with Thacker pulling in 16 boards.

Allen Central (14-5) travels to Wheelwright next Tuesday to face the Lady Trojans in a conference matchup.

Scott's 13 points helps Duff to subdue McDowell, 32-27

Chuck Rowe
Sports Writer

The Duff Lady Bulldogs, winners of Section I, faced the McDowell Lady Daredevils, runners-up of Section II, Monday night in the opening round of the Floyd County Grade School Tournament that is held at Adams Middle School. The Lady Bulldogs outscored the Lady Daredevils 10-6 in the third to grab the lead and win the game 32-27. Duff's Misty Scott scored a game's high 13 points leading her team to victory. McDowell's Jessica Maldonado tossed in 10 points to lead her team in scoring.

Duff scored the game's first points on a free throw by Allison Conley and on an early 3-0 lead. A basket by McDowell's Jo Pack brought the Devils to within one point, 3-2, with 4:15 left on the clock. After an exchange of baskets, Duff went on a 5-0 run, all by Scott, as they took a 10-4 lead with 1:30 left in the first quarter. A free throw by McDowell's Miranda Ousley ended the quarter with the Bulldogs holding a 10-5 lead.

McDowell opened the second quarter going on a 6-0 run and taking their first lead of the game, 11-10, with 3:30 on the clock. Duff took the lead back, 13-11, on a basket by Karen Wallen and on a free throw by Amy Hall with 2:42 left in the half. McDowell went on a 5-0 run to take the lead back, 16-13, with 3:51 left in the first half. A three-point play by Duff's Conley ended the half with the score knotted up at 16.

McDowell took the lead early in the second half on a six-point run that gave them the 22-16 lead with 3:55 left in the third quarter. Duff took the lead back as they got warmed up and went on a 10-0 run ending the quarter. In the 10-0 run, Duff recorded five different players scoring as they extended their lead out to four points, 26-22, leading into the final quarter. McDowell cut the lead to one point, 26-25, on a basket by Ousley and on a free throw by Pack with 4:31 left in the fourth quarter. A basket by Duff's Janice Thornsbury extended their lead out to three points, 28-25, with 2:30 on the clock. McDowell cut the lead to one point, 28-27, with 2:15 left in the game. Back-to-back baskets by Duff's Conley and Scott ended the game with the Lady Bulldogs pulling off the first round victory.

Duff will play the winner of the Adams Middle School Blackcats, winners of Section IV, and the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats, runners-up of Section III, on February 8 at 6:00.

Newsome, Rogers combine for 41 as Stumbo blasts Betsy Layne

The John M. Stumbo Mustangs placed five players in double figures as they rolled past the Betsy Layne Elementary Bobcats in the championship game of the Section IV tournament this past Saturday night at the D. W. Howard Fieldhouse.

Rocky Newsome scored 21 points and teammate Billy Rogers added 20 points to lead the Mustangs in scoring. Two others, Jason Tackett and Keith Vance, scored in double figures. Vance added 15 points and Tackett netted 14. Brandt Tackett and Brian Tackett scored three each.

Tom Taulbee led Betsy Layne with 11 points. Brock Bryant and Brad Kimbler had seven each. James Dale finished with six. Brent Newsome scored three points with Jarred Hall and Heath Dale tossing in two each. Betsy Layne was able to stay close to the Mustangs through the first quarter, but could not keep up as Stumbo led 41-16 at the half while holding Betsy Layne to only five points in the second quarter.

Newsome dropped in three, three-pointers in the game with Rogers burying one. Bryant had two treys for the Bobcats and Taulbee settled for one.

Stumbo built their lead out to 30 points after three quarters and Betsy Layne was never able to get into their offense with Stumbo pressure defense.

Build Your Dream House

Abbot 10-075

Associated Designs-Eugene, Oregon

Decorative shutters and a clapboard exterior give a nostalgic flavor to the Abbot, a compact four-bedroom, three-bathroom home designed to suit the needs of a large family on a tight budget. The small front porch, spiced with a dash of gingerbread trim, adds to the old-fashioned flavor. And there's even room enough for a porch swing.

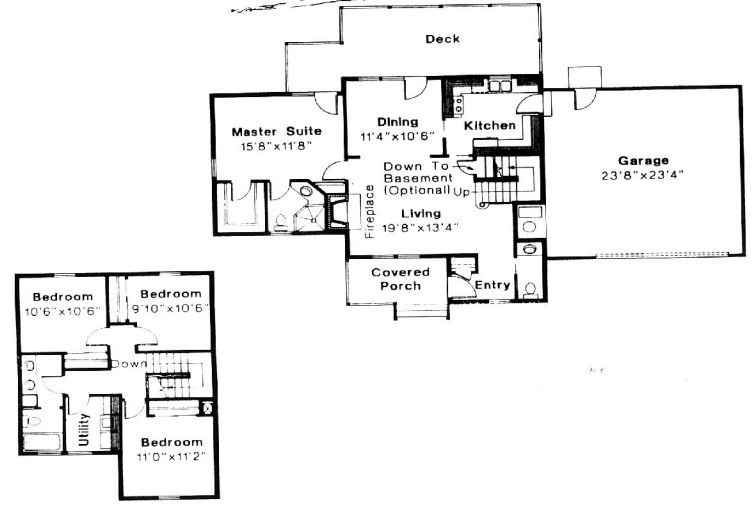

A tiny powder room just inside the front door is convenient for young children dashing in from play. Living room and dining room flow together, with just a suggestion of separation. A fireplace warms the living room, and a glass door in the dining room opens onto a railed deck.

