Board stalwart calls it quits

Eddie Billips will leave post a year before his term expires

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Three years after pulling off one of the biggest upsets in Floyd County's checkered political history, Eddie Billips is pulling out the checkered flag for an early dash across the finish line.

After Wednesday's special board meeting, Billips, whose four-year term expires December 1994, gave notice that he will resign effective October 20.

"I've had a lot of business obligations in the last six months which require a tremendous amount of my time," Billips said Wednesday. "That has cut down on the time I can give to this board. I know I have obligations as an elected official and a public servant, which is a position, rather than a career.

"It's been a real experience and it was just a matter of time," Billips added. "It's like the tomato that fell in love with a skunk in heat... I've had about all the fun I can stand."

Billips, a political novice, defeated 20-year incumbent James D. Adams for the District One board seat in the November 1990 general election.

Since taking office in January 1991, Billips has been an outspoken member of the board who strived to bring change to the Floyd system. During his three years on the board, Billips concentrated his efforts on getting a more accountable budget process implemented and on school construction issues.

Questions raised about school construction projects during Billips' tenure led to development of stricter state regulations governing school construction projects across the commonwealth.

Billips also lobbied for more emphasis on academics rather than athletics in the school system.

When asked what accomplishments he is most proud of, Billips cited the reorganization of the central office.

ANNOUNCING his resignation Wednesday evening, Eddie Billips noted he had "...had about all the fun I can stand."

Hammond seeks to drop out of vote suit

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond has asked the court and the state attorney general to permit his withdrawal as both the county's chief prosecutor and as the defense attorney for the county's board of elections on both civil and criminal issues involved in an ongoing legal dispute concerning last May's primary election.

Hammond's dual role in an election suit between the two Democratic candidates for Floyd County Judge-Executive was to be the topic Friday (today) of a hearing in Perry Circuit Court, where special Judge Douglas Combs was to decide if Hammond's position as a prosecutor and a defense attorney represented a conflict.

That issue could be moot if Hammond's withdrawal is allowed.

In his motion to withdraw, supported by letters to Floyd County Court Clerk Carla Boyd and the attorney general's office, Hammond contends that testimony offered by Dale McKinney, plaintiff in the civil case against incumbent county judge-executive John M. Stumbo, indicates that "probable cause exists that Mr. McKinney has violated the Kentucky Campaign Finance Election Laws."

Hammond says in his letter to the attorney general that he has considered McKinney to be "a valued friend" and that he is "blood related" to suit defendant John M. Stumbo. He adds that since he has "been called upon as County Attorney of Floyd County to provide representation in a dual role, I do not believe that either of these litigants or (the) general populace of Floyd County would think that even King Solomon would have the objectivity and wisdom to perform in this environment as County Attorney, to say nothing about the perception of my wisdom, ability and objectivity to do so."

Hammond notes in his letter to the attorney general that this is his third request to withdraw from the case, though in prior court appearances he had argued that his representation did not create any conflicts.

If his withdrawal is approved, Hammond will apparently be precluded from having an active role in any criminal prosecutions which may arise from the election suit. He has asked, too, that special counsel be appointed to defend the county board of elections in the civil case.

Panel is leaning to ITW okay

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

Area enthusiasts could be placing their bets on horse racing in Floyd County a good six months ahead of the planned opening of the county's very own racing facility, if an intertrack wagering request is approved by state officials.

Members of the State Racing Commission's Intertrack Wagering (ITW) committee are expected to recommend approval next month to a request from Mountain Racing to permit the local company to operate an ITW facility, beginning in January, at Centerstage nightclub in Prestonsburg.

That approval, however, will not come without some assurances from Mountain Racing that a proposed harness racing facility in Floyd County will be up and running by its July 1994 deadline.

Meeting Wednesday at the Kentucky Horse Park near Lexington, the three-member ITW committee got no such assurance from Mountain Racing attorney Julian Carroll, who told the panel he could not guarantee that a court action for the harness track's grandstand would be in place by No-

Witnesses say work done on private land

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Round two of depositions in a Floyd County vote fraud case against Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo were held Thursday in Prestonsburg and, although no damaging testimony was given against Stumbo, there were allegations made about county employees working on private property.

Delbert Denver Mullins, 60, of Wolf Hollow in Arkansas, testified Thursday that six months prior to the May primary election county workers built a bridge—twice—to homes on private property.

Mullins said that the bridge, which leads to the homes of Vernon and Tandy Sammons, had to be replaced when a county truck loaded with gravel broke through it. Mullins said the gravel was being taken to put on a private road to Vernon Sammons' home.

When the bridge was replaced, Mullins said, county workers had to encroach on his property to replace the bridge.

Mullins also said that former Floyd Magistrate Eddie Caudill was with county workers when the truck crashed through the bridge.

Ed Caudill said that they wouldn't get any more land unless they paid for it," Mullins said.

Caudill lost his magistrate's position when he was convicted of possession of a forged instrument in July 1985. The charge against Caudill was the result of a state investigation into Floyd County government in 1984.

Caudill lost an appeal of his conviction and turned himself in at the Floyd County Jail in January 1991 to begin serving a one-year jail term. Due to health problems, Caudill did not have to serve his sentence.

Stumbo's attorney, Arnold Turner Jr., asked Mullins who he supported in the May primary.

When Mullins said he supported Dale McKinney, Turner said, "oh, you're the one."

Mullins said he knew the road to the Sammons' residences was private property because owned the property on the other side of the bridge.

State says horseshoe on the other foot

State racing officials are alleging that the horseshoe is on the other foot in response to a dispute between a Floyd County corporation and the developers of a proposed harness track near Ashland.

The commission, which has been accused of bias against the development of a Floyd County harness track, returned the favor Wednesday by hinting that the Floyd County group was trying to block the Ashland project.

Mountain Racing, the group behind the Floyd County development, has protested the Ashland plan on a contention that the Floyd County track was licensed first and permitted, by law, the authority to veto the Ashland project because it is situated within a 75-mile radius of the Floyd County facility.

Mountain Racing attorney Julian Carroll has demanded compensation from the Ashland developers for allowing that facility to operate within the 75-mile boundary.

The state attorney general's office, however, has said the Floyd County track has no authority to block the Ashland development, but Carroll has vowed to take the matter to court, if necessary.

Board to follow LPC proposals

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County school board members ended a three-month stalemate Wednesday by voting to adopt a school facility plan recommended by the district's Local Planning Committee.

Board members and the Local Planning Committee (LPC) have been at odds over the new four-year building plan since July when the board voted to cancel an addition to Betsy Layne Elementary.

LPC members did not include the Betsy Layne project in their new plan because they assumed the 21-classroom addition project would be completed.

When the board voted to abandon the project, LPC members recommended that the board proceed with the Betsy Layne school. When the board rejected the LPC recommendation and placed the Betsy Layne project lower on the priority list, that put the two bodies at odds and brought the state board of education into the picture.

Board member Brent Clark argued that a middle school should be built in the Betsy Layne area before a classroom addition. There were also questions from the state about the legality of the architect and construction manager contracts for the project.

A group of Betsy Layne citizens began lobbying to have the 21-classroom addition remain as a number one priority and took their case before the state school board.

The new four-year building plan was submitted to the state school board for approval in September, but state board members sent the plan

Duff Elementary celebrates rank among most-improved

by Terry Spears
Floyd County Schools

Celebrating success is an important part of the Kentucky Education Reform Act. Duff Elementary School celebrated sweet success Thursday.

Duff eighth-grade students scored some of the biggest gains in the state over a one-year period, from 1991-92 to 92-93, according to KIRIS test results released last week by the state Department of Education. Duff fourth-graders also improved substantially.

The impressive one-year improvement catapulted the school into the limelight as the subject of a feature story in the state's largest newspaper, The Courier Journal of Louisville.

