Pike teen killed in ATV wreck on Christmas

Times Staff Report

SIDNEY — A Christmas Day accident left a Pike County teen dead along Dix Fork in Sidney.

According to state police, Andy Case, 18, of Sidney, was killed when the all-terrain vehicle he was operating struck a tree along Dix Fork.

Case was a senior at Belfry High School. Investigators believe the left front tire of the vehicle came off just before Case struck the tree. He was transported to South Williamson Appalachian Regional Hospital following the accident.

Big Creek Fire Department assisted KSP Trooper Chris Phillips at the scene.

Officials open new section of highway

HAROLD — A moment more than a decade in the making took place at Harold Monday afternoon, as officials gathered for a ribbon cutting ceremony at the new section of the Route 680 extension, also known as the Minnie-to-Harold Connector.

In attendance for the ribbon cutting was Kentucky Speaker of the House

Greg Stumbo, who has been with the project since its first planning stages years ago.

"This was a great Christmas present to me and to the people of the area," Stumbo told reporters Monday. "This road is becoming a reality, slowly, but surely."

During former Gov. Ernie Fletcher's term in office, the project was stalled and taken from state's six-year road plan. This year, under the new administration of Gov. Steve Beshear, it was again included and approved for funding.

That funding was significant, with some $20 million alone earmarked for the connector project.

When completed, the new road will cut travel time and open opportunity along that new stretch of highway for possible economic ventures such as stores, parks, and, of course, real estate.

Officials such as Floyd Judge-

Executive R.D. "Doc" Marshall have called the connector a "main artery for travelers through the county," as the section will connect two separate districts and cut some trips for some residents by more than an hour.

Route 979 from Hi Hat to Harold, often referred to simply as Mud Creek, has long been the only route for some Floyd County residents, and it is a winding road that sees a lot of coal truck and heavy truck traffic.

Pikeville Medical marks anniversary, distinction

PIKEVILLE — Pikeville Medical Center celebrated its National Hospital of the Year award and its 85th anniversary with a ceremony Tuesday.

"It has been a year of milestones for our great institution," said PMC President and CEO Walter E. May, who was unable to attend the event. "Our best days lie ahead of us and our journey to be a world-class hospital and health care provider has just begun."

In late November, the hospital was named National Hospital of the Year by the American Alliance of Healthcare Providers, an award that has since brought words of congratulations from both the state and local level.

In recognition of the hospital's award, Pikeville city leaders declared January as Pikeville Medical Center month.

"Pikeville Medical Center has brought prestige to the city and the region," said Pikeville City Manager Donovan Blackburn. "The hospital not only provides a valuable service to the region, but plays a large role in the corporate makeup of our region and contributes to the quality of life we all enjoy." The hospital administrators and staff, along with visitors from the public, also celebrated the hospital's 85th anniversary during the ceremony Tuesday. Rev. Thomas B. Ashley, of the Pikeville Methodist Church, spearheaded the first efforts to see a hospital built in Pikeville. Ashley, along with five other Pikeville residents, formed Pikeville General Hospital with an investment of $40,000, opening its doors on Dec. 25, 1924.

Earlier this year, PMC officials announced plans to construct an 11-story medical office building and research center. The project currently has an estimated price tag of about $76 million.

Candidates file for constable, magistrate, U.S. rep positions

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

As in election years past, the races for constable in Floyd County fill up with candidates faster than some others. Likewise, these races often see more candidates having filed when deadlines are reached.

In the past two weeks it has been constable hopefuls who have most often visited the clerk's office in Prestonsburg to toss their hats in the ring for the May primary.

There have been three candidates file to run in constable races across two of the county's districts. In the District 3 constable race, Tony Flanery, of Weeksbury, and Michael Tackett, of Wheelwright, have now filed to run for that position. They join Ronnie Vicars, of Melvin, in that race.

David "Winford" Wakeland, of Betsy Layne, filed this past week to run in the District 4 constable race, as well. His only challenger at this point is Jordan Case.

A total of 10 individuals have now filed to run for constable across the four districts, while nipe have put their names in for magistrate.

The only other filing that has been handled at the clerk's office in the past two weeks has been for another challenger for John's Goble's seat as magistrate in District 1.

Janice Pennington Davis, of Prestonsburg, made her candidacy official and now joins Keith Stapleton and

ADD to host workshop for ARC grants

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — The Appalachian Regional Commission is encouraging officials in Floyd County who are interested in learning more about funding support for strategic planning to attend an informational session scheduled to be held at the Big Sandy Area Development District office on Jan. 5.

According to Sharon Dodson, with the Center for Rural Development, a former grant recipient is scheduled to attend the session to share how previously awarded ARC funds have made a positive difference in their community.

The meeting, set to begin at 3 p.m., will focus on the ARC mini-grants that are available to certain cities and counties in this portion of the state.

"Stimulating innovative and sustainable economic development solutions in the region we serve is at the core of the Center for Rural Development's mission, and these grants target communities that have the ideas, but lack the resources, to move them forward," said Lonnie Lawson, president and CEO of the Center for Rural Development.

Stumbo urges governor to avoid furloughs

FRANKFORT — In a letter last week to Gov. Steve Beshear, House Speaker Greg Stumbo asked that furloughs of state government employees not be included in his upcoming budget proposal.

"I ask this for two main reasons: First, the House has not been receptive to this idea and, two, I believe it is unfair and imprudent to ask these workers to take on additional tasks while earning less money," Stumbo wrote. "The reduced services, and the predictable loss of morale, would far outweigh any savings."

Beshear is scheduled to present his budget to the House of Representatives in mid-January, and a budget is expected to be enacted by April 15.

"We have a lot of tough decisions to make to get through the next two years, but I am confident that we can do it without putting additional burden on the backs of state workers," Stumbo said.

If there was ever a time to advocate for a change in the way power companies deliver electricity to their customers, that time is now.

For the second time in 2009 inclement weather has put people in Eastern Kentucky out in the cold.

The main culprit in these power outages remains to be the continuous use of power lines hung from wooden poles along the roadside and through the forests. Any time a heavy snow like we had Dec. 18, or an ice storm like we had in January, moves through the region, thousands of people are left without power during the coldest times of the year.

In the meantime, the state and federal government must allocate resources to aid people in the effected areas, and the utility companies must pay extra costs in terms of payroll and repairs. And this is an annual aspect of living in rural, forested areas like we do here in Eastern Kentucky.

