7 deaths on state roads last week

PIKEVILLE — Just over a month after announcing plans to initiate a study into a section of U.S. 23 at the Town Branch Road intersection, officials at Kentucky's Highway District 12 office in Pikeville say they are close to completing one of the most daunting tasks for such a study.

In January, district spokesperson Sara George and Greg Couch, the district's engineering support branch manager, responded to a series of fatal crashes at the intersection, saying at that time that the entire section of U.S. 23 was on a "to-do list."

One section of the study Couch had said would be most difficult would be accumulating information about the wrecks that had happened along the stretch of road.

Those numbers and the details of that information is not in a form quite ready for the public, said George, but one some interesting ideas have formed from the new information.

In particular, there could be further study of exactly where the victims in each of the crashes were from, according to George. Many local travelers are aware of some of the more dangerous areas of U.S. 23, such as the intersection at Town Branch Road and the exit from Route 80 just below that intersection. As a result, many will move into the outer lane in anticipation.

However, what George referred to as "through travelers" — those not from the area, but merely traveling through — are not as aware of the pitfalls of certain areas of the highway.

The full study, which will include the number of incidents along the section of highway and also detailed information about victims involved in those incidents, is expected in a comprehensive form in the coming weeks. The district will then hold a public meeting

FRANKFORT — Preliminary statistics indicate that seven people died in six separate crashes on Kentucky roadways from Monday, Feb. 18, through Sunday, Feb. 22.

All of the crashes involved motor vehicles and four of those victims were not wearing seat belts. Single-vehicle crashes occurred in Fleming, Green, Jefferson, Nelson and Woodford counties. Three of these crashes involved the suspected use of alcohol. A double-fatality crash occurred in Todd County on U.S. 41.

Through Feb. 22, preliminary statistics indicate that 67 people have lost their lives on Kentucky roadways during 2009. This is 10 fewer than reported for the same time period in 2008.

Of the 82 motor vehicle fatalities, 46 victims were not wearing seat belts.

Four pedestrians have been killed. One fatality involved a motorcycle. A total of 23 fatalities have resulted from crashes involving the suspected use of alcohol.

Citizens can contribute to highway safety by reporting erratic drivers to the Kentucky State Police toll-free at 1-800-222-5555. Callers will remain anonymous and should give a description of the vehicle, location, direction of travel and license number if possible.

BETSY LAYNE — The members of the Floyd County Board of Education accepted the Nutrition, Health and Physical Activity Plan for the upcoming 2009-10 school year during a meeting on Monday.

Before the board meeting, Pete Grigsby Jr., assistant superintendent, spoke about the plan at a public forum held at Betsy Layne Elementary School.

The plan was developed after the passing of Senate Bill 172 in 2006. Senate Bill 172 requires that schools develop plans by which students receive education instruction in regard to nutrition, are provided adequate physical activity opportunities and by which vending machine programs are restructured.

Health personnel in the community worked with the committee and school officials to develop the plan, and Grigsby acknowledged those involved on Monday.

The school system's committee on health, nutrition and physical activity met several times during the last school year and came away with the establishment of a physical fitness assessment tool for grades K-12.

"They carried out the plan very, very well," Grigsby said. "It took teamwork."

One of the major changes brought about by the plan is the removal of vending machine snacks that did not meet federal and state guidelines. The items that were removed were

Robbery is latest in string

META — An armed man robbed the Meta Double Kwik in Pike County Sunday, adding another to a growing list of local robberies that have occurred in the past several months.

The Kentucky State Police received a call from the store Sunday evening from a clerk saying a white male brandishing a shotgun had entered the location and demanded money from the cash register.

The cashier described the man as approximately 6 feet tall and wearing a black hoodie sweatshirt.

The amount taken during the robbery has not been disclosed and the suspect left the store in a vehicle for which witnesses gave no clear description.

In various counties throughout the region, including both Pike and Floyd counties, along with Martin and Magoffin counties, there have been several robberies which have taken place at stores both remote and also along high-profile locations such as U.S. 23, as was the case with the Prestonsburg Exxon Tiger Mart.

The Exxon Tiger Mart in Prestonsburg was the location of two robberies, one in September and another in October, while in Pike County, a variety store in Regina was also targeted. The suspects in those cases have since been arrested.

In Magoffin County, B's Liquor was the site of a robbery in mid-November. At that store, along Route 40 in the Falcon area, clerks reported that two male subjects entered the premises with a knife and demanded money. One suspect in that case, David Bowen, 34, of Knoxville, was apprehended soon afterwards and charged with first-degree robbery.

A month later, in Martin County, a discount tobacco store in Warfield was the County beginning to address audit concerns

by SHELDON COMPTON

PRESTONSBURG — Floyd County Fiscal Court members are taking some of the first steps in addressing concerns that came up during their last fiscal audit.