As a result of the test scores and ensuing recognition, Principal Ralph O'Quinn scheduled a day-long celebration Thursday, beginning with a school assembly and magician's show in the gymnasium and ending with parties in the classrooms Thursday afternoon.

"We felt like this group should know how well we appreciate what they've done," said O'Quinn. "This is our way of saying, to the students, parents, teachers and other schools, that this is wonderful."

O'Quinn praised the students, teachers and parents in the assembly. Student Christopher Fultz, a fifth-grader, presented O'Quinn with a plaque to show the students' appreciation of their principal.

Duff's gains mean the school is well on its way to achieving its "threshold," or goals established by the state for improvement. Schools which achieve their threshold in the 1993-94 (current) school year will receive rewards.

O'Quinn told The Courier-Journal that teachers at the school have learned how to teach students "in ways that align with the assessments." For instance, one recent class project had students writing poems about apples, calculating the circumference of apples, and studying the American states where apples are an important crop.

"Hands-on" education is the cornerstone of education reform. KIRIS tests measure how well students can apply knowledge and think, said O'Quinn, not just how well they can memorize facts and demonstrate basic skills.

Officials won't say if or when rate hike likely

by Ronnie Parsons
Staff Writer

County residents could see their garbage bills nearly double in the near future, but solid waste officials aren't saying when, why or if such a rate hike is likely.

The rate issue arose Wednesday in a meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council's finance and revenue committee, which touched briefly on a report that county residential rates could escalate from $8 to $14 per month and the effects that increase might have on city customers.

County Solid Waste Commission chairman Bob McAninch would neither confirm nor deny Thursday that a rate hike is being considered by the commission, but said any increase in the county would have no effect on Prestonsburg residents.

Stately advice

Mark Ryles, director of Facilities Management for the state Department of Education, spoke to Floyd County School Board Members Wednesday concerning proper procedures and planning for school construction projects.

back and asked for a consensus between the LPC, the board and the community on the plan, particularly the Betsy Layne addition.

The LPC recommendation adopted Wednesday by the board calls for a new Martin/Maytown Elementary that the Betsy Layne Elementary addition remain a priority one project...

Under state guidelines, the $75 million must be used for projects on the current facilities plan.

On Thursday, the school board called a special board meeting on Friday 10/8 at 8:30 p.m. at the central office to reapprove the Betsy Layne Elementary project and a Betsy Layne Middle School.

sent her to the board to ask for ITW dates.

Committee chairman Jim Parks disputed that claim, saying that the commission was not a part of ITW just because you have a track, saying we are not a track.

Member Greg Hultin suggested that Mountain Racing file with the state to get a temporary ITW facility at the track's site of Race 3 and a "good faith" gesture that the racing facility would be completed.

Intertrack was not permitted at Center Stage in late 1992 but allowed in 1993 when Mountain Racing's license was not renewed.

While the racing commission was said to be leaning toward approval of the ITW dates for Floyd County, commission chairman G. Wayne Lyster issued a strong warning that the track must be completed and "every last nail" in place by July or the ITW dates would be revoked.

Witnesses

"How can it be a public road, when I own part of it?" Phillips asked. Alberto saying Thursday was election officer Brandon Thompson, who said he bought "two loads of gravel" from a county worker prior to the May election.

Thompson first testified that he paid the "haul bill," but later said he paid county worker Cline Woods $75 for one load of gravel and $20 for the second. Thompson said he paid Woods in cash and did not receive a receipt.

Thompson also said that fellow election officer Mike Jarrell left the polling place several times on the day of the election. Thompson said that officers were supposed to stay at the polling places during the election.

In response to a question from McKinney attorney, C.K. Belthausen, county road worker Bill Margstet testified that in the past he has removed "water" and "dirt" from private roads at the request of his supervisor, Mike Jarrell.

District Two Magistrate Jackie Edwards testified Thursday that he knew of no improprieties committed by Stumbo during the primary election.

"I didn't get a chance to get involved in the judge's race," Owens said. "I didn't have a lot of time to spare. I had my own race."

Owens also testified that candidates knew who worked at the polling places and that he knew that the ones who didn't support him would stay neutral.

Belthausen asked Owens why, when he first ran for office, he felt the need to have challengers in the polling places to police the election.

"I knew the game and I wanted to be sure I got a fair shake," Owens responded.

Belthausen asked if the May primary election was "clean" in Floyd County.

"There may not have been a clean election in Floyd County," Owens said. Owens was not asked to elaborate on that statement.

Also testifying Thursday were Larry and Clova Fuller who said they complained to Stumbo about county workers building a road on their private property.

Larry Fuller said that just prior to the May election county workers built a road on their property to a cemetery without their permission. Fuller said that another road to the cemetery already existed on Clova Fuller's brother's property.

Fuller said he and his wife, Clova, complained to Stumbo and he told them the work would stop, but Fuller and county workers returned to their property on May 22, the Saturday before the election.

Clova Fuller testified that the cemetery contained only the grave of her mother. Clova Fuller also said that her brother, Tony Scott, was a supporter of Stumbo's and that Tony Scott's nephew, Arnold "Poochie" Prater Jr., worked for the county road department.

City housing authority gets grant

by Ronnie Parsons Staff Writer

Prestonsburg Housing Authority to receive $218,400 from the Kentucky Office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"It's a pleasure to announce the award of 1993 Comprehensive Improvements Assistance Program funding for the Housing Authority."

The CIAP is essential to assure the continuation of decent and safe housing for the residents of the Housing Authority of Prestonsburg, said Ginger Van Ness, manager of the Kentucky HUD office.

The $218,400 will be used for continuation of modernization of Green Acres, Indian Hills and Dixie Manor.

Over $11 million under HUD's 1993 CIAP program was allocated to 29 public housing authorities throughout Kentucky.

Learning to feel great

Floyd Countians are learning how to live longer, feel better and take control of their health-care costs, thanks to a 13-part television series called "Feelin' Great." The magazine-style television series, sponsored by Blue Cross Blue Shield of Kentucky, premiered on WYMT Channel 57 at 3:30 p.m. Saturday last week.

Steve Bow, president and CEO of Southeastern Group, Inc., which does business as Blue Cross Blue Shield of Kentucky, said even small lifestyle changes can positively affect a person's health.

"People are starting to make the connection between their everyday behaviors and their health, quality-of-life and, ultimately, health-care costs," said Bow. "Hopefully, Blue Cross Blue Shield's focus on wellness has contributed to this increased understanding. We're pleased to sponsor this program as a continuation of our efforts in this area."

"Feelin' Great" was conceived and produced by Hammond Productions, based in Lexington.

"I don't know of anything like this that's on the air now, even nationally," said producer Rick Baker. "To avoid being boring, we're taking a few risks—we're being bold enough to create something that's fun to watch, while getting the fundamental message across. And, so far, the response has been extremely positive."

The first episode took viewers on a visit to Lexington's Children's Museum, which has a full-scale, walk-through model of a heart. Dr. Kevin Scully, a heart specialist, offered insights into cardiovascular health.

In a lighthearted "food confessions" segment, a truck driver reviewed (and tried to resist) a few of his favorite fried platters in "Anatomy of a Greasy Spoon."

Other segments included a trip to a corporate health club and a demonstration showing how to transform chili into a "heart smart" meal by Lillian Marshall, former food editor for The Courier-Journal.

Local hosts, guests and producers make "Feelin' Great" relevant to Kentuckians, but it isn't limited to the region. For example, a future segment on rain forest medicine will feature Vice President Al Gore, the South American operation of a Kentucky-based pharmaceutical company and the rain forest at the Cincinnati Zoo.

This week's show will focus on the mind-body connection. Highlights include an animated feature illustrating how doubts, fears and logical thoughts—all acting as "characters" in the piece—play their roles in the brain. Other features will examine how nutrition and exercise affect mental functions.

