Jenny Wiley State Park to hold '80s Prom'
by SHELDON COI
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — Jenny Wiley State Resort Park will hold a prom in the next couple of weeks with a 1980s twist. The park is planning an "80s Prom" for Friday, July 8, at the May Lodge beginning at 8 p.m. One aspect that Trinity Shepherd, the park's naturalist, said could be most interesting is that those attending are encouraged to wear their best attire from the 1980s or, of course, newer clothes that have a similar feel to those of the era. Those sporting the best duds could find themselves crowned king and queen of the event, Trinity said. The cost to attend the prom event is $12 for couples and $7 for singles. For more information, contact Jenny Wiley Park at (606) 889-1790.

State park seeks alcohol sales

by SHELDON COMPTON

PRESTONSBURG — Plans are under way to sell alcohol at the resort park in Prestonsburg. The works through Kentucky's Tourism, Arts and Heritage Cabinet to apply for a liquor license to sell alcoholic beverages at five state parks, including Jenny Wiley State Resort Park in Prestonsburg.

Spokeman Gil Lawson said the idea is to acquire the license in order to sell alcohol at the restaurants in each of the five parks, which include, along with Jenny Wiley, Lake Barkley, General Butler and beer at golf courses at My Old Kentucky Home and Audubon State Park. Speaking to the Associated Press, Lawson said there were no plans to expand the five locations with more bars or other add-ons that would potentially lessen the parks' family-oriented atmosphere. "Our revenue, our budget issues have been well-documented over the last few years," Lawson told AP reporters, speaking directly to the idea of remaining competitive in the tourism arena. "We feel like this is a step to help us generate more revenue for our parks." The decision to apply for the liquor license came after a study conducted last year suggested the move could offer a needed economic boost. (See ALCOHOL, page 7)

Volunteers help build new church

BETSY LAYNE — As nearly 30 volunteers from Mission Builders, a team made up of electricians, plumbers, cooks, carpenters and other skilled workers from seven different churches, pulled into the parking lot at Calvary Baptist Church at Betsy Layne this past Sunday, no one would argue it wasn't a welcome sight. The parade of trucks, trailers, SUVs and six motorcycles brought 27 volunteers to the church, where members eagerly awaited their arrival. From all walks of life, each member of the group planned this year's vacation time around helping Calvary Baptist build a new church. "Their work is very precise," said a member of another church where the team had volunteered previously. "They have never had a problem with inspectors because their teams get the job done right." The Alabama-based group, having finished its work, will leave Floyd County this morning, but another Alabama group, the Bethel Baptist Builders, will arrive Sunday to pick up where PIKEVILLE — When Kentucky Post 9 Commander Capt. Todd Kidd returned from a recent trip to Frankfort, he came bearing gifts. Kidd traveled to Frankfort to pick up a new Crime Response Vehicle, a Ford Super-Duty truck equipped with all the equipment needed for needed for on-scene crime analysis; including a generator, trace evidence analyzer and a latent fingerprint processing machine.

The vehicle was presented to Kidd by Gov. Steve Beshear and KSP Commissioner Rodney Brewer. "Positioning these vehicles at all KSP posts will be a valuable asset to KSP, as well as an additional resource for local law enforcement," Beshear said. "Combining state and local resources, especially during difficult economic times, will provide the commonwealth with more efficient and effective crime-solving

Judges attend training

by SHELDON COMPTON

FRANKFORT
Kentucky Court of Appeals Judge Janet L. Stumbo and Family Court Judge Dwight S. Marshall recently attended a local rules seminar that took place May 17 and 18 in Louisville aimed at updating local rules of practice for family law cases.

The seminar focused on helping courts update their local rules to comply with new statewide family court rules of procedure and practice adopted Jan. 1 by the Kentucky Supreme Court.

Judges, attorneys and parties must follow the new statewide rules when handling such matters as divorce, termination of parental rights, domestic violence, child support, juvenile status offenses, adoption, and dependency, neglect or abuse.

According to Chief Justice John D. Minton Jr., the new rules will change the way family law is practiced in Kentucky. Prior to these changes, there were no statewide rules specifically for family law cases, which are among the most sensitive and difficult cases to come before our courts, Minton said.

Stumbo, Marshall and other judges who attended received resources and on-site assistance in updating local rules to comply with the new rules of procedure during the seminar.

In addition to Floyd County, Stumbo represents Boyd, Breathitt, Carter, Elliott, Greenup, Harlan, Johnson, Knott, Lawrence, Letcher, Magoffin, Martin, Menifee, Montgomery, Morgan, Owsley, Perry, Pike, Powell, Rowan and Wolfe counties.

Marshall presides over family courts in Floyd, Knott and Magoffin counties.

Jobless rate drops below 10 percent for the first time in more than two years FRANKFORT — For the first time since February 2009, Kentucky's seasonally adjusted preliminary unemployment rate fell below the 10 percent mark to 9.8 percent in May 2011, according to the Office of Employment and Training (OET), an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet. The state's rate was 10 percent in April 2011.