Most significantly perhaps was finalizing a deal last week to sell East Kentucky Utilities Inc., something a report from Kentucky State Auditor Crit Luallen placed high on a list of items the county needed to do in the coming year.

But additional concerns were brought to the attention of county leaders, such as issues with administrative duties and payroll, including salary amounts for both Floyd County Judge-Executive R.D. "Doc" Marshall and Floyd County Jailor Roger Webb.

The issue of providing additional employees or more oversight to the handling of payroll and various other duties is something that has been addressed, Marshall said Tuesday.

"We have brought in a new employee for the purpose of eliminating that situation," said Marshall. "Elita Clay has been brought in as our finance officer,

New withholding tables now available on IRS.gov

Most workers will see bigger paychecks this spring

INDIANAPOLIS — The Internal Revenue Service released new withholding tables that will result in more take-home pay this spring for millions of American workers.

The new tables, now posted on IRS.gov, incorporate the new Making Work Pay credit, one of the key tax provisions included in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 that became law earlier this week.

"For most taxpayers, the additional credit will automatically start showing up in their paychecks this spring," said IRS Commissioner Doug Shulman. "Since employers and payroll companies will handle this change, people typically won't need to take any additional action. The IRS will continue working to implement this and other provisions of the new law as quickly as possible."

The new withholding tables, along with other instructions related to the new tax law, will be incorporated in new Publication 15-T. This publication will be posted to IRS.gov next week and mailed to more than 9 million employers in mid-March. The IRS asks that employers start using these new tables as soon as possible but not later than April 1. Most workers will see a boost in their take-home pay soon thereafter.

Eligible workers will get the benefit of this change without any action on their part. This means that workers don't need to fill out a new W-4 withholding form to get the Making Work Pay credit reflected in their take-home pay. A Form W-4 will not need to be submitted for the automatic withholding change. Individuals and couples with multiple jobs may want to submit revised W-4 forms to ensure enough withholding is held to cover the tax for the combined income. Publication 919 provides additional guidance for tax withholding.

Available for tax years

2009 and 2010, the Making Work Pay credit is 6.2 percent of a taxpayer's earned income with a maximum credit of $800 for a married couple filing a joint return and $400 for other taxpayers, but it is phased out for higher income taxpayers. Most workers will qualify for the maximum credit. Because the credit is refundable (people can get it even if they owe no tax), most low-income workers will also qualify for the full credit.

Though all eligible taxpayers will need to claim the credit when they file their 2009 income tax return next year, the benefit will generally be spread out over the paychecks they receive beginning this spring and continue until the end of the year.

Many higher-income taxpayers will see little or no change in their take-home pay. That's because the Making Work Pay credit is phased out for a married couple filing a joint return whose modified adjusted gross income (AGI) is between $150,000 and $190,000 and other taxpayers whose modified AGI is between $75,000 and $95,000. Taxpayers will not get a separate, special check mailed to them from the IRS like last year's economic stimulus payment.

Board approves agenda in rapid fashion

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

The Floyd County Board of Education made short work of a small agenda on Monday, approving six consent items with no request to pull any of the items out for discussion.

The board approved the amendment of the DataSeam project contract to be used in medical research related to the University of Louisville and the Kentucky Department of Commercialization and Innovation, the policy and procedures handbook for the Infinite Campus program and considered a commercial carrier for the Allen Central High School drill meet to Fort Knox next month.

The board also voted to accept the health plan that was presented by Asst. Supt. Pete Grigsby Jr. A public forum was held before the board meeting to inform citizens about the plan and what it entails.

Also at the meeting, administrators from Betsy Layne Elementary updated the board on the activities and educational progress at the school.

The school recently met all 10 of its No Child Left Behind target goals, and also scored 17 points higher on CATS test scores with an index of 95.7.

The members of the board praised John Kidd, the new principal at the school, for the work he has done to help improve the test scores and overall status of the school.

Kidd said that the school plans to use improvement funds to allow release time for teachers in order to analyze scores, utilize the reading coach, allow the exceptional children's teacher to be utilized as a math coach/collaborative teacher, provide extra tutors where needed and other changes.

The next regular meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education is scheduled to be held at Adams Middle School on March 23. The regular meetings being at 6:30 p.m.

replaced by healthy snacks, which is all part of the nutrition-related efforts of the wellness plan.

Grigsby also presented information of physical activity reports in some of the schools.

At Prestonsburg Elementary, students take the Presidential Physical Fitness Test twice a year. The tests are used to access the physical fitness level of students. The results of the test are recorded, and the students that score 50 percent or better will receive the National Physical Fitness Award. The students that score 85 percent or better are awarded the Presidential Physical Fitness Award.

Prestonsburg Elementary had 607 students that took the test during the last school year, and 67 of those students won the National Fitness Award. Also, 17 of the students won the Presidential Physical Fitness Award.

The plan must be submitted in full to the state by May of this year.

Study

to inform and seek further information from citizens, George said.