The show's sponsor, Southeastern Group, Inc., is a diversified company providing a wide range of employee benefit services, including traditional health-care products, a variety of health maintenance organizations (HMOs), electronic claims processing, life insurance and corporate resource consulting. The 2,000 employees of Southeastern and its affiliates serve nearly one million customers in Kentucky.

For more information or recipes from the program, write to: Feelin' Great, c/o 173 Trade St., Lexington, Ky., 40510.

Mike Vance, president-elect of the Prestonsburg Rotary was the speaker at the club's weekly meeting. He described how the Rotary Club widens its range of membership and becomes stronger through classification of professions of its members. The Prestonsburg Rotary Club meets each Thursday at 12:15 p.m. at the Holiday Inn. All visitors are invited to attend and explore the benefits of joining and providing community service to Floyd County. Floyd County to receive over $5,000 in payments for tax-exempt lands

U.S. Senator Wendell Ford (D-KY) said recently that the Commonwealth of Kentucky will receive $506,096 from the Bureau of Land Management for tax-exempt land in 73 counties.

Floyd is one of the counties that will receive payments above $5,000. Floyd will receive $9,328.

The funds come from BLM's payment in lieu of taxes program, which is designed to help sparsely populated local governments offset the loss of tax revenues as a result of having tax-exempt federal lands within their jurisdictions.

"Communities depend on these payments to help provide vital services for their citizens. I'm pleased that the Department of Interior will be putting the money in the hands of those who can see that it is put to good use," Ford said.

Counties other than Floyd receiving payments above $5,000 include: McCreary $60,777; Edmonson, $35,207; Russell $26,095; Pulaski $23,367; Wayne $21,172; Clay $20,811; Trigg $20,750; Lyon $19,574; Rowan $17,254; Laurel $17,020; Leslie $16,490; Jackson $15,939; Lawrence $14,667; Menifee $12,948; Adair $12,185; Taylor $11,977; Whitley $11,890; Pike $11,697; Barren $10,605; Spencer $9,183; Clinton $9,053; Johnson $7,991; Morgan $7,612; Grayson $7,106; Carter $7,091; Hart $6,311; Allen $5,646; Elliott $5,611; Bath $5,254.

Farewell to a friend...

by Scott Perry

"Winners never quit.
Quitters never win."

That's what Eddie Billips is a quitter.
And Eddie Billips is a winner.

Billips resigned his post Wednesday as school board member for Floyd County's educational District 1, nearly a year before his year term was to expire, creating a hole that will be next impossible to fill.

In our twenty some years of following school board issues up and down the Big Sandy, we've never found a more honest, principled and conscientious public official than Eddie Billips, bar none.

We feel quite comfortable, too, in our contention that the residents of District 1 got more effective representation out of Billips three years on the board than they received in the decade that he had served on it.

dancing in the streets, celebrating whatever role they played in effecting Billips' early departure.

But Billips gets the last laugh, proving in the end how utterly foolish they were in accusing him of losing his position for political gain.

We know with certainty that only his commitment to fulfilling his obligation to the voters and parents of District One kept Billips from quitting long ago.

With his departure, Floyd County loses a school board member who often stood alone in the path of regression, oppression and political obsession.

It's interesting to note, too, that Billips' resignation coincided with that of the world's most successful athlete, Michael Jordan.

A lot of youngsters these days have a dream to "be like Mike."

If we could get just five adults to "be like Eddie," we'd make no rhymes, but plenty of reason.

A quitter?

A winner?

Comment:

Israel has won a bloodless victory

by Leonard Larsen
Scraps-Howard News Service
If the treaty signed by Israel and the PLO is the cornerstone to lasting peace in the Middle East, it can also be seen as a monumental victory for Israel alone.

It's not a victory over Israel's traditional enemies, but a victory over international law, U.N. resolutions and 26 years of U.S. policy which—born from the end of the 1967 Six-Day War—sometimes wavered but had not collapsed until now.

With President Clinton's blessing on the treaty, it's clear that American positions once firmly held have been turned around, that once-settled issues have become "negotiable," but with an outcome favoring Israel virtually assured.

International law has long held that captured lands—such as the West Bank and Gaza—can't be occupied by an aggressive nation. That was the basis for U.N. Security Council Resolution 242, supported by the United States, which demanded Israel's withdrawal from territory occupied after Israel launched the attacks which began the Six-Day War.

A line of other U.N. resolutions, backed by U.S. policy and other nations, condemned the continued Israeli occupation of the captured territories and the harsh treatment of Palestinians subjected to Israeli military law.

Also condemned was the spread of Jewish settlements into the West Bank and Gaza, military actions which pushed Palestinians off their own lands, sometimes bulldozing whole villages and demolishing Palestinian homes.

The settlement policy came to be called "creating facts on the ground" by Israelis, and those "facts" now appear unassailable.

While Israel has agreed to withdraw from the small and tortured Gaza Strip, it has not agreed to remove some 5,000 Jewish settlers from Gaza.

And in the treaty struck with a weak and desperate Yasser Arafat, it's inconceivable—for now, at least—to believe that Israel will ever dismantle more than 100 settlements on the West Bank and remove more than 110,000 Jewish settlers.

There's no muscle left to force removal of the settlements. In fact, the treaty empowers Israel to provide "security" and travel guarantees to the settlers, an assurance of Israeli dominion over whatever PLO government may be set up for both Gaza and Jericho in the West Bank.

The occupation and spread of Jewish settlements have been at the heart of the Arab-Israeli dispute since 1967. Now, with the signing of the peace treaty, that dispute appears ended. Israel stems and the previous points of international law, U.N. authority and U.S. policy have been set aside.

Even a pledge less than a year ago by then-Secretary of State James Baker that U.S. policy was consistent and that America still did not recognize Israel's "annexation" of East Jerusalem appears to have been dumped in celebrating the Israel-PLO treaty.

Settlements on the West Bank and Gaza will remain under Israeli military authority, along with roads, adjoining lands and water resources. There's little left to negotiate, certainly nothing to turn around the occupation and the "facts" of the settlements.

The big leap for Arafat is that he's salvaged some status as an Arab leader, gambling that he can quiet the mounting Muslim fanaticism and survive. He'll also be permitted to line up behind Israel and Egypt for money from the United States.

Hopefully, the treaty will end or lessen the intensity of the years of bloodshed and that would be reason enough for its approval and American support, since opposition to Israel's occupation is now moot.

And it's obvious the outcome of whatever "negotiation" is left will be dictated by Israel, taking Israel farther away from what was once asked, not by Israel's enemies, but by America, Israel's friend and financial savior.

In the long march to victory, Israel and Israel's supporters have organized and financed a mighty political machine. They have turned back a worldwide tide of law and opinion. They have done what they set out to do in the invasion and occupation of the disputed territories.

Now, it appears, they have at last won the war without fighting it again. And that is no small thing.

What others are saying

The bulk of articles are excerpts of editorials taken from Kentucky newspapers.

What's the deal?

While we're both amazed and delighted that the good folks a bit north of us here are about to receive their very own harness racing track, we're a bit baffled by the seeming ease with which they've accomplished this near-impossible feat.

Our esteemed leader, the honorable Governor Breerton Jones, nearly killed himself to stand beside Riverside Downs president M. L. Vaughan for the photographers after Vaughan announced his intentions, yet a contingent of Floyd Countyans who traveled all the way to Frankfort last summer to ask Jones for his help in getting their own track got the cold shoulder. Obviously, something has changed.

Perhaps House Majority Leader Greg Stumbo's threats of litigation against the Kentucky Racing Commission may have thawed Jones' icy stance against the harness industry, but that still doesn't explain why he's so far from going to the Vaughan project while Floyd County's still "toys in the wind."

What's the deal? Where were they when they needed you? And why are you here now? — The Big Sandy News

The makings of a good political soap opera

The November general election is just around the corner, but in Floyd County all eyes are still focused on the May 25 primary.