The preliminary May 2011 jobless rate dropped 0.5 percentage point below the 10.4 percent rate recorded in May 2010 for the state. The state's May 2011 rate matches the February 2009 rate of 9.8 percent.

"Kentucky's unemployment rate decreased to 9.8 percent in May 2011, dropping below 10 percent for the first time since February 2009. However, nonfarm employment was weighed down by supply disruptions due to the tsunami in Japan and high food and gas prices," said Dr. Edstine Detzel, OET chief labor market analyst.

The U.S. seasonally adjusted jobless rate increased from 9 percent in April 2011 to 9.1 percent in May 2011, according to the U.S. Department of Labor. Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually count people working.

One of the 11 major nonfarm North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) job sectors reported an employment increase in May 2011, while 10 decreased, according to OET. A decrease of 6,000 jobs in May 2011 brought Kentucky's nonfarm employment to a seasonally adjusted total of 1,789,100.

Kentucky's nonfarm employment has grown by 14,500 workers since May 2010.

According to the seasonally adjusted preliminary data, Kentucky's leisure and hospitality sector added 700 jobs in May 2011. Since May 2010, the sector has surged by 11,500 positions. The leisure and hospitality sector includes arts, entertainment, and recreation accommodations and food services, and drinking places.

The state's trade, transportation and utilities sector plummeted by 1,300 jobs in May 2011. This area includes retail and wholesale trade, transportation and utilities. It is the largest sector in Kentucky with 359,100 employees. Since May 2010, the number of jobs in this sector has decreased by 1,000.

"Employment decreases in the trade, transportation and utilities sector occurred at retail trade enterprises. As gas and food prices surge, consumers are struggling to make ends meet. The retrenchment by consumers is negatively impacting retail trade establishments through a decline in discretionary spending," said Detzel.

Educational and health services sector jobs dropped by 1,200 in May 2011. The sector has surged by 3,300 workers since May 2010. This sector includes private and nonprofit establishments that provide either education and training or health care and social assistance to their clients.

Kentucky's manufacturing sector gained by 1,100 jobs in May 2011. Since employment in

ing sector has positions. This month, the manufacturing sector added 1,100 jobs in the subsector. The production of goods and services, which includes such establishments as repair and maintenance businesses; personal and laundry services; religious organizations; and five and professional organizations, fell by 300 positions in May 2011. This sector had 2,600 more positions in May 2011 than May 2010.

The information sector declined by 100 workers in May 2011. This segment, which includes firms involved in publishing, Internet activities, data processing, broadcasting, and news syndication, has decreased by 200 positions since May 2010.

Employment in the mining and logging sector dwindled by 100 in May 2011. The sector has gained 900 jobs since May 2010.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics' monthly estimate of the number of employed

Kentuckians for May 2011 was 1,913,258 on a seasonally adjusted basis. This figure is up 6,421 from the 1,906,837 employed in April 2011, and up 48,978 from the 1,864,280 employed in May 2010.

The monthly estimate of the number of unemployed Kentuckians for May 2011 was 206,908, down 4,829 from the 211,737 Kentuckians unemployed in April 2011, and down 9,681 from the 216,589 unemployed in May 2010.

The monthly estimate of the number of Kentuckians in the civilian labor force for May 2011 was 2,120,166. This figure is up 1,592 from the 2,118,574 recorded in April 2011, and up 39,297 from the 2,080,869 recorded in May 2010.

How elected officials can celebrate men this Father's Day

by ELLEN BRAVO and DAN MULHERN

After being inundated with news reports of male public figures behaving badly, Father's Day gives us a much-needed opportunity to turn attention to the many fathers and husbands who work tirelessly to support their families — and to call on elected officials to move policies that allow all men to be good fathers, sons and husbands without being punished for it at work.

First, we saw Mark Kelly take time off from his space training to be at the bedside of his wife, Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords, as she recovered from the traumatic shooting.

Then, in a more celebratory moment, Colby Lewis and Ian Desmond told the baseball league and fans that while they loved the game, the birth of a child warranted missing one or two.

Happily but not surprisingly, the Texas Rangers are still in first place, and the Endeavor shuttle launch was a success.

The iconic photos of Mark Kelly camped out at Gabrielle Giffords' bedside and holding her hand offer poignant evidence that men, as well as women, respond to a loved one's crisis by wanting to be right by that person's side.

Scientific evidence demonstrates that the presence of these men is not just sentimental or symbolic. Babies whose fathers have been more actively involved with their care score higher on a key infant development test and are more socially responsive. A year later, these babies show more resilience when faced with stressful situations.

Similarly, the involvement of loved ones is critical to the recovery of brain trauma patients. According to Dr. Stephan Mayer, director of the Neurological Intensive Care Unit at Columbia University Medical Center, "the common denominator is a present, loving and supportive family. I can't say how important it is to have your loved ones around you helping you battle through."

It's awesome that these men were able to take time off to support their wives and welcome their babies into this world, and they could do it all without worrying about their job. But the policies that allowed these high-profile and high-powered fathers and husbands to be with their families at critical junctures are sorely lacking for most of the dads who are working hard to support their families.

