Harold man charged with cruelty to horses

by TORI HUNT
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

HAROLD — A man from Harold is being charged with two counts of cruelty to animals.

Floyd County Animal Control Officer Warren Jarrell found three horses on July 29, and reported that Don McKinney, 63, allegedly left them when he moved. According to Jarrell's report, McKinney "left two horses tied to a fence without shelter, food and water, and left another loose."

Cruelty to animals is a class A misdemeanor that punishable by up to one year in jail. McKinney is scheduled for an arraignment on Oct. 20.

Cases of animal cruelty are becoming commonplace in this area, such as the recent case against Wayne Clark for neglecting a mule.

Attempts to reach Animal Control Officer Warren Jarrell were unsuccessful.

Coal miners and family members, along with other supporters, made their way from Union Station in Washington, D.C. Wednesday for a rally on Capitol Hill. Some 2,000 people from Kentucky and surrounding Appalachian states, turned out for the event.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — As some 2,000 supporters of the coal industry walked from Union Station to Capitol Hill Thursday, many drivers waved them by, stopping as coal miners made their way across the street in mining caps and clutching signs.

Coal miners were in town and that could only mean one thing. It was time to rally. Many of the supporters were in Russell Park on Capitol Hill by 8 a.m. Wednesday morning, though the event itself would not get started for nearly another two hours.

This afforded plenty of time for those attending to talk, but coal miners along for the trip had been instructed not to speak to the media as organizers hoped to keep participants' focus on the mission at hand — to, in some part, educate lawmakers about the true importance of coal.

"We would like to educate the people that vote on this to give them some knowledge and know just how vital this is and how ridiculous some of the things they want to pass is," said Linda Hall, with Coal Operators and Associates. "A bottle of water does not meet the water quality standard that they have exacted on the coal

Also joining supporters on Capitol Hill Wednesday was Gary Fields, of Raccoon in Pike County, a veteran coal

Virgie man pleads guilty to bat attack

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — A Virgie man will spend at least the next 8-and-a-half years in prison after pleading guilty to a first-degree assault charge for using a baseball bat to attack a woman in February.

Jordan L. Holbrook, 24, pleaded guilty to the assault charge in exchange for a sentence of 10 years in prison. Holbrook must serve at least 85 percent of the sentence before he can apply for parole.

When Holbrook was arrested, Assistant County Attorney Jimmy "Blue" Marcum said that Holbrook broke in to the Mud Creek home of a girl he had dated for a short time and attacked her. Marcum said the girl's mother arrived and allowed the girl to escape, and that is when Holbrook attacked the woman with a bat.

Marcum said the woman had skull fragments in her hair when she talked to the police.

"It's a sentence we are happy with and the victim is satisfied with that as well," said Commonwealth's Attorney Brent Turner. "She is doing pretty good now considering the seriousness of her injuries. It could have been much worse. She could have died."

After his arrest, Holbrook, who was jailed on a $1 million cash bond, was originally charged with attempted rape, second-degree disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, second-degree burglary and fourth-degree assault.

In Memory of Michael Joe Hicks

Perhaps you sent a lovely card, or sat quietly in a chair. Perhaps you sent a funeral spray, if so, we saw it there. Perhaps you spoke the kindest words, as any friend could say. Perhaps you were not there at all, just thought of us that day.

Whatever you did to console our hearts, we thank you so much, whatever the part.

Guest View

Going nowhere

OK, ladies, today's Our View is for you. Clip it out, stash it in your purse, and the next time your husband is driving in unfamiliar territory and you see a landmark for a third time, pull it out and let him have it.

British insurance company Sheilas' Wheels has confirmed in a study what you women already knew: Male drivers would rather steer their car around aimlessly than to stop and — perish the thought — ask for directions. According to the survey, the average male drives 276 miles each year while lost, therefore wasting time, money and precious energy but foregoing the imagined indignity of stopping and asking directions. Over the course of a normal lifetime, that adds up to about $3,100 that could have gone to your child's education, a second home at the beach or a muscle car.

The study found that 26 percent of men will give themselves at least 30 minutes to get re-oriented before asking for directions, and that 12 percent never ask at all. The study didn't explain what happens to those who never ask, but we will assume that they all eventually find their way.

That compares with 37 percent of female drivers who stop and ask directions as soon as they realize they are lost. The study found that 74 percent of women are quick to ask for directions, apparently understanding — correctly, we believe — that doing so is a sign of strength, and not weakness.

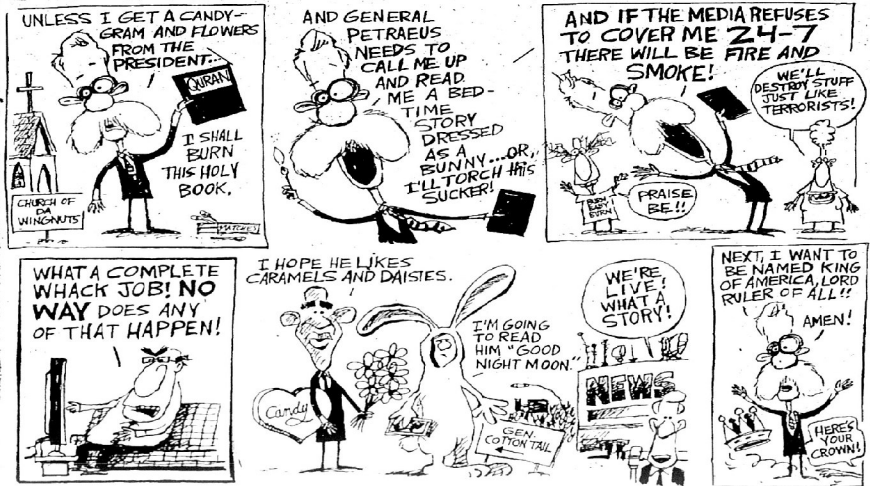

So what does this say about men and women? We will take the cowardly way out on that and allow you to make your own determinations.

But we will leave you with this: Buried deep in that survey was this nugget for all the guys: Female drivers on average drive 256 miles each year while lost, just 20 miles fewer than men, suggesting — if we should be so bold — that given their eagerness to ask for directions, women must be more likely to lose their way while driving.