Though there had been discussion about the section of U.S. 23 in past years, a number of fatal accidents that occurred at the intersection over a two-month period of time spanning December to January got the attention of Couch and others at the Pikeville area.

In that span of time 8-year-old Seth Lafferty and 36-year-old Michele Sparkman were killed in separate crashes when drivers were attempting to enter onto U.S. 23 from Town Branch Road.

Some of the options that have been mentioned could be placing a traffic signal at the location or a barrier wall along the stretch of highway at the intersection.

Couch said last month he would like to give a look at the entire section of U.S. 23 from the Watergap overpass to where the Heritage House is located just before the first Prestonsburg exit.

Once a full study is completed, Couch and others at the department would send the study along to Frankfort in the form of an official recommendation. Couch said it would be up to state officials after that time to give some final recommendation will be approved.

target of a weekend robbery. Local sheriff's deputies responded to an alarm at the location and later told state police officers that the store's alarm had been activated, adding that a man had been spotted at the scene. Deputies said the man produced a revolver before fleeing on foot.

State police have said the rash of robberies is most likely drug- and alcohol-related and tends to appear in cycles.

Also during this five-month period of time, neighboring South Williamson saw its Dairy Queen robbed at gunpoint. Employees reported to police that a black male entered the restaurant around midnight, produced a handgun and demanded money before fleeing with an undisclosed amount of cash.

KSP Trooper Randall Coats is continuing to investigate the Meta robbery with the assistance of KSP Det. Gary Sykes.

as well as for other duties." Those other duties include issues of personnel and also in taking on the duties as the county's PRIDE coordinator.

As for Marshall and Webb's salaries, pay for the two men has since been adjusted to fit compliance with state regulations, which set the pay for these two county offices, as well as the salaries for the county clerk and sheriff.

All members of the fiscal court voted to adjust Marshall's salary to $3,154 biweekly and Webb's to $3,256 biweekly. Both had been receiving less than required by state standards, according to the audit.

Marshall, over the course of the fiscal year was underpaid by $2,762 and Webb was short $4,741.

The audit covered the fiscal year ending June 30, and pointed out weaknesses in payroll functions, records kept for the county's public properties corporation and compliance with administrative codes.

In her audit, Lutz highlighted a lack of "adequate segregation of duties over the payroll functions," pointed out, more specifically that one person enters payroll information into the computer system, prepares the documentation, which includes leave time balances, prepares checks, transfers money from the county's funds into the payroll retaining account and reconciles the retirement bank account.

The audit maintains that because a single employee handled these duties, the result was that payroll functions and oversight was not provided.

But Marshall now hopes since the issues from the audit have been addressed, he and the fiscal court can move ahead in the doing the business of the county.

"I feel good about the beginning of this new year, and look forward to meeting the needs of the people," he said.

Guest View A commonsense idea

In an example of necessity colliding with common sense, the Pentagon is turning to immigrants to help offset recruitment shortfalls.

And not just any immigrants either. The effort is aimed at high-skilled immigrants who came to this country legally on temporary visas and who have lived here for at least two years. Recruits would have the chance to become U.S. citizens in as little as six months following their military service. Illegal immigrants are not eligible.

This is a great idea that should have been adopted long ago. These are people who were previously excluded from military service. Permanent resident immigrants can enlist but temporary immigrants cannot. Passing up talented people makes no sense. In fact, in a sad commentary on the quality of the domestic volunteer corps, military recruiters say they expect the temporary immigrants to have more education, foreign language ability and professional experience than many of the Americans who now enlist. The concept seems to be popular, and the only grumbling you hear is coming from the nativist fringe, where some worry that these immigrants are still loyal to their home country and not the United States.

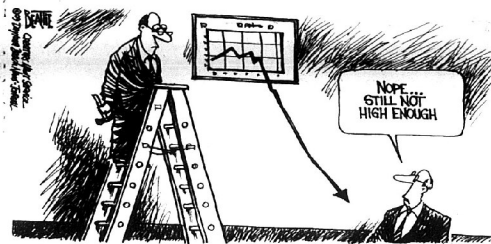

Nonsense. Why not say the same thing about permanent residents who are currently eligible to serve? Or even U.S. citizens who were born in other countries? The fact is, the military has long welcomed legal immigrants with permanent green cards and many of these enlistees have gone on to win medals and serve their adopted country with distinction. In Iraq and Afghanistan, the American casualties include more than 100 of these green-card troops. There is little doubt about their loyalty.

The recruitment effort will be limited to about 1,000 recruits in the first year, mostly for the Army. But if the program succeeds, Pentagon officials say they plan to expand it to include all branches of the military.

Let's hope that happens. This sort of initiative is a no-brainer. It helps give legal immigrants who are holding temporary visas an on-ramp to U.S. citizenship and allows them to put down roots here instead returning to their home country as many immigrants now do. It also helps the military, which is fighting two wars and struggling to find people with language skills and other specialized expertise. And it helps the cause of condition-based comprehensive immigration by reinforcing the notion that there is no free lunch and that those who stand to benefit from a change in U.S. immigration policy should step up and look for ways to contribute.

