It is, of course, unfair to blame our budget mess entirely on Washington.

This is a representative form of government, after all, and those of us being repre-sented are about as willing to shoulder our share of the burden as we are likely to mention the word "dentist" without wincing. A road here, a bridge there, a federally funded program everywhere and we tend to forget rather quickly that money does not grow on trees.

Sixteen-year-old lan Berg's candidacy by the Philadelphia courts last week be-cause Berg would have violated child-labor laws if he had happened to win the election. The law bans children from work-ing more than 28 hours in a school week, but the office Berg sought could have re-quired 40 or more hours per week.

Say, if you can disqualify a kid for working more than 28 hours a week, what can we do with these adults who won't?

cuts for the very wealthy, and he was right. No Democratic president, even with a Democratic Congress, ever amassed the consocutive budget defi-cits that Regam and Bush did. The wisset thing that President Clinton said in his address to Congress is that it is time to end the Blame Game and end the gridlock. Apparently my con-servative friends want both to con-tinue. But in playing the shifty game, the champion was the Great Commu-nicator.

When you mention that Clinton received only 43 percent of the vote (about what Richard Nixon received in 1968), do you mean that his ability to govern should be in doubt? Sixtyone percent of the voting population voted against President Bush, and he voled against President Bush, and the gathered a smaller percentage of the vote than Jimmy Carter in 1980 or even Walter Mondale in 1984. Ross Perot promised even higher taxes than Bill Clinton has suggested, so the mood for change, a rejection of Bush-Reagan policies could not have been made clearer.

You make veiled references to You make veiled references to Clinton supporters as Socialists. As a teacher, you have a responsibility to clearly explain your terms, not use words like a club. What does Social-ism mean to you? Js it Social Secu-rity? Those whose lives are made better by that program should know what conservatives really think about it. Thank goodness. Granted, the types of "sin" taxes that the Clinton Administration is talking about are considered fair game, given their current non-politi-cally correct status. Most groups are too bus tippling tax threats in their own backyards to give much atten-tion to these types of taxes. Central Ky blood center begins drive

On Tuesday, March 30, Wednes-day, March 31, and Thursday, April 1st, Central Kentucky Blood Center will sponsor the monthly Prestons-burg/Floyd County community blood drive. The drive will be held from 11 a.m. 7 p.m. on Tuesday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday at the Prestonsburg Donor Center located on the second floor of the municipal building on North Lake Driv

Drive. Central Kentucky Blood Center is the only provider of blood and blood components to Floyd County Hospi-tals which include Highlands Re-gional, Our Lady of the Way, and McDowell Appalachian Regional. The need for blood donors is in-creasing. In fact, over 200 donors are needed daily to meet the needs of area residents and patients in the Cen-tral Kentucky Blood Center service area including Floyd County. Sixty percent of the population will need blood sometime during their lives, yet only five percent of the popula-tion has donated blood. Also, blood only lasts 30 days so monthly blood dives are essential for maintaining an adequate blood supply. Please take time to support the ongoing blood needs of Floyd County.

by becoming a regular blood donor. Your participation in the monthly community blood drive does make a difference

Paul Hunt Thompson who keeps

When Paul Hunt Thompson ran for Sheriff four years ago, he promised the voters of Floyd County he would work on several problems they were concerned about. Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson has kept his word. Here are some of the issues Sheriff Thompson included in his campaign platform, and the results of his leadership as Floyd County Sheriff:

24-hour-a-day dispatching and response is now available in the Floyd County Sheriff's

- Department
- All full-time deputies are now professionally trained or scheduled for training.
- A Drug Abuse Resistance Education Program (DARE) is now in place in the Floyd County Schools, teaching 3,400 students this year about the danger of drug abuse.
- Residents of Mud Creek now have a toll-free number to call the Sheriff's Department.
- Deputies now respond to calls for assistance in the community.
- Deputies now patrol the county and check to see that citizens and businesses are safe and secure.
- · Qualified deputies now attend all high school ball games and most grade school
- The Sheriff's Department has obtained several thousand dollars for training, equipment and the DARE Program, through state and federal grant programs. This money helps save Floyd County taxpayers money.
- Over $30 million worth of marijuana and other illegal drugs have been destroyed since Sheriff Thompson took office. This is a real "War on Drugs" all Floyd Countians can be proud of