Now today's Our View has something for everybody.

Our advice: If lost, quickly ask for directions. It saves time, money and energy — and it's an admission of nothing, except good sense.

Setting the record straight

by DONALD KAUL
OTHERWORDS

Increasingly we live in a world — alas — of deliberate misrepresentation and mischaracterization. Or you could call them lies.

Thank God for mainstream, fair-minded journalists like myself, who care for little but truth, justice and setting the record straight. In that spirit, I offer up the following falsehoods, believed to be true by many of the bewildered among us, along with corrections.

■ A group of radical Muslims is planning to build a mosque at ground zero in New York as a taunt to survivors of those who died there.

That might be true, if it were a just a mosque and if it were at ground zero.

The project in question is a high-rise community center that, while it will house a room for Muslim prayer, will also have meeting rooms, a gym and a swimming pool. What it is, basically, is a building.

Nor is it "at" ground zero. The site is two blocks away and around a corner. When protestors gather at ground zero to wave signs and shout, they are out of sight of the proposed "mosque."

As far as the affront to survivors, I would think that to the 9/11 memorial will find enough to give them pain without worrying about a building two blocks away. Neither is the group planning the community center "radical" in any accepted sense of the word. The chief imam involved in the project is celebrated and revered throughout the Muslim world as a moderate and a man of peace.

■ President Obama is a Muslim. No he's not.

■ President Obama is planning a stealth tax hike to fund his socialistic, budget-busting schemes. Not really. What he is planning is to sit in the back of the canoe and let his hand trail in the water while the sun sets on the Bush tax cuts of a decade earlier.

In doing so he is merely affirming the wisdom of Bush and his advisers who decreed that their tax cuts would expire after 10 years. (They did this because it was obvious that if the cuts lasted any longer, they would sink the federal budget under a weight of debt too horrible to contemplate.)

As a sop to the hard-pressed middle class, still laboring to recover from Bush's Great Recession, Obama has agreed to renew their tax cuts, which didn't amount to a lot anyway. The people who make $250,000 a year or more, however, will return to the happy days of Ronald Reagan, when income taxes were higher.

■ Mr. Obama is not a native-born American. Yes he is.

■ The Left Wing has a stranglehold on the government and it is the mission of the conservative majority to "take our country back" and rescue future generations from Socialist Hell. No, no, and no. Strictly speaking, there is no Left Wing in this country, certainly not a Left like they have in Europe, where they're still fighting the class struggle. The class struggle here is over. The rich guys won.

Actually, there is not even that much of a Right Wing (although you'd never know it from the commotion they raise).

The great majority of Americans belong to the Party of Indifference. People here don't really care much about politics.

You see it in our voter turnout, which is abysmally low, and in the lack of participation in local affairs. Reality television is so much more entertaining.

What we have in place of ideology is single-issue politics.

Abortion, gay marriage, merit pay for teachers, stem cell research, free trade, illegal immigration, guns — everybody's got a favorite issue, at least one, and that's what drives people to the polls (when it does).

Concepts like "civic virtue" and "the greater good of society" are on life support. In many instances they are viewed as communist buzzwords. One is reminded of the words of Yeats:

"The best lack all conviction, while the worst are full of passionate intensity."

There, I hope that clears up any confusion you might have.

Volleyball: Pikeville falls to Mountain State

TIMES STAFF REPORT
PIKEVILLE — The Pikeville College volleyball team returned home Tuesday night but suffered a 3-1 loss to Mountain State University. Visiting Mountain State won the hard-fought match, prevailing 25-19, 20-25, 25-16, 25-19. In an attempt to even the match after four games, Pikeville rallied to tie the game at 16 before Mountain State scored four straight points to pull away for the win. Pikeville (3-7) got nine kills from senior Leah Harris in the loss. Freshman Kelsey Prevot had 14 assists, while sophomore Brooke Parrott followed with 11. The Bears had only two service aces in the match, both coming from freshman Kelsey Jones, a first-year college player out of Allen Central High School. On the defensive side of the net, Kayla Hatton had 29 digs and 24 receptions. Junior Shelbi White led the team with 29 receptions and added 17 digs. Jones had 21 receptions. Pikeville finished with four solo blocks and four block assists. Freshman Ashley Morgan had two solo blocks and an assist.

P'burg, Pikeville due to meet on gridiron tonight

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

Tonight in the seat of Floyd County, Prestonsburg will host Pikeville.

So what, you ask? What's the big deal, you say? Well, it has nothing to do with the "rivalry," which at this point may or may not actually exist between the once very formidable foes.

Tonight's game is particularly noteworthy because Prestonsburg will reach the midpoint of its regular season with it, and it will mark the first time all season the Blackcats have played at Josh Francis Field.

And that, in my estimation, is fairly remarkable. In a couple of ways.

The fact that John DeRossett's team has managed to open 3-1 in four games played largely in the houses of tradition mountain powerhouses may tell us all we need to know about the level of talent he has wearing the red and black this season.

I began looking into this week's schedule with the idea that for some of the schools in the traditional 15th Region, tonight's game would already bring them halfway through their schedule. That amazes me.

They say that time seems to move very quickly as you age, but I simply cannot believe tonight will bring us to the middle of football's regular season already. It astonishes me.

What's more amazing is how many of our schools actually took the option of playing in what is known as "Week Zero." And on top of it, of the ones who have none of them have taken the off week playing that opening weekend affords.

Consider:
— Johnson Central will take a 3-1 record to Log Mountain tonight to play Bell County.

— Magoffin County is looking for its fourth win in five games when it travels to Betsy Layne.

— Sheldon Clark is 1-3, having played three-win Collins, Breathitt County and Johnson Central already. After tonight's game with Lawrence County, the Cards meet up with Prestonsburg next week.

— Paintsville is also 1-3, and tonight hosts Allen Central.

— Shelby Valley is another 1-3 team and tonight travels to Virginia to play Clintwood.