For such a simple idea, the concept of enlisting temporary legal immigrants does a lot of good and makes a lot of sense.

After 20/20, what?

by AL CROSS

The ABC documentary "A Hidden America: Children of the Mountains" and its short follow-up stirred a lot of talk in Central Appalachia this month. But what action will ensue? That is the question the people of the region, and their journalists, need to answer.

Many Appalachian viewers of the first report had a familiar gripe, that it showed only the bad side of the region. Though it made a brief reference to the 1960s, the "20/20" show was not intended to be a progress report on Appalachia as a whole. It aimed to remind or reveal that "half a million people live in the kind of poverty we cannot imagine," as Diane Sawyer said in her introduction to the national audience of nearly 11 million. She told that story through the lives of children who have been victimized by the failings of adults and are struggling to overcome.

We will always remember the stories of the football star living in a truck to escape his family's depravity, the pre-teen girl struggling for years with her mother's drug problems, and the girl who said "batter and ranch" as sometimes all her family refrigerator has. "Butter and ranch. That's as poetic as most hymns," said Dee Davis, who grew up in Hazard and runs the Center for Rural Strategies, based at Whitesburg.

And contrary to claims that the documentary was a rehash of old issues, it revealed something new: that a favorite soft drink in the region has so much sugar, caffeine and acid that it is responsible for widespread tooth decay and has even earned from dentists a name for a disorder: "Mountain Dew Mouth."

But when journalism illuminates problems that raise questions of public policy, it's obliged to offer suggestions for solutions. That was the main flaw many journalists saw in the documentary, which was long on emotion and short on context. Many viewers were also troubled by its report of a later-retracted incest allegation in the family of the football player, which consumed one minute and 45 seconds of the 39-minute report and amplified perhaps the worst stereotype of Central Appalachia — a stereotype that, unlike most, isn't supported by research. If that 1:45, and maybe a bit more, had been used to report on causes and possible solutions, "A Hidden America" would have been a more complete package.

ABC tried to do the next best thing, repeating the tack it took in a similar documentary Sawyer did on children in Camden, N.J., following up with reports on reaction and solutions. But its "20/20" follow-up of seven and a half minutes consisted mainly of retelling the story for viewers who hadn't seen it before and reporting on the charity extended to the children as a result of the report, and on promises by Pepsi, the maker of Mountain Dew, to provide a second mobile unit for the chief adult hero of the story, dentist Edwin Smith of Barbourville, and help him with education and recruitment of dentists to the region.

Possible solutions were relegated to the last two minutes of the follow-up, and compressed into a blur of ideas (infrastructure and job training, green jobs, computers for every student, expanded health care) with only two methods of turning them into reality: stimulus money and philanthropy, one of the means suggested by this writer and the one that made it onto air.

Still, by focusing fresh attention on the problems, the reports could help accomplish what Sawyer, a Kentucky native, suggested in her eloquent closing line: "These Kentuckians say the beauty of the mountains is calling to all of us, to restart that conversation that began more than 40 years ago." That's when the Appalachian Regional Commission was created as part of the War on Poverty and Robert F. Kennedy campaigned in the Eastern Kentucky counties where ABC did its reporting.

The nation as a whole, and the states involved, should continue to bear some responsibility for helping Appalachia, but the region's problems are also local problems. They are often not seen that way by some of the better-off in Appalachian communities who would prefer to dismiss the poverty, ignorance and depredation as unsolvable and the adults involved as incorrigible. But this was a story mainly about innocent victims, and the fighting spirit they show in trying to overcome them. They are inspirations and a call to action.

Also inspiring were the follow-up final words, from University of Kentucky professor Ron Eller, the leading historian of modern Appalachia: "There are ways to think about the future in the mountains of different kinds of ways than we've thought about them in the past. We just need to be willing to dream."

Appalachian journalists should seek out those dreams and ideas. There is no shortage of them, from the visionary, like specialty agriculture such as finishing hogs on forest mast to the more immediate, like better dental care. It's in short supply in Central Appalachia partly because Medicaid pays dentists so little. And how about re-establishing the Kentucky Appalachian Commission?

Neil Middleton, news director of WYMT-TV in Hazard, wrote in his blog, "Are we really mad at Diane Sawyer for reporting on a serious problem, or are we upset that someone is reminding us of images we would rather ignore? Remember, our mandate as journalists is to 'give voice to the voiceless,' or . . . 'to comfort the afflicted and afflict the comfortable.' The images we saw the other night should make us all uncomfortable. Instead of complaining about the representation of the region, Middleton says, "Maybe we should ask ourselves, 'What have I done to help correct this problem?'"

The writer is director of the Institute for Rural Journalism and Community Issues, based at the University of Kentucky, with partner, at 25 universities in 16 states.