 <th col The Secrets of Success Everybody knows that good pitching will win more ballgames than any single element of the game. Other than pitching, defense unques-tionable is the greatest tool in baseball. As 1 look over the current teams, there is one that has both pitching 81 91 98 19 29 26 any single Choine on the paseball. As I look over the current teams, there is one that has both picking and detense, as well as solid hutting. Forgive me my personal pride in the success of the Atlanta Braves. Over the years, I have watched play-ers like picker Tom Glavine and outfielder Ron Gant struggle in the minor leagues before finally gaining the confidence and building the abilities necessary to make the jun the majors. Aside from pitching, hitting and defense, the 1992 Atlanta Braves are blessed with one other game breaking weapon — team speed. Speed does so much for a team. It puts pressure on the opposition. For the Braves, are player like Oits Nixon or Deion Sanders disrupts a pitcher's carefully practiced routine. The presence of one of these two burners on the base raths can change a pitcher's delivery and make him throw a fat fastball right over the heart of the plate. The Braves remind many people of the 1969 "Miracle Mets." That team beat Atlanta in the first-ever National League divisional playoffi, before dispatching the favored Baltimore Orioles in the World Series. The Mets were propelled by their fantastic pitching staff, which in-cluded recently induced Hall of Famer Tom Seaver, and sure-fire future Hall member. Nolan Ryan, Taking nothe better. I also believe the Braves will be a team to be reckoned with for years to come Their pitching staff is very young. John Smoltz is only 25. Steve Avery is just a baby at 22 years old. The team has several solid stars in Gant, David Justice and laty user's Must Valuable Player. Terry Pendleton. There is no limit to these players' futures, and any of them could de-velog into a superstar. It's certainly too carly to talk about dynasties. Injuries and contract disputes can ruin any team But when you look at the tealm in the Braves' more lague system, this team is going to be a winner for a long time to come. FISHING LESSONS LEARNED 20 YEARS AGO STILL HOLD TRUE

Former world bass fishing cham-pion Bo Dowden learned two lessons during his first professional tourna-ment 20 years ago, and he still ben-efits from them.

'l learned that you don't run away "I learned that you don't run away and leaver fish that are biting," leaghs Dowden, winner of the Bass Masters Classic* in 1980 and a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff, "and I learned that big bass will hit topwater lures in the middle of the day." Dowden romembers because he was the one who left a school of actively feeding bass, be lock the tour-need the because another competitor use them enough. "Most surface lures tend to catch fish best early in the morning and again late in the afternoon, dependagain late in the atternoon, depend-ing, of course, on the weather and water conditions," he says. "Nor-mally, the topwater action slows when the sun gets really bright, so most fishermen change to jigs or plastic worms.

The sharmen change to jigs or plastic worms. "Bass will hit topwater lures dur-ing the middle of the day, however, especially if the plugs are fished slower and tighter to cover. They attract larger bass, too, especially if bigger lures are used." Dowden also says topwater lures can be effective on both clear and cloudy days, as well as in calm or choppy water. On calm days, he sug-gests working the lure slower with less commotion, but in choppy water a noisy retrieve often works best. "The important thing to remem-ber is that bass will hit topwater lures

"You have to make a lot of casts, but the size of the fish you catch usually more than makes up for the effort."

ROUGH WATER MEANS NAVIGATING WAVES ONE AT A TIME

UNE AT A TIME If you're a bass fisherman and get caught in rough water this autumn, the best way to navigate big waves is to take them one at a time. That's the advice of top tourna-ment pro Larry Nixon, who, during his 15-year tournament career, has safely navigated his bass boat in waves as high as 10 and 12 feet. "Each wave is a little different," explains the Evinnde Outboards Pro Shaff angler, "so you usually have to navigate each one differently. Some-times, there may seem to be a ca-dence to the waves, but you still have to study each one because a larger wave might be buildfing behind them and if you're not alert, you'l get into trouble. troubl ing oig waves, says the Arkansas angler, is slowing down. Many fish-ermen try to run rough water too fast because they want to get to safety, but this often results in taking waves over-board and possibly swamping. "You power your boat up the face of the wave," says Nixon, "but then take on water." Sometimes, says the Evinrude pro, it is possible to run in the troughs between the waves, navigating each wave at a slight angle. Such a maneu-ver often results in staying in the rough water longer, but it may be the safest method.

safest method. "Some of theroughest water we've ever encountered in tournaments has been on Lake Ontario," Nixon points out. "When you see the size of some of those waves, all you want to do is get to safety as quickly as you can, but frequently, the safest way to run those waves is tacking across them like a sailboat.

"This actually takes you away from "This actually takes you away from the direction you really want to travel and makes you go several miles out of your way, but i's the safest method. Sometimes it may take two hours or more to make a trip that only takes 30 minutes in calm water."

"None of in learning to navigate rough wa-of us enjoys being caught in condi-tions that could be potentially lifethreatening, but knowing that you are capable of navigating to safety certainly gives you better judgement."

