FUNDS PROVIDED FOR BEAVER ROAD

Completion of Paving Here Urged; Turner to Visit County, View Projects

Fifty thousand dollars will be set aside at once for grade and drain construction of the Left Beaver highway from McDowell to Wheelwright, the state highway commission at its meeting last week promised the Floyd county delegation upon completion of the project. By the time this amount is expended, the commission further assured the delegation, the remaining sum necessary to completion of the route will be ready.

Though no definite date for letting of the contract has been set, county officials are hopeful that bids will be asked soon. They have assured highway officials that there will be no delay because of right-of-way difficulties.

Mayor A. C. Carter made a plea before the commission for completion of the unpaved stretch of the Mayo Trail at the upper end of Prestonsburg. Highway Commissioner Turner is to come to this county soon, it is said, to inspect both the Left Beaver project and the "missing link" here.

Members of the delegation from this county who appeared before the highway commission were County Judge W. L. Stumbo, County Attorney Forrest D. Short, Sheriff M. T. Stumbo, Jailer B. L. Sturgill, County Superintendent Ballard Hunter, Magistrates Jim Clark and Willie Hall, Mayor A. C. Carter, G. C. Stumbo, Douglas Hays, Joe P. Tackett and Taulbee Hamilton.

NAMES HAUPTMANN—Dr. John F. Condon, better known as "Jafsie," testifies at the trial in Flemington, N. J., that Bruno Richard Hauptmann is the "John" to whom he gave the Lindbergh ransom money.

Farmers Believe Long-Lost Silver Mine Located

Freeling, Va.—Albert Lipps and Aubrey Boyd, Osborne Gap farmers, believe the long lost Hick Baker silver mine has been located near Big Lack Gap, on the south side of Cumberland Mountain, two miles from Freeling.

The two recently accompanied a mineralogist, who had what the natives call a mineral rod, on a protracted search for the mine. Finally, they say, the rod pointed to a spot near mouth of a rocky cavern where when a slight opening was made, unmistakable evidences of silver were found.

Just before the Civil War, Hick Baker, a native of the Cumberlands, claimed he had found an outcropping of silver in the neighborhood of where he lived. At the beginning of the war he moved with his

Is First Congressman to Reply to Democratic Editors' Questionnaire

Cynthiana, Ky.—Joe Costello, editor of the Cynthiana Democrat and secretary of the Kentucky Democratic Editors Association, today received from Congressman A. J. May an answer to the questionnaire sent by the association to all Democratic Congressmen to ascertain their stand on the question of a primary or convention for the selection of the party's nominees. The primary convention question will be settled by the Democratic State Central Executive Committee which is expected to meet toward the close of this month. Attorney General Bailey P. Wootton, chairman of the committee, has not yet made public the date of the meeting.

Eight of the 11 men generally considered as aspirants or at least possibilities for the gubernatorial nomination already have voiced their approval of the primary system, while three have not answered the questionnaire. They are Mr. Wootton, Mr. Rhea, Russellville, chairman of the first Congressmen to answer and State Treasurer Elam

WORK SURVEY IN DISTRICT IS MADE

Martin Waterworks Project Nears Completion; Registration of Unemployed Large

From December 1, 1934 till January 9, this year, appropriations for PWA projects in four counties of this district totaled $139,129, on which 218 men, 52 of whom were veterans, have been employed, according to W. A. Peterman, district manager of the National Re-Employment Service.

One of these is the Martin waterworks project, which is approximately 90 per cent complete. This project was started October 9, and has furnished employment for 92 men, 14 of whom are veterans, according to Mr. Peterman.

Work on the Hindman-Lackey road in Knott county started Jan. 2 as another PWA project. Fifty-two men have been placed at work under the Re-Employment Service on this job, which consists of gravel surfacing of the road. Of this number, 32 are veterans. Fifty more men probably will be needed, Mr. Peterman stated.

Work on state highway projects is under way in Pike, Breathitt, Letcher and Perry counties. Though contractors on this type of work are not required to hire through the Re-Employment Service, job placements have been made through the Re-Employment office.

PWA projects will be started in Breathitt, Leslie, Wolfe, Perry and Pike counties following February 1.

It is suggested by Mr. Peterman that all unemployed not already registered should write him at Pikeville.

THE NARRATIVE

CHAPTER I.—David Ransdell, approaching New York on the liner Europa, receives a succession of radiograms offering him $1,000, finally $20,000, for an exclusive newspaper interview divulging the mission that brings him from South Africa. Ransdell, noted aviator, has been secretly commissioned at Capetown by Lord Rhondin and Professor Bronson, the astronomer, to fly across the Mediterranean to the fast liner, with a large traveling case containing photographic plates. His instructions are to deliver them to Dr. Cole Hendron, in New York. Tony Drake calls at the Hendrons' apartment. Ransdell arrives and Eve Hendron, with whom Tony is deeply in love, introduces Tony to Ransdell.

Eve in his arms; her lips on his again, as he had had them today! To possess her, to own her completely! He could dream of no human delight beyond her! And he would have her! D—n this League of the Last Days!

What were the scientists hiding among themselves? Tony sat up vehemently. "A h—l of a thing," he said aloud. "The whole world is haywire. Haywire! By the way, Kyo, you don't happen to send code messages to Einstein, do you?"

"Cold messages?" "Let it pass. I'm going to bed. If my mother calls from the country, Kyo, tell her I'm being a good boy and still wearing woolen socks against a cold snap. I must have sleep, to be in shape for work tomorrow. Maybe I'll sell five shares of stock in the morning, or possibly ten. It's wearing me down. I can't stand the strain."

Four hours later, after twice again having attempted to phone Eve Hendron, and twice again having been informed that service for the night was discontinued, Tony got to sleep.

It was the staid, accurate, ultra-responsible New York Times which spread the sensation before him in the morning. The headlines lay black upon the page:

Scientists Say Worlds From Another Star Approach the Earth
Dr. Cole Hendron Makes Astonishing Statement in Which Sixty of the Greatest Living Physicists and Astronomers Concur.