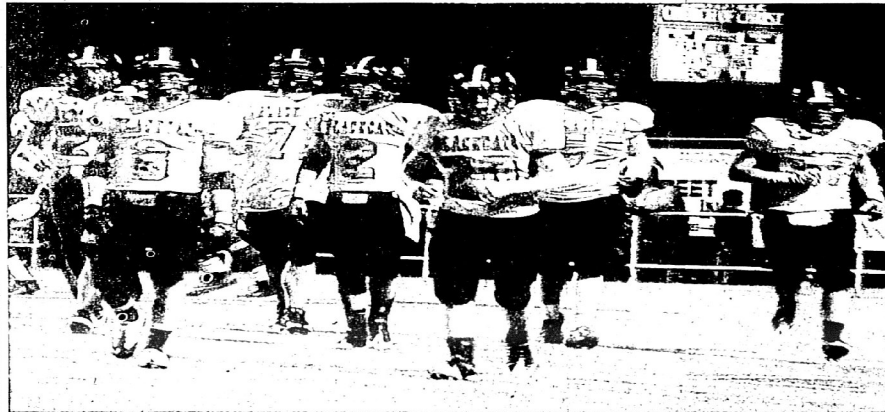

— Phelps is 1-3 and also plays a Virginia school when it hosts Twin Valley.

— Belfry stands 2-2 and tonight entertains Whitley County.

Of the 14 schools who play in the 15th Region when things are normally aligned, that makes eight of them reaching the middle of their season with tonight's game. I'm still completely stunned we've moved on with the season this rapidly.

Maybe if I was one of those players I wouldn't be. Or if I was a member of the Howard elevated to Morehead State assistant coach; completes staff

TIMES STAFF REPORT

MOREHEAD — Morehead State University men's basketball coach Donnie Tyndall announced Wednesday that he has elevated Adam Howard to the position of Assistant Men's Basketball Coach.

"Adam is a very hard worker who played for a great high school coach in Mike Flynn and a great college coach in Darrin Horn. He has a great disposition and personality which I feel will help us tremendously in recruiting," Tyndall said. "His relationships with our players are fantastic and most important, Adam is a team guy. He is willing to accept any responsibility or complete any task he is given. We are glad to have Adam on our staff and I know our players are excited for Adam as well."

Howard, who spent last season as a graduate manager, is in his second year with Eagle basketball. He will be responsible for assisting with all aspects of the program, including practice and game day preparation and coaching, recruiting and scouting. Howard will also handle team travel.

"I am very thankful for the opportunity coach Tyndall has given me to join his coaching staff. He has been a great role model and mentor for me in the starting blocks of my career," Howard said. "The OVC is one of the best mid-major conferences in the country and I am honored to be at Morehead State and to coach at this level."

Howard was a four-year letterman at Western Kentucky for current South Carolina head coach Darrin Horn. While at WKU, Howard was part of three post-season appearances: the 2004-05 NIT Second Round (24-9), the 2005-06 NIT First Round, where the Hilltoppers lost to eventual champions South Carolina (23-8), and the 2007-08 NCAA Tournament (12 seed) Sweet 16. That Sweet 16 team beat Drake in the first round and San Diego in the second round before falling to Final Four participant UCLA in the Sweet 16. He was a part of 96 wins in four seasons and was awarded the Danny Rumph Most Outstanding Teammate Award for three seasons (2005-06, 2006-07, 2007-08) after the passing of his teammate and friend Danny Rumph (who passed from Cardiomyopathy, which caused the failure during a pick up game in his hometown of Philly) at the conclusion of Howard's freshman season.

Following college, Howard worked as a host to the University of New Mexico in the Cancun Challenge 2008-09, where he first met coach Tyndall. In the summer of 2009, prior to joining the MSU staff, he worked as a counselor at the Freshman All-American Camp for the top 150 rising freshmen in the country. Howard also assisted on the Derek Smith All-Stars 16U AAU team in the summer of 2009.

A graduate of Paul G. Blazer High School in near-by Ashland, Howard earned a Bachelor's Degree in Mass Communication from Western Kentucky.

Howard's elevation completes Tyndall's staff for the 2010-11 season. Other staff changes have included the hiring of Wade Connor as associate head coach and the addition of Joseph Price as an assistant coach. Former MSU standout and Tyndall's first recruit at Morehead State, Maze Stallworth has joined the program as the graduate manager.

UK FOOTBALL: McDermott, Roark named game captains

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LEXINGTON — Kentucky junior defensive tackle Luke McDermott and junior wide receiver Matt Roark will be the game captains for the Akron contest Saturday at Commonwealth Stadium, University of Kentucky head coach Joker Phillips has announced.

Game captains are usually chosen on the basis of performance in the previous game. McDermott, a native of Louisville, turned in a stellar performance against Western Kentucky University as he recorded two tackles, 0.5 tackles-for-loss and his first career interception. The interception came at a key time in UK's 63-28 win as the Wildcats scored two plays later to take a lead they would not relinquish. "The guy (Luke McDermott) earned the right to be the starter," Phillips said after the game Saturday. "He just continues to make the play. I didn't see who it was that made the interception so I asked. Somebody said, 'Luke.' He's just all over the place. Maybe he's becoming the Randall Cobb of defense."

Roark also was impressive in the game against WKU, making three receptions for 65 yards. The native of Acworth, Ga., has made six catches this season, including a 40-yard reception against WKU, the longest of his career. Roark is also becoming a key part of UK's special teams' effort, gaining two special teams tackles against the Hilltoppers on Saturday.

"One thing Matt is doing, for us, he's one of the guys playing well on special teams," Phillips said in his weekly news conference Monday. "He was the special teams player of the week for us and he has caught four or five passes. Three of those have been on big plays that he's made on scrambles. That's what I'm proud to see him do."

McDermott and Roark will join permanent captains Randall Cobb and DeQuin Evans at the pregame coin toss.

Cat Walk at 4:45 p.m.: Fans wishing to participate in the Cat Walk, cheering the Wildcats when they enter the stadium Saturday, should be at Gate One of Commonwealth Stadium 4:45 p.m.

Gridiron

media covering games each Friday night I'd have a better understanding. It just seems mighty fast to me to be halfway through the season.

But let's get back to Prestonsburg for a moment. This is certainly not a staff that shies away from football powerhouses. The only team they've played to this point that you wouldn't consider a traditional power has been Bath County, winless at 4-0, and that is also the only district game they've played to this point.