The heavily Democratic county is embroiled in a lawsuit filed by Dale McKinney, an unsuccessful candidate for judge-executive. McKinney claims the winner of the primary, incumbent John M. Stumbo, bribed voters, sabotaged voting machines and performed work on private property using county equipment. McKinney also claims Stumbo and other candidates formed a slate and pooled their money to buy votes.

Sounds like the makings of a good political soap opera. And like most soap operas, you'll have to stay tuned for the verdict. — The Paintsville Herald

Embracing school reform

It was very gratifying to hear Kentucky Education Commissioner Thomas Boyesen report that the strongest gains in fourth grade test scores were made in Eastern Kentucky. Fourth grade reading scores went up in virtually every school in many mountain districts.

It was also heartening to hear Bob Sexton, the executive director of the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, say that Eastern Kentucky appears to be more actively embracing education reform than other regions in Kentucky.

The lawsuit filed by the late Bert J. Combs on behalf of poor, rural school districts forced educational reform by challenging a system that favored rich ones, has pumped millions of new dollars into the region.

The state Department of Education has also helped mountain school districts by attempting to wipe out corruption and waste in local educational systems. Nineteen of the 21 school board members and superintendents charged with misconduct are from Eastern Kentucky.

What's happening here is more than educational reform. We're talking about changing a democratic system." said Carol Stumbo, a former McClowell teacher who is a state consultant advising Eastern Kentucky schools on curriculum and testing.

Stumbo believes the most difficult part of change is already past, and Eastern Kentucky has been changed forever. "We've been hungry for this for a long time," she said. "We want it."

The last two years have been extremely stressful and hectic for Kentucky school teachers, especially those in the primary block. They have taken numerous hours of training in order to place new learning techniques in the classroom.

We appreciate the special effort made by our teachers. — Troublesome Creek Times

Comment: Do we need a closer look at Mars

By Leonard Larsen Scripps Howard News Service WASHINGTON... As the people at NASA and their propagandists in and out of Congress have told us all along, we spend enormous amounts of money on space flight and exploration because we learn so much that's valuable in the process.

Now we've learned more with the most recent failure of a robot spacecraft's exploration of Mars. We've learned, or we think we've learned, that those little transistors in the spacecraft clocks don't always work.

And we're also pretty sure we've learned that when those little transistors go on the fritz—if that's what happened to the Mars Observer—then we've lost another $1 billion or so.

Maybe the Mars Observer just blew up when it got in the vicinity of Mars, it's been suggested. And maybe this is spookier—that unknown and dreadful Martian force that we've suspected all along will come down after us some day...

While NASA has expressed itself as officially disappointed at the silent Mars Observer, the agency's sunny collective outlook is that the spacecraft actually went into its planned orbit around Mars.

And that's a comfort, not a $1 billion comfort but a comfort nevertheless, believing that this finest instrument of space exploration is in its planned Martian orbit, struck dumb and blind by its transistors but dutifully on station and now circling Mars for no purpose, maybe forever.

The $1 billion mission of the Mars Observer, we were told before the transistors went out or the thing exploded or it was kidnapped or whatever happened, was to orbit Mars for 687 days (that would be one Martian year) in order to map the Mars surface and examine the planet's geology and meteorology.

That might seem like a high-priced NASA make-work project since in 1971 NASA's Mariner 9 spacecraft covered Mars in such a thorough sweep of orbits that it transmitted 10,000 mapping photographs of 100 percent of the planet's surface.

And later, in 1976, NASA landed two spacecraft on Mars to do soil and other tests and found Mars to be waterless and lifeless, "devoid of any microbiotic activity."

But, as the mountain climbers are fond of saying in a different and far less expensive context, NASA wants to keep going back to Mars because it's there.

One value in Martian exploration, as it's been explained, is that scientists have seen similarities between earth and Mars and they've speculated that Mars—like earth—once had flowing water, glaciers, an atmosphere that could support life and maybe even life itself.

If all that could be proved, it's further explained by the scientists, then we could do some really serious study of Mars, find out what happened and why and how long it took to happen and we might learn what is to happen on our own planet, how it will become a cold, barren, lifeless place and perhaps, a curiosity for space travelers of another age.

And, if NASA is permitted to keep spending those billions of dollars on Mars probes and other make-work space projects, we'll one day be able to say with certainty that sometime, maybe 10 million years from now, earth will become unlivable and there'll be absolutely nothing we can do about it.

Then, filled with all that valuable scientific information gathered at monumental expense by NASA, we can sit down and wait.

Kennel clubs holds second A/OA match,

Yes, master

Bo, CD was the highest scoring dog in the obedience category at Eastern Kentucky Kennel Club's dog show Sunday, September 26.

The Eastern Kentucky Kennel Club held its second A/OA match Sunday, September 26, at the Johnson Central gymnasium. There were 122 dogs entered in the match with a total of 129 entries and 46 different breeds.

An 8-month-old Pomeranian, "Cinnabar" to the Max, co-owned by Vicki Clendennin, Barbara Blatt, and Paula Ray of Huntington, West Virginia, was judged to be Best in Match. The Best in Match Judge was Richard S. Thomas from New Rochelle, New York.

The highest scoring dog in obedience with a score of 191 of a possible

200 was Bo, CD, a 1 1/2 year-old Border Collie bred by Brian Bina and owned and handled by Bruce Sinclair of St Albans, West Virginia. The obedience judges were Chuck Justice of Catlettsburg and Dr. Barbara Snyder of Charleston, West Virginia.

This match was the second A/OA match the club has held this year and completes the requirements of the American Kennel Club for the club to apply for the holding of a licensed show. Wins at licensed shows earn points toward championship and obedience trial titles, and the club can expect hundreds of entries.

Appalachian exhibit at PCC

"Images from the Mountains: A Traveling Exhibit of Appalachian Artists" opens at Prestonsburg Community College on Monday, October 11.

The show, featuring 21 paintings and prints by 12 Eastern Kentucky artists, will be on display at the PCC art gallery until October 30. Then it goes to Maysville and Lexington, completing a statewide tour.

Now in its seventh year, "Images" is the only annual exhibit of emerging and established artists in the region. It is sponsored by Appalshop, the media arts organization in Whitesburg, with support from the University of Kentucky's Appalachian Center.

Peter Morrin, director of the J.B. Speed Art Museum in Louisville, selected the work and awarded six of the chosen artists Awards of Merit totaling $600.

Award winners in the exhibit include Tim Sizemore of Floyd County; Darryl Holbrooks, Madison County; David Lucas, Letcher County; Helen Price Stacy, Morgan County; Robert Franzini, Rowan County; and Fred Ostrom, Wolfe County.

Other artists and their home counties are Tom J. Whitaker of Magoffin County, professor of art at PCC; Todd Miller, Boyd County; Cheryl Chapman Correll, Lincoln County; Kent Adams and John Goley, Perry County; and Mike Jennings of Wolfe County.

The work of local artist Tim Sizemore will travel Kentucky as part of "Images from the Mountains: A Traveling Exhibit of Appalachian Artists."

The PCC art gallery is located on the first floor of the Magoffin Learning Center on the Prestonsburg campus. The exhibit is free and open to the public.

Earthquake preparedness week is October 24-30

"Earthquakes: Still a Threat. Aren't You Ready Yet?" With that as the theme, Governor Breton Jones has declared the week of October 24-30 Earthquake Preparedness Week '93 in Kentucky.

As the theme implies, the emphasis of Earthquake Preparedness Week is to encourage families, schools, businesses and communities to take action to prepare for a serious earthquake in the future. Every year, the New Madrid Seismic Zone and other geologically active areas produce numerous small tremors. Scientists say sooner or later, a major damaging quake will occur. Since earthquakes are unpredictable, preparedness is the key to getting through the shaking and its aftermath.