Nixon says today's major bass boat manufacturers have made rough water navigation easier by building longer, wider boats for tournament anglers. The extra length and beam width, combined with stronger en-gines and more efficient propellers, have greatly added to his own confi-dence.

Nobody can tell you that spinning out and hitting the wall at 200 mph is fan, but thanks to some nice work by our designer Nigel Bruce and a little luck, the crash I experienced during the qualifying trials at Indy this year wasn't the horror show it looked like to people watching on television.

on television. The two major elements that make it possible to go through a crash like that and not "buy the farm" are the design of the tub that encases me and the rupture-proof fuel cell that we use in place of the traditional gas tank

If all goes right, the rest of the car will absorb most of the impact of a crash as it tears away from the tub. In this construction, the legs, I found this out in 1948 when I broke my right foot in a practice run at Indy, I still wear inserts in my shoes from that incident. The other great danger in a crash is from fire. The source of most fires is the extremely flammable methanol that we use. To keep fuel from leak-ing during a crash, the fuel cell is actually a rubber bladder that is almost rupture-proof. The technology for this came out of military design en-hancements made during the Vietnam War. When I crashed this year at Indianapolis I was on the second turn.

The car was actually rolling, but I didn't know it until it lit down on the ground, and I saw sparks and realized I was upside down. The worst was over, and I thought. "I'll be glad when the car comes to a stop." When it finally did, somebody ran up and said. "You all right" I said. "I'm fine. My feet are hurting, luxt get me out of here." JOHN EARL HUNT Commonwealth's Attorney NEALTH

As a father, a husband and an attorney, I have become increasingly concerned as to what kind of society we are becoming. Our entire country is seeing a breakdown of respect for the rule of law and as a result, increasing numbers of innocent people are being victimized by theft, corruption and violence. I concluded over two years ago that our beloved county is also drifting in that direction and the Commonwealth's Attorney's office was failing to do its part to protect our people. Accordingly, I have decided to enter the race for Commonwealth's Attorney with the intent to make a difference, not simply to hold a job. This difference will be made by consistent vigorous application of three great principles:

Integrity

The Commonwealth's Attorney must be a person whose word is his bond, above reproach, rumor or slander. Every act or deed of the past or present must be one that justifies confidence in the future. He should be able to consistently look any victim or criminal in the eye and truthfully say. "I have done what's right, I have done the best I can." I am the one candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney who can do so.

Committment

The Commonwealth's Attorney must be a person whose passion is to see justice done, diligently seeking daily to protect the innocent, be they our elderly, our children, our rich or our poor. Every citizen is entitled to a Commonwealth's Attorney who will vigorously and consistently prosecute those who victimize the innocent by threat, violence or deceit. I am the one candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney who will do so.

Compassion

The Commonwealth's Attorney must be a person who sees the criminal judicial system as more than a system, that it is the place where real people with real problems seek relief. Anyone who has been victimized by crime can tell you he or she is more than a name or number, and needs a Commonwealth's Attorney who will see, hear, and respond in their particular difficulty. Similarly, some criminal offenders, be they young or old, may have a circumstance that justifies a tempering of law with compassion to achieve justice. Whatever the individual case may be, the need is for a Commonwealth's Attorney who cares to get involved with people, their lives, hurts, and needs. I am the one candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney who will do so.

I ask for your vote and support.

But one fine day, Teacher delivered a speech about "one of the philosophers of old" who lived by the motto, "Everything changes." Once while teaching in the elementary grades, the other teachers and I had spent long hours having conferences with parents and were asked to "go home, take a little rest, eat your suppers, and come back to rest, eat your suppers, and come back to school for conferences with parents who work during the day." The understanding was that we would be given Friday of the coming week for ourselves — to work on our rooms, make our report cards, or to work at whatever needed doing — without interruption. That sounded fair enough. But come the following Thursday, and shortly before time for the children's school buses were to be announced, there came this voice over the intercom which said, "Children, I awai you to tell your parents that if any of them want to come to changes." Students show this teacher