Consider this: the law allowing men to take family leave covers only half the country's workers. Of those who have it, many cannot afford to take it because the time is unpaid.

Two in five private sector workers have no paid sick days, and the vast majority of workers who do are not allowed to use the time to care for a sick family member.

Without paid sick days or paid family leave, which are policies in nearly every other country around the world, too many of our dads miss the births of their children and are unable to stay home to care for their kids when they're sick because of the fear of losing their job, or being unable to miss a day's wages.

In this season of commemorating fathers and mothers, leaders across the country have a chance to give families a really meaningful gift: support for policies that allow men to be caregivers as well as breadwinners.

Just this week, Governor Dan Malloy will sign the country's first statewide law letting workers earn paid sick days that they can use for their own illness or that of a family member. City Council members in Philadelphia

Republicans have hatched a health care plan that will bring down costs dramatically. It's called "Die Young." It mainly targets the poor.

Democrats have a plan, too. It's called "Appoint a Commission of Experts; They'll Know What to Do." Though less effective than the GOP model at lowering costs, it has the great advantage of sparing politicians difficult votes.

Both are very disappointing. Never fear, I too have a plan. It's modest, universal, and foolproof. If the nation were to embrace it, we'd not only cut health care costs in half, our budget deficit would shrink to the equivalent of spare change.

This is my plan: Stay healthy. That's it. The whole plan. Just imagine if people started to take long walks instead of downing handfuls of pills each day. Suppose they ate real food instead of the toxic waste dished up by fast food restaurants and marketed by processed food conglomerates. Think what would happen if we began teaching our children that foods other than sugar taste pretty good, once you get used to them.

What if we started spending as much money and effort on being well as we do on getting sick?

Pretty soon you'd have cardiologists wandering the streets with portable blood-pressure machines, offering to give you a reading for a quarter.

You'd have treatment centers full of dialysis machines with nobody to dialyze.

You'd have giant cancer clinics with their terrifying machines looking as abandoned as a Detroit auto plant.

All that and more is within our grasp. It wouldn't involve government at any level or the socialization of medicine. Neither would it interfere with the sacred doctor-patient relationship nor pay tribute to an insurance company.

It's voluntary, constitutional, and smart. You're probably skeptical. I don't blame you. I was too, until I read a book called The China Study. At the center of The China Study is a giant in the field of nutritional research, and his son Thomas Campbell II.

The book lays out the results of a lifetime of research on diet as it relates to disease, especially cancer. At the center of The China Study is a joint Chinese-Western effort that is the largest and most comprehensive such study ever attempted.

The results were nothing short of startling. They found that animal fats and protein — milk included — tend to make you sick. Vegetables make you well.

Laboratory studies confirmed that even if massive amounts of carcinogens were fed to rats and mice, they didn't produce much cancer — until animal protein was added to the diet.

Think on that. Our air, water, and food supplies are being corrupted with cancer-causing materials every day. Yet the study indicates that unless you combine those materials with protein from meat and dairy products, you probably won't get cancer.

Dr. Campbell also describes studies indicating that a plant-based diet has a preventative effect on diabetes, obesity, high blood pressure, and autoimmune diseases like MS and rheumatoid arthritis. In some cases, a rigid plant-based diet was found to roll back those diseases.

The answer to health, then, seems to lie in becoming a vegan — someone who eats only food derived from plants.

I've just lost you, haven't I? A plant-only diet sounds like the latest fad taken up by Hollywood celebrities.

It isn't. There's strong scientific evidence that it provides a way to go long and healthy life that doesn't end prematurely in a hospital bed with a dozen tubes attached to your wasted body.

Don't misunderstand me. I'm not advising you become a vegan. It's a hard life, particularly if you're not an inventive cook. A vegetarian meal can sometimes taste good, but eating out is often a challenge.

But remember this. There are a thousand ways to die and every one of them has a lobbyist working for it in Washington.

You are the only lobbyist working for No. 1.

Read The China Study. It could change your life.

The Usual Eccentric

A journey into No-Man's-Land

by WILL E. SANDERS

Recently, I formed an exploratory voyage into the deep, dark recesses of my girlfriend's purse. This cunning expedition into a place where most men dare not tread required a lion's share of beguiling on my part — this act was done upon my own accord and without permission — but I am an ends-justify-the-means sorta guy. I suppose it qualified as an act of invading her privacy, but I reasoned that since I bought her the enormous pink purse for her birthday, technically the purse belonged to me. I still have the receipt if you question my honesty.

One of the first things I came across was a mint from Olive Garden, which appeared old and smelled of leather. After devouring the mint, I ravaged through the secret compartments of her purse in search of more sugar and expired chocolate.

I found some cherry-flavored lip balm. Oh, well, you know what they say. In life, you have to be willing to make compromises.

In a mysterious hidden pocket, I found a spool of dental floss. I have never witnessed my girlfriend using dental floss, so the necessity to carry 55 yards of it on her person at all times and at all hours of the day gives me an ice cream headache.

