MILLARD — A Pike County man has been arrested and charged with first-degree wanton endangerment after allegedly firing shots at family members and then barricading himself inside his home.

According to a release from the Kentucky State Police, Richard Goslin, 43, of Millard, fired shots at family members after they came to his home to pick up some belongings.

When troopers arrived on the scene, Goslin allegedly locked himself in the house and ignored verbal commands to exit the residence. Det. Ben Cramer established phone contact with Goslin after more than four hours of negotiations, which led to Goslin exiting the residence and being placed under arrest.

While being transported to the Pike County Detention Center, Goslin reportedly became combative and tried to kick the windows of the police cruiser. After troopers used pepper spray and a Taser to control Goslin, he became compliant and was lodged in the detention center without further incident.

Johnson jail under investigation

PAINTSVILLE — The death of a former inmate at the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center has prompted officials to launch an investigation into the facility.

The jail received a subpoena early Thursday morning, according to a statement release by KSP Post 9 in Pikeville, asking for administrators to produce records in relation to complaints of criminal conduct taking place there.

The death of former inmate Sherry Bowen McFaddin roughly a week ago is the key reason for the investigation, said Kentucky State Police Det. Ben Cramer.

According to Cramer, the investigation is focused on determining the circumstances surrounding the 43-year-old woman's death. This will be done through interviews and close study of documentation and other records in the case, Cramer said.

The jail contends that its staff conducted themselves in a reasonable manner and has denied that McFaddin was beaten, one rumor that has circulated since her death.

Speaking to media earlier this week, jail administrator Henry Williams said his staff would cooperate fully with the investigation, adding that he felt his staff had reacted properly and followed procedure when attending to

Winter vacation leads to longer school days

by JARRID DEATON

Students in Floyd County will be in the classroom a little longer starting on April 13, with 30 minutes added on to the end of each school day.

According to a release from the Floyd County Board of Education, the school day will be extended by 30 minutes to help make up for missed instructional time due to the extreme weather that covered the area with snow and ice earlier this year. The inclement weather kept the school doors closed to students for almost an entire month after winter break.

With the new schedule, the schools that currently dismiss at 2:45 p.m. will dismiss at 3:15, and the schools that dismiss at 3 p.m. will dismiss at 3:30.

Floyd County Supt. Henry Webb believes that the extra time added to each day of school will benefit the school system in more than one way, including opening up days for students to attend summer school and other programs.

"By extending the school day by 30 minutes, that will enable us to make up three days," Webb said. "More importantly, it will provide more instructional time for the state assessments. Also, quite honestly, it will allow students and teachers the opportunity to go to summer school and other programs. It benefits us in two ways."

Officials with the school district recently sent correspondence to the Kentucky Department of Education regarding the request for six days to assist with making PRESTONSBURG — Jesse H. Dulaney, the Banner man indicted in October in connection with a shootout at Allen that resulted in the death of 30-year-old Sally Vance, has been found competent to stand trial.

Dulaney was indicted on seven charges, including five counts of attempted murder, for an incident prosecutors say took place on Aug. 5. He also faces a count of possession of a handgun by a convicted felon and persistent felony offender.

According to the charges, Dulaney was one of several people involved in what has been called an apparent drive-by shooting that took place early that morn-

BETSY LAYNE — An accident at the entrance to Mare Creek that blocked traffic for close to an hour on Thursday led to the arrest of a man on charges of driving under the influence.

Danny Stratton, 55, of Stanville, was arrested at the scene of the two-vehicle collision.

According to emergency officials, the accident occurred just after noon, with 911 dispatchers notifying the Betsy Layne Fire Department of an injury accident involving two vehicles in front of Blackburn's Greenhouse.

The southbound lane of traffic was closed while emergency officials worked to clear the area.

According to Kentucky State Police Trooper Sham Little, there were no injuries as a result of the crash.

Stratton was placed under arrest by Little and transported to the Floyd County Detention Center.

Utility picks up awards

by SHELDON COMPTON

PRESTONSBURG — Prestonsburg Water Plant Manager Donald Compton says he and his staff, along with the other city utility employees, have been hard at work in the past several years to improve the quality of water for city residents.

And now he has the hardware to show that hard work pays off.

Compton was presented with the Earl T. Mitchell Award this past week, an award given to an individual who has demonstrated a commitment to the improvement of the progression and maintenance of a water system.

The award is a statewide recognition across four chapters of the Kentucky Water and Waste Water Association (KWWWA).

But Compton will first tell you not of his own accomplishments, but of the accomplishments of the water plant itself, especially considering the plant finished in the top four in the state when votes from committee members were counted.

"There are probably 30 to 35 counties involved and the water

SOCIAL SECURITY NEWS

Vice President Biden announces recovery payments to go to Social Security and SSI beneficiaries in May

Vice President Joe Biden and Michael J. Astrue, Commissioner of Social Security, announced today that the federal government will send out $250 economic recovery payments to people who receive Social Security and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits beginning in early May 2009 and continuing throughout the month. No action is required to get the payment, which will be sent separately from the person's regular monthly payment.

"The Social Security Administration and Commissioner Astrue have been working closely with other federal agencies to get these payments out the door in record time and into the hands of folks who need it most," said Vice President Biden. "These are checks that will make a big difference in the lives of older Americans and people with disabilities - many of whom have been hit especially hard by the economic crisis that has swept across the country."

"We have been working diligently to issue the $250 one-time recovery payments as soon as possible," Commissioner Astrue said. "The legislation requires extensive coordination with other federal agencies and I'm pleased we are on track to issue these recovery payments earlier than the statute requires. Soon more than $1.3 billion will be in the hands of more than 50 million Americans."

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 provides for a one-time payment of $250 to adult Social Security beneficiaries, and to SSI recipients, except those receiving Medicaid in care facilities. To receive the payment the individual must be eligible for Social Security or SSI during the months of November 2008, December 2008 or January 2009.

The legislation also provides for a one-time payment to Veterans Affairs (VA) and Railroad Retirement Board (RRB) beneficiaries. The VA and RRB will be responsible for paying individuals under their respective programs. However, if someone receives Social Security and SSI, VA or RRB benefits, he or she will receive only one $250 payment. If the payment is not received by June 4, 2009, people getting Social Security or SSI should contact the agency.

For more detailed information about the $250 one-time economic recovery payments, go to www.socialsecurity.gov/payment.

Duct tape is great, but not for exhaust pipes

by TOM and RAY MAGLIOZZI

Dear Tom and Ray:
My son, 16, bought a '77 Pontiac Grand Prix. It's loud, with a big motor (muscle-car-type motor, original everything). Anyway, he sawed off the exhaust pipe to make it even louder, even though I told him he could get a ticket for this. He proceeded to tell me that this car "deserved" to be loud. Well, he got pulled over by a police officer, who told him he needed to make his car quieter. He tried to put the clamp back on it, but it doesn't hold. This brings me to my question: He asked me if duct tape will be OK to hold the pipe to the rest of the exhaust system, without starting some type of fire. I'm not a car expert, so we agreed to ask you guys. — Rob RAY: Duct tape is pretty heavy stuff. But I don't think it's any match for pressurized, 800-degree exhaust, Rob.