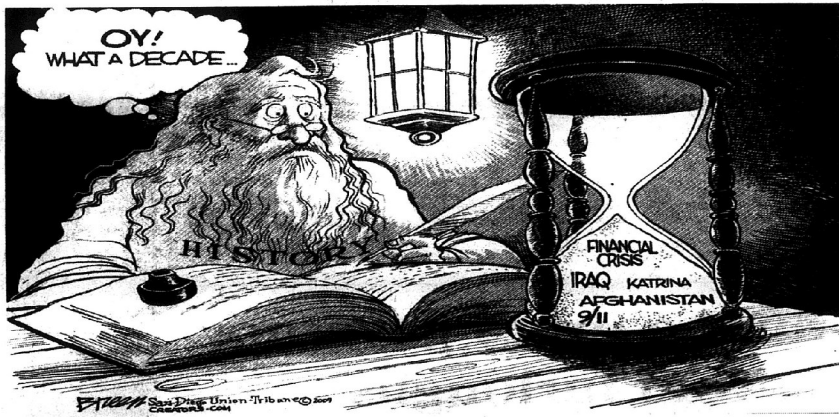

But there is a quick fix that would promise to alleviate many of the power outages we face every winter: bury the power lines.

Granted, the short term cost of burying power lines where falling trees would no longer be a factor would be high, but in the long term - especially with government incentives like stimulus money - companies would recoup their short term losses through less costs due to major outages and in the long run see bigger profits.

For families with young children, for the elderly, and for those with special needs, outages like these are not minor hindrances; they alter their lives for the moment and leave them looking for ways to combat interruptions in service over which they have no control.

While we applaud the hundreds of company employees working around the clock to restore power to thousands of people across the region, we can't help but feel that these types of major outages should become a thing of the past. And that piece of history can't come too soon.

Guest Column

A legislative perspective

by REP. GREG STUMBO
SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE

As we celebrate Christmas this week, and ready ourselves for the new year, now is the ideal time to recall the adage that it is better to give than to receive. Here in Kentucky, we have truly taken that to heart.

One of the best ways that can be seen in the numerous foundations across the Commonwealth. According to the Kentucky Commission on Philanthropy, there are 850, with $1.9 billion in collective assets. From that, they give out more than $120 million annually to worthy causes.

The commission was formed last year to see if it is possible to help these foundations coordinate their goals, especially when it comes to improving the lives of our youngest citizens. It is an effort to see if they can do more together than they could apart.

With that thought in mind, the state is attempting to enroll more qualified children into either Medicaid or the Kentucky Children Health Insurance Program, which is for families with higher incomes. About 35,000 new children have been added during the last year, well ahead of the planned schedule. If you know of an uninsured child who could join that group, please call KCHIP, toll-free at 877-524-4718. For the deaf and hard of hearing, the number is 877-524-4719; and for those speaking Spanish, the number is 800-662-5297.

Another way that Kentuckians have shown their giving spirit can be found in our charitable gaming, which voters made possible in 1992.

Last year, hundreds of churches and charities brought in $461 million in gross receipts. After factoring out the winnings and administrative costs, they were able to keep more than $53 million.

Nationwide, Americans gave $307 billion last year. Though that was slightly lower than in 2007 - the first time in two decades giving had declined - it nonetheless speaks highly of our generosity in such difficult economic times. For comparison that total is a little less than half of our military spending.

The Giving USA Foundation noted that two-thirds of charities saw a decline in 2008, but religious institutions and those with a public focus were not part of that trend.

Closer to home, state employees have reached out to help as a group since 1993. This year, they have donated more than $1.4 million to the Kentucky Employees Charitable Campaign through payroll deductions. That money will be given to such organizations as United Way, Easter Seals and the WHAS Crusade for Children.

Earlier this year, the General Assembly opened another avenue for giving by making it easier for farmers markets to donate surplus produce to food banks. The need is always great, but even more during this time of year.

As we approach the final days of the holiday season, I encourage you to keep in mind the words of famous philosopher Albert Schweitzer, who said, "One thing I know; the only ones among you who will be really happy are those who will have sought and found how to serve."

I hope all of you had a merry Christmas and have a happy new year.

House week in review

by REP. HUBERT COLLINS

The week between Christmas and New Year's is a time to reflect on and reevaluate what is important.

Most of us focus on family and friends, business, church or other personal interests, with very few people considering what is important to Kentucky as a whole. But now, as the state faces what could be another $1 billion shortfall over the next two years due to the poor national economy, more and more Kentuckians are starting to take a closer look at what is truly the state of our Commonwealth and we lawmakers are among them.

Two weeks from now state lawmakers will be back in legislative session in Frankfort to decide how much money our state agencies and agencies that rely on state funding, like our school districts, will have to spend over the next year or two. But we know, as you do, that revenues have fallen and many of those agencies will again face budget cuts. What those cuts will be, and who will be exempt from them, remains to be seen as we continue to reevaluate our state's needs and how to meet them in this economy.

Lawmakers thought we were going to have to fill an approximately $160 million shortfall in the state budget this fiscal year following official reports that revenues had decreased in most areas. We were all very relieved last week when a reevaluation of the state economy reduced the expected shortfall to about $100 million, lessening the pain a bit.

The revision will not be enough to prevent cuts altogether. And that is unfortunate.

State lawmakers are sick and tired of making cuts. And state agencies along with the Kentuckians they serve are sick and tired of the effects of the cuts, which have totaled approximately $800 million over the past two years. Suggestions have been made on ways to avoid more cuts, including changing the state's income tax structure, reinstating the state estate tax or instituting a tax on services like car and home repair to increase revenue, but there is little bipartisan support for tax increases right now. Expanding gaming in the state by allowing video slot machines at racetracks has also been suggested as a money maker, but that too remains a hard sell.

What route lawmakers can, and will, take to balance the state budget next session remains to be seen. No one is sure about what to do at this point. But everyone is sure that with revenue, more cuts are inevitable. And the agencies and people those cuts will effect could grow.

Public schools, Medicaid, corrections and other essential services have escaped the cuts that most other agencies and universities have experienced in recent sessions because of their importance to the state's health, safety and competitiveness. Growing demand for Medicaid and corrections services and legislative commitment to advancing the K-12 goals our state set almost 20 years ago have almost made Medicaid, education and corrections immune from the fate of other agencies. But this year, as our state continues to battle $1 billion biennial shortfalls, agencies that were previously exempt from cuts could lose some immunity.

Governor Steve Beshear told the media earlier this month, "I can't make any guarantees" about what cuts will or will not be made over the next two years, although he said he hopes to protect base per pupil funding for schools, known as SEEK (Seeking Educational Excellence in Kentucky).

State employees could also be at risk. Dozens of states have had to lay off employees to decrease their costs this recession, and there has been continued talk of possible furloughs or even lay offs of state employees in Kentucky, although no such proposal has been formally introduced.