What I found next startled me. Three tennis balls, each one more mysterious than the next. I can only speculate why any woman would need just one tennis ball in her purse, yet alone three. I would have rather found a severed head in there. At least that would come with an explanation.

Meanwhile, I can only surmise as to the nature of the tennis balls, or what nefarious purpose they serve, served or will serve in the future.

I have formed a hypothesis if you would like to hear it. Either my girlfriend, Christine, is MacGyver's daughter or perhaps a juggler who hasn't come out of the closet yet.

My heart skipped a beat when I found gift certificates for a local buffet. She's been holding out on me! Suddenly, the realization I could be shoving food into my mouth at a bare-bottom rate instead of snooping through the confines of Christine's purse tempted me. But alas, with the taste of cherry still on my tongue, I continued rifling through the pink purse in haste, despite finding a coupon for a free sundae at the Cold Stone Creamery.

With the help of some rope, 12 mounting brackets and the horsepower of my Doberman, Silas, I managed to excavate two large, interconnected circular discs. After mistaking them for tinted dinner plates at first, I soon realized these were a pair of the largest sunglasses that I ever set my eyes on. (Mmm, world play.)

The miniature flashlight I found — in all probability used by Christine to actually find things in her gigantic purse (say, dental floss) — further aided in the discovery of the Holy Grail of purse treasures.

I found her Ohio driver's license.

There, printed beneath a laminated surface specifically designed to make any picture of you resemble a Frankenstein, were all the pertinent details I had been searching for. I have to tell you, it's reassuring to be dating a woman who is an organ donor. You never know when you might need a kidney, right?

However, I did notice a certain abnormality. Her listed weight was 120 pounds. Yeah, maybe on Jupiter. Christine is the only woman I know whose weight on her ID is actually considerably more than it is in actuality. A stiff wind is normally all it takes to blow her three states over. In fact, by comparison, I could probably fit her into her own purse if she folded like a Monopoly board. Her purse is just that big, and she is just that small.

Since I am now past the point of Golf scramble raises nearly $3K for youth camps

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

LONDON — Lana Cornett stepped up to the practice green at Crooked Creek Golf Course Monday morning and sank a 20-foot putt with a precision typically reserved for the club's professional.

Cornett, who doesn't play golf, reacted with astonishment to the cheers of the 55 golfers gathered for a scramble named in honor of her late husband, Charles L. Cornett, a former Kentucky State Police deputy commissioner.

The soft-spoken Cornett was accompanied by her son, Justin Cornett, and surrounded by many friends from law enforcement for the ceremonial opening. Using a golf cart chairfeured by her good friend Tammie Gorman, Mrs. Cornett made it a point to individually thank each of the 14 teams as they played their way around the sprawling Laurel County links.

By early afternoon the teams had completed their rounds and awards presented, but the biggest winners were two summer camps for youth — Camp UNITE and Camp Promise. Each camp received a check for $1,487, presented by Justin Cornett.

Accepting for Camp UNITE was Karen Kelly, director of Operation UNITE.

"Charlie was very passionate about youth," Kelly said, noting Cornett was one of the individuals whose vision created the anti-drug organization eight years ago. Camp UNITE, now in its fifth summer, is a free five-day, four-night leadership/adventure program for youth across 29 counties of southern and eastern Kentucky who will be entering grades 7-9. This year's camp will be held July 25-29 on the University of the Cumberlands campus in Williamsburg.

Camp Promise directors KSP Trooper Ben Campbell and HSDTA officer Russell Dishner accepted for their organization.

The third annual Camp Promise, a free four-day, three-night program for children from Perry, Knott and Breathitt counties, will be held June 20-23 at the Twin Rocks Bible Camp in Perry County.

Both camps seek to help youth develop leadership skills, build confidence and trust, and interact with positive role models.

Cornett, of Hindman, served more than 38 years with the KSP, retiring as a sergeant in 2000. He rejoined the KSP as assistant to the commissioner in 2002, retiring from that role 18 months later. He passed away last November at age 65.

Kentucky State Police Capt. Scott Miller, commander of Post 13 in Hazard, called the first Charlie Cornett Memorial Golf Scramble a huge success.

This sentiment was echoed by UNITE Law Enforcement Director Dan Smoot, who said the scramble exceeded all expectations.

"Charlie was a very passionate advocate for youth,"

Smoot said. "It is very fitting that his legacy continues to benefit so many children."

Taking first place in the scramble was the team of Bill Crisp, Shannon Crisp, Greg Kemper and David Nichols. Second place went to the team of Tommy Baker, Clyde Caudill, James Caudill and Tim Kilburn. Third place honors went to Randall Abrier, Fred Brashear, Fred Combs and E.T. Gabbard.

Prizes were also awarded to Jack Duff for closest to the pin, Karl Lewis for the longest drive, and David Nichols for the longest putt.

I do fully expect Christine to wallop me over my mammoth-sized head with her mammoth-sized pink purse after reading this — rendering me unconscious in the process and otherwise incapable of further invasions into her privacy. And as I rested prone on the ground, she would begin pelting my lifeless body with a vast array of neon-colored tennis balls, which she would produce out of her purse like a magician performing a ribbon trick and winging them at me with amazing velocity.

passed a similar bill*, and may be joined this year by decision-makers in Seattle and New York and voters in Denver.

