The total at the end of the day was 212, according to clerks working the election, was an anonymous complaint against Floyd Skeans, who ran against District 1 Magistrate John Goble on the Republican ticket.

The complaint was that Skeans had parked his campaign trailer near a polling place. However, it was investigated and found that Skeans was not in violation, having parked beyond the 300-foot requirement.

Another complaint, also found to not be a violation, was in an area of the county where the caller said

WEST PRESTONSBURG — Workers and volunteers at the Floyd County Animal Shelter said a visitor to the establishment about two weeks ago led to a startling discovery, linked back to the Wayland area.

Carrie Coleman, a volunteer at the shelter, said Teresa Warrix arrived at the shelter with 16 cats and two dogs. However, Warrix had brought 16 cats because that was all the shelter had room for at the time.

In total, Warrix said the small Wayland home where she had rescued the animals housed 86 cats, in addition to the two dogs, which were kept outside.

The statue was commissioned by Conn and construction began in October 2009.

Complaints

electioneering was taking place at another polling place. But a look into that complaint revealed again that the proper distance of 500 feet had been minded.

In many cases, the KSP officers from Post 9 in Pikeville, who helped in monitoring the election after Vaughn and his deputy clerks began turning over complaints, said they found no evidence at the scene of wrongdoing.

Clerks said this could have meant that whatever was allegedly taking place was already finished or that nothing was happening in the first place.

Many of the other complaints received at the Floyd County Clerk's Office dealt with polling areas in District 2, where a race for magistrate saw one of the two candidates, Hattie Owens, on the ballot as a write-in.

The 212 complaints is more than double than what the Conway's office received during the May primary election. And the complaints ranged from general election fraud, to voting machine problems and procedural questions.

Cats

She brought us 16 because that's all we could take," Coleman said, adding that Warrix did not name the elderly couple in whose home the cats had been found. "She sent others to both the Pike and Perry shelters, as far as I know."

The couple had been taking in strays for an undetermined amount of time and eventually decided that they couldn't take care of them anymore, Coleman added.

The lady had decided that she couldn't take care of them because she and her husband were starving and she said she noticed the cats were starving," she said.

The couple's church had been helping them with food over the past several weeks, but eventually the number of cats at the home, which Warrix described as being in "bad shape" couldn't withstand 86 stray cats anymore.

All of the cats found at the home had been spayed and neutered and seemed to be in fine health, considering the conditions in which they had been living.

Coleman said that as of Thursday four of the 16 cats at her shelter had been adopted. "As far as I can tell, she just keep taking in strays," continued Coleman. "It was very much like what hoarders do with collecting or gathering things without being able to stop."

For information about the adoption process or other questions call (606) 886-3189.

Drugs

of and how he tried to double his money on any transaction. Akers told Source 1 he would give him/her cash or hope for dealing for him and told Source 1 to think about it. Source 1 watched two men buy $800 worth of cocaine from Akers and Akers' girlfriend. Source 1 stated people were using needles, shooting up in the building after buying."

Also according to the complaint, another source told investigators that Akers had multiple individuals traveling to Florida to obtain prescription narcotics, including oxycodone tablets, which were intended to be distributed.

According to the indictment, Parker, Blankenship and Byron used property belonging to Parker in the alleged crimes, along with a rifle, shotgun and numerous rounds of ammunition. The indictment also lists $500,000 as the sum that represents the gross proceeds obtained by the three defendants as a result of the alleged incidents.

If the three are found guilty of the charges, they face 20 years in prison, a $1 million fine and no less than three years of supervised release. If there is a prior felony conviction, the prison time could be up to 30 years with a $2 million fine and no less than six years of supervised release.

"Life is a tragedy for those who feel, a comedy for those who think"

— Horace Walpole

Amendment 1
Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people to peaceably assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

Our View United States of Apathy

Election Day was Tuesday, bringing with it quite a bit of change at every level of government. So obviously the people had their say, right?

Not exactly. Not in Floyd County, anyway, where only 42 percent of voters bothered to show up at the polls. Then again, that is the exact same percentage as turned out nationally.

That is not the will of the people. That's simply a few people making decisions for the rest.

