More secure driver's license arrives in Floyd County

Jack Latta
Staff Writer

PRESTONSBURG — A new Kentucky driver's license, which has been promoted as offering greater privacy protection and improved security features, is now available in Floyd County.

The licenses were announced in July and offer multiple layers of security features, all linked with each other, to prevent counterfeits and forgeries. Anyone attempting to subvert the licenses would have to compromise multiple technologies, not just one.

Floyd County Circuit Clerk Douglas Ray Hall said this week that while the Floyd County driver's licensing office now has the equipment to create the new licenses, it is not necessary for people to replace them prematurely. "The expiration date is still good," says Hall. "You don't have to replace your license until your current one expires," Hall added that the price to renew one's driver's license is still $20.

The new Kentucky driver's license offers security features such as:

- Digital watermark imperceptible to the human eye
- Bank note-level fine line printing
- Improved dual-side lamination for greater tamper resistance and durability
- Hologram with single-color, ultraviolet "ghost" image

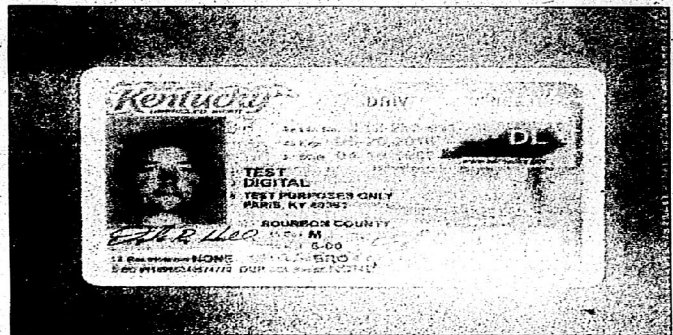

The state of Kentucky's last driver's license update came in 2001 with the introduction of digital licenses, which offered improved security over past paper licenses. Kentucky was the first state which put the driver's image into the bar code on the back of the license.

"The new licenses are the manifestation of Kentucky's efforts to improve the level of service provided to our customers, in addition to securing a credential," Kentuckyans use each day," said Kentucky Transportation Cabinet Department of Vehicle Regulation Commissioner Tom Zawacki in early August.

"It was already time to replace the cameras and computer equipment — most of it more than 10 years old — that our circuit court clerks use in issuing driver's licenses," said Zawacki. "That made it an ideal time to also make this transition to a new license."

Licenses will also feature veteran and organ donor designations. Installation of the new cameras and computer equipment has now been completed in both Floyd, Pike, and

Martin counties. For more information and answers to some frequently asked questions

Stumbo supports legislation

Kentucky House Speaker Greg Stumbo, left, joined with Secretary of State Alison Lundergan Grimes Wednesday in support of legislation that would make it easier for those serving in the military to vote in a timely manner, especially those stationed overseas. One of the proposed changes is allowing those in the military to cast their ballots via email. Speaker Stumbo, who is seen here with state Rep. Darryl Owens during Grimes' remarks, said the initiative would get a very positive reception in the Kentucky House of Representatives during the 2013 legislative session, which begins in January.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HALEAH FL — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended formula. According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism whereby one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTH ARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful conditions ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, and more. ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at:

In memory of Shannon Rogers

Why is it when we spend days together there aren't enough hours for all we want to do and be, but when we're apart, even the minutes seem to last forever? I fill our time apart with all the little things that keep me busy, and keep time passing, but not a moment passes when you're not on my mind and in my heart. I can hardly wait till we're together again.

Guest View Coal severance should stay in the coal counties

News that 1,200 more coal jobs in Appalachia were cut this week was the last thing anyone in our neck of the woods wants to hear. Though those jobs weren't in Kentucky, as a region we'll still feel the impact of job loss.

While the most immediate impact will be felt by the workers needlessly losing their jobs, here in Kentucky where jobs were also cut these past few months, the coal counties can expect a more long-term effect.

Perry County, for instance, as one of the state's top coal producers, receives millions in coal severance each budgetary session of the General Assembly. Our elected leaders in this county have used much of that money to expand waterlines and other needed projects for the people. What we'll experience with an ongoing downturn in coal production will be a decrease in severance funds. In effect, counties like Perry will have less money with which to work.