In other states and cities across the country, leaders are realizing that paid sick days is a policy that's good for the public health, good for working families and good for the economy. And Members of Congress can sign on to the Healthy Families Act, a national paid sick days bill re-introduced by Senator Tom Harkin and Congresswoman Rosa DeLauro.

Congress can also support the President's introduction of $23 million in the federal budget for grants to states to help establish family leave insurance funds that will ensure men and women are able to afford to take care of themselves and their families after the birth of a child or during longer term illnesses. This policy is also gaining traction. California and New Jersey have established programs. Washington has passed one; several others are exploring paid family leave insurance.

Few men can throw a ball 90 miles an hour or hurtle into space at 17,500 miles an hour. But all our dads are working hard, and they deserve time to be loving family members.

Rhodes agrees to coach Cordia boys

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

CORDIA — Former University of Kentucky basketball player Rodrick Rhodes has agreed to become head coach of the Cordia High School boys' basketball program. Owsley County and Harlan high schools have also courted Rhodes this offseason. The Cordia site-base council still needs to vote on and approve the hiring.

Rhodes played for UK from 1992-

1995, scoring 1,209 points for the Wildcats.

Currently, Rhodes is an assistant coach at Texas-Pan American. Rhodes was previously an assistant coach at the University of Massachusetts and an Administrative Assistant Coach at Seton Hall University. In 2005, Rhodes was an assistant coach at St. Edward's University in Austin, Texas. Following the stint in Austin, Texas, Rhodes moved on to become an assistant at Idaho State University in 2006.

Rhodes played three years at the University of Kentucky. He transferred to the University of Southern California for his senior year.

As a prep player, Rhodes was a three-time Parade All-American and helped Jersey City's St. Anthony High School win two state titles (1989, 1991).

Cordia concluded the 2010-11 season 7-16 under the direction of head coach Denny Fugate. The Lions compete in the 53rd District along with Knott County Central, Letcher County Central and Jenkins.

Notes from around our sporting world

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

It's been a while since we've taken a good look around the sports landscape, so let's kick off the weekend with a good, healthy dose of notes.

— I may be the only one in Pike County who feels this way but I enjoy playoff hockey. I kind of wish I got Vs, so I could watch it more often. Actually, I really wish ESPN would get the rights back, but I digress.

— I got my copy of the 750-plus-page ESPN book, "These Guys Have All the Fun," this week. Expect a full review when I finish, which should be sometime in 2017.

— Seriously, I thought it was funny when Bill Watson said he'd like to throw it when I finish. I'm a little surprised he didn't ask for it "if" I finish or "when you're tired of lugging it around."

— Don't look now but the Reds just completed a West Coast trip 5-2 after their sweep of the Dodgers. Seriously, how do you lose 2-of-3 at home to a team and then a week later take three in their park?

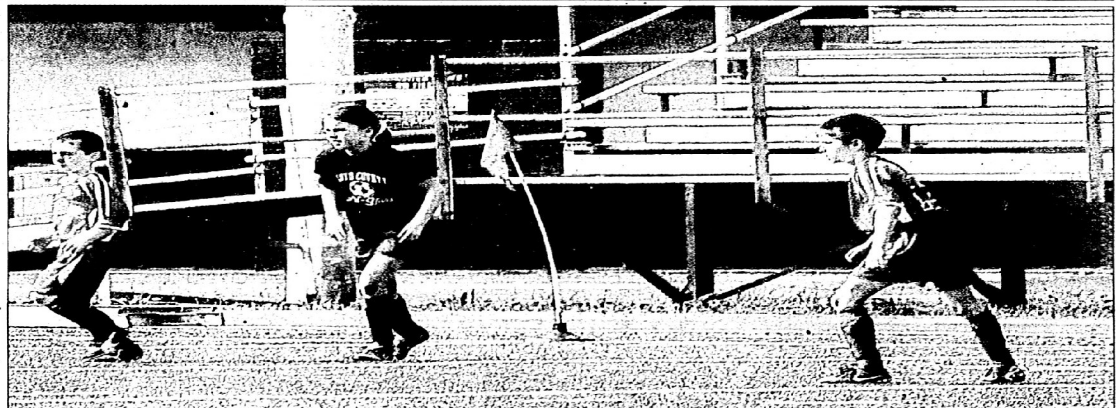

— I have to say, you'd think the NCAA would have better things to do than monitor postgame celebrations held in February. They all but said their feelings were hurt by Kentucky's AD handing its basketball coach a ball at center court.

— Among the other things the NCAA could do: Getting a better handle on what's been going on at The Ohio State University these last several years. Sorry, but I can't get enough of that.

— Was I the only one chuckling at Drew Rosenhaus singing the praises of Terrelle Pryor? Say he's a great football player if you want, but spare me personal accolades of the guy who was driving eight different high-priced vehicles during his time at TOSU, at least one of them on a suspended license.

