One-year-old Katherine Baker, of Clintwood Virginia, and 43-year-old Jimmy Howard Brewer, 43, of Seagrove, North Carolina, both died in a 30-day span in separate accidents at the intersection. According to the survey, Underwood said, 47 percent of the 1,000 firms surveyed responded that mandated coverage would cause them to reduce employment levels; three percent would relocate their firms out-of-state; and 17 percent wouldgo out of business altogether. Underwood said that rural Ken-tucky areas would be hit hardest by the loss of jobs and commercial busi-ness if the governor's health-care plan is enacted. The governor's plan has also met considerable opposition from mem-bers of the medical community, who object up his tinkering with the state's health-care industry. Courthouse News

Lung disease is the leading cause of infant death in America. Each year in Kentucky, nearly 200 children under the age of 5 die from lung disease. New recommendations released by the American Lung Association call for removing a blind spot in the treatment of lung disease in infants by standardizing tests used measure the lung function of infants.

to measure the lung function of infants. Lung function tests are a cornerstone in the care of adults and older children with lung disease, but they have not typically been used on children under the age of 5 since they require patient cooperation. This poses a serious problem since more than 20 percent of children suffer from an acute lower respiratory illness in their first year of life and there is also a strong but unclarified link between early acute illness and chronic disease, including asthma. In recent years, innovative tests have provided a window on infant lung development. Dr. Nemr Eid, Director of Pulmonary Medicine at Kosair Children's Hospital and head of the University of Louisville, School of Medicine Departmentof Pediancs, believes new standardized tests could open the door the Cattit and heatet

For two and a half years now, we've reported a variety of con-cerns surrounding a variety of school construction projects in Floyd County. Most of those issues lead to the same conclusion: millions of dollars are being spent with little or no oversight and with surprisingly little concern for or from the taxpayers who are footing the bills. What is most curious about all this is that the problems that were first disclosed nearly three years ago are basically the same problems we have today. Only the names of some of the players have changed. According to our calculations, we've built four schools for the price of eight. None of them are finished, completely.

The most constant explanation for cost overruns is that it costs more to build a school in Eastern Kentucky than elsewhere. Baloney

Sure, property around here is at a premium and site development costs are high, but we've seen little evidence that expense has even been considered in site selection. As for the actual cost of construction, we can't see why it should cost so much more to lay a block in Floyd County than it does in Fayette County. It would appear after so long that money is no object; that the local board of education is out of its element when it comes to project oversight: that the state Department of Education is deaf, dumb and blind; and the majority of taxpayers either don't realize or don't care that they're getting the short end of Is there no end to this madness?

Sad saga of Jake

Unfortunately there are some who believe they have the right to destroy someone else's dog. I live in a rural area of Floyd County, away from the main road. We had a dog, named Jake, a Japa-nese Akita, who was one year old. He'd had his shots, wore ared collar and tags, was neutered, and was chained most of the time. On occa-sion we would untie him when we were outside. But unfortunately, one night something happened. He was dead before daylight, in our drive-way. He'd made it home to die. We'll never know what happened to our dog but someone does. I will always wonder why it happened, what was he barking at that night. But as I wonder about this, I also wonder why there are no stray dogs or cats around anymore. Even a dead deer is nearby, My children's last dog was shot and word got back to us that all strays are shot.

once, chain and all. Better yet, you can save you and your children heart-ache by having no pets, but then you'd take the joy from those heart-less people who feel that they have a right to destroy someone's pet. I'm suce there are others who have seen their children cry and mourn the lost of a pet, but the helplessness we feel when it is a deliberate act is intensified.

Thank God, he left me with the knowledge to know how to feel. The other is a very special man, Vance Akers, Even though these men didn't know each other, they have the same value in life, to be left alone to live their life. After all they done for us, can we not do that for them? These two men were so much alike, with so much love for their fellow man. But, yet, we call them names just because they want to be left alone. Why do we always hurt the ones we love?

The Bible says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only son..." so that we might live. Didn't these boys give their lives so that we might be free? Can we not tell them how much we love them?

GOVERNMENT NEEDS TO MAKE SACRIFICES

By Leonard Larsen Scripps Howard News Service It's said that President Clinton is chasing the public-relations successes of the Reagan administration, but he may have gone too far, even stealing what had been President Reagan's private property. private property. Put it this way: Clinton now claims it's patriotic to raise taxes, but it was settled history under the Reagan spell that tax cuts were patriotic and oppo-sition to Reaganomics was probably subversive. Cliniton's grab is not only theft of fiscal pariotism; it might be conver-sion of stolen property, a complete turnaround from the Reagan happy talk that taxing less and spending more might even produce a tidy bud-get surplus.

a joint session of congress. There's no disputing the nation overdosed on Reagan era fiscal pa-trioism, the kooky "supply side" for-mula that sent tax rates downward and military spending upward, an odd brand of patriotism that in 12 years helped quadruple the national debt to 54 trillion.