The other three opponents have been Belfry, and I think we all know the kind of program Philip Haywood and company have built on Pond Creek, along with Paintsville, which has among its former coach one of the Top 100 winningest leaders in Walter Brough, along with Breathitt County. And Mike Holcomb's program takes a backseat to nobody's.

Clearly at this point, Paintsville isn't what it once was. The Tigers have won only once under the leadership of Jason Kinner this season, although in addition to Prestonsburg they've also played the likes of Lawrence County and that three-win Magoffin County club in an effort to prepare itself for their Single-A district.

But mention you've already played Belfry and Breathitt and you're giving yourself a built-in excuse if you open the season with a couple in the loss column.

To this point, however, not only are the Blackcats 3-1 against that very impressive schedule but also they've outscored their opponents 2:1 (153 for, 75 against), and that latter figure includes the 49 Breathitt posted two weeks ago.

Tonight's meeting with Pikeville brings a 2-1 club to Francis Field that has faced one challenge this season. In it, they knocked off Boyd County 16-7. Boyd remains winless through four games this season, and indeed, the Pikeville game was the only one decided by fewer than 28 points.

But other than that the Panthers were drilled by Danville — no shame there — and last week had their way with Phelps.

It will be interesting to see how this one plays out. It's also worth noting that the only other time this regular season Prestonsburg will leave town is when it visits Shelby Valley in the next-to-last week of the season.

I have a feeling that had John DeRossett had his way, he wouldn't have opened with four straight road games. But now that the stretch is in the rear-view mirror and the team is 3-1, the rest of the grid must seem awfully pleasing regardless of the competition.

Few teams I've ever known would rather play on the road than at home. With four straight now coming to the Blackcats, they have to feel awfully good about their chances of adding a few more home dates to the schedule once the postseason begins come November.

A stellar field of 134 competitors signed in for the $43,000-to-win crown jewel event at the 1.2-mile, high-banked speedway. Kinzer started off the weekend in impressive fashion, laying down the 54th-fastest lap during the two-round qualifying session Friday night. Dinners make a Difference

FAMILY FEATURES

Whether you're sitting down to a macaroni and cheese dinner or a three-course meal, the simple act of eating dinner with your kids has a powerful impact on the whole family.

Almost two decades of research by The National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse (CASA) at Columbia University has consistently found that the more often kids eat dinner with their families, the less likely they are to smoke, drink or use drugs.

Studies show that kids who have family dinner five times a week are:

- 45 percent less likely to drink and 66 percent less likely to do drugs.
- More likely to get A's and B's in school.
- More likely to think their parents are proud of them.

"The power of the family dinner comes not from the food on the plate but from who's at the table and what's happening there. The emotional and social benefits that come from family dinners are priceless," said Kathleen Ferrigno, CASA's Director of Marketing and head of CASA Family Day — A Day to Eat Dinner with your Children. "Having dinner as a family is one of the easiest ways to create routine opportunities for parental engagement and communication, two keys to raising drug-free children."

Even with busy schedules, it's easier than you think to have a regular family meal. Here are some tips from CASA and Stouffer's:

- Plan meals together.
- Make a date — schedule it on the calendar.
- Cook together.
- Unplug during dinner and talk.

Save time making dinner with family-friendly entrées such as Stouffer's Easy Express Cheesy Garlic Lasagna. This dish of freshly made pasta layered between mozzarella cheese, seasoned beef and a rich garlic tomato sauce is ready in only 18 minutes. While it's cooking, make a Creamy Parmesan Romaine salad and a simple Fruit Salad for a delicious dinner the whole family will enjoy.

Remember, dinner makes a difference, so be sure to take your seat at the dinner table often. For more tips on raising drug-free kids and creative ideas for family dinners, visit these websites: www.letsfixdinner.com and www.casafamilyday.org.

about the current climate and the coal industry and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and its push for new regulations, lawmakers and President Obama's administration. As one of several charter buses pulled into Union Station, Fields explained where many of his songs came from. "I'm a coal miner of 38 years underground and I know what coal mining is and I respect them," said Fields. "Miners don't get the respect they deserve and they keep this country going. Without coal, the country would be idle. Everything would have to shut down." Fields said he believes that lawmakers and politicians are distanced from the real work of mining coal. "I made a living at it," Fields said, who retired after an injury in 2006. "I put my son through college coal mining and I know how coal miners live. These people that make these laws have no idea what a coal miner really is." In Russell Park, a group of several women wearing mining caps sat up tables along the sidewalk. One of those women, Martha Davis, a Hippo resident and owner and operator of MD Trucking, said the situation is difficult, but simple. "All of us, coal, is getting a bad rap, period. We're getting pushed out." Another supporter, Amanda Henderson, of Harold, talked of how exclusively her state and county depend on the coal industry. "This keeps thousands of people with jobs," said Henderson. "Without those jobs in Eastern Kentucky and all over, it would be a ghost town because we don't have a thing to fall back on." Before speakers took to a stage set up just in front of the Capitol Building, Haven King, of Hazard, took the microphone and started a back-and-forth chant with the crowd. "That's weak!" King would exclaim after each shout from the crowd. "We can do better!" Both U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell and U.S. Rep. Hal Rogers were on hand for the rally, with McConnell directly referencing the other side of the aisle and President Obama on the issue of coal. "Coal is under assault in this town," McConnell said above the crowd's cheers. "This administration and Congress have been the most anti-coal in the history of this country and we must continue to keep up the fight." Rogers took the opportunity while addressing the crowd to announce that he and 11 others in Congress had introduced legislation,

Continued from p1 HR 6113 or the Electric Reliability Protection Act, that he said would function to stop further EPA regulations. "This bill would stop the EPA's power grab and put Appalachian coal miners back to work," Rogers said. "Today we are sending a message to unelected bureaucrats that they will not regulate us out of business." The newly introduced HR 6113 would, if passed, prohibit the EPA from executing new regulatory guidance until going through the formal rule-making process which would include public comment. The legislation, according to Rogers, was prompted by EPA's recent implemented standards for surface mining across six Appalachian states, including, of course, Kentucky.

