Board must act quickly to stop fund loss

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Although timing is critical, Floyd County School Board members can win a race against the clock to prevent the loss of over $7 million in bonding capacity for school construction projects.

State school board members were informed last week by state education officials that Floyd County could lose funding from the state's School Facility Construction Commission (SFCC) if monies offered by SFCC in 1988 and 1990 are not used by September 1994.

Mike Luscher, with the state Office of Facilities Management, said Monday that the Floyd County school system must obligate the existing SFCC funds before next September or lose them.

One catch to using the SFCC monies, Luscher said, is that the funds must go toward projects which were on the original facility plan, adopted at the time the SFCC funds were awarded to Floyd County.

Floyd County's predicament came to light last week during a state committee meeting called to discuss the local school system's new four-year facility plan, developed by the district's Local Planning Committee (LPC) in February.

The local board disagreed with the LPC's recommendation that work continue on a classroom addition at Betsy Layne Elementary which the board stopped in July. The Betsy Layne addition and a new Prestonsburg High School were both on the local school board abandoned plan for a new Prestonsburg High School last year. The board, instead, decided Prestonsburg High School should be renovated.

SFCC monies cannot be used to pay for the renovation at Prestonsburg High School, Luscher said Monday. Because a new facility was proposed when the SFCC funds were awarded for the project.

Robert E. Travin, executive director of SFCC, said Monday that Floyd County must act quickly to avoid losing the funds. (See Fund page three)

City to search pocketbook for funds for salary hikes

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

If funds are available for raises, the salary issue arose during a discussion of wages paid to employees in the city's street and sanitation department, where a "quirk" in salary schedules has failed to account for workers' seniority.

Finance committee chairman Michael Vance explained that the problem involved four employees who were being paid at the same rate though some had up to five years of tenure while others were relatively new employees. Mayor Ann Latta said the issue was "peculiar only to the public works department" and that a procedure is in place to differentiate salaries according to seniority.

"The problem," Latta added, "is that there have been no salary increases in eighteen months."

Vance suggested that the city's finance committee explore incremen-

Cable television choices subject of negotiations

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

Fears among some local cable television subscribers that they may soon be unable to tune in to some of their favorite channels may or may not prove real, depending on the outcome of negotiations during the next few weeks between cable operators and area broadcast stations.

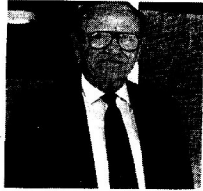

Under new federal guidelines, television broadcast stations have an option now to determine if cable systems may carry their signals and they may, under a procedure known as "retransmission consent" require some form of compensation for providing that signal.

Last week, customers of Prestonsburg's CableVision system were notified that consent agreements had not been reached with three area television stations and customers were warned that those stations might be removed from the channel offerings if retransmission pacts weren't reached by an October 6 deadline.

One of the stations, regional CBS affiliate WYMT in Hazard, was surprised to be among those which might be removed from the CableVision lineup.

Ernestine Cornett, station manager for WYMT, said Monday that every cable system in the Hazard station's Area of Dominant Influence (ADI) had been notified that the station would authorize retransmission agreements "free of charge." No formal agreements have been signed, Cornett added, but she saw no possibilities that WYMT would be removed from

Hale opts out early; Webb to take over

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Come September 30, one of the longest political careers in Floyd County will draw to a close when Jailer Lawrence Hale retires from his post.

Hale, who has served as Floyd County's jailer for "31 years and nine months," has decided to step down three months ahead of schedule because of a sickness in his family.

This year Hale announced that he would not seek re-election as Floyd County's Jailer which resulted in 13 Democrat candidates running for the post in the May Primary.

Roger Webb won the primary election and, with no Republican opposition this fall, Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said Tuesday that Webb would assume his duties as jailer October 1.

Hale said Tuesday that his fondest memory of being jailer for so long is that he helped the people. "What I've enjoyed most is helping the people that needed help," Hale said. "I really enjoyed that. Some people didn't appreciate it and I didn't like that too good."

It was his father's, James Hale's, failed bid for the jailer's seat that first gave Hale the idea to run for the office. Hale won the contest on his first try in 1957, but it was not without controversy.

"I decided to run for jailer and I lost the nomination by two votes," Hale fondly recalled. "It was the first

Job-seekers lining up too soon for slots at new plant

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Despite reports to the contrary, Floyd Countians need not line up to apply for jobs at a new lighting manufacturing company at Wareo.

The announcement that RND Inc., a California company, is moving its operation to Floyd County brought with it some misunderstanding that up to 150 jobs would be available this month when the company is expected to begin production.

The company is expected to create up to 300 jobs, but over a three-year period.

Development Authority director Darrell Gilliam said Monday that neither he nor Bowen announced that 150 jobs would be created immediately. Gilliam said that he felt that people saw the 300 job number and failed to "read the fine print," which noted the jobs would be phased in. Gilliam added that he could not prevent what other people might have said the number of jobs would be. Debbie Allen, manager at the Department for Employment Services in Prestonsburg, said Friday that RND president Ralph Bowen informed her of the company's hiring schedule which is as follows:

- in two to three weeks a secretary will be hired;
- within the next six weeks five or six additional people could be hired;
- after the first year 27 people are

Ronny Collins of Topmost was hospitalized Monday night after being shot in the face with a 16-gauge shotgun.

Leonard Hall, 59, of Weeksbury, was arrested Tuesday by the Kentucky State Police and charged with 1st degree assault. Hall and Collins, 24, got into an argument while at Hall's residence, state police reports said. Collins was shot once in the face.

Collins was transported to McDowell Hospital and later transferred to the UK Medical Center in Lexington where he is listed in stable condition.

Hall is lodged in the Floyd County Jail Bond has been set at $50,000 dollars cash. A preliminary hearing has been scheduled for September 22 at 2:30 p.m. Hall will be represented by the public defenders office.

David vols find devotion pays off as station opens

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Dedication, perseverance and hard work paid off for members of the David Volunteer Fire Department with Saturday's dedication of the community's second fire station.

About 50 members of the close-knit community attended Saturday's community dedication of the new station. Services, which included a special thanks to three families who donated the land for the building.

Oak and Lena Mullins, Jeff and Connie Conn and Rudell and Joann Whicker's names are engraved on a plaque at the base of the flagpole at the new station to honor the families for giving the fire department the property for the new station.

"We want to dedicate this building to these kind people," fireman Larry Adams said Saturday. "If they hadn't looked at this site as more than a swamp, we wouldn't be here today."

Adams also thanked officials at Branham and Baker Coal Company for loaning the volunteer firefighters the equipment and giving them the fill to make the site suitable for building. He also thanked county officials for their assistance in the project.

Fireman Randy Davis said that members of the fire department have been working on the site and building for the last three years. Davis said that most of the men worked during the evenings and weekends on the project.

"The building is centrally located and we can provide greater fire protection for people," Davis said. "That's what we want to do."

The fire department borrowed $35,000 for the building and recently year we had voting machines. I lost by five absentee votes and I contested (the outcome). I lost in the courts here and I took it to the Court of Appeals.

"I won the machine total by 85 votes, but I lost with the absentees," Hale continued. "I was able to prove in court that absentee ballots were being sold out of the clerk's office for $10 apiece. Two days before the November election, the Court of Appeals ruled and threw away all of the absentee ballots. From then on, I didn't have no problems."

In the old jail facility, Hale said that they had "a lot of breaks" (escapes), but that changed when the new jail was built several years later. With the jailer's position being a difficult one, because it deals with people who are accused of crimes, Hale said the only threat he received was many years ago from an alleged murderer.

"I was only threatened one time and that was from a man who was in jail for murder," Hale said. "I got a phone call that that man was coming to break him out, but they never followed through on it."

Hale is somewhat pleased with the fact that he only "lost two people" who were in jail during his tenure. Hale said that two prisoners hanged themselves while in his jail.

"That's a pretty good record," Hale said. "You hear a lot about that these days. I never did get any of my turnkeys hurt and that's lucky. It was my job to help the people in jail and I did. It's a young man's job."

Retirement for the jailer doesn't sound like the life of leisure, though. Hale plans to go to his farm and "take care of cattle and run the bulldozer."

"I can work when I want to and be my own boss," Hale said.

Something that will be missed almost as much as Hale's presence in the courthouse, will be his wife, Ila's, Monday soup bean dinners at the jail. Instead of heading out to local restaurants for lunch at the beginning of each week, several courthouse employees and some law enforcement officers head upstairs to "The Hale Motel" for their once a week treat.

The "motel" will be under new management soon.

any area system. Two other stations, however, remain at the bargaining table.

Huntington CBS affiliate WOVK has asked local cable operators to provide free promotional time on local access channels in exchange for free retransmission rights, station manager Leo McCourtney said Tuesday.

"We're still in the process of negotiation," McCourtney added, "but we're confident an agreement will be reached before the October 1 deadline."

Fox affiliate WVAH, located in Hurricane, West Virginia, and the third station listed by CableVision as having the potential to be dropped, is seeking more concessions from local cable operators.

Station manager Bill White said Tuesday that the Fox network has asked for a 60-day extension on the agreement deadline to allow continued negotiations on a request that cable systems agree to provide a channel for Fox's new "FX" cable service in exchange for free retransmission rights. The Fox service, White said, would offer a combination of entertainment and interactive television programming.

CableVision manager Danny Perry was unavailable this week for comment on the status of negotiations between his company and the broadcast stations.

Shots fired during car chase on Stephens Branch

by Ronnie Parsons
Staff Writer

Six shots were fired into a black Riviera travelling on Rt. 1210, on Stephens Branch Monday night.

The driver, Lowell Barnett from West Prestonsburg received minor injuries when shattered glass cut into his back. Other passengers, Harry Powell from Lexington and a female juvenile in the vehicle were not injured.

According to police reports, four shots fired from a .38 caliber handgun hit the car. One lodged in the back of the driver's seat. One was found in the overhead liner. One impacted the left tail light and one grazed the side of the car.

Powell, Barnett and the female juvenile flagged down a Martin City police officer in front of the Martin City Council building after the incident. The three told officers they were chased down Rt. 1210 by a late model 4-door white Oldsmobile that was firing into their car.

The Martin Police department in turn contacted the Floyd County Sheriff's Department which is now handling the investigation. The Sheriff's department is searching for the driver of the white Oldsmobile involved in the shooting.

Check cashing scam underway in Floyd County

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The Floyd County Sheriff's Department is warning citizens to be on the alert for an apparent check cashing scam which has been reported in the county.

Sheriff's department office manager Chuck Hall said Tuesday that a man using the name of Clarence A. or Arnold Ward, reportedly of Tomahawk in Martin County, is passing bogus checks at businesses in the county. The checks used by the man bear the names of Tim Humphrey and Betty Brashear.

Two bad checks totaling $421 were cashed at the Cash Saver supermarket in Martin, Hall said. The man reportedly makes the checks out to the name of Clarence A. or Arnold Ward.

Anyone with any information concerning the checks is asked to contact the sheriff's office at 88-6171 or 1-800-834-5430.

tal salary increases for public works employees, but Latta recommended that the review be broadened to include all city workers.

"The public works department is under-staffed, under their budget on expenditures and they have bitten the bullet. They deserve an increase. But no employees have had a raise in the past eighteen months," she said, "and we ought to review them all."

Councilman George Archer agreed, proposing that a joint meeting of the city's personnel and finance committees be held to review an across-the-board raise. The committees will meet today, Wednesday, to study the issue and are expected to present a proposal to the full council at its September 24 meeting.

In other business Monday, council:

- * approved a variety of fund raising requests;
- * agreed to review a training program for the city treasurer to determine if the costs could be cut on outside assistance for the development of monthly financial reports;
- * referred bids for blacktop to committee for analysis; and
- * heard an update on downtown revitalization.

Council retired briefly to executive session Monday to discuss pending litigation and personnel matters, returning to open session to announce that three members of the city's volunteer fire department would be dropped from the department's roster for lack of attendance and replaced with three new members. The new members include Allen Rose, Krystal Tyson and Latesha Shepherd. No action was reported on the litigation issue.

All members but Billy Ray Collins were present for the September 13 meeting.

County has $672,873 in unused funds from SFCC which would allow the district to sell approximately $7.5 million in bonds for school construction projects.

Of the $7.5 million in bonding potential, $2.2 million is earmarked for a gym at South Floyd High School and for an addition at Adams Middle School. The projected balance for the school system to use by next September is $5.3 million.

One way to prevent the loss of SFCC funding is for the local board to reprioritize the remaining school construction projects so that work can begin immediately to have bonds sold for those projects by September 1994.