TOM: Traditionally, we've always used frozen concentrated orange juice cans to patch up exhaust pipes. But sadly, they're now made out of cardboard. So we now recommend empty tomato paste cans.

RAY: Better than that, your kid can go to his local auto-parts store and buy an adapter. Almost all auto-parts stores sell metal sleeves that are either slightly larger or slightly smaller in diameter than your exhaust pipe. The sleeve serves as a coupling, where you stick the severed pieces of the exhaust pipe in either end, and then clamp them down to hold them in place.

TOM: It's a cheap repair, and it won't last forever. But based on your son's approach to this car, I don't think you're going to need to plan for forever.

RAY: If you want something a little more permanent, or if he cut it too close to the muffler for the sleeve to work, take the car to a garage or a muffler shop, and ask them to butt the pipes together and weld them.

Cars not a good hedge against inflation

Dear Tom and Ray:
Would you discuss the ins and outs of "stocking up" on cars as a hedge against future inflation? For instance, I just bought a 2009 Honda Fit that I love and that is basically considered the best car in its class — with high-quality workmanship, excellent safety features, high miles per gallon and so on. So my question is, Why not go out and buy another one for the relatively low price of $16,000, and simply store it as a hedge against future inflation? Then, after 15 years or so, I could take it out of storage and use it when my current car has worn out. My point is, if one could live with the stylistic and other changes that will have occurred in cars by that time, one would have a "brand-new," high-quality car that represents a huge bargain when compared with the undoubtedly highly inflated prices of those future cars. Do you agree? — Steve

TOM: Steve, I think you've solved the problems of the American car industry. All GM and Chrysler have to do is stop selling their cars right now, put them in storage for 15 years and then sell them as gigantic bargains in 2024. Of course, it would mean that in 2024, they'd be selling cars with 15-year-old technology.

RAY: So? Have you driven a Jeep Wrangler lately?

TOM: This sort of idea works well for things like toilet paper, Steve, where technological innovations are few and far between. But it's less predictable with cars. Fifteen years ago, no one would have predicted that electronic stability control would be a standard — and very effective — safety feature. Or that an inexpensive car like your Fit would come standard with side AND side-curtain air bags.

RAY: And while the Honda Fit gets excellent mileage now, compared with other cars on the road, it might not look so good in 15 years, when safer cars are getting even better mileage. So you're taking a significant risk.

TOM: For some people — like you — that's fine. I drive a car that's more than 30 years old, and it's good enough for me. I don't need any of that fancy stuff like ESC, anti-lock brakes or electronic ignition. Of course, I don't have to drive much. And having a bus stop near my house as "Plan B" helps me maintain that carefree attitude!

RAY: And then there's the opportunity cost of the money. If you sink $16,000 into an "extra" Honda Fit now, in 15 years, even if it's perfectly preserved, it's going to be worth a lot less than that. You'd be lucky to get $5,000 for it in 2024 if you needed to sell it.

TOM: Whereas if you invested that 16K in the stock market, by 2024 it could be worth $5,500!

Attorney general warns consumers about get-rich-quick scams

Attorney General Jack Conway is warning consumers to use caution when purchasing software and training for internet sales and other business opportunities. General Conway's Office of Consumer Protection has noticed an increase in attempts to lure consumers into purchasing training and software for Internet-based business and marketing as a way to get-rich-quick.

"In these trying economic times, protecting the public from operators of get-rich-quick scams is more important than ever," said General Conway. "I am committed to protecting consumers from unscrupulous marketers and scam artists who seek to prey on Kentuckians who are struggling financially. In some cases, consumers are investing thousands of dollars in these Internet-based businesses only to find that the money making opportunity is not what was advertised and will not provide the desired return on investment."

Legitimate business opportunities requiring an investment of more than $500 are required to register with the Office of the Attorney General and provide a bond and disclosure documents. The Kentucky Office of the Attorney General and Federal Trade Commission suggest consumers exercise caution and review the following tips prior to purchasing such training or business ventures or work-at-home opportunities.

Does the ad promise big money for little effort? Fraudulent ads use similar bait: Fast cash. Minimal work. No risk. And the advantage of being your own boss or working from home.

Before promoters can accept money from potential investors, the law requires that they give investors important disclosure documents. If the promoter does not make the document readily available, interested consumers should find another opportunity.

Talk to current investors, but beware of paid "shills," who work for the company. Visit other business sites in person. And get professional advice if you need it. Do not lose your life savings just because you did not spend a few hundred dollars to talk to a lawyer, an accountant, or another expert.

Consumers should visit the FTC's web site at <http://www.ftc.gov/bcp/online/edcams/bizoppes/coninfo.html> for more information on evaluating Internet-based business opportunities or www.ftc.gov/bizoppes to help identify and avoid business opportunity scams.

Information is also available on the Office of the Attorney General's website at <http://ag.ky.gov/civil/consumerprotection/scams/business.htm>. Consumers can contact the Attorney General's Office of Consumer Protection at 1-888-432-9257 or their local Better Business Bureau office.

Higher tax is an incentive to quit smoking

Smokers began paying dramatically higher prices on Wednesday. The federal cigarette tax jumped by 62 cents a pack to $1.01 [while the tax in Kentucky added another 30 cents]. Levies on other tobacco products also rose.

Obviously, smokers are upset. But this is an excellent opportunity to do what most tobacco users consistently say they want to do: quit smoking.

About seven in 10 smokers say they want to stop smoking, and with good reason. People who do significantly reduce their risk of dying prematurely.

They also reduce the risk of harming others around them — especially children — with their smoke. Children raised with a smoker have much higher rates of asthma, as well as more frequent and more severe respiratory infections.

Because money raised by the higher cigarette tax will fund health care for poor children, many smokers say they're being forced to subsidize services for others. But the truth is that the rest of us subsidize them. We've been doing it for years.

Even with higher federal taxes, smokers don't come close to covering the costs they impose on society. Cigarettes would have to sell for $10.28 a pack to recoup all that money.

In the United States, the direct medical cost of tobacco-related illness — what we pay for doctors, hospitals, surgery and extras like oxygen — is nearly $97 billion a year. The cost to Medicare is about $19 billion, while Medicaid programs shell out about $31 billion.

No other preventable cause of illness and death — not drinking, obesity or even illegal drug use — comes close to the toll inflicted by tobacco. It kills nearly 440,000 Americans every year and sickens millions more.

Of course, most smokers already are aware of those grim statistics. What they don't know is how to stop.

Research shows that the most successful tobacco cessation starts with advice and counseling from your doctor. Physicians can prescribe drugs, Zyban and Chantix, that reduce cravings for cigarettes.

Nicotine-replacement products also can reduce withdrawal symptoms. They're available over the counter at drug and discount stores.

People who get support and counseling also improve the odds of successfully quitting. They're offered at many hospitals, as well as by voluntary health groups like the American Lung Association and the American Cancer Society. Both groups also offer free online resources.

It's not easy to quit smoking, but millions of Americans have done it. The health benefits are immediate and long lasting.

Nobody likes to pay higher taxes. But they will provide a new incentive for many smokers — and especially many young smokers — to quit.

Besides, there's one sure-fire way to stop paying higher cigarette taxes: Stop smoking.