We cannot understand it. How is it that the news is full of stories about how angry, upset and dissatisfied Americans are, yet 3-out-of-5 don't even bother to make their wishes known? How can they legitimately be angry if they don't care enough to express their will?

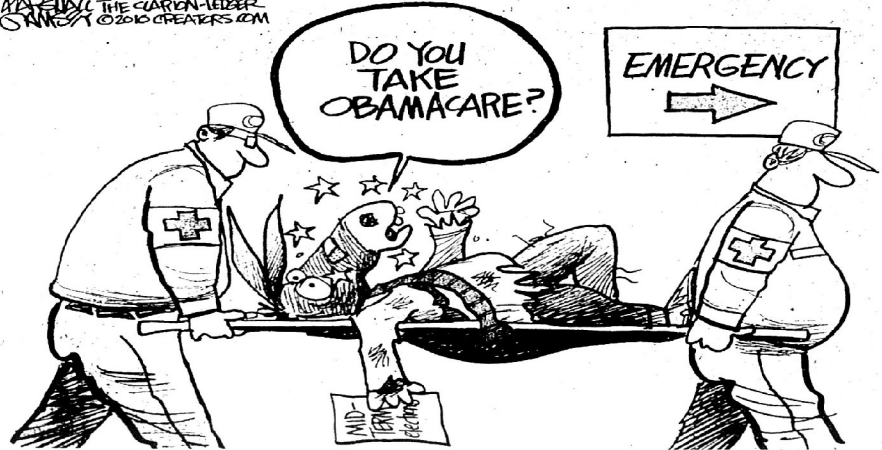

But maybe those stories are not entirely true. Maybe the vast majority is quite satisfied and therefore wasn't as motivated to head to the voting booth.

Whatever the case, this is not good news. Either there is a great body of dissatisfied people out there who will continue to be dissatisfied because they simply won't make decisions for themselves, or there is a majority of people who that are perfectly willing to allow an angry mob to decide the fate of the country.

We don't know what to make of it. We can't say what the people are thinking, because the people refuse to speak for themselves.

Beyond the Beltway Responsible for his own words

by DONALD KAUL
OTHERWORDS

You've probably heard by now about the latest outrage against free speech committed by the supposedly Radical Left-Wing Mainstream Media. Juan Williams, Fox News's house black liberal, was fired from his job at National Public Radio because he told Bill O'Reilly, Fox's Prince of Fairness and Balance, that he got nervous when a Muslim-looking person got on a plane with him.

NPR immediately terminated Williams, about as clumsily as possible, saying it didn't want to employ someone who "seems to believe that all airline passengers who are perceived to be Muslim can legitimately be viewed as security threats."

Upon which Roger Ailes, the Fox News chairman (who has come a long way since he was shilling for Richard Nixon) gave Williams a three-year contract worth $2 million. He called Williams "an honest man whose freedom of speech is protected by Fox News on a daily basis."

And Republican House Minority Leader John Boehner, chimed in with: "why [is] Congress spending taxpayers' money to support a left-wing radio station?"

Leading me to say: "Oh, come on. Can we get real here?"

In the first place, as a card-carrying left-wing radical liberal (it's a library card) I object to calling Williams a liberal. Yes, he's done some nice work on the history of the civil rights movement, but I've always thought of him as a conservative trapped in a liberal's body.

This episode might then be thought of as his "coming out," leaving him free to be the person he always wanted to be — the black Rush Limbaugh. Is that unfair? Perhaps, but it's my honest opinion and that's the beauty of free speech, right?

That's essentially Williams' defense: he was expressing an honest attitude toward seeing Muslims on a plane and what's wrong with that?

Where to begin? Where he to get pulled over by a cop who made him get out of his car and submit to a full body-search, would he say "That's OK officer. I know you're just expressing your honest feeling that most black people driving nice cars are criminals?"

Where he a Jew, would he be as accommodating if a public figure said that it was his honest opinion — his feeling — that Jews will cheat you if they can?

One can have "feelings" based on ethnic, racial or religious stereotypes — and sadly most of us do — but if you're a public figure, it's best to keep them to yourself. To do otherwise is to feed the bonfire of unreasoning hatred and prejudice that's burning out of control in our society right now, particularly with regard to Muslims.