Tony was scarcely awake when Kyo had brought him the paper.

"Dr. Cole Hendron, generally acknowledged to be the leading astrophysicist of America," Tony read, "early this morning gave to the press the following statement, on behalf of the sixty scientists named in an accompanying column."

Tony's eyes flashed to the column, which carried the list of distinguished names, English, German, French, Italian, Swiss, American, South African, Australian, and Japanese.

"Similar statements are being given to the press of all peoples at this time. In order to allay rumors likely to rise from the increase of rumors based upon incorrect or misunderstood reports of the discovery made by Professor Bronson of Capetown, South Africa, and in order to acquaint all people with the actual situation, as it is now viewed, we offer these facts.

"Eleven months ago, when examining a photographic plate of the region 15 (Eridanus) in the southern skies, Professor Bronson noticed the presence of two bodies near the star Archemar, which had not been observed before.

"Both were exceedingly faint and, lying in the constellation Eridanus, which is one of the largest constellations in the sky, they were at first put down as probably long-period variable stars which had recently in- creased in brilliancy after a long heavens which brought them at last under the attraction of the sun. Their previous course, consequently, has been greatly modified by the sun, and as a result, they are now approaching us."

At this point, the prepared statement of Cole Hendron terminated.

Tony Drake was sitting up straight in bed, holding the paper before him and trying, with his left hand and without looking away, to strike a match for the cigarette between his lips. He did not succeed, but he kept on trying while his eyes searched down the column of questions put by the reporters to Doctor Hendron—and his answers.

"What will be the effect of this approach upon the earth?"

"It is impossible yet to tell."

"But there will be effects?"

"Certainly there will be effects."

"How serious?"

"Again Cole Hendron refused to answer."

"It is impossible yet to say."

"Will the earth be endangered?"

"Answer: There will undoubtedly be considerable alterations of conditions of life here."

"What sort of alterations?"

"That will be the subject of a later statement," Doctor Hendron replied.

"The character and degree of the disturbance which we are to undergo is now the subject of study by a responsible group. We will attempt to describe the conditions likely to confront all of us on the world as soon as they clearly define themselves."

"When will this supplementary statement be made?"

"As soon as possible."

"Tomorrow?"

"No; by no means as soon as tomorrow."

"Within a week? Within a month?"

"I would say that it might be made within a month."

Tony was on his feet, and in spite of himself, trembling. There was no possible mistaking of the undertone of this astounding announcement. It spelled doom, or some enormous alteration of all conditions of life on the world equivalent to complete disaster.

The League of the Last Days! There was some reference to it in another column, but Tony scarcely caught its coherence. Where was Eve; and what, upon this morning, was she doing? How was she feeling? What was she thinking? Might she, at last, be sleeping?

She had been up all night, and at work assisting her father. The statement had been released at one o'clock in the morning. How much more than this, which had been told, did Eve now know? Plainly, manifestly, the scientists knew more—much, much more, which they dared not yet tell the public. Dared not! That was the fact.

Kyo, who usually effaced himself, did not do so this morning. Kyo, having the untasted coffee for an excuse, called attention to himself and ventured, "Mister, of course, comprehends the news?"

"Yes, Kyo; I understand it—partly, at any rate."

"I may inquire, please, perhaps the significance?"

Tony stared at the little Jap. He had always liked him; but suddenly he was assailed with a surge of fellow feeling for this small brown man trapped like himself on the rim of the world.

Trapped! That was it. Trapped was the word for this strange feeling.

"Kyo, we're in for something."

"What?"

"Something rather—extensive, Kyo. One thing is sure, we're all in for it together."

"General—destruction?" Kyo asked.

Tony shook his head, and his reply surprised himself. "No; if it were just that, they'd say it—the end of everything. People after all in a way are prepared for that, Kyo." Tony was reasoning to himself as much as talking to Kyo. "No; this can't be just—destruction. It doesn't feel like it.

Kyo." "What else could it be?" questioned the Jap, practically. Tony, having no answer, gulped his coffee; and Kyo had to attend to the phone, which was ringing.

Five minutes after the telephone rang Tony Drake was at the Hendrons'. The place was polished. Men, women and children from Park avenue, from Third and Second avenues, crowded the sidewalks; sound film trucks and photographers obstructed the street. Radio people and reporters refused admittance, picked up what they could from the throng.

Tony, at last, made proper contact with a policeman.

The officer escorted him in. The elevator lifted him high to the penthouse on the roof. No one was about but the servants. Miss Eve, they said, was in the breakfast room; Doctor Hendron still was asleep.

"Hello, Tony! Come in!" Eve rose from the pretty little green table in the gay chintz curtained nook which they called the breakfast room. Her eyes were bright, her face flushed the slightest bit with her excitement. Her hands grasped his tightly. Longing for her leaped in Tony. D—n everything else!

He pulled her within his arms and kissed her; and her lips, as they had last night, clung to his. Their hands held to each other a moment more; then Tony stepped back.

She had dressed but for her frock itself; she was in negligee, with her slim lovely arms in loose-lace-decked silk, her white neck and bosom half exposed. He bent and kissed her neck.

"You've breakfasted, Tony?"

"Yes—no. Can I sit with you here? I scarcely dreamed you'd be up, Eve, after your night."

"You've seen the papers? We were through with them before three. That is, Father then absolutely refused to say any more or see anyone else. He went to sleep."

"You didn't?"

"No; I kept thinking—thinking—"

"Of the end of everything, Eve?"

"Part of the time, I did; of course I did; but more of the time of you."

"Of me—last night?"