We're not sure of the overall impact, though wisely Judge-Executive Denny Ray Noble has said that he has made adjustments to the county's budget to reflect any possible losses and ensure that the county's services aren't interrupted. But while Perry County is on sound financial footing, other counties in the region are likely not as lucky, and losses in any kind of funding will hit them harder.

Already state officials have said that coal severance revenues are down significantly — to the tune of about $88 million, and it seems that the state's coal counties are quickly becoming victim to a down market and burdensome regulations from the federal government. Officials in Frankfort reported this past week that 27 of the 35 coal counties eligible for coal severance funds will likely be short of the money needed to fund both single and multi-county projects.

No matter your politics, this is an issue that isn't good for the coal counties, where these funds are being used for worthwhile projects. Considering that about half of the total coal severance funds go to Frankfort, we're not sure why the coal counties, where infrastructure development is needed most, are going to be feeling these impacts.

We urge Frankfort to fully fund coal severance projects in the state's coal counties, and let us continue to use these funds to develop our counties so that our region can play on a more level playing field.

Cigarettes: The killer that won't die

William A. Collins

Would you believe that 45 million adult Americans still smoke? That's about one in five of us grownups. Worldwide this killer habit ends about six million lives each year. But what's most disturbing — 10 percent of victims never even took a puff. They got their cancer from second-hand smoke.

As a superannuated politician, I remember well the hundreds of meetings in back rooms and city council chambers where the air was so thick that I could hardly see, let alone breathe. Luck alone saved me. Others were not so fortunate.

Behind our mayor's dais hung a smoke-blackened WPA mural of the city's founder, which depicted him cheating Native Americans out of their land. When the time came to relocate to a new city hall, taxpayers spent tens of thousands to clean the smoke off of that painting by hand with chemical-laden cotton balls. Affected lungs are even harder to restore.

Luckily, smoking is now less socially acceptable. It's on the decline, but the slope isn't steep any more. The percentage of adult smokers inched down to 19.3 percent in 2010 from 20.9 percent in 2005, according to the Centers for Disease Control.

Public health champions had aimed for a much greater decline and their failure is no accident.

Tobacco companies continue to spend millions to protect their dishonest market. Many states aid in this quest by redirecting their annual payments on old cigarette lawsuit settlements away from smoking cessation programs and into other spending. Taxes trump cancer every time.

The federal government does try to do something about our leading cause of preventable death, however. Last year, the Food and Drug Administration ordered that all cigarette packaging display disgustingly graphic photos of lung cancer sufferers in various stages of decay. In August, a federal panel struck down that order on the grounds that it interferes with corporate free speech. It's likely that the requirement will be reinstated on appeal, but the ruling shows why smoking is so hard to root out — and how much power the tobacco giants wield.

An enlightening contrast to our own but not something new is prominently visible in some foreign countries. The warnings on their cigarette packages can be so glaring that you'd think you were approaching Chernobyl. Which, in a sense, I suppose you are.

With smoking rates declining in richer nations, tobacco companies are flocking to Asia and Africa, where smokes are cheaper and ads are sometimes restrained. The cheery tobacco propaganda Americans were fed in the '90s.

Here at home, the long war against tobacco keeps flaring in new pockets of resistance. The latest is "roll-your-own" shops. It seems that loose tobacco for pipes is taxed at a mere fraction of that for cigarettes. Not deterred by the niceties of law, some companies have simply been mislabeling their product and selling it as pipe tobacco. The merchants cheerfully sell the fake product and thoughtfully "rent" the use of rolling machines to customers. Let us assume that the overall effect is trivial, know that it amounts to about 20 million pounds per year and $500 million in lost taxes.

As long as corporate greed continues to infect us, smoking will undoubtedly keep killing hundreds of thousands of Americans every year. But you'd think the 50 states might show a little more interest in doing something to protect their people from our nation's top killer.

Dear Homemade Brand Ice Cream, Allow me to break the ice with a complaint. I recently purchased your product and I have a concern regarding your alleged cherry cordial ice cream.

