Highway Commission Asks Bids of McDowell-Wheelwright Road Work

The state highway commission this week is asking bids for grade and drain construction of seven miles of road from McDowell to Wheelwright to complete the long-sought Left Beaver Creek road.

An appropriation of approximately $77,000 has been made by the commission for the completion of this project. Work has been under way for some time on the first sector of the highway, that extending from Hunter to McDowell.

Completion of this highway promises outlet of one of the county's richest and most thickly populated sections which, hitherto, has had only a road into Pike county and Pikeville. The entire county is expected to benefit from the highway.

Minimum wages paid to skilled labor on this project will be 40 cents per hour, while the unskilled labor minimum wage will be 30 cents an hour. Bids on the construction of the road will be received until August 23.

LAWRENCE WOMAN SLAYS ROOMMATE

In State Hospital for Insane at Lexington July 4th

Lexington, Ky., July 4—Working herself free from the straight-jacket and then from the bonds which held her in bed, a violently insane woman patient at the Eastern State Hospital for the insane here early today crept to the bed of another patient in the same room and choked her to death.

The victim was Mrs. Mary Ellen Bauers, 23, Evarts, who entered the institution May 24. She was killed by Mrs. Laura Church, 35, of Lawrence county, who was admitted to the hospital Saturday. She was placed in the violent ward yesterday after she had attacked another patient but failed to inflict any injuries.

The two women, both confined in the same room, but both were laced in canvas jackets and tied to their beds in order to prevent them from injuring each other or themselves. Mrs. Church, however, managed to free herself. The tragedy was discovered at 3:30 a. m. today by Mrs. Sadie Springer, night attendant in the violent women's department, who found Mrs. Church in the other woman's bed, sitting on her and choking her.

ALLEN MAN UNDER BOND IN SHOOTING

Joe Fannin Charged With Wounding Stapleton at Allen July 4th

Joe Fannin, Allen restaurant-owner and liquor dealer, was placed under $1,000 bond on two charges Friday following the shooting and wounding on the afternoon of July 4 at Fannin's restaurant of Jake Stapleton, well-known Allen man.

Charges placed against Fannin were for shooting and wounding and for keeping a disorderly house.

Fannin and Stapleton are said to have disagreed, sometime before the shooting, over Fannin's move to annul the incorporation of the town of Allen and on the afternoon of the shooting are reported to have disputed over an account. Charge of Fannin's shotgun, fired point-blank, crossed Stapleton's abdomen, causing a painful but not serious flesh wound. Stapleton was taken to the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, where he is recovering.

130 ARE ENROLLED IN CHURCH SCHOOL

Prestonsburg's second union vacation church school had enrolled 130 pupils Wednesday of this week, and was well on its way in a two-week program of Christian training and activities. The school is to continue through Friday of next week. All boys and girls of the community are invited to attend.

With an enrollment of 43, the junior department for boys and girls, 9 to 11 years of age, led the co-operative church institute. There were 42 intermediates, 12 years old and up, enrolled; 33 primaries, children six, seven and eight; and 12 beginners, ages 4 and 5.

The intermediates, under the tutelage of the Rev. Harry F. King, Methodist pastor and dean of the school, are making a study of the early Christian Church and Christian heroes through the centuries. As a textbook, "THE LIFE IN DEED" is being used. Intermediate boys are doing woodwork under the direction of Dr. Josef Nordenhaug, Baptist pastor. Intermediate girls, working under the direction of Mrs. Charles Milby, are enrolling and whipping handkerchief hemstitches. Later, they are to engage in tie-dyeing.

Junior students, divided into two groups, are making a study of "LIVING AS JESUS LIVED" and learning Bible verses. Mrs. H. H. Bolender and Mrs. W. C. Rimmer are the teachers for the juniors. Boys are doing woodwork; while the girls, directed by Mrs. J. D. Thomas, have been daubing jars in various colors. Later, the girls are to take up sewing.

All KERA Projects Are Temporarily Suspended

Temporary discontinuance of all KERA projects in (Floyd county, as well as in all other Kentucky counties, was ordered effective Thursday, and on that day, The Times was told, only four persons were still employed on work projects in this county.

Suspension of work is being made until the transition can be made from the old relief set-up to the new Works Progress Administration program. It is not known definitely how long it will be until the WPA becomes effective.

Applications for projects under the new set-up are being sent to Washington, and as soon as approved, will furnish work. The Mud Creek road, on which right-of-way has been given by landowners, is one of these projects. This route will be surfaced with crushed stone, it was said.

The transition from the KERA to the new works program is intended to transmute relief clients into workers, the Works Progress Administration having as its aim the employment

PRESTONSBURG HIT BY STORM FRIDAY

Streets and Basements Under Water, Gardens Damaged, by Cloudburst

Prestonsburg, except for the absence of gondolas, took on a Venetian appearance Friday afternoon when a cloudburst flooded almost every street in town, left a large portion of the courthouse lawn under two feet of water, inundated basements and ruined gardens.

The Highland avenue section of town suffered severest losses in garden crops, while Court street, Third avenue and the Mayo Trail were deep in water pouring down from Highland. A high wind accompanied the rainstorm and for several hours Prestonsburg was in darkness.

