First cases of swine flu reported

FRANKFORT — Gov. Steve Beshear announced that the Kentucky Department for Public Health (DPH) will report one confirmed case and one probable case of swine flu to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) yesterday.

"Like the rest of the nation, we are concerned about the spread of this new strain of swine flu," said Gov. Beshear. "I want to assure Kentuckians that health officials here are responding aggressively to detect possible cases of swine flu and respond with the appropriate preventive measures. Individuals should continue to monitor this situation as it develops and practice basic measures to stay healthy, such as hand washing and staying home when sick."

The confirmed case involves a woman from Warren County who had recently traveled to Mexico. The patient is currently hospitalized in Georgia, and samples were submitted to CDC for confirmation by Georgia health officials. Officials from the Barren River Health District are actively investigating the circumstances of this case to determine whether any contacts of the patient may Surveillance footage taken during an armed robbery at the Ivel Double Kwik shows the person investigators suspect to be responsible for a rash of robberies in Floyd County in just over a month.

Rash of robberies may be related, police say

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

Investigators are currently exploring the idea that at least four of the five robberies which have occurred in Floyd County in just over a month may be connected.

Kentucky State Police Det. Jason Dials says there are certain aspects to four of the robberies that he and fellow detective Kevin Newsome and Trooper Tony Russell are considering.

"There are similarities in the way they have been done," Dials said. "We're looking at whether they may be connected, but right now we're just hoping to find out as much as possible."

A fifth armed robbery occurred less than a day after Dials approached media outlets in the area to circulate surveillance camera footage of the suspect.

Investigators could not be reached Thursday to verify if this fifth robbery has been included with the list of four others thought to be connected to the same suspect or suspects.

At approximately 4:30 a.m. Thursday morning, the Harold Double Kwik phoned 911 saying a man wearing black pants, a long sleeve, black shirt, a black beanie hat and wearing white pantyhose over his head came into the store with a handgun and demanded money. The suspect then left on foot.

Investigators are actively seeking the man shown in this piece of footage from surveillance tapes taken from the Cardinal Country Store along Route 80 to gain information about the recent string of robberies in Floyd County. The unknown man is shown here entering the store to pay for gas just minutes before the location was the target of an armed robbery. Police are considering the man a person of interest in the case only and not a suspect at this time.

The description matches in many ways to another robbery that took place at the Ivel Double Kwik two days earlier.

During that robbery, a man wearing white pantyhose over his head and carrying a handgun left on foot with an undisclosed amount of cash.

Since March, five establishments in Floyd County have been the targets of armed robberies and several others have also been singled out across the region.

In total, Ivel and Harold have Chamber marking 45 years

by SHELDON COMPTON

PRESTONSBURG — In the spring of 1964, three men became the organizing directors of the Prestonsburg Chamber of Commerce.

Those men — Arbor Jones, Edward Music and Burl Spurlock — along with others in the community who had joined, saw the Prestonsburg Chamber of Commerce become the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Chamber of Commerce and then finally the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce by 1981.

The growth and expansion of the Chamber during those years as the organization was coming into its own continues today, as current director Mandy Stumbo says she is always looking for ways to improve.

"We're the biggest today that our chamber has ever been," Stumbo said. "We have 219 members and I feel we're just going to keep growing in the future. I would have to say I give all the credit to the board of directors and the committee chairs and our membership in general in making the chamber the outstanding organization it is today."

Since becoming director in 2004, Stumbo has initiated a number of new programs to the chamber, most notably the leadership programs. The Youth Leadership Program and Leadership Floyd County are two programs that now serve as models to other chambers across the commonwealth.

"We are probably one of the only chambers in the state that have a youth leadership pro-

An Allen man is facing several charges after allegedly exposing himself to a minor and then assaulting another man.

James Garrett, 39, of Gas Fork Road in Allen, is scheduled to appear in Floyd District Court next month on charges of indecent exposure, menacing and fourth-degree assault.

According to police records, Garrett was arrested at his home on April 22 after a complaint was filed against him for allegedly exposing his genitals to a minor two days earlier on April 20.

Garrett is also accused of attempting to hit the child's mother, Della Garrett, during the same incident.

In another complaint against Garrett, Columbus Humble, Della Garrett's father, alleged that Garrett hit him, which resulted in PRESTONSBURG — A local organization that spends time working to see foster kids receive what they need were recently given a helping hand of its own by area students.

Culinary arts students from the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center presented $168 to the Buckhorn Children and Family Services Center in Prestonsburg.

Buckhorn is an extension of the Big Sandy Treatment and Foster Care based in Perry County. The Prestonsburg office has been operational for nearly a decade and receives donations year round.

"We're going to take the money and use it to buy lunch for the foster kids trip in June to Camden Park," said Girlie Hull, recruitment and certification specialist at Buckhorn.

The culinary students sold granola at the center and throughout the area in partnership with Child Hunger and in support of National Childhood Hunger been targets, as well as the Cardinal Country Store along Route 80 and another Cardinal location at Stanville, along with Boyd's Grocery Store.

Now investigators are trying to connect the dots, seeing a variety of similarities and combing surveillance footage from the robberies when it is available.

"We do have an individual on camera who we are considering a person of interest," Dials said. "He came into the Cardinal Country Store on Route 80 just minutes before the robbery took place."

"The man stopped in what appeared to be a Geo Metro for gas at the station, Dials said. "He's not a suspect at this time. We'd just like to talk with him and see what information might be there," said Dials.

Billy Jarvis, who oversees management of Cardinal Country Stores in Floyd County said clerks had told him the suspect who had targeted his two stores was a very polite individual who had quietly asked for the money after pointing the gun at the clerk once and then lowering it to the floor for the remainder of the time.