I am not a lawyer or some backward jerk, but I do believe that to technically qualify as cherry cordial flavored ice cream there needs to be at least one maraschino cherry in the bucket. We are not talking a bushel of maraschino cherries here, but the notion does elicit excitement in my part. We are just talking a few cherries, but at least one.

Not part of a maraschino cherry. That doesn't cut the mustard. That's like somebody offering you a half-eaten candy bar. No thanks, I'll pass. Nor am I talking about several microscopic pieces of a cherry (that might equal one whole cherry in volume) all smashed liberally into a quarter-and-a-half of premium quality ice cream.

I don't need a bushel of cherries, either. Just a few will do; maybe four or five, or who knows, go nuts and give me a dozen. What I am trying to say is this: I at least need to get one cherry.

Imagine me giving you a box of chocolate-covered cherries for your birthday or for Arbor Day. After wondering why a complete stranger with poor grooming habits has presented you with a box of candy, I assume you would eat a few of them, or give them to a buddy or something. Now imagine biting into one, then two, or maybe three or four — or a poor homeless man doing the same — without finding even a whiff of a cherry or red food coloring.

So you see, sir or madam, you and your company are skating on thin ice with me. I don't feel your product is the cream of the crop.

For far too long I have toiled mercilessly and suffered irreparably under the grand illusions broadcast by junk and snack food makers and their outrageous claims and product mischaracterizations.

I'm tired of potato chip bags that beckon to me like a siren's song with false promises of "now with 25 percent more!" Twenty-five percent more of what, sir? I'm sick of the Cadbury Egg diminishing in size every other Easter, and if you don't believe me check it out for yourself. Even the prizes in Cracker Jacks are shoddy by third-world standards. The list goes on and on (and on).

So no, Mr. Ice Cream Man or Woman, I can't take it anymore. To quote Peter Finch in the movie "Network," at least the dubbed-for-TV version: "I'm a human being gosh dam it; my life has value. I'm as mad as Hades and I'm not going to take it anymore!"

And I hope you're listening to me. Haven't you paid attention to the national recession lately? According to President Barack Hussein Obama you didn't build your company from the ground up, I did. You're welcome.

There is a name for cherry cordial ice cream that is healthy and all appearance of cherries. It's called regular ice cream. Based on how you do business I bet your so-called cookie dough ice cream tastes suspiciously just like regular vanilla.

I don't want a refund. I don't want an apology. And I'm not even going to say something threatening, like I will never buy your product again or I plan on killing your firstborn child. I won't do that because that would be considered cherry-picking, which apparently you aren't doing enough of.

At the end of the day I feel like life really is like a box of chocolates. You never know what you are going to get, but it definitely won't be cherries.

Cordially yours,

An upset customer
P.S. Please try harder in the future. Pretty please — with a cherry on top. To contact Will E. Sanders, email him at wills@willesanders.com.

Randolph sets new record

Times Staff Report

PIPPA PASSES — The Alice Lloyd College Cross Country team ventured to Berea in the early morning hours on Saturday to participate in a conference meet. The race was held on the campus of Berea College. On the men's side, 69 runners toed the starting line for the 8K race. When the dust had settled, ALC freshman Greg Randolph (North Laurel) crossed the finish line in 29:17. Randolph's solid time set a new school record, as the youngster from Laurel County finished 21st overall.

For ALC, Randolph was followed by sophomore Jimmy Noble

(Buckhorn) and freshman Ethan Bowling (Jenkins) who completed the course in 33:48 and 34:48, respectively. Rounding out the pack were freshmen Blane Grubbs (Cawood) and Jonathan Aldana (Belfry). Their times were 37:21 and 46:45, respectively.

On the women's side, 59 ladies started the race. For the Eagles, Allison Holbrook was the first to cross the finish line. Her time of 23:41 was good enough for 29th place. Also representing ALC were junior Jerkia Van Dyke and senior Kimberly Schroeder. Their final times were 43:07 and 43:32, respectively.

"I felt that this meet

Alice Lloyd College runner Greg Randolph set a new conference record in a meet at Berea over the weekend.

was an eye-opener for our young squad," commented ALC Coach Gary D. Stepp. "These kids now see the caliber of competition that is in our conference, and I believe they are motivated to push themselves even more. This will only help to make our club stronger come tournament time." The coach also added, "I think everyone worked hard and it was a nice race for Greg. The good thing is that it allows us all to see where we stand against the conference elite, and we can use this meet to help us improve."