— Is anyone else noticing the special season of Tiger

The Floyd County U10 All-Stars soccer team improved to 4-0 on Saturday following a 5-1 win over Martin County. Floyd County battled back to win after host Martin County led 1-0 at halftime.

In its first game, Floyd County doubled up Perry County 6-3. In dominant fashion, Floyd County carried a commanding 4-0 lead into halftime.

Floyd County defeated Martin County 5-1 in its second game after leading 2-0 at intermission.

Floyd County blanked Johnson County 5-0 in its third game. The Floyd County U10 team packed a hard-fought 1-0 lead into halftime of the game versus Johnson County, stretching its lead to a comfortable 4-0 advantage after netting three goals in the first eight minutes of the second half.

EKU signee Booth helps Kentucky split All-Star series with Indiana

TIMES STAFF REPORT

RICHMOND — Before coming to campus later this summer to begin her collegiate career, Eastern Kentucky signee Carla Booth helped Kentucky to a split this past weekend in the annual Kentucky/Indiana All-Star basketball series.

In two games against the all-stars from the Hoosier state, Booth averaged 11 points, 3.5 rebounds, 2.5 steals, 1.5 assists and 0.5 blocks.

In Friday's 64-57 victory over Indiana at Bellarmine University in Louisville, Booth tied for the team lead with three assists, was second on the team with nine points and tied for third with six rebounds. She also had a steal and a block; Booth scored seven of her nine points in the final 2 1/2 minutes to help the Kentucky squad secure the win. After a pair of Indiana free throws with 2:36 left made it a one-point game in favor of the Bluegrass state all-stars, Booth knocked down a three-pointer to provide a small cushion. On Saturday at Conoco Fieldhouse in Indianapolis, Booth led the Kentucky team with 13 points. She also contributed four steals and a rebound. The future Lady Colonel scored five consecutive points midway through the second half to close the Indiana lead to nine, 52-43, but that is as close as Kentucky would get in a 69-56 loss.

Booth is the fifth Kentucky/Indiana All-Star series alum in the last three years to join pitcher Justin Verlander? After Tuesday night's outing — a complete-game two-hit shutout of the Tribe with 12 strikeouts and only one walk — he's now 8-3 with a 2.66 ERA. He has 105 strikeouts with a WHIP — walks plus hits divided by innings pitched — of 0.89.

— Anybody surprised that Derek Jeter is going on the "disabled list" just as the time comes for his trip to Cincinnati?

— If you're looking for a very inexpensive break in the Commonwealth, allow me to recommend a Lexington Legends game. We headed there two weeks ago and loved it. Tickets are available at the window and dirt cheap — we sat in the second level (a perfect view) behind the Legends' on-deck circle for $9 a seat — and had a blast.

On the night in question the good guys won big, we got a postgame fireworks show without having to wait a half-hour and enjoyed the "ZOoperstars," those inflated guys who dance around and put on quite a show.

To top it all off, it's a nice level of baseball. The right fielder made a diving catch heading toward the foul line that was as good as any you'll see in the Bigs this season.

— After the opening round of the KHSAA baseball tournament, the closest team to our mountain home remaining was Mercer County. That's about a three-hour drive from here.

I'm looking forward to Saturday's beginning of the College World Series, but you have to take pause when you realize they're now allotting five hours between games. That said, I don't have a sports bucket list, but if I did, the CWS would be on it.

— And finally ... When you work around young people, the last thing you expect is to hear of one of them dying. So I was completely stunned, and still am, with last week's passing of Ewan Linton.

I knew Ewie pretty well, I guess, and always enjoyed seeing him. He always had a smile, a handshake and a hug, and always asked how I was doing. He always called me "Mr. Bentley," and always had something to say to make me laugh. Ewie brought a lot of energy and passion to the basketball court, and the same could be said for his life. He lived it to the fullest and there's a lot to be said for that.

He was also very proud of his family. I walked in Kelly Wells' office a couple of years ago to find a framed photo of a child so tiny it was being held in a single hand. It was Ewie, Kelly explained, holding his newborn daughter. He wanted to share this with Kelly, which tells you a little about how important that coach was to this particular player.

Ewan Linton received his degree on May 21, a date I easily remember because it is my father's birthday. Last Friday, his life ended, far too soon, far too early.

He left behind a host of brokenhearted friends and family members from Pikeville to Jamaica, but enough smiles to fill that road and thousands of others. Thanks for everything, Ewie. It was our honor to know you.

MOVIES FROM THE BLACK LAGOON

'Seconds Apart'

by TOM DOTY
TIMES COLUMNIST

A pair of deeply disturbed juveniles make life unbearable for everyone in their orbit in this shocker from the "After Dark Horror Festival" label.

Tom Doty
Times Columnist

This is the "After Dark" film we have all been waiting for since the series began four years ago. The story begins with a living nightmare, as members of a high school football team get drunk at a party and let a harmless (though decidedly sexist) game about their female classmates escalate into a shocking bloodbath, as a handgun is introduced and the boys begin playing "Russian Roulette." Most disturbing about this scene is that it appears to have been orchestrated by twin boys Seth and Jonah, who wield psychic powers the "X-Men" would envy.