Floyd County's current facility plan calls for:

- three new middle schools to be built in the Betsy Layne, Right Beaver and Left Beaver areas;
- classroom additions at Clark, Osborne and Stumbo elementary and Betsy Layne High School; and
- the renovations of Allen Central High School, Prestonsburg Elementary with a classroom addition, Clark Elementary, McDowell Elementary, Osborne Elementary, Stumbo Elementary, the central office and the old Allen Elementary building.

If the local board decides to rearrange building priorities, the state school board must approve any alteration in the current plan. The next regular meeting of the state school board is in November.

Mark Ryles, the director of Facilities Management for the state education department, said Monday that it would be difficult, but not impossible for the local board to meet the September 1994 deadline if they choose to amend the current plan.

"It's a pretty tall order," Ryles said. "It's a very unusual circumstance for a district to have money available from 1988."

Ryles said that it is possible that next September's deadline is becoming "an issue" because it was no one expected it take so long to get building projects underway in Floyd County. Ryles also said that the unforeseen delay in getting building projects started in Floyd County could be the reason that school officials and the media were told two years ago that the district would not lose its SFCC funds.

When the SFCC first allocated money for local school districts in 1988, school systems had two years to spend those funds. During the 1990 session of the state's General Assembly, legislators granted a two-year extension for school districts to use SFCC funds.

SFCC funds are designated for local school districts each biennium during the regular session of the General Assembly.

During the 1994 General Assembly, state education officials expect SFCC funding to be significantly less due to state government's budget woes.

Another alternative for preventing the loss of funds is for the local board to proceed with the original plan for classroom addition at Betsy Layne and new Prestonsburg High School.

But, it appears that there is not enough SFCC money available to do both projects, with the Betsy Layne addition estimated at $1.9 million and a new Prestonsburg High School expected to cost $7.1 million.

In July, the local board hired an architect to begin work on the high school renovation at Prestonsburg and an architect to begin work on a new Martin/Maytown Elementary.

Since a new school in the Martin/Maytown area is on the district's current facility plan, SFCC monies can be used for that project.

The remaining SFCC funds cannot be used to renovate Prestonsburg High School because it was previously designated to be a new facility.

The state school board sent Floyd County's proposed new facility plan back to the local district so that the local board and the LSC can reach an accord on the plan.

The new four-year building plan will not take effect until next July and none of the current SFCC funds can be used on projects on the new plan which differ from the current plan.

The Floyd County Board of Education was expected to address the issue Tuesday night during its regular meeting.

Showcases to highlight KERA successes in Eastern Kentucky

An anticipated crowd of nearly three hundred educators, parents and administrators will get a first-hand look at what is happening with reform in Eastern Kentucky this fall when Region 8 Service Center sponsors two regional showcases. The first of these showcases will take place on September 20 at Shelby Valley High School in Pike County and the second on October 12th at A.B. Combs Elementary in Perry County.

The two showcases will allow different sections of Region 8 to show their best practices without traveling great distances. Commissioner Thomas Boyson is scheduled to be the keynote speaker at the Shelby Valley Showcase. Deputy Commissioner Lois Adams Rogers and State Board Member Tom Gish will be featured speakers at the Perry County showcase. A steering committee composed of local administrators and teachers have taken part in the planning for the regional showcases and they are enthusiastic about the concept.

"I think the showcases are a good idea," said Jim Lacy, a member of the steering committee and Superintendent of Wolfe County Schools. "Some people have the impression that we're always lagging behind in Eastern Kentucky. The showcases will help people understand that there are some important things going on in Region 8 and that we are moving ahead with reform. We think these showcases can be among the best in the state."

Ernie Johnson, another member of the committee and a social studies teacher at Pikeville High School, whose district is part of the National Alliance to Restructure Schools this year, sees implications for the future as well as the present. "We have several projects that we will want to exhibit right now but in upcoming years, when our school system completes some of the work that we will be doing with the National Alliance, we will want to share that work with the region. The showcases will allow us to do that. It's another way that we can continue to learn. It's exciting."

The showcases are part of a series of meetings being sponsored by the Regional Service Centers this fall. The program will begin at 5:30 with a welcome and speeches by state and local leaders. The rest of the evening (6:30-9:00) will be spent in sessions where those who know reform best are demonstrating along with students, the changes that have taken place in classrooms and schools.

The showcases will feature 15-20 presentations of the best practices in the region. A screening committee headed by the Regional Service Center Associates will be responsible for selecting the presenters.

There will also be a "conversation room" where questions can be directed to Department of Education officials from Frankfort representing the different strands of reform such as assessment, curriculum, technology. In addition to the presentations and demonstrations by local educators, there will be a technology center which will illustrate what the classroom of the future will look like.

The groups being encouraged to attend the showcase are educators, administrators and parents who are involved in councils, PTA or PTO's, the Prichard Committee, or those who are simply interested in what is happening in their children's schools. Registration and applications for the exhibitions are still being accepted. For further information, please contact Nancy Price, Administrative Assistant, Region 8 Service Center, Prestonsburg at 886-0205.

The walls come tumblin' down

by Scott Perry

The hills and hollows of Eastern Kentucky are usually far removed from the events that shape our world.

We tend to prefer it that way. But this week marks an occasion we should all stand and cheer, regardless of our proximity.

When Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat joined hands Monday in a gesture of peace, we could see the "walls of Jericho come tumblin' down."

While it is certainly too early to declare that peace is breaking out all over, every man, woman and child on this small globe must recognize that every great journey begins with a single step.

This step has been long-awaited and prodded by the blood of countless innocents of all nationalities caught in the middle of a centuries-old dispute between Israelis and Palestinians.

That the animosities can be traced back to Biblical times is enough to send us rejoicing into the streets at the prospects of peace at last.

Still, there are those among us who do not share our relief and they will spare no effort to unfasten the tragic strands woven so far.

All of us who profess a respect, an endorsement of humanity should, by the sentiments of enemies who have at long last found cause for compromise... Enough of blood and tears.

Denying civil rights

Editor:
I have attempted several letters to the editor as concerns the newspaper article on August 23, 1993 regarding Black 1 leaders requesting that eight Kentucky schools drop their sports team name "Rebels." None of my letters suited me, but I read a letter written by Terry W. Crayton, Charlotte, North Carolina, published in the August issue of Blue and Gray Magazine that I have borrowed from extensively, because he said what I wanted to say in a more articulate manner.

Why are all of the Confederate monuments, flags, memorials, holidays and heroes under such a concerted attack? Apparently, the reason is that at the 1986 national convention of the NAACP, it was resolved that their cause would be to eliminate the presence of all things southern, and especially Confederate, from the face of the earth. A 1991 NAACP resolution was passed "abhorring" the Confederate battle flag.

The NAACP is determined that no schools should be allowed to use anything southern as mascots and to prevent the playing of "Dixie"—a song actually written by a Northerner. Poor song, it's "crime" is simply to state that we love our home and wish to be there again. A black US

Senator even advocated that the logo of the United Daughters of the Confederacy be disapproved by the Senate and she succeeded.

The NAACP is determined that they have the right to deny civil rights to others, while they demand it for themselves, as well as all Americans, demand that the NAACP practice the same tolerance and understanding that they want. All people are entitled to celebrate and be proud of their heritage, but no one has the right to deny these rights of heritage to another group.

I am offended by persons wearing "XX" marks on hats and ice shirts, Malcolm X teachings, the black power advocates, and the NAACP trying to destroy anything remotely related to the Old South, but I respect their rights.

Perhaps the NAACP would better serve their members if they were to attempt to solve problems such as joblessness, crime, drug abuse, and educational deficiencies instead of trying to deny the inalienable rights of Southerners to be proud of their heritage.

Thanks for the trip

Editor:
This past July, Mike Maynard, a member of the Prestonsburg High School's chapter of Future Business Leaders of America, represented Kentucky at the FBI A National Leadership Conference in Washington, D.C. This trip would not have been possible without the financial support provided by several individuals and businesses in the community.

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the following groups, who helped make this trip possible: Mrs. Karen Fivette and the faculty of Prestonsburg High School, Cooley Medical Equipment, Inacom Computers, May Metal Company, First Commonwealth Bank and the Kiwanis Club of Prestonsburg.

As a club sponsor, it is a pleasure to know that these businesses and the individuals who are part of them are concerned about the future leaders of our area. They have helped FBI A by providing a club member with a leadership opportunity that would not have been possible without their help. Thanks again.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

It's standard operating procedure for the titular head of any political party to be that party's chief cheerleader.

And, it's as obvious as Rudolf's red nose that team players get the gravy when political favors are doled out in Kentucky.

But, it's a rare occasion when a politician admits publicly that partisan politics take first billing over the needs of Kentuckians when there are so many in this state who need so much.

Governor Brereton Jones made just such an admission recently when, at a political rally, he said he couldn't think of "anything more useless than a Republican judge-executive trying to do business in Frankfort."

Does the Gov mean by that remark that the residents of Republican-controlled counties are less worthy of a share of Frankfort's "business" or just that their sparse numbers provide no particular political clout?

Maybe, as we've seen by the news lately, the Gov means GOP adherents aren't as likely to get in on the graft, bribery and sleaze our current crop of Frankfort "businessmen" are wrapped up in.

No matter what party you belong to, you have to be a bit nauseated by a governor who admits before God that he condones the system of political blackmail that has made Kentucky the FBI's playground.

Party on, dude.

We had personal experience with just the sort of "uselessness" the Gov made reference to a few years back but we were too naive at the time to believe such an attitude was possible among our elected leaders.

We traveled to Frankfort to seek state assistance on a development project that would eventually create upwards of 100 jobs for unemployed coal miners in the region, optimistic that such a proposal would be hard to refuse.

Boy, were we wrong.
The only advice we got, from a high-ranking state official who shall remain nameless until he comes calling for support, was to "get our politics in order" and then come back.

In the end we made little impact on the region's unemployment woes, but we learned a valuable lesson.

Cast not your pearls before swine....

The Prez wants to trim government waste by eliminating funding for federal "demonstration" projects, which generally include road-building deals that congressmen press into the budget for their districts and which usually can get no other means of financial support.

Route 23 reconstruction, the Johnson County segment, between Prestonsburg and Paintsville is such a project and every president it seems since Dwight Eisenhower has tried to kill it.

The Cumberland Gap tunnel is another state project more than half finished that would grind to a halt if Clinton's cuts are okayed.

So, while it may make fiscal sense to cut the flow of funds to demonstration projects, it makes no sense at all to build a tunnel halfway through a mountain or a road that stops in the middle of nowhere.

The best solution, then, would be to finish what has been started and then start no more.

To a six year-old, a father who is about to hit the big 4-0 may as well go ahead and start making the funeral arrangements.

After admiring a framed collection of Nolan Ryan mementos that we acquired as an early birthday gift, our son asked if he might take immediate possession of the collector's item.

No, we said, it was our gift, not his. "Well," he answered without pause, "I'll get it after you die."

They say you can't take it with you. Wanna bet?

Stop cheating the children

Editor:
Seven million dollars have been lost in three years of political powerplays and misinformation by your elected officials. Yes, $7 million was allotted for a new Prestonsburg High on a fee simple title to 100 acres of land on Middle Creek, a site approved by the state, cleared and core-drilled.

Something in the neighborhood of one million dollars has already been spent on site purchase, drawing design, as well as the aforementioned items. All of these costs are reimbursable by the state, if the school is built on this site well above the flood plain adjacent to Rt. 114, commonly known as the Mountain Parkway. If it is not built on that site, $1 million or so comes directly from our local school revenues.

Three years after an offer of three schools for the price of one, one board member has his plan, as presented to the Prestonsburg City Council two years ago, railroaded through a politically-stacked Long Range Planning Committee.

This plan calls for demolition of the present football field, adding on to the present building, which certified engineer flood plain maps show that 95% of the Prestonsburg site is under the 100-year flood plain. In fact the kitchen, which blew up in 1978 complete with roof and walls due to flood damage to gas piping under the floor, is over 12" under the flood plain as well as the entire first floor, including the cafeteria. The boiler room lies at least six feet below the 100-year flood plain, as is the gym floor, restrooms, showers, concession and locker areas. The residents of Prestonsburg accepted a tax to build the gym and football field, neither of which was to be deserted with the plan for Middle Creek.

How many people are aware of KERR outlines on spending? Apparently some either don't know or choose to ignore the law. No money, state, federal or otherwise, can be spent on athletic facilities.

I assure you that not all of the parents are going to bury their heads in the sand and pretend to be content with a $3 million remodeling of the present "outhouse."

I wish members of the Board would make public the comments of the State Board of Education in a letter dated September 3, 1993. One part stated the abandonment of a new Prestonsburg High School would allow $9 million allotted for the Prestonsburg project to go back to the State General Fund, and my children, along with your children, grandchildren, nieces and nephews would be cheated of this $9 million. Our Board of Education would be in violation of the constitution by denying our children's right to an equal opportunity education in a new modern facility.