Alice Lloyd participate in the University of Pikeville Invitational Oct. 2.

UPIKE soccer teams drop doubleheader

Times Staff Report

PIKEVILLE — The University of Pikeville soccer teams showed the improvement being made in both programs despite losing a doubleheader to Georgetown College Wednesday night.

The women fell 2-0, while the men battled a 4-2 decision.

The Pikeville women will return to Bob Amos Park at 4 p.m. on Saturday when they host Campbellsville in another Mid-South Conference contest. The men, meanwhile, are off until Sept. 29 when they entertain St. Catharine.

Women: The University of Pikeville women's soccer team fell 2-0 Wednesday night, losing to conference rival Georgetown.

The Bears, who were kept in the game thanks largely to a strong performance by sophomore goalkeeper Chelsea Schulte, struggled to get the ball across midfield for most of the night despite a relatively even split in possession.

Eventually, bad luck won out as Georgetown's Bea Cameron saw her effort deflect off of a UPIKE defender and over Schulte's head into the net.

It didn't take long after that for the Tigers to make it a two-goal lead with a brilliant run capped off by a close-range screamer of a shot by Alessandra Jansen which sailed between Schulte's legs.

Despite a change in policy by Head Coach Gary Wofford which saw the Bears send as many as six or seven players forward at a time, the Georgetown defense held firm to limit UPIKE's chances on goal and preserve the shutout.

Pikeville (2-2, 0-1 in the MSC) had three shots on goal, all turned away by Kelsey Givens. Schulte saved 13 Tiger shots in the loss.

Men: Despite a promising attacking start the University of Pikeville men's soccer team fell to Mid-South Conference rival Georgetown College 4-2 Wednesday.

The Bears had their fans thinking a first victory for Coach Shane Puliam was possible when, in the fifth minute, Djemson Lormistois lined up to take a corner and noticed Georgetown keeper Stefan Iverson had come off his line. Lormistois exactly curled the ball from the corner flag to just inside the far post to give the Bears an early 1-0 lead in spectacular fashion.

The Bears' jubilation was short-lived, as goals scored by Taylor Shaver and Ben Aspillaga in the next five minutes put Georgetown on top to stay.

UPIKE sophomore striker Chase Johnson bagged a consolation second goal late, but the Bears couldn't get through what eventually became a seven-man defense put up by the Tigers.

Pikeville (0-4, 0-2 in the Mid-South Conference) had four shots on goal in the contest, netting two of them. Senior keeper Sheldon Thomas saved four of Georgetown's eight shots.

Pikeville volleyball team drops matches

Times Staff Report

PIKEVILLE — The University of Pikeville volleyball team continued a rough stretch of road games on Tuesday, falling to Union College 3-0. This loss came after Friday's 3-0 setback to Kentucky Christian University.

The Bears will be back home on Sunday afternoon when they host a tri-match. UPIKE will hook up with Midway College at 1 p.m. and Bluefield College in a Mid-South Conference contest at 5 p.m. The Eagles and Rams will play each other at 3 p.m. at the UPIKE Gym.

Union 3, Bears 0: Union improved to 5-8 on the season and remained unbeaten at home when it knocked off Pikeville 25-20, 25-20, 25-19.

Senior Brittany Hodge led the Bears with nine kills, while freshman Chelsea Staples added six. Freshman Kara Stambaugh followed with five. Junior Stephanie Dounseroux had 20 assists for her club, while Staples had two service aces.

On defense, freshman Haley Johnson had 17 digs in the match. Hodge and Dounseroux added seven apiece.

KCU 3, UPIKE 0: Kentucky Christian University jumped on top quickly and swept UPIKE 25-10, 25-19, 26-24.

Hodge and Dounseroux had six kills each for Pikeville. Staples had five while Stambaugh contributed four for the Bears, who had 27 kills in the loss. Dounseroux had 11 assists.

Staples was solid on defense as well, with two solo blocks and two block assists. Sophomore Taylor Watkins had one solo block and two assists.