Dials is asking anyone with information concerning the string of robberies to contact the Kentucky State Police Post 9 in Pikeville at (606) 433-7711.

bruising under his eye. Arresting officers charged Garrett with fourth-degree assault in connection to Humble's complaint.

Humble claims Garrett showed up at his home angry and exposed himself to the family, including Garrett's 18-month-old niece, and then yelled lewd offenses.

"That's kind of sick," Humble said. "A full grown man exposing himself in front of his niece."

Humble said Garrett then left, but later that day was in an argument with his daughter that allegedly turned physical.

"After that I went back to feed my horses at my other daughter's house and he showed up like he was Billy Ead or something," said Humble. "He hit me and so I defended myself and hit him back."

Garrett now faces three charges in connection to the alleged incident, charges for which he was face arraignment on June 3.

"We were excited to do this," said Autumn Barnett, one of more than 20 students who took part. "We sold it at the college where we work, at our school and around the area. We were just glad to be able to take part."

Culinary arts instructor Michael Garahan, accompanied by nine of the participating students, presented the money at the center Thursday afternoon.

Buckhorn currently has 21 foster kids and is always looking for good foster parents and always thankful for donations and help of any kind, Hall said.

"The students at Job Corps had raised this money and wanted to give it to an organization that works with kids," said Hall, who has worked at the center for two years.

Fueled by the mission statement to "answer God's call to seek out suffering children and families and improve their lives," Buckhorn offered numerous program services. Among them are 24-hour crisis stabilization, training and case planning as well as individualized case planning, treatment recreation activities and social and life skills training.

Flu

be ill or need preventive treatment.

The probable case that is being reported involves an infant from another area within the Barren River Health District who had been in close contact with an individual who recently traveled to Mexico. It is unrelated to the confirmed case. The child's family and other close contacts are being evaluated for illness and possible preventive treatment. The child has not been hospitalized. A sample from the patient has been sent to the CDC for further testing to determine whether swine flu is the cause of illness. The name of the county in which the patient resides will be released if the case is confirmed.

Kentucky health officials ask that Kentuckians who have traveled recently to Mexico or other countries or communities within the U.S. where the new H1N1 influenza strain known as swine flu has been reported, or who are planning such travel, be alert for the symptoms of swine flu in the following ways:

■ Monitor yourself and travel companions for symptoms of fever, chills, headache, sore throat, cough, body aches, and vomiting or diarrhea.

■ If symptoms of illness develop within seven days of travel return, seek evaluation by a health care provider as soon as possible.

■ Be sure to tell your health care provider about your recent travel and suggest testing for influenza.

■ Stay home from work, school and other public places until you are feeling well.

People who have been in close contact with a person who has been diagnosed with swine flu or who reside in communities where there are one or more confirmed swine flu cases should also be alert for these symptoms.

"There are many things we don't yet know about this illness," said William Hacker, M.D., commissioner of DPH. "That is why we are responding with an abundance of caution and monitoring its spread so closely. At this point, individuals should remain aware of developments related to swine flu and practice good health habits."

gram, and have become a model for others" said Stumbo. "That's something I'm proud of."

Part of the primary focus of the Youth Leadership Program is to spur new and innovative ideas, giving high school sophomores throughout the county an inside view of Floyd County by allowing them to attend sessions on topics as diverse as tourism, health care, education and government.

Testimony as to the merits and benefits of the chamber and wide-ranging, as well.

Trish Cieslak, owner and operator of McDowell's Perfect Setting Cafe and chair of the organization, said she could not overstate the importance of her membership or the privilege of having served the past year as chair.

"In the beginning I thought it was going to be hard, but I tell you it passed by very quickly," Cieslak said. "I have thoroughly enjoyed my year as chair."

Cieslak said her business improved greatly after joining the Chamber six years ago.

"I joined the Chamber when I had been in business about two months," she said. "In less than year, we were business of the year. It has been phenomenal how my business has grown since being affiliated with the chamber."

Cieslak will end her time as chair during the Chamber's May 7 meeting when a new chair will be named, but this will not be the end of her time working closely with Chamber-related events and efforts, she said.

"My experience is that most of the past chair people have stayed involved because it is such a good experience, and I certainly plan to do that," she said.

And after 45 years, such involvement is becoming a routine trend, says Stumbo, who is even now planning the organization's annual golf classic, set for June 9, which hosted roughly 20 teams last year.

"Over the last five years as we continue to grow people get more involved," Stumbo said. "I've seen more interest now than ever before."

Swine flu shows importance of public health

The three most alarming words in medicine are these: "We don't know." They've been invoked frequently in connection with an outbreak of swine flu over the last four days.

It began in Mexico, where thousands of people have been sickened and reportedly more than 150 people are dead. The virus spread with alarming speed to the United States, Canada, New Zealand, the United Kingdom, Israel and Spain.

Still, there is no reason to panic. Public health officials already have activated emergency plans. Doctors report that the virus responds to anti-flu drugs that are available widely.

Still, many questions remain about the new influenza strain, which is a combination of swine, bird and human viruses. The combination makes for interesting science. Perhaps one day what we learn about this flu will offer strategies to prevent future outbreaks of even more deadly diseases.

The challenge for public health officials is to avoid both over-reaction and complacency.

Swine flu is famous in the annals of public health. A small outbreak on an Army base in 1976 led to a national vaccination campaign, but the feared epidemic never materialized. For years afterward, swine flu was synonymous with a threat that was more theoretical than real.

It's still unclear how great a threat the 2009 version poses. But in the United States, at least, it occurs against an ominous backdrop of budget cuts and soaring numbers of uninsured people.

The public health network we rely on to protect us from disease outbreaks is a fraying fabric of more than 3,000 federal, state and local health departments. Falling tax revenues from the recession have caused many governments to cut funding.