Both the dining room and living room have kitchen access. Leaving the doors open creates an informal traffic flow. But it's equally handy to be able to close off the kitchen during formal gatherings, to conceal the aftermath of meal preparation or muffle the clatter of clean-up activities. Kitchen conveniences include plenty of cupboard and counter space, built-in dishwasher, range and oven, a broom closet, and garage access.

Utilities and children's bedrooms are upstairs. The three bedrooms share a oversized bathroom with double vanity, linen closet and a combination tub and shower. For more privacy, a pocket door could be installed in the partial wall between the basins and the toilet.

Adult sleeping quarters are on the main level, in a separate wing to the left of the family living area. Luxury amenities include a roomy walk-in closet and a glass-enclosed, oversized shower.

Martin eases past Osborne; Jenkins scores 20

Chuck Rowe
Sports Writer

The Martin Purple Flash, winners of Section I, met the Osborne Eagles, runners-up of Section II, in the first round of the Floyd County Grade School Tournament Monday night at Adams Middle School. Thomas Jenkins scored 20 points as he led his Purple Flash over the Eagles 52-35. Daniel Hatfield and Kevin Bryant each scored 12 points for the Eagles.

Martin went on a six-point run, four points by Beau Tackett, to start the game with the Flash jumping out to a 6-0 lead early in the game. After a basket by Osborne's Brian Johnson, Martin recorded back-to-back baskets by Wade Damron and Jenkins as they took a 10-2 lead with 2:20 left in the first quarter. Osborne did not score another point in the last 2:20 of the quarter as the Eagles struggled from the free throw line, going 0-for-8. Martin went on a 6-0 run ending the quarter with a 16-2 lead.

Following a three-pointer by Martin's Shane Blackburn, Osborne scored on back-to-back baskets by Kevin Bryant and Johnson to pull the Eagles to within 13 points, 19-6, with 5:00 left in the half. Back-to-back baskets by Martin's Brandon Stone and Jenkins extended their lead back out to 23-6 with 4:30 on the clock.

After a basket by Martin's Jenkins, Osborne recorded back-to-back baskets by Bryant and Hatfield to cut the lead back down to 15 points, 25-10, with 1:53 left in the half. Martin outscored Osborne 5-4 to end the first half and extend their lead out to 30-14 heading into halftime.

After a basket by Osborne's Hatfield to start the second half, Martin went on a eight-point run, four by Jenkins, as they extended their lead out to 38-16 with 3:30 left in the third quarter. An exchange of baskets kept the Flash lead at 22 points with 2:41 on the clock. After a basket by Osborne's Bryant, Martin scored on back-to-back baskets by Jenkins to up their score to 44-20 with 1:10 remaining in the quarter. Martin outscored the Eagles 4-2 to end the third quarter with the Flash holding on to a 48-22 lead.

Martin opened up the fourth quarter with back-to-back baskets by Damron and Tackett as they took their largest lead of the game at 30 points, 52-22, with 4:45 left in the quarter. Osborne outscored Martin 13-0 in the final 4:15 of the game behind four points each by Hatfield and Bryant as they cut the lead to 52-35 when the final horn sounded.

Martin advances to the second round to play the Allen Eagles, winner of Section IV, or the Betsy Layne Bobcats, runners-up of Section III, February 8 at 7:30.

Looking for open man!

Trojans go inside, outside for win over Paintsville

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

When two teams who struggled at the start of this year's basketball season steadily improve and meet in the semifinals of the Kentucky All "A" regional tournament, you would expect a good basketball game. Well, the fans who showed up for this one were not disappointed. The Wheelwright Trojans and Paintsville Tigers battled on the hardwood with Wheelwright coming away the winner in this one, 80-73.

Both Wheelwright and Paintsville have vastly improved since the start of the 1992-93 basketball season. Both teams started slow out of the gate, but both have begun to jell and will have something to say the rest of the way. Both ball clubs are young and inexperienced, but both have grown-up some over the past two months.

It was the inside-outside offense of the Trojans that caught the Tigers standing on defense. On the defensive side for Wheelwright, their trapping down low shut off the baseline for the Tigers and kept the ball out side where they were unable to capitalize on offense.

Wheelwright jumped out to a 16-point lead, 74-58, with just over two minutes left in the game. But they had to hold off an onslaught by Paintsville in the final two minutes before they could secure the game.

John Hall scored on a layup to give Wheelwright the 16-point advantage, but Paintsville was not ready to surrender the game. A basket by Brian Lyons and a layup by Aaron Marcum made it a 12-point game. After a rebound basket by Brian Johnson, Wheelwright turned the ball over on two straight possessions with Brad Sargent burying a three-pointer to make it a 76-65 game.

Matt Ratliff was fouled behind the three-point circle and went to the line for three free throws, connecting for two to cut the lead down to six points, 76-70, with 27 seconds left on the clock.

Greg Johnson hit two free throws with 24 seconds left, but Ratliff drilled a long three to make it a five-point, 78-73 game. Wheelwright held the ball until Chad Stone found an opening for a layup as the Wheelwright fans smelled victory.

The two teams battled to get into the semifinals with Paintsville upsetting Elk Horn City and Wheelwright defeating a scrappy Mullins squad. So, with both teams caught up in the heat of battle, they played each other close through three quarters. Wheelwright began to dominate the fourth quarter as Paintsville could only score five points in the first five minutes of play.

John Hall hit a layup for Wheelwright to start the fourth and the Trojans outscored Paintsville 18-5 in building the 16-point lead.