Kentucky's Division of Disaster and Emergency Services (DES) encourages people to know the steps to take before, during and after an earthquake. Information about earthquake preparedness is available from the local disaster and emergency services offices around the state and from 14 state DES offices.

During Earthquake Preparedness Week, schools are urged to hold one of the two earthquake drills required by state law in every school building each year. A poster contest on earthquake safety is being sponsored by DES for grades K-8.

Schools, civic clubs, businesses and others interested in earthquake preparedness can contact their local or area DES coordinator for talks about preparing for a damaging tremor.

All Kentucky radio stations will receive a copy of a public service announcement by Cawood Ledford on earthquake safety. On Sunday, October 31, Kentucky Educational Television will broadcast a new half-hour program, funded by the U.S. Geological Survey, entitled "Hidden Fury: The New Madrid Earthquake Zone." It is scheduled to air on KET at noon Eastern Time.

For more information on Earthquake Preparedness Week or how to prepare for an earthquake, contact Kentucky Disaster and Emergency Services at (502) 564-8600.

Census Bureau to collect data on employment

Employees of the U.S. Census Bureau will visit a sample of area residents the week of October 17-23 to collect labor force information for the current Population Survey, according to William E. Burt, director of the bureau's Charlotte regional office.

The local data will contribute to October's national employment and unemployment picture to be released November 5 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The Census Bureau collects monthly labor force data for BLS from a national sample of 171,000 households. This month's survey will include questions on school enrollment and computer use.

PCC breaks enrollment record

Prestonsburg Community College has broken another enrollment record this fall with just under 3,000 students—3 percent of them from Floyd County.

The fall semester enrollment totals 2,987 students, a 3.5 percent increase over fall of 1992.
The most dramatic enrollment boost occurred at the Pike County Campus which experienced a 10 percent increase over last year. Enrollment at the satellite campus in Pikeville is 787.

For the first time, PCC is offering courses in each county in its five-county service area. Besides the Prestonsburg and Pikeville locations, courses are being offered at Betty Sheldon Clark and Johnson Central high schools; Morehead State University's Big Sandy Education Center in Prestonsburg; and over WPRC-Tel-Com Cable Service in Harlot.

About 65 percent of this fall's enrollees are full-time students, with the rest part-time, taking from one to three classes. The number of women continues to grow, with females making up about 70 percent of the student population. The average age is just under 26, with the range going from 16 to 59 years of age.

The number of students listing Floyd County addresses is a little more than 1,200. The communities represented and the number of students from each are:

DRIVING ALONG IN MY AUTOMOBILE

Automobiles are just a form of transportation that get me from one place to another. Maybe it's because I'm a female, but cars don't impress me. My main criteria for a car is that it have four tires that move in the same direction and the motor turns over when I turn the key. Basically, that's it.

Men despise this ideology. At least my men do. My husband asks questions like, "Have you checked your oil?"

My answer to that idiotic question is, "The light hasn't come on yet."

"What light?" he asks. "That little red light that blinks off and on and looks like an oil can."

Usually when I give him an answer he hates, he winces. "You don't know anything about cars, Sara!"

"Oh, yeah! Just ask me any question you like," I remarked candidly.

"When did you last have your transmission fluid checked?" "That's not a question. Ask me a real question about how a car works. By the way, what's transmission fluid?"

Another thing that irks my husband about my idea of a car is gasoline. At a dollar nineteen a gallon, gasoline is irritating, but necessary.

Something strange happens to the gas gauge whenever my husband gets into the car. It's a mystery, but for some unknown reason that defies logic, the gas gauge almost always registers empty. This infuriates him.

"You'd be surprised how long I can run on empty," I say. "Why I can go three or four days with the red light on."

"What red light, Sara? The one that looks like an oil can?" he asked in a voice dripping with sarcasm.

"No, not that little red light. The other one that comes on where the gas thing is."

"Aren't you afraid of running out of gas?"

"Afraid? No, not really afraid. Why would I be afraid? I'm not SCARED of running out of gas."

"Just disregard the question, Sara."

"I'm afraid of chickens, though. But what does that have to do with cars? Ask me a question about cars."

"All right. When should you get the oil checked?"

"I know! I thought we'd already discussed that. When the red lights come on..."

"Forget it!" he yells impatiently.

"You're just mad because these new cars are computerized and you don't have to check these things like you used to have to do on the old cars. You men enjoyed checking the oil so you could dirty up clean rags. It made you feel as if you actually knew what you were doing..."

"Hah! Are you kidding? If you didn't check your oil back then you would ruin your engine."

"But it was a power trip, wasn't it?"

"No, Sara. It was a necessity."

"Well, it isn't necessary anymore. Lights start flashing and voices start coming out of nowhere if your car needs something. The day of having to do it yourself as far as a car is concerned is over."

It's true. If we run into something solid, an air bag pops out of the steering wheel and keeps us from going through the windshield. The only thing we have to do for ourselves is open the car door.

One of these days I might be impressed by the way a car looks. If this happens, I hope by then cars won't need oil or gasoline.

THE TIMES' WEEKEND

Heavenly sounds at Alice Lloyd

Silent for almost 200 years, the wire-strung Irish harp is once again entrancing audiences in the hands of Ann Heymann.

Although a forerunner of today's orchestral harp, the Gaelic instrument is quite different—it is strung with highly tensioned brass wire, plucked with long fingernails, and has a sound resembling the peal of bells.

Acknowledged as the world's foremost exponent of the instrument, Ann Heymann performs with her husband Charlie as Claireseach (pronounced "klar-shuk") after the harp's Irish name.

The couple will present a program of music, song, and story at Alice Lloyd College CAC Auditorium on October 12, at 7:30 p.m.

Although the harp will be featured, Ann and Charlie give a highly entertaining family show for all ages.

They are masters of more than a dozen instruments, and their repertoire

Sounds of magic
With a magician's sleight of hand, Ann and Charlie generate excitement, laughter and tears—proper ingredients for an evening of gourmet entertainment. Don't miss them! No admission fee will be charged.

is as varied as their sound. In the manner of the ancient bards, Charlie relates ballads and stories both historical and hysterical that reflect the broad range of Gaelic experience. And their energetic dance music will have you jigging all the way home! Admission is free.

EVERYTHING OLD IS NEW AGAIN, OR A ROLL-UP DAY KEEPS REALITY AWAY.

It's finally happened. I've finally flipped my wig. You see, I keep having these hallucinations.

First, I imagine that there's an open rebellion in the streets of Moscow. Then,

I imagine that the United States is embroiled in an ugly "peace-keeping mission" that isn't turning out quite as peaceful as had been expected. And worst of all, I have these recurring nightmares that bell-bottoms are back in style.

Flashbacks. Gotta be. I must've done too much antic in the sixties. Yeah, that's the ticket.

Because surely, this all couldn't REALLY be happening. Surely, we've LEARNED from our mistakes.

Surely, I couldn't once again be seeing outraged Russians citizens armed with wooden clubs squaring off against bazooka-wielding Soviet soldiers for the right to buy Charmin.

Surely, I couldn't once again be seeing underfed, drugged out fashion victims on television parading around in clownish costumes with pant legs so wide they can't see their own feet.

Surely, I couldn't once again be seeing the burnt, bloodied bodies of American soldiers being dragged through the streets of third-world countries. I couldn't possibly be seeing news footage of wounded, captured G.I.s forced at gunpoint to speak to propagandist cameras. And surely, I couldn't again be seeing an American president flip-flopping back and forth on whether or not to remove the troops, in effect issuing a death-warrant to even more, freckle-faced 18-year-olds because he isn't willing to fully commit to either making war or ending it—because he's afraid either action might damage his "public image."

Surely, that couldn't happen again.

Because surely, after thousands of years of "civilization" and after such Earth-shattering events as the crumbling of the Berlin Wall and the official burying of hatchets between Israel and the P.O., we've learned that violence begets only violence and that usually the only people who get hurt are the innocent, who give their lives and limbs in a vain effort to stroke a far-removed, heavily-guarded military leader's ego.