About one in four state public health departments reported layoffs in a recent survey conducted by a professional organization. One-third said they had eliminated entire programs, and 64 percent had reduced services.

Ironically, one area that has been hit particularly hard is pandemic influenza preparedness. Federal funding for those state programs ended last August. The Association of State and Territorial Health Officials reports that the loss of federal funding caused layoffs and program reductions at public health agencies. Those agencies are, quite literally, the first line of defense.

At the same time, millions of Americans have lost their jobs and the health insurance coverage that came with them. Uninsured people are less likely to seek medical care right away, especially for things like the flu. Without treatment, they can spread the disease.

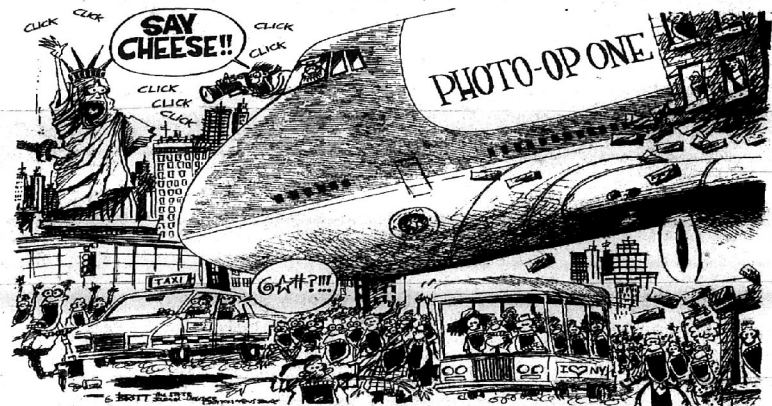

When they do get care, they're more likely to seek it in an emergency department where they easily can become infected — or spread infection among the most vulnerable people, those hospitalized in ill health.

In Mexico, which has a limited ability to detect and track community disease outbreaks, most swine flu cases have been reported among patients hospitalized for pneumonia. Infectious disease experts have suggested that explains why the death rate in Mexico appears to be much higher than in the rest of North America.

It also may be, however, that the virus has mutated to become less lethal. Or it could be that future waves of infection among more vulnerable patients will push up death rates here and around the world. We don't know.

It will take time to answer those questions. A vigorous public health response doesn't have to wait, but unless the nation invests in its public health agencies, our ability to respond to emerging infectious disease outbreaks is as fanciful as pigs that fly.

Guest Column

The first 100 days — then and now

by DAVID B. WOOLNER

After 100 days in office, the comparisons between President Obama and Franklin D. Roosevelt seem as valid as ever.

Both leaders have had to cope with an unprecedented global financial crisis, a deteriorating economy, high unemployment, and an electorate steeped in fear and apprehension about the future. Both men have also had to contend with a world-wide security crisis, inspired in FDR's case by the pernicious ideology of fascism, and in President Obama's by the rise of a deadly form of international terrorism driven by religious extremists. Both men have also had to share the blessing — or burden — of high expectations, not only among the American public, but among people the world over, where their assumption of office has been widely heralded as the beginning of a new day.

But in spite of these and other similarities, there are some striking differences between their first 100 days that may provide the current President and his colleagues in Congress with some food for thought.

One clear distinction is the reaction of the Republican Congressional leadership to the President's initial legislative agenda. In FDR's day, many Republicans not only responded positively to the President's call for bipartisanship, they also lent their support to some of the most significant measures to come out of the 100 days, including the Federal Emergency Relief Act and the establishment of the Tennessee Valley Authority or TVA — our nation's first electric public utility. In short, this "unprecedented national emergency" met with unprecedented national cooperation, among democrats and republicans, and among the executive and legislative branches of government.

A second clear distinction involves America's standing overseas. Although FDR did not attend, he sent a high level delegation (led by his Secretary of State, Cordell Hull) to Great Britain in June 1933 to attend the long-anticipated "London Monetary and Economic Conference." Attended by 66 nations, and convened to bring about an international response to the global economic crisis, FDR famously "torpedoed" the conference by rejecting a temporary currency stabilization agreement that was negotiated in London and seen as critical to the ability of the conference to continue its work. His decision to do so — particularly after the terms of the temporary agreement had been secured — greatly disappointed the British, French and other delegations. As a result, his international reputation suffered for a time and there were fears — which subsequently proved unfounded — that FDR was an economic nationalist.

By contrast, President Obama's performance at the recent G-20 meeting in London has been a 180-degree turn. The President may not have gotten all he wanted in London, but his willingness to listen to and work with the leaders of the world's leading industrialized nations, along with his ensuing visits to France and Turkey, have restored the international community's faith in American leadership and significantly enhanced the confidence of people the world over that together we will get through this crisis.

This last point brings us back to the most significant similarity between the two men — their ability to inspire hope in moments of despair and their willingness to act. FDR, like President Obama, never lost faith in the ability of the American people to restore the nation to prosperity. But he understood that government, which he wisely called "ourselves and not an alien power over us," had a vital role to play in this process. By restoring the people's faith in government, then, FDR in essence restored their faith in themselves. President Obama and our leadership in Congress would be wise to do the same.

H.S. Softball: Lady Rebels rout Betsy Layne

Kinney connects for 3-run home run in second straight game

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

BETSY LAYNE — Allen Central continued to roll on the softball diamond Wednesday evening, defeating Floyd County Conference/58th District foe Betsy Layne 13-1 in five innings.

Lady Rebel sophomore pitcher Shea Spurlock earned the win. Spurlock faced 20 Betsy Layne batters. She limited Betsy Layne to two hits and didn't issue any walks.