We will all learn more about the state budget situation and how the governor proposes to balance the budget in the governor's budget address, which is expected to be held by January 19. By that time we should know more about any exemptions to agency cuts or proposals affecting state government jobs. We will also hear more about tax reform and video slot machine proposals that could be considered during the upcoming session.

Governor Beshear has said he plans to limit his agenda this next session to the budget mostly; although other issues will also demand lawmakers' attention. Our state retirement systems need increased funding to protect benefits for teachers and state employees, child abuse and neglect cases in Kentucky are soaring, our state prison system tops the nation in growth, and more protections are needed to protect domestic violence victims from their abusers. We saw this in the case of the late Amanda Ross, in whose memory Speaker Greg Stumbo has filed a bill that would allow the courts to order someone with a domestic violence order against them to wear or carry a GPS (global monitoring system) device that notifies victims when that person is nearby. I will go into more detail next week about these issues.

Until then, I wish you and all Kentuckians a happy New Year's holiday.

KFW announces grants to four East Ky. artists

The Kentucky Foundation for Women recently awarded four Artist Enrichment Grants totaling $7,500 to feminist artists and arts organizations in Eastern Kentucky committed to creating positive social change throughout Kentucky.

KFW's Artist Enrichment grants provide opportunities for feminist artists and arts organizations to enhance their abilities and skills to create art that advances social justice. Applicants may request funds for activities including: artistic development, artist residencies, the exploration of new areas or techniques, and/or to build a body of work.

Arts-based organizations and artists at all stages of their careers, who demonstrate outstanding abilities and an understanding of the power of feminist art to enact social change, were welcome to apply. The artist enrichment grants awarded in Eastern Kentucky included film makers, a writer and a bead work artists, ranging from a team of two artists undertaking their first project to well established artists like those working at Appalshop.

The grant program drew a total of 90 applications from throughout the state. KFW awarded a total of 41 grants, totaling $100,000.

Eastern Kentucky artists receiving grants include:

- Elizabeth Barret, Appalshop, with photographer Wendy Ewald, Whitesburg: $2,000 to document and support the creation of new work reconnecting internationally recognized photographer Wendy Ewald and women with whom she worked in a community arts-based program in eastern Kentucky in the 1970s and 80s. The adult women will reflect on their photographic experiences as school children and create new work, culminating in a book that showcases both past and new photographic art. The project will revisit an early arts-based community program, build on Appalshop's history of leadership in partnering artists with rural communities, and help change public perceptions of Appalachian women.

- Leatha Kendrick, East Point: $2,000 to attend two writers colonies and rewrite her novel, "Leavings," focusing on a woman facing crises created by failed social policies and subordination of marginalized people. Her goal is to have a publishable manuscript and to learn through her writing who she is and how she can make a difference.

- Jennifer A. Reis, Morehead: $2,500 to research, create, promote, exhibit and digitally archive a body of embellished textile assemblages that explore the "symbolic vernacular" of contemporary Appalachian popular culture and religious symbols. Creating a digital portfolio and archives will help her secure opportunities such as exhibitions and promotion. The body of work will challenge viewers, both inside and outside of Appalachia, to examine their surroundings, beliefs and stereotypes.

The artist enrichment grants offer artists resources to foster a feminist community equipped to create art-based projects that spark discussions, alter perceptions and create positive social change. By furthering the development of these artists, we recognize the power of feminist social change art to better the lives of women and girls throughout the Commonwealth, and when women and girls advance so does Kentucky," said Dr. Judi Jennings, executive director of the Kentucky Foundation for Women.

KFW will announce applications and guidelines for its 2010 Art Meets Activism Program in January 2010. This program supports feminist artists and organizations whose work is directly focused on enacting social change—such as altering perceptions, creating social dialogue, opening up opportunities for all. The grants are for specific projects and activities that are artist-based, focused on creating social change and involve the broader community. Individuals and organizations may apply.

The mission of the Kentucky Foundation for Women is to promote positive social change by supporting varied feminist expression in the arts.

Dr. Jennings and selected grant recipients are available for interviews/appearances. Contact Dr. Jennings for further information and to schedule appearances.

Former Pike magistrate, judge-executive dies on Christmas day at age 65

Williamson Daily News

PIKEVILLE — A former judge-executive and magistrate for Pike County, known for his giant smile and determined attitude died Christmas Day in Pikeville.

Harris was appointed judge-executive in 1991 by Gov. Brereton Jones upon the election of Paul Patton to the office of lieutenant governor. He served from December 1991 until November 1992 as a Democrat. He was defeated in the May 1992 Democratic primary for former Judge, Wayne T. Rutherford.

Prior to his appointment as county judge-executive, he served as the magistrate on the Pike County Fiscal Court for District 6. Harris was re-elected magistrate in 1993 and 1998, but was defeated in 2002 by incumbent magistrate Christian Harris.

Harris changed party affiliation, becoming a Republican in order to run against Wayne T. Rutherford for judge-executive in 2006. He lost that race.

Funeral services for Harris will be held this morning at the Big Creek Freewill Baptist Church.

Hagy named PMC chief financial officer

PIKEVILLE — Pikeville Medical Center president and Chief Executive Officer Walter E. May recently announced that Michelle Hagy has accepted the position of Chief Financial Officer.

"Michelle is a valuable asset to our organization," May said. "She demonstrates the core values of our organization and we are pleased that she has accepted this new position."

Hagy has worked at PMC since 1997 and served as interim chief financial officer since August. Prior to that, she worked as assistant chief financial officer, controller, accounting manager, and provided other types of services for the hospital.

"It's a huge honor that Mr. May and Jerry (Johnson) and the Board of Directors has that much confidence in my abilities to be able to take on a role this big," Hagy said. "It's exciting also, too, because we're just growing so much. It's wonderful to be a part of something like that."

She loves her career.

When asked what makes her want to come to work everyday at PMC, she had a simple answer.

"I love working for a Christian organization and the wonderful people that I work with who surround me and prop me up," she said.

Over the past 12 years, Hagy has seen many changes and lots of advancements at PMC. She's planning to see several more.

"We want to continue, from both a quality and financial perspective, to be the great organization that we are," she said. "We've come a long way, but there are still some things that need to be addressed. I'm sure that there are some services that we still don't offer that we need to provide to the community. We hope to tap into those services and provide them to our community. This hospital means so much to me and to my family and to the community, I'm just really glad to have the opportunity to be a part of it. I hope I continue to make a difference here."

Jerry Johnson, chief operating officer at PMC, said Hagy's performance as assistant chief financial officer and interim chief financial officer made her the clear choice for the permanent position.