And surely, after World War II, the "police actions" in Korea and Vietnam and the Gulf War, we've learned that the only way to decisively end all violence once it has started is to either cut our losses and let the local denis with their own problems or to GO IN THERE AND BOMB THE & S#@* OUTTA THE B@D GUYS!!!

And surely, ultimately, we've learned from the 70s that drugs can only lead us down a destructive path to ugly clothing. But surely, I don't have to worry about any of that.

Surely, we've LEARNED from our mistakes.

And even if we haven't, well, I surely still have my bell-bottoms and my antic.

Tune in. Turn on. Drop Roloids.

Ignore reality. It's SURELY the only way to avoid those ugly hallucinations.

Popperri

By Scott Perry

Just as a matter of curiosity, are we allowed to call this "Indian Summer," or does political correctness require a name change to "Native American Summer?"

And, since we're pondering deep thoughts, how come our noses run and our feet smell?

Why do we drive on a parkway and park on a driveway?

Just what is potted meat?

The answers to these and other questions of vital importance will have to wait.

There is a more pressing concern for our inquiring minds.

Why did the chicken cross the road?

Okay, okay, maybe he wasn't a chicken for dodging the draft and protesting the war in Vietnam, but the Prez has most certainly crossed the road to get to Somalia, where a bunch of our guys are getting killed for no particular reason other than trying to feed people who are starving.

It's apparent that Somalians don't want us to do that and rather than biting the hands that feed them, they're returning our favors with flying lead.

The president, who is well known for his allergic reaction to wars in foreign countries, has responded to the Somalian snub by ordering more troops into that African nation to force the starving to eat or shoot those who won't.

At this point, it's hard to figure if Clinton has experienced a true change of heart over our military involvement in foreign affairs or whether he's realized that he's finally too old to be drafted.

Could be that he's simply started inhaling.

That would explain lots of things, particularly his hiring of a Republican to serve as his chief of staff.

The Prez has done more flips than the cook at the Pancake House and we're beyond guessing as to what his next move might be.

Well, okay. We'll take a stab at it...

Robertson breaks record

Stuart Robertson of Prestonsburg broke the record at Paintsville Lake's Cross Country meet Tuesday, October 5.

Robertson ran the 3.1 mile course at 17:42, breaking the 17:56 record set previously by a Johnson County runner.

Robertson faced tough competition at the race Tuesday, competing against Boyd County runners. Boyd County came prepared to win the top individual slots because they hadn't heard of any "good runners" in the area, Robertson was told.

That was before they raced behind the Prestonsburg High School teen. That competition helped push Robertson across the line at record-breaking speed.

"They pushed me more than I've ever been pushed," Robertson said. "It was a fast race." The pace made him realize that this was the time to break the record.

The weather also aided the youth in his run for the record. "It was a cool evening — a good night for me to break it."

But what really pushed Robertson across the line was his own ambition. "It (breaking the record) was in my mind as I ran," he said.

His personal goal has been to break the record at Paintsville Lake. His trainer, Forest Hughes, told him that one of his goals should be to "shoot to break it."

Each time Robertson has raced at Paintsville Lake, he has recorded a faster time. On September 22, he came in first, recording a time of 18:22.

Other runners for Prestonsburg were Nathan Hardee, who came in sixth at 19:33; eighth grader Ryan Hardee, running his first cross country race and coming in 13th; and Jesse Robertson, an eighth grader who came across the line in 33rd position.

Kevin Stumbo from Allen Central, came in at seventh place. The course, a tough one, winds its way through valleys and hills. Robertson's strategy is to "go slowly up the hill — like jogging."

"Keep bringing my feet up and climbing," he said. "At the top, I keep going slow to conserve energy. After about 30-40 yards, I pick up the fast pace again."

Ratliff crosses first

Floyd county cross country runners burned up the track in Johnson County September 22, taking first and second in the boys' team divisions. Floyd County youth were first to cross the finish line in both the girls' and boys' meets.

In the girls' meet, Jamie Ratliff of Prestonsburg crossed the finish line at 19:55 for first place. Stuart Robinson, also of Prestonsburg, took first place in the boys' division at 18:22.

Johnson Central's Jill Blanche was hard on the heels of Ratliff, crossing the finish line at 20:12 for second place. Josh Patton of Allen Central came in second in the boys' division, finishing with a time of 19:29.

In the girls' meet, Lorna Salyer of Johnson Central came in third at 20:17. Allen Central's Annie Harvey ran the race at 20:17 for fourth place.

Another Allen Central runner, Dreaamia Isaac, placed ninth at 21:29.

Paintsville had four runners in the top ten finishes. Hildie Lusk took fifth place at 20:31; Ashley Roe was sixth at 20:32; and Nora Lusk was seventh at 20:33. Kim Osborne placed eighth with her time of 20:34. Johnson Central's Joy McKenzie placed tenth at 21:56.

In the boys' division, Josh Patton, a member of the Allen Central Cross Country team, crossed the finish line at 19:29, earning him second place. Other Allen Central runners placing in the top ten were Kevin Stambough, fifth place at 20:52; Todd Howard, seventh place at 21:32; and Shawn Amburgey eighth at 21:35.

Prestonsburg's Nathan Hardee placed fourth at 20:09, Ryan Ortega, sixth at 21:26, Grant Combs, ninth at 21:57 and Tony Honeycutt, tenth at 21:59.

Johnson County teams win girls' regional golf tourney

by Noel Crum
Paintsville Herald
Sports Writer

Johnson Central and Paintsville took home first and second places, respectively, in the girls' Region XI golf tourney Monday at the Paintsville Country Club.

The Lady Eagles had a team score of 412 and were led by overall medalist Rachel Hazlett, who shot an impressive 79.

JCHS coach Cathy Gullett was impressed with the effort of her squad, especially Hazlett.

"I'm extremely proud of my team," Gullett said.

"Rachel's 79 was a beautiful score. It should put her at the top of the field (at state competition)."

Adding to Central's score were Ruth Adkins (100), Kathy Adkins

(102) and Carrie Blair (131). Paintsville was led by cousins Amber LeMaster and Carrie LeMaster, who each shot 102. April Blankenship was next with a 123, and Heather Castle rounded out the team's scoring with a 127.

The runner-up medalist was Chanda Day of Raceland, who shot a 91.

For Hazlett, this was her second consecutive year as medalist.

Both Johnson Central and Paintsville will advance to the state competition next week at the Elizabethton Country Club.

Editor's Note: Allen Central and South Floyd golfers participated in the event. Amanda Waddles with Allen Central shot 125. Valerie Vance (275), Melissa Turner (152) and Tiana N. Stone (179) also competed in the regional tournament.

Adams to play in Coleman Oil Classic

The Adams Middle School Blackcats will play in the Coleman Oil Classic for the second consecutive year Saturday, October 9, at the W.C. Hambley Athletic Complex in Pikeville.

The Blackcats, who have split into two teams to help the high school feeder system, will combine for the game.

Both teams coming off losses to county rival Allen, will have to step up the motion.

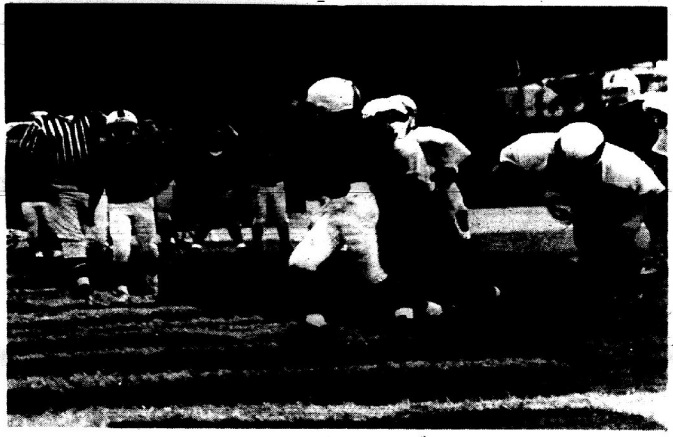

Adams Red, coached by Jerry Fannin, Mike Castle, Mark Miller, Greg Stumbo and David Willis, will be bringing a 1-3 record into the contest.