But the patriotic tax-cutting lulla bits the particle tax-cutting tima-bies President Reagan sang to a will-ing nation are likely to prove easier listening than President Clinton's song that "sacrifice" in a hefty round of tax increases is patriotic, too.

Even discounting the outery at Clinton economic patriotism from Republican politicians, just plain rich folks and stock market predators, President Clinton still may have trouble convincing Americans that the sacrifice in his program is fairly spread around. spread around.

To his credit, the Clinton propos-als would chop the holdover Reagan administration space station project down to about $8 billion from $30 administration space statistics regard administration space statistics project down to about $8 billion from 330 billion. But there's other spectacular pork-barrel spending that will appar-cntly escape significant "sacrifice". A few big-ticket examples make the point, these among hundreds of the kind that American taxpayers will keep on funding while assured by President Clinton that "sacrifice" is universally shared. For openers, the 35 billion Seawolf submarine project will continue, a gady display of waste that survives only as a policical contrivance, one in which Clinton pandered to Connecti-cut voters to aid his own election and salvage re-election for Democratic Sen. Chris Dodd. Dentagon officials long ago aban-doned support for the Seawolf, point-ing out the craft was designed to counter a specific Soviet submarine never gold fRussiand drawing boards and never will. Roberts gets 8-year sentence

8-year sentence Knott Circuit Judge John R. Morgan sen-tenced Bobby Roberts, 25, of Topmost, to eight years in prison February 24 for engaging in horse-play while driving a school bus that caused a crash and injured 23 students. Roberts pleaded guilty in December to 25 counts of first-degree wanton endangerment. That was one count for each student on the bus at the time of the October 24, 1991 accident. Under a plea bargain, Commonwealth's At-tomey Randy Campbell recommended Roberts serve a year on each of the first eight counts, with the remaining 17 years to run concurrently. JAILER

Citizens of Floyd County:

We need a new reorganized, revitalized jailing system. This means change and progress-it takes experience and commitment.

I am the man to lead the way to a better system. I have proven my leadership to the people of Floyd County through managing P&B Ambulance Service for 21 years. I will be just as committed and work just as hard as your public servant.

When elected, I will make your jailer's office one you can be proud of. I will treat the public with respect and dignity. I will recognize those placed in the jailing system as human beings and treat them as individuals with individual needs.

Many of you know me, and you know that I am a man of my word.

I need your support and your vote to bring change and progress to the jailer's office.

Last week one of President Clintor's newly appointed Cabinet members announced that they were increasing the cost of admission on tourists visiting National Parks. That's right, folks. Once again middle America is going to foot the bill for all other Americans just like they've been doing since they threw the tea in Boston Harbor and tried to blame it on the Indians. Maybe I'mover-reacting again like my husband says I do, but this time I think I'm right when I say that the lower and upper-class citizens of America aren't the regular partons of these wonders of the wildemess. Yea, though I float through the valley of the shadow of death, I shall fear no evil— but all this #%&*!@ water is really starting to get on my nerves. —Noah

Is it just me, or has the weather lately just seemed really screwedup up? First, we had summer in Decem-ber. Then, last week, we had a bliz-zard, when I know good and well there haven't been two snow flakes in Kentucky at the same time in the last three years. Now it seems to be monsoon sea-son, and I'm not real happy about it. I had to get Charlton Heston to come over and part the waters just so I could get out of my driveway this morning. And, worse than that, between melting snow and torrential rains, my

I'm afraid to go outside because there might be alli-gators or giant fifty-foot long poolle-eating boa condels in the world any-way (and before any of you poolle-owners call me up to compliani, don't bother—1 eat sissies like you for breakfast). Now, the scientists'II tell ya that this wild and wooly weid weather is caused by something they like to call "global warming," in which the polar ice caps are melting because the sun's harmful ultraviolet trys are striking the planet turol-strength because the

Ken-tucky will be warm all year long, and Florida will just be too hot to handle so all the tourists will be coming here for the winter and spreading all that cash around where it'll do some good and the rich geozers'll come here to retire and Dewey Lake'll be like an oasis of beautiful bikin lines. On the other hand, right now the weather is still miscrable and the rain is still falling and if anyone in the Auxier area owns a boat and is feel-ing particularly helpful, my wife, myself and our eleven dogs will be on the roof patiently awaiting rescue. Bear in mind that ten of my dogs are still pups and have not been prop-erly boat-trained, so you might want to bring some Pampers. Just don't bring along none o' them boa constrictors as we knew it was over when Tommy Kirk shot Old Yeller.