Every time I issue a call for religious tolerance — remember when that was non-controversial? — I get hate mail from people taking me to task for being tolerant of a "false religion" (Islam).

And when I point out the moral outrages committed in the name of Christianity, like the Crusades and the Inquisition, I get letters from people who say things like: "There were instances where the Crusaders went beyond the military requirements of the mission, and these are of course regrettable. But these were relatively rare."

The Inquisition? It was "set up to give 'defendants' a fair hearing."

And the St. Bartholomew's Day massacre was a soccer riot that got out of hand.

Williams had a constitutional right to say what he did; that doesn't mean he's not responsible for his words and shouldn't suffer consequences for them. Two million isn't a bad consolation prize. I'm sure he'll rest happy in the bosom of Rupert Murdoch, his kind of guy.

If I were him, however, I wouldn't say anything nice about Barack Obama. At Fox, that's a firing offense.

One more thing. Someone should tell House Minority Leader John Boehner that NPR isn't a "radio station," nor is it "left-wing." It's a national radio network serving a loose confederation of local stations that provide a touch of sanity and a sometimes moderately liberal tenor that disrupts the wall-to-wall craziness that is Right-Wing radio.

KSP asks motorists to 'leave more space'

FRANKFORT — The KSP Commercial Vehicle Enforcement Division kicked off the 2010 Ticketing Aggressive Cars and Trucks (TACT) campaign last week in an effort to crackdown on motorists driving recklessly around commercial trucks and on trucks violating traffic laws. The first wave of the campaign will run through December and focus on routes heavily traveled by commercial trucks throughout the Commonwealth.

KSP will partner with Louisville Metro Police Department, Lexington Police Department and Boone County Sheriff's Office to accelerate the implementation of the campaign.

"We are determined to reduce both fatal and non-fatal crashes on our highways," said KSP Commissioner Rodney Brewer. "Our agency will work alongside local law enforcement partners to provide increased patrols where commercial truck crashes are predominant."

Officers will look for aggressive driving behaviors such as following too close; unsafe lane changes; speeding and not leaving enough space when passing large trucks.

Brewer said that most people simply don't understand the dangers of big-rigs.

"A car traveling 80 miles per hour only needs 160 feet to stop," explained Brewer. "A commercial truck driving at that same rate of speed behind that car would take somewhere between 800 and 1200 feet to stop."

"Highway safety is a shared responsibility. This enforcement blitz will boost efforts to prevent tragedies on Kentucky's main arteries of transportation and serve as a reminder that all motorists need to think about their driving habits each time they get behind the wheel," added Brewer.

The TACT program is funded and administered through the Federal Motor Carriers Safety Administration (FMCSA). Kentucky joins Alabama, Georgia, Indiana, Montana, Nevada, North Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas and Washington as one of the FMCSA selected states for the TACT project.

Crash statistics from KSP indicate that 70 percent of fatal crashes involving large trucks are caused by passenger vehicles. Last year Kentucky had over 8,000 crashes involving commercial vehicles resulting in 114 deaths.

Brewer said Education is a key component to the success of the campaign.

"Public service announcements, radio spots, specially-wrapped trailers, road signs, fuel pump advertising and social media will all be used to convey the safe driving messages for TACT," remarked Brewer.

"For motorists who travel Kentucky interstates each day, a crash involving a tractor trailer can cause extensive travel delays, especially when the crash is fatal for a driver or passengers. We want to reduce travel delays by reducing the number of crashes between passenger cars and commercial vehicles," he noted.

Citizens can contribute to highway safety by reporting erratic drivers to the Kentucky State Police toll-free at 1-800-222-5555.

Callers will remain anonymous and should give a description of the vehicle, location, direction of travel and license number if possible.

John Cecil named Grocer of the Year

KGA/KACS Chairman Tom Litzler presented John Cecil with the 2010 Kentucky Grocer of the Year award on Oct. 30.

John Cecil, a resident of Pikeville, has been named the 2010 Kentucky Grocer of the Year by the Kentucky Grocers Association.