Letters

Bashed again

A show was aired Friday night, Feb. 13, called "Children of the Mountains," a 20/20 feature by Diane Sawyer. It really should have been titled, "Let's bash Eastern Kentucky again."

Under the guise of concern, she showed people living in trash piles, with dirty diapers (Diane's words) in the yard. She wants high ratings. The people she showed were toothless doopeheads and drunks, living in silt, on welfare.

I was born and raised in Eastern Kentucky and am proud of it, but I'm so tired of the shows spreading venom. They are going to hear them.

Cook, Wynn lead Lady Eagles to Senior Night victory

TIMES STAFF REPORT
PIPPA PASSES — Seniors Camille Cook and Sierra Wynn were determined to make the last home regular-season game of their college careers a good one. The two young ladies did just that, sparking the Alice Lloyd College Lady Eagles to a come-from-behind 57-50 victory last night over the Brescia University Lady Bears.

Lyndsey Mahon) for the contributions they had made to the ALC women's basketball program during their careers. After the floor was cleared it was time to go to work. The Bears jumped out to an early lead and owned an 18-11 advantage at the 10:56 mark. ALC then went on a 14-6 run and captured the lead at 25-24 with 4:39 remaining. The squads then traded buckets before a late BU flurry gave the visiting team a 31-27 lead at intermission. In the second half, the Lady Eagles picked up their defensive intensity, and gave the Bears a fits. Over the first 14 minutes, ALC held BU to only nine points and took command of the game. The Lady Eagles caught Brescia and then extended their lead to 51-40. They then held on to win the game. For ALC (13-12), Cook led the way with a game-high 16 points. Wynn was a force on the boards as she ripped down a game-high 13 rebounds to go along with her eight points. Junior Chelsea Jarrell and sophomore Nicole Lutes continued solid play and made sure their senior teammates had a memorable night. Jarrell came off of the bench and powered her way to 14 points, many of which were scored during the decisive second half blitz. Lutes finished with a double-double of 11 points and 11 rebounds for the Lady Eagles. Kaylan Sharpshooter was the focus of the Brescia defense during the entire game. She was held scoreless for the first time this season. However, the Lady Eagles leading scorer, showing she is far from one dimensional, was content to set her teammates up as she dished off a game-high seven assists. Clarissa Houston led Brescia (7-19) with 14 points and eight rebounds. The Lady Eagles will travel to New Albany, Ind., on Friday, where they will face St. Louis College of Pharmacy on a neutral floor. Tipoff is set for 6 p.m. The men's basketball squads from the two respective colleges are scheduled to meet in a nightcap at 8 p.m.

Five in double figures as Tech downs Bears

TIMES STAFF REPORT
MONTGOMERY, W.Va. — West Virginia University Tech put five players in double figures and survived an onslaught of fouls to knock off Pikeville College 86-71 Saturday afternoon.

WVU Tech (19-9, 5-5 in the Mid-South Conference) survived 21 turnovers to knock off Pikeville, in all likelihood eliminating the Bears' chances of cracking the nation's Top 25. Pikeville (19-9, 7-4) played the game without the league's top scorer, Junior Josh Samarco chose not to play on an ankle he injured early in the Bears' 84-80 win over third-ranked Georgetown on Thursday afternoon.

The teams were whittled for an incredible 52 fouls on the day, with four players — three from WVU Tech — fouling out of the contest. Pikeville put up a game effort with only nine uniformed players, and with sophomore Justin Hicks leading the way with 14 points, took a 38-35 lead to the break. But the second half was all Golden Bears, who outscored Pikeville 51-33 to pull away for the easy win.

Pikeville was led by its starting guard combination of Hicks and senior J.B. Smiley, who finished with 19 points apiece. Senior Ewan Linton had 14 points and 13 rebounds in the loss, while freshman Kane Belcher, starting for only the third time this season, scored 11 points and pulled down five offensive rebounds. WVU Tech had five players in double figures, led by Junior Daryl Slack and senior McGee with 16 apiece. Slack, a 5-11 guard, had eight rebounds in the win. Junior Robby Marshall followed with 13, while senior Sam Robertson tossed in 13 to go with nine rebounds and freshman Vincent Coleman had 10 along with nine boards.

Pikeville will step out of league play for the final time this season on Thursday night when it returns to West Virginia to play fifth-ranked Mountain State University at 7 p.m. WVU Tech will host Lindsey Wilson on Thursday night.

CHEERLEADING SPOTLIGHT: South Floyd finished runner-up in the cheerleading competition of the Floyd County boys' basketball tournament.

Lady Bears knock off WV Tech, reach 20 wins

TIMES STAFF REPORT
MONTGOMERY, W.Va. — Pikeville College picked it up after the halt and rolled to its 20th win of the season with a 63-47 win over the Lady Golden Bears of WVU Tech Saturday afternoon. Pikeville has won 20 games four times since starting women's basketball in 1979, but this was the first since 2003. All four 20-win seasons have come during Bill Watson's 12-year tenure.