Highlands is 'Business of the Year'

PAINTSVILLE — Highlands Health Systems was named "Business of the Year" for its new Medical Office Building in Paintsville, by the Paintsville/Johnson County Chamber of Commerce.

Highlands received this award at the Chamber's Annual Awards Banquet, held recently at Ramada Inn in downtown Paintsville. The Chamber holds this banquet every year, presenting five awards to local businesses: Business Person of the Year, Business of the Year, Community Service Award, University of the Year and O.T. Dorton Presidential Award.

Highlands Medical Office Building in Paintsville is a multimillion dollar complex that provides a wide variety of medical services including family practice, physical therapy, internal medicine, pediatrics, laboratory, radiology, pharmacy, and the newest offering, Highlands After Hours Care.

The Medical Office

Fran Jarrell, executive director of the Paintsville/Johnson County Chamber of Commerce presented the Business of the Year award to Kathy Rubado, of Highlands Foundation, and Karen Sellers, of Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Building originally opened in September 2010 with Hometown Family Care and Physical Therapy. Radiology and Lab were implemented April 2010. Pharmacy was added later that November. This past June, Highlands opened After Hours Care, which provides health care on a walk-in basis on weekends and after 5 p.m. on weekdays.

"One of our goals is the recruitment and commitment to new businesses wishing to locate in Paintsville and Johnson County," said Fran Jarrell, executive director, Paintsville/Johnson County Chamber of Commerce. "With an experienced and enthusiastic executive board, we are able to provide a sounding board as well as a repertoire of experience to such businesses. We are very proud to be a part of the continued growth and renewal of Paintsville and Johnson County." For more information about the Chamber of Commerce visit www.pjchamber.com. For more information about Highlands go to www.hrmc.org.

Movies from the Black Lagoon 'From a Whisper to a Scream'

The terrifying history of a small town is revealed through several creepy stories, in this anthology horror effort from the amazing 1980s.

Disco may have been dead in 1986, but the horror business was flourishing. This film follows in the "Creepshow" tradition of stringing several stories together. The story finds a reporter attending the execution of a mass murderer. After the event, she goes to the town library, where Mr. White waits to tell her all about the sordid history of Oldfield, Tenn.

The first tale takes in a recent event. Town businessman, and certified nerd, Stanley falls for a young lady who works at his mill. Unfortunately, he is saddled with taking care of an invalid sister. She is a piece of work who equates nightly ice baths and back rubs. Stanley musters up the courage to ask out a young woman at the mill. The date goes way off script and culminates in his strangling her to death. Later, he reads her some awful poetry that he wrote, so you might say she was actually lucky to expire before that moment.

The second date goes better. He visits her at the mortuary and ... well, less said, the better. Except nine months later a zombie/shoul/baby crawls out of the young woman's grave and it has some "daddy" issues.

Next, we learn about a 1940s con-man. He falls afoul of local hoodlums and winds up gutshot in the swamp. He is rescued by an older man who uses voodoo to stay young. Our greedy criminal decides to turn on his rescuer and finds out, too late, that you can't outwit a guy who has lived for 200 years. This one ends with a super creepy twist, with the con-man writhing in pain and wishing for a death that will be a very long time in coming.

The next story centers on a carnival and we already know they are in trouble as the troupe is named after H.P. Lovecraft. A geek performer (the kind that swallows razor blades, not the kind that watches too much "Star Trek") falls for a local lady and this upsets the tyrannical carnival owner, who decides that she can take away the ability to eat razor blades and replace it with the inability to keep them in one's stomach. A very messy ending ensues.

The final tale shows how the town got to be so grim. Turns out the adults were all killed by unfriendly fire during a Civil War battle. The war orphans refused to take this lying down and prepared a reception for wandering soldiers. What follows are some of the most brutal variations on child games ever committed to celluloid. The most grisly game involves a unique spin on "Pin the tail on the Donkey" and is guaranteed to turn your stomach.

This is all brought to you with an eclectic cast that manages to sell the stories with panache. Vincent Price toplines as the librarian. It is nice to see this genre stalwart flexing his muscles 50 years after his film debut. This would be his last horror outing and his greatest effort (next to "Theater of Blood," which is also on this disc). Chu Gulager is also good as the nerdy villain of the first story, and three cheers to Cameron Mitchell, who appears as a nasty soldier in the last tale. Fun and forgettable.