Cecil, the executive vice president of store operations for Food City, received the award during the Kentucky Grocers Association's Annual Meeting and Industry Awards Dinner held at the French Lick Springs Resort in French Lick, Ind., on Oct. 30.

"Johnny is a people person," said Food City President and CEO Steve Smith. "He has faith in the people he works with to get a job done and when Johnny says he is going to do something, you can consider it done."

2010 KGA/KACS Chairman Tom Litzler said, "Johnny has been a tremendous asset to the Kentucky grocery industry in working legislative issues on behalf of the entire industry. When legislation impacting our industry was proposed or even moving, Johnny was always there to help lead the charge."

According to information provided by Food City, "In 1980, following his graduation from James Madison University, Cecil began working for K-VA-T Food Stores, Inc. as store manager of an experimental new store entitled Sav-U-Discount Foods. Although the concept was terminated a year and a half later, Cecil found a home with the Food City team, quickly learning the ropes of the grocery industry and working his way up the ranks."

"I'm in shock over being named 2010 Grocer of the Year," Cecil said. "I owe so much of my personal success to the Food City organization. The KGA/KACS is a great organization and I am so proud to be a part of it."

Cecil earned a Bachelor of Science degree from James Madison University. He currently resides in Pikeville, with his wife, Jane.

High school feedback report shows substantial gains for class of 2008

The Kentucky College and Career Readiness High School Feedback Report for the Class of 2008 shows substantial gains in college-going and college and career readiness levels of the 2008 high school graduates who subsequently enrolled in a college or university by fall 2008.

The Kentucky Council on Postsecondary Education, the Kentucky Department of Education, the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority and the Kentucky P-20 Data Collaborative produced the report. All college-going information in the report is for 2008 high school graduates who entered postsecondary education in the summer or fall of 2008 and not later.

"This report shows that we are making progress in the proportion of high school graduates choosing to attend college, and in the levels of readiness of students who enroll in college directly from high school," said Council on Postsecondary Education President Bob King. "We are pleased with these gains, but we know that serious challenges remain. This report will help us identify where and how to make changes necessary to improve student success in the future. While we celebrate the improvement, we need to produce even greater improvement, faster," he added.

Each high school report features comparative information at the school, district and state levels, and important characteristics including high school performance, in-state postsecondary enrollment characteristics, college readiness details, ACT score distributions of college-going students, and colleges and universities attended and college majors.

Reports are also available by school district, education cooperative regions, legislative districts, area development districts, public university areas of geographic responsibility and by KCTCS enrollment behavior clusters.

Key findings include: Sixty-three percent of the 43,362 graduates of Kentucky's public and private high schools in 2008 entered college by the fall semester, with 57 percent attending colleges and universities in Kentucky and an additional 6 percent attending out-of-state. This is a significant increase since 2004 in both the number of high school graduates and the percent going on to college. In 2004, 51 percent of the 41,328 high school graduates entered a Kentucky college or university.

Kentucky experienced a substantial increase in the college readiness of college entrants between 2002 and 2008. The percentage of students entering college straight from Kentucky's high schools who required developmental education fell one-sixth, from 45 percent in 2002 to 38 percent in 2008. The proportion requiring remediation also fell in each subject. The percentage of students entering college not ready in English dropped the most, while the percentage in mathematics dropped the least.

Across the state, significant gaps in college going and college readiness are noticeable. Students fared better in urban and higher-income areas, and lower in rural and low-income areas, especially in eastern Kentucky.

The high school feedback report offers another view of college and career readiness that was presented in a recent KDE report. The KDE report examined college and career readiness of all graduates in the class of 2010, regardless of whether they entered college. The KDE report also used ACT results and industry recognized certifications, while the new report includes results from students who took the SAT and on-campus placement exams.

"This report is just one indicator of Kentucky's plan to improve the preparation of our young people for postsecondary education and the workforce," said Kentucky Education Commissioner Terry Holliday. "These data show improvement over the past few years, but we still have a lot of work to do. We must have stronger expectations in high school and college, and this work does not belong just to those institutions. Every parent, school, teacher, business leader and politician in Kentucky must work together to impact the future for our children."

The P-20 Data Collaborative will produce a follow-up report in early 2011 that will detail college performance of the class of 2008.