The Lady Bears struggled out of the gate, trailing much of the first half to WVU Tech, which is winless in the Mid-South Conference play. But Pikeville, scored the last six to hold a 25-21 lead at the break.

Coming out of the locker room, the Lady Bears continued their roll. Sophomore Naterie Hinton, the current player of the week in the MSC, had 16 points in the opening six minutes as the Lady Bears pulled away for the win.

Hinton led Pikeville with 22 points on 9-of-11 shooting. Sophomore Lacia Bailey followed 15 points off the bench. Senior Kristal Daniels, who had four points, finished the game with 11 rebounds, five of them off the offensive glass.

WVU Tech had one player in double figures, with Ashley Blaney leading all scorers with 24 points. She also had a team-high seven rebounds. Pikeville (20-9, 6-5 in the league) will wrap up the season next Saturday, playing host to Cumberland. Seniors Alice Daniel, Kristal Daniels and Whitney Hogg will be honored for their time at Pikeville in a ceremony prior to the 2 p.m. tip.

Newsome records first triple-double in Piarist School girls' basketball history

by STEVE LEMASTER SPORTS EDITOR

MARTIN — The 2008-09 season was one of record-setting games for the Piarist School Lady Knights. Early in the season, Piarist scored the most points in the school's history, putting up 73 in a game versus Riverside Christian. Last week, another Piarist milestone was established. Chelsea Newsome, the daughter of Kermit and Joella Newsome of Mud Creek, became the first Piarist student to register a triple-double last week. Newsome, a junior who wears No. 42 for Piarist, went above her own expectations in a game Feb. 17 across Oneida Baptist Institute. During the game against OBI, Newsome scored 14 points, pulled down 11 rebounds and dished off 10 assists for a triple-double.

"It's been an inspiring season," said Piarist Coach Kevin Tackett. "Chelsea is full of heart and it's been great watching her success all year." Piarist ended the season 3-22. Prestonsburg defeated the Lady Knights 78-24 on Monday night at Knights Layne in the opening round of the 58th District Tournament.

OVC Men's Basketball: Colonels roll to fourth straight win

TIMES STAFF REPORT

RICHMOND — On Senior Night in McBrayer Arena, the Eastern Kentucky University men's basketball team led from start to finish in a 73-51 victory over Ohio. The Colonels (18-10) have now won four straight games and handed Ohio (13-13) its sixth consecutive road loss.

Freshman Jorge Camacho paced EKVU with a personal-high 17 points, 12 of which came in the first half. Senior Mike Rose recorded his third double-double of the season (14 points, 10 rebounds) while junior Josh Taylor and sophomore Justin Stommes each chipped in with 13 points.

With his 14 points, Rose moved up to second place on the EKVU all-time scoring list. The guard now has 1,731 career points.

Jerome Tillman led the Bobcats with 19 points on 70 percent (7-of-10) shooting from the floor. The forward finished in a career-high eight rebounds as well.

Eastern Kentucky came out of the gates on fire, scoring 12 of the first 15 points. A three-pointer from junior Papa O'ppong gave the Colonels their largest lead of the half, 37-19, with 5:44 left. The home squad shot 66.7 percent (18-of-27) from the floor in the first 20 minutes and took a 42-26 cushion into halftime. Camacho and Taylor each scored 12 points in the first half for Eastern. Taylor was 5-for-6 from the field with two three-pointers while Camacho came off the bench to net 6-of-8 field goal attempts.

Ohio scored the first five points of the second half to creep within 11 points, but the Eastern defense held the Bobcats to just four more points over the next nine minutes to thwart off any comeback attempt.

With the win, the Colonels improve to 3-0 against MAC opponents this year. Eastern defeated Akron and Ball State earlier in the season. This was also EKVU's first ever win against Ohio (1-3). The two teams last played in 1989.

Eastern Kentucky will conclude the regular season with two road OVC games. First up is league leader UT Martin on Thursday (Feb. 26).

Morehead State Saturday evening at the M.A.C. Center in Kent.

Host Kent (16-11) was led by Al Fisher who scored 27 points. Tyree Evans had 19 points, and Chris Singletary added 15 points for the winning effort.

Morehead State (16-13) was led by Leon Buchanan who scored a season-high 31 points. Kenneth Faried had his 19th double-double of the season with 17 points and 12 rebounds. Demonte Harper had 15 points.

"We had an eight or 10 point lead when they went to the zone, and we didn't attack it well," said MSU Coach Donnie Tyndall. "Our guys played hard, but give Kent State the credit to rally."

Leon (Buchanan) and Kenneth (Faried) were warriors. Leon with his 31 points and Kenneth with 17 points, 12 rebounds and five blocked shots.

The Eagles led 31-29 at intermission, but the Golden Flashers out-scored MSU 50-45 in the second half.