"She has a distinguished work record at Pikeville Medical Center," Johnson said. "Her promotion brings on many new challenges, but we feel Michelle is more than capable to do the job and help our organization reach new and exciting levels of success."

Unemployment benefits extended into 2010

FRANKFORT — Unemployment benefits set to expire Dec. 31 will continue into next year, keeping more than 32,000 Kentuckians from losing benefits, Gov. Beshear announced last week.

President Barack Obama signed legislation Dec. 19 extending the filing deadline for the federally funded jobless benefits from Dec. 31, 2009, to Feb. 28, 2010. The measure also continues the extra $25 a week benefits approved in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA).

Last week Gov. Beshear sent letters to members of Kentucky's Congressional delegation urging them to back any measure designed to further provide a temporary extension of certain unemployment benefits.

"This extension comes in the nick of time as many Kentuckians are exhausting their benefits and struggling to put food on the table and pay their bills," said Gov. Beshear. "I applaud Congress and President Obama for recognizing this critical need and will continue to advocate for Kentucky's unemployed workers during these challenging times."

Under the new law, people receiving unemployment benefits will continue to be enrolled in the next available benefit program through the end of February. Claimants do not have to apply for the extension. Those who are eligible will automatically continue to receive benefits as long as they keep filing weekly unemployment claims.

PIKEVILLE — Six days after dropping a home game to defending 15th Region champion Shelby Valley, Betsy Layne got back in the win column Monday during the Pikeville Invitational Tournament at the East Kentucky Expo Center. Betsy Layne rolled in the first quarter, outscoring Woodford County 15-7. The Bobcats' lead, however, proved to be less than safe. Woodford County outscored Betsy Layne 17-4 in the second quarter en route to a 24-19 lead at the intermission.

Key named Third Team All-State

by STEVE LEMASTER

PRESTONSBURG — Prestonsburg senior offensive lineman Zak Key was a standout for the Blackcats throughout the 2009 season. Key helped the Blackcats to a 13-1 record. The 2009 season included for Key and his Prestonsburg teammates a district championship, regional title and an appearance in the Class 2A state semifinals. Coaches took notice of Key's exceptional play along the Prestonsburg offensive line, voting him to the Courier-Journal All-State Football Team. Key was named Third Team All-State. He was the only Prestonsburg player to earn a spot on one of the three teams. High school coaches from around the state voted for the annual All-State honors.

Key, who was a leading blocker for a Prestonsburg offense that amassed over 5,000 yards in 14 games, will be the last player to wear the No. 52 jersey for the Prestonsburg High football program. Prestonsburg has retired the No. 52 jersey in honor of legendary Blackcat Set Branham.

Key is now busy on the hardwood with the Prestonsburg boys' basketball program. Prestonsburg senior quarterback Michael Burchett, recently named to the Herald-Leader's Class of the Commonwealth, was named honorable mention. Other honorable mention selections for the Blackcats were wide receiver Josh Blackburn, defensive lineman Alex Garner, linebacker Austin McKinney and defensive back Josh Crayton.

Allen Central's Logan Crowder (running back) and Hunter Crowder (linebacker), Betsy Layne's Casey Adkins (running back/linebacker) and South Floyd's David Stone (defensive lineman) were also honorable mention selections.

PARIS — Alexis DeRossett scored a game-high 22 points Monday but it wasn't enough to lift the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats over Lewis County in the Paris/Bourbon County Holiday Classic. Lewis County was able to outlast Prestonsburg in overtime, defeating the Lady Blackcats 50-44 for its first win.

The Lady Lions held Prestonsburg scoreless in the extra period, blanking the Lady Blackcats 6-0 in overtime.

Eagles edge South Dakota

TIMES STAFF REPORT

VERMILLION, S.D. — Senior Maze Stallworth hit a three-pointer with 1:45 to play and sunk a late free throw to pull Morehead State University past South Dakota 66-64 Monday night at the DakotaDome.

"I told someone before the game if we could get a one-pointer and get out of here with a win I'd take it," MSU coach Donnie Tyndall said. "They are a solid, well-coached team and this is a tough environment to play in."

The Eagles (6-6) trailed for most of the game, leading only briefly in the each half until Stallworth's triple fell following a key steal by senior Brandon Shingles just past mid court. South Dakota's Roman Gentry took then ensuing possession to the hoop, but sophomore Steve Peterson blocked his lay-up attempt and Shingles grabbed the rebound.

Tyler Cain, who had 17 points to lead South Dakota, had two free throws to tie it with three seconds left, but missed the first and made the second. Stallworth then swished a single free throw at the other end to win with a two-point game. Jake Thomas narrowly missed a desperation 3-pointer from 35 feet that would have won it for the Coyotes.

MSU junior Kenneth Faried, who tallied his seventh double-double to the year with 15 points and 15 rebounds, became the 29th player in MSU history to score 1,000 career points with his first field goal of the night.

The Coyotes shot 59.3 percent in the first half from the field, but just 28 percent in the second half. MSU also held USD to 16.7 percent from beyond the arc, including 1-of-10 in the second half.

"We were sluggish in the first half," Tyndall said. "We didn't guard well, but we turned around in the second half and did a nice job holding them to just three 3-pointers in the game."

Stallworth had 21 points and a career-high five steals, four of which came in the first half. Shingles finished with seven assists. Peterson had 12 points and seven rebounds and junior Dempete Harper scored 10 points.

The Eagles were whistled for 23 fouls, with Stallworth, Peterson and Harper each racking up four fouls and Faried fouling out with six minutes to play.

"I thought Maze had a great second half and I really thought Les Simmons got some big rebounds in Kenneth's absence," Tyndall said.

Thomas, Gentry and Kendall Cutler each finished with 10 points. Cain also had 15 rebounds.

The Eagles will resume Ohio Valley Conference play Saturday at 9 p.m. in an ESPN2 doubleheader with the women's team. Both Morehead State basketball teams (men's and women's) will face Austin Peay. Morehead State fans are encouraged to bring their own food to "Black Out" Johnson Arena. Fans wearing black will receive $1 general admission (all seating will be general admission). There will also be $1 hot dogs, popcorn and Pepsi products.

More Kentuckians turning to trapping

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

FRANKFORT — Thousands of Kentuckians once trapped raccoons, beavers, mink, foxes and other furbearing animals. Trapping provided our ancestors with clothing, food and a source of income.

But trapping fell by the wayside as people began moving from the farm to the city. Fur prices declined in the 1980s and thousands of people quit trapping. Kentucky trapping license sales plummeted from more than 7,000 in 1980 to about 600 in 1999.

Now, trapping is making a comeback.

