The doctors say . . . Use liquid treatment

Here is the soundest advice anyone It is based on medical opinion. We want you to have the benefit of this information no matter what !axative you may buy:

The secret of real relief from constipation is reduced dosage. You can't regulate the bowels unless you can regulate the help you give them That is why doctors use a liquid taxative; the dose can be measured to a drop.

Avoid laxatives that you can't cut down in dosage; especially those that seem to require larger doses than when you began their use. Under the doctor's care, you usual-y get a liquid laxative. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. Smaller and smaller doses until you don't need any.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains see he and cascara—natural laxatives that form no habit.

WOW VICKS VAPORUB

Often, "mere colds" have serious consequences. It is dangerous to neglect a cold-equally dangerous to experiment with half-way measures.

Feel safe! Use Vicks VapoRub - the proved external method of treating colds. No risks of constant internal "dosing", which so often upsets delicate digestions and lowers resistance when most needed.

THE NARRATIVE

introduces Tony to Ransdell.

CHAPTER II.—New York newspapers publish a statement made by Hendron and concurred in by sixty of the world's greatest scientists. The prepared statement says that Professor Bronson has discovered two planets, which must have broken away from another star or sun and traveled through interstellar space for an incalculable time, until they came to a region of the heavens which brough them at last under the attraction of the sun. The statement ends: "Their previous course, consequently, has been modified by the sun, and as a result, they are now approaching us." The result of the inevitable collision must be the end of the earth. The approaching bodies are the earth. The approaching bodies are referred to as Bronson Alpha and Bronson Beta, the latter being the smallerabout the size of the earth.

CHAPTER III.—"It's going to be doomsday, isn't it?" Tony Drake asks Eve. "No, Tony-more than doomsday. Dawn after doomsday," she tells him, She explains that the first time the Bronson Bodies approach the earth they will not hit it, but the second time, one, Bronson Beta, will pass, and the other Bronson Beta, will pass, and the other will hit the earth and demolish it. To devise means of transferring to Bronson Beta, so much like the earth, is what is occupying the minds of the members of the League of the Last Days,

On the morning succeeding the spread of this statement, Tony stood in the vast, populous waiting-room of the Grand Central station. Yesterday there had been issued marching orders for fifteen hundred millions of human beings. If they did not know that it was to be the end of the world, at least they were told that it was the end of the world as it had been.

He listened to fragments of the conversations in progress in his vicinity: "I tell you, Henry, it's silly, that's my apartment and pack up my duds think there's a comet coming, then they're crazy.

"It's the end, that's what it is; and I for one am glad to see it. When the sea starts to rise and the earth starts to split open, I'm going to stand there and laugh. I'm going to say: 'Now what's the good of the farm relief? Now who's going to collect my income tax? Now what does it matter whether we have prohibition or not? Goodby, world.' That's what I'm going to say, 'Good-by! Good riddance!' I hope it wipes the whole d-n' thing as clean as a billiard ball.

"Don't hold my hand so tight, Daddy. You hurt me. "It's ridiculous. They've been fighttions. They can't even tell whether it's going to rain or not tomorrow. How in happen? Give a scientist one idea, and a lot of trick figures, and he goes haywire, that's all.

"I drew it all out and bought gold. I got two revolvers. I filled the house with canned goods. I said: 'Here you are, Sarah. You've been telling me all your life how well you can run things. Take the money. Take the house. Take we guns. I'm leaving. If we get a couple of months left, I'm going to see to it that I have a little That's what I said to her! and, by G-d, here I am. . .

Tony shook his head. He rode through a long dark tunnel and then out to the station at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. The train moved past the flual outpost tenements his home, it was said. into a verdant landscape with the high and far over the Palisades. Tony glanced back, once, toward the teeming city. The first flood would not top those tallest towers etched there; the pinnacles of man's triumphs would, for a while, rise above the tides; but all the rest? Tony turned away and looked out at the river, trying not to think of it.

"I see," Fony replied. His conpanion hesitated to say what was obviously on his mind, but finally brote the short silence. "Look here, Mr.-Mr.-

"Mr. Drake, I can't understand why on earth Hendron would want me. If he's planning to take a group of people to some safe spot in order to preserve scientific knowledge during the next year, he can find hundreds of people, thorsands of people, that have more knowledge to save, and a better memory to save it in, than I have." Tony locked at the good-humored blue eyes and liked the young man. He felt instinctively that here was one person whom Cole Hendron and the committee would surely accept The name of the man before hint, he recalled, was Jack Taylor-his record for a man of twenty-five was startling. He grinned at the youth's speculation. "You're, a physicist, Taylor, If you were in Cole Hendron's shoes, and were trying to take a group of peo ple to a place of safety, just where, under the circumstances we anticipate, would you take them?"

The other man was thoughtful for an instant, "That's just what worried me. I can't think of any place on earth that would offer a refuge essentially satisfactory.

"Exactly. No place on earth." Tony emphasized the last two words, Jack Taylor frowned quickly, and suddenly the freckles on his face stood out because his color had de-

If the Telephone were Not There!

MANY TIMES each day you reach for the telephone on your desk at the office or in its familiar spot at home. It is an old and trusted friend. You scarcely give a thought to what it means to a busy day.

Yet suppose the telephone were not there! Suppose -for a week-or a month-you could not call anybody by telephone and nobody could call you! The whole machinery of business and the home would be thrown out of gear. Orders would be lost-efficiency and profits reduced. You would be out of touch with your world.

America needs quick, reliable telephone service to get things done in the brisk, crisp American manner. And it enjoys the best service in the world. America leads in telephone service. In relation to population there are six times as many telephones in this country as in Europe and the telephone is used nine times as much.

Greater progress has been made in this country because of the Bell System's one policy, one system and universal service.