Both teams were deadlocked at 14-14 after the first quarter, with Wheelwright taking the early lead of 6-0, before John Holbrook hit a three-pointer to make it a 6-3 affair. Wheelwright led 8-3, but a three-pointer by Lyons and a 10-foot jumper by Holbrook tied the game at 8-8.

Paintsville took their first lead on Don Montgomery's three-point basket at 11-10 with 1:39 left in the first quarter. The lead changed hands on the next two possessions until Paintsville took a 14-12 lead on Holbrook's free throw. A 12-foot jumper by Hall tied the game at 14-14 after one.

Layups by Muntu Oden and Charles Johnson gave Wheelwright a 23-18 lead early in the second quarter. But Paintsville got a layup from Montgomery, Scott Holbrook and two free throws from Sargent to take a 24-23 lead.

The Trojans took advantage of two Paintsville turnovers and scored the next six points for a 29-24 lead. Wheelwright led 34-28 on Charles Johnson's jump shot, but Paintsville got a three-pointer from Ratliff and a layup from Sargent to narrow the margin to one point, 34-33. Greg Johnson hit a three-pointer at the buzzer to send the Trojans to the locker room with a 37-33 halftime lead.

Wheelwright built a 10-point lead, 49-39, in the third quarter as it looked as if they were ready to put the Tigers in their cage. But the Tigers had one more roar left in them and came charging back on a eight-footer by Montgomery, and a trey and layup by Holbrook to make it a 49-46 game. With 1:02 left in the third, Paintsville cut the lead to one point, 52-51 on Scott Holbrook's lay-in. Wheelwright led 56-53 after three quarters.

Greg Johnson scored 21 points for Wheelwright to lead the Trojans. John Hall added 19 and Brian Johnson finished with 14. Muntu Oden and Chad Stone tossed in nine points each.

Montgomery led Paintsville with his 15 points. John Holbrook, Lyons and Ratliff finished with 13 points each. Brad Sargent added nine and Scott Holbrook finished with eight.

Allen Eagles surprise Adams Blackcats in Section IV tournament finals, 50-44

Chuck Rowe Sports Writer

The Allen Eagles grappled with the Adams Blackcats to win the finals of the Section IV Tournament Wednesday night. The two teams tangled twice during the regular season with the Blackcats holding the 2-0 advantage.

Allen completely surprised the Blackcats and threeword that was on hand with a 50-44 upset. Allen's Brandon Castle scored 31 points in leading his team to the victory. Jon Morris led the Blackcats in scoring as he tossed in 13 points.

Allen got the game's first points on a basket by William Conn with 5:20 on the clock. Adams took the lead on a six-point run as they took a 7-2 lead with 3:12 left in the first quarter. Back-to-back baskets by Conn and John Hurd pulled Allen to within one point, 7-6, with 2:00 left on the clock. An exchange of points kept the Adams' lead at one point, 11-10, until a Billy Mitchell basket gave Allen the lead at 12-11 with :25 left in the first quarter. Adams' Morris hit one of two free throws to tie the game at 12-12 to end the quarter.

A Castle basket with 5:25 left in the second quarter gave Allen the back at 14-12. A basket and a free throw by Adams' Morris put the Blackcats back out on top by one point, 15-14, with 3:42 left on the clock.

Allen took the lead back, 16-15, on a Castle basket with 3:15 left in the half. Back-to-back baskets by Wesley Samons and Jason Osborne gave the Blackcats the 19-16 lead with 1:55 left before halftime. Allen went on a seven-point run, all by Castle, to end the quarter and took a 23-19 lead at the half.

After a free throw by Adams' Hale, Allen's Conn and Adams' Jason Blackburn exchanged baskets with 5:10 on the clock as the Eagles held on to a 25-22 lead. Back-to-back baskets by Allen's Castle with 4:00 left in the third quarter gave the Eagles the 29-22 lead. After a three-pointer by Adams' Samons, Allen got back-to-back baskets by Castle to take them out by eight points, 33-25, with 1:05 on the clock. An exchange of baskets ended the quarter with the Eagles on top by eight points, 35-27, going into the final quarter.

A basket by Allen's Hurd extended the Eagles to their largest lead, 37-

27, early in the fourth quarter. The Blackcats went on a 7-1 run to cut the lead to four points, 38-34, with 2:40 left in the game. Allen's Conn hit a three-pointer with 2:15 on the clock to take the Eagles back out to a seven-point lead, 41-34, with 2:15 left in the game. The Blackcats cut the lead to three points, 45-42, on an 8-4 run that was capped off with back-to-back three-pointers by Samons with :36 left in the game. After a free throw by Allen's Castle, Adams' Morris cut the lead to two points on a basket with

:21 showing on the clock. Four straight free throws by Allen's Castle secured the Eagles the 50-44 victory.

In the award ceremony following the game, the Auxier Hornets won the Sportsmanship Award for the tournament. The individual free throw winner was Allen's Brandon Castle as he hit 17 of 22 for 77% for the tournament. The Adams Blackcats won first place in the cheerleading competition. The Allen Eagles won the runner-up trophy in the cheerleading competition.

basketball on the grade school level, take in some of the games at Adams and you will see some very good talent coming into our high school ranks.

NOW THAT...

All the tournaments are over, the regular season can resume again. Plenty of good conference basketball action is still to be played in February. Both Allen Central teams lead their respective conferences with perfect 5-0 records.

I certainly hope that our district teams can get it altogether before regional tournament time. Belfry continues to play good basketball as well as Shelby Valley. They have to be considered as tournament favorites. Many I talk to say that it will be Shelby Valley going to Rupp Arena this year and playing the tournament on their home floor will be an added bonus.