Adams White, coached by John Goble, B.D. Nunney, Bryan Griffith and Chuck Rowe, take a 1-2 mark into the game. The big play guys on offense for both teams are Bill Willis, Bryan Johnson, Brooks Stumbo (Red team), John Ortega, Jake Poston, and Nathan Fannin (White team). The offense will have to move the ball and allow the defense to come in well rested.

Defensively, Bill Willis, Adam Bailey (Red team), Michael Harris, Jeremy Southworth and Neil Hamilton (White team) pose a threat to the opponent's offense. The defense will have to stop the opponent and not give up the big play.

Adams will face Pikeville at 11:30 a.m. Saturday morning in the first game of the Classic.

Come out and support this Floyd County team and see some of the up and coming high school players.

Adams B Team "gets it together"

Adams Red B team played team ball Wednesday night against the Allen Eagles, and came away with an impressive 20-6 win.

"Finally the team got it together," said assistant coach Ricky Joseph. "For the first time, we played team ball."

Joseph is pleased with Wednesday's victory and thinks it's the best game the team has played all year.

"For the last few games, the boys have just been going through the motions," Joseph said.

Michael McDonald had three carries for 132 yards.

McDonald's teammate, Jeremy Caudill, scored a 69-yard touchdown. Caudill scored a second touchdown from 25 yards out. Ricky Knox had one touchdown from 60 yards.

Drew Petry carried the ball twice for 14 yards. Mike Stone also helped garner the touchdowns. Stone carried the ball 13 times for 166 yards. One run was 22 yards. Stone also pleased the Blackcat fans by catching a 10-yard pass.

John Dixon passed three times for two completions and 79 yards.

Tony Dixon played a great defensive game for the Blackcats, bringing down the bigger players with his tackling expertise.

The team is coached by Greg Dixon and Tommy Howell.

South Floyd overcomes Paintsville

When the South Floyd grade school Raiders met their foe, Paintsville, on Paintsville's football field Wednesday night, they had fire in their eyes and revenge in their hearts.

Paintsville was undefeated in the conference until they met the defense of South Floyd, which paced the Raiders to a 24-6 win.

"Defense won the game for us," said Charlie Williams, South Floyd's coach. "Our defense made a big difference."

At one point in the game, South Floyd punted the ball short on the 20 yard line. "They had an opportunity to score," said Williams. "But our defense was outstanding."

Defense scored two touchdowns on interceptions, Williams said. In the first quarter, South Floyd scored on an interception by Shane McCray. McCray ran 48 yards for the touchdown.

Brent Hamilton kicked the 2-point conversion.

Paintsville scored a touchdown in the first quarter, but missed on the 2 point conversion.

Score at halftime was 8-6, in favor of South Floyd.

No points were scored in the second and third quarters.

Early in the fourth quarter, McCray ran 44 yards for a touchdown. Brent Hamilton again came through on the 2-point conversion kick, making the score 18-6.

Paintsville regained control of the ball, but lost it again on an interception by Jimmy Butler, who ran 82 yards for the touchdown. Again

Hamilton kicked and the conversion was good, bringing the final score to 24-6.

Though Paintsville has the bigger team, Williams thinks the positive attitude of his players helped them win big.

"Our boys had a lot of heart in it. They wanted to win. They went out to the line and wanted to win," he said.

Eagles rush to victory

Allen Eagles hustled touchdown after touchdown past the Adams Red A team Wednesday night to win 30-6.

Ian Stone scored three touchdowns for the Eagles, while his teammates Billy Mitchell and Dennis Lafferty had one touchdown each.

Allen's defensive squad played a stingy game with the Blackcats, said assistant coach Jack Kyle Howard.

Howard praised players Ian Stone, Dennis Lafferty, Eddie Rowe, Daniel Goble, Josh Barnette, Kyle Conley, and Scottie Walls for their pursuit of the ball.

"Offense played with a lot of heart and a lot of emotion," he said. "They came out ready to play football."

Allen's players had good execution and a lot of hustle, Howard said, and "they take pride in what they're trying to do."

No way!

Won't see state play, but local teams are tops

Two Floyd County high school golf teams were among the ten top teams in the Region XI golf tourney held Tuesday at the Paintsville Country Club.

Prestonsburg's team finished fifth (341) and Betsy Layne (360) finished in eighth place.

Prestonsburg was led by Brett James and Mike Marcum. Both shot 82. Matt Crum shot 90 and Chris Corentin shot 87.

For Betsy Layne, T. Newsome shot 84, J. Hyllon shot 89, B. Phugh 91, and C. Potter, 96.

Allen Central's team placed 18th overall. On the card for Allen Central (417) were Ephraim O'Quinn (104), Nick Halbert (119), Eric Cathers (96) and Matt Crawford (98).

The fourth Floyd County team participating in the event was South Floyd (481). South Floyd's golfers included B. Akers (103), W. Tuttle (121), M. Rose (123), N. Little (134).

Boyd County took first place, shooting 304. Russell took second place honors, shooting 315.

Earlier this year, Prestonsburg High School's golf team beat the Russell team.

35 & Counting

Danville won its 35th consecutive game last week, defeating district opponent Estill County 46-0. The Admirals are now tied with Ashland Paul Blazer, which won 35 consecutive games from 1928-32.

The Ads may have their toughest test of the season this week when they play host to the Anderson County Bearcats in a Class AAA, Region 3, District 1 showdown. Anderson County has won five straight games since losing to Class AAAA power Bowling Green in the season opener. Danville will have to deal with Anderson cornerback Daniel Rubie, who had two interceptions two weeks ago against Bourbon County to bring the sophomore's total to five this season. Danville has not lost since its 1991 opener to Steel Valley, Pa. The last Kentucky team to beat the Admirals was Corbin, a 30-7 win in the 1990 state semifinals.

The Admirals need three more victories to tie Paris at 38 wins. If Danville finishes the season undefeated and wins the state title, it will have won 44 straight games, six shy of the state record of 50 set by Trinity.

Brugh Still Waiting

Walter Brugh's Paintsville Tigers lost for the second time in as many weeks when the Tigers fell to Johnson Central in the Apple Bowl, 56-12. Brugh is currently tied with former Bardston coach Garnis Martin with 271 career wins. Brugh's chances won't increase over the next two weeks as the Tigers face Raceland on the road and Jenkins at home.

Top Defense

Fulton City was the state's top defensive team last week, allowing just 1.5 points a game. The Bulldogs, with a school enrollment of 130, have given up just six points this season, via an interception return against East Prairie, Missouri. Last weekend, Fulton City shutout Ballard Memorial 18-0 to run its record to 5-0. Coach David Dodd's defense should get its toughest test of the season this week when his Dogs face Murray on the road.

Pikeville Points

It was a bad week for Pikeville's

Opponents last week

After scoring only three points in a losing effort to Belfry the week before, the Panthers took out their frustrations with an 81-0 win over South Floyd last Tuesday, followed by a 61-12 win over Phelps on Friday.

Pikeville, now 5-1, will play Jenkins in the state's game of the week in Class A, Region 4, District 2. Jenkins, 6-0 this season, defeated South Floyd 61-0 last week and Allen Central 81-0 the week before.

Wonder if this will be a high scoring affair?