Cheresh Abra Shepherd and Christopher Eugene Prater would like to announce their upcoming wedding. Cheresh is the daughter of Karen Shepherd and the late Russell Shepherd of David. She is a 2002 graduate of Prestonsburg High School, a 2009 graduate from the radiology program at Southeast Community College and 2010 from Washburn University where she holds a degree in radiation therapy. She is currently employed at Highlands Cancer Center. Chris is the son of Eugene and Janet Fay Prater, of Prestonsburg. He is a 1999 graduate of Prestonsburg High, the University of Kentucky with a BS in mining engineering in 2005, and the University of Charleston with an MBA in 2008. He is currently employed at Massey Energy. The couple will wed on Saturday, Oct. 2, at 3:30 at Auxiler Freewill Baptist Church.

mass and bio-fuels business community shouldn't miss the chance to learn about Kentucky's bio-energy potential and resources available to them," said Gov. Steve Beshear. "This conference will focus on how Kentuckians can take advantage of the many resources that are available to those who look to lead an exciting and dynamic industry." The agenda for the symposium includes presentations on Gov. Steve Beshear's Executive Task Force on Bio-mass and Bio-fuels Development, the impact of federal mandates on Kentucky's bio-mass potential, the integration of energy and agriculture, the Cabinet for Economic Development's small business development programs,

Continued from p1 and more. Floyd County Judge-Executive R.D. "Doc" Marshall and Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin are scheduled to speak at the event. "The importance of bio-mass and bio-fuel is vital to our area," Marshall said. "We can take our waste and turn it into something. We can convert cooking oils, certain types of grain and other materials in a fuel. We can rid our county of unsightly garbage and help create energy." Attendance to the symposium is free and lunch will be provided. Pre-registration is required. To pre-register, contact Terry Trimble by email at terry.trimble@bigsandy.org, or call (606) 886-2374.

'I Sell the Dead'

A pair of grave robbers find out that it's more profitable to sell the living dead than your standard corpses in this sharp horror effort that was bankrolled by the folks at The Independent Film Channel. Times sure have changed. It used to be that

"Independent Film" was short for artsy and self-indulgent drack that you had to say you liked lest your girlfriend think you a brute. Nowadays this situation has improved tremendously. Major films are so expensive to mount (thanks a lot James Cameron) that the independents have become a stomping ground for all manner of cool flicks. Your best bet for interesting genre flicks (like crime dramas, action flicks and even horror) are now the independents. At a time when MGM can't afford to make a new "James Bond" film, there are at least a dozen genre flicks getting cranked out every month with recognizable casts and a better-than-average look, thanks to the digital age. This film manages to look like it cost millions, but it didn't and the budget they did have went to

In the good, old days, fall never arrived later than Sept. 21, swept in by an old-fashioned equinoctial storm. CHAMBER NEWS

Chamber holds contest, recruitment drive

Doesn't it seem like time just flies by? Folks at the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce are no different. They're always racing around from one project to the next. That's why they'll be having a membership drive starting Sept. 20 and going until Oct. 1. During that time, the Chamber will be "Racing to Increase Chamber Membership." Executive Directory Mandy Stumbo said the Chamber has several fun activities planned, including a clue-based race to identify Chamber members that will have a grand-prize winner and a Phone-A-Thon on Wednesday, Sept. 22, from 9 a.m. to noon, at Big Sandy Community and Technical College in the Gearheart Conference Room, second floor of the Student Center. Stumbo said volunteers are needed. "I want to ask all Chamber members, past and present members of the Board of Directors and Chamber Ambassadors to volunteer some time to help make this a great success," Stumbo said.

During this two-week period, all Chamber members are asked to do a Racing-themed display about the Chamber in your place of business. Any Chamber member who decorates by doing a display needs to contact the Chamber by Wednesday, Sept. 29, to insure that your business is judged. Stumbo said there will be prizes given for first and second place. Benefits of joining the Chamber of Commerce are many, said Stumbo, citing networking, event promotion and increased respectability as immediate benefits. Any businesses or individuals who are interested in joining the Chamber can call 791-4008 during this blitz and a supporter of the Chamber will be waiting to take that call. Chamber supporters will also be calling potential chamber members regarding joining the Chamber. Please call the Chamber if you can volunteer your time to assist during the phone-a-thon by help-

Sizemore returns to region for 'Bluegrass and Barbecue'

by JARRID DEATON
 FEATURES WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — Charlie Sizemore, a native of Magoffin County, will return home to eastern Kentucky for a special concert at the Mountain Arts Center on Sept. 25. Sizemore's Bluegrass and Barbecue concert is sponsored by Big Sandy Community and Technical College. Sizemore, who is from Punchedon Creek in Magoffin County, is considered one of the most distinctive and expressive vocal stylists in bluegrass music, and has an impressive musical pedigree, including joining Ralph Stanley's Clinch Mountain Boys at the age of 17, replacing the late Keith Whitley. Sizemore played with Stanley's band for almost 10 years. "Charlie Sizemore gave me nine and one half years of honest and dependable service as lead singer in the late seventies and early eighties," said Stanley. "He was one of my top lead singers that I have had through the years. Charlie knows music and knows how to make it right." According to information provided by the Mountain Arts Center, "The Charlie Sizemore Band toured for years and made seven critically acclaimed albums. Over the years, he built a large following among fans and performers alike. High esteem within the music industry is demonstrated by the numerous artists who have appeared on his records. These guest artists include the Oak Ridge Boys, Vern Gosdin, Alison Krauss, Kathy Mattea, Tom T. Hall, J. D. Crowe and Ralph Stanley." The concert is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. Tickets are $12 plus a ticket fee of $1. For more information on the concert, visit the Mountain Arts Center website at <http://macarts.com>.

Onions

Onions are foundational for a lot of my recipes. Knowing HOW to properly and safely chop an onion will absolutely help you get your dinner on the table quicker! The way I do it is easier, safer and faster. Yes, I have a video demonstrating this important skill on <http://sav-ingdinner.tv>. Here's how to chop an opinion, in 5 easy steps:
 1) Wash your onion (yes, even with the skin on, always wash ALL produce)

2) Cut off the end with the swirly paper top (that's considered "the end"). Don't cut off the root end though, that holds the onion together.
 3) Now cut the onion lengthwise so that you have half a root end on each half. Take the skin off in one fell swoop.
 4) Place the onion half flat side down on the cutting board. Now take your knife and make perpendicular cuts to the onion half, about 1/8th of an inch apart.