Sarah Kinney was the offensive leader for Allen Central. Kinney went 3-for-4 with a three-run home run and five RBIs. She blasted a three-run shot for the second time in as many games.

Spurlock helped her cause at the plate with one hit, one walk, one run and an RBI.

"The girls came out fired up and focused for the game," said Allen Central Coach Don Burke. "Again, we were led by two sophomores — pitcher Shea Spurlock and first baseman Sarah Kinney. Anyone who loves baseball or softball had ought to see these two girls pitch and hit the ball."

Eight different Allen Central players provided at least one hit in the winning effort.

Logan Cline, Bridget Slone and Brittany Johnson aided the Allen Central offensive attack with two hits apiece. Megan Jones, Jaimie Mullins and Ericka Moore delivered one hit each.

The Lady Rebels enjoyed some success on the basepaths. Cline and Jones led Allen Central in the stolen base department with two steals apiece.

Allen Central moved to 4-1 in the conference/district after posting the win. The Lady Rebels moved to 10-5 overall.

The reigning 15th Region All "A" Classic champion, Allen Central is slated to host Paintsville today in a non-district game. First pitch for the Allen Central-Paintsville softball game is set for 5:30 p.m.

The Lady Rebels are scheduled to host Prestonsburg on Saturday in their final conference/district game of the season.

Another school year winds down

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

While spring sports are still in full swing on the prep level, things finally came to an end last Saturday afternoon for us on the hill.

The Pikeville College baseball team gave up a six-run inning late and fell to Cumberland 7-1 in the Mid-South Conference baseball tournament, and with it, the season ended.

At long last, some time to step back and take a breather is in order.

The students are in the midst of exam week at FC, and that means a week from tomorrow the school will hold commencement for both the undergrads and EASTERN — Following a 28-2 win over Jenkins on Saturday, the Allen Central baseball team remained in the win column Monday following a convincing victory over Floyd County Conference/58th District rival Betsy Layne. Allen Central scored 20 or more runs for a second straight game, defeating the Bobcats 20-6.

Junior Chris Stumbo recorded the win for the Rebels. Offensively, junior Hunter Crowder provided the biggest lift for Allen Central. Crowder went 4-for-5 with four doubles.

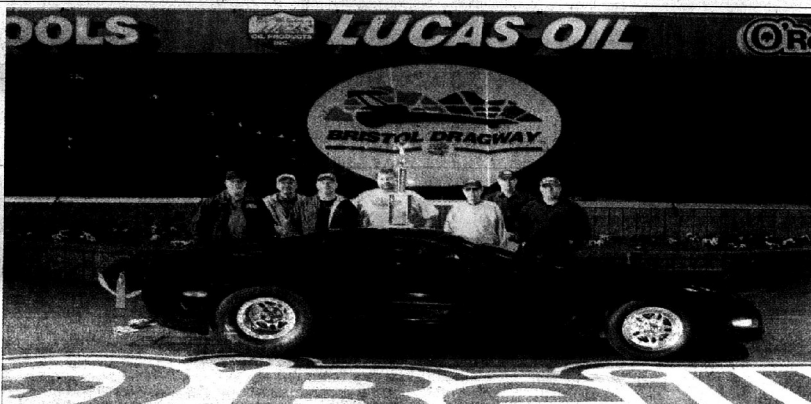

The Rebels were able to overcome an early deficit. Betsy Layne owned a 6-2 lead and looked to be in control. Allen Central, however, erupted offensively. The Rebels plated 13 runs in the sixth inning.

Allen Central had a two-game win streak snapped Tuesday, losing to Sheldon Clark in Inez.

Chad Nelson suffered the loss for the Rebels. Allen Central allowed 10 unearned runs in the non-district setback. Sheldon Clark won 16-12.

The Rebels were due back in action Thursday evening in a home game versus Betsy Layne. The Allen Central-Betsy Layne game was scheduled to be played, weather permitting.

Allen Central is under the direction of first-year head coach Josh Todd.

Elk hunt drawing deadline extended

TIMES STAFF REPORT

FRANKFORT — Hunters now have three extra days to apply for the 2009 Kentucky elk hunt. Citing technical problems over the past few days with state government's online payment application.

Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources officials today extended the original April 30 deadline to midnight Eastern Time, May 3.

"We want to ensure that everyone who wants to apply has that chance," said Wildlife Division Director Karen Alexy. "We've already had a record number of applicants because Kentucky is issuing a record number of its elk permits. The word is getting around that a Kentucky elk hunt is truly the hunt of a lifetime."

To date, more than 37,500 people have applied for the 2009 general elk hunt while an additional 375 people have applied for the special Paul Van Booven Wildlife Management Area (WMA) youth hunt. Kentucky will issue 1,002 permits for the general elk hunt, and five permits for the WMA youth hunt. The deadline extension applies to both the general hunt and the WMA youth hunt.

Applications for the elk hunt are $10 and available online only at fwy.gov. The drawing is open to Kentucky residents and non-residents.

Last week, the department began encountering problems with the electronic payment system for its online permit and license sales. Department officials took the payment system offline for part of the day on Friday, April 24, and Saturday, April 25, until the problem was fixed.

Any person who encountered difficulties with an online transaction on the department's website in the past week may call the department at 1-800-858-1549.

Kentucky's elk herd numbers approximately 10,000 animals. Last year, the hunter rate for bulls reached 96 percent, while 89 percent of cow hunt hunters enjoyed success.

New for this year is the WMA youth hunt. The five youngsters drawn for this hunt have their choice of taking a bull or cow elk in one of the best hunting areas in the state. Hunters must be 15 or under by the end of the application period to be eligible.

"These are probably the best odds we'll ever see for a quota elk hunt," said Kentucky's Big Game Coordinator, Tina Brunjes. "Young hunters should apply for this hunt. I guarantee it will be a hunt that they'll tell their grandchildren about."