Throwin' Owen

Marion County quarterback Tommy Owen continues his record setting pace for touchdowns thrown in a game. Owen, a senior, has now thrown a TD pass in 17 consecutive games, believed to be a state record. For his career, he's thrown 49 passes for scores, which rivals Paducah Tighman's Billy Jack Haskins, the state's all-time passing leader, who finished his career with 54 TD passes.

Owen had one TD pass covering 35 yards to Corey Crume in last Thursday's 21-12 win over Franklin County. Colleges recruiting Owen include Louisville, Indiana, Vanderbilt, West Point, Kent State and Miami (OH).

Alexander Meets Henry Clay

Boone County's Shaun Alexander never got to know Henry Clay's defenders last Friday. Alexander rushed just eight times for 221 yards and three TDs. His scoring runs covered 68, 83 and 10 yards and Boone County won 51-14 to improve to 4-2 overall, 3-0 in district play.

Alexander, a junior, has now rushed for over 800 yards this season.

Wildcat Workhorse

Newport's Adam Brown carried 40 times last week for 212 yards and three TDs as the Wildcats knocked off Covington Holmes 27-6.

Couch Family Recipe

If there's a recipe for good football in the Couch family, its pass, pass and plenty of pass. Leslie County sophomore Tim Couch was 12-40 through the air for 232 yards and one TD as the Eagles defeated North Iau-

String Ended

When Newport Catholic's Scott Wiggins and Rob Sandfoss both intercepted Beechwood passes in the final three minutes last week, it secured a 17-13 win for the Thoroughbreds and gave Beechwood its first district loss in three years. Newport Catholic did all its damage in the second quarter and now leads the district with a 5-1 record.

Central's New QB

Warren Central started a rookie quarterback against Warren East last week. Actually, he's no rookie, but Courtney Metcalfe did pick up his first start at signal caller as Central crushed Warren East 49-8. Metcalfe, a senior who was moved from tailback, carried the ball four times on the option for 147 yards and two TDs. The scoring runs covered 51 and 39 yards.

Madisonville Memories

Madisonville-North Hopkins ran its record to 6-0 in Class AAA with a 28-12 win over Marshall County last week.

But many folks are still reeling from the numbers posted the week

Abell's Able And So's DeShae

Meade County's Tony Abell, currently fourth in the state in rushing, broke his school's career touchdown

DeShae Henson, Clay County's

Mr. Football candidate, scored his 70th career TD in Clay's 40-6 win over Knott Central two weeks ago. Henson had 229 yards and four TDs in that game as he approaches 5,000 yards rushing for his career.

After last week's upset when Johnson Central beat Paintsville in the Apple Bowl, Mike made a big leap and vowed to become number one. Number-one ranked Florida State at number-three ranked Miami should be a game to watch. The consensus is that Florida State will overtake Miami. Look for the Kentucky School for the Deaf to beat the South Floyd Raiders—Sorry, Polly. As we come to the pros, Denver and Green Bay and Miami and Cleveland are about evenly picked. Philadelphia should overtake Chicago.

Tonight's highlight: Homecoming events

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It will be homecoming tonight at the Prestonsburg football stadium as the Blackcats host the Magoffin County Hornets in a district matchup that should take Prestonsburg one step closer to yet another district championship.

The city of Prestonsburg is excited about this year's football team and they have every right to be. Winners of six straight games and undefeated, the Blackcats keep playing the hard-nosed defense that has led them to a 6-0 mark overall and 3-0 in district play.

The stadium is expected to be packed tonight as a campaign is on to try and "bring home" more than 4,000 fans from tonight's encounter. It is safe to say that the Blackcats have won the heart of the fans.

Prestonsburg continues to shutout the opposition as they posted a 47-0 win over the Shelby Valley Wildcats last Friday night.

The game saw the return of Dwayne Garza and Seth Hyden and both were very impressive coming off injuries. Both backs scored two touchdowns in the game but what has turned out to be a blessing for the Blackcats has been the play of Jody Cornette.

Cornette had to carry the load in the backfield for Prestonsburg in the absence of Hyden and Garza and all that did was to give him more confidence. Now the Cats can come at the opposition with not just two rushers but three.

Cornette, who led the Cats in rushing with 68 yards, scored one touchdown on a kick-off return of 85 yards.

Fans held their breath on the first carry for Hyden. But the tailback, who was hit hard on his first carry, just bounced up and returned to the huddle.

Garza, who also has been out with an injured knee, displayed the type of play for which he has become known. He just ran the ball up the "gut" of the Shelby Valley defense in rushing for 51 yards.

While the offense was putting the TDs on the scoreboard, it was the defense of Prestonsburg that continued to keep the points off for the opposition.

The "fearsome foursome" of Kyle Fitzpatrick, Kevin Vaughn, Brad Wells and Ryan Elliott continue to make things rough for the opposing lines.

Add a Larry Morris and you have one of the better linebackers in the high school ranks. Robbie Risner (safety) and Paul Collins (noseguard) only adds fuel to an already burning defense. Jason Spencer, at center, handles the football well in the slot.

Prestonsburg can mixup their offense with a running game or passing.

Quarterback Thomas Ratliff has shown improvement with each game and gives coach Bill Letton's ballclub another weapon to use. Ratliff has two targets in Clint Shutts and Jason Spurlock that has answered the pre-season question of who will catch the football.

But Ratliff can do so much more than pass the football. He reads the defense so well, and if he needs to, he can run the option.

It could be a mighty noisy place tonight at the stadium as former Cats return for the festivities.

The Blackcats are a four touchdown favorite tonight and it could be yet another shutout.

Lay Away for Christmas

Magoffin County could be "Young and Restless"

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Magoffin County has a new football coach this year and he has some goals that he would like his young Hornets team to accomplish.

"We want to instill some discipline, pride and enthusiasm back into the program," said coach James "Mich" Caba. "We want to get the kids to believe in themselves and convince them that what we did at the college level they can do here."

Caba coached at the University of Minnesota-Morris for the past two years before accepting the Magoffin County job. But a change was needed said Caba.

"I decided I wanted a chance to coach my son (Mike Caba). It was a perfect opportunity for me to enjoy my kid's high school years."

Caba will also coach the Lady Hornets' basketball team, of which his daughter will be a member.

Caba gives the Hornets their fourth coach in four years and it has been devastating to the Magoffin County program.

Mike Caba is the team's quarterback and he is a good one. Caba is an excellent option quarterback and possesses excellent speed.

He likes to throw to sophomore wide receiver Jason Wages as well as Grayson Jason Robinette.

Grayson Smith leads the ground game for the Hornets, who would love to pull off perhaps the biggest upset of the school's history, when they face Prestonsburg tonight.

"We're a very, very young football team," said Caba. "We just need for the kids to believe in themselves. This is our rebuilding year. We're just looking ahead to the future and for good things to happen."

Most of the skill players for the Hornets are sophomores and juniors and Coach Caba is working the younger players in preparation for the future.

While Coach Caba admits that his team has their work cut out for them, he feels that if his team plays hard they can be in the game.

"We're not going to be a great sophomore team," he said.

Common foes..

Both Prestonsburg and Magoffin County has played two common foes. The Hornets fell to Pike County Central in their season opener while Prestonsburg posted a convincing win over the Hawks.

Magoffin fell to Shelby Valley 29-6 in the third week of the season. Prestonsburg posted a 47-0 shutout of the Wildcats last Friday night.

Magoffin, while they possess very good speed and quickness, may find the Prestonsburg defense like no other they have faced this season.

Greg Ward will run the tailback slot for Coach Caba. Joey McIntosh will be at an end spot.

Magoffin County will bring a 1-4 overall record into tonight's game and the Blackcats will definitely have the size advantage in this one. But Coach Caba says that success is not always winning.

Game Notes!

- When Magoffin County defeated Berea 28-12 in the Founder's Day Bowl, they snapped a 20-game losing streak.
- Coach Caba has been head coach at four different colleges.
- Coach Caba's coaching career started in Kentucky at Grayson Co.