"I hoped you'd come first today. I thought you would . . . It's funny what difference the formal announcement of it makes. I knew it all last night, Tony. I've known the general truth of it for weeks. But when it was a secret thing—something shared just with my father and with his friends—it wasn't the same as now. One knew it but still didn't admit it, even to one's self. It was theoretical—in one's head, like a dream, not reality. We didn't really do much. Father and I, last night, I mean do much in proving up the facts and figures. Father had them all before from other men. Professor Bronson's plates and calculations simply confirmed what really was certain; Father checked them over. Then he gave it out. That's what's made everything so changed."

"Yet you didn't give out everything you know, Eve."

"No, not everything, Tony."

"You know exactly what's going to happen, don't you, Eve? It's going to be doomsday, isn't it?"

"No, Tony—more than doomsday."

"What can be more than that?"

"Dawn after doomsday, Tony. The world is going to be destroyed, Tony. Oh, Tony, the world is going to be most thoroughly destroyed; yet some of us will not die! Or we need not die—if we accept the strange challenge that God is casting at us from the skies!"

"The challenge that God casts at us—what challenge? What do you mean?"

"I'll try to tell you, Tony. There are two worlds coming toward us—two worlds from, millions of years ago perhaps, from another star. For millions of years, probably they've been wandering, utterly dark and utterly frozen, through space; and now they've found our sun; and they're going to attach themselves to it—at our expense. For they are coming into the solar system on a course which will carry them close—oh, very close indeed, Tony, to the orbit of the earth. They're going to join up at the same distance from the sun as we are. Do you understand?"

In spite of himself, Tony blanched. "They're going to hit the earth, you mean? I thought so."

"They're not going to hit the earth, Tony, the first time around. The first time they circle the sun, they're going to pass us close, to be sure; but they're going to pass us—both of them. But the second time they pass—well, one of them is going to pass us a second time, too, but the other one isn't. Tony. The smaller one—Bronson Beta, the one about the same size as the earth and so far as we can tell, very much like the earth—is going to pass us safely; but the big one, Bronson Alpha, is going to take out the world!"

"You know that, Eve?"

"We know it! There must be a margin of error, we know. There may not be a direct head-on collision, Tony; but any sort of encounter—even a glancing blow—would be enough and much more than enough to finish this globe. And an encounter is certain. Every single calculation that has been made shows it."

"You know what an exact thing astronomy is today, Tony. If we have three different observations of a moving body, we can plot its path; and we've hundreds of determinations of these bodies. More than a thousand altogether! We know now what they are; we know their dimensions and the speed with which they are traveling. We know, of course, almost precisely the forces and attractions which will influence them—the gravitational power of the sun. Tony, you remember how precise the forecast was in the eclipse that darkened New England. The astronomers not only foretold to a second when it would begin and end, but they described the blocks and even the sides of the streets in towns that would be in shadow. And their error was less than twenty feet."

"It's the same with these Bronson bodies, Tony. They're falling toward the sun, and their path can be plotted like the path of Newton's apple dropping from the bough. Gravity is the surest and most constant force in all creation. One of those worlds, which is seeking our sun, is going to wipe us out, Tony—all of us, every soul of us that remains on the world when it collides. But the other world—the world so much like this—will pass us close and go on, safe and sound, around the sun again—"

"Tony, do you believe in God?"

"What's that to do with this?"

"So much that this has got me thinking about God again, Tony. God—the God of our fathers—the God of the Old Testament, Tony; the God who did things and meant something; the God of wrath and vengeance, but the God who also could be merciful to men. For He's sending two worlds to us, Tony, not one—not just the one that will destroy us. He's sending the world that may save us, too!"

"Save us? What do you mean?"

"That's what the League of the Last Days is working on, Tony—the chance of escape that's offered by the world like ours, which will pass so close and go on. We may transfer to it, Tony, if we have the will and the skill and the nerve! We could send a rocket to the moon today, if it would do us any good, if any one could possibly live on the moon after he got there. Well, Bronson Beta will pass us closer than the moon. Bronson Beta is the size of the earth, and therefore can have an atmosphere. It is perfectly possible that people—who are able to reach it—can live there."

"It's a world, perhaps very like ours, which has been in immutable cold and darkness for millions of years, probably, and which now will be coming to life again."

"Think of it, Tony! The tremendous, magnificent adventure of making a try for it! It was a world once like ours, circling around some sun. People lived on it; and animals and plants and trees. Evolution had occurred there, too, and progress. Civilization had come. Thousands of years of it, maybe. Tens of thousands of years—perhaps much more than we have yet known. Perhaps, also, much less. It's the purest speculation to guess in what stage that world was when it was torn from its sun and sent spinning into space."

"But in whatever stage it was in, you may be sure it is in exactly that stage now; for when it left its sun, life became extinct. The rivers, the lakes, the seas, the very air, froze and became solid, encasing and keeping everything just as it was, though it wandered through space for ten million years. But as it approaches the sun, the air and then the seas will thaw. The people cannot possibly come to life, nor the animals or birds or other things; but the cities will stand there unchanged, the implements, their homes—all will remain and be uncovered again."

"If this world were not doomed, what an adventure to try for that one, Tony! And a possible adventure—a perfectly possible adventure, with the powers at our disposal today!"

Tony recollected, after a while, that Balcom had bid him to learn from Hendron, as definitely as possible, the date and nature of the next announcement. How would it affect stocks? Would the Stock Exchange open at all? He remembered, at last, it was a business day; downtown he had duties—contracts to buy and orders to sell stocks. He did not venture to ask to have Hendron awakened to speak to him but, before ten o'clock, he did leave Eve. He walked to the subway.

"Gimme five cents for a cup of coffee!"

Tony stopped, stared. This panhandler, too, was trapped, with him and Kyo and Eve and all the rest, on the rim of the world which was coming to its end. Did he have any feeling of it? Whether or not, obviously today he must eat. Tony's hand went into his pocket.

Speculation about the masses assailed him. What did they think this morning? How differently would they do today?