Poperri by Scott Perry If you're really interested in finding out just what size dent you've made in the world during your life, all you have to do is drop dead. For instance, we now know that Lillian Gish and Ruby Keeler had monumental impacts on the way the world turns because they made movies that most of the currently living have never seen. They must have been special people because their obituaries consumed lots of space on the front pages of all the papers and their contributions were retold time and again by teary-eyed television ne ws. casters.

Albert Sabin, now, is another story. He got to die quietly on the obituary pages with the rest of the folks who didn't make silent movies. All Sabin did during his life was develop an oral vaccine for polio, which helped all but eliminate the deadly disease from the industrialized world.

As far as we can tell Sabin never appeared on any of the television talk shows or in any made-for-TV movies. prerequisites these days for being remembered in frontpage style like, say, Chuck and Di, who made the media's top story list for weeks because their marriage croaked before they did Anyway, most people hope they'll be remembered by somebody after they're gone.

Andy Warhol proclaimed once that each person would get fifteen minutes during their lives to share the spotlight. That's a pretty profound prediction from someone who made their living painting pictures of Campbell's Soup cans.

We suppose we used up our allotted time some twenty years ago when we were caught in the spotlight of a police car after buying a six-pack before reaching the legal age.

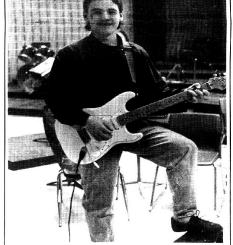

Of course some people hog the spotlight, using more than their share and reducing the odds of fame for everybody else.

Elvis, for example, has been presumed dead for more than a decade yet he got more ink last year than the scientists who discovered a drug that might stop the spread of AIDS

But, we've always been preoccupied with the glitz and glamor of Hollywood so its no real surprise to see nore emphasis placed on the deaths of stars than on people who make real contributions.

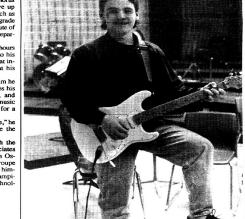

Who are we, anyway, to judge the importance of one life over another?

After all, we thought life

He has returned from the Civil War to be reunited with his "wife," Jodie Foster, For her part, she's been dreading his return. He had been cruel and abusive, and we are given to assume that she probably hoped for his demise in the war. Lo and behold, when Gere does return, he's completely different. He is kind, considerate and one hell of a lover. Could the war have caused such a dramatic character transfor-mation and redemption? Of Cours and Gere decided to take the guy's

She's in love with this guy, and she's going to stick to the story. However, the local townsfolk, spurred on by a jealouser-s-usitor, find out the couple's dirty little secret, and they are brought up on morals charges. (James Earl Jones is wonderful as the judge.) Gree and Foster do their best to make this an exciting, believable film, but they're defeated by the weakness of the script. It's too bad. They're both wonderful actors. Hopfehlly, they'll be more careful when choosing their next cinematic outing.

Getting word home to parents...

The primary students at Maytown Elementary published a newsletter in February. Each homeroom submit-ted activities and events. The chil-dren in each homeroom chose a class the activities and events. Fine events for a cellass name at the beginning of the year. These names were: Johns Kittans, Duncan's Fagles, Castle's Thinkers, May's Koalas and Martin's Sharks. The children wrote stories and drew pictures and they appeared under each class name. Mrs. Duncan volunteered her time after hours to organize, type and print the information. The newsletter was time-consuming, but worthwhile. Throughout the rest of the year a newsletter will be published monthly. If a primary parent has not seen a copy of the new sletter, contact Kelly Duncan at Maytown Elementary.

The McDowell Daredevils have

The MCLOWEII Daredevils have been know to give up a lead to the opposition late in the game during the regular season. But when it came to tournament time Tuesday night, McDowell coach Johnny Ray Turner wanted to make sure his cam understood what was happening and he wanted to protect their 15-point lead against the Betsy

Layne Bobcats. So, when his team took the floor for the final quarter in the first round of the 58th District Basketball Tourof the 58th District Basketball Tour-nament, being played at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse, he had some instructions and a reminder for them — hold on to the basketball. McDowell had built a 44-31 lead after three quarters against Junior Newsome's ballelub and Coach Turner reminded his team that it was necessary to protect the lead. The Daredevils took the floor in the final period and held the ball, becoming more deliberate with it. "We wanted to kill some time off the clock," explained Turner, "but at the same time look for the good shots. "We had a 15-point lead in the quarter (47-32) and we wanted to make sure that we didn't squarder the lead. We almost did."