For more information about season, regulations and elk hunting in Kentucky, visit the department's Internet site at fwy.gov.

Kinzer claims Top 10 finish at Talladega

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

ALLEN — The Kinzer Motorsports team trekked to Talladega Short Track in Eastaboga, Ala. last weekend (April 24-25) for a pair of Dirt Late Model events. On Friday night, Brandon Kinzer, the driver behind the wheel of the No. 18 Kinzer Motorsports Late Model, wound up ninth in a $2,000-to-win unsanctioned main event.

The O'Reilly Southern Allstars Series (OSAS) then rolled into TST on Saturday for a $5,000-to-win feature race. Kinzer timed in third quickest in qualifying and ran up front early in the 50-lap feature before finishing 12th.

Kinzer is scheduled to compete at 201 Speedway for the first time in the 2009 season on Saturday in a $3,000-to-win feature race.

Bobcats fall short against East Ridge

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

ALLEN — Betsy Layne dropped its second straight game Tuesday evening. The Bobcats fell short in a bid to get back into the win column. East Ridge battled back and pushed past Betsy Layne, winning 9-8.

The Warriors won the game in the final inning. Betsy Layne throughout much of the matchup.

Bobcat senior pitcher Brandon Tackett, despite pitching well, suffered the loss. Tackett threw 6 1/3 innings.

Errors hurt the Bobcats.

"We committed timely errors that proved to be costly," said first-year Betsy Layne Coach Ricky Thacker. "Offensively, we hit the ball well. It was a tough loss which hopefully we can rebound from."

The Bobcats took a 6-5 lead out of the sixth inning but couldn't close the door.

"Leading and not being able to close the door is a sign of a young team," Thacker said.

Brandon Mulkey was the offensive leader for the Bobcats, driving in three runs. Adam Slone, Nathaniel Hall and Dylan Watson had one RBI apiece for Betsy Layne.

The Bobcats slipped to 3-11 after suffering the setback.

MSU tennis player to serve as commencement speaker

TIMES STAFF REPORT

MOREHEAD — For the first time in recent memory, a Morehead State University student-athlete will be the speaker for Morehead State University's Spring Commencement. Heather Butt of Middletown, Ohio, the captain of the women's tennis team, will do the honor for the Saturday, May 9 exercises.

During the ceremony, that begins at 10:30 a.m. in the Academic-Athletic Center, President Wayne D. Andrews will confer degrees on more than 1,000 graduate and undergraduate students.

An honorary Doctor of Communications degree will be presented to MSU alumnus Steve Inskip of Washington, D.C., during the exercises. Inskip is the co-host of National Public Radio's Morning Edition.

Butt is a candidate for a Bachelor of Business Administration degree in the College of Business. Her emphasis was accounting and she minored in mathematics.

She has been recognized for her distinguished achievements throughout her college experience by attaining a 3.955 grade point average on a 4.0 scale.

Butt was president of the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) and a math tutor.

She was named outstanding sophomore and junior of the year in the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science. Butt also was 7th standing senior accounting student.

The Bishop Fenwick High graduate was an Ohio Valley Conference Commissioner's Medal of Honor recipient for 2005-06 and 06-07 and was on the OVC Honor Roll 2005-08.

She is the daughter of Todd and Sandi Butt of Trenton, Ohio, and Doreen Hampton and Rodney Hampton of Middletown, Ohio.

school of osteopathic medicine. It has flown by.

It's been a fun year. It all began, if memory serves, with a volleyball match back in August, and there have been some highlights. Publicly, I'm sure, the night that will be most remembered will be the sweep of Georgetown by the basketball teams in front of an absolutely rabid audience. In my 13 years at Pikeville College, I've never seen a more vocal, supportive crowd.

It makes me wonder, though, why it isn't that way more often. Some nine days later, the Bears played a game that was even more important in the season finale against Cumberlands — on Senior Day, no less — in front of a sparse gathering. There are some very good basketball teams in the Mid-South Conference and they aren't all called "Georgetown." As much as I enjoyed the sweep and all the fans brought to the table, I wish they would come to understand that.

Alas, it is behind us now. Some of our sports had rough seasons, but others flourished. The Pikeville College bowling team continued to lead the way, with both the men and women qualifying for the USBC national tournament. No, a national title wasn't claimed this year, but that surely doesn't diminish the terrific season these young people put together.

It is a blast watching them and being around them for their national-tournament experience, and I'm already excited about El Paso next year. I can't wait.

The Intercollegiate Team Championships is my favorite event of the season. I love going to national tournaments with my teams, but as good a job as the NAAIA does with them — particularly our friends in Jackson, Tenn., with the women's basketball Div. I tournament — they could learn a lesson or two from the USBC. They did another phenomenal job again this year, largely with a new crew.

But it's not just national tournaments that make this job special. It's every day in the gym, on the hill, in the cafeteria or on the bridge that makes my job complete. It's getting to know the students and discovering how genuinely nice 98 percent of them are that makes me happy to come to work each day.

This year, I had a tremendous opportunity that I'm glad I didn't say no to. I spent this school year as the huddle coach for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and I will never forget it. Robert Staggs, who convinced me this was something I needed to do, shared this experience with me and I'll never be able to thank him enough. We loved every minute of it.

And while I was thrilled to do it and to get to know so many of our student-athletes on an even more personal basis, those three officers — logged in, "Cowboy" Simmons, Whitney Compton and Larkia "Mooka" Bailey — are young people I'll never forget and will forever be indebted to.

We're going to do even more next year, but this was a ride I'll never forget. I'm a very, very blessed man.