SHOW ELIGIBILITY TO SIGN THE 1935 CORN-HOG CONTRACT

All eligible producers of corn and hogs will have opportunity to sign the 1935 corn-hog contract, whether they took part in the 1934 corn-hog production adjustment program or not, according to County Agent S. L. Isbell.

Those eligible to sign the 1935 contract include persons owning and operating farms, and tenants operating farms on a cash rent or fixed share agreement. In the case of farms rented on a crop of stock share lease or agreement, the contract is signed by both the tenant and the landlord.

The eligibility in all cases will be determined by the county allotment committee in accordance with instructions issued by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and subject to the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture. The Allotment committee will determine whether the applicant for a 1935 contract is a bona-fide producer and qualified to sign and receive adjustment payments.

The base period for the 1935 contract will be the same as for the 1934 contract, the two years 1932 and 1933. The contract will require hog adjustments to 10 per cent below the base-period production, with benefit payments of $15 per head on the number represented by the 10 per cent adjustment. No more than 10 per cent reduction in corn acreage below the 1932-33 base will be required in the 1935 contract but optional adjustments of as much as 30 per cent will be allowed on these adjustment benefit payments of 35 cents per bushel will be paid.

The corn yield to be used in figuring payments is the adjusted estimated yield for all land in the farm which has been planted to corn at least once in the last five years.

(Use what Doctors do)

Why do the bowels usually move regularly and thoroughly, long after a physician has given you treatment for constipation?

Because the doctor gives a liquid laxative that can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Ask your doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all, the liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and these are natural laxatives that form no habit—even in children. Your druggist has it; ask for—

ALTITUDE

By Rev. Josef Nordenhaug

It is a well-known fact that one of the ways of avoiding thunder clouds and local storms in flying is to rise above the clouds into fair weather. The flier selects his altitude where he has favorable wind and best visibility. A few days ago, Mr. Doolittle broke the transcontinental record by flying "blind." That is to say, flying by the instruments only, not having any chance to observe landmarks on earth on account of the clouds beneath him.

You may wonder why I use such an introduction, but it is my firm belief that there is always an altitude in which we may avoid the storms and clouds which look so threatening from beneath. On a rainy, gloomy day we are prone to forget that the sun is shining above the clouds. So the art of life may be called in a figurative sense the art of gaining altitude, the art of achieving a broad vision unhampered by trifles magnified in a gloomy local atmosphere.

I recall the story of another flier who after taking off detected a mysterious sound somewhere in his plane. Finally, it burst upon his mind that the sound he heard was that of a rat gnawing on the woodwork or the canvas in the plane. Seated as he was in his cockpit, it was impossible for him to chase the rat or kill it or even to determine the amount of damage it was doing. He had no landing field below and instinctively knew the danger he was in. So it flashed upon his mind that if the atmospheric pressure was reduced sufficiently the rat would be unable to live. So he moved his control stick and started climbing, steadily gaining altitude. Higher and higher he went. At last he was so high that he felt his ears ringing and his head ache from the low atmospheric pressure, but the sound of the gnawing rat had subsided. He had saved his plane from further damage by this uninvited rodent.

The art of life, I have said, is the art of gaining altitude. And altitude broadens the vision and kills the rat. Let us aim high and refuse to be hampered by gloomy clouds or destructive vermin.

May I recommend to you an excellent manual dealing with the art of gaining altitude? It is called the Bible.

RESOLVE TO PUT FLOYD COUNTY OVER THE TOP

With all sorts of good resolutions in order just at this season, may I hope that all who have helped so splendidly during the year just closed will renew their resolution to continue to help the needy in our county?

I'm quite sure you have never quite realized just how much your offerings of money, clothing, shoes and household goods have meant to the poor. Most all have given their bit and no doubt wondered how on earth it could be of any possible help in a field where there are so many needs. It is the continued efforts of all which does the job.

In the past year over 500 families have received aid in some manner. Everything from needles and thread to beds and mattresses have been provided for the needy.

SHORTY HARRIS

A romantic figure was the old "desert rat" of the old West. Forever hunting for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, his heart set upon finding fortune—and, once that fortune found, heart and soul set upon spending it "gloriously"—he wore rags which were a cloak of romance.

Those who have read of the misadventures of these lonely searchers for gold, of their successes and failures, will find the following editorial, written by Earle R. Clemens, editor of The News, Terra Bella, Calif., of absorbing interest:

Another old sour dough has gone west. Frank "Shorty" Harris, the man who discovered more gold at grass roots than perhaps any prospector who ever graced the sagebrush of Nevada and California, is dead. This time the news of his demise is the truth and not fiction, for Shorty Harris has passed on to that far off and undiscovered country where, we are told, there are cities, the gates of which are pearl and the streets of which are gold!

And the shifting sands of Death Valley, across which Shorty Harris pushed his burros many a time, have swallowed him up, for at his own request he was buried there a week beside the remains of old pal, Jim Dayton, who had died him in death forty years ago. And there is not a slab to mark his last resting place.

To those of us who remember Shorty Harris in the heyday of his career, the death of this romantic little man brings a tinge of regret, even in spite of the fact that we realize that sooner or later even the most sturdy of pioneers, the trail blazers and the gold finders must give up the chase and lay down their implements of toil.

Shorty Harris was a jovial fellow, with a sparkle in his eye, a smile on his lips, and with plenty of humor at his command. He was right at home prodding a couple of burros across the desert, and his exaggerated stories about his beasts of burden found their way into many a mining camp recital in the press.

He not only prospected but he found gold and plenty of it. The Bullfrog district owes its birth to the fact that Shorty and his friend Cross broke off a few pieces of quartz, streaked with green and yellow on what was soon known as the Original Bullfrog mine in Nye county, Nevada, back in 1904. History was written rapidly from then on. And while the Bullfrog district boomed as a gold camp, and Rhyolite, now the "ghost city of the desert" flourished, and while Greenwater, California, just over the line, took on all the aspects of a big copper camp, Shorty kept right on prospecting, and found the outcrops above Emigrant Springs which revived gold mining in the panamints at Skidoo.