"Back in the 1980s, a lot of people trapped for commercial reasons," said Laura Patton, furbearer biologist for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "Now people seem to be doing it for recreation, because they've retired and want a new hobby, or they're taking their grandkids out."

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife, the United Trappers of Kentucky and the Fur Takers of Kentucky are all working to promote trapping. The organizations work together to offer trapping workshops for beginners, put licensed trappers in contact with landowners experiencing depredation problems, and educate people about the importance of trapping. Kentucky's hunter education classes now include a trapping segment.

The efforts seem to be working. Despite continued low fur prices, the number of licensed trappers in Kentucky is steadily rising. More than 1,800 trappers bought licenses last season, triple the number in 1999 and a 19 percent increase over the previous year.

"I think now, more than ever, trappers are willing to mentor," said Stacy White, president of the United Trappers of Kentucky. "I think they realize if we don't teach it, it could pass on by without the next generation learning about this heritage."

White said trapping teaches a strong work ethic, commitment and responsibility — qualities that will serve kids their entire lives. Trappers must have extensive knowledge of wildlife and habitat in order to be successful, often spending days or weeks running a trap line.

"I think there's a sense of getting back to the real side of life, instead of all the electronics," said White. "That's one thing we push: Get out and do it. Don't watch somebody else do it on TV."

Trapping can be a fun way to learn about the outdoors for kids and adults alike. But trapping can also help solve problems caused by wildlife, or aid wildlife restoration efforts.

"Trapping is used for livestock depredation problems, aggressive species such as coyotes or beavers flooding roads, urban problems with raccoons and skunks, and other damage around marinas," Patton said. "We also use trapping for species restoration, such as with the river otter."

Non-lethal traps were used to capture river otters in Louisiana. The otters were then moved to Kentucky and released. During the state's peregrine falcon restoration, traps controlled predators at one of the released sites. Trapping is also used to capture animals for biological research.

For more information about learning to trap, go online to Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's website at fwky.gov. Under the "Hunting, Trapping & Wildlife" tab, click on "Furbearers and Trapping."

Trapping seasons are going on now throughout Kentucky. All trappers must purchase a Kentucky trapping license, including those trapping on their own land. Reduced-price trapping licenses are available for landowners and for youth trappers ages 15 and under. For complete trapping regulations, pick up a copy of the 2009-10 Kentucky Hunting & Trapping Guide, available online at fwky.gov and wherever licenses are sold.

Greetings arrive from around the world for 7-year-old hospice patient

by MARILYN LOESER

In West Jefferson, Ohio, mail volume has been heavier than usual — and not just because of the holidays. “Cards keep pouring in for the Elfrink family,” said Officer in Charge Danielle Eppley. The cards are mostly from strangers responding to an online message and e-mail request that said 7-year-old Nate Elfrink, a brain-cancer patient now in hospice care, would appreciate receiving Christmas cards. Rural Carrier Katy Handley is delivering thousands of cards and letters every day to Nate and his family. “It’s very touching to know in these difficult times people can still come together to show they care and show support,” Eppley said. When the cards started rolling in, Nate’s mother Dode McVey realized a simple online message she wrote updating her son’s condition and suggesting that he would appreciate cards had traveled around the world. Her message was forwarded and posted on Facebook and Twitter. According to a Columbus Dispatch article, Nate is growing weaker, so church volunteers now gather, open and sort cards. The cards, messages, personal notes and gifts have provided untold joy at a time when the family is hunkered down to cherish each day and pray for one another. Nate’s father Todd Elfrink even offered to pick up the cards and save Handley the trouble. “I told him no,” said Eppley. “This is the least we can do for them.” “Every card, every good thought, it all means so much,” Todd Elfrink said. An American soldier even called from an Army base in Afghanistan and asked about Nate’s condition and wanted to know of his wants and wishes. The call had a profound effect. “We should be thanking him for his service, not the other way around,” Todd Elfrink said. One day last week, Nate received more than 600 packages and 21 trays of letters. Todd Elfrink said another way to remember Nate would be to make a donation in his name to the Nationwide Children’s Hospital Foundation. “The entire community has been behind us from Day 1. Now, maybe we can help someone else,” he said. Donations earmarked for hospice in Nate Elfrink’s name can be made to Nationwide Children’s Hospital Foundation at nationwidechildrens.org or can be sent to the foundation at 700 Children’s Dr., Columbus, OH 43205.

Three deaths on Ky. roads during Christmas holiday

FRANKFORT Preliminary statistics indicate that three people died in three separate crashes on Kentucky roadways during the Christmas holiday enforcement period. Thursday, Dec. 24, through Sunday, Dec. 29, last year there were 10 highway fatalities during the same enforcement period. Two of the crashes involved motor vehicles and neither victim was wearing a seat belt. Single-fatality crashes occurred in Marshall and Shelby counties and the crash in Marshall involved the suspected use of alcohol. The other holiday crash involved an ATV in Pike County. The victim was not wearing a helmet at the time of the crash. Through Dec. 27, preliminary statistics indicate that 768 people have lost their lives on Kentucky roadways during 2009. This is 52 fewer fatalities than reported for the same time period in 2008. There were 626 motor vehicle fatalities and 346 of those victims were not wearing seat belts. Thirty-nine pedestrians and five bicyclists have been killed. Eighty fatalities involved a motorcycle and 17 fatalities involved an ATV. Seventy-three crashes involved a commercial motor vehicle. A total of 160 fatalities have resulted from crashes involving the suspected use of alcohol. Citizens can contribute to highway safety by reporting erratic drivers to the Kentucky State Police toll-free at 1-800-222-5555.

Kentucky Power customers and mutual assistance contractors: THANK YOU!

Dear customers and contractors:

On December 18-19 Kentucky Power Company was hit by one of the worst snow storms in our history. Wet, heavy snow fell across our 20-county service area and caused tremendous damage to power lines, utility poles, cross arms and other pieces of electrical equipment. This resulted in almost 80,000 customers losing power. Linemen with more than 30 years of experience said they had never seen such a storm ravage our system. Needless to say, we knew the repair effort was going to be tremendous — and it was.

With the help of more than 1,300 dedicated professionals — about 1,000 from outside the state — Kentucky Power worked to restore power as safely and efficiently as possible. In some cases, it took more than a week to get every customer’s power restored.

In the end, power has been restored, but not without the effort of those who worked tirelessly and unselfishly to assist us. To them — and you, our customers — we say, “Thank you!” We know the inconvenience of not having electricity, particularly during the holidays. Please know we worked hard to return your service as quickly and safely as possible. We appreciate your patience and understanding; we look forward to serving you in the future.

Sincerely,

Tim Mosher

RATE.