But don't forget the new gym at Shelby Valley will be just as strange to the Wildcats as it will be to the other participating teams. I understand that the gym will be just completed in time for the regional shootout.

Well, until Friday or whenever, good sports everyone and be good sports! Support the elementary basketball tournament.

Wheelwright Trojans dump Mullins 58-55 in All "A" Classic Tournament

Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The old saying "your mouth can get you into trouble" turned out to be true for the Mullins Tigers' basketball team against Wheelwright Thursday night in the Kentucky All "A" Boys Regional at the T.W. Oliver Fieldhouse.

Mullins was whistled for two technical fouls in the game that saw the Trojans come away with a 58-55 victory and advance on to the semifinals of the regional tournament.

Both calls were crucial for the Trojans and proved to be costly. The calls came, according to the officials, for "running their mouths." The first technical was called in the third period on Matt Carter. Greg Johnson hit one of the two technicals, but Chad Stone scored when Wheelwright retained possession of the basketball — a three point turnaround. Wheelwright, who led by three at the time, went up by six points, 43-37. John Hall hit a jumper with nine seconds left to give the Trojans a 45-37 lead after three quarters.

With just over five minutes left in the game, Kelly Brochure was whistled for the second technical for talking to the officials. Hall hit the first of two, but again, Stone scored on the retained possession to give Wheelwright a 11 point lead at 50-39.

In spite of the two technicals, Mullins wasn't ready to concede the game to the Trojans and made them earn the victory in the last five minutes of the game.

Poor ball handling by Wheelwright allowed the Tigers to get back in the thick of things as they pulled to within four points, 56-52 on a layup by David Edmunds. Stone hit two free throws with 27 seconds left in the game to give the Trojans a six point advantage. However, Shane West's three-point basket kept things interesting as the Trojans struggled to hold on as time ran out.

Wheelwright, who trailed 28-24 at the half, came out more aggressive on defense in the third period and caught the Trojans at 28-28 on back-to-back layups by Monte Oden and center Brian Johnson. The Trojans took their first lead since they led in the opening quarter when Oden's layup gave them a 30-29 lead. The score was tied at 31, but Wheelwright went up 34-31 on a free throw by Brian Johnson and Hall's try with 4:08 left in the third quarter.

Brochure took charge and scored on two layups that netted the Tigers the lead at 35-34. Brian Johnson, who led the Trojans with 17 points, scored consecutive layups that gave the lead to Wheelwright for good.

After Edmunds made it a one point game, Wheelwright ran off the final seven points of the third quarter to take the 45-37 lead.

Mullins opened the fourth quarter cold from the free throw line and only managed one field goal, a tip-in by Edmunds, with under six minutes left in the game. The Tigers went almost four minutes without a score until Edmunds basket.

Wheelwright led by 13 points, 56-43, on a short jumper in the lane by Hall. But Mullins hit the boards hard, getting sometimes four and five shots at the basket as Wheelwright stood around.

After Mullins had cut the margin to four, they got the ball on a back-and-over call on Wheelwright with 39 seconds left in the contest.

Mullins led 18-11 after the first period. Wheelwright led 6-4 and again 8-7 before Mullins went on a 7-0 run for a 14-8 game.

Wheelwright scored the first four points of the second quarter to pull to within three, 18-15. Up 23-20, Mullins scored five unanswered points for a 28-20 lead before Wheelwright scored the final four points of the first half.

Besides Johnson's 17 points, Hall finished with 13 and Stone, off the bench, had 11. Oden added seven and Greg Johnson, far below his average, scored six. Charles Johnson had four points.

Edmunds led all scorers with 24 points. Ed Stamp netted seven and Brochure scored six.

Wheelwright improved to 6-12 on the season and won their second game of the tournament.

Small World

by Aileen Hall

WRITING HOME

Last November I wrote a column about bringing readers home—those of our number who have traveled to distant points and who still carry a bit of Floyd County in their hearts.

Many of them treasure a subscription to their "home newspaper"—even after many years away. They have friends and relatives here, and memories that time and distance cannot erode.

Among the responses to my article was a beautiful letter from Ortha Howard Hopkins who now lives in Berkeley, Michigan. She wrote what I would call a love letter to her former home and I hope she won't mind my sharing part of it with our readers.

I'm sure many former students and teachers will remember her, and maybe some will want to contact her. She writes:

"After teaching in Floyd County schools for thirty-six years, I retired and moved, first to Morehead where I was a Dorm Director for five years. After that I lived in Lexington, and now I'm so far away that the Floyd County Times is my only contact with so many people—people I love and miss.

"...Your stories about Delmon W. Howard reminded me of one of my father's little jokes. His name was Dayton W. Howard, known mostly as D.W. When he spotted Delmon's name, he would chuckle and say,

"Well, I made the paper again!"

"The Times has been in my family since its first issue. Norman Allen and Dad were good friends, and Dad was among the first subscribers. Any time I was away at school, or working, the paper followed me.

"Every time I spot the name and address of someone living in Michigan, I grab my map to see how far they live from Berkeley. So far, I haven't seen anyone from Floyd County, but a woman who grew up in Pike County lives across the hall from me. We became instant friends. I've met several people from other parts of Kentucky. There are a lot of us up here!

"Floyd County, Kentucky, will Support group goes back to the basics

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

With more than half of the mother's with infants age one or younger in the U.S. workforce, convenience has become the name of the game when it comes to infant care.

But in this age of disposable diapers and baby bottles, some women are getting back to basics.

The nursing mothers of the Breast-Feeding Support Group at Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin are part of what may be a growing trend to discard the bottle.