The American Lung Association offers information about local resources at 1-800-586-4872 and help with its Freedom From Smoking program at www.lfonline.org. The American Cancer Society is online at www.cancer.org.

What is Washington smoking now?

by CHUCK NORRIS
CREATORS SYNDICATE

Smoke screening is an effective military maneuver used to mask the locations or movements of units, such as infantry, aircraft, tanks and ships. But those who have mastered that art of deception are not only those on the battlefield but also those in the halls of Washington.

Back on Nov. 9, 2008, just five days after the election, Rahm Emanuel, who is now the White House chief of staff, explained the future Obama administration's philosophy for governing, i.e., for smoke screening: "You never want a serious crisis to go to waste. And what I mean by that is it's an opportunity to do things that you think you could not do before." Here's how they and Congress are living out those words today.

The present smoke hovering over the capital's landscape is the American International Group, which has been bailed out four times by the government since last September — to the tune of roughly $170 billion. And while our eyes have been on the AIG associates who pilfered $165 million through bonuses and the congressional participants who have condoned such abuses, the federal government is running a quarterback sneak in areas ranging from funding European economies to unbinding America's conservative underpinnings.

First, while people blow a cork over AIG corruptions, far larger amounts of money are being funneled to European financial groups without a peep of protest. AIG employee bonuses are chump change in comparison.

Where is the roughly $170 billion AIG received from taxpayers going? Some of the biggest beneficiaries of the bailouts are European financial affiliates of AIG.

While AIG's bailout money was distributed to American companies Goldman Sachs ($13 billion), Merrill Lynch ($7 billion), European partners were making out like bandits, too. The banks include Societe Generale of France ($12 billion), the Deutsche Bank of Germany ($12 billion), Barclays of Britain ($8.5 billion) and UBS of Switzerland ($5 billion). Can you believe it?

And it also should be noted that while AIG associates in America are considering giving back their bonuses, AIG executives in Europe say they have no such intentions. (By the way, about $85 million of the $165 million in AIG bonus money was given out outside the U.S.)

Of course, financial institutions are not the only ones "benefiting" from Washington's smoke screening. So are pet projects and liberal philosophical platforms across the country. Here are just a few other arenas in which Congress and the president have made political headway while we were sleeping under AIG corruptions and other alleged economic recovery incentives:

■ Let's not forget that Congress and the president passed the $410 billion omnibus "stimulus" bill, with its 9,000 earmarks (despite the fact that during his campaign, Obama said he would be against earmarks).

■ More politicians with tax evasion problems have been appointed to the Obama Cabinet than were appointed to any previous president's Cabinet (despite the fact that he said his administration would perform the "most sweeping ethics reform in history").

■ Obama appointed (and Congress confirmed) David Ogden, a defender of child pornography, to the No. 2 position in the Justice Department.

■ Obama's newly appointed secretary of education, Arne Duncan, isn't likely to win the hearts of parents

Sometimes Congress is not constructive

by DONALD KAUL
MINUTEMAN MEDIA

I've followed the career of Sen. Chuck Grassley (R) since he was the youngest legislator in the Iowa Legislature and there's one thing I'd never accuse him of, it's irony. He has none. He has burnished his image as a bumpkin until it glows with the luster of a sapphire. He makes his money being underestimated. So when he made his now-famous suggestion to the AIG executives who accepted bonuses for their good work — take a deep bow and apologize; then either resign or commit suicide — I took him at his word.

He quickly backed off the suicide part — he is from Iowa, after all — but unsurprisingly his crack found resonance with millions of Americans who are outraged at the thought that the tin-cup executives of AIG should be rewarded for it you believe what you read) putting their company, the nation's economy and the global economy itself, on the brink of oblivion.

Politician after politician has risen to denounce the AIGers, the bonuses, the bailouts. Treasury Secretary Tim Geithner, President Barack Obama and the hapless head of AIG, everybody but Alex Rodriguez, the Yankee third baseman who is apparently to blame for everything else.

But really, what the Bonus-Babies did so bad? Given the choice of a mil or so wrapped in a slimy feeling about oneself, and zero dollars wrapped in virtue, who among us would choose the latter? (Thank you St. Francis; it's good hearing from you.)

Our capitalistic society is much more forgiving of the sin of greed than the sin of poverty. Commentators have insisted on calling the executives "discompetent." They weren't incompetent. The object of capitalism is to make oneself rich. They made themselves rich. That's competence.

The public rage that burst forth at the news of the bonuses had been building for months, ever since the bailouts of the financial industry last fall during the dying days of the Bush administration. Finally, it was too much to bear.

"Enough!" the people were saying. "Too much, in fact. No more bonuses. No more bailouts. Roll out the tumblebells; we want some heads." All of which is inspiring, but I fear the collateral damage from this bloodletting will be our economy. For years to come.

It's all well and good for "legislators" to fight their way to the microphones and demand immediate repayment of bonuses and bailouts and say they're against government interference in the sacred Free Market but come on fellows...ladies...let's get serious. Not one of the don't-just-do-something-stand-there crowd has an answer to the question: "What then?"

When our economy is squashed flat, along with those of Western Europe, Russia, China, Japan and India, what do we do then? And for how long?

While there is precious little agreement on what should be done, there is a virtual consensus that doing nothing will result in utter disaster.

The stupid bonuses — which amount to a fraction of 1 percent of the money involved — may have made it all but impossible to do anything effective about the financial crisis that is driving these hard times.

AIG is going to need more money; everyone agrees on that. Probably other companies too. But where are the politicians who are willing to stand up in the face of the storm of public protest that more bailouts are sure to produce? Not in the majority certainly.

The Bonus Babies, in a noble act of self-sacrifice, should give the money back. It would be the financial equivalent of throwing themselves on a grenade. It would be preferable to forcing the government to wrest the money away from them by means that are constitutionally dodgy or downright illegal.

The money should never have been given them. AIG has not yet gotten used to the idea that four-fifths of it is now owned by the government. As such, it is essentially an agency of the government and government executives don't get million-dollar bonuses.

I don't think they should commit suicide, however. An apology would be nice, though.

IN CASE OF EMERGENCY

If a newspaper item sent me has the teeniest bit of truth about it, a teacher of a fourth-grade room in Edmonds, Wash., has a whole passel of potential medical savants on her hands. She listed these answers given by her pupils to a first-aid quiz:

For head colds: "Use an agonizer to spray the nose until it drops in the throat."

For nose bleed: "Put the nose lower than the body."

For snakebite: "Bleed the wound and rape the victim in a blanket for shock."

For fractures: "To see if the limb is broken, wiggle it gently back and forth."

For fainting: "Rub the person's chest, or if it is a lady, rub her arm above the hand."

For asphyxiation: "Apply artificial respiration until the victim's dead."

WHY?

I can threaten to go on a fishing trip of a few miles, and the weather threatens, and will make good on its threat, if I defy it. But Frank Harmon can go all the way to Toledo, Bend, over next to Texas, and they can have tornadoes in South Carolina, Georgia, and Virginia, and the encounters only great weather...Why the difference?

IN COMPLETE AGREEMENT

Back around the turn of the century, the famous Sledge revival swept Prestonsburg, and from it, the present Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church originated.

The large number of converts included some of the best-known residents of Prestonsburg and vicinity, but none was as famous (or infamous) as the old feudist, Clabe Jones. Then in his declining years, Clabe was baptized in the Big Sandy River, one of many immersed by the Rev. Sledge.