MSU will return to conference play with a nationally televised (ESPN2) contest at Murray State on Thursday (Feb. 26). Tipoff in the RSEC will be 9 p.m. EST.

Buchanan named OVC Player of the Week; Morehead State University senior forward Leon Buchanan has been named the Ohio Valley Conference Men's Basketball Player of the Week. He averaged 28.0 points and 9.0 rebounds in games against Eastern Kentucky and Kent State.

The third Eagle to earn OVC Player of the Week honors this season, Buchanan hit 66.7 percent (18-of-27) of his field goal attempts and 90.9 percent (20-of-22) from the free throw line. He had 25 points and 10 rebounds at Eastern Kentucky and 31 points and eight rebounds at Kent State. Buchanan has hit 39 of his last 42 free throw attempts.

"Leon is playing with a great deal of confidence and toughness down the stretch," said MSU Coach Donnie Tyndall. "He understands that he only has a few games remaining in his college career, and he's doing everything in his power to make the most of it."

women's basketball team outscored host Eastern Kentucky 38-22 in the second half, and junior Brittany Pittman set the NCAA Division I single season blocked shot record with 11 rejections to go along with 16 points and eight rebounds as the Eagles raced past EKVU 70-48 Saturday at Alumni Coliseum. Pittman needed six blocks to set the record of 156 and now has 162 blocks this season. MSU improved to 16-12 and 10-6 in the OVC and stayed in at least a tie for fourth place. EKVU dropped its 11th consecutive game.

The win marked the sixth consecutive for MSU over EKVU, and the seventh in the last eight meetings. MSU has now swept the season series with EKVU in the last three years.

Morehead State trailed 8-0 right off the bat and still were behind 24-18 with 5:13 left in the first half, but the Eagles went on a run late in the first half and took a 32-26 lead. MSU outscored the Lady Colonels 14-2 to end the first half and made it an 18-2 run with the first four in the final half.

"In the first half we were really pumped up and really didn't make good decisions. We were really excited the basket and earned our way to the free throw line during the while game. In the second half, we settled down and started making good decisions and passes. We started to just lay it in, and our defense played as good as we have in a while," said MSU Coach Mike Bradbury. "They (EKU) really had to start taking shots from the perimeter with Brittany blocking so many shots down low."

The Eagles also got double figure games with 10 each from Tiffany and Tiffanie Stephens. Chynna Bozeman scored nine and had a season high eight rebounds. She also hit three three-pointers and moved to second on the MSU season trey chart with 82. Pittman's double-double was her 13th of the season, and the 11 blocks tied a season high. The Eagles outscored 47-39 and outscored EKVU 12-3 at the free throw line.

EKU didn't have a player to reach double figures in the point column as Nadia Mossong and Kayla Drake had nine each. The Eagles held EKVU to 29 percent shooting after holding them to 28 percent in the first game between the teams on Jan. 24. EKVU was only 9-of-36 from the field in the second half, while MSU shot 46 percent. For the game, MSU hit 44 percent.

EVERYBODY'S SCIENCE

Boning up on a healthy future

by SANDY MILLER HAYS AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

A quick question: What could Rosemary Clooney possibly have in common with Scooby-Doo, Homer Simpson, and the '60s British TV spy drama "The Prisoner"?

The answer is "Dem Bones, Dem Bones," that famous old spiritual (you know how it goes: "Dem bones, dem bones, dem dry bones..."). Rosemary Clooney recorded it; Scooby-Doo sang a variation of it while making a sandwich ("And the ham slice is connected to the rye bread"); Homer's doctor sang it while working on Homer's triple bypass, and it was heard playing on a car radio in the final episode of "The Prisoner." Talk about making the rounds!

I've had "Dem Bones" rolling around in my head ever since my recent medical checkup, when my doctor informed me that while my latest bone density scan scores weren't awful, they could have been better. I wasn't terribly surprised, because osteoporosis is rampant on both sides of my family. Although I consume plenty of dairy, take a calcium supplement and am diligent about weight-bearing exercise, I know that keeping my bones healthy will be a lifelong battle.

So you can imagine how I zeroed in on a couple of recent news stories (See SCIENCE, page four)

POISON OAK

Oscar? Oscar who?

by CLYDE PACK

They say that "with age comes wisdom." Guess the rule is that one needs a great deal of age before that would apply, because despite an ample amount of gray hair, age spots and wrinkles, I've yet to experience the "wisdom" part of the old axiom.

Clyde Pack

One thing that my growing older has made me realize, though, is that no matter how alone I think I am when it comes to certain ideas, I'm in good company, because there are lots of others who feel the same way I do. I've discovered, too, that one of the reasons that it's taken so long to discover that fact, is because a person has to be pretty much beyond the realm of caring what others think, before he has the courage to say what's on his mind.