"At a recent support group meeting at Seton Complex near the hospital, Kim Blocker, LPN and community health outreach educator for OLV, and four mothers gathered together and freely shared their experiences as nursing mothers.

Julie Kerber, of the Big Sandy Childbirth Association, attended the meeting with her three-month-old daughter Maggie. Kerber, who lives in Johnson County, said that the association's objective is to promote breast-feeding and to encourage mothers to consider breast-feeding their babies. "Breast-feeding doesn't make you a better mother," she emphasized. "But I want people to know about breast-feeding. Being informed is important. You are free to make a choice because you have the information."

Mary Lou White, the group facilitator who had her two young daughters, Kathryn and Clare with her, said she never considered bottle-feeding her children. "I never thought of doing it any other way. Breast-feeding seems natural to me. My mother breast-fed me, and my sister breast-fed her children. The child benefits nutritionally. A mother's milk gives the child a lot of immunity. It gives your baby incredible health benefits, and promotes bonding. It's a great way to comfort your baby."

Of nursing a child, Kerber said, "It's a natural process. You carry a child for nine months, give birth, then breast-feed."

Blocker said that she believes a lack of knowledge of and misconceptions about breast-feeding have made new mothers hesitant to nurse their infants. The result?

"A lack of confidence...a lot of women feel they can't do it," she said.

Linda Daniels, of Johnson County, brought her seven-week-old daughter Magen. Ten years ago Daniels had twins, which she bottle-fed. "At that time, all you heard about was bottle-feeding," she said. "Breast-feeding was never mentioned. My doctor didn't mention it. I didn't see any other mothers breast-feeding. "Later my sister breast-fed all of her children. My niece did, too. I just saw all that closeness (between mother and child). When I became pregnant this time, I knew I would breast-feed. And this time my doctor asked me what I wanted to do—breast-feed or bottle-feed."

Susan Sanders, of Floyd County, who had her 11-week-old daughter Rachel with her, said, "I always assumed I would nurse my child. My mother didn't, but my sister did." For Sanders, breast-feeding is "convenient. I can go anywhere and feed my baby whenever it is ready to eat. I don't have to carry bottles. I don't have to pacify her."

One drawback is that a baby requires several feedings a day, which can lead a mother to feel stressed from lack of personal freedom. Kerber doesn't let nursing her child hamper her freedom. During the hour-long meeting Kerber discreetly breast-fed Maggie undercover of a blanket. "I breast-feed anywhere. I nurse her at restaurants. I nurse her while walking in the mall," she said. "The key is to be discreet. It's important to nurse in public. It's normal. It's something you should do in public. Just put a blanket over the child."

The group agreed that breast-feeding takes time, commitment and planning, but the benefits are worthwhile. "In the long run it's worth it," said Daniels. "At night when Magen cries, I look at my husband and say, 'I think I'll get a bottle.' Then I think and say, 'No I'm not.'"

Although all four of the mothers stay at home to care for their children, they emphasized that a woman who has a job away from home can still nurse their child. It takes juggling of schedules, but most importantly it takes commitment.

"When you consider whether to breast-feed, the question is never 'Is it the right thing to do?,' said Kerber.

"But, 'Do I want to make a commitment?' You can always switch to a bottle. Breast-feeding keeps your options open."

The support group meets 10-11 a.m. every Friday at the Seton Complex. For more information about the support group call Blocker at OLV. The number is 285-5181.

Job Corps graduate achieves her goals

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

When Rosa Lee Hall, from Dunn, North Carolina, arrived February 1991 at the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center located at Goble-Roberts, she had one goal in mind: to further her education.

Although she had a high school diploma, she needed job training. Now two years later, Hall has not only completed carpentry training at the center, but she recently finished legal secretary studies at Mayo Vocational School. On January 8, she graduated from Mayo with the highest grade point average in her class.

For the twenty-year-old, such achievements are nothing new. Last year she won the vocational school's Phi Beta Lambda award, and represented the school at a state conference in Louisville.

"She was a really good student," said Arlene Butcher, Hall's advisor and a teacher at Mayo. "We enjoyed having her as a student."

Recently she was only the fifth person in six years to be inducted into the Job Corps Center's Hall of Fame in recognition of her academic achievements and her service to the community. During her stay at the Job Corps Center she has been involved in student government, serving eight terms as Governor. She has also been active in her role as a Big Sister to new students during orientation.

Edna Higginbotham, Job Corps center director says of Hall, "She is a superb student. She has taken advantage of the great opportunity to further her education and she will leave here a credit to the Job Corps program and the community."

Although Hall seems pleased with the recognition, she takes it all in stride. "I came to get advanced train-

CAESAR AND ELVIS AND HANK

Wow! Where did January go? We've already had Groundhog Day and it seems like only last week we were celebrating the Christmas holidays.

But if you think January zipped by, hold on to your hat, because thanks to the Caesars (Julius and Augustus) this month will be even shorter.

Legend had it that February used to have 30 days but Julius swiped one to add to the month named after him; July, then, August came along and borrowed another to add to August, which was named for him.

Despite its being so short, though, this month does have much historical significance.

For example, many important people (besides George and Abe), including famous American aviator Charles Lindbergh, political leader Aaron Burr, baseball's Babe Ruth, novelist Charles Dickens and poet Henry W. Longfellow, were born this month.

And, if this (and Valentine's Day) weren't enough, February is also Potato Lovers' Month, National Meat Month, Shape up with Pickles Month, and the week of the 21st-27th had been designated (by somebody) as National Pancake Month.