To view the reports and additional resources, visit the Council website at http://apps.cpe.ky.gov/temp_docs/prototypes/dataportal/hsr.htm.

PRESTONSBURG — Best-selling Kentucky author Silas House is scheduled to be at Big Sandy Community and Technical College on Monday to discuss his novel, "Eli the Good."

House is expected to talk for about an hour before participating in a book signing.

According to the synopsis for House's newest book, "Bicentennial fireworks burn the sky. Bob Seger grows from a transistor radio and down by the river, girls line up on lawn chairs in pursuit of the perfect tan. Yet for 10-year-old Eli Book, the summer of 1976 is the one that threatens to tear his family apart. There is his distant, beautiful mother, Loretta; his traumatized Vietnam vet dad, Stanton; his wild and beloved sister Josie; his aunt Nell, a former war protester who understands him; and his tough yet troubled best friend, Eddie, the only person with whom he can be himself. As tempers flare and his father's nightmares rage, Eli watches from the sidelines, but soon even he cannot escape the current of conflict and commits an act of betrayal for which he cannot forgive himself."

House is also the author of "Clay's Quilt," "A Parchment of Leaves," "The Coal Tattoo," two plays, "The Hurting Part" and "Long Time Traveling," and "Something's Rising," a creative nonfiction book about social protest co-authored with Jason Howland.

House is scheduled to begin his talk at 10 a.m. in the Gearheart Auditorium on the Prestonsburg campus of the college.

Shoplifting call leads police to drug find

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — A Pike County man police arrested at Tiger Mart along U.S. 23 in Prestonsburg on an initial suspicion of shoplifting is now facing drug-related charges in addition to theft.

Freddie Wallace Jr., 24, of Raccoon, was arrested this weekend after Prestonsburg police officers responded to a call from Tiger Mart employees reporting a shoplifter at the store.

The clerks at the store told police they had seen

Wallace concealing a bottle of STP Fuel Treatment inside his jacket, the police report said.

When officers inspected Wallace at the scene, they said the bulge in the right side of his jacket was visible. Wallace was searched and police said they located the bottle of fuel treatment as the clerks had claimed.

After this discovery, police said they it seemed Wallace exhibited a "loss of motor skills with slurred speech" at which time he was questioned.

During the questioning, police said Wallace told them he had taken two Lorsets and Suboxone, at which point officers searched him again. Found at this time, according to the officers, was a small, black bag in his right front pocket containing seven-and-a-half Xanax tablets, one Suboxone and an undisclosed number of Lorsets.

Wallace, who is scheduled to be arraigned Nov. 11, is facing three counts of having a prescription not in its proper container, three counts of third-degree possession of a controlled substance, shoplifting and public intoxication.

Inopportune stop leads to drug charges for woman

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

AUXIER — A 29-year-old Prestonsburg woman is now facing drug-related charges after police say she pulled the middle of the road while pulling out from a local store.

Kay A. Kerr, of Prestonsburg, pulled out from Hillbilly Market and into the middle of the highway, said members of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department Bob Caudill and Roger Collins, when she made an abrupt stop.

Oncoming vehicles had to "lock up their brakes" in order to avoid hitting Kerr's vehicle, the officers said.

From Hillbilly Market to Auxier, only a few miles, the officers wrote in their report that Kerr lost control of her Chevy Blazer and ran off the road five times.

Once stopped, police said Kerr had a prescription bottle of Clonazepam that had been filled that day for 60 tablets. A count of the number of tablets in the bottle revealed, according to Blackburn's report, that only 44 remained of the 60 prescribed that day.

Kerr failed sobriety tests, according to her arrest report, and refused a blood test and was charged with third-degree trafficking in a controlled substance and operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of drugs or alcohol, her fourth such offense.

She is scheduled for arraignment on Nov. 10 in Floyd County District Court.

BETSY LAYNE - The 2010 season has been a record-breaking campaign for the Betsy Layne High School football program. Betsy Layne concluded the regular season 7-3 following a convincing 56-12 victory over non-district foe Jenkins. Seven wins is a school

In addition to Jenkins, Betsy Layne, under the guidance of Coach Jon Parsons, defeated Burch (W.Va.), Jackson County, Phelps, South Floyd, Paintsville and Allen Central during the regular season. Bishop Brossart, Magoffin County and district rival Pikeville defeated the Bobcats during the regular season.