Reader says Times' story, melodramatic

Dear Editor:

The old adage "The pen is mightier than the sword" came close to being true as was published in your paper regarding the "Fall Fundraiser" at Prestonsburg Elementary School this past week.

Perhaps we need more action around here...maybe more stories of death and destruction that are common on a larger scale, and in larger cities. Perhaps, then there wouldn't be much interest in the story of the Elementary School Principal (Mrs. Gwen Harmon), who allowed her school a fundraiser.

I sat in disbelief as I read the "Front Page Story", and then the commentary, entitled, "No Strings Attached". Mr. Perry, I have no doubt that your heart was in the right place when your description of helpless little children were forced to go out into the cold (or heat), to risk life and limb for some table or chair. And... you intimated that we teachers would not be teaching them, by golly, until they sold their fair share. WRONG!!!!

I do think your version was a bit melodramatic. It reminded me of the story, The Little Match Girl, about an orphan who struck matches to keep herself warm in the dead of winter, because she had no home. When she ran out of matches, she froze to death. That story always clutches my heartstrings. And, I must admit, if I didn't know better, I might have seen things the way you described them.

However, I do know better. I was there when the fundraiser was described. I was there when the children received their packages; and I was there when a reporter from your paper attended the infamous teachers' meeting on Tuesday. Allow me to give you the facts.

The children were NOT required to take orders for the fund-raiser. They were specifically told NOT to go house-to-house. They could take orders from family members, providing moms and dads approved. They were instructed NEVER to sell to anyone other than those people preapproved by their parents. They were told they had ten days in which to take orders, (again, completely voluntary on the part of parents), and all that remained was distribution (by parent).

This doesn't seem like such a crime to me. In fact, it seems to me to be reminiscent of the free enterprise system we so abundantly enjoy in our country. It's not about money to the children. It's not about money to me.

I have ordered from children at my own request, because I love to have them tell me all the attributes of the products they have. How many people do you think grew up to be entrepreneurs because of something (in such a protected setting as this), having occurred when they were young? Ask around. I'll bet you'll find more than you think.

Then, we must not forget the Girl Scout cookies. Shall we just do away with the Girl Scouts because...oh, we upon us...here the little darlings come, selling AGAIN!

I can remember the time, as a young student at Prestonsburg Elementary, when the Girl Scouts were allowed to go alone, through town, selling these good-tasting morsels. I won an award for being the youngest Girl Scout in the state of Kentucky, who sold the most cookies. I'm still proud of that. And I can remember the look in the eyes of the people to whom I sold. It is sheer joy to recall. Then, my daughter, who also attended Prestonsburg Elementary, won a Bible for selling the most religious pictures. She's married now, with a child of her own, and she counts that Bible as one of her most valued possessions. (My, times have changed, haven't they?) But the children haven't. If you haven't had an opportunity to listen to our children's little sales pitches, you have missed a real treat.

You sent a reporter to our school, to supposedly clarify a claim a false one, I might add, that we were buying instructional supplies with the proceeds from this fundraiser. Instead of coming out with clarity, it seems to me that the whole situation was blown way out of proportion. Mrs. Harmon was quoted as making an accusation against the administration. She never made that statement. I really don't understand how 39 teachers can hear one thing, and one reporter hears something unspoken. I guess the lesson here is to "never send a boy to do a man's job."

In conclusion, I would like to remind our citizens that things could be much worse in our fair city; and then everyone would be entranced. While visiting my daughter in Seattle, Washington, this summer, a young woman's headless body was thrown out at a red light in a major intersection. They found the murderer...a U.S. Postal worker...but they never found the young woman's head or left arm, even after searching through landfills.

It seems to me that life should be a little boring sometimes. Let's just not make criminals out of honest people.

Appeal filed in Magoffin landfill case

Eastern Kentucky Resources has filed an appeal to the Kentucky Court of Appeals on a recent lawsuit in Clark Circuit Court.

The judgment handed down by Special Judge James Chenault determined that the contract between Eastern Kentucky Resources and the Magoffin County Fiscal Court was a franchise and therefore invalid.

Eastern Kentucky Resources, a solid waste management company is proposing to build a state of the art landfill in Magoffin County.

Kenneth R. Binnix and Magoffin County Magistrate Hassell Gullett recently attended a meeting with Natural Resources Cabinet Secretary Phillip Shepherd to express their concern over the current Magoffin County landfill. Estimated costs of closing the current landfill is over a million dollars. As part of its package, EKR has offered to close and maintain the existing landfill at no cost to the community.

Carter murder trial to be moved

A judge granted a motion Monday to move the trial of a teenager accused of gunning down a Carter County teacher and janitor.

Assistant Attorney General Barbara Whaley, however, said during a hearing that she would object to having Scott Pennington, 18, tried in his native Elliott County.

Circuit Court Judge Samuel Long, whose district includes Elliott and Carter counties, said he would decide in a few days where the trial will be held.

Pennington is charged with two counts of capital murder in the January 18 classroom shootings of East Carter High School English teacher, Deanna McDavid and janitor Marvin Hicks. Pennington also faces 22 counts of kidnapping for allegedly holding his classmates hostage.—The Courier-Journal

Regional News Briefs

Vice president's proposal may halt roadwork

The completion of U.S. 23 between Paintsville and Prestonsburg would be in jeopardy under a proposal by Vice President Al Gore.

Unveiled last week, Gore's plan to eliminate government waste would effectively eliminate highway demonstration projects such as the four-laning of U.S. 23. The vice president said his proposal would save the federal government about $108 billion.

Tony Williams, press secretary for U.S. Rep. Hal Rogers, said Tuesday that while Rogers is "supportive" of cutting government waste, he is "vigorously opposed" to Gore's efforts to stop the highways projects.

"He has concerns about that," Williams said. "Why would you cut funding for projects that are already underway?"

The U.S. 23 project, a portion of which is already opened in Floyd County, is one of two in Roger's 5th District that would be on the chopping block under Gore's plan, Williams said. The other is the Cumberland Gap tunnel.

Cutting funding for the projects would require congressional approval, something Gore would have difficulty achieving, Williams said.

"They would have a difficult time before them if they try to do that," Williams said. "These are projects that members of Congress have worked hard to get."

As a member of the House Appropriations Committee, Rogers is in a position to stop the proposal, Williams said.

"I think he called it an 'idiotic' proposal the other day," Williams said.

Babbage discusses 60-day corporate notice for delinquent annual reports

Officers of Floyd County corporations should check to see if they are among the 112,384 Kentucky corporations which have failed to file required annual reports, according to Secretary of State Bob Babbage.

Notices to the delinquent corporations were mailed September 3. The notice allows corporations 60 days from the date it is mailed to file annual reports with the Secretary of State.

Corporations which fail to comply by the filing deadline will be administratively dissolved November 1, 1993, Babbage said.

The 60-day notice may be used for filing of the annual report of corporations. Officials may contact the Secretary of State for a duplicate report form.

Corporations which are administratively dissolved may apply for reinstatement to the Secretary of State. However, a corporation which has taken the action necessary to wind up and liquidate its business and affairs and notifies claimants of this action shall be prohibited from reinstatement.

Reinstated corporations are required to pay a penalty fee plus past due annual report filing fees.

Floyd County 4-H'ers excel at state fair

The 1993 Kentucky State Fair set many attendance records and it also showcased some Floyd County 4-H talent. Seven County Project Champions were on display at the fair. They were Penny Misore, baby blanket; Ann Clartworthy, crocheted Jason Hurd, dolls; Ryan Manns, video-tape holder; Neil Matthews, tool box; Nathan Hall, entomology and Roger Collins, acrylic painting.

Junior Division Wesley Nelson, son of Dean and Jeanne Nelson of Banner, 2nd place; Jessica Martin, daughter of Jeffery and Edith Martin of Mastown, 3rd place; Neil Fannin, son of Darnette Hazekitt of Prestonsburg, 10th place; Ethan Martin, son of Jeffery and Edith Martin of Mastown, blue ribbon and Todd Howard, son of Jerry and Julia Howard of Hippo, blue ribbon in the Senior Division. Chad Martin, son of Jeffery and Edith Martin of Mastown, placed high enough to make the Avian Bowl Test, which is only taken by seniors who have shown continued interest.

The Horticulture Judging Team also showed an increase in participation. Chad Martin, son of Jeffery and Edith Martin of Mastown, was chosen as one of the Grand Champions and will be participating in the National Competition next year. Other members of the Horticulture Judging Team were Jessica Martin, Ethan Martin, Todd Howard and Wesley Nelson.

Projects from the summer display may be picked up during office hours at the Extension Office at 670 South Lake Drive in Prestonsburg. For information about the Floyd County 4-H Program, contact a 4-H Council Member or the Floyd County Extension Office at 886-2668.

Is it beautiful to be thin?

Inside Hunger, airing at 3 p.m. Sunday, September 19, explores American women's disordered relationship with food. The program focuses not only on compulsive eating, but explores how American culture may implicitly encourage eating disorders.

Many feminists feel that popular American culture's standard of beauty for women—epitomized by thin fashion models and film stars—is unattainable by most American women. When they attempt to emulate these svelte physiques, unnatural and unhealthy relationships with food develop into eating disorders like anorexia and bulimia.

Inside Hunger was produced by Georgia Public Television.

IT CAN BE DONE

With

PAUL

I speak of shading out the dark areas of our city with revitalization to reorganize our city structure

As mayor, I plan to establish a sewage and drainage system throughout the Goble-Roberts Addition.

Have more street lights in our subdivisions for more visibility.

Negotiate with major business companies to bring industry to our city.

I plan to establish more mini parks for our children through vacant lots that are not being used.

I feel that our city government can give a little back to our tax-paying citizens by abolishing extra pick-up fees on extra garbage

I plan to work with the police chief to have our auxiliary police force more active and to establish a community crime watch system

I plan to work with our fire chief and fire fighters to help better our fire system in any way

I feel that our city is in dire need of a youth center for our teenagers and I plan to establish this

I feel that our street department hours should be extended and I plan to bring back our street sweeper

Citizens, all these things that I plan for our city can be done by working with government agencies to receive grants. These benefits can be a gift to us. All we have to do is take advantage of what can be offered for our city without raising taxes.

Breast cancer seminar to target the Tamoxifen study

A seminar related to the study of the drug Tamoxifen and its use in the prevention of breast cancer will be held at 1 p.m. on Saturday, October 9, in the Pike Auditorium at Prestonsburg Community College. The seminar is sponsored by Highlands Regional Medical Center and the University of Kentucky Markey Cancer Center. Featured speaker for the seminar will be Dr. Edward Romond, chairman of the Markey Cancer Center's clinical research program on the Tamoxifen study.

Tamoxifen, currently the most widely prescribed cancer drug in the world, has been used for almost 20 years to treat patients with advanced breast cancer. Since 1985 it has been used after radiation and/or surgery as a means of preventing breast cancer from spreading to other parts of the body. In addition, for women who have had cancer in one breast, Tamoxifen has been shown to help prevent the development of new cancers in the opposite breast. Moreover, most women who take Tamoxifen experience little, if any, side effects.

This study is one of the largest of its kind and will determine if taking Tamoxifen (a estrogen tablet) can prevent breast cancer from developing in women who are at increased risk of developing breast cancer in the next five years. Tamoxifen has been successfully used to treat patients with advanced breast cancer. Research has shown that when given as additional therapy for early breast cancer Tamoxifen appears to prevent the recurrence of the cancer and also appears to prevent new cancers in the opposite breast.

Eligibility for the study includes:

- Never having had breast cancer
- 60 years of age or older
- 35 to 59 years of age with one or more of the following: Mother, sister or daughter with breast cancer, one or more breast biopsies, first menstrual period before age 13, never been pregnant, or 30 years or older when first child was born.

"This study begins a new era in the fight against breast cancer which this year alone will claim almost as many American lives as the entire Vietnam War," said Dr. Edward H. Romond, associate professor of medicine, and a principal investigator of the study. "I encourage all eligible women to learn about this important trial and to consider participating."

Women attending the meeting will be asked to fill out a risk assessment to determine whether they are eligible for the study. After the seminar, those interested will schedule two appointments to process paper work and have laboratory tests completed (including up-to-date mammogram and pelvic examination). These papers and laboratory test results will be sent to the National Cancer Institute who will notify the women of acceptance into the study. After acceptance, special laboratory work will be done before starting the medication. Half of the study participants, chosen randomly, will take Tamoxifen for five years; half will take a placebo (a pill without medication) for five years. Regularly scheduled examinations will be done at 3 months (after starting the medication) and every 6 months thereafter.