And so, our season on the hill is over. It was a stressful one in many aspects. That October morning when 25 of our co-workers were let go was a trial for all of us. I've said it before and will again, but I survived that by the grace of God and the skin of my teeth. Several of them are back, but many still aren't. We miss them every single day.

We also got a new boss in athletics this season. Rob is doing and will do a fantastic job leading us, but I'm sure he'd be the first to ask me to say we will always owe our livelihood to Ron Damron.

Ron was the guy who hired every single one of us in athletics at Pikeville College, and in many ways, he'll always be a guy I turn to.

We also had a change at the very top this year. Hal Smith wanted no fanfare as he left, but he got it anyway. I was thrilled to chair the committee that surprised him on Hall of Fame day with his induction, and was there at Georgetown College and the conference basketball tournament when he was honored. He raised the bar in so many ways for us at Pikeville College and it was a thrill to serve under his leadership these last dozen years.

And now we have Dr. Michael Looney to lead us. Here's a guy everyone needs to get to know. He's got a great sense of humor, can take a good joke and dish one out, and has his goals clearly in mind for Pikeville College. We're in for another fun ride with him.

We'll have a couple of months "off," so to speak, as we regroup and charge the batteries before making another run through the school year. I've survived a trip around this block for the 13th time and I really believe God has me where He wants me.

I can't imagine a place I'd rather be.

Statewide sportsmanship winners honored

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LEXINGTON — Jasmine Hall of Phelps and Will Barnes of Caldwell County were named the statewide winners in the Forcht Group of Kentucky/KHSAA Sportsmanship Recognition Program at the annual banquet held on Sunday (April 26) at the Embassy Suites in Lexington.

Both winners receive a one-time $3,000 scholarship, courtesy of the Forcht Group of Kentucky. Each of the 32 regional winners were also recognized and honored at the banquet. Each winner received a plaque, a mantle clock from the KHSAA Officials Division, an emblazoned camping chair and a $200 book scholarship courtesy of Forcht Group of Kentucky.

This year's banquet marked the 13th year of the program recognizing outstanding sportsmanship. KHSAA member schools selected one girl and one boy as the local sportsmanship winner. School winners were then eligible to be selected as the regional winner. From the 32 regional winners, one girl and one boy from each of Kentucky's 16 regions, the statewide winners were selected. Selection criteria includes grade point average, letters of recommendation, leadership roles/honors, response to a case study essay and verification of no game disqualifications.

The following individuals were recognized as regional winners: Region 1 - Blake Averill (St. Mary), Hannah Ellis (Marshall County); Region 2 - Will Barnes (Caldwell County), Auburn Sutton (Lyon County); Region 3 - Chad Grubb (Butler County), Chasity Henning (Breckinridge County); Region 4 - Joseph Eaton (Monroe County), Lisa Ross (Warren Central); Region 5 - Chris Thomas (Taylor County), Kelsey Robinson (Nelson County); Region 6 - Doug Crawford (DeSales), Megan Geary (Brown); Region 7 - Nicholas Jones (St. Xavier), Avery Jones (DuPont Manual); Region 8 - Kory Brocius (Carroll County), Kristen Cuevara (Walton-Verona); Region 9 - Steve Ricketts (Holy Cross-Covington), Alexa Abner (Newport Central Catholic); Region 10 - Carson Craig (Pendleton County), Bonnie Jo Dailley (Harrison County); Region 11 - Daniel Griggs (Tates Creek), Rebekah Hamblin (Sayre); Region 12 - Trey Edwards (Lincoln County), Stephanie Salyers (Southwestern); Region 13 - Brian Mully (Coburn), Candace Kirby (South Laurel); Region 14 - Chris Hoover (Estill County), Kayla Spencer (Wolfe County); Region 15 - Dillon Siltner (Phelps), Jasmine Hall (Phelps); Region 16 - Eric Craft (Greenup County), Emily Collier (Bath County).

Eagles complete spring workouts

TIMES STAFF REPORT

MOREHEAD — The Morehead State University football team wrapped up spring workouts with the annual spring game on Saturday. In the spring game the white team earned a 21-18 win over the blue team. White team quarterback Jared Phillips called his own number and posted a 59-yard run that set up a 4-yard touchdown run by halfback Jerrod Pendleton for the first touchdown of the game.

"The spring game wasn't the prettiest thing in the world, but it's not meant to be," said MSU head coach Matt Ballard. "We assign two or three captains and they pick their teams so you get a lot of mismatches. It's meant to be fun and exciting for our players and fans."

The blue team answered with a 20-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Evan Sawyer to halfback Desmond Cox. The blue team took the lead when David Francis scored on a 60-yard interception return putting the score at 12-7 after a failed two-point conversion.

Phillips struck again on a 56-yard touchdown run to put the white team back on top 14-12. Phillips found Pendleton in the end zone on a 40-yard touchdown pass to give the white team a 21-12 lead.

The blue team answered with one more touchdown but were unable to take the lead and fell 21-18.

Despite Sawyer's team losing the spring game, Ballard thought last season's starter had a decent spring. "I thought Evan (Sawyer) shot par," said Ballard. "He had a good solid spring. He had some great days and made some great plays. Most importantly he had healthy year."

Ballard said that from the way he handled himself you could tell he had had a year under his belt. "I think he needs to get more consistent and improve on handling some of the little things. We didn't execute some of the easiest things last season and we need to improve on that."

Ballard said that the Eagles had a productive spring despite some injuries to key players. "Overall I think we accomplished what we set out to do this spring," said Ballard. "With the exception of one player we came out of spring without serious injury."

MSU defensive back Dereck Harkness missed most of spring practice with a torn meniscus but should return in the fall. Ballard said minor injuries slowed progress somewhat during the second half of spring practice.