These kids are creepy to the max. They are cute when twins are toddlers, but very odd after they have passed through puberty, videotape their misdeeds and live in a time-warp-styled home complete with 1950s-style parents, who appear to be on enough Valium to bring down a rhino.

Things don't slow down much as we meet a defective detective, Lampkin, who is struggling with his own demons about losing his wife to the same house fire that left him scarred and suffering from intense nightmares. Lampkin quickly tumbles to the involvement of the twins but learns a startling truth — no one at the party can remember the night of these nightmares.

The story moves quickly as Lampkin investigates the boys while the twins' unhealthy relationship begins to come apart under the dual pressures of the police investigation and a young lady coming between them. While Lampkin uncovers some horrible truths about the boys, their relationship begins to fracture and no one is safe.

The finale reveals exactly what caused these boys to go off the deep end, and it isn't pretty. That said, their violent past makes for great horror movie stuff that should have you covering your eyes a few times as their barbaric past is revealed. You will never look at broken glass the same way again after seeing what they make their first babysitter do with a plate full of the stuff.

The gory finale will please horror buffs, but don't expect one of those stupid endings where a sequel is inevitable. This one features a smart and definitive conclusion that will satisfy viewers who just want to enjoy one story, well told.

This is as good as horror flicks get. The acting is top-notch, the imagery and production value jump-starts than a "Hammer One" employee. (They also give you a dogged detective to root for and cast the film's only star.

America's most beloved musical set to open at Jenny Wiley

PRESTONSBURG
Leapin' Lizards! America's most beloved musical, "Annie," will be opening at Jenny Wiley Theatre on June 24, on the amphitheater, main stage at 8:15 pm.

"Annie," with music by Charles Strouse and book by Thomas Meehan, is directed by Wytheville, Va. Wohlfahrt Haus Dinner Theatre Artistic Director and choreographer, Jill Godfrey, who has also directed past JW productions including "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" and "A Chorus Line." Godfrey has also choreographed several other JW musical productions.

The original Broadway production of "Annie" won seven 1977 Tony Awards, including Best Musical, Book and Score. The original production is one of the top 20 longest running shows in Broadway history, and "Annie" continues to be one of the most successful musicals ever.

"Annie" is a spunky Depression-era orphan determined to find her parents, who abandoned her years ago on the doorstep of a New York City orphanage run by the cruel, embittered Miss Hannigan. In adventure after adventure, she is aided by a colorful cast of characters, including her personal secretary, the orphanage's headmistress, and a young boy who is her only friend.

After the called adventure, she is aided by a colorful cast of characters, including her personal secretary, the orphanage's headmistress, and a young boy who is her only friend.

Dad's on the right track with chugging engine

by TOM and RAY MAGLIOZZI

Dear Tom and Ray: I drive a 1995 Buick Regal two-door custom coupe. In the past week or so, I have noticed that while I am accelerating around 55 to 65 mph, my "Old Man" starts sputtering, sort of like a cough. He has an especially difficult time keeping up speed while going up an incline. The feeling is like a "chug-chug-chug!" along with a jolty-type lurch. My dad thinks it may be the spark plugs. Any thoughts? He has only 82,000 miles, and had only 17,000 in 2002 when I bought him. I'd like to drive him until I am forced to leave him on the side of the road. (I'm very attached to this car.) Thanks! -- Amanda RAY: I think your dad may be right. It sounds like a classic engine misfire. The spark plugs are the first place I'd look.

TOM: When you're asking the engine to do the greatest amount of work -- like climbing a hill at high speed -- you'd be most likely to notice a bad spark plug. That's when you're asking the spark plug to ignite the greatest amount of gasoline.

RAY: And if a spark plug is weak, the extra gasoline and turbulence in that cylinder actually can douse the spark and cause you to run on five cylinders instead of six. That's what makes the car feel like it's chugging. It is!

TOM: If it's been many miles since you've changed the spark plugs (like 82,000?), start there -- assuming they're not fused to the cylinder heads at this point.

RAY: If it's not a bad plug, it could be a bad spark-plug wire or even a bad coil. You might even consider getting -- wait for it -- a tuneup! Because there may be other things (filters, belts, etc.) that are overdue for attention.

TOM: But give your dad a pat on the back, Amanda. He's steering you in the right direction.

This transmission problem isn't wife's fault

Dear Tom and Ray: Something my wife does drives me crazy, and I want to get your support before pointing it out to her. Our driveway is approximately 60 feet long and uphill. It's fairly steep for three-quarters of the run, then it flattens out at the top. My wife insists on backing up the driveway to park so she can go forward down the driveway in the morning. I think that backing up is harder on the transmission than driving up forward. Currently, we are experiencing signs of transmission issues on our 2004 Volvo XC90 T6, which I've found are common with this particular car. But could my wife be exacerbating the issue or causing it directly by backing up the driveway every evening? Thanks for your wise counsel. -- Jackson

TOM: I'm glad you wrote to us, Jackson. That way, we can stop you from humiliating yourself in front of your wife.