The Markey Cancer Center is one of the approved coordinating breast cancer prevention trial centers in Kentucky. The Lexington Clinic will be participating with the Markey Cancer Center in this study along with several members of the UK Cancer Treatment Consortium including: King's Daughter's Hospital, Ashland; Graves-Gilbert Clinic, Bowling Green; The Christ Hospital, Cincinnati; St. Elizabeth Hospital, Edgewood Hills; Highlands Regional Medical Center, Prestonsburg.

Ways to have a boating accident

Don't bother with life preservers. They don't look very glamorous.

Take along all the passengers you want to go. So what if the boat is a little crowded.

Drive your boat as fast as possible. It's no fun just to poke along. Let's see what she'll really do.

Encourage your passengers to stand up, stretch their legs, and get a better view.

Enjoy a cigarette while refueling. Extra gear like anchor, oars, boatbooks, lines, fire extinguishers, tool and first aid kits just clutter up the boat. Leave them at home.

Don't bother to check the weather forecast. Anybody can see whether the sky is blue and it looks like a nice day.

If you are boating at night, don't worry about lights. There will be a full moon.

It isn't important to know the rules of the waterways. The other boats will get out of the way, or else you can move to one side or the other.

Don't learn to swim and don't worry about first aid training. Why know artificial respiration?

These 10 ways should never accompany you while boating. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, at Dewey Lake, can recommend safe boating techniques. For more information contact the Resource Manager at Dewey Lake at 606-886-6709.

The Corps who monitors safe boating on the lake urges operators of small craft to take a course in safety and to learn and obey the rules of the waterway. Call the United States Coast Guard for information on Boating Courses at 1-800-336-Boat.

Ratliff sparks Prestonsburg to 16-0 win over Whitesburg

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

Coach Bill Letton's Prestonsburg Blackcats took to the road this past Friday night. They traveled to Whitesburg to what was considered an important district matchup for both clubs in the yet-young football season.

Prestonsburg's defense rose to the occasion for the third straight week helping them to a 16-0 shutout of the Yellowjackets. It was the third straight shutout for Prestonsburg's defense.

However, the celebration was dampened when running back Seth Hyden was taken down in the second period and was forced to leave the game. The injury could end the year for Hyden.

The Prestonsburg offense was having problems moving the football against the Whitesburg defense and the two teams played to a standoff in the first period. The Blackcats needed a spark from someone.

That spark came from quarterback Thomas Ratliff who did not start the game because of illness. Before the game, it was doubtful that he would even be able to play. But the junior quarterback made his appearance in the second period just when the Cats needed help.

With less than five minutes remaining in the first half, Ratliff entered the game in place of Keith Marsillett at quarterback. He seemed nervous on his two tries at the signal-carrying spot. Ratliff, as a keeper, was stopped for a 1-yard loss. And then on the second play from scrimmage, his pitch back to Jody Cornette was too much and Whitesburg recovered the fumble taking over the ball on the Prestonsburg 20.

The Yellowjackets moved the football to the Prestonsburg 6 on a second-and-goal play. But the alert Robbie Risner picked off a Chester Adams' pass and the junior guard moved out of the end zone to the two and dropped down.

With the Blackcats deep in their own territory, Hyden took the hand off from Ratliff and raced 34 yards before running into one of the officials on the sideline and was injured.

On a third-and-15 at their own 31, the Yellowjackets were flagged for a pass interference play and the Cats received an automatic first down.

After a 6-yard pickup by Dwayne Garza, Ratliff hit Clint Shatts with two consecutive passes putting the ball on the Yellowjackets' three. Shatts hauled in the first reception for 29 yards and had a 16-yard catch on the second one.

Garza put Prestonsburg on the scoreboard when he crossed the goal line from 3 yards out. John Stout added the extra point and the Cats led 7-0 with 35 seconds left in the first half.

Coach Letton's squad wasted little time scoring again. Jody Cornette scored on the first play from scrimmage in the third period. Cornette raced 59 yards for the touchdown and Stout again added the PAT.

Prestonsburg added their final two points when Larry Morris caught

Adams in the end zone for a safety.

Prestonsburg had missed an opportunity to tack another score on the board when they had the ball on the Yellowjackets' 1-yard line, but failed to get into the end zone.

After Whitesburg took over the ball, Morris got the sack in the end zone. Whitesburg threatened one other time when they moved to the Prestonsburg 22-yard line but the Cats' defense held.

Prestonsburg's defense continued to dominate. They held the Yellowjackets to just 64 yards on the ground on 27 carries. Morris led the defense with eight solo hits and one assist plus the safety Risner, who just keeps improving all the time, came up with five first hits, two solos and had a fumble recovery.

Kevin Vaughn had five first hits and one assist. Brad Wells had four first hits and two assists, plus he recovered a Whitesburg fumble. Cornette, on the defensive side, had five first hits and one assist.

Kyle Fitzpatrick and Greg Jones each had four solo hits and one assist. Paul Collins, who gets better with each game, had three first hits and three assists. Blake Leslie had four solos and an interception.

Prestonsburg had 317 offensive yards (unofficial) with Cornette leading the ground game with 85 yards on 12 carries. Garza finished with 39 yards on 11 carries and Hyden, before leaving the game, had three carries.

Pikeville team too much for Allen Central

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

One thing that Allen Central coach Glenn Reeves wanted was for his team to come out of the Pikeville game without any injuries. He got that.

"This is the thing that I'm thankful for," said Coach Reeves. "We came out with no injuries and that was my biggest concern — no serious injuries."

But he did not get the victory. The powerful Panthers posted a 58-13 win over the Rebels Friday night at home.

To some of the Rebel fans, the removing of jerseys by the Pikeville starting team at halftime was a low blow.

The Panthers starting unit did not play in the second half, but the junior varsity saw plenty of action.

Pikeville did all their damage in the first half. They scored 26 points in the first period and 32 points in the second. Allen Central held them scoreless in the second half.

Two of the Pikeville touchdowns came on the efforts of their specialty teams. Jason McCoy had a 35-yard return for a touchdown on an interception in the second period. J.J. Joplin recovered a fumble and returned it 42 yards for a second quarter touchdown.

In the first period, Joplin took a punt and returned it untouched 62 yards for a TD. Still in the first period, Brent Coleman ran back a kickoff return 80 yards for a score.

So, it was the specialty team that hurt the Rebels.

"Pikeville is an exceptionally good team," said Coach Reeves. "They are well coached and have a lot of speed. They beat off the ball. They did things right and we just didn't cover well and the specialty team hurt us."

Allen Central scored in the first quarter on a 3-yard run by James Osborne. Senior quarterback Brad Blackburn scored on a 1-yard plunge

Poor execution costly as Bobcats fall to Morgan Co.

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

Coach John Derossett's Betsy Layne Bobcats fell for the first time this football season after dropping a 30-14 loss on the road to the Morgan County Pirates this past Friday night. But Coach Derossett said that the loss wasn't the defense's fault. But rather, it was due to the poor field position the offensive team left the defense.

"In reality, our defense didn't play as bad as the 30 points would indicate. The 30 points really was a result of our poor offensive execution, which resulted in poor field position all night," said Derossett.

Despite the setback, quarterback Keith Hamilton had his best game of the season. He tossed for 210 offensive yards with two touchdowns and a conversion run.

"He had a great game for us," said Derossett. Derossett also pointed out that regardless of Hamilton's success in throwing the football, that was the Bobcats' forte.

"We are not a passing team," he said. "When Morgan County stopped our offensive line and our rushing game, we were forced to pass the football."

Morgan County took a 2-0 lead on a safety when Hamilton was nailed in the end zone in the first period. But Betsy Layne forged out to a 6-2 lead after the first quarter when Hamilton hit Jamie Robinson with a 82-yard touchdown pass.

Morgan County's Ben Castle ran the ball in from 3 yards out and Chris Ballinger added the PAT to give the Pirates the 9-6 lead. Morgan County struck again in the second period when Steve Thacker's 1-yard plunge made it 15-6 at the half.

Both Castle and Ballinger struck again for Morgan County in the third period with Castle scoring on a 33-yard run and Ballinger adding a rare field goal to put the Pirates up 22-6.

Dannan Ballinger scored on a 8-yard pass from quarterback Dan DeBorde in the fourth period to make it a 30-6 ball game. The Bobcats saw their first defeat looming in their eyes.

Hamilton found Brent Akers open and hit the receiver with a strike for a 47-yard TD. Hamilton ran the conversion for the final count of 30-14. Betsy Layne's defense came up with two interceptions in the game with Adam Roberts and freshman

Adams leads game South Floyd wins 26-14 over Phelps

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

The South Floyd Raiders opened their 1993 home football schedule this past Friday night, and on a successful note at that.

The Raiders posted a 26-14 win over the Phelps Hornets for their first varsity sport victory at the new school. Fullback Arnold Adams made up for any lost yardage he may have lost in the first two games and rushed for what is presently a school record 267 yards on 19 carries. Adams scored two touchdowns in the contest.

"We look probably as good as we have all year," said Raiders' coach Donnie Daniels. "But there are still some things we need to work on."

Daniels said that footwork and tackling are two of the bigger items that needed work.

"We're reaching a lot on defense," said the Raiders' mentor. "We're not punishing enough. We are getting a little bit better in our ball handling."

There was a developing bright spot out of the backfield for the Raiders. Adam Wright made his debut and responded with 123 yards on 10 carries.

South Floyd led 8-6 after the first quarter as both teams crossed the goal line. Phelps scored on a 15-yard run by Donald Ferrell, but the conversion attempt failed. The Raiders got six points on a 26-yard run by Adams and the two-point conversion made it a 8-6 game.

Sophomore quarterback Aaron Hall hit split end Charles Johnson with a pass that was good for a 51-yard touchdown pass to give the Raiders a 14-6 lead. It was 20-6 at the half after Wright scored on a 51-yard gallop for his first TD this season.

This is the first time that we have used Adams (Wright) in the backfield, said Daniels. "He ran the ball some on the junior varsity team but not in varsity play."

Reason for three shutouts!

The Prestonsburg Blackcats have shutout their opponents in the first three games this season. Two of the reasons for the defensive show have been the play of Kevin Vaughn (85) and Kyle Fitzpatrick (79). The Blackcats will face the Balfry Pirates this Friday night at home. (photo by Ed Taylor)

South Floyd

"We'll look for him to run in the fall hard for us next year," continued Daniels. "He still made some mistakes, but he will get better. The Raiders put the game in the win column in the fourth when Adams scored his second TD on the game on a 50-yard run. Phelps added their final points in the final period also. For McCoy took a kickoff return and raced 85 yards to the touchdown and Daniel Lester added the two-point conversion. "We got a lot of good play out of John Caudill, Verlin Isaac and Jason Martin," said Daniels. "Shawn Curry played a strong game for us. Really the offensive line played well. While Hall has struggled at the quarterback position, Coach Daniels says that his sophomore signal caller is improving. "He's doing better," he said. He has what we call happy feet. He wants to dance before he throws the ball. He just missed Charles (Johnson) with two passes to touchdowns. They're getting better. We just need to be patient with him. Patrick Lockett rushed for 32 yards on four carries, but it was on the other side of the line that he stood out. He had four interceptions, three solo hits and one assist. He also had 47 yards in return yardage on the interceptions. Charles Johnson had two receptions for 69 yards and a TD. Kevin Johnson had one catch for 5 yards. Cruse Caudill had a good defensive outing for the Raiders with six solo hits and two assists. Kelly Lacey, returning from an injury, responded with six first hits, two assists and his pressure defense caused the Hornets to fumble the football.

Chad Stone had an interception as well as two first hits and two assists. Jarrod Cumpson came up with five first hits and three assists. "We're getting better," said Coach Daniels of his team. "We need to cut down on some silly mistakes that we are making. We don't seem to be thinking on the field. "We have some younger kids starting to step up and help us. That makes the older players play harder. When we give the younger players a look, it makes the older ones step up their game." Daniels likes the play of freshman Bubba Osborne and of Harry Lockett who started his second game at cornerback. The South Floyd coach said that he wants to let his younger players get some game experience on the line. "I need to put Terrance (Mullins) in for a few series of plays," he said. The Raiders converting the two-point conversion is not working and he's thinking of going to the kicking game. "We need to kick the ball," Daniels said. "I don't know who could do it, but our conversion guys aren't working."

Waterfowl, turkey season set

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) Commission met August 27 to set the 1993-94 waterfowl hunting season, the 1994 wild turkey seasons and to discuss a new licensing system. Duck season in the Western Zone will be November 25, 28 and December 11 through January 5, 1994 and duck season in the Eastern Zone will be November 25, 28 and December 26 through January 20, 1994. Canada goose season in the Western Zone will be December 11 through January 30, except that the season in Fulton County will run through February 14.