5) Using the hand that isn't holding the knife, make a claw with your fingers so they're not vulnerable to the knife. Now slice thru like you're slicing the onion. The perpendicular cuts will automatically "dice" your onion for you!
 Now what about those pesky fumes that make you cry and ruin your mascara? A cooking school in Washington State suggested putting a tablespoon of vinegar on your cut-

Family Medicine

Martha A. Simpson, D.O., M.B.A.
Associate Professor of Family Medicine

Q I know fall is the time of year to get a flu shot, but do I need to get a regular and a swine flu shot this year? Also, should I get it in October or September? Finally, does everyone need a flu shot?

A This year you only need the "regular" flu shot. H1N1, once referred to as "swine flu," is gone.

Generally speaking, anyone over six months of age should have a flu shot, especially people in high risk groups for complications from the flu. These groups include people over 65, those with chronic medical conditions, pregnant women (yes, they're safe), and young children. Children who have never had a flu shot need two doses of vaccine, at least four weeks apart.

All health care workers, including students in health care professions, should get flu shots to avoid spreading infection. For the same reason, caregivers, daycare workers, and anyone else in regular, close contact with people in the high risk groups should be vaccinated.

If you are in doubt about whether or not you need a flu shot, check with your primary care physician or your local health department.

The best time to get your shot is when the vaccine first becomes available in the fall, since the flu season usually begins just a little later. It takes about two weeks once you have the shot for you to develop immunity. And yes, if you're in a high risk group, you should get one every year. New studies show that the effect of the vaccine is lasting about a year.

If you don't get your shot in the fall, it's still not too late to get one. Influenza cases peak in February, but they can occur into April. So if, for some reason, you were unable to get a flu shot in the fall, you can get the vaccine in January or beyond.

Usually, the limiting factor is the availability of the vaccine. This year, the Centers for Disease Control predicts an adequate supply of vaccine, which can be given by injection or in a nasal spray for certain groups of people.

You can still get the flu even if you've had a vaccination, but it's usually a milder case. The symptoms of influenza are sudden onset of a high fever, headache, fatigue, cough, sore throat, runny nose and body aches. If you have these symptoms, see your doctor, especially if you're at high risk for flu complications. Even in this era of medical research and expanding knowledge, hundreds of thousands of people annually are hospitalized because of flu complications, many of them children. Sadly, there are still around 36,000 deaths each year from influenza.

There is antiviral medication available to treat the flu, but it needs to be started early.

Salome's Stars Weekly Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although practical situations continue to dominate this week, there's time for the Lamb to indulge in the fun things in life — like maybe taking a special someone out for a great evening.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This week favors relationships. Take time to renew old ones, and make time to go where new friends can be found. On a more practical note, expect news about a business deal.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You should be seeing some progress on that new workplace situation. Meanwhile, family matters might demand more attention, and you'll want to set aside time to deal with them.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A relationship suddenly might present some challenges you never expected. After talking things out, you might want to consider taking some time to assess what you've learned.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A disappointing response to a request might dampen the Lion's spirits. But you might want to ask the reasons behind it. What you learn can be of great importance in a future undertaking.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A once-volatile situation should be settled by now, giving you a chance to refocus on a project you've been planning for. Look for an interested party to rally to your support.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A business matter that unexpectedly turns into a personal situation could create complications. Best to resolve the matter now before too much harm can be done.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Emotions can run high when they involve personal matters that no one really wants to talk about. But this could be a good time to create the means to a workable outcome.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A positive response to a workplace request could lead the way to other long-sought changes. Congratulations. A personal situation also takes a welcome turn.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Patience pays off, as that once-overwhelming work situation continues to become easier to handle on a one-by-one basis. Look for positive news from a colleague.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It might be a good idea to take more time to reassess your next move in working out a complex situation. You could benefit from a new perspective on the matter.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might want to consider making time to discuss a change of plans with everyone concerned. Be prepared to explain your actions. Also be prepared to listen to alternatives.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a strong sense of what is right, and you try to work from that foundation. Friends see you as reliable.

Ms. Deborah Mullins Smith, of Pikeville, and Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Fields, of Paintsville, announce the engagement and upcoming marriage of their daughter, Jessica Renee, to Joshua Holden Barnette, son of Ms. Susan Barnette, of Allen, and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Barnette, of Martin. Barnette is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Watts, of Allen, and Ms. Joannie B. Stephens, of Martin, and the late George Barnette. The bride-elect and Barnette are employed by Toyota Motor Manufacturing of Kentucky. The open wedding ceremony will take place at 5:30 in the evening on October 2, 2010 at Allen Baptist Church with Pastor Arnold Turner Jr. officiating. GOOD HEALTH Is a daily vitamin really necessary?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My adult daughter is unable to take vitamins without upsetting her stomach. She has taken them with and without food, and at different times of the day, to no avail. She takes no medicine except for thyroid. She has no gastrointestinal problems. — V.H.

ANSWER: Has your daughter tried different brands of vitamins? The filler in some brands might be the cause of her stomach upset. Fillers are inactive ingredients that keep the tablet together.

The question really is: Does your daughter, or anyone, need to take a vitamin (multivitamin or otherwise) daily? Vitamins are nutrients that the body doesn't make for itself (except vitamin D). They're needed in extremely small amounts. The era of beriberi, scurvy and rickets is all but over since the discovery of vitamins. Most doctors have never seen a case of those vitamin deficiency illnesses.

Vitamins don't pep us up and they don't prevent heart disease or cancer as was once thought. In excess, they can be troublemakers. In spite of this, we're conditioned to believe that we need a daily multivitamin. Half of the adult American population swallows one every day.