Kentucky proves to be gracious host for in-state exhibition foe Pikeville

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

Since Monday night's visit to Rupp Arena with the Pikeville College Bears, I've been asked many times how things went. So I thought this week's column should be about the experience, a chance to walk you through the process.

My contact at UK was John Hayden, who is a great guy to work with. I got my list of media requests together and requested for all local media except the News-Express, which has season credentials - before I called. I tried to be careful about the number of requests, because I've been to Rupp Arena many times for Kentucky games and know very well how limited their space is.

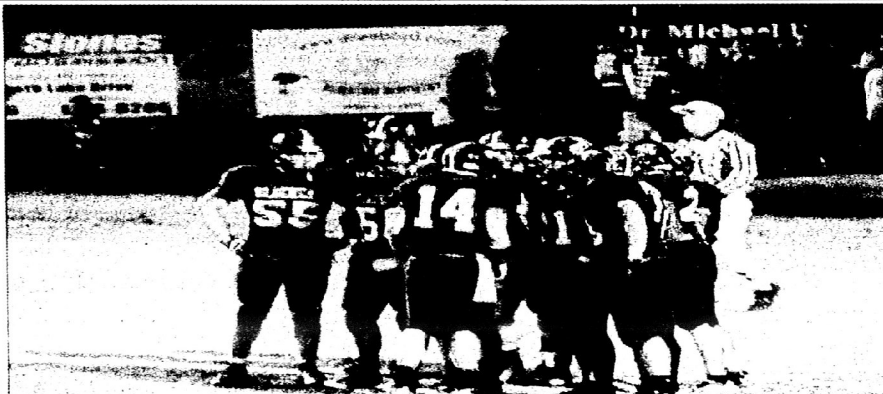

On top of that, once the university figured out the ungodly amount of money people would pay for court-side seats - rumored to be around $100,000 a season - they moved a large amount of media to the bottom row of upper arena behind the benches.

In the end, other than my own, the list was at 12. That same evening, I got 12 emails saying they'd all been approved. I felt pretty good about that and knew we'd have some solid media coverage.

Two days later, another local media member needed a pass. I wasn't sure what the university would say, but I sent the request in. Later that night, it too was approved.

It was just one example of how cooperative the university was with us. The night after my initial request, I got an email from DeWayne Peevy, whose

UK announces Military Appreciation Day vs. CSU

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LEXINGTON - Saturday's football game between the University of Kentucky and Charleston Southern University will be the annual Military Appreciation Day at Commonwealth Stadium. Kickoff is set for 12:30 p.m. ET.

Here are some features of Military Appreciation Day:
During the pregame show, the 101st Airborne Division will conduct a parachute demonstration. The team is stationed at Fort Campbell, KY.

At the end of the national anthem there will be an F-15E Strike Eagle flyover, conducted by the United States Air Force's 391st Fighter Squadron from Mountain Home Air Force Base, Idaho.

A giant United States flag, which covers the football field, will be unfurled by the UK Army and Air Force ROTC cadets.

Personnel from the Kentucky National Guard, led by Adjutant General Edward W. Tonini will be present. Tonini will also take part in the pregame coin toss.

Military personnel from the Veterans Hospital also will be in attendance.

One change for this year is that the primary military representatives will be from the Kentucky National Guard and the Veterans Hospital. In prior years, trainees from Fort Knox have been prominent in the stands but the trainees are not at Fort Knox this year.

Derrick Locke Report: Kentucky football head coach Joker Phillips told reporters after practice Wednesday that senior tailback Derrick Locke, who has missed the past three games because of injury, continues to make progress.

"He (Derrick Locke) looked really good (today)," Phillips said. "He looked good in the drills that I saw him in. ... Now, he didn't get hit. We didn't touch him. He had a red jersey on. But he was really fast and his legs are not hurting him, we know that."

Phillips told reporters after practice that they will not hold out Locke if he is ready to play Saturday.