In the years prior to his conversion, this Mr. Jones was everything but Christian. He and "Bad" Tall Hall had a long-standing misunderstanding, which brought on a series of ambushes and shootings. His pistol, "Phoebe," pinfire Forty-Four, which Newt May, of Prestonsburg, now has, bore 12 notches. It was this Mr. Jones who, with the help of other feuding spirits, caused Troublesome Creek in Knott County to be known, back then, as "Bloody Troublesome."

George Brown, of Prestonsburg, throws a little added light on the uneven terror of Clabe Jones' ways. Those feud days coincided, in part, with the first great rape of eastern Kentucky's mountains, when the finest hardwood forest in the world was despoiled and floated by raft down the Big Sandy and Kentucky rivers.

That was in the heyday of old

James Robinson was understandably devastated by the loss of his mother, Jerri Samons-Smith, last year. Smith lost her battle with ALS, also known as Lou Gehrig's Disease, after being diagnosed in September 2005.

In honor of his mother, and to help others who have dealt or are dealing with the disease, Robinson, along with family members and friends, have started a fundraising effort for the Walk to Defeat ALS event that will take place this fall in Lexington.

"Seeing the disease first-hand, we realized what a hardship it placed on families," Robinson said. "When mother was diagnosed, we were devastated. We didn't know what to do or who to seek out. Now, after going through the experience, we want to make a difference in other people's lives."

Smith was a well-known figure in the community, serving as sales manager for Shiri Gallery in Martin for 25 years, and also as the assistant volleyball coach at Allen Central High School.

Along with participating in the walk and taking up donations to combat ALS, Robinson hopes to organize a fundraising volleyball tournament in his mother's memory.

According to the ALS Association, "ALS is a neurodegenerative disease that usually attacks both upper and lower motor neurons and causes degeneration throughout the brain and spinal cord. A common first symptom is a painless weakness in a hand, foot, arm or leg, which occurs in more than half of all cases. Other early symptoms include speech, swallowing or walking difficulty."

Tax-deductible donations can be made payable to the ALS Association Kentucky Chapter and mailed to First Guaranty Bank in Martin to the attention of James Robinson.

Electronic donations can be made by searching for the "J-Walkers" team under the Walk to Defeat ALS link on the ALS Association Kentucky Chapter website at <http://www.alsak.org>.

CHICKEN SOUP FOR THE SOUL

Each Thursday, for a quarter of a century, I sat down by the window with a blank air letter to my mother. I filled it easily, turned it over, sealed it and walked to the mailbox. I knew my mum would be doing the same thing.

What did we write about? What sustenance did my mother provide me? She told me Aunt Winnie had visited, Cecil's Labrador dog had chewed up a leather glove, the cactus had flowered, and she had new yellow curtains in the kitchen.

I replied that Tim had made the honor roll, the cat had jumped into the punch bowl at my party, and my tulips were blooming. Our handwriting softened sad news and illuminated joyful incidents. She had no telephone for many of those years, a telephone call usually meant bad news. The air letters that followed gave more details, expressed the thoughts behind the tragedies. When my brother Derek's son was killed in an accident, I was unable to leave St. Louis because of an ice storm. Mum described the gathering after the funeral. She wrote that Derek made endless cups of tea for everyone. Her words said it all.

Each of her letters to me began, "We were so pleased to get your letter, dear." She was pleased. She welcomed my words. She wanted all the details of my family, dogs, plants, meals and fortunes, good and bad.

When I replied, I wanted to be proud of what I had done that week. It was good to say that I had attended church, cared and shared my skills and talents. Many an action of mine was curtailed when I began to wonder how I would write about it to my mother. The words on the air letters, carefully folded and sealed, were the story of my life unfolding in a strange country.

She wrote until three weeks before she died.

Mum's sustenance and caring led our whole family to a routine of keep-

My mother made solid contact with me in flimsy forms. Each one weighed less than half an ounce. They were air letters, sheets of blue paper pre-stamped, folded and sealed to make narrow envelopes. My memories of them have lasted years after her death.

Air letters came from my mother each week with clocklike regularity. They came each week for a quarter of a century, the flimsy pale blue of them sheltered between sturdier pieces of mail. I welcomed my mother's handwriting. We were thousands of miles apart. When I first left England for my new home in the United States, I was desperately homesick. Along with air letters came parcels containing gravy browning mix, custard powder, my favorite tea and sometimes chocolates. There was always the weekly letter, which was far more important than the food. I could not wait to reply. I was eager to respond to generate more committed to private or home schooling. As he explained in a radio interview, "I'm a big believer in choice and competition, but I think we can do that within the public-school framework." (Mr. Duncan great to hear you can articulate what you think, but will you represent "we the people" in your decisions? I hear you're a good man, so please don't abandon those of us who choose options other than public schools.)

■ Obama's new budget would reduce tax deductions for charitable gifts and severely cripple nonprofits, which already are flailing because of America's recession.

■ If Congress passes Obama's new budget, increased taxes will fall upon a larger number of small-business owners than once projected, which ultimately will discourage economic growth and penalize productivity. As Yale

University professor Michael Graetz noted, "We're shooting ourselves in the foot economically by relying as heavily as we do on income taxes when the rest of the world relies on consumption taxes."

■ Despite its history of fraud, ACORN, that alleged political bastion of election neutrality, will participate in the 2010 census.

■ An executive order was signed for Gitmo to be closed, and the war on terror was re-designated as an "overseas contingency operation."

■ And Obama announced just this past week that he's sending 4,000 more troops to Afghanistan and possibly 30,000 more troops next year (despite the fact that during his campaign, he promised to reduce the number of our troops in the Middle East).

■ Pro-choice platforms and practices have been pushed in ways that America hasn't seen since the 1973 Roe v. Wade ruling. Obama overturned the "Mexico City policy," thus allowing federal funds to support international family planning groups that provide abortions. Restrictions for federal funding for embryonic stem cell research have been lifted. And if the public doesn't fight immediately, the conscience clause will be rescinded. Parental rights are about to be handed over to the United Nations. And the Freedom of Choice Act is closing fast on the horizon.

In two-thirds of his first 100 days, Obama has spent more money than any president to date (and most combined), grown big government larger than any administration, raised the debt ceiling and national budget higher than any government in the world, made more liberal changes than Planned Parenthood could plan, and gotten away with breaking any campaign promise he chooses. And he's done all of that with virtually no contests or rebuttals and a continued 65 percent approval rating.

One thing is certain: There's nothing that Obama can't get away with at this point. He is the orchestra leader of a new political blitzkrieg, which makes the Clinton machine look like Tinkertoys.

And you thought AIG was the problem!

Yet, when I think of my mother's letters, written in a quiet spot, folded, mailed and received with such delight, I run out to paper. There is no delete button for a written letter, no backspace to eat up whole sentences. Each word is carefully measured before being mailed.

My family and I honor the memory of my mother's never-failing half-ounces of love. Mischievous dogs, new curtains, blooming plants and luscious meals are still described. Mum provided us with the groundwork, bless her dear heart.