"I think up until the second half of spring ball we were exceeding expectations," said Ballard. "I think the silver lining in that cloud was that the injuries allowed us to develop our depth more. The way our team practiced and with their attitude you never would have thought that we were missing Harkness or Wes McDermott the last week and a half. That was positive because during the season you're going to need the depth."

"Overall I think we got better as a football team," said Ballard. Ballard said that the Eagle receiving corps showed improvement over the course of spring practice.

"Early on in the spring I was not happy with the way we caught the ball at all," said Ballard. "By the end of spring we were much better. We don't have that deep threat guy and we knew that going in but we'll just have to do things a little differently to work around that."

Defending against the run should be a high point for the Eagles next season said Ballard. "Run defense was rock-solid," said Ballard. "We're as good as we've ever been up front. I was also very impressed with how our guys played in the secondary. We made tremendous improvements there."

Heading into spring practice Ballard and the rest of the MSU coaching staff were concerned with the development of the Eagle special teams. Now that spring practice is over, Ballard and company are pleased with the improvements they saw in special teams.

"When you graduate Mason Webb and Max Hammond, you know it's going to be an uphill battle," said Ballard. "Overall I think our special teams really improved."

With key Pioneer Football League home games against Dayton and San Diego, Ballard thinks the 2009 season will be another tough one.

"In this league it's really getting to where any team can beat any other team any game," said Ballard. "Our fans know that we are going to work hard every game. We're just going to have to keep improving each practice and work on executing better or else it's going to be a tough season. I think we can be competitive but we will have to execute."

MSU will open the season on September 5 when Southern Virginia visits Jayne Stadium. Hyland invited to Browns rookie camp: David Hyland, Morehead State University's all-time interception leader and an All-American during his Eagle playing days (2005-2008), has been invited to this week's Cleveland Browns Rookie Camp as a free agent.

A native of Woodstock, Ga., Hyland intercepted 21 passes during his MSU career. He earned All-America honors from The Sports Network and Football Gazette.

A host of draftees and signed and unsigned free agents are expected to be on hand for the Browns' camp.

Weeksbury post office turning 100

by CONNIE JACKSON

As the memories of yesterday so quietly slip away unto the past we seem to forget the faces and the laughter of that forgotten time. I recently found out that the Weeksbury Post Office was celebrating its 100th birthday on May 4th. This is the one constant reminder of times past for this small community. The office houses 658 boxes with 93 employees. We also deliver to 109 RT customers. It is a very small office where each customer is a familiar face. Each box has a story. Some boxes have belonged to the same family since the office opened. As the parents pass away the children maintain the box and reopen it into their name. It is like the box is part of their family. As our lives change something inside us seems to want to hold on to the past.

From what I can learn about the office it originally opened as Rail. The first Postmaster was Coss Johnson and the first mail carrier was Bill Johnson in 1909. It is ironic that our present Manager of Postal Operations is also named Bill Johnson. Bill delivered the mail from the train station at the depot and then Coss distributed it. In 1912 the office name was changed to Weeksbury. The next Postmasters name I could find was LA Johnson. He was Postmaster until his retirement and then RM Chaffins took the office until 1947 when Haskell Hall was sworn. Haskell not only was the postmaster but he also owned the building.

As I spoke with Haskell you could hear an excitement in his voice as he told me his story. "The lobby used to be open 24 hrs a day. It was the meeting place where everyone the town would talk and visit for a spell." Another interesting fact about Haskell was that his wife Virginia was his clerk. Haskell also provided me with much of my information for this article. They lived upstairs over the office. Haskell and Virginia ran the Weeksbury office for 28 years until his retirement in 1975 when Virginia became postmaster for the next four years.

At the retirement of Virginia, Georgia Smith became the next Postmaster in 1980. Georgia Smith was at the office for approximately 13 years before she transferred. Georgia stated that the office was special to her. She said, "I loved the down home close feel that you don't feel many places. The customers would gather around 8 a.m. and stand around and talk to everyone. The lobby would be full as people awaited the mail. If it was cold they gathered inside the office but if it were warm the parking lot would be full of people standing around laughing and talking." Georgia only left the office to transfer to an office closer to her home. She left Weeksbury in 1993.

In 1993 Diane Ousley became postmaster for a very brief time before advancing to another office. Diane was replaced by John McIntosh. John was a Weeksbury veteran. He created a historical display in the lobby which attracts many former residents of Weeksbury. As they visit home many stop by the office to look at the all but forgotten town. Tears fill many eyes as they reflect on the beauty that once was Weeksbury. As clerk and OIC of the office myself I have heard many stories of the fountain, the theater, the bank commissary, the company store, the hospital, and most of all, the club house. So many happy memories were estab-

HALLMARK MOMENT

Native's photo selected in greeting card contest

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

Deana Williams Johnson, a 1997 graduate of Prestonsburg High School, became a successful photographer after graduating from Nashville State Technical Institute in 2003 with an associate's degree in visual communication with an emphasis in photography. Now, one of her photographs has been selected as a winner in a contest sponsored by Hallmark.

The competition encouraged consumers to submit their funniest photos with a hilarious message to Hallmark.

Johnson's photograph was one of 60 finalists chosen by Hallmark for the yourBloopers Greeting Card Design Contest.

"This is our sixth greeting card contest, and our Hallmark shoppers keep on sending us amazing cards," said Sarah Mueller, editorial director at Hallmark. "We wanted hilarious cards this time, and they brought it. We've got some seriously sore funny bones here on the judging team."

Johnson has a home studio in Pikeville where she photographs senior portraits, children, families, infants, engagements, weddings and pets.

"Last year, my friend Sarah McCoy called me and told me about this Hallmark Greeting card contest for funny pet photos," Johnson said. "I submitted my best dog portrait, which was a photo of a pug smiling on a bright red sofa, and two weeks later received an official letter from Hallmark stating my entry was one of 67 chosen over 7,000 others. This year I submitted another pet photo for and I'm among several finalists for the grand prize."