"If he can play, we have to play Derrick Locke," Phillips said. "What do we have to save him for? There is no need to save him. You all heard what Coach (David) Turner said the other day. This is a game that we have to win. We have to title is a little more fancy than SID, posing a question. Essentially it was, "Are you sure you don't need more seats than that?" I'm not sure if it was because it was an exhibit, or maybe because it was an in-state school, but they couldn't have been more cooperative through the whole process. On Friday of last week I got a call from John, asking if I was doing game notes. I assured him I was, but because we played that night it would be the weekend before I could work on them. "No problem," he said. "But don't worry about copying them. Just send them to me and I'll make them for you and have them at the arena when you get there." That's pretty helpful right there.

Saturday was a great day for me. For the first time since mid-August, I had a free Saturday. I made the most of it, and as a result did very little in the way of work. I left town early on Sunday morning. My grandfather lives in Bell County and hasn't been doing so well, so I skipped church to go pay him a visit.

I was able to do a little work while I was there - he was asleep when I arrived - and spent Sunday night finishing up the notes.

On Sunday afternoon, Andrew Joyce and I did a live 90-minute preview of the game and the season, and after it was over, we spent some time in Rupp with our team during their practice session.

Shortly after we arrived, we were told the UK locker room was open so we stopped by. It helped that the video guy was charged with staying with us while we practiced, and it happened to be Preston Simon, a former Alice Lloyd player who had a solid relationship with Coach Wells.

Let's just say there's nothing lacking where the locker room is concerned. They have it all packed into their spaces. The bathroom in John Calipari's office had a marble sink. It was all pretty sweet. Select game balls have been painted with the scores, dates and their significance - think the ball for the 2000th win and so on - and were on display in Cal's office.

As I left and was heading back toward the court, a door opened. It was a security guy. Not just any security guy though. It was my Cousin Roger, who is in charge of a security team at the arena. I probably could have stolen the ball from the 2000th win and gotten by with it.

The next morning I thought about heading out for a walk around town, but when I discovered it was 36 degrees I thought better of it. Instead I headed to the lobby and picked up a paper to see the story Jerry Tipton did on Landon Slone's return to Rupp.

Let me stop right here long enough to say I can't say enough good things about Landon and Kelly Wells. I told them both that when they grew tired of the interviews to let me know and they would stop.

Everybody in the state wanted to talk to both of them. Everyone got to Kelly. I finally said no on Landon's behalf when I got a request late Sunday afternoon. His schedule was full and I didn't even ask coach or player. It was just time.

As I left breakfast, I stumbled upon Coach Cal in the lobby of our hotel. He was very kind and gracious as we spoke briefly, me taking just enough of his time to thank him for having us. Not surprisingly, his response was, "No, thank you for coming."

A little later we headed into the arena for the shoot-around before Robert Staggs and I had to leave to, um, "fulfill other obligations." Let's just say deSha's restaurant may have been involved.

The night of the game I went looking for John Hayden to thank him for his help. I found him hard at work. In-state schools are the only ones who travel with cheerleaders, and that means there's a lot less floor space for photographers. He was hustling with a co-worker trying to recover as much of the space as he could.

They were stacked on both sides of the court, two and even three deep in places. But as he had with everything else involving our game, John had everything worked out by the time the gates opened.

In the end, it was a perfect experience. From media relations to the arena staff to the head coach himself, everyone was as accommodating as they could be through the whole process.

The University of Kentucky is known for being the class of college basketball. We learned last week it extends throughout the department of athletics.

And I, for one, wasn't the least bit surprised.

use everybody that is available to win this football game."

Phillips said that Locke went the entire practice and even caught some balls out the backfield. The head coach said that Locke has been cleared by team doctors, however the question now is if he has his strength back enough to "protect himself" and be able to take hits.

The Wildcats will return to the Tim Couch Practice Fields on Thursday for the final on-field preparation for the Charleston Southern game.

Saturday is National College Football Day. Nearly 100 spectators gathered around a field in New Brunswick, N.J., on Nov. 6, 1869 to witness a game unlike anything seen before. On that day, Rutgers defeated Princeton, 6-4, but more importantly, the players left a lasting legacy that would evolve into the great spectacle of intercollegiate football. To honor the birth of an American institution, the AT&T Cotton Bowl Classic created a holiday to be held annually on the first Saturday in November.