Front Street and its Saloon Row, in Cadetsburg. Most timbermen from the Big Sandy section stayed, at the conclusion of their downriver trip by raft, at a certain hotel there, and Clabe Jones wound up at this old hostelry, one night. He registered at the desk, but didn't pay his bill in advance.

Next morning, when the guest came downstairs and walked past the desk to leave, the clerk inquired, "Haven't you forgot something?"

Clabe reckoned he hadn't, but the clerk insisted he had. So the old feudist turned on him and began taking inventory.

He patted his hip. "Got my gun." He felt in a pocket. "Got my knife. Got my knucks." Then felt his inside coat pocket. "Got my liquor. No, reckon I ain't forgot nothin'."

"Reckon you're right," the hotel clerk agreed.

believer when a wolf shows up at the door, but that doesn't get him off the hook. It does make for a gruesome finale and the film also offers up a shocker of a final twist that works beautifully.

This is as good as werewolf movies get and ranks up there with "Dog Soldiers" and the Universal Pictures classics. The film also deserves credit for allowing its characters to be smart.

The special effects are pretty gurdy but the real star here is actress Samantha Shields, who plays Kelly. She makes this work and comes off as a young woman who has learned from her mistakes, but refuses to go down the road of self-pity.

The monster make-up is rough but effective, as are the attack sequences, which feature a ton of the red stuff.

The only draw-backs here are that some scenes are too dimly lit and that the film was distributed by Lions Gate (which bought the film in 2006 but waited three years to release it) who decided to dump the film on DVD in January without a DVD of publicity.

Best line: "We're deep in sheep shagging country." 2006, rated R.

Special drawing opens elk area to young hunters

TIMES STAFF REPORT

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is opening one of the state's best places to hunt elk for a special youth-only hunt in September.

Five lucky youth hunters will have the opportunity to hunt in a 2,300-acre area normally reserved for bow hunting only. The site of the hunt, Paul Van Booven Wildlife Management Area in Breathitt County, has numerous mature bulls with trophy potential.

"It's one of our premiere spots for elk in the state," said Tina Brunjes, who oversees Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's elk program. "It's one of our earliest elk release sites, and it's had limited hunting pressure on it since the elk program began."

Wildlife Division Director Karen Alexy said the area should provide young hunters the opportunity to take an elk of a lifetime. "We wanted to give youth hunters an opportunity to take a potential Boone and Crockett Club-class bull," Alexy said. "We're continually looking for new ways to get kids interested in hunting, and looked at this hunt as a good incentive."

Volunteers with the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation have generously agreed to serve as guides for any hunter wishing assistance.

The three-day youth hunt is set for Sept. 26-28. Youth hunters must apply for the Youth WMA Elk Lottery online only during the month of April, the website of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. It costs $10 to apply. The drawing is open to Kentucky residents and non-residents.

The quota hunt drawing is open to any applicant who will be less than 16 years old prior to May 1. Youths who turn 16 after the application period are still eligible for the hunt. All youth hunters should have the size, strength and maturity to safely handle and shoot a firearm, bow or cross-bow. An adult must accompany any youth firearms elk hunter and be in the position to take immediate control of the gun.

Youth hunters may also apply for the general elk hunt by paying an additional $10 application fee online at fwky.gov. At least two youth hunters will be drawn for the general hunt.

The deadline to apply for Kentucky's general elk hunt is April 30. Kentucky will issue 1,000 elk permits this year to residents and non-residents. The cost is $10 to apply. Applications are available online only at fwky.gov.

For more information about elk hunting in Kentucky, visit the department's website or call the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Information Center at 1-800-858-1549.

Tips for fishing April's muddy waters

by LEE McLELLAN
KENTUCKY AFIELD

FRANKFORT — Fishing in April is typically feast or famine. Either you can slay the fish because the conditions are perfect, or you won't be able to buy a bite because of high, muddy, cold water.

Cold water colored brown by runoff is one of the toughest fishing conditions in spring. Rains that muddy the water improve fishing from mid-February to mid-March because the run-off is usually warmer than the lake's water. The increase in water temperatures pushes large bass and sunfish into shallow, warmer water.

As the fishing season slides into April, increased daylight and warmer temperatures heats the water considerably. April rains often accompany a cold front and arrest the warming. This situation makes fishing tough. However, slowing down your presentation and using lures that attract fish in muddy water will put some in your hand.

A spinner bait draws strikes from bass in dirty water because the lure creates vibrations that fish can feel. "They aren't going to have any ability to see to track things down," said Jeff Ross, assistant director of fisheries and former black bass research biologist for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "Bass have to rely on their lateral line to find prey. The lateral line runs down their sides and picks up vibrations. Spinner baits are a good choice as a result."

Combinations of white, chartreuse, brown and blue make good color choices for spinner baits in April. Choose a double-bladed model with two round Colorado blades. These provide more thump in the water than the thinner willow-leaf blades. "Sight feeding is tough for a bass in murky water," Ross said. "Anything that draws more attention is good."

Toss a spinner bait around shallow submerged cover such as a log, treetop, rock pile or standing timber. Work it back as slowly as you can while still making the blades turn. Bass in muddy water need time to track down prey. They won't hit something zooming by their noses.

If working shallow cover produces no strikes, fish your spinner bait slowly near the PRESTONSBURG — Allen Central posted a key district win in convincing fashion Thursday evening, defeating host Prestonsburg 22-0 in five innings. The Lady Rebels got a strong pitching performance from hurler Shea Spurlock and dominated at the plate. Six different Allen Central players had two or more hits.

"It was a good win for us," said Allen Central Coach Don Burke. "Again, Shea Spurlock pitched great. She faced 17 batters, had five strikeouts and two walks. For the year, she has 23 Ks and four walks. We swung the bat good as well."

Sarah Kinney went 4-for-5 with a pair of RBIs for the Lady Rebels. Jaimie Mullins, Megan Jones, Logan Cline and Ericka Moore each had three hits for Allen Central.

Moore drove in a game-high six runs as Allen Central came the Lady Blackcats. Mullins and Jones finished with four RBIs apiece.

Cline had a team-high two stolen bases for Allen Central. Spurlock allowed just one hit in a solid outing. She helped her cause at the plate with a hit of her own.

Chelsie Cordial, Brittany Johnson, Bridget Slone and Kristin Reed also had one hit each for the Lady Rebels.

Prestonsburg, under the direction of first-year head coach John DeRossett, dropped to 3-3 following the loss. Allen Central improved to 2-2 thanks to the win.

"We are still trying to get better," Burke added. "We need to be consistent every game. We are still looking for that big win over a powerhouse team in our region. I think we will get it pretty soon. We are young and talented and it seems like some of the pieces are coming together. But we have a long way to go."

JAIMIE MULLINS

Allen Central enjoyed a strong defensive outing in the win over Prestonsburg.

Bellarmine men claims tourney championship

Herrick finishes 10th overall

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LOUISVILLE — The Bellarmine University men's golf team, led by senior Kyle Leach, rolled to an 18 stroke victory in the 36-hole Bellarmine Invitational played earlier in the week at Portsmouth Ridge Golf Club. Bellarmine opened the tournament in strong fashion Monday. The Knights completed the win with a stout effort Tuesday in the final round.

Leach carded consecutive even par rounds of 72 to claim the individual championship. Teammate Doug Wilkinson finished as the tournament runner-up, five shots behind Leach.