So, despite its brevity, perhaps we shouldn't let February short.

And speaking of historical events,

I'd be remiss indeed if I failed to mention the recent historical announcement regarding the passing of a great American tradition.

No, I'm not speaking of the military. I'm talking about the demise of what's become a staple in nearly every home in Eastern Kentucky: the Sears and Roebuck catalog.

The announcement last week that there'd be no more, devastated me. I can't remember a time when I was a kid that we didn't have one. As a matter of fact, many times it was the primary reading material at our house. And, there were times when the Sears and Roebuck catalog might have even been considered our most valuable possession. To say the least, we used in regularly.

I guess I was nearly grown, however, before I realized that you could also order stuff through the mail from it.

And speaking of mail, last week I got my first letter with an Elvis stamp on it.

I was beginning to think that everybody who'd bought them were hoarding them, thinking that one day they'd turn into gold or something, like everything else Elvis touched. As a matter of fact, an item in this week's Time magazine tells how some folks are attempting to insure that the stamps do indeed increase in value. What they're doing is deliberately putting them on letters with fake addresses. When the post office can't deliver them, they come back marked, "Return to Sender, Address Unknown, No Such Number, No Such Zone."

Anyway, since I didn't get to buy one the day they came out (the lady at the post office said they'd only lasted about two hours), the one I got in the mail was the first one I'd seen.

Maybe I'll be luckier in August when the U.S. stamp program is scheduled to release a 29-cent commemorative honoring country music's legendary Hank Williams. These probably won't be such a big deal made about Ole Hank, but since you're supposed to be dead at least ten years before they make you into a stamp, at least we'll know for sure that his will be legitimate.

Kim's Korner

When a person thinks about a dangerous profession, the job of a policeman would probably be among the first to come to mind.

Kim Frasure

The profession of a school teacher would probably never cross one's mind as a dangerous field to enter.

However, with the latest stories (horror stories they are), we're now seeing our educators in an entirely different light.

It's so hard to conceive the thought that children can actually want to harm or take the life of a teacher, just as we always got my opinion.

I think the hardest part to actually sink in for me was the fact that these incidents took place in Kentucky, and one at close as Louisville.

Close to home, is too close. The anger and animosity that's evidently building in our children is frightening.

To think about it sends chills up my spine. I can only imagine how our teachers must feel.

Fearful of disciplining a child for what may occur if they do. What has happened to our schools? Where do our educators draw the line, before they simply walk out and refuse to teach our children—out of fear?

I.S.S. (In School Suspension) doesn't seem to be the answer. Expelling a child three or more days doesn't seem to be the answer.

I'm at a loss for an answer, but as usual I've always got my opinion. And that is, when prayer and the paddle went out of our school systems, so did the control.

How long do we wait before they're brought back? Hopefully not until it's too late!

So many times I've had the conviction to help people over the paddle and whether it should or should not be used back in the classroom.

Maybe if those opposed could sit for one week in a classroom and see what our teachers and substitutes encounter on a daily basis, they might just have a difference of opinion.

And if not, they may have a suggestion or two.

But it's always easier to oppose something when we're not so sure what it's all about. Then once we've witnessed it, it sometimes changes colors.

Parents, if there were ever a time in our lives to be close in touch with our children's education and to offer our help and assistance to their teachers, it's now.

The times of sitting back and watching the nightly news of horror stories in cities, in states, no where near us, are over.

To the teachers, principals, substitutes, school personnel, my prayers are with you. Your dedication for your chosen fields is certainly noted.

JUST WHEN YOU THINK YOU'VE HEARD IT ALL!

While sitting at the kitchen table Sunday evening, I was reading the Sunday Lexington Herald-Leader. And just when I thought there was nothing—absolutely nothing, I could read or hear that would be shocking—there it was.

Bottom of the Topics section, Spouse Abuse—"Domestic violence flares on Super Bowl Sunday" by Brett Pauley, Los Angeles Daily News.

What? I said to myself, then I began to read on. It seems as though while husbands nationwide enjoy the pigskin game they wait on all year—their tempers flare if their team loses. Or maybe the wife or girlfriend doesn't fix those extra sandwiches the guys need, or maybe they run out of beer and she doesn't jump to get some.

Get this, she may even simply walk in front of the tube during the game.

Can you believe this. I kept saying "May be I can't relate because the spouse at my house is not a football fan."

Yes, he's American, his Bluegrass music drives the girls and me nuts. But I found this piece of information mind boggling. I had no idea that a beating occurs every 15 seconds. And according to Pauley's articles, "experts have said there are more such incidents on Super Sunday than any other day of the year."

My heart goes out to anyone who's been abused by a man or woman or child. I just can't see someone abusing another.

And then to read about Super Sunday and the staggering statistics—it's over the top.

I suppose I'm grateful for Bluegrass music and a husband who doesn't hit.

Will next week, if you've got the urge to hit... try a waff!

ing and to pursue my education," she said in an interview at the center last week. "I have more education than when I first got here. (The staff) has helped me and affected my life in many ways."

Her desire to better her life situation has not come about without sacrifice. She had to leave her three-year-old son Cameron Dominique with her mother in North Carolina. And being a flat-lander, living in the hilly Eastern Kentucky terrain has been, well, different.

"I'm not use to the mountains," she said, with a slight shake of her head and a smile. "I'm still not use to them after two years."

She said she took carpentry at the center because, "it's just something I liked in high school. I was told I could get certified in it. I like to work with my hands. I am certified to do carpentry work."

Her interest in the legal field began early in life. "In elementary school I became interested in legal work," she said.