Portraits are Johnson's specialty, and her work can be viewed at Kentucky Mountain Bride, Special Occasions and Ivy Court Studio.

"I love baby portrait sessions," Johnson said. "Children are so spontaneous and honest in their expressions. I enjoy capturing their emotion more than any other subject matter."

The Hallmark creative staff judged the cards. The cards are available for viewing and to be purchased online at www.hallmarkcontests.com/bloopers.

Three of this week's films were sure bets, and lower budgeted than the star powered turkey that made the most money at the box office, go figure.

■ "Bride Wars" — This week's only stinker looked promising on paper. Anne Hathaway and Kate Hudson star as friends who accidentally schedule their weddings on the same day. Hilarity was meant to ensue but it doesn't. Any film that can waste Hudson and Hathaway deserves some kind of recognition, but not your hard-earned dollar.

■ "JCVD" — Fans of Jean Claude Van Damme finally got the film they'd been waiting for with this irreverent action-dramedy that casts the "Muscles from Brussels" as himself. Van Damme plays himself as a tortured soul who is in the midst of a nasty custody battle while trying to restart a career that now finds him losing direct-to-video roles to Steven Seagal. Redemption comes in an odd fashion when a trip to the post office lands him in the middle of a hostage drama. Lean, mean and occasionally very funny.

■ "Hotel for Dogs" — Family fare doesn't get much better, or more formulaic, than this effort which finds two teens bouncing around foster homes. They become friends and open the titular location when their foster families won't accept pets. Not bad at all, though most of the best gags were given away during the ad campaign. Look for Don Cheadle as a well-meaning social worker.

■ "Martyrs" — France continues to be the surprise trendsetter for horror cinema as this frenzied flick demonstrates. The story starts out as a revenge scenario, as a young woman targets the abusers who attacked her as a child. The vengeance is about as bloody and brutal as you would expect from the bad guys in this kind of thing, but watch closely as the director begins filling in the blanks and you'll be very surprised where this one goes. Audiences around the world have walked out of this film during some of the torture sequences, but if you can stick with it, the director actually has a great story to tell.

Next week look a little less gore with Brad Pitt in "The Curious Case of Benjamin Button."

Decongestants and chewing gum can aid ear infection recovery

Question: I had a cold a couple of weeks ago. My right ear has been plugged up ever since, so I went to the doctor. He said I had a middle ear infection and put me on a 10-day course of antibiotics. It's been seven days, and the ear is still plugged up. What else should be done? Will I need surgery?

Answer: It is not uncommon for people to get middle ear infections following a cold. A quick anatomy lesson will help you to understand what is going on and what you can do to fully recover.

The middle ear lies just beyond the eardrum. It contains three small bones, which move when sound waves vibrate the eardrum. Their movement transmits eardrum vibrations to your brain, which interprets the variety of sounds that you hear.

The middle ear connects to the back of the throat by the eustachian tube, which allows fluid to drain and equalizes air pressure in the middle ear. To "equalize air pressure," the eustachian tube, which is normally closed, opens momentarily, letting in a small amount of air. When it opens, you hear a small pop. You may have experienced this while yawning or swallowing, especially when in an airplane or driving in the mountains.

A head cold can cause inflammation of the eustachian tube, since it connects to your throat near the intersection of your nasal passage.

When the eustachian tube becomes inflamed, it can swell, blocking the passage of fluid and air. This leads to a build up of fluid in the middle ear. As a result, you may experience reduced hearing, since the eardrum cannot wiggle as freely through fluid, so the vibrations sent to the small ear bones and the brain become muffled as well. When this happens, bacteria in the trapped fluid can infect your middle ear. This is what your doctor means when he says you have an "ear infection."

When your ear becomes infected, a full course of antibiotics is needed to kill the bacteria causing the infection. Decongestants can also help by decreasing the fluid in the middle ear. Chewing gum can help promote drainage from the middle ear. Also, avoid cigarette smoke, and do not take airplane trips when your ear is plugged up.

Sometimes it is necessary to also treat the inflamed eustachian tubes. Ibuprofen can help, because of its anti-inflammatory effect, but do not exceed the suggested dosage printed on the bottle. Certain steroid medications, which are also anti-inflammatory, may also help open the eustachian tube.

Finally, if all of these things don't work, ventilation tubes can be placed through a surgical procedure to drain the middle ear and allow air to re-enter. Although this is typically a safe procedure, your doctor should avoid surgery whenever possible. Normally, ventilation tubes are not used unless ear fluid is present for more than four months, there is fluid in both ears, or infections are recurrent and/or do not respond to multiple antibiotics.

For now, start with the decongestants and chewing gum. Then, be sure to let your doctor know if you finish your antibiotics and the pressure remains.

lished there.

Other postmasters include Irma Hall and Darla Click. If I have left out anyone I apologize. Darla was the last known postmaster at Weeksbury to date. The office now is a victim of the economy. Darla transferred to a office closer to her home and the USPS was faced with a hiring freeze which has left the office to a Officers In Charge instead of a Postmaster for the last two years.

The current OIC is Melissa Tackett who is also from Weeksbury. In honor of the 100 birthday Melissa will be designing from a stamp from a picture of the office in its early years (provided by Danny Tackett). The stamp will be available by purchase by customers.

At first glance the office may not seem ideal but it is more than a post office. It is a piece of history for a town which once was. Weeksbury was one of the top coalmining towns in the area and now it is a ghost of what once was. The old camp houses, the depot lot, even the old hospital. To outsiders that may be the picture but to the residents it is home and home includes our little Post Office.