Bellarmine junior Brooks Herrick tied for 10th individual, firing a 156 (74, 82). A Prestonsburg High School graduate, Herrick is a former 15th Region champion.

As a team, Bellarmine posted rounds of 296 and 304 to shoot 600, which was 18 clear of runner-up, the University of Findlay.

Brit 57 Racing roars into 2009 season

TIMES STAFF REPORT

GRETHEL — Brit 57 Racing has spent the offseason preparing for the 2009 season. Sixteen-year-old Brittany McKinney is now in her third season behind the wheel of a Late Model. McKinney's racing career consists of four years. She broke into the sport at age 13 behind the wheel of a Four-Cylinder. McKinney made the jump from the Four Cylinder division to the Late model class in less than one year. Brit 57 Racing has enjoyed an exciting offseason that includes a new look for the No. 57 Late Model.

"As the Brit 57 Racing Team is preparing for the 2009 race season, we are looking very forward to the first race," McKinney said earlier in the week. "We will have a new look for the 2009 race season and we can't wait to see what it looks like out on the track. The Brit 57 Racing Team will be in action at 201 Speedway every Saturday night. We look forward to seeing you there!"

Weather permitting, Brit 57 Racing was due to open 2009 on Saturday at 201 Speedway during the historic Johnson County track's season-opener. One of the state's top tracks, 201 Speedway is in its 26th season.

EKU produces several highlights as part of 2008-09 season

TIMES STAFF REPORT

RICHMOND — The Eastern Kentucky University men's basketball team recently completed its fourth season under the guidance of head coach Jeff Neubauer and finished fifth in the Ohio Valley Conference standings. From multiple game-winning buzzer-beaters courtesy of Mike Rose to the dominating ESPN2 televised victory over Southeast Missouri, there were numerous highlights along the path that was the 2008-09 season.

— aster Kentucky went 10-8 against conference competition, marking the fifth straight year the Colonels have posted double-figure league victories. Only Murray State (six) has a longer active streak.

— The Colonels went 3-0 against Mid-American Conference (MAC) opponents including a 69-57 win over Akron, which went on to win the MAC tournament title.

— As of March 15, the Colonels were ranked among the top 15 nationally in three-pointers made per game (2nd — 10.3), three-point shooting (12th — 40.1 percent) and fewest turnovers per game (6th — 10.9).

— Eastern Kentucky went 12-2 in the friendly confines of McBrayer Arena and won its final eight home games. It has been 18 years since the Maroons posted more home victories (14-0 in 1990-91).

— Senior Mike Rose was the first Colonel since 1980 to earn back-to-back first team All-OVC honors. The guard was also one of just 10 players nationally to lead his team in scoring (20.0 ppg), rebounding (5.3 rpg), assists (7.9) and steals (5.3) this year. As of March 15, Rose ranked second nationally in three-point shooting at 48.1 percent.

— Three players earned OVC Freshman of the Week accolades — Jorge Camacho on Jan. 26 and Feb. 9, Joshua Jones on Jan. 12, and Mike Lewis on Dec. 22.

— Head coach Jeff Neubauer coached his 100th game on Dec. 4 against Murray State. Neubauer is 67-57 (.540) in four years on the Eastern bench.

— Senior Mike Rose finished his Colonel career second on the EKU all-time scoring list (1,763 points) and three-pointers made list (271 trifectas).

Miss Kentucky visits Eastern Kentucky football practice

TIMES STAFF REPORT

RICHMOND — The Eastern Kentucky University football team took time out of spring practice number four Thursday afternoon to welcome a special guest, Miss Kentucky Maria Montgomery. Head coach Dean Hood and the rest of the squad wished Montgomery, an EKU sophomore from Danville, best of luck as she prepares to head to Las Vegas to compete in the Miss USA pageant on Sunday, April 19.

The Colonels gave Montgomery a team autographed football, 2008 OVC championship t-shirt and an EKU football hat.

"To represent Kentucky in the Miss USA pageant is a dream come true," Montgomery said. "I have been watching this pageant on television and hoping I would get a chance at Miss USA since I can remember. It means so much to me to be chosen to represent the great state of Kentucky in an internationally-viewed event. I'm confident I'll have a blast meeting each contestant, visiting Las Vegas, and, of course, competing in the pageant on April 19. I have been trying to simply relax, have faith, and enjoy every minute of this because I know the pageant will be a wonderful experience."

Follow Montgomery's trip to the Miss USA Pageant in Las Vegas by visiting www.missusa.com. The event will air live on April 19 on NBC.

Fishing

bottom of the first drop-off closest to the shallows. Bass often stage here during periods of unstable weather and wait until a warming trend before moving shallow. A spinner bait thumping right in front of their noses usually proves too much for a bass to resist.

A dark jig slowly crawled or subtly hopped across a mud flat near a drop-off excels for bass in April. Large female bass relate to flats in spring as they drop eggs there a few weeks from now. Crayfish also emerge from mud flats in spring after spending the winter burrowed into them.

A channel or deeper water nearby provides sanctuary. Flats also don't see nearly the fishing pressure as visible shoreline cover such as a fallow tree.

Don't fear creamed coffee colored water this April. Sling a spinner bait, in-line spinner or a jig and slow down your retrieve. You'll land some bass and bluegill when most go home.

Author Lee McClellan is an award-winning associate editor for Kentucky Afield magazine, the official publication of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. He is a lifelong hunter and angler, with a passion for small-mouth bass fishing.

"You make a bigger disturbance in the water with a large jig, and bass detect it," Ross explained. "You want a bigger profile as well. Bass see the jig better with a darker color. The dark color provides a better outline."

A black jig with a black and blue trailer is hard to beat for muddy water. A black jig with strands of chartreuse in its skirt and a plastic black and chartreuse crawfish for a trailer also provokes strikes. A brown and orange jig with a brown chunk trailer is another proven choice.

Throw the jig against shallow cover and crawl it back to you as slowly as you can stand. "You have to fish a jig in murky water much slower to give the bass a chance to track it down and strike," Ross said.

Rolex Kentucky three-day event set to return to Kentucky Horse Park

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LEXINGTON — The Rolex Kentucky Three-Day Event, one of the world's most prestigious equestrian competitions, is set to return to the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington, April 23-26.

The Rolex Kentucky Three-Day Event features the world's best horses and riders vying for their share of $250,000 in prize money and a chance at the $350,000 Rolex Grand Slam of Eventing. The winning owner will be awarded $80,000 and the winning rider will receive a classic Rolex timepiece.

The Rolex Kentucky Three-Day Event will run a CCI*, the 12th championship for the U.S. Equestrian Team Foundation Pinnacle Cup, signifying the zenith in Eventing competition in the United States. The event draws more than 100,000 spectators and is seen by millions more on worldwide telecasts including a one-hour special on NBC in the United States.

"This year's Rolex Kentucky Three-Day Event promises to be the biggest and most exciting ever," said Jane Atkinson, Executive Vice President of Equestrian Events, Inc. (EEI), producer of the event. "With a brand new stadium and other improvements to the Kentucky Horse Park, spectators can expect an unprecedented experience. As anticipation continues to build for the 2010 Alltech FEI World Equestrian Games, the level of competition at Rolex should be at an all-time high!"