In 2006, the holiday took on added significance when the Classic teamed up with the V Foundation for Cancer Research to raise funds and increase awareness in the fight against cancer. This year, the American Football Coaches Association, the National Association of Collegiate Football Officials, the Football Writers Association of America, the College Sports Information Directors of America and the Athletic Equipment Managers Association have given their support to this great cause.

Celebrate the seventh annual National College Football Day on Nov. 6 and consider making a donation to the V Foundation. For more information, visit www.nationalcollegiatefootballday.com

'Survival Quest'

by TOM DOTY
TIMES COLUMNIST

A course in wilderness survival takes on a new meaning when the class runs afoul of a quasi-military group of weekend warriors in this action/drama flick that closed out the 1980s for Don Coscarelli (creator of the "Phantasm" series and "Bubba Ho-Tep").

Tom Doty
Times Columnist

The film opens with an introduction to the six characters who have signed up for "Survival Quest." This is a multifaceted program that teaches survival skills while promoting the values of group dynamics.

The group includes:
 ■ Gray, a juvenile offender with abandonment issues.

■ Joey, an easygoing doofus who is afraid of his own shadow.

■ Cheryl, a divorcee who wants to take charge of her life.

■ Hal, a senior citizen who wants one last stab at adventure.

They wind up flying out to their site with a survivalist group led by Jake. He's a "take no prisoners" sort of blowhard who appears to enjoy bullying people more than molding them into all that they can be. The two groups avoid each other but the military types can't resist needling Gray for showing up on the arm of two law enforcement officers.

The Questers hit it off with their leader, Hank. He's a sort of combi-

Editor's Note: For years, Floyd County Times founder and former publisher Norman Allen wrote a weekly column that looked at Floyd County through his eyes. His columns are being reprinted due to request.

With the thermometer hovering around 80 Monday, I began to wonder if anybody ever had spring fever in November.

THE TEMPTATION

Just before the election Watt Hale surfaced long enough to tell of another temptation politics can offer. Said he was out, enjoying the sunny weather when he came upon two old acquaintances from Carter county. And both, he said, boldly confessed they are Republicans. "Confessed, they did, and didn't know the danger. They didn't know there's a reward out, around here for Republicans, and I was tempted to turn 'em in," he admitted.

When I idly remarked that I understood the pay per head is pretty high, Watt wondered how much. "You know, I might change my mind," he said.

Watt's remarks about the minority status of the G.O.P. hereabouts recalls the time, several years back, when he was a candidate. When I met him in front of the old courthouse here, he hailed me with, "Would you know where I could find a Republican? I need one to sign my candidate papers. I've got one tied up to a telephone pole, up at the Uncle Hi corner, but I need another, and this one's

DINNER DIVA

It's all Greek to me

I've been touting the healthy benefits of eating yogurt for over 10 years now. It works well for people who are lactose intolerant and it's a great added source of calcium. Plus, it makes a great substitute for things like sour cream and mayo.

While most everyone is familiar with regular yogurt there are many out there who have not tried Greek yogurt yet. It's creamier and thicker than regular yogurt while providing some solid health benefits over regular yogurt. Greek yogurt has more nutritional value than regular yogurt. In addition, it can be used to prepare dishes that require hot temperatures without curdling which makes it easier to replace that sour cream in cooked dishes. Try using it as a substitute for sour cream next time you make Beef Stroganoff!

Greek yogurt has double the protein in the finished product than regular yogurt. This is because it is strained 3 times rather than just the 2 times that regular yogurt is strained. The triple straining removes so much liquid whey that it leaves the Greek yogurt very rich in protein. Greek yogurt is also lower in carbohydrates than regular yogurt as well as having 50 percent less sodium.

The only area where Greek yogurt isn't as effective as regular yogurt is in calcium content. Because of the triple straining a lot of the calcium is removed along with the liquid whey. This leaves regular yogurt providing 3 times more calcium than Greek yogurt but still a good source of nutrition and a good substitute in your cooked dishes.