We can meet all vitamin needs through foods, with the possible exception of vitamin D. A diet that supplies fruits, vegetables, grains, dairy products and some meat provides the necessary vitamins. Meat is the source for vitamin B-12, but vegetarians can get that vitamin in other ways. Vitamin D is a problem for many. Sunshine converts a substance in the skin into this vitamin. Many people don't get enough sunshine exposure to achieve skin production of D, and people in northern climates can't get enough during winter months. All it takes is 15 minutes of sun exposure on the face, arms and legs three times a week. Age is another possible factor in failing to meet vitamin demands if older people subsist on a marginal diet of tea and toast.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had a foot reconstruction operation some months ago. The foot doctor said I had to be off Celebrex until the foot completely healed. I had been on it for several years. I have osteoporosis and rheumatoid arthritis. Since being off Celebrex for four months, I don't have any more pain or stiffness than I did while I was taking it. Do I really need it? — V.M.

ANSWER: If a medicine isn't doing anything for you, why take it? You've taken Celebrex for several years and now you've been off it for four months with no worsening of your symptoms. I'd say you made a strong case for not continuing it. Many, many other rheumatoid arthritis medicines are on the market. It's time for a change, or perhaps for a medicine rest if your doctor agrees.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When patients are admitted to a hospital by ambulance and their prescriptions are given to the hospital staff, are they returned to the patients upon discharge? These are expensive medicines. — E.M.

ANSWER: The medicines ought to be given back to the patients upon discharge. If they aren't, an inquiry should be made. If no answer is forthcoming, take the matter to the hospital administrator.

ting board to cut the tears. Never tried it, but sounds like a great idea!

After all this chopping, don't you think you need a good recipe to get that onion cooked? I just got a ton of butternut squash with my CSA basket and this recipe is awesome, so here you go:

- Butternut Soup
Serves 4
- 1 onion — chopped
 - 1 tablespoon butter
 - 2 tablespoons olive oil
 - 3 cups butternut squash — peeled and cubed
 - 2 cups chicken broth
 - 1/2 teaspoon thyme
 - 1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper
 - 1/2 pound low fat cream cheese
 - salt and pepper — to taste

In a large sauce pan, heat oil and butter together over medium high heat and saute the onion. Add squash, broth, thyme and cayenne pepper. Bring to a boil, lower heat and allow to simmer.

Cook 20 minutes or until squash is tender.

In a blender, puree squash with cream cheese in batches until smooth. Return to saucepan and heat through, but don't boil.

SERVING SUGGESTIONS: Serve with a big spinach salad and some whole wheat dinner rolls.

Penny trick with battery is no dream

by TOM and RAY MAGLIOZZI

Dear Tom and Ray: I may be dreaming, hallucinating or even suffering from dementia. I seem to remember something from my childhood that other people my age do not. When I was but a tadpole, I seem to remember my dad checking the water level in the car battery. The top of the battery was covered with a thick, tarlike substance, into which he would push copper pennies next to each battery terminal. The reasoning behind this was to draw the potential corrosion away from the terminal and toward the penny. Did I dream this, or did people used to do this? Please tell me if I'm demented or not. — Art

RAY: We don't have enough information to answer your last question, Art. And the fact that you're writing to us for advice definitely is a strike against you. But you're not dreaming about the pennies and the batteries.

TOM: It's based on the theory of sacrificial anodes, in which you "sacrifice" a more reactive metal, like copper, in the case of pre-1983 pennies to protect a second, less reactive metal — the lead battery terminal and connector.

RAY: And in the old days, when batteries were covered with tar on top, you could warm up a penny with a match or a cigarette lighter, and then slide it into the tar half an inch away from the battery terminal. The penny always would corrode first.

TOM: Nowadays, most batteries are sealed in plastic, so the acid — which is what causes the corrosion — rarely escapes the inside of the battery. That makes a sacrificial anode far less necessary. And besides, these days, we all have to save our pennies.

A question of ethics

Dear Tom and Ray:

I have a mechanics' ethics question for you. I drive a 2009 Nissan Rogue. I love this car. I was getting ready for a road trip, and I realized that there were three minor recalls on the car and that it was time for the 30,000-mile service. So I take the car to the dealership, the guy tells me the service package they offer, and then charges me $500. I tell my wife, who gets upset that I need $500 worth of service on a relatively new car. I call the guy back, and he tells me that this is the "premium" service package, and that they already started, so I can't change it. I ask him why he only offered me the premium service package, and he says that I didn't ask for any other service packages. Did my dealership's mechanic take me for a ride, or does he not need to tell me the options? I now know that I can download all my suggested maintenance requirements, broken down by mileage, from the Nissan website, and I plan to do this from now on. I guess I feel this is partially my fault for not being an informed consumer, but I also think the mechanic should have explained the "premium" service to me in more detail. What do you think? — Dave

TOM: I think you're exactly right, Dave. Your mechanic was not entirely honest with you AND you should have been a more informed consumer.

RAY: Your wife also is right. A car with 30,000 miles on it should need almost nothing — certainly not $500 worth of regular maintenance.

TOM: A lot of dealerships make a lot of money by adding extra services to the scheduled maintenance routines. You have the right to decline these extra flushes, inspections and fuzzy-dice rotations. But in order to do that, you need to know what IS required.

RAY: That information is available not only online, but also in the back of your owner's manual (that's the rectangular thing wrapped in cellophane in the bottom of your glove box, Dave).

TOM: You also have the right to take your car to someplace other than the dealer for its scheduled maintenance, even if it's still under warranty. Simply present any mechanic you like with the list of required maintenance from the back of your owner's manual and ask for an estimate. You can compare that price to what your dealer is charging for the same services, and decide from there.

RAY: We also recommend that customers ask whoever does the service to stamp or sign the spot in the back of the manual that indicates that the scheduled maintenance has been performed. You'll probably never need proof, but if you do have an engine warranty claim someday, it's good to have that.

TOM: And as far as your dealer is concerned, he was sleazy on two counts. First, he absolutely should have explained to you that there are several levels of service. Once he does that, he can take his best shot at persuading you to opt for the more expensive one. But the choice should be yours. The fact that he didn't do that lands him squarely on our fecal roster.

RAY: And second, when you called him and asked him to stop the work, he should have said, "I'll have them switch you to the basic service, and even if they've already done some of the work, we'll only charge you the lower price." That could have earned your loyalty as a customer for years. But instead, he was more interested in taking in a few extra bucks today.