The only Four Star Event in the Western Hemisphere, the Rolex Kentucky Three-Day Event is the premier competition for the top horses and riders in Eventing. Past winners include United States Olympic Medalists David and Karen O'Connor, Kim Severson, Phillip Dutton, New Zealand's Blyth Tait and Nick Larkin, Pippa Funnell of Great Britain and Andrew Hoy and Clayton Fredericks of Australia.

The $350,000 Rolex Grand Slam of Eventing is awarded to any rider who wins the Rolex Kentucky Three-Day Event, Mitsubishi Motors Badminton and Land Rover Bugbury Four Star Events in succession. In 2003, Pippa Funnell of Great Britain, became the first, and to date only, rider to win the Rolex Grand Slam of Eventing.

In addition to the heart pounding equestrian action, one of the most popular attractions at the Rolex Kentucky Three-Day Event is the Kentucky Three-Day Event Shop. The Shop offers all manner of clothing, accessories and gift items sporting the EEI logo with the competition title, "Rolex Kentucky Three-Day Event," curved around the top of the logo.

NBC will broadcast a one-hour program on the Rolex Kentucky Three-Day Event on Sunday, May 3. This marks the sixth straight year that NBC is airing coverage of the event. In addition to the NBC telecast, the final round of the Rolex Kentucky Three-Day Event will air live on Sunday, April 26 on Universal Sports Network (USN), a new member of the NBC family of networks.

"We are looking forward to having everyone come out to enjoy the Kentucky Horse Park to watch one of the world's most exciting events," said Atkinson. "In addition to watching the world-class equestrian competition and strolling through the more than 150 shops and boutiques, equine enthusiasts can tour the world-renowned Kentucky Horse Park, stroll the beautiful grounds and catch a glimpse of magnificent horses all around!"

MSU freshman overcame medical hardships to become collegiate student-athlete

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

MOREHEAD — Overcoming adversity is something student-athletes become accustomed to. Freshman softball player Carrie Himmelhaver knows that all too well. In seventh grade, Himmelhaver found out that she had scoliosis. Her father noticed that she was running strange and her chronic back pain sent red flags to her and her parents.

"My back would hurt at school every day and I'd tell my mom but she would just say, 'well Carrie, nobody can stand sitting in a desk all day,'" joked Himmelhaver.

Upon finding this out, the doctors decided her back was already in too much of an "S" shape to repair with a brace. Therefore, Himmelhaver had to undergo major back surgery. She received two rods, along with screws and hooks that will remain in her back forever.

The Harrod native's medical health only got worse from here.

During November of her eighth grade school year, she started vomiting frequently and would experience shortness of breath throughout the day.

"At the time I was playing basketball and running cross-country so I thought I was getting sick from the running, until it started happening outside of sports," said Himmelhaver. "Then I knew something else was wrong."

She was diagnosed with Non-Hodgkin's Lymphoma Large Cell B. Luckily, Himmelhaver only had to endure five months of chemotherapy and she was cured of the cancer after the first treatment.

The months during this treatment were long and painful. There was a central line implanted in Carrie that remained there for the entire five months. She would be put into the hospital for a full week where she would get spinal taps and would receive chemotherapy constantly.

The process would continue as she would go home for two weeks. During this time, she was not allowed outside as her immune system was extremely low. If she had to go outside, a mask was necessary. This became a routine, repeating for five grueling months.

Carrie never let these setbacks deter her from achieving her goal of playing division I softball. She attributes her hard working and determined philosophy to her parents.

"My family was always there and they are the reason I was not angry at the world and didn't give up on everything," she said.

"Thankfully, she does not experience day-to-day pain. The cancer and scoliosis have both been cured and they no longer hold her back from being her best."

Himmelhaver as the rest of the Eagles travel to Tennessee Tech for a three-game OVC series this weekend. On April 10-11, the Eagles host Tennessee State, and the April 11 single game is designated as a Strikeout Cancer Day, something close to Himmelhaver's heart. Last season, the Eagles' program raised $1,300 for cancer research.

For more information on how you can donate to help support the Eagles' effort in cancer research, please call 606-783-5283.

Louisville football team continues spring practice

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LOUISVILLE — The University of Louisville football team returned to the practice field on Thursday for its ninth workout of the spring with a two-hour session in full pads at the Howard Schnellenberger Practice Facility. The Cardinals started outside for the first hour before the storms moved them inside for the final 11 periods.

"I liked the work I saw out there today," Louisville Coach Steve Kragthorpe said following Thursday's workout. "I love how the guys are hitting and playing with great intensity and speed. The biggest thing I see is guys playing with the kind discipline that you need to play with, which comes from focus and mental energy rather than just trying to endure practice and get through it."

The Cardinals were nine workouts into a spring practice that is scheduled for 15 sessions and will conclude with Red-White Game on Friday, April 17, at Papa John's Cardinal Stadium.

The Cardinals did full team work for the last couple periods and the hitting was some of the best this spring. Safety Daniel Covington put a huge hit on quarterback Justin Burke, who made a nice run for the first down.

Ashley continues his development with running backs Victor Anderson and Bilal Powell out due to injury. He burst through the line and put a huge hit on Antwon Canada to get into the end zone. Covington also made a nice interception on a play later in the team period.

Redshirt freshman Jacques Caldwell has been moved from wide receiver to cornerback. Defensive end L.D. Scott and Powell had surgery and will miss the rest of the spring, but will be ready for summer workouts.

The Cardinals returned to the practice field on Saturday afternoon in full pads with a 95-play scrimmage.

Driver Brittany McKinney, 57 raceteam keep fans first

TIMES STAFF REPORT

GRETHEL - Late Model driver Brittany McKinney and her race team, Brit 57 Racing, place heavy emphasis on maintaining a strong relationship with fans. The Brit 57 Racing team continues to gain fans. McKinney is most always accessible to fans on race day. Unless she's behind the wheel on the racetrack or waiting to take the track, fans can find McKinney in the pits meeting and greeting. "Everyone that I meet like it is more than welcome to come down to the pits and visit me at my trailer," said McKinney. "Bring your kids over and let them take a look at the car. Everyone is welcome. We have stickers, pens, pencils and keychains. The rest of the merchandise has not come in yet. Bring your kids over and let them get some stuff. I look forward to seeing all of the fans. I'm very thankful for all the fans that support me. God Bless!"

Each race day, Brit 57 Racing will offer newsletters along with other promotional items free for the fans. Inside Brit 57 Racing is the raceteam's official newsletter. The newsletter is printed twice each month. Racing enthusiasts are urged to visit the Brit 57 Racing driver throughout the 2009 season. Brit 57 Racing will again compete at 201 Speedway.

Earl Pearson Jr. wins Circle K Colossal 100

TIMES STAFF REPORT

CONCORD, NC - Earl Pearson Jr. took control of the lead on Lap 9 and never let go as he stormed to Victory Lane in the Circle K Colossal 100 at The Dirt Track at Lowe's Motor Speedway. The two-day event was condensed into a one-day show and run on Sunday due to inclement weather on Friday, March 28 and Saturday, March 29. Driving the No. 44p for Bobby Labonte Motorsports, Pearson Jr. started the race from the pole position, but fell in line behind Jonathan Davenport coming off of Turn 2 on the first lap. Davenport maintained the lead until he got caught up in lap-car traffic on Lap 8 and Pearson Jr. made his move.