What he gained from all of these finds lasted him for the moment. He would go through a fortune as neatly as any man ever lifted a four-finger drink of old rye to his lips. But at that Shorty Harris wasn't a drinking man. He was at it only now and then, for the real Shorty was for the most part in the ascendancy.

Shorty Harris didn't have an enemy, so far as we know, in all the sagebrush land between Tonopah and Ballarat. Everybody liked him, for he was good to everybody whom he met. He was the typical desert rat, finding gold today, spending it tomorrow, and ever and anon looking for more.

Of fame he had a plenty; of fortune he had enough, at times, to buy a king's ransom; of friends, all too many in happier days and still enough to provide him shelter and cheer in his old age.

There never was a prospector like Shorty Harris; he was one of a type, and there never was a prospector whose name found its way into more columns of newspaper and magazine mining camp lore.

Shorty Harris is dead. The camps which he started are dead, too. Such is fate.

MARTIN FIVE LOSES AND WINS OVER WEEK-END

Martin, Ky., Jan. 15—After decisively defeating the Prestonsburg Blackcats at Prestonsburg a few days earlier, the Martin Purple Flash went to Elkhorn City Friday night and met the strong Cumberland five who proved to be the strongest team met during the present season by the Martin team. Last year, Elkhorn City held the championship of District 60, and this year have practically the same line-up. The team is built around their star player and center, Deskins. It was just too much Deskins for Martin, as he tallied 16 of his team's points. The two teams will meet again on the Martin floor, February 23.

Saturday night, the Auxier team came to Martin and lost, 23-9. The game started slow and uninteresting, with Auxier in the lead. The Purple Flash showed signs of the strain of the game on the previous night and the half ended, 9-6, for the visitors. In the second half the home boys began to click and scored 16 points to their opponents' none. The zone defense displayed by the Auxier team had the Martin boys puzzled for a time, as it was the first they had faced this season.

Friday night, the strong Wheelwright team comes to Martin to battle the Purple Flash. The upper Beaver Creek boys have been running up some high scores on their opponents this season. This will be two high-scoring teams pitted against each other; but, according to dope, the visitors should emerge victorious by a small margin. Martin will be able to place its strongest team of the season on the floor Friday night as Click, a high-scoring forward, will be eligible to play.

Huddleston.

Mr. Costello pointed out that the Kentucky Democratic Editors Association, which has been battling for a primary, is not affiliated with any candidate, or any commercial, political or farmers organization in its campaign for a primary and that the association will carry on its campaign without allegiances of any sort.

The newspapers which are members of the association are in favor of a primary as a matter of principle and because they believe a primary to be to the best interests of the public," Mr. Costello said.

Press Group Wants Primaries

Hickman, Ky., Jan. 10.—Appealing on behalf of the mass of voters of Kentucky, the West Kentucky Press Association today sent letters to every member of the State Central and Executive Committees of both Democratic and Republican parties, urging them to work and vote for a primary this year for the selection of party candidates for state offices.

The letter stated it was a non-partisan movement in the interest of better government and pointed out that the great bulk of the voters in West Kentucky want a primary. Under the State law primaries for county and district offices are compulsory, but the state committee of each party can decide whether to hold a convention or primary for state offices.

The West Kentucky Press Association is composed of newspaper editors and publishers of the First and Second Congressional Districts. The letter was signed by A. Robbins, The Courier, Hickman, chairman; G. M. Pedley, Lyon County Herald, Eddyville, and J. L. Bradley, The Enterprise, Providence, president of the association.

For several years the West Kentucky Press Association has been advocating a compulsory primary bill, such as the one that passed the Senate at the last session of the Legislature, but lost by a few votes in the House.

The letter read as follows:

At a meeting of the State Executive Committee of your party we are appealing to you on behalf of the great mass of voters in our beloved Kentucky to work and vote for a primary this year for the selection of party candidates for state offices.

"The West Kentucky Press Association, composed of newspaper editors and publishers of the First and Second Congressional Districts of Kentucky, has gone on record as demanding a primary for the selection of party candidates for state offices this year, and also for the passage of the bill making it compulsory that primaries be held in the future. This is absolutely non-partisan and none of us have any personal or selfish axes to grind in this matter.

"As a citizen interested in your party, your state and your nation, you know that a convention disfranchises the great bulk of the rank and file of your party, particularly the women voters. You know that the primary is one of the fundamentals of government by the people. We hardly need to point out to you the advantages of a primary over a convention, but we do want to say to you that the voters of our section of the state have now come to see these things and that the great bulk of them want the primary.

"At the time the West Kentucky Press Association passed this resolution and appointed this committee to cotnait you in the interest of a primary, there was little or nothing heard of the issue, but today the great wave of sentiment that is sweeping the state in favor of a primary shows that we accurately gauged the sentiments of the people. So we sincerely hope that you will give serious consideration to this letter and when the time comes you will vote in favor of holding a primary for the selection of candidates for state offices, and that you will also interest yourself in working for the passage of the compulsory primary bill at the next General Assembly."

INDO-VIN WAS AMAZING TO ME

"What I Needed For My Deranged Organs," He Says; All the Misery Is Gone

Mr. Howard McKenzie, 342 Blackburn Ave., Lexington, Ky., is now adding his name to the long list of well-known people who are publicly praising the new, scientific mixture of Extracts from Medicinal Plants known as Indo-Vin, which is now being introduced to the public daily here in this city at Hughes Drug Store.

Following is this widely-known man's statement:

"For a period of about three years I had almost been a 'wreck in health,'" said Mr. McKenzie. "I was ALWAYS feeling bilious and sluggish and just didn't seem to have any life or energy left in my body. I would get dizzy all over and I kept having terrible sick headaches from a torpid liver. My kidneys kept me in constant misery with pains in my back. I also had rheumatism in my legs and the joints of my knees were so stiff and sore that whenever I walked I would simply FLINCH with the agony.