RAY: And instead allow you to humiliate yourself in front of the whole country.

TOM: It's unlikely that your wife had anything to do with your transmission problem -- unless she's backing up 60 miles a day instead of 60 feet.

RAY: In which case, she'd have a transmission problem and a stiff neck.

TOM: Reverse gear is basically the same as any other gear, in an automatic transmission, Jackson. In most cases, it's made of the same metal and uses the same hardening process. And in many automatics, reverse actually is not a separate gear. The transmission just uses an internal clutch or a brake to make one of the forward gears go backward.

RAY: Some manufacturers may choose to save a little money on their reverse gear by not making it quite so high-quality, or by not putting it through so rigorous a testing regimen.

Why? Because it doesn't need to perform as well as the forward gears.

TOM: Right. Reverse never has to be "slammed into" at 6,000 rpm. It's always engaged at idle. And it never has to mesh perfectly at 5,000 rpm. Most people rarely go above 1,000 rpm or 2,000 rpm in reverse.

RAY: The vast majority of the time, reverse goes completely unused. When given a choice, most people prefer to go forward.

TOM: Compare the mileage you've driven in reverse with how you've driven in the forward gears. You say your driveway is 60 feet long and your wife backs up it every evening. If she's done that 365 days a year since the car was new in 2004, she'll have gone a total of 29 miles in reverse by now. Compare that with how many forward miles you have on the car: 60,000? 90,000? 120,000?

RAY: So the use of reverse is almost insignificant in the life of the transmission.

TOM: What's much more significant is how hard you drive the car -- whether you stomp on the gas and do jackrabbit starts, and whether you shift from drive to reverse or vice versa while the car is still moving.

RAY: And probably most significant, in your case, are the design and manufacture of the transmission, and the match between the engine and transmission. We know Volvo has had trouble with the XC90 T6 transmission from your year, and I'm guessing it's because the transmission can't handle the torque that this turbocharged engine puts out.

TOM: So you should see if your Volvo dealer will take pity on you and help you fix this, Jackson. That's definitely the person to discuss this with, rather than your wife. Right now you've got a transmission problem. If you blame it on your wife, you'll have a transmission problem and a marital problem.

Orlando Jones, in the role of Lampkin. This actor has always been known for his comedy (he was in the original cast of "Mad TV"), but it's obvious that he always wanted to play a "cop on the edge" type of role. He is entirely believable here as are Gary and Edmund Entin, as the twins. They turn out to be gifted thespians that can handle a taut script, as well as scenes where they have to be spookier than those little girls in "The Shining." All in all, this is a step in the right direction for the "After Dark" people and the best twin-themed horror flick since David Cronenberg directed Jeremy Irons in "Dead Ringers." Best line: "My uncle has diabetes. He doesn't take care of it. He's always losing toes." 2011, rated R.

Rental Central

by TOM DOTY
TIMES COLUMNIST

A better-than-average week for renters saw three above-average flicks sharing shelf space with only one dud.

■ "Battle: Los Angeles" — If you liked "Cloverfield," then you should enjoy this alien invasion epic that focuses on a full-scale extraterrestrial invasion of the "City of Angels." The aliens rock some serious weapons, but we send in the Marines, so it's only a matter of time before E.T. wets himself and heads back to parts unknown. Aaron Eckhart and Michelle Rodriguez star, but they are sometimes hard to spot, due to all of the shaky handheld camera work. You might get a little dizzy watching this, but it is a lot of fun.

■ "Kill the Irishman" —

It's been way too long since we had a good gangster story, and this film fills the bill nicely. Ray Stevenson ("Roméo" and "The Punisher") stars as a real-life Cleveland gangster who got way too big for his britches. His short career and violent demise are well chronicled here, along with an impressive cast that includes a "too cool for the room" turn by the ghostly Christopher Walken.

■ "Blood Night" — Slasher movies could make a comeback if they keep putting out efforts like this one. A cast of familiar horror stars get bumped off in ultra-gory ways when they decide to hold a party at the site of a massacre. These kids are not alright, but that's all to the good, as they are dispatched in colorful ways that showcase some amazing special effects. Danielle Harris

("Halloween 4 and 5") and Bill Mosely ("The Devil's Rejects") star.

■ "Red Riding Hood" — Teens might enjoy this PG-13 werewolf spin on the famous fairy tale. Despite a sly performance by Gary Oldman and some fetching photography (this was made by the director of "Twilight"), this tween terror tale is a bit of a groaner. Next week look for paranoid sci-fi adventure action with the release of "The Adjustment Bureau."

Reece Weston Rodriguez, the son of David and Tish Rodriguez, of Hernando, Mississippi, celebrated his 10th birthday on Jan. 9 at Disney World with his family. Reece is the grandson of Bertee and Deziray Kidd, of Harold, and Paul and Susan Smith, of Berea, and Steven Rodriguez, of South Carolina. He is the great-grandson of Otis and Jewell Kidd, of Cannel City.