A new zone was created for Canada goose hunting in the Pennyroyal Coalfield region that will be open December 11 through January 14. The Pennyroyal Coalfield zone in this area will be two birds daily. The Pennyroyal Coalfield Zone starts from the eastern boundary of the Western Goose Zone and includes the area west to a line marked by the following roads: Beginning at the Kentucky-Tennessee line on 1.65 follow 1.65 north to the Green River Parkway at Bowling Green, north-west on the Green River Parkway to the Kentucky-southwest side of KY 80 Bypass and then north on KY 251 to the Kentucky-Indiana state line.

Several new areas will be open for the spring gun season, and all areas open to spring gun hunting will be open to the either sex fall archery only season October 1-31, 1994. The two gobbler limit for the 1994 spring season remained unchanged. According to consultant firm studies, a computerized license retailing system would cost the KDFWR less money to operate than is currently being spent to distribute and sell licenses, and would greatly improve the availability of licenses to resident and non-resident hunters and anglers. The final item of business conducted by the commission was to approve the 1994 spring wild turkey hunting dates. Next year turkey season is set for April 20 through May 3 (two weeks). Several new areas will be open for the spring gun season, and all areas open to spring gun hunting will be open to the either sex fall archery only season October 1-31, 1994. The two gobbler limit for the 1994 spring season remained unchanged.

ries for 49 yards. Garza had 34 yards in returns for 73 all-purpose yards. Hyden, in the first period on the second play from scrimmage, ran the football into the end zone from 52 yards out. But the play was nullified because of a holding call on the Blackcats. It was a game that had fans on both sides of the field riding the officials because of the excessive number of flags thrown. Prestonsburg was flagged for 14 penalties for 135 yards and Whitesburg was penalized 90 yards on eight flags. Raliff was four of seven in the passing department for 91 yards. Marsillet was zero for two. Shuts had two receptions for 45 yards and Jason Spurlock had two catches for 46 yards. Spurlock had a 40-yard catch that he made a super catch on. The Blackcats fumbled the football twice, losing it once. Raliff was intercepted once. Whitesburg had 64 yards on the ground and Adams tossed for 20 yards on three-of-eight passing for 84 total offensive yards. Adams was intercepted twice by Prestonsburg. Senior fullback Jamie Hatton had 43 yards on 11 carries to lead the Yellowjackets in rushing. Whitesburg fumbled the football twice. Prestonsburg (3-0) will host the Balfry Pirates this Friday night at Prestonsburg stadium.

in the fourth period and Gary Webb added the PAT. Coach Reeves sees the Pikeville team as becoming a state finalist again. "We played one of the best teams in the district," he said. "A team we'll see in the state finals this year." While the Rebels were getting buried, Coach Reeves used the opportunity to reveal his "police offense" that confused the Pikeville coaching staff and made them use up three timeouts to figure it all out. "Some asked me why I showed it then," said Coach Reeves. "I wanted to see how good coaches would coach against it." Blackburn had a strong game in the air as he tossed for 202 yards on nine completions. The ground game was a different story as they had a minus-18 yards. Adam Coleman, a freshman, had two receptions for 59 yards and Charlie Wade pulled in one for 44 yards. Ronald Stewart had the longest reception, an 82-yard pass from Blackburn. Glenn Floyd, the Rebels' leading rusher, played despite sickness and only had 6 yards rushing. James Osborne finished with 13 yards. Justin Salisbury led the Rebel defense with seven assists. Scott Bellamy had four assists with two first hits. Three of his tackles went for a loss against Pikeville. Steven Akers had two solo hits and six assists. Shawn Robinson had one solo hit and three assists, but he came up with a fumble recovery also. Wade had the Rebels' only pass interception.

"It's not going to be easy playing at Berea," he said. "And when I look at our schedule the rest of the way, they could go either way." Allen Central is expected to be more competitive against the remaining Rebel schedule since they will not be looking at any blue chip players. "I feel that we will be more competitive from here out," said Reeves. "We're still in the playoff picture with the one district win that we have. South Floyd — they have one win and they're still in it." Allen Central travels to Berea Friday night looking for win number two.

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

NEEDED: OFFICIALS' WEIGHT-LOSS PROGRAM

A young man sits on the sideline of the practice field as his team goes through its drills in preparation for this Friday night's big game with arch rival Belfry. It is a revenge game from last year when the Pirates posted a 30-0 win.

Now, this young man will miss the game, and possibly the remainder of the season, because an overweight official could not or would not get out of the way Seth Hyden, who ran into the official in the second quarter against Whitesburg, will definitely miss the Belfry game, a game he would love to play in.

Seth had taken the ball on the Prestonsburg 2-yard line and was heading up the sideline near the Whitesburg bench when he like hitting a brick wall - he ran into an official who was standing in the way.

Now, the question is, why didn't the official move out of the way when he was 15 yards up from the line of scrimmage and he could definitely see Seth heading his way?

According to Hyden, he tried to go around the official, but still the official didn't move.

I'm not one to harp too much on officiating in football because I realize it is a hard job. But the officials at Whitesburg left a lot to be desired. They were flag happy and some of the calls were close to nothing. A face-mask call against Kevin Vaughn definitely should not have been called because I was standing right in front of where it happened. After a few comments, Vaughn then was flagged for an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty.

Now, if a player uses language he shouldn't, then throw the flag. But Vaughn said what he did out of frustration because of an incompetent call by an official who was out of position to make the call.

Running one hundred yards up and down the field is tiresome for an official who is in shape. But when you have two officials who are w.a.s. overweight, then it is time the state association starts setting some guidelines for officials being in shape to officiate

Also, there were too many flags thrown in the game and, here is a comment that I heard concerning the game.

"There were more handkerchiefs (flags) used in this game than at an Old Regualr Baptist church service." Author: Joe Back.

Couch Bill Letton is confident that Seth will return before the regular season ends. And here is one reporter who is praying that that will be the case. Seth Hyden, like many players in our county, is a fine young man and he deserves to be on the football field. Here's hoping that he gets better real soon!

I LIKE WHAT I AM SEEING

Let me say one more time that I am amazed and pleased with what I am witnessing in Floyd County football. I see a real future for our teams here. In the next two seasons we will be able to compete with the big boys.

Why? Because of the programs that are being implemented in the county.

One such program is the inauguration of the Big Sandy Valley Grade School Conference. You would be surprised at the number of players who have turned out for grade school football this season. Adams Middle School had to divide into two teams. Allen Central had a boatload out turn out and South Floyd is running over with players. Betsy Layne had strong representation. I like what I am seeing.

The season gets started this week when Betsy Layne plays Allen tomorrow. Go out and support the grade school teams.

Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Who's got the ball?

Coleman, Jenkins connect for 22-0 win over Betsy Layne freshmen

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

The Betsy Layne Bobcats freshmen football team found the Coleman-Jenkins Connection problem last Saturday in freshmen football action at the Don Daniels Athletic Complex at Allen Central.

The two frosh teamed up to lead the younger Rebels to a 22-0 win over the Bobcats' freshmen team.

Coleman tossed for 132 yards with nine completions in 17 attempts. On the receiving end was Thomas Jenkins, who had eight of those catches for 125 yards. Jenkins had catches of 33 and 27 yards and had three receptions for touchdowns.

While Coleman and Jenkins were taking care of the air game, Ben Tackett was running the football. Tackett totaled 113 yards on 13 carries to lead the rushing game. Coleman had seven rushes for 47 yards. Allen Central totaled 304 offensive yards.

Betsy Layne was led by a trio of players. Craig Hamilton ran for 29 yards on 13 carries. Robbie Hamilton carried the ball nine times for 26 yards and Richard Stevens had 22 yards on six carries.

The two teams played a scoreless tie in the first half, although Allen Central looked to have scored when Jenkins caught a Coleman pass. But the officials ruled that he did not have both feet in bounds.

The Rebels took an 8-0 lead with 8:40 remaining in the third period. Jenkins scored on a 5-yard pass from Coleman. Tackett ran the conversion play.

With the ball in Rebel territory, Josh Reeves came up with a big interception of a Matt Rose pass. The interception set up the next score for Allen Central in which Jenkins caught a 12-yard pass from Coleman for his second TD. Allen Central led 14-0.

It was 22-0 with 5:06 left in the game on a pass from Coleman.

Allen Central fumbled the football twice, as did Betsy Layne. Rose was intercepted once by Reeves.

Paul Varney made a believer out of everyone when he came up with three quarterback sacks. Mike Goble was outstanding on defense with nine tackles.

The Allen Central defense held Betsy Layne to 76 total yards.

Betsy Layne will face South Floyd this coming Saturday at Brackett Field.

Picks up short yardage!

Prestonsburg's Dwayne Garza (28) picked up a first down for the Blackcats on this carry against Whitesburg last Friday night. The Blackcats won their third consecutive game and had their third straight shutout with a 16-0 win over the Yellowjackets. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Rushes for yardage!

Seth Hyden (32) of Prestonsburg carried for good yardage on this carry. Hyden scored on the run, but the TD was nullified with a holding penalty against the Blackcats. Hyden had three carries for 49 yards before leaving in the second period with an injury. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Good speed!

Enough cannot be said of Jody Cornette (10) as he carried the football against Whitesburg last Friday night. Cornette has shown tremendous improvement in his play and just quietly does his job for the Blackcats. Cornette scored a touchdown and rushed for 92 yards in Prestonsburg's 16-0 win over Whitesburg. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Land of the giants!

Betsy Layne freshman quarterback Matt Rose seems to have shrunk in comparison with the other players. Rose was quarterback for the Betsy Layne freshmen team against Allen Central this past Saturday. The Rebels posted a 22-0 win over the Bobcats. (photo by Ed Taylor)

ESPN 2 expands college hoops schedule; (Pssst!) women are ready for prime time

College hoops going from good to glut? ESPN2 debates October 1 and, while its original intent was to not air college basketball, adding to ESPN's already traffic-jammed 200-plus scheduled games, coaches and administrators have lined up to volunteer day and tipoff time changes to get their teams on ESPN2's lineup.

Headlined by North Carolina Duke, the spin-off will air 40 (more) games this winter.

Too much of a good thing? Not if it opens levee dates for too-often ignored, but feisty programs like Western Hilltoppers, Xavier Muskies and East Tennessee State.

And this unsolicited tip-off: ESPN2 decision-makers: (Pssst!) do a survey, do an experimental schedule, do women's college basketball. Says here, it's ready for prime time.

Whatever ESPN does, college fans in Kentucky who have cable or a satellite dish are going to have more choices and more options.

Remember Faust, Consider Curry

Most endearing qualities that best define Americans are compassion and forgiveness. A decade ago Gerry Faust was on his way to leaving Notre Dame with a boot in his rear and a broken heart after being made a laughing stock of college football. All because he was earnest, sincere and philosophical, even religious. But the Irish didn't win.

These days Notre Dame's very bone marrow has come under scrutiny. Also, these days Bill Curry is on much the same bubble as Faust as the grumbling becomes more audible.

Well, last week Akron U. head coach Faust was being praised by players, opposing coaches and media too. His teams are winning, validating his views once more. Faust made a statement that brought Curry to mind. A remark we would do well to remember as we consider our forgiving attitudes and compassion.

"We're all humbled at one time or another, but that's good," Faust said.

"Make the best of what you have." Before we send Curry packing.

Hilltopper Revival
Strikes me that Western Kentucky Coach Jack Harbaugh arrived September 21 at precisely the summit Curry keeps telling Kentucky fans about.

"You don't ever give up. Ever." UK's coach has repeated to members of the Fellowship of the Miserable. "Eventually you will succeed."

With all the talk about the UK-UofL football series helping the sport in our state, one cannot overstate the importance of Western Kentucky's resounding victory over Eastern at Hanger Stadium either.

Harbaugh and the Hilltoppers may have rescued football at Western as Topper fans have known it.

Beyond the sport itself, it is important to pause and consider the residual effects on Western's young men who gloried in the victory at Eastern. Yes, there are payoffs at the end of the frustrations and disappointments.

Footnote: Western Kentucky beats Eastern in Richmond and the next week's The Sports Network Division I rankings has EKV rated 18th and the Hilltoppers nowhere. Go figure.

Readers (Right) Write
(Unidentified reader from Lexington): "UK's biggest need is offensive and defensive linemen. Who are the in-state best prospects?"

Comment: Pickings may be slim. But the two I hear most about are some of the biggest: Craig Dick, Mayfield (6-3, 270) and Eddie Sneed, PRP (6-0, 290). Others: David Beringer, Highlands (6-4, 270); Don Shipley, T'own (6-3, 275); Chris Mann, St. Xavier (6-4, 240); and Brent Branson, Webster County (6-4, 245).

Jeff Waugh of Franklin, Ohio: "How about some news on UK basketball recruiting. Any news about a point guard in this recruiting class?"

Comment: See next segment.