lead. We almost did." Indeed, they almost did give up the lead when they let Betsy Layne back into the thick of things. Down 51-37, Betsy Layne went to a man-to-man defense. McDowell could not find the goal as the Bobcats went on a 10-0 spurt to narrow the margin to four points, 51-47. Detrick Newsome banked home a city. for a jumper and lason. After stors. Hamilton's layup with less than a minute to go made it an eight-point game. Newsome, who did not miss a shot in the fourth quarter, drilled a 10-foot jumper for a 37-31 score. It was the closest the Bobcats could come to the Daradevils. Hamilton hitthree consecutive free throws and a last second field goal for the final 62-31 margin. Barry Clark's baseline jumper at the startof the game gave Betsy Layne a 2-0 lead. Scott Stanley Lied the game with a basket underneath. The score was tied at 3-5 and 7-7 before McDowell took a 9-7 lead. Chris last-loid a three-pointer to send Betsy Layne in front 10-9. A rebound basket by Stanley and Matt Rose's last-loid at the first stop. Potter's second ruey to start the second-quarter tied the game at 13-13. Hamilton and Hunter traded bas-test for the final tie of the game at 15-15.

The short are final are of the game at 15. McDowell ran off the next 11 points to take a 25-15 halftime lead. Duddleson hit a trey and Alan Joe Moore drilled back-to-back three-pointers for the lead. McDowell's defense stifled the Bobcats. It kept Betsy Layne out of their half-court game, something Turner planned. "Our kids played an awfully good defensive game," he said. Maybe Batman's partner, Robin, would put it this way: "Holy tornado, Batman!"

would put it this way: "Holy tornado, Barmani" Of course, the reference is being made to the outcome of the game between the Prestonsburg and Wheel-min Floyd Courty girls basketball his-tory to crack the century mark and surpass it when they bombarded a young Wheelwright team 107-43. The two teams opened up the first round of the sixty-first S8th District Tournament at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse before a large crowd. Prestonsburg has been eliminated in the first round of the tournament for the past three seasons after carry-ing a favorites role. This year Clay's seniors were not about to let history repeat itself again.

This year I traveled with the McDowell High School basketball team to recount the final season of the Daredevils who have built up a great deal of basketball tra-

District semifinals and finals this weekend WEDDINGTON THEATRE

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

Two top games highlight tonight's 58th District Tournament semifinals as both boys and girls matchups will be battes. The tournament began on Tues-day night instead of the traditional Wednesdasy night, and after a one-day break, the tournament resumed last night (Thursday). The semifinals will be played tonight. McDowell in spoiler

role

The first game tonight should be a good one as the McDowell Lady Devils will matchup against a very good Betsy Layne Lady Cat squad.

Both teams experienced just op-posites as the regular season ended. Betsy Lavne the search tsy Layne, the second seed in the tournament, played good basketball earlier in the year and toward the middle of the season started to falter some. The Lady Cats dropped five of their last six games to finish the season 13-14.

In contrast, McDowell played their best basketball in the final th of the regular season, winning five of their final eight. The Lady Devils won their final

The Lady Devise won their final two conference games to place third with a 4-4 record. One of those wins was a home victory over the same Lady Cats. Bettsy Layne has the best center in the county in Dee Dee Martin. Martin will have to take a load on her shoul-ders and perform well for the Lady Cats to advance to the finals tomor-row night.

Cats to advance to the finals tomor-row night. Helpmay come from Missy Clark, who has had an on-again, off-again season. Senior leadership will have to come from Ashla Stanley, senior, to come from Ashla Stanley, senior, and Martin. One thing that coach Bill Newsome has going for him in this tournament is depth. He has plenty of that and he is not afraid to use it. McDowell, on the other hand, is short on the bench. But Gour seniors lead this ball club and all four are starters. Shelby Howell and Michelle Hall, but an improved FiethMullis have plus an improved Kristy Mullins, have the Lady Devils thinking in terms of the Lady Devis thinking in terms of district champions. Howell and Hall have been on a tear as of late. They have averaged not only double-fig-ures in scoring, but in rebounding as well.