"I tried medicine after medicine and none of them ever reached my trouble at all, but finally I found Indo-Vin and it proved to be what I had ALWAYS NEEDED! This medicine certainly had a wonderful action on my liver and I never have bilious spells or headaches any more. It put an end to the soreness and misery across my kidneys. The joints of my knees are limbered up now and I don't have a touch of rheumatism in my body. This medicine is the most wonderful thing of the kind that I ever HEARD OF and I am glad to publicly endorse it to all who suffer."

Indo-Vin is now being introduced to the public daily here in Prestonsburg at

More than that, every automobile collision should be recorded and drivers examined and, when proper, prohibited from operating any automobile.

Lesson for January 20
PETER'S LESSON IN HUMBLE SERVICE

TEXT—John 13:1-17; 1 Peter 5:1-5.
TEXT—Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder, as unto the Lord, Christ, who is the head of the church, which is his body, of which he is the saviour, himself saving the church, which he hath purchased with his own blood, to himself to cleanse it by the word, that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing, but that it should be holy and without blemish. As the church is cleansed by the word, so ye also, ye younger, submit yourselves to Christ, who is the head of the church, as ye submit yourselves to the Lord. This is the mystery of the church, which is his body, of which he is the saviour, himself saving the church, which he hath purchased with his own blood, to himself to cleanse it by the word, that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing, but that it should be holy and without blemish.

TOPIC—Why Jesus Washed the Disciples' Feet.
QUESTION—How Peter Learned to Serve.
ANSWER—By the Example of Christ.

Amazing Love for His Own

was fully conscious of what was immediately before him. He knew the cross, with all its shame and pain, was upon him; he knew that his disciples would shamefully forsake him in a few hours; he knew that one of his number would be the instrument in the hands of the devil in his betrayal; he was fully conscious of his death; he knew that all things were in his hands. He did not withdraw his hands from them, because of their weakness and the shameful failure which he knew would soon be made manifest. He not only loved them to the end of his earthly ministry, but loved them unto the "uttermost." The word "end" means "uttermost." Love to the uttermost, therefore means that he bestowed upon them his love, even to the extent of taking their place in death.

II. Christ Washing the Disciples' Feet (vv. 4-11).

He did not regard his hands too holy to do this menial service. The true Christian does not allow his rank in society to keep him from acts of lowly service.

1. Steps in this service (vv. 4-6).
  - a. He rose from supper.
  - b. Laid aside his garments.
  - c. Took a towel and girded himself.
  - d. Poured water into a basin.
  - e. Washed his disciples' feet.
  - f. Wiped them with the towel where he was girded.

These steps symbolize Christ's entire work of redemption. His rising from the table represents his rising from his state of enjoyment in the heavenly world. His laying aside his garments symbolized his putting aside his vestments of majesty (Phil. 2:7, 8). His girding himself symbolized his taking the form of a servant (Phil. 2:7). The water in the basin symbolized his cleansing blood; his washing of the disciples' feet, his actual cleansing of them through his word (John 15:3; Eph. 5:26); his taking his garments again, his returning to his place and position in glory.

2. Peter's impetuous ignorance (vv. 6-9). When he realized what the Lord was doing, he refused to have his feet washed; when he realized the peril of refusal, he desired to be fully washed.

3. The significance of this service to those participating in it (vv. 8-11).

- a. It is a spiritual cleansing (v. 8). Fellowship with Jesus is possible only as we are continuously cleansed from our sins (v. 10). The cleansing here is not the washing of regeneration, but that of sanctification. He that is regenerated, that is, washed in the blood of Christ (symbolized by baptism) does not need a repetition of the act; he only needs the cleansing of sanctification, symbolized by the washing of the feet. After regeneration the believer is contaminated by his sins as he walks through this world. Christ's blood cleanses of all sins those who confess them.

b. A badge of brotherly affection (v. 14). This act showed Christ's abandonment to the service of his disciples. It is a lesson much needed today. We need more and more to practice brotherly love.

c. An expression of humility (v. 15). This was a lesson much needed by the disciples, and much needed by us today. They had just been disputing as to who should be the greatest in the kingdom. Thus their selfish ambition was expressing itself. On every hand we see manifestations of pride, vanity, and even arrogance, of those who are professed followers of the lowly Jesus.

d. Equalization (v. 16). The disciples were attempting to serve each other in the name of Jesus Christ will have burned out of them the caste spirit.

III. An Example for Us (vv. 14-17).

The disciples of the Lord are under solemn obligation in the spirit of humility to serve each other, even as Christ served his disciples. This obligation rests upon his Lordship (v. 13). To refuse obedience to him is to refuse oneself above his Lord. The way to happiness is implicit obedience to the Lord.

Stop and Listen

Do we not sometimes feel, in trial or perplexity, that others might help us if they would only stop and listen? They will not, and in their constant hurry we know it is little use to speak. Let us quote the lesson for ourselves, and see what we ask.

Our Wonderful Commission

God would dare to ask you to do what is expected of you. No man could expect of you that God counts upon your doing.

GARRETT FIVE WINS OVER 'CATS, 21 TO 20

The Garrett high school basketball team, the Black Devils, defeated the Prestonsburg high school squad, the Blackcats, Saturday evening, December 29, 21 to 20, in a spirited contest.

The Blackcats played a snappy game, and though they lost, their block play seemed to function better than usual. At the end of the first half the score was 11-8 in Prestonsburg's favor, but during the last half it was a nip-and-tuck game. The score was 19 to 20 in Prestonsburg's favor with about half a minute to play, but the Garrett five managed to get that badly-needed field goal.

MAYTOWN IN VICTORY OVER MARTIN COUNTY TEAM SCORES UPSET

Special to The Times
Langley, Ky., Jan. 5.—In one of the biggest upsets of the season, the Maytown Wildcats Saturday night clawed and scratched out a 13 to 11 victory over the Inez Indians, the hitherto undefeated team from Martin county.