UK Recruiting Update
Tops on Rick Pitino's point guard list - 6-5 Allen Edwards, Miami Sr., Chris Herren of Falls River, Maine and 6-3 JUCO Michael Lloyd, San Jacinto, Texas.

Edwards chief blessings are size, speed and shooting range that allow him to play either backcourt position. Herren is a hard-nose-type who shoots well from the perimeter, may be a better penetrator, but most of all, gets the ball to teammates when and where they are most effective.

Lloyd, Another Dale Brown? The leading scorer in junior college last season, his best skill is playing defense.

Seattlebutt: Edwards is a Pitino-type, but UK will be hard pressed to beat out close-to-home Florida State; Lloyd is a more refined and more advanced version of Dale Brown; Herren is a type Kentucky fans fall in love with. A perfect spin off Travis Ford.

Stay tuned.

UofL: Bravado to Break-Even?
How sobering, a (Saturday) of combat can be. In precession turning back Kathi Drawkins Inc. was talking eleven-and-oh. After gasping to hold back San Jose State at the end, Jeff Brohm was saying the Cards' better grow a ground game if Louisville is going to have a "winning season."

Dis 'N Data
Sunny Chollic MacAlexander (overused his favorite word again following the UK-Kent game. "Fookie was spack-tac-ular", parroted the UK house man.

Right, Chuck. Rush Limbaugh could have been spectacular against Kent, with a fridge on his back.

If there is a better college football analyst in these parts than Doug James at University of Louisville games, show me. One mini-problem however, James is so good he tends to analyze point off the wall.

Hey, Cliff Rozier, you ever hear of Jerome Hannon? No? Maybe you'll be seeing him over at the Dirt Bowl.

When good news for us? Cheryl Miller is the new women's coach at USC, taking her way from ABC where the network learned her with Dick Vitale for two summer basketball tournaments. And we thought one blabber mouth was bad.

Alan Iverson
Anybody want to bet against Alan Iverson's 5-year sentence being overruled on appeal? New sentence: probation. Result: Another student-athlete gets another break.

Comments: Best result for Iverson? 120 months (10 years) in the can to study, to learn, get a GED, and grow up.

Then apply for admission at a college as far from family as possible.

The fun of fishing By Scott Patton and made possible by these sponsors:

Scott Patton fishes the BASS-MASTERS Tournament Trail. He won the 1989 B.A.S.S. Federation State Championship. He was named 1987 Hydra Sports Points Champion.

Don't underestimate buzz bait
As a big bass lure, a buzz bait shouldn't be underrated. I have caught a number of big fish on the lure and know several other anglers who fish it religiously. I also won the Kentucky B.A.S.S. Federation on it in the fall of 1989 on Kentucky and Barkley Lakes.

The blade is what gives the buzzbait its name. Unlike spinnerbaits, it is not used to provide flash to draw bass. Instead the spinning of the blade causes a chopping motion in the water giving the lure a lift, even when worked at a very slow speed.

Of course, one of the prime times for a buzz bait is early in the morning when the fish are prowling the shallows for prey. I like the buzz bait when I'm fishing really thick cover such as grass beds and shallow wooded flats. Buzz baits are great fish catchers anytime the water is above 55 degrees. Another big advantage is that you can cover a lot of water quickly and thoroughly.

There are really two basic styles of buzz baits: with or without the clacker. These baits come in two or three different sizes. I feel there is one buzz bait that gives me the advantage over my competition and that is Nichols Impulse Buzz Baits. They have a unique patented 3-D metal fake blades and are responsible for starting a new interest in buzz baits. The shiny sparkles emitted from the turning of the blades gives the bait a very life-like look and appeal.

I will generally use a trailer hook or a stringer hook on these baits. This is where you slide another hook over the one existing hook. This trailer will catch a lot of fish that hit short. I will also use a glass rod and 20-pound test camouflaged line.

If you can't find Nichols buzz baits in your area, contact Nichols at (210) 684-8811 to find your local dealer.

Keep the attitude, keep casting and keep fishing.

Morris rushes for 233 yards in 36-12 win over AC frosh

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Prestonsburg Blackcats freshmen team totaled 253 offensive yards against Allen Central frosh squad and Jon Morris picked up 233 of them.

Morris ran for the 233 yards on 21 carries as he led his team to a 36-12 win over the younger Rebels. Brian Jones had 28 yards on six carries.

The game marked the debut of Beau Tackett who had previously elected not to play this year. Tackett responded with 183 yards on eight carries and he scored two touchdowns while running a conversion play. He would have had a third TD, but was brought down on the 10-yard line after a long run.

"I just ran out of gas," he said in his first game back. "I'm out of shape and I just got tired."
Tackett finished with 256 all-purpose yards in the game.
Prestonsburg scored with 3:05 left in the first quarter on a 7-yard carry by Morris. Morris also ran the two-point conversion for a 8-0 game.

The Rebels had the football in excellent field position as they moved the football to the Blackcats' 16-yard line in the second period. However, the Rebels coughed up the ball with Rusty Young getting the fumble recovery. Two plays later, Morris ran into the end zone from 7 yards out and Prestonsburg led 14-0.

Turnovers continued to plague the Rebels as Matt Lafferty picked off an Adam Coleman pass on a first down play.

On the first play from scrimmage in the third period, Morris scored his third TD of the game on a 67-yard romp around right end. Quarterback Mike Castle passed for the two-point conversion for a 22-0 game.

Allen Central got on the board in the third period when Tackett's burst of speed allowed him to run 69 yards for a touchdown.
Morris ran his fourth touchdown in the final period, a 32-yard run that gave Prestonsburg a 28-6 lead.

It was Tackett again who found his way through some would-be tacklers as he raced 80 yards for the touchdown. His two-point conversion run made it a 28-14 game.

Jones made it a 36-12 game with a 3-yard touchdown run for Prestonsburg. He also ran the conversion play.

Tackett took the kickoff and ran the ball 73 yards before being dragged down on the three. Allen Central ran two plays before the game ended.

Castle was one-of-three in passing. Coleman had no completions on five throws.

The Rebels fumbled twice and Prestonsburg once. The Blackcats were flagged once for 5 yards in penalties. The Rebels were penalized three times for 15 yards.

Letton optimistic as...

Gloomy picture painted for Hyden's return to Blackcats

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Prestonsburg Blackcats received a nasty jolt to their football program this past Friday night when halfback Seth Hyden went down with an injury to his right knee in the second period of the Whitesburg game. Hyden had taken a hardoff from quarterback Thomas Ratliff and was moving up the side lines when he ran into an official. Hyden was carried off the field where he was diagnosed with a peritension of the knee. Hyden was taken to the hospital for examination and then Saturday morning he was transported to the Sports Center in Lexington.

"They painted a pretty gloomy picture for us," said Betsy Hyden, Seth's mother. "He's in tremendous pain Friday night. Alan (Dr. Alan Hyden) x-rayed the knee and found there were no broken bones."

Mrs. Hyden said that the Sports Center told them that surgery was needed and the team will be out on his feet by April.

"It has about killed us," she said. "They told us to keep it on it. The kid has been devastated by it, but his attitude is better and more positive now."

"He has been pain-free since Saturday and, while there was still some swelling in the knee, he was able to sit in his chair this morning (Monday). We are just holding on to hope," said Mrs. Hyden, and praying that the Lord will take care of it. We came back Saturday and worked at the film.

"The game and we had to laugh when he hit that referee," he said. "I asked him how it felt to be down on the official and he said that he had tried to go around him."

While the picture may look gloomy for the Blackcats, Prestonsburg coach Bill Letton believes that Hyden will return before the regular season ends. "The ill will sound on his injury is that there isn't any set," said Coach Letton. "We don't know the extent of the injury. He says that it doesn't hurt him and that's a good sign. I believe that he will be back sooner than people think."

Letton said that Hyden would be out this Friday against Beltry, but he would not see if his standout running back would be out any longer. "If there were torn ligaments, I believe that it would be painful," said Letton.

Hyden said that his swollen knee just "feels tight."

"We don't really know how bad it is," said the senior back. "I have to go for more tests in two weeks."

While many is concerned, his coach remains optimistic and he looks for his back to return before the play-

Bassin' with the Pros

A hard worker!

STUDY WATER CLARITY WHEN LOOKING FOR BASS

The bass pros say finding bass is usually more difficult than catching them, and one of the keys they use to locate fish is studying water clarity. "I believe water clarity is really the number one factor in determining where bass are located," says Denny Brauer of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff. "Water clarity can tell you how deep bass will be located, whether they're active or tight to cover, and even lure choice and color."

"Surprisingly, he adds, water clarity is often overlooked by bass fishermen when they're hunting fish.

"The basic rule is the more dingy or off-colored the water, the more shallow bass will be," explained Brauer, "while the more clear the water is, the deeper the fish will be."

"At the same time, bass in dingy water tend to be more active, while those in clear water hold tighter to cover."

"That's why, on some of the clear lakes we fish, we'll run great distances just to find off-colored water. We know those bass will usually be more active and aggressive."

Studying water clarity can also help a fisherman determine lure choice and color, adds the Evinrude Pro.

"In dingy, off-colored water where the bass are going to be more shallow, a lure like a spinnerbait or crankbait that makes a lot of vibration normally brings the best results," says Brauer. "In that type of water, gold and chartreuse are usually better colors, too."

"On the other hand, in clear water, smaller lures like plastic worms and jigs usually work better because the bass see them more readily. The natural colors like brown and blacks are preferred."

Cloud cover and wind can occasionally have the same effect on fish as water clarity, notes Brauer.

"In clear water, wind really helps bring the bass shallow and make them more active," he says. "The ripple on the water cuts down on light penetration and the bass leave the heavy cover and start roaming more."

"Cloud cover can also be a plus in clear water because it seems to give the bass a sense of security. They move about more and become more active."

Dingy, off-colored water should not be confused with muddy water, cautions Brauer. Extremely muddy water, in which lures cannot be seen a foot below the surface, frequently has the opposite effect and makes bass extremely inactive.

"When you have to fish really muddy water, look for vegetation such as moss, milfoil, hydrilla, or even shoreline brush, and fish very shallow," he advises.

The service experts at OMC recommend bass boaters and other high performance enthusiasts install a water pressure gauge on their boat. Outboards can lose water pressure if the motor is trimmed or raised too high, or if the water intake is covered with weeds or mud, and this can lead to overheating. A water pressure gauge also gives earlier warning of trouble than an engine temperature gauge.

NIGHT FISHING SHOULD BE PRODUCTIVE NOW

If things that go "bump" in the middle of the night don't bother you, then perhaps fishing after dark is something you should consider now and in the weeks ahead.

"Night fishing from early spring throughout the summer and into the fall months is one of the best ways I know to catch some huge stringers of bass," says Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler Ron Shuffield, a longtime fan of after-dark fishing.

"Bass move shallow to feed after the sun goes down and the later the night ends," he says. "You can fish the very same places you worked during the day without a strike and have excellent action."

Shuffield's favorite night fishing lure is a 1/2 ounce solid black spinnerbait with a single size four to six nickel Colorado blade. He adds a white or black/blue pork trailer, and casts to any type of cover he can find along the shoreline.

"I think one of the keys is casting and retrieving parallel to the shore rather than casting straight toward the bank," he explains. "I believe bass come shallow to feed and patrol back and forth along the shoreline so you have a better chance of intercepting them if you work parallel, too."

The Johnson pro aims his casts at any potential bass corner the shoreline might offer, such as logs, weeds, rocks, and flooded timber. Each of these, he feels, will hide baitfish and thus possibly attract bass.

"I don't key on any one type of cover the way you often do during the day," he explains. "I believe night fish are roving bass that have come shallow for one reason, which is to feed. They aren't holding tight to anything."

Shuffield lets the bass tell him how to retrieve. He stops, starts, and bumps cover with his spinnerbait until he gets a strike. A hard, solid strike tells him he can retrieve moderately fast because the bass are really active. "A lighter strike tells him to retrieve more slowly."

Shuffield's favorite night fishing times are three days prior to and three days after the full moon. Moon phases aside, however, he enjoys after-dark fishing whenever he can go.

"I really prefer the period around a full moon because not only do the bass seem to bite a little better, there is more light to see the shoreline and cover," he says.

"I don't know if the bass can see any better or not during a full moon. I just know they come into shallow water and they're usually pretty active."

An extension handle is available from OMC System Matched Parts and Accessories which fits all late model Johnson and Evinrude tiller control electric positioning motors. It's made of aluminum with a nylon sleeve that locks over the tiller handle of the motor, staying secure without screws or bolts. It adds 18 inches of reach to the handle.

Roberts had seven tackles in the game with three assists. Craig Hamilton finished with three tackles and Brent Akers had four first hits, Jason Hamilton had three solo hits and two assists.

Hamilton was 10 of 16 in passing for 210 yards.