- Capacity Charge.
The Capacity Charge, stated in $/KW, will be determined from the auction price set in the Reliability Pricing Model (RPM) auction held by PJM for each PJM planning year. The auction price will be adjusted by the class average diversity factor (DF) derived from billing demands for the preceding year and the 5 highest coincident peaks established for the class at the time of the 5 highest PJM hourly values. The price will be further adjusted for demand losses (DL) and a factor to reflect the PJM-required reserve margin (RM).
Capacity Charge = RPM x DF x DL x RM
Where:
RPM = Results of the annual RPM auction price applicable to the AEP load zone = $9.464 $5.307/ KW-month
DF = Diversity Factor
C.I.P. - T.O.D. = 0.69 $0.72
C.P. = 0.69 $0.72
DL = Demand Loss Factor
RM = Reserve Margin = RPM clearing price reserve margin = 4.476 $1.765
 - Transmission Charge.
The Transmission Charge, stated in $/KW, will be determined from the Network Integration Transmission Service (NITS) rate for the AEP East Zone. The NITS rate will be adjusted by the class average diversity factor (DF) derived from billing demands for the preceding year and the coincident peak established for the class at the time of the highest AEP East Zone hourly value. The price will be further adjusted for demand losses (DL).
Transmission Charge = NITS x DF x DL
Where:
NITS = NITS Rate for the AEP East Zone = $4.7574 / KW 2.1116/KW

DL = Demand Loss Factor
 - Other Market Services Charge.
The Other Market Services Charge, stated in $/KWH is developed using all other PJM related market costs allocated to Kentucky Power Company from PJM not captured elsewhere. It is applied to all usage in excess of the customer-designated level for each billing period.
Secondary = $0.00295 / 0.002499 KWH
Primary = $0.002942 / 0.002404 KWH

 - Program Charge.
The Program Charge is $180 per month for billing, administration and communications required to implement and administer the Experimental Real-Time Pricing Tariff.

Primary = 4.06908 / 1.0570
Subtransmission = 4.04285 / 1.04278

More students in the region can apply for Rogers Explorers

Next summer, more students than ever in Southern and Eastern Kentucky will be able to develop critical leadership skills. Rogers Explorers will receive hands-on training in math and science, and prepare to become the region's next business leaders and entrepreneurs.

Thanks to a newly formed partnership with Eastern Kentucky University (EKU), The Center for Rural Development will expand its Rogers Explorers summer youth program and add a third host site for the program next July on EKU's Richmond campus. "We are excited to be able to offer additional opportunities to the youth of Southern and Eastern Kentucky by partnering with Eastern Kentucky University and expanding our Rogers Explorers program," according to Lonnie Lawson, president and CEO of The Center. "We will now be able to give more students than ever a chance to receive hands-on demonstrations in math and science skills on the campuses of three outstanding colleges."

The EKU expansion will allow The Center to place 90 Rogers Explorers—all rising ninth-grade students on three of Kentucky's leading college campuses next summer.

The program began in 2006 on the campus of the University of the Cumberlands in Williamsburg. The program expanded in summer 2009 to include a second host site on the campus of Lindsey Wilson College in Columbia.

"I am pleased that Rogers Explorers are visiting Eastern Kentucky University," ECU President Dr. Doug Whitlock said. "We believe in regional stewardship and this program is certainly a great example of that concept."

Rogers Explorers is open to current eighth-grade students with an interest in developing skills in leadership, technology, math, science, entrepreneurship, and community service. Explorers spend three-days and two nights on a college campus participating in hands-on activities and working with professional college instructors.

The 2010 summer dates for Rogers Explorers program are June 6-8, Lindsey Wilson College; June 9-11, University of the Cumberlands; and July 21-23, Eastern Kentucky University.

Insurance lawsuit settled

Times Staff Report

PAINTSVILLE — A settlement was reached and a trial, set in Johnson County, was canceled this week in a case where an insurance carrier had sued a homeowner claiming no coverage following a fire.

The trial, involving Teresa Hall and State Farm Insurance, had been set for Jan. 4 and involved the loss of her $400,000 Magoffin County home to fire on Feb. 8, 2007.

The insurance company filed a federal suit claiming they had no liability for coverage because the policy was improperly obtained. Following dismissal of the federal complaint, Hall filed her own lawsuit in Johnson County, because, she said, the policy had been purchased in Paintsville.

"It is good to finally get this over with after almost three years," Hall said. "It was tough getting sued instead of getting my fire loss covered. I had never had a fire loss before and hope I never do again."

The amount of the settlement was not made public.

will be open through Jan. 15. Grants are expected to be awarded in February. The individual project awards will range from $5,000 to a maximum of $10,000, and all projects must be completed within a period of six months.

"The grants awarded during the last funding cycle in 2008 made a significant impact on each of the counties and cities that received them, and served to underscore the critical importance of strategic thinking and planning regardless of the size of the community," Lawson said. "We fully expect this new funding will build on that beginning and impact our region to a much greater extent."

In 2008, the Center for Rural Development awarded a total of $170,000 in federally funded ARC mini-grants to 13 counties and cities in southern and eastern Kentucky. The funds were used to help advance local economic and community development plans.

In 2010, $145,000 in ARC mini-grant funding will be awarded to communities to encourage and support improved community strategic planning throughout the region.

Your Heart is Talking Are you Listening?

We all know heart attack is the No. 1 killer of men in the United States yet every man experiences heart attack in a different way. You don't have to have all of the symptoms—or even the most common ones—to be having a heart attack.

When it comes to your heart, you can be your own best friend ... but you have to listen.

• Chest Pain

This is the major sign of a heart attack for men. The pain is often described as crushing, burning, tightness or pressure. It often starts in the center of the chest and radiates outward. Seek care immediately.

• Shortness of Breath

An inability to breathe, or the feeling that you're just not getting enough air, is another important sign. Seek immediate medical attention.

• Upper Body Discomfort

Men who've had heart attacks also report feeling pain or discomfort in the arms, back, neck, jaw or stomach. You may have one or more of these symptoms. Or none.

• Other signs

A feeling of anxiousness, unexplained dizziness, persistent nausea and cold sweats are all signs that can occur before or during a heart attack.

Whether you're a man or a woman, if you have one or more symptoms of a heart attack, call 9-1-1 right away. When it comes to your heart, time is muscle. The quicker you act, the better your chances of a complete recovery.

The heart experts at King's Daughters stand ready 24/7. Our accredited Chest Pain Center averages a door-to-balloon time of just 52 minutes. That's significantly better than the national standard of 90 minutes. And we do every major heart procedure—and more of them than anyone in the region.

Your heart deserves expert care.