"Bats line." He eats broken glass and razor blades like you eat your Wheaties." 1986, rated R.

Horror made a decent comeback this week, with two films and a television series hitting the shelves.

"Cabin in the Woods" — Joss Whedon ("Buffy the Vampire Slayer") produced and co-wrote this excellent horror flick that pokes fun at the genre, while still coming up with some decent scares. The film follows five young adults who head out to the titular location (a horror staple). Meanwhile, two white-collar schmucks start another day at the office. How these stories dovetail is half the fun. Chris Hemsworth ("Thor") stars.

"The Victim" — Indie horror is well represented by this yarn that follows two young women on a disastrous date with a pair of unhinged police officers. The evening goes badly when one of the young lawmen is killed and the enforcement guys decide to silence the only witness. The young lady escapes but runs smack dab into the creepy guy who lives alone in the woods. Will he stand between her and certain death, or hurry matters along? Well made by Michael Biehn ("The Terminator") who directed and stars.

"The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel" — When a group of Brits take retirement in India, they find that the brochure lied in this comedy drama. The film depicts the well-to-do retirees in an impoverished slum, where they soon become attached to the locals and find that they may just be happy. A strong cast helps you overlook some of the schmaltz and includes Judi Dench, Bill Nighy and Maggie Smith.

"Supernatural: Season 7" — The Winchester boys continue their occult adventures in this well received season. Their main foes turn out to be Leviathans, which are demonic beings that have escaped from Purgatory. They turn out to be a solid match for the brothers, who are rocked by a tragedy that robs them of a series regular and trusted comrade in arms.

Next week brings the summer's biggest hit with the release of "The Avengers."

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HALLEAH, Fla. — An ingredient often used to treat lameness in racehorse's legs, is now back on the market in a topical pain reliever. But the doctor recommended formula. According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales in topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism whereby one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTH ARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, and more.

ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at www.itspersonal.com.

Golf Classic raises $70K for Center for Autism

PRESTONSBURG — Highlands Foundation, the philanthropic arm of Highlands Health System, recently hosted the 15th annual Golf Classic. This year's Golf Classic, held at StoneCrest Golf Course, was the most successful to date, raising over $120,000. After tournament expenses, around $70,000 will benefit the Highlands Center for Autism.

Highlands Center for Autism will use funding to help children with autism spectrum disorder receive the therapeutic treatment that is changing their lives for the better. In previous years, proceeds from the Golf Classic have gone toward helping fund other needed healthcare projects at Highlands, including the construction of Highlands' new Emergency Department and patient care area renovations.

"The Highlands Golf Classic is one of the biggest golf tournaments in the state and we have much to be proud of in its continued success over the years," said Kathy Rubado, executive director of Highlands Foundation and Golf Classic co-chair. "It is truly a 'friend raiser' as well as a 'fund raiser' for the entire Health System. On behalf of the Golf Committee and the Highlands Foundation Board of Directors, we sincerely appreciate all the sponsors who offered their support to the event. A special thanks to the management and staff of StoneCrest Golf Course for their work and dedication to help make the event a success."

The tournament is a two-day event, with 42 teams participating each day for a total of 356 golfers. Local players participated in the event, as well as numerous teams from out of state, including a team from California.

Wednesday's winning team was American Health Connection, taking first place with a score of 54. Ultra Group Team 2 won second, with a score of 55. Mountain Enterprises won third place with a score of 56.

On Thursday, East Kentucky Broadcasting tied with Appalachian Wireless for first place, with a score of 57. A score card play-off gave first place to East Kentucky Broadcasting. The third-place winner was Ad Imports.

In addition, the Golf Classic received support from the Highlands Regional Medical Center Board and the Highlands Foundation Board, who helped make the event a success. There were over 35 Highlands employees who joined the board members and volunteered their time to support a worthy cause.

"Thanks for your support for this cause," said Shell Adeskins, program director of the Highlands Center for Autism. "Rates of autism now stand at 1 in 88 births and the Center remains the only program of its type in the state. On behalf of the staff, children and families at the Center we thank you for your help and support."