Students show this teacher courage and love My name is Peg Smith and I am a full-time Literacy teacher for the IOBS Program and the Floyd County Literacy Council. This is my second year teaching new adult readers. I want to share with you what it has meant to me to teach these adults and perhaps encourage some of you to be the second ly form Nebraska and perhaps encourage some of you to become turos. I am originally from Nebraska and was very unfamiliar with illiteracy, even though I know it exists there. When I moved here three years ago, my eyes were opened to the tremen-dous handicap a person has not being able to read. Secondly, I stand up and applaud these new readers for the courage it takes to survive in this world withoutbein gable to read well. And finally, my eyes have been opened to the courage it takes for these people to walk in and admit they need help reading. The last few weeks the students have been writing stories on how the thises have changed since com-ing back to school. If would like to take this opportunity to share with ing back to school. I would like to take this opportunity to share with you how my life has been affected since having the privilege of working with these students. These new readers are from all parts of Ployd County. Mostare poor, but in material things only. These people are not poor in courage, loy-aldy and desire to better their lives and their families lives. The courage that these people display is amazing them. They have come back to school with a fear of failure as so many of them experienced many years ago in to me. I ney have come back to school with a fear of failure as so many of them experienced many years ago in school. They come back with a fear of running into someone they know or the fear of not knowing anyone. Many times they wonder..."Will they laugh atm?..."Will the accepted? However, they keep coming back and, to their surprise, make some new and close friends. In literacy classes, a powerful support system is often built. Students are helping sta-dents not only with school work buil also with personal problems. These wonderful problems. These wonderful problems have made me, an outsider, feellike one of them. Then, there are the priceless mo-ments when they bring their children in so we can meet them!! Later, they give me a school picture or a snap-shot of their children. My heart melts. A precious moment came to me when on Valentine's Day one of our stu-dents wrote a valentine to each one of her kids. At first, she felt a little uncomfortable writing to her young uns, but as the started writing she couldn' rquit. I sat there and cried as we read all the good and positive qualities she had written about her children. qualities children.

There is an use good and possible qualities she had written about her children. There was the time when a student told me about her love for art and brought in some drawings. Then one dayshe drew two beautiful sketchings of Jesus and gave me one. I have other pictures, original poetry, crafts and jewelry that these generous people have given me. Oh, how their hospitality and love runneth over! Lastly, I want to share the saddest and yet happiest moments with my students. This happens when they score enough on their tests to move on into ABE/GED classes! It's so joyous because they are succeeding, they are moving on with their lives and they are one step closer to getting their GED. And I am so proud of them that sometimes only tears can really express my emotions. We al-ways take a picture of them and theres are many hugs. It's sad because II miss them. Racking up the numbers for Avon

Editor's Note: This article is be-ing reprinted from last Wednesday's issue because of a typographical error.

by Polly Ward Times Feature Writer

From makeup to nails, earrings and pins, to rings and bracelets, she is a walking advertisement for Avon.

And she means to be. As an Avon presentative, Rebecca Garrett, 27, Calf Creek, has definitely used or can Creek, nas derinitely used his, and other simple asks tech-niques, to her advantage. She has taken what some would consider a part-time sales job and turned it into a lucrative full-time business. Al-though she has been a representative only since February 1992, she is rack-ing up the sales — and the numbers.

She has outsold over 200 other representatives in her sales district, which comprises part of Floyd, and all of Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Magoffin Counties.

"I've been the number one repre-sentative in these counties since July," she says, amazed at her own achieve-ment. "When I became number one, I hadn't worked half a year." She was also honored as 1992 Best New Performer in the district.

Best New Performer in the district. "As a new representative, you get only one chance in your whole career to get that," she says. Recently she learned that she is the fourth-ranked representative in the state, selling over 550,000 worth of Avon products for the quarter, which began in August and ended this month. Her personal sales, which excludes fundraissers, is 31,200 to $1,600 every campaign, which is every two weeks. She achieved her high sales from an average of 125 customers in a five-nile ara. One sales territory extends from the red light at Allen up to Call Creek on the main road and to Calf Creek on the main road and the two Calf Creek hollows. The other ranges from the red light at Lancer down to Adams Middle School.She says she never dreamed she would do

She has won several incentive prizes, including a gas grill and a 27 inch RCA television set. "If you have good sales, you win prizes," she says. She has also won a two-day, all-expense paid trip to the Avon Branch in Atlanta, Georgia, which she will be taking the end of this month. "I'll be queries the breach affine

"I'll be touring the branch office to see how the company works. It's an incentive program... designed to make you work harder to win more prizes " prizes

She already has incentive. Her sales goal for the new business year would puther at the top in the state. "I would like to sell over $75,000 for this coming year, from mid-March until next mid-March."

Ultimately, she says, "I credit my success to God. God has blessed me with a job I love, with a family that's supportive, and with the best custom-ers anybody could ever ask for...Without customers, I wouldn't be anyuncher " he anywhere

Hit The Books To Organize Your New Year Getting organized is one thing. Staying organized is a lot harder. For help, many lot harder. For help, many people are uming to personal organizers, loose-leaf binders containing calendars, address directory and planning pages. Here's advice from Day Runner, the retail leader, on using personal organizers for a happier new year.

•Don't leave home (or wwhere) without it. By anywhere) without ... carrying your organizer like a purse or wallet, phone numbers and calendars will always be convenient.