EVERYBODY'S SCIENCE

Raising a New Year's toast — to your body

by SANDY MILLER HAYS
AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

Another year gone by, another set of New Year's resolutions to be made — and probably broken — before January's date gets into double digits, right?

But here's a New Year's resolution that's easy to make, easy to keep, and will pay you big dividends not only in 2010, but for years to come: Drink more water!

Seriously, this is one of the best things you can do for your body. It can help you lose weight, for one thing (and I bet "lose a few pounds" is another of your New Year's resolutions). Quite often, when we think we're hungry, what our body's really craving is water. And drinking plenty of water will help you stave off the munchies.

Denying our bodies water is like refusing to put gasoline in a car; if you don't give your body the right kind of liquid fuel, it's not going to run very well. Every system in our bodies depends on water to do important tasks such as flushing out toxins, carrying nutrients to cells, and providing moisture for tissues.

Now, from studies funded by the Agricultural Research Service (ARS), comes another good reason to drink enough water: It'll improve your mood and your memory!

It's been known for a long time that dehydration can compromise physical performance. But the ARS-funded study offers new insights into how mild dehydration affects young athletes, and also the rest of us who perhaps think we're Atou busy@ to drink enough water every day.

The study involved about 30 male and female students, with an average age of 20, from Tufts University in Boston. Some students were in the Adhydration group, which meant they weren't given fluids during athletic activities, while others were given enough water during those activities.

After the athletic activities, the participants underwent cognitive tests, which included short-term memory and mood scales, among others.

The researchers found that dehydration was associated with negative mood — including fatigue and confusion — compared with the participants who received enough water. I don't know about you, but I already have enough aggravation in my daily life without making my mood any worse by a shortage of water! (And don't even get me started on the subject of whether I want to make my memory problems worse at this stage in my life.)

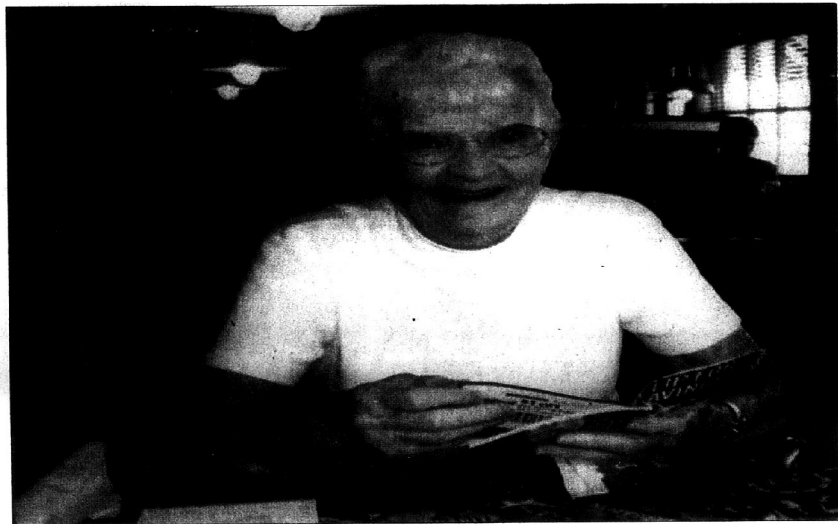

"How much" isn't always a simple question to answer when it comes to drinking water, because all sorts of factors can come into play: your level of physical activity, the climate in which you live, your health status, and whether you're pregnant or breastfeeding, to name but a few. But on the whole, an easy rule to remember is "8 by 8," meaning eight glasses of eight ounces of fluid.

I say "fluid" rather than "water" because lots of things can contribute to that total. Milk and juice are mostly water, so they count. So can coffee, tea, soda, and even beer and wine! But the lion's share of your liquid intake each day should be water. For a number of reasons: It's calorie-free, it's inexpensive, and it's readily available.

Here are two typical comments about water: "I don't like it" and "I drink when I feel thirsty." Guess what? By the time you feel thirsty, you could already be a little bit dehydrated. And according to some medical experts, as you get older, your body is less able to detect that you're dehydrated and thus to know that it's time to send your brain the message that you're thirsty. So you really shouldn't wait until your tongue is hanging out before you decide to have some water.

Finally, on the "I don't like it"

Vera Damron, 85, donated more than 1,200 of volunteer time to Appalachian Hospice Care this year. Damron was recently named Volunteer of the Year by the agency.

DEDICATION HONORED

Damron named Appalachian Hospice Volunteer of the Year

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

Despite being 85-years-old, Vera Damron is more than active. In fact, Damron donated more than 1,200 hours of volunteer time to Appalachian Hospice Care. Because of her work, Damron was named as the 2009 Volunteer of the Year by the group.

Damron, who was married to a native of Pike County before he passed away in 1992, said she wanted to do something for the residents of the mountains even though she lives in Florida. One of the things that Damron decided to do was to use her crocheting talents to create special double-layered lap covers for Appalachian Hospice Care.

"You can take the girl out of the mountains but you cannot take the mountains out of the girl," Damron said.

Damron, a native of Pennsylvania, moved to Florida five years ago, but she continues to return to her native home annually. During her life in Pennsylvania, Damron served as a special education teacher after her three children were of school age and worked in that position until she retired.

Damron's active life includes communicating with her family and friends on the computer, reading, doing crossword puzzles and walking two miles a day on her treadmill.

Another interesting fact about Damron is she takes no prescription medication and still drives herself around with no problems.

Sharon Branhm, CEO of Appalachian Hospice Care, joined the staff in recognizing Damron with an ornament in honor of what she contributes to the agency and to the patients who are served, noting that her lap covers will eventually become a memento of the families who receive them.

Local school administrators honored at tech education conference

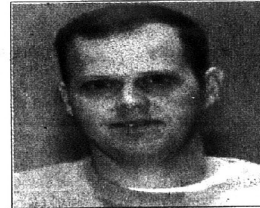

LOUISVILLE — Jeremy Chaffins, Randy Smith and Chris Shepherd from Floyd County Schools received their Apple Certified Systems Administrator (ACSA) certificate during a ceremony at the 2009 Datastream Technical Conference. The three were among a select group of Kentucky education technology professionals to earn the advanced designation.

Candidates completed five weeks of training classes and passed several exams demonstrating their knowledge of the computer systems and their ability to manage them in a large installation like a school district. The Floyd County School District now operates several hundred computers, which were donated to the schools by Datastream over the last four years.

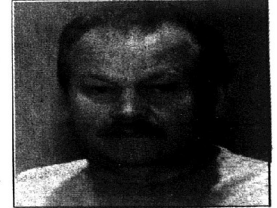

Datastream provides computers funded by coal severance to coal county schools to support better exposure to technology and 21st century learning opportunities. The computer processing power is shared with university researchers when students aren't using the machines. Scientists at the University of Louisville James Graham Brown Cancer Center access the computers to look for potential life-saving cancer drugs.