Defending World of Outlaws Late Model Series Champion Darrell Lanigan finished a close second after pitting under the first caution period to change a tire. He restarted at the back of the field and worked his way up through the pack to challenge for the lead in the closing laps.

World of Outlaws Late Model Series point leader Josh Richards closed in on Pearson Richards closed in on Pearson three-quarters of the way through the race, but dropped one spot in the closing laps to finish third. Steve Francis, winner of the 2008 Circle K Colossal 100, finished fourth and Davenport rounded out the top five.

Pearson Jr. took home the $50,000-winner's share of the purse along with a sword and helmet for his second victory at the four-tenths-mile clay oval. His last win at The Dirt Track came in 2004.

"It's been a long time coming," said Pearson Jr. as he climbed from his car in Victory Lane after the race. "At the end I saw on the scoreboard that Lanigan was coming in a hurry and I was getting a good feeling about that, but I got through lapped traffic good. It's just a dream come true."

"My crew worked their butts off. I'm just tickled to death."

Will Vaughn won the Charlotte 30 non-qualifiers race. Josh McGuire, Vic Hill, Tommy Weder and Eric Wells rounded out the top five.

In B-Feature action, Larry Blankenship took the early lead in the first B-Feature, but fell back and pulled off the track on Lap 8. Chub Frank took over the lead and went on to score the win. Tim Fuller, Jimmy Owens and Russ King claimed the four transfer spots.

Dan Schlieper claimed victory in the second B-Feature. Matt Lux, Donnie Moran and Davey Johnson transferred to the Circle K Colossal 100.

The 10-lap heat races were won by Pearson Jr., Davenport, Shane Clanton, Lanigan, Francis and Ray Cook.

Scott Bloomquist posted the fastest time in the afternoon's qualifying session with a lap of 16.962 seconds.

Todd Bradbury won the CRASHCar Feature at the wheel of Nasty, Josh Walsh (Nuclear Banana), Rusty Drye (Vigilante), Paul Sparrow (Invader) and Marc White (Invader) rounded out the top five.

There were no major incidents during any of the on-track activities.

The Dirt Track will return to action during Coca-Cola 600 week with the World of Outlaws Showdown featuring the World of Outlaws Sprint Car Series on Friday night, May 22. Tickets can be purchased by calling Lowe's Motor Speedway's ticket office at 1-800-455-FANS or online at www.lowesmotorspeedway.com.

Kentucky Speedway to offer infield camping during 2009 season

TIMES STAFF REPORT

SPARTA - Kentucky Speedway invites race fans to stake a claim to one of 450 new infield campsites that are now on sale.

Fans can reserve a 30-by-50-foot Trackside or Interior Campsite in the new Blue, White and Red campground spanning from Turn 1 to Turn 4 for the 2009 season or a single race weekend. Infield campgrounds will open for the June 12-13 NASCAR Nationwide Series "Meijer 300 Presented by Ritz" weekend that will feature a race-day concert with energetic country music artist Pat Green.

Three-weekend, five-race Season Trackside Camping Memberships can be reserved for $500 and Season Interior Camping Memberships can be secured for $400 in each new campground. Single-weekend rates will be $300 for Trackside Campsites and $200 for Interior Campsites. Each campsite guest will be required to possess a personal campsite pass and guests wishing to access the speedway grandstand during events will require a race ticket. Guests may purchase as many as 10 individual campsite passes per site for $50 each. Campsites will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis and free shuttles will be available to transport campers throughout the facility.

"Infield camping is one of racing's great traditions and something our fans have inquired about for years," Kentucky Speedway General Manager Mark Simendinger said. "We know campers will jump at the chance to experience our events in a whole new way beginning with the NASCAR Nationwide Series 'Meijer 300 Presented by Ritz' weekend."

Fans can reserve an infield campsite by phoning 888-652-RACE (7223) or Campsites also can be reserved by visiting the Kentucky Speedway ticket offices at 400 Buttermill Pike, Suite 100, Ft. Mitchell, Ky., or the Sparta, Ky., Fan Center located off of Interstate 71, Exit 57 and Ky. Hwy. 38 N. An infield camping map and campsite rates are available through the "Stake A Claim" box.

The facility opens its four-weekend, six-race May 9 with the ARCA RE/MAX Series "Drive Smart, Buckle Up! Kentucky 150" featuring ABC Television's "Dancing with the Stars" competitor and country music artist Chuck Wicks in concert.

Kentucky Speedway is a wholly owned subsidiary of Speedway Motorsports which, through its subsidiary companies, is a leading marketer and promoter of motor sports entertainment in the United States. For more information, visit www.speedwaymotorsports.com.

4 Out Of 5 Americans Are Unaware That Home Fires Are The Most Common Disaster Threat.

Preparedness is your best defense against deadly fires. Use these checklists to make your home safe and prepare your family.

To prevent fires before they start:

- Never leave burning candles unattended
- Keep fuel (paper, clothing, bedding) at least three feet away from heat sources

To stay safe from fires:

- Create a home fire escape plan
- Practice your plan at least twice a year
- Install smoke alarms and escape ladders
- Replace smoke alarm batteries at least once a year
- Purchase and learn how to use fire extinguishers safely

Betz named senior associate dean at PC School of Osteopathic Medicine

PIKEVILLE — William T. Betz, D.O., F.A.C.O.F.P., has been appointed senior associate dean for osteopathic education at the Pikeville College School of Osteopathic Medicine (PC SOM). He will also serve as professor of family medicine and chairman of the Department of Family Medicine.

"I am delighted that Dr. Betz will be rejoining the Pikeville College School of Osteopathic Medicine. It is a rare opportunity to be able to add a physician with the extensive knowledge, experience and credentials possessed by Dr. Betz to our institution. Bill and Cheryl will be wonderful additions to the Pikeville community and we welcome them back with great enthusiasm," said Boyd Buser, vice president and dean of PC SOM.

Betz, an integral part of the development of PC SOM, most recently served as dean and vice president of the Pacific Northwest University of Health Sciences College of Osteopathic Medicine in Yakima, Wash.

"I am excited to be working with Dr. Buser," said Betz. "Cheryl and I are looking forward to coming back home to Kentucky."

A native of Kansas City, Mo., Betz received his Doctorate in Osteopathic Medicine at Kansas City University of Medicine and Bioscience College of Osteopathic Medicine (KCUMB-COM) in 1981 and completed his postdoctoral education at Lakeside Hospital in Kansas City, Mo. Board certified by the American Osteopathic Board of Family Physicians, Betz is an osteopathic physician specializing in family medicine. Prior to coming to Pikeville, he was in family medicine in Kansas City for 16 years.

Honored for his service and leadership, Betz was named the Chad and Judy Perry Distinguished Professor in Family Medicine at PC SOM

(2002-06). He received a Fellow Designation for outstanding service through teaching, authorship, research, or professional leadership from the American College of Osteopathic Family Physicians (1999), the President's Award from the Missouri Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons (1996) and was named "Physician of the Year" by the Missouri Society-American College of Osteopathic Family Physicians (1993).