She chose the field with her eye on future job possibilities. "In the legal field there are more jobs and less competition for work. You can keep yourself busy with work."

She said she enjoyed her studies at Mayo. "I made a lot of good friends. The teachers I won't forget because they helped me to get to obtain my education."

On February 4 Hall will be graduating from the Job Corps program and going home to North Carolina. Her goal then will be to "try to find a job in either one of my fields."

The Job Corps placement office will be helping her obtain that goal as well.

Although her participation in the Job Corps program has been personally rewarding and has enabled her to obtain her educational goals, she is ready to move on.

"In a sense, I'm glad my two years of training are up. I'm ready to get back to my son," she said.

DEE AND TOM HARDIE GRANDPARENTING

GENERATIONS PART COMPANY OVER TATTOOS

Q: I don't know what this world is coming to. My 16-year-old granddaughter wants a real, honest-to-goodness tattoo! One of her best friends, a girl, has just gotten one, and she thinks it's "cool."

But I think it's crazy. Her parents have not allowed her to have one yet, but there seems to be a lot of talk about it at home. What do you think? —Old-Fashioned Grandma, Sarasota, Fla.

A: We think it's "crazy" too. But the ways of the world are changing. The entertainer Cher has six tattoos at the latest count, and she even escorted her 13-year-old son to a Hollywood tattoo parlor for his "first" tattoo.

Everyone likes to "decorate" himself in his or her own way. You probably wear lipstick, and may still wear mascara and eye shadow. But that all comes out in the wash.

We have discovered tattoos that are only temporary, and also come out in the wash. Our 6-year-old granddaughter, Meriwether, introduced us to stencils that look like real tattoos, but last only three or five days and can be removed easily with cold cream. Meriwether came to our house over Christmas with a small beetle on top of her hand, and now she has sent some to us.

Buy some for your granddaughter. Designs range from beetles to the American flag to Madonna (face shots only). We found them at Toys R Us. They are called "Tattoo" and cost only $1.99 for 9 to 10 stencils.

Your young granddaughter should try this type of decoration before she makes a mistake. But if she does plunge ahead with the classic permanent ink-type tattoo, and she later has a change of heart, it can be removed with a new laser technique. A doctor near us says he can do it with a "new state-of-the-art Medlite laser," and that it doesn't leave a scar, require anesthesia or cause pain. But the removal will certainly cost a lot more than those simple little stencils.

Why not try one of those stencils yourself? Your granddaughter will surely think you're "cool!"

We've come across a wonderful way to get to know, exchange ideas with and perhaps even influence your own grandchildren. It's a new concept: a "grandparents' and grandchildren's summer camp. And parents are not allowed!"

There are still openings for the Aug. 22-27 program at the Sagamore Historic Adirondack Great Camp, a non-profit institute at Raquette Lake, N.Y., in the heart of the approximately 6 million-acre Adirondack State Park. It was once a "great camp" used by the Vanderbilts for a wilderness retreat for hunting and fishing.

Now it's used for all sorts of summer conferences, including the one for bonding grandparents and their grandchildren. The August session will feature exciting moments like stories around a campfire, a chance to explore a waterfall on foot and tour Sagamore Lake by canoe.

Dr. Arthur Kornhaber, a child psychiatrist who founded this unique camp in 1986 with his wife, Carol, said recently: "The relationship between grandparent and grandchild is the best love relationship in the world. I thought at first the bond was just physical, emotional. But it's really a spiritual bond."

"I am also dismayed by the increasing isolation of grandparents from grandchildren, with geographic distances, jobs and divorces disrupting more and more families. Grandparents are more essential than ever in providing stability for children. They are the continuum in the child's life. They are the glue."

The most important aspect, he told us, is "simply hanging out" with the children. Ages in the camp have varied from 3 to 92. One grandparent might come with one child, or two or three children. "The more the merrier," Dr. Kornhaber added.

The two generations bunk together, with each family in a private room. For details on Sagamore, write Box 146, Raquette Lake, N.Y. 13456, or call (315) 354-5311. Dr. and Mrs. Kornhaber will both be on hand.

Following their success in the east, the Kornhabers (who have two grandchildren, 6 and 4) will open a "western theme camp" this summer at Wewoka, Okla., in the rolling hills southeast of Oklahoma City. There will be a special session for grandparents and grandchildren July 25-30. For details, write the Kornhabers at the Foundation for Grandparenting, Box 326, Cohasset, Mass. 02025.

Hopefully, they will not be overwhelmed. There are already about 60 million grandparents in the country, and as Dr. Kornhaber told us, the total should reach some 90 million by the year 2000.

GRAND REMARK OF THE WEEK:

My granddaughter Nancy is now 5 and recently started kindergarten. When she came home the first day she told her mother all her teachers had the same first name.

She was asked, "What name?" Her answer was simply, "Mrs." — Ann G. Micklin, Drexel Hill, Pa.

(Dee and Tom, married more than 40 years, have five grandchildren and hope to have many more. They welcome questions, suggestions and Grand Remarks of the Week. Send to Box 34, Butler, Md. 21023. Because of the volume, personal replies are usually not possible.)

OLD FARMER'S
THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

FEBRUARY 1-7, 1993
FULL SNOW MOON, FEB. 6.

PERIGEE SPRING TIDES
Spring tides are not linked to a season, but rather come from the Earth's position to keep up. They occur when the earth, moon and sun are arranged in a straight line (perigee) which happens twice a month with extra low and full moon. Spring tides bring us unusually high and unusually low water. But we get the highest highs and lowest lows during perigee in spring tides. This occurs when the moon is at perigee, nearest the earth, or in 24 hours of a full moon.