Cloch Derosselt stated that the remainder of the season will rest squarely on his team's two lines.

"Our success or failure the rest of the season will be on the shoulders of our offensive and defensive lines," he said.

The Bobcats (2-1) will regroup before hosting East Carter this Friday night at the Lloyd Hamilton Athletic Complex.

Roberts to defend title Heritage Festival; places second at Magoffin

Veteran runner Rick Roberts is back on track as a participant in the various races that are being held in conjunction with festivals in the area.

Roberts has had a busy past two weeks and will defend his title in this weekend's Mountain Heritage Festival at Jenkins.

Roberts, who has been physically down, has made the racing tour the past two weekends and unsuccessfully defended two other titles that he held.

At Salyersville, Roberts lost last year's Founders Day title to R.B. Shepherd of Stockbridge, Michigan. Shepherd posted a time of 16:26 to place first in the 5K run at Salyersville. Roberts ran in second place finishing at 18:04.

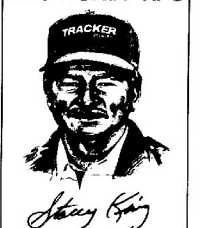

The veteran runner also held Hindman's Ginger Bread title for the past two years. But due to a change in the race format, Roberts had to settle for fourth place this year.

"Year before last when I ran in the race, it was a 10K run," said Roberts. "Then last year when I won it, it was a 5K run. This year they changed it again to a five-mile run."

Roberts ran a 30:36 to take fourth place. Brandon Gayheart placed first at 27:47.

Roberts won first place in last year's Heritage Festival in Jenkins with a time of 10:15. The Paintsville runner will defend his title in the two-mile run this Saturday.

CLASSIC TRACKER PRO FISHIN' TIPS

One of the easiest ways you can improve your fishing success is to let the lake pick your baits. More precisely, you'll catch more bass more often if you wait to hit the water to decide what to throw and where.

Anglers sometimes make the mistake of settling on a specific bait or approach to fishing before they ever leave home. More often than not, they're disappointed because they encounter conditions that would have favored another lure or another style of fishing.

Wait until you get to the lake to figure out your plan for the day. Check water clarity, temperature, and weather conditions, then choose the lures and techniques that will put the odds in your favor.

The 1993 Classic is Stacy King's fourth Bass Master Classic.

Mountain Heritage fitness walk and run set for September 18

JUST SOMETHING WE DID

Perhaps it's a sad commentary on my youth, but when I was growing up in Muddy Branch, before there were plays to cruise or 24-hour-a-day rock videos on MTV, the only two reasons I was ever allowed to stay up late was when mom and dad would let me go to Bill Hampton's on Saturday night to watch wrestling on TV, or when they'd let me, especially in summertime, sit up with somebody dead.

In those days it was absolutely unheard of — and probably even considered un-Christian — to leave a body at the funeral home, and the boys in the community would really feel important when we'd (usually uninvited) jump in and help the funeral home man unload those battle-scarred, wooden fold-up chairs from the back of his pickup and set them around the walls in a neighbor's living room.

Looking back, I can't imagine why our parents let us do it. I don't know if they actually thought we wanted to sit up out of respect for the deceased's family, or if they really knew that we were just looking for an excuse to stay up late. For whatever reason, though, they'd let us, and along about dark, we'd (both boys and girls) start gathering in at the home where the body had been carried for viewing.

Talking about it now, nearly 50 years later, it really sounds bad — even disrespectful. But it wasn't. Sitting with the dead was simply something we did when somebody died, and there were probably as many reasons for doing it as there were kids who did it.

Now, I can't speak for the motives of the others, and perhaps I may attest to the slaps I'm in now, but one thing I always looked forward to was the food.

Extra tables would have to be set up in the kitchen, and the adults would sit around in the front room (or some other room adjacent to where the body was), and younger folks would congregate outside on the porch and steps. We knew enough not to make much noise, so while the folks inside would sing hymns, — and even sometimes have a complete church service — we'd quietly catch lightning bugs or play a subdued version of kick-the-can (between, of course, our visits to the kitchen via the back door).

By about eleven, or so, most of the grown-ups, except for the two or three men who'd planned to stay the night, would have all gone home. If we were really lucky, there'd be a good storyteller or two among the grown-ups who'd stayed, and we'd — between visits to the kitchen via the back door — sit on the porch and listen through the screen door as they'd smoke and drink black coffee and tell tales of how it used to be before John L. Lewis.

By midnight, our naps, which at one time had swollen to a dozen or more, would have diminished to a mere three or four boys who lived real close, and we'd — between visits to the kitchen via the back door — sit and doze and wait for morning.

It wasn't something we talked about much, and it certainly wasn't something we'd plan nor look forward to, but sitting up with the dead was just simply something we did back then.

Labor of Love

When Jane Wallace goes out in town, she is greeted like an old friend by virtual strangers. And she loves it.

"A nice woman at the store said, 'You don't know me, but let me hug you,'" Jane recalled, her eyes sparkling at the recollection. "She hugged me and said that I gave her school shots."

Another time, she remembered, "A couple smiled at me in an aisle at the store. They came over and said they were twins. I had given them their first shots and had watched them grow up."

Jane, 82, touched many lives during her 35 years as a nurse in Floyd County. Although she retired in 1976, she has not been forgotten.

Former patients usually recognize her and when they do "they make me feel like I've done a little good in this world," she smiled.

The "little good" she has done includes working 19 years as a county health nurse for the Floyd County Health Department. And her work, which took her into small outlying communities and hollows of the county, meant a lot to the people she came in contact with. And the people meant a lot to her.

During an interview at her home on Riverside Drive in Prestonsburg, she brought out pictures taken during her days as a public health nurse. As she talked about her experiences, her sunny disposition shone through, and she smiled and laughed a lot.

A native of Stanton, Jane believes she was destined to become a nurse. "My grandfather was a doctor at Campton and Hazel Green. It was in my blood."

While a nursing student at Berea College in the 1930s, she met her future husband, Robert Wallace, a student from Floyd County. They married in 1934. That same year she graduated as a registered nurse and became a nursing supervisor at Berea Hospital. This was the first of her many supervisory positions that capitalized on one of her chief assets — organizational skills. "I always loved to organize," she said.

Two years later, the Wallaces moved to Floyd County. Robert had a teaching position at Wayland and Jane was drafted by Dr. Daniel into working as supervisory nurse at the old Prestonsburg General Hospital in West Prestonsburg.

"I was the only RN," she said. "Dr. Daniel was the doctor. I helped with every surgery, every baby delivery, did blood transfusions and ordered supplies for the hospital. I worked there three years, 16 hours a day. I had to quit. You can just stand so much."

Also, she wanted to spend more time with her family, which by now included a son, Gabriel, and a daughter, Zella.

But she didn't stop working as a nurse. For a while she worked at the health department and then as a private duty nurse at area hospitals.

In 1957, she joined ranks with the U.S. Public Health Service as a supervising nurse on a special health project in Floyd and part of Letcher County.

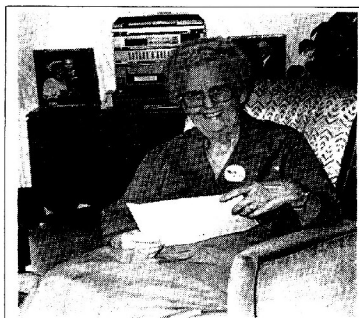

"The Public Health Service had heard through the Central Division for Infectious Diseases that there was a problem of diarrhea in the county," she recalled.

Health officials thought the problem was caused by shigella, a microorganism that causes acute diarrhea. To be certain, public health service workers surveyed the population for intestinal parasites.

"My job was to schedule the visits," Jane said. "I had a map and made dates on it for where workers were to go."

Jane joined workers in the field. "As supervising nurse, I would take

Ask Dr. Bubba

Editor's Note: Dr. Bubba is not licensed, practicing therapist but has earned Ph.D.s in analytical psychology and over-the-road tractor-trailer driving from the prestigious MIT/Stanley Institute, where their motto is "We're the only school in the whole entire nation where you can learn to drive the big rigs AND psychoanalyze the little idiots in the Tie-dies who try to cut us off in traffic and up splattered on yer windshield like a big ol' fiberglass mosquito."

Dear Dr. Bubba: I recently became head manager of a major corporation. The job's going well so far, but I have this one employee who seems to think that since I'm new, I'm not really the boss and HE can tell ME what to do. He's a real asset to the company so I don't want to be too stern with him and make him quit, but there are times when I just want to strangle him, his wife, his parents and all his friends. What should I do? Aggravated in Albuquerque

Dear Aggravated: I am't never had this exact problem, but certainly understand that part 'bout wantin' ta strangle somebody. Personalities often clash in the work place. But on the other hand, maybe yer employee don't understand yer feelings. My advice is that you sit down and talk to this guy an' explain, politely but firmly, that yer the boss an' he ain't, but that yer always open to constructive comments an' suggestions. With any luck, you two can then come to a mutual understandin' an' carry on a king-lastin', healthy professional relationship. But if that don't work, shoot a little clubbin' never hurt nobody.

Dear Dr. Bubba: Here's a good question for you: What's the deal with Burt and Lori? Just Wondering, Webbville

Dear Just: Here's an even better question: Who gives a big rat's rear end 'bout it? 'bout when two people fall outta love with each other an' a carn', givin' relationship falls sway ta petty jealousy, bitter betrayal an' public insults an' accusations. But really, don'tcha think Burt was starting to look a little too much like Ricardo Montalban's dead twin brother? Besides, I wouldn't worry 'bout 'em too much. Burt's still got his strange nose an' hair club for men commercials an' Lori, well, she accepted my invite last week an' is about to become the next Mrs. Bubba. We'll both be out to the dump next Sunday, never we'll put on a charity rat-shedding tournament an' will be available for autographs at five bucks a pop. All proceeds will benefit the Bubba Corp Enterprises International Ltd. Home For Wayward Girls (themselves, ya know).

That's about all the space we got for this week, kids. Be sure an' tune in next week for the further exciting adventures of "The Young an' the Pifful," an' keep them cards, letters an' "revelain" photographs pourin' in ta "Ask Dr. Bubba," go The Big Sandy News, Louisa, Ky. 41230. And, y'know, a little cash ever' now an' then wouldn't hurt none neither.

Kim's Korner

Confusion set in last week when the Wheelwright reunion was not the topic of this column.

I received more phone calls than Carter has liver pills, wanting to know "why" I didn't write about the reunion.

For last week's issue, my column had to be turned in on Thursday, so you see, our reunion had not even taken place at the time.

However, we can now get down to the issue.

As my family and I were headed toward the school grounds, the first person I ran into was "coach" Frankie Francis. Now, seeing coach Francis out and about, mostly on the golf course, ha! ha!, is not unusual. But seeing him standing in front of good ol' WHHS, the memories began to flow. I remember the curfew coach Francis used to administer to his team during my yesteryears, and how some of us "hated" that curfew, too.

As we moved on closer to the middle building, I was in awe at the crowd who had gathered for this event.

I was getting more bugs than I've ever had in my entire life. Seeing Ruth Ron, my first grade teacher, was great! She hasn't changed since the day I entered Osborne Elementary. I can remember vividly Mrs. Ruaney's ruler, and the sting in the palm of my hand.

I also remember why I got that "ruler sting," and folks it hasn't sent me to the couch, either. Mrs. Woody was there looking as classy as ever. I always thought this lady dressed so classy and, just like fifteen years ago, I could smell the sweet aroma of her perfume. Ms. Blankenship still looked the same as she did the day we entered her sophomore English class. The guys loved English, let me tell ya!

Mr. Newman, Harold that is, what can I say? The teacher most known for his nose. Gave me licks with a wooden paddle the first day of my freshman year.

And for what? Bouncing into his biology class and saying "Hi, Harold" after he'd warned "K.J. and I all summer as he helped my Dad remodel our kitchen, we could only address him as Mr. Newman at school. Oh, well!

We continued to mingle through the crowd, I ran into Mrs. Jamerson.

The first thing that flashed in my mind was a football game when our cheerleading squad was having trouble with offense and defense.

"Girls, girls, girls," Mrs. Jamerson told us, "you've got to learn the difference between defense and offense!"

Hey, it was hard to see which team had that little brown ball especially when they were piled on the field. Anyway, we finally got the hang of it.

I missed Mr. Jamerson somehow, but boy, could I see him clearly in mind, as we toured the principal's office. And you know, I could even hear Sharon Parker blowing that whistle over the intercom. How ear-piercing that was. But, had Sharon not blown a whistle during a bullgame, bringing both teams to a dead halt, Mr. J. wouldn't have had her blow the whistle at school all day. What memories!

The next bear hug I got was from Aileen Adams. Prettier than I remembered fifteen years ago. This lady used to pile my plate full in the lunchroom and I remember always seeing a smile on her face, just as she had all day at the reunion.