In addition to learning more about the results of recent cancer research, the two-day event gave educators from 33 districts a chance to share information and learn more about how to support classroom teachers using computers. Representatives from the University of Louisville and Morehead State University outlined special scholarship programs for students in participating

Datastream districts. "With the dramatic increased use of computers and technology in today's schools it is important to have qualified individuals," said Datastream CEO Brian Gupton. "The ACSA professionals make a difference for the kids in Kentucky every day."

My personal trick is to get a big glass of water with plenty of ice (so it's really crisp and appealing), throw in a good splash of lemon or lime juice, and a single packet of my favorite no-calorie sweetener. Give me a glass of water dolled up that way, and I'll slurp down 16 ounces just like it's my favorite soda. So here's to the New Year ... and let's make it a wet one!

STERDAYS

(Items taken from The Floyd County Times, 10, 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 70 years ago.)

Ten Years Ago (Dec. 24, 26 and 29, 1999)

A deep cleaning is proposed for the county in the coming year. Y2K will be a clean2K. Hopefully, Members of the Floyd Fiscal Court met in a special meeting to pass resolutions of new audits, proposals, bids, and to act on cleaning up more of the county's trash.

John George of Cliff said she felt as if she were living the words to the old poem, "Twas the Night Before Christmas." George said about 2 a.m., Monday morning, she heard on her lawn "such a clatter that she sprang from her bed to see what was the matter." But she didn't see a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer, but saw seven large reindeer kin—olk—playing havoc with her Christmas lawn decorations.

The death announcement says that Danny Justice Jr., died on July 10, 1995, at the age of 18 years and 18 days, but his life and spirit are kept alive in the bodies of others. This became possible when Danny's parents, agreed to donate his organs. Danny Justice Jr. was killed in a truck accident near Hi Hat, when he fell out of a truck and was taken to the University of Kentucky Medical Center, where his mother was told about the organ donor program after being informed her son was dead. 63-year-old Barbara Kelly, who doctors said, had about a week to live without a new heart, was blessed to receive Danny's heart and now is doing well. She recently sent a letter of gratitude to the Justice family.

Santa took time off from his busy schedule to visit several Floyd County children this week. Officers from the Prestonsburg Police Department played Santa for 10 children from all parts of the county, providing them with a very Merry Christmas.

Terry Dotson, chairman of the Floyd County Board of Education, has reconsidered his decision to step down from the board, and has asked state Commissioner of Education Wilmer Cody to disregard his resignation request. In a letter, dated October 4, Dotson told Cody, "I feel it is in the best interest of everybody involved if I tender my resignation to you effective December 31, 1999."

From the outset negotiations between Highlands Regional Medical Center and its union workers appeared more likely headed to conflict rather than compromise. The old contract between the two expired on July 11, and the union threatened a strike for August 2 if a new contract was not negotiated.

As Floyd County approaches the new year it closes the books on a turbulent year among county officials, with old guard occupants of the county clerk's and circuit clerk's offices stepping down—the former amid controversy—and the sheriff's office facing issues of ethics that took months to resolve. Problems in the county clerk's office from the previous year spilled into 1999, as an indictment against county clerk Carla Robinson Boyd was handed down in November of 1998, a charge of which she was later convicted.

One of the most intriguing stories of 1999 involved two children living in the Mud Creek area. In August, 14-year-old Clifford Daniels, a student at Betsy Layne High School suddenly lost his life to a case of bacterial meningitis. Jessica Bentley, a Betsy Layne Elementary student, contracted the disease, almost one month after Daniels died. Several cases of viral meningitis broke out across the county, adding to public fears. After several weeks of lower than normal attendance residents in the southern part of Floyd County allowed their children to return to school, when no new cases of bacterial meningitis were found.

John Herald, a 28-year employee of Prestonsburg Community College, was transferred to the KCTCS office, and Brenda Music, who worked for Prestonsburg Community College for 27 years, was given leave with pay. Herald was dean of business affairs, while music was director of financial aid.

Paul Walton Fanning of Alexander City, Alabama, was hired as the new superintendent of Floyd County schools. The board approved the contract for Fanning in late June.

Kentucky State Police has a new weapon against crime. A new digital fingerprint scanning device is now available statewide. Getting a sign fixed and helping a county school was on the minds of Prestonsburg City Council members. Monday, at the short agenda gave the council much to discuss. The council discussed at length the possibility of helping Prestonsburg High School get a new athletic complex.

A late night visitor to Hardee's in Prestonsburg apparently tried to get a little extra gift from Santa. An unknown woman came through the drive-thru around 2:30 a.m., Monday morning, trying to pass a counterfeit $100 bill, said store manager Tracy Horton.

On Monday, Jimmy Goble of Stratton Branch was cleaning up the area around the old lumber yard at the old entrance to Goble-Roberts Addition when a Columbia gas line was ruptured. The break was made scarier due to the fact that it was located near the controlled burning of an old sawmill. Prestonsburg Police and Fire Departments closed off the area until the rupture was corrected and the fire no longer posed a problem.

A burglar or burglars were thwarted in a Christmas Day incident that ended in a local restaurant being vandalized. Sunday morning traffic into the Dairy Queen at Martin may not have seen the evidence, but on the afternoon of Christmas day the signs of a burglary attempt were everywhere. Would-be thieves entered the restaurant by breaking the glass entrance doors.

Judge-elect David Allen Barber of Prestonsburg, who, in November, defeated John Gardner of Paintsville, to earn a seven-year term on the State Court of Appeals, will be sworn into his new office next week. Barber will represent the seventh judicial district along with Sara Combs of Stanton, who was re-elected to her first full term without opposition.

There died: Zella Holbrook, 82, of Columbus, Ohio, formerly of Martin, Tuesday, December 21, at Mt. A period of freezing and subzero temperatures, extending over the past six days, has left Floyd County residents wondering if they're living in eastern Kentucky or the North Pole. Temperatures have caused a water crisis throughout the county and much of the surrounding region. In response to water cutoffs, members of the local National Guard were activated to bring in water to residents of Mud Creek and Little Mud Creek areas. Since its Dec. 14 showing, the broadcast of "48 Hours" on CBS, which focused national attention on Floyd County's economic and social ills, has caused a statewide uproar. From Gov. Wallace Wilkinson's office to the average Floyd County citizen.

The Betsy Layne Volunteer Fire Department has received notice that on Jan. 1 its classification will be upgraded to 4/9, meaning its performance has resulted in lower insurance costs for district residents.