The Inez team is made up chiefly of last-year players and last year went through the season undefeated, losing only to Hazel Green in the state tournament at Lexington.

Inez, going into the game an overwhelming favorite, failed to observe, until too late, that the Atkins coached quintette was rapidly rounding into tournament form, having defeated the strong Pikeville College Academy on the preceding night by a score of 22 to 5 in the college gymnasium, defeating Prestonsburg high school by a score of 21 to 10, a few days earlier.

Maytown grabbed the first

IN THE NEW FORD V-8

IT MAKES no difference where you sit in the new Ford V-8. Even back seat passengers enjoy "the comfort of a front seat ride."

It took a major engineering development to make this possible—the Full-floating Springbase with Comfort Zone Seating. Notice how the springs are mounted beyond the axles... how the seats are cradled in the easy-riding zone between the springs. Notice what a difference this makes—in everyone's comfort! But Comfort Zone Riding is only one reason why you'll want a Ford V-8 in 1935. You'll want it for its V-8 power—for the beauty of its streamlined body—for its new roominess—its new easy-pressure brakes and clutch—the safety of its all-steel body and safety glass all around (at no extra cost)!

tip-off and scored a field goal. Inez came right back with two field goals, this being the only time Inez was in the lead. The score at the half was: Maytown, 10; Inez, 7.

At the beginning of the second half, Inez scored. It looked like the Indians were on the warpath, but at the end of the third quarter Maytown was still leading by one point, Inez scoring two points in that quarter and holding Maytown scoreless. In the fourth period, Inez charged their defense from a shifting zone to a close man-for-man type of guarding all over the floor. But this proved useless, for the Maytown team scored three points in this period to two for Inez.

The Maytown quintette used a shifting man-to-man defense which quickly diagnosed and stopped the set block plays of the Williams-coached machine.

This was by far the best game ever played in the Maytown gymnasium.

Ed Martin, the only player back from last year's fine Maytown team, was high scorer of the game with eight points, meanwhile holding his opponent scoreless.

Kirk, of Inez, was the high scorer for his team with six points.

The line-up:

Maytown	Pos.	Inez
Gayheart	F	Slone
Patton	F	Kirk
Martin	C	Mills
Baldrige	G	Cassidy
Stewart	G	Williamson

Referee: Wheeler (Georgetown). Timekeeper: Messer (Union). Scorer: Turner (Berea).

McDowell, Ky., Jan. 7.—In a neatly played contest, the McDowell high school basketball team trounced the Wheelwright high school cagers Saturday, in the Wheelwright gym, 24 to 19. Two weeks previously, the Wheelwright five easily outscored McDowell, 42 to 19.

Wheelwright scored first on a free throw by Newsom. Then McDowell scored a field goal and kept a comfortable lead for the remainder of the game. At the end of the first half, McDowell was leading, 15 to 7.

The game was hard-fought and cleanly played. All five regulars on each of the two

'CATS WIN ONE,
AND LOSE ONE

Basketball has again assumed its rightful place as a winter sport after a lull during the holiday season. Both the Prestonsburg high school Blackcats and the Modern Drug Shop Independents have played a full schedule of games over the week-end.

Friday night, the Blackcats journeyed to McDowell where they met and defeated the McDowell high school team by tee score of 20 to 14. Among the outstanding players of this game was Craft, Blackcat forward, who garnered 10 points, which were as many points as contributed by the rest of his teammates.

The line-up:
P'burg Pos. McDowell
Craft F Hall
Tackett F Vanderpool
Thomas C L. Stumbo
Mayo G Ramsey
Goodman G F. Stumbo

Substitutions: McDowell—G. Stumbo. Referee—Bob Harlowe, (Berea).
On the same night the Modern Drug Shop Independents took a close game from the McDowell Independents by the narrow margin of two points, with a 30-28 score. Rose and Branham for the Modern Drug Shop, and Hall and Tackett for McDowell were fighting it out among themselves for high scoring honors, each scoring not less than 10 points.

The line-up:
Modern Pos. McDowell
Rose F Hall
Craft F Tackett
Branham C Martin
Harlowe G Akers
Burke G Stumbo

Substitutions: McDowell—England, Prestonsburg; Collins, Hunley.

Saturday night a triple header was played at the local high school gymnasium. In the first game, the Prestonsburg high school Reserves defeated the Allen grade school team by the score of 18 to 17.

The strong Inez high school team, winners of the Regional Tournament last year and representatives in the State Championship Tournament at Frankfort, presented a team practically intact from last year, and defeated the tamed Blackcats with a score of 27-11. In the third and final game of the evening the Modern Drug Shop Independents defeated the Inez Independents, 34-23. In this game, Branham, playing the center position for the Druggists, was again high point man with 12 points.

Monday night, the Independents defeated the Martin Independents by a 29-12 score. Craft, local forward, was high point man with 10 points, outscoring Norris of Martin, who registered 8 points.

The Blackcats have lined up a strenuous week-end schedule, as follows:

Friday (tonight) Hazard—here; Saturday—Pikeville—there.

Jack Shaw, Pure Oil field representative, of Parkersburg, W. Va., was a business visitor in town Wednesday.

Mrs. Iley B. Browning, of Ashland, spent Wednesday and Thursday here with relatives.

Byrns Declares Congress Will Leave Outstanding Record

"Problems of vast importance are confronting the nation and Congress is fully aware of them," said Speaker Joseph W. Byrns in a broadcast over the National Radio Forum January 7. "We will meet them as they are presented and, I am confident, will leave a record which will make this an outstanding session in the history of the nation."

"I think I can say with assurance that business need have no fear and that this Congress will take no steps which will impair or delay recovery. The fear has been voiced that Congress will 'run wild,' as some have expressed it. I am confident such fears are groundless. This expressed fear is nothing new. It bobs up every two years. On the one hand we have the predatory gentlemen—resentful of restrictions placed on their acquisitive activities by Congress—and on the other we have the radicals, angry because Congress rejects their leadership."