Mullins has picked up her offen-sive game and has come on to show that she can score, as well as handle the ball at point guard. McDowell biggest asset is not its seniors. The team as a whole plays be pressure game. Opponents have found that the Lady Daredevils' de-fense is among the best in the region. It will be a construst of coaching styles as well. Jimmy Hopkins and Bill Newsome will try to take their teams further in tournament play. Hopkins is a believer in defense. He believes that good defense will bring out the offense. While he preaches blocking out on the boards, he also stresses taking care of the ball on offense, sometling they should. Newsome, on the other hand, likes the finesse game. Play it smart and Newsome, on the other hand, likes the finesse game. Play it smart and not be reckless on offense. A motion-type coach who likes the inside/out-side game, Newsome stresses the fact that her players must not commit the unforced turnovers as they have been.

Trojans believe this is their year

Perhaps the best matchup of the tournament can be found with the number two seed Prestonsburg squar-ing off against number three seed Wheelwright.

Both teams are talented and play urd-nosed basketball. This game will hard-hosed reasterial. I fing game will be a fans't treat. Wheelwright lost both regular sea-son games to Prestonsburg, but fin-ished the final two weeks strong. Winners of six of their final nine games, the Trojans three losses were tough ones. Wheelwright had conference win-

Prestonsburg will come at the Tro-jans with their guard-orientedoffense. And all three can shoot the basket-balf. Prestonsburg won six of their fn-nal 10 games in February, butdropped their last two to some pretty stiff competition. The Blackcast fell to state Class "A" champion Dilce Comba and they were routed by top-ranked Sheldon Clark in the season finale. finale.

Cory Reitz, Jason Crisp and Joe Whitt form aguard nucleus that could be hard for the Trojans defense to contain. The inside game of Prestonsburg has been inconsistent this year, but with a player the caliber of Aaron Tucker, it is enough to keep any defense honest. Tucker is the most athletic player on the Prestonsburg squad. He is quick on his feet and he has the ability to shoot well from the outside. Chris Burke and Eric Fitzer must, I repeat. must come to play if the Cory Reitz, Jason Crisp and Joe

If both players put together good games, along with Tucker and their guards, the Blackrats could be shout-ing all the way to Rupp Arena. They can be that good. Coach Gordon Parido is an ob-server on the bench. Not the kind that will walk miles in front of his bench, but gets the job done in a rather quiet way. Now this is not to say that he always has the mild-mannered Clark Kent persona He lets the officials Kent personna. He lets the officials know that he knows more than what

For the past it wo years, fisheries biologists with the KDFWR have mentioned time and time again that several of the state's walleye fisher-ies are doing exceptionally well, but that Kennacky anglers just area't taking advantage of what's avail-able. Part of the reason biologists be-lieve little interest has been shown in walleys is because angleres aren't familiar with the species' habits and for striped bases in the Ohio River, especially with regard to the sum-metrime movement of that species. Therefore, as was done with the stripers, this March the KDFWR will implant some 25 walleye with Falloy and the move-ments of the fish in Paintsville Lake. The fish will be monitored through the telemetry study for a year, and once biologisting for a year, and once biologisting the any sensitive in the study is to get the anglers on the fish, "said Dan Wilson, assistant fishere gion. "We have already documented a

"We have already documented a very good walleye fishery a Paints-ville, and now we want to get a better idea of where these fish are located throughout different times of the year," said Wilson. "We are offering $25 for the implanted fish that may be caught,

Exactly when the area will be opened depends on how quickly user permits can be printed and made available for purchase. Until permits are available, the Peabody lands will remain closed to public access. This means no turkey hunting will be permitted on the Peabody WMA during the 1993 spring season.

"At the completion of the study, we hope to create some maps and compile some good, usable data about the walleye population so anglers can be more successful. There really is some super opportu-nities out there and we want the angles to get in on it," the biologist concluded. Back on the bus after the meal, he would tell me how he would play the game over in his mind a hundred times until the next game. He could always find some positives from the losses.

There were times when the coach thought that the boys were down on themselves and had stopped giving their best effort. He started different players and different combinations of players, He got the players' atten-tion and they went back to playing hard-noed basketball. One must give Coach Turner and the team credit for hanging in there.

The team would play a top-rated team such as Shelby Valley very close one night and lose to a lower-rated team the next game.

Near the end of the season the team came together and began win-ning games that they were supposed to win. Coach Turner must be given credit for keeping the team from fold-ing during all those weeks of losing.

Ing during all those weeks or toxing. If I had a son (or daughter) who played basketball, I would want him/ her to play for a coach like Johnny Ray Turner. As far as I could tell (and I'm fairly good at detecting such things), Coach Turner never put win-ning above the welfare of his players.

nung above the weltare of has players. As it stands now, it appears that Coach Turner will be the coach at South Floyd High. If that is the case, look for that school to make some noises in the 15th Region in the next few years. Who knows, maybe f will travel with the team again next year.