TOM: But you also bear some responsibility, in this case, for being an uninformed consumer, Dave. Now you know better. So next time, you'll not only go somewhere else for your service, but you'll bring with you your Nissan-approved list. And maybe a couple of large friends with baseball bats.

TIMES COLUMNIST

Cinematic thrill rides were in large supply this week as several genre flicks hit the shelves.

■ "Prince of Persia" — Get ready for the start of summer films on DVD with the arrival of this mega-budgeted thrill ride. An adopted prince (the not at all Persian-like Jake Gyllenhaal) teams up with a dark princess to protect a sword that can time travel in this all-out action effort that doesn't pause long enough for audience members to count the plot holes. Lots of fun and no cavities.

■ "Letters to Juliet" — A young writer counsels an elderly couple while touring Tuscany in this lackluster drama. The story involves the writer coming across a letter to Juliet (of Shakespeare fame) near the Verona castle that is identified with her. Apparently it is a custom for European lovers to address their hopes to Shakespeare's heroine. We shouldn't snort at that since Americans toss coins into fountains all over the country (I guess it works out well for mall security guards). Vanessa Redgrave and Franco Nero (real-life lovers who met on the set of "Camelot" when both were married to other people) have some moments as the couple whose letter is found but the movie, as a whole, is dull.

■ "Mad Ron's Previews from Hell" — The best horror movie trailers are collected in this series that is hosted by a ventriloquist and his puppet. These are definitely the only trailer collection you'll ever need and they come with the endorsement of Mad Ron fans who include Stephen Spielberg and Joe Dante ("Piranha").

■ "Mafia Kingpin Conectives" — Five of the coolest mob movies ever made in Italy are collected here and boast stars like Henry Silva, John Saxon and Jack Palance. These are ultra-violent and sleazy escapades that represent the best of the "Spaghetti Gangster" genre, and the whole set is only $5. Now that's an offer you can't refuse.

■ Next week promise more action as we get yet another version of "Robin Hood" and an updated version of "Spartacus" that features generous helpings of blood and skin.

Strange ... but true

■ It was American author and philosopher Eric Hoffer who made the following sage observation: "Rudeness is the weak man's imitation of strength."

■ If you were to have a perfectly dry mouth, you wouldn't be able to taste a single thing. Researchers conducted an experiment in which they placed salt on a subject's dry tongue, and the subject reported absolutely no taste at all. Once a drop of saliva was added, though, the taste came through clearly.

■ According to the makers of the Stetson, a 10-gallon hat actually holds only about three quarts of liquid.

■ During the third century, Saint Lawrence of Rome, a deacon to Pope Sixtus II, was burned to death during a series of persecutions of priests and deacons. Legend has it that while he was on the fire, he turned to his executioners and said, "This side's done; turn me over and have a bite." It was for this reason that he was named the patron saint of butchers, roasters and comedians.

■ The average robin reportedly has nearly 3,000 feathers. Makes you wonder who did the counting.

■ Most people probably are aware of the fact that Franklin Delano Roosevelt is the only American president who was elected to more than two terms in office — he served three full terms and died during his fourth term in office. Despite the fact that he was an incredibly popular president, however, in none of his four elections did he carry his home county of Dutchess, New York.

■ If you have a severe food allergy, peanuts are the most common culprit, followed, in order, by shellfish, fish, tree nuts and eggs.

getting a solid cast and a proper screenplay that manages to be smart and hip, while still paying respects to a slew of famous horror films (most notably of Britain's Hammer Studios).

The story begins with an eye opening sequence that establishes the time period (19th century Europe) and sets the tone to follow. A man is dragged from his prison cell and paraded before a cheering crowd. He is then forced down before the guillotine, which rapidly descends and manages to shear his head off only a split second after he's looked up to figure out what that suspicious noise was. The man's head lands in a well-placed bucket and the curious expression on it reveals that he hadn't fully processed what he'd just seen until it was too late.

Soon enough we meet another man, Blake, who is scheduled for the same fate. Turns out the other guy, Willie, was his partner in grave robbing and Blake will soon share his fate. He has been granted a few hours of extra life as long as he spends it talking to a priest who has come to collect material on all things ghoulish.

The interview starts off a little slowly, but the priest manages to get Blake talking by sharing some alcohol with the condemned man. This greases the tongue and pretty soon, we are treated to a slew of flashbacks that reveal how Blake got into the world's most despised profession.

The story is not pretty. We see how far people will go when times are hard. There are a host of unsettling images that include encounters with vampires, zombies and even evil doctors ("sawbones" takes on a new meaning here). There are also some lighter moments, such as the pair's introduction to a new invention called "the sandwich."

Pretty soon the guys are doing so well that they wind up on the radar of a rival gang of fiends called the "Murphys." They are a scary lot and you'll see their images if you ever look up "bad dudes" on Google. They are led by Cornelius Murphy, whose evil was forged by his psychotic father, who delighted in killing everything that ever made his son happy.

The Murphy gang also includes other colorful characters like Valentine (a woman whose visage is so frightening that no one dare look at her) and Bulger, a hulking brute who sports the worst smile ever, courtesy of the British Dental Association and a mouthful of dog teeth that were sewn into his gums after his mouth healed.

The whole thing comes down to a final confrontation between our grave robbing gangs on an island where zombies are set to finish off whoever survives the battle.

This film deserves to be

seen and is further proof that the best things in horror cinema today are bypassing theaters and premiering in your house.

The cast is a blend of diverse talents. Dominic Monaghan ("Lost") and "The Lord of the Rings" leads the charge as Blake, but he is happy to share the screen with the amazing, and underrated, Larry Fessenden (an independent film maker who sometimes acts and has had a hand in fusing independent cinema with the horror genre), who co-stars as Willie. There is also a sinister turn by horror veteran Angus Scrimm (the Tall Man in the "Phantasm" films) as a twisted physician.

The film also gets a nice assist from Ron Perlman ("Beauty and the Beast") who plays the priest. Film buffs will probably get hip to Perlman's true identity before the conclusion, but it still makes of a slam-bang ending that manages to be funny, gross and even hopeful that there is room for a sequel or two.

Best line: "I suppose you wouldn't believe me if I told you I was innocent, of murder that is. The despicable, grave-robbing part sounds about right."