"It should be borne in mind that it is not the function of Congress to initiate executive policies. That is properly the duty of the President and the nation is fortunate in having at its head a man with both courage and vision, who recognizes his responsibilities and has proved his capacity. In the stupendous task to which he is devoting his heart and brain, President Roosevelt should have the whole-hearted co-operation of Congress and, insofar as my influence goes, he will get it."

"The first piece of constructive legislation is one extending the life of the RFC, which has proved to be the right arm of the Government in the battle against business depression. There are other emergency agencies which, if they are to continue, for limited or permanent periods, must be given new lease on life. These include the NRA and AAA, both the objects of bitter attack. Yet business, I am sure, has no desire to go back to the rule of fang and claw and the recent referendums by farmers on continuance of the control programs indicate faith and hope for the future."

"With bold strokes the President has marked out a national program for recovery, for cooperation between industry and the Government which has called forth praise not only from his friends but his political adversaries as well. The keystone is his recommendation that a work roll be substituted for the existing relief roll. His plan is to provide work on worthwhile projects, many of which in time will be self-liquidating and all beneficial to this and succeeding generations."

"Although this program is for an emergency—such as the country never faced before—and will be carried forward only so long as necessary to prevent starvation, it can be curtailed as rapidly as recovery of private industry takes up the slack in unemployment."

Miss Zena Dare Daniel has returned from St. Louis, where she spent the holidays with relatives.

HOW WOMEN
CAN WIN MEN
AND MEN WIN

The Favor of Other Men

Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements are hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.

Investigate Reported
Trachoma

Dr. Ransdell was in Wheelwright recently investigating what was reported to be trachoma in the family of John Scott, colored, an employee of the Inland Steel Company. The trouble proved not to be trachoma, but he found three of his children, 18 to 24, to be totally blinded from cataracts. The history that Dr. Ransdell was able to get was that these people have been blind since about three years old.

The oldest child, a daughter, had an unsuccessful operation several years ago, and her condition offers no hope of any improvement, but the condition of both boys is encouraging and they should be able to have the cataracts successfully removed, and restored to normal vision.

Arrangements are now being made to have these operations performed. There is no state institution that is doing this character of work, and Dr. Ransdell is handling these cases through the Society for the Prevention of Blindness, New York City. Where they will be sent for an operation will be designated by the Society.

Children Sent to Hospital

Three children were sent to the Crippled Children's hospital, the past week, for operations through the Crippled Children's Commission. These children are Henry Adkins, Wheelwright; Juanita Minix, Lancer, and Arthur Conley, Prestonsburg. These children were sent in last week and some will probably have to stay several weeks. Two more children, Adis Roop and a Bowling child, will be sent to Louisville the last of this month for operation at the hospital.

Field Nurse Here

Miss Florence Stein, field nurse for the United States Public Health Service, arrived in Prestonsburg this week and will spend several days with the nurses of the Floyd county health department, looking over their work and giving instructions. Miss Stein has had experience in both the teaching and nursing field, and is well qualified to give us help with our nursing work. She will probably spend about one week in Floyd county.

Visit Schools

Misses Troll and Parsons, nurses of the county health department, visited schools on Middle Creek, Right and Left Beaver Creeks and some of the Big Sandy this week.

Resume Work On Sanitary Project

M. V. Clarke, sanitary inspector, resumed work this week on his sanitary project at Auxier, after being out a couple of weeks on account of the holidays and getting the pay schedule arranged for the year by the relief officials. I have inspected this work several times and Montaine is doing a splendid job, something of which the community and county at large should be proud.

Chickenpox Epidemic
Subsides

The health officer was on Left Beaver two days last week visiting schools and investigating other conditions that had been reported. The chickenpox epidemic seems to have died down at Salisbury. The quarantined cases were visited Saturday and no new cases have developed to date.

The mad dog scare seems to have abated the past week. No new cases were reported last week. Two cases are under treatment at this time. Measles and whooping cough are still prevalent in many schools in the county.

SANDY VALLEY YOUNG PEOPLE TO MEET AT PAINTSVILLE JAN. 18TH

The Sandy Valley Young People's Union will meet at the Paintsville M. E. Church, South, on Friday evening, Jan. 18, at 7:30 o'clock, Jesse Elliott, president of the Union, announces.

The last meeting was held at Prestonsburg in December as the opening session of the mid-winter week-end Christian Culture Institute. The banner for the largest attendance went to Betsy Layne. The institute was under the direction of Rev. Curry, of Wheelwright, Miss Darnell and Rev. King, of Prestonsburg, and Reverend Simms, of Van Lear. Many excellent suggestions were made in the classes. Three courses were given, including "Worship," "Missions," and "Leadership and Recreation." After a discussion of the problems of the different groups a summary of the needs was made and objectives were listed.

Out-of-town members of the Institute were entertained at the homes of Prestonsburg members. They unanimously expressed hearty appreciation to the Prestonsburg church whose hospitality made possible the Institute. An increasing and enthusiastic attendance is anticipated at the Paintsville meeting, which will be concerned with development of citizenship under the committee on Leadership.

MRS. FITZPATRICK ILL

Mrs. Sally Fitzpatrick continues very ill at her home here. Her many friends hope for her early recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Cal Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Clark spent Wednesday in Huntington shopping.

Miss Opal Murphy and Mr. and Mrs. William Pettry, of Garrett, spent Thursday in Prestonsburg.

We are advised that the American Legion meeting will be held at Wheelwright and Weeksburg on Saturday, January 26, instead of on the 19th as stated in last week's issue.

Funeral rites were conducted Thursday from the home under the direction of E. P. Arnold, with burial being made in the (Martin cemetery) at Wayland.

Mrs. Clayborne Stephens, who has been confined in Paintsville hospital because of a serious toxic infection, returned to her home Thursday morning.