That's why I don't hesitate now to discuss freely, Sunday night's Academy Awards. I'll admit right off I didn't watch them on TV. The reason will soon become obvious. But as I read about them in the paper, I had to wonder if I was the only one reading the article who could not put a face with half the names of the actors and actresses who were nominated. Oh, I'd have been able to pick out Sean Penn, because I saw him on the news a lot when he was married to Madonna; and of course I remember Kate Winslet when she was in Titanic. But other than that, if someone had offered me big money to match photos of the nominees with their names, it would have been pure dumb luck if I'd gotten a single one of them right.

Guess by now you've figured out that I'm just an old fogey who never goes to the movies. As a matter of fact, the last movie I saw the same year it won Best Picture, was Chariots of Fire, the one where British athletes were training for the 1924 Summer Olympics and everybody ran in slow motion down by the ocean. I remember quite vividly how shocked I was when I heard it had won an Oscar, because it had to have been one of the worst movies I'd ever seen in my life. Of course, that was before Kentucky Woman, the TV movie with Cheryl Ludd and Ned Beatty, that was partially filmed in Paintsville. As far as I'm concerned, that has to be the worst movie ever made. Anyway, I don't feel a bit uncomfortable admitting my ignorance about what's playing at the movies now, because I'm 100 percent sure I'm not by myself. I'm confident that there are many more just like me out there who still remember the days of Randolph Scott, Leo Gorcey and Huntz Hall, and those 12-episode cliff-hanging serials, when popcorn and Milk Duds were a nickel a box...and movies made sense. As I've mentioned, I may be a little shy when it comes to "wisdom," but as long as I've got those good memories about those long-ago Saturday matinees at the Sipp and Royal theatres, I'm satisfied.

Extension of WPA Packhorse Library projects in the county is being sought by Mrs.

Science

from the Agricultural Research Service (ARS), both of them pertaining to ways to help keep bones in tiptop shape.

The first story reported that findings from a new ARS-funded study suggest that natural pigments found in plants may help protect against bone loss in older men and women. This ties in with other studies that have consistently shown that fruit and vegetable intake is good for bones.

Why? Biological antioxidants such as carotenoids in fruits and veggies protect cells and tissues from damage caused by naturally occurring oxygen free radicals in the body. These plant nutrients may help protect the skeleton by reducing oxidative stress and thereby inhibiting bone breakdown.

In this recent study, the ARS-funded researchers looked at the potential effects on bone mineral density of overall and individual intake of carotenoid compounds including alpha-carotene, beta-carotene, beta-cryptoxanthin, lycopene and lutein+zeaxanthin.

They tracked changes in bone mineral density at two areas of the hip and lumbar spine of male and female volunteers, aged 75 on average, participating in the Framingham Osteoporosis

Study. The researchers took the measurements on 213 men and 390 women at the beginning of the study and again after four years.

The results: Indications are that carotenoids were associated with some level of protection against losses in bone mineral density at the hip in men, and at the lumbar spine in women.

If you're curious as to how to get more carotenoids, it's easy to look up the levels of individual carotenoids in various foods. Just go online to <http://www.ars.usda.gov/Main/doc.htm> and click on any of the individual carotenoids listed: alpha-carotene, beta-carotene, beta-cryptoxanthin, lycopene or lutein+zeaxanthin.

Findings from another study funded in part by ARS suggest that neutralizing an acid-producing diet may be an important key to reducing bone breakdown as you age.

When you eat fruits and vegetables, your body metabolizes them to bicarbonate, so they are considered alkali-producing. By contrast, the typical American diet is rich in protein and cereal grains that are metabolized to acid, and are therefore acid-producing. As you age, this type of diet can lead to a mild but slowly increasing metabolic "acido-sis."

For the study, the researchers measured selected biomarkers in healthy male and female volunteers aged 50 and older. The measurements were taken at the beginning of the study and again at the end, about three months later.

A group of 78 of the volunteers were provided with either of two bicarbonates--potassium or sodium--along with their usual diet and exercise regimens. The bicarbonate groups consumed an amount of bicarbonate equivalent to about nine servings of fruits and veggies daily.

The results? The 78 volunteers in the bicarbonate group had significant reductions in the biomarkers that are associated with bone loss and fracture, compared with the 84 volunteers who didn't get the bicarbonates.

The scientists say more studies are needed, but it sounds to me like eating more fruits and veggies could be a safe, low-cost way to help "dem bones" stay healthy as long as you need them!

The Agricultural Research Service is the chief in-house scientific research agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. You can read more about ARS discoveries at <http://www.ars.usda.gov/news>.

Through it all, newspapers did their jobs, too

We salute newspapers across Kentucky. When power was off for more than 700,000 state residents, the Internet was down, many cell phones didn't work and Kentuckians begged for news about the ice storm and emergency shelters - and just about anything else - overall, Kentucky newspapers didn't miss a beat - or an issue. Keeping their readers informed was their top priority.

Kentucky's newspapers - we bring the news closer to home.