There's no possible way I could name all of you. Scott Perry would kill me, but I'll try and get as many of you in this column as I possibly can.

Kenny Bartuka made my day telling me he was in the column every week in Maine. He said it kept him in touch with home.

The Wilkinsons were there in person, after hearing from them through letters, was great.

Benita Riley, Keith Caudill, Stevie Little, Little Bill, Sherri Weaton, alumni of '74. What a good looking group that was. I think my friends and I looked up to this class more than any other Judy Snyder wasn't there and I missed her, too! Judy and Benita were our heroines in our yesterday.

I can see Benita in those awesome feature twister uniforms. Especially that lime green one.

Next K.J. and I ran into coach Daniels. I've written of "Coach" on different subjects in this column, and the more I read, the more I had caused him major trouble, especially with cheerleaders. Sorry, Coach! I hold some wonderful memories of this man. The night the crowd kneed football back to the paddling I got for the "Three Beach" episode. How I hope my daughters skip reading this column.

Randall and Cathy Ferguson Johnson, Jeff Raley and Dewey Ray were there from the class of '77. Seeing those guys brought memories flashing brighter than a neon sign.

A couple of memories included was the night WHS vs. P-burg and Dewey ended up with a broken leg.

Another was a pop bottle landing on his Vega window at school one day, accidentally of course.

My job my. What one remember.

And to my amazement, a K.J. and I turned the corner of the middle building, who did we see, but my mother, class of '59, and Jack Johnson, class of '55 doing the litterbug in the middle of the school grounds. And to beat all, Al Steinhilb was yelling "way to go, Manaw."

Present at the meeting were Hope Whitten, Susie Clifton, Beverly Hackworth, Myrtle Allen, Claudine Johns, Wanda Elstie, Dorothy Osborne, Luena Wallen, Paulena Owens and Mabel Jean LeMaster. The next regular meeting will be September 21 at 7 p.m.

LOVE IS A BLANKET

By Eugenia Miller

Love is a blanket. That tells me he loves me that wraps me up and keeps me warm when I'm cold and all around. If all comes down to the very right spot.

Love is a blanket. He makes me feel at home in his very heart. But when he's gone I'm left out in the cold where love can't be found.

Love is a blanket. I often get over him. But his love is his gift. For hours of sadness. If he leaves me here alone somewhere out in the cold where love could never be found.

Love is a blanket. The heart he's one knows. Knows the sign of living in the warmth of his heart. For when I'm near. I'll always be where joy is found.

Love is a blanket. That warms the soul for when you're without that special someone you just fall to tears.

Love is a blanket. That can never be controlled by anyone who succeeds. With their hearts they'll find that when there is heartache.

Love is a blanket. When your loved one leaves you, you're lost in the cold. You don't know where to go.

or where love is found.

Love is a blanket. If your loved one is next to you right now.

You've got love as a blanket wrapped around you. His heart desires for you has been there the whole night through.

Love is a blanket. Of burning snows. When the snow burns you're out to get what you need.

For you need no one to tell you you need love.

Love is a blanket. Of freezing cold and ice. You need someone to comfort you and tell you that all is nice.

When you're without that special someone you need someone to love you like a blanket.

Because love is a warm blanket of heart and soul.

Labor of love

one or two workers with me and the doctor would have a car and take two or three with him. I learned to get around the county. It wasn't any problem."

Initial tests revealed that the illness was not caused by shigella but by intestinal parasites. Unsanitary privies and polluted wells were the major culprits.

The parasite infestation was not a new public health problem. A 1937 health department survey found that 65 percent of rural children were infested with one or more types of intestinal parasites.

The treatment program consisted of two rounds of medication, which the workers administered to patients in their homes.

While making the rounds to the homes, Jane got to know the families she treated.

"The people were the sweetest, so nice. They made me feel real welcome. I would have felt at home to stay all night anywhere."

"It was an experience you could hardly explain, especially getting to know and there were so many good people in the county. It makes me feel good that I was at least doing my part in trying to help them."

When that program ended, she chose to work for the health department rather than work as a private duty nurse. "On private duty, I had 24-hour duty. I had no time at home. At the health department, I had holidays and weekends off. And I liked to be with people."

This was during the 1960s and up until the early 1970s, most health department work was done by nurses traveling around the county. Her previous experience prepared her for the work.

worked other areas as well. We helped each other... I worked out of Dr. Osborne's office at Bypro. I gave shots and did home visits. We had a baby clinic and mothers brought their children in. They knew everyone. I learned who was sick and I'd go visit them. I drove an average of ninety to a hundred miles a day.

"Tuberculosis was one of the diseases we had to fight the hardest," she recalled. "In the area, there was not a home that didn't have tuberculosis. The people tried so hard and we whipped it."

In addition to treating outbreaks of disease, much of her work was preventive. She gave vaccinations against typhoid, smallpox and diphtheria at the clinic and at schools.

She also worked at special emergency clinics. "Typhoid fever — we had to watch that. After floods we had to give typhoid shots. We would set up a special clinic for them."

Although she was fearless when it came to traveling alone, two incidents stuck in her mind.

"One day I was at Weeksbury and it started snowing. I got out in my car and there was three inches of snow on the road. I was petrified. I knew I would slide over the mountain. I came to the top and there was no snow on the other side. I told them at the health department that I was snowed out and they laughed at me."

Another time "I had to take serum to Dr. Osborne's office. I had to go through a picket line at Drift. They wouldn't let people through. I had to identify myself and they let me through. I could have gotten shot. I didn't have enough sense to be afraid." While she continued her career, her husband chose the academic life. Now retired, he was a professor and librarian at Prestonsburg Community College. Their daughter Zella Wells is a math teacher at Johnson Cent-

Colorful tree leaves not related to frost

When Jack Frost hits, as he surely will each fall, many vacationers and residents will take to the hills of Kentucky to soak up the beauty of the red and yellow, the orange and amber forest leaves.

The beauty's there all right, said Doug McLaren, Extension forestry specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

It's just that Jack Frost has nothing to do with it. Chemicals do.

"It looks like someone took a paintbrush and painted the forest," McLaren said. "That's a quotation we hear a lot each fall as visitors marvel at the range of different colors in the hardwood forests of Kentucky."

He added, "Although people may credit Jack Frost for the autumn color change, actually the weather has nothing to do with it."

Instead, he said, trees change colors according to complex chemical formulas. Each tree has its own fall color bound up in the chemicals in its sap which determines what color the leaves will turn.

"Iron, magnesium, phosphorous or sodium in the tree, along with the acidity of the chemicals in the leaves, cause the leaves to turn amber, gold, red, orange or maybe just fade from green to brown," McLaren said. "Scarlet oaks, red maples and sumacs have a particularly acidic sap which causes leaves to turn bright red."

The leaves of some ash tree varieties which thrive in the limestone areas of central Kentucky turn a royal purple-blue, he said.

What causes the color changes if the weather doesn't?

McLaren said a chemical check inside the tree starts up when the days grow shorter and the nights longer. This "check" releases a hormone which restricts the flow of sap to each leaf. As the sap slows, chlorophyll, the chemical which gives leaves their green color in spring and summer, disappears which creates the bright fall colors.

As the sap continues to slow, the leaf will soon die and fall to earth, McLaren said. But their jobs are not yet over. As the forest begins its long winter slumber, those leaves begin to enrich the soil and provide nutrients for future generations of trees.

For more information on forestry in Kentucky, contact the county Cooperative Extension Service.

Black shank explosion valuable teaching tool

The recent explosion of black shank is a valuable teaching tool for next year's tobacco crop.

"It's not too soon for growers to use this experience as they begin to prepare for the '94 tobacco crop," said Bill Maksymowicz, Extension tobacco specialist at the University of Kentucky's Research and Education Center in Princeton. "Keep the disease as isolated as possible and use varieties with resistance to the specific black shank race present in your fields."

To isolate the disease, spray, cultivate, chop, and harvest fields with known black shank last. Always sanitize clothing and equipment with a high pressure wash, followed by a 10 percent chlorine bleach solution soak. Burn stalks or return to infested fields at stripping time; scattering black-shank-infected stalks on the farm will spread the disease.

"The clock has run out for 1.8 hybrids used in fields where Race 1 black shank is present; these hybrids just don't work," he said. "Other varieties have resistance in both races and have as good if not better yield and quality potential than older varieties. Check variety trials in your area and visit other producers who are growing some of the newer varieties."

Black shank has hit the dark tobaccos particularly hard, according to Maksymowicz.

"If a grower is not able to rotate and is unwilling to switch to black shank resistant varieties, it might be worthwhile to rent land to raise the crop," he said. "Another prospect is to explore the possibility of buying As disease activity increases in an area, growers need to learn how to handle resistant cultivars so future productivity is not hurt."

Maksymowicz gave these recommendations for optimum productivity with resistant dark types:

- Let the tobacco ripen as fully as possible before cutting.
- Do not mix varieties in the barn or shed.

- "It might be necessary to almost 'sweat' the tobacco to bring the color through, so growers will have to work the barn more closely.

- When the color comes through, a harder fire is required to bring stems down

GINSENG HUNTING IN EASTERN KENTUCKY

It's that time of year when Eastern Kentuckians take to the woods in search of the elusive Ginseng. The plant is easily recognized in the fall by its bright red berries sitting above a stalk of 3 large, thin and pointed oblong leaves. The word Ginseng comes from the Greek words gins and eng, which means "fall healing." Ginseng grows in rich and cool woods from Quebec, Canada, to Florida and as far west as Oklahoma. The root of the Ginseng plant is purchased by the Chinese and is used extensively by them in their medicine.

Ginseng hunters are reminded that digging Ginseng is prohibited on all Federal Lands and is a violation of Federal Law. Maximum fines of not more than $500 or imprisonment for not more than 6 months, or both may be imposed on violators. Visitors are reminded that all U.S. Army Corps of Engineer lands, as well as the Jenny Wiley State Park, at Dewey Lake are federal property.

If you have any questions, please feel free to call the Resource Manager, Dewey Lake, Corps of Engineers Office, at 886-6709 or 789-4521.

Kentucky apples abundant and of excellent quality

Nearly perfect weather last spring has resulted in a bumper crop of apples for Kentucky producers.

"This year's crop is of good quality and quantity. Those who love apples need to make sure they visit their local orchard for the freshest, best tasting apples," said Jerry Brown, Extension horticulturist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The Gala variety is now ready and other varieties will be maturing in the coming weeks, he said.

Brown gave these tips for buying local apples:

- Pick your favorite type; take good care of them by handling them gently; and keep them cool. Depending on variety, apples may be stored through Thanksgiving and Christmas.

INVITATION TO BID

The Floyd County Board of Education is requesting bids for the repair of the Allen Central High School swimming pool.

All bids must be at the Floyd County Board of Education by 10:00 a.m. on September 17, 1993, for bid opening.

For specifications and further information, call Gregory Adams, Director of Facilities, at 886-2354.

INSPECTION PERIOD FOR THE PROPERTY TAX ASSESSMENT ROLL

The Floyd County real property tax roll will be opened for inspection from September 20 through October 5. Under the supervision of the property valuation administrator or one of the deputies, any person may inspect the tax roll.

This is the January 1, 1993, assessment on which state, county and school taxes for 1993 will be due about September 15, 1993.

The tax roll is in the office of the property valuation administrator in the county courthouse and may be inspected between the hours 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Any taxpayer desiring to appeal an assessment on real property made by the PVA must first request a conference with the PVA or a designated deputy. The conference may be held prior to or during the inspection period.

Any taxpayer still aggrieved by an assessment on real property, after the conference with the PVA or designated deputy, may appeal to the county board of assessment appeals.

The taxpayer can appeal his assessment by filing in person or sending a letter or other written petition stating the reasons for appeal, identifying the property and stating the taxpayer's opinion of the fair cash value of the property.

The appeal must be filed with the county clerk's office no later than one work day following the conclusion of the inspection period.

Any taxpayer failing to appeal to the county board of assessment appeals, or failing to appear before the board, either in person or by designated representative, will not be eligible to appeal directly to the Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals.

Appeals of personal property assessments shall not be made to the county board of assessment appeals. Personal property taxpayers shall be served notice under the provisions of KRS 132.450(4) and shall have the protest and appeal rights granted under the provisions of KRS 131.110.

The following steps should be taken when a taxpayer does not agree with the assessed value of personal property as determined by the office of property valuation administrator.

- (1) He must list under protest (for certification) what he believes to be the fair cash value of his property.
(2) He must file a written protest directly with the Department of Property Taxation within 30 days from the date of the notice of assessment.
(3) This protest must be in accordance with KRS 131.110.
(4) The final decision of the Revenue Cabinet may be appealed to the Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals.