This month the full moon occurs on the sixth at 6:56 a.m. EST, with the moon at perigee at 11:57 a.m. EST. The following day, Feb. 7, is a good lookout for exceptional tides this weekend.

Time and tide wait for no man.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Clear and mild then snowstorm. Light and mild south and west, seasonably with flurries.

SOUTHEAST: Cold and rainy, clear and warm. Florida, cold wave with heavy rain, sunny and warm east.

MIDWEST: Mild, sunny, cold nights, flurries north, very cold and snowy, then clearing.

NORTHWEST: Very cold, light snow then clear and sunny, then clearing.

SOUTHWEST: Some rain east, snow mountains, clear desert with light frost then seasonably and sunny, very cold elsewhere.

For Kentucky burley tobacco growers: Cloud doesn't have silver lining

There's not much of a silver lining in the cloud hanging over Kentucky burley tobacco growers this year. The cloud is a 10-percent quota reduction for the 1993 crop. The silver lining could be the effective quota. It's based on an adjustment for under marketings that is added to the next year's farm quota, increasing the amount of tobacco a farmer can produce.

But Kentucky growers market fairly close to their basic quota, according to Bob Miller, director of the Tobacco and Peanuts Analysis Division of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. "They probably will sell 94 percent of quota for the 1992 crop," he said. "Beltside, 83 percent of quota is expected to be marketed."

Miller said Kentucky growers are expected to sell about 95 percent of 1993 crop quota. Beltside sales are projected to be 88 percent of quota. A slight increase in the average support price could help growers recoup some of the tobacco income lost from the lower quota. The support price is set by a formula using a five-year moving average of market prices and an index of production costs.

"To anticipate that, according to the formula, the price support would increase a minimum of just over three cents a pound," he said. "That would be about a two-percent increase in the average support price."

Just how much will the decrease in basic quota cost Kentucky farmers?

Kentucky's basic quota for the 1992 crop was 449 million pounds, said Will Snell, Extension agricultural economist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "We could be looking at an income loss of about $80 million from the quota reduction," he said.

Snell said the large quota reduction will lead to higher lease rates in areas with few off-farm employment opportunities. "We'll probably see somewhat higher rates in northeastern and south central Kentucky," he said. "The quota supply is historically tight in these areas."

The reduced tobacco income will have far-reaching effects, according to Forrest Stegelin, Extension agribusness specialist. "Lifestyles will be affected because farm families will have fewer dollars to spend on day-to-day necessities and luxuries," Stegelin said. "As farm families tighten their belts to make up lost tobacco income, rural communities also will feel the pinch," he added. "Rural counties will see big dollar effects: some counties could see over half a million dollars in income loss. The effect would be very similar to seeing a small business go under."

Stegelin said the quota reduction will have minimal impact on sales of tobacco production input. However, some farmers might alter their production mix, including other commodities to compensate for reduced tobacco acreage and income.

Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club

The GFWC/KFWC Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club held its first meeting of 1993 in the home of LaFaye Hughes, Garrett, on January 18, with the subject "Home Life" under discussion.

Devotions were given by Marcella Bradley, followed by the Pledge to the Flag.

The hostess thanked club members for their flowers, cards, and visits during her recent back surgery and convalescence. She then, as program leader, read the "I Have A Dream" speech given by slain Civil Rights leader, Martin Luther King. She made a brief talk about teaching children in the home the values of honesty, integrity, fairness and acknowledgement with understanding of other races and cultures, the foundation on which this country was built.

Business was conducted by the club president, Maxine Martin, and a treasurer's report given by LaFaye Hughes, after which a salad and dessert course was served by the hostess.

Those present were: Blanche Bamer, Vera Allen, Loretta Martin, Marcella Bradley, Maxine Martin, Libby Martin, and the hostess, LaFaye Hughes.

The next club meeting will be held in the home of Libby Martin, south of Wayland, on February 15, with a speaker on "Health and Education."

Biology: The Fascinating Fungi

Fungi are mysterious organisms; neither true plants nor animals, but sharing characteristics of each. Their relationships and interactions with other living things are vital links in the chain of life on earth.

Fungi are far more complex and diverse than the familiar mushrooms that students have seen growing in the woods. Some are microscopic in size; some spread underground over hundreds of acres. Some are delicious to eat; others are deadly poison. In the third 1992 edition of SCIENCE SCREEN REPORT, students discover the colorful, fascinating world of fungi.

"The Fascinating Fungi", available for viewing in junior and senior high schools in Floyd County this December, reveals the hidden world of these ancient and prolific organisms, found almost everywhere on earth. In an experiment conducted with pine seedlings, fungi are shown to wrap around the trees' root systems, in a symbiotic relationship which provides growth stimuli for both organisms. Other experiments which use fungi for weed and insect control on important food crops prove that fungi can be helpful to the farmer; in fact, students learn that most fungi are beneficial to plants and animals.

But other fungi, such as the bean rust fungus, are enemies of agriculture, destroying millions of dollars worth of coffee and cereal crops each year. Studies about how to eradicate this pest may hinge on learning how it identifies which plant cells to attack.

The most important medical use of fungi discovered so far is its role in the production of antibiotics such as penicillin. Scientists continue to search for more life-saving drugs and useful chemicals that can be produced from the remarkable fungi.

SCIENCE SCREEN REPORT, an educational video series produced in cooperation with the National Science Teachers Association, presents the most recent developments in science, technology and engineering. This award winning program is donated each month by Consolidation Coal Co. as a community service to schools in Floyd County.