The storm did not extend throughout the county, however. Bull Creek farmers suffered heavily, lower Middle Creek was hard hit, and parts of Beaver Creek received a portion of the storm. A few automobiles plowing through Continued on page six

MRS. B. M. JAMES AND DAUGHTER HOSTESSES WITH BRIDGE-SHOWER

Mrs. Ballard M. James and daughter, Miss Mary Irene, were hostesses on Tuesday evening to a beautiful bridge-shower, complimentary to Mrs. Russell Pelphrey, nee, Miss Susan Allen, a bride of recent date. Spacious rooms of the James home were artistically decorated for the occasion, which was attended by more than 100 guests.

Mrs. Pelphrey, one of Prestonsburg's most popular young ladies, was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. Fourteen tables of bridge were in play during the evening, with Mrs. A. L. Davidson receiving high score award and Mrs. S. L. Spradlin, the second score prize.

A delicious salad course was served. Invited guests were: Mesdames Russell Pelphrey, honoree, John W. Hensley, C. J. Humphreys, S. L. Spradlin, C. D. Milby, H. B. Patrick, Marris May, E. R. Burke, A. L. Hill, C. P. Stephens, M. J. Leete, O. T. Stephens, C. B. Latta, A. B.

FLOYD HONDEL DROPS DEAD IN LEE COUNTY

A report reaching here from Beattyville, Lee county, says that Floyd M. Hondel, 44 years old, formerly a driller in the Floyd county gas field, dropped dead near Fixer, Lee county, June 28, while working on a rig.

The body was shipped to Fryburg, Pa., for burial in the family cemetery. He spent several years in this section, where he is well-known. Willis Hondel, of Estill, this county, is a brother of the victim. He leaves a son and two sisters.

SPENCER BOYD IS CALLED, AGED 87

Well-Known Buffalo Creek Farmer Dies Friday; Was Native of Bath County

Spencer M. Boyd, well-known Buffalo Creek farmer and one of the county's oldest men, died at his home at Wonder Friday morning at 8 o'clock, at the age of 87 years of illnesses attendant upon advanced age.

Born in Bath county, Mr. Boyd moved to this county when a young man and had resided on Buffalo since that time. In the early '60's he attended military school in Lexington, and from early manhood he was a member of the M. E. Church, South. In this county he followed the quiet pursuits of a farmer, and held the esteem of a host of friends.

Surviving Mr. Boyd are his widow, Emma Clarke Boyd, aged 86; one daughter and two sons: Mrs. Laura Wright, Huntington, W. Va.; Harve Boyd, Huntington, and Cyrus Boyd, of Wonder. One sister, Mrs. Lucy Walker, Tacoma, Wash., also survives. Three children preceded him in death.

Funeral rites were conducted Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, Revs. Mose Maynard, Tim Hunt and Harve Spears officiating. Burial was made in the Clarke cemetery on Buffalo.

LEASES DRY CLEANING PLANT HERE RECENTLY

J. C. Ward has leased the Prestonsburg Dry Cleaning Company, it was announced a few days ago, from D. C. Stephens, owner of the plant. Mrs. Ward is in charge of the business.

Joe Hill, who operated the plant for some time under lease, continues his connection with the plant.

MISS WHITE REPRESENTS RED CROSS IN MAGOFFIN

Miss Ella Noel White, executive secretary of Floyd chapter, American Red Cross, and emergency disaster worker, was called Saturday to Magoffin county, where a cloudburst Thursday ruined crops and caused considerable damage otherwise. Miss White found, however, that the problem was one for relief agencies to handle, since there was no immediate visible distress. A sanitation problem created by high waters has claimed the attention of state health department officials. Garland L. Rice, Paintsville, area relief supervisor for that district, said that relief of other flood victims would be effected by the KERA.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Layne, of Birmingham, Ala., are houseguests here of Mr. and Mrs. Jo M. Davidson.

YEAR-ROUND ROADS POSSIBLE IF ROUTE GRANTS ARE GIVEN

Only Hindrance Lies In Refusal of Landholders To Donate Right-of-Way

A system of rock-surfaced roads in the rural districts of this county is possible under the new relief program if right-of-way will be donated by landholders along these routes, it was said here this week.

It is not probable, however, that many such roads will be constructed by the relief administration, since property-owners in most sections of the county are said to be refusing right-of-way. A 30 foot right-of-way is required, though the road-bed, not to be more than 16 feet wide.

The fiscal court has no funds with which to purchase this right-of-way. Besides, the magistrates hold that landowners should be willing to concede right-of-way in order to have a year-round road built for their use. Wherever proposed highway construction is held up by refusal of right-of-way grants, further projects are not likely to be considered, it was said this week.

Major Floyd highway projects now under way by the relief administration are the Mud Creek and McDowell roads.

EVANGELISTIC MEETING MOVES INTO TENT HERE

The evangelistic party conducting the meeting at the tent on the vacant lot adjoining the high school building here, will continue indefinitely, it is announced. Hinton, also of Sebring, O., will bring inspiring messages each evening.

Sermon subjects which will be used during the meeting: "The New Birth," "The Basis of Christianity," "What Must I Do To Be Saved?" HUDDLESTON FOR GOVERNOR

His nomination means much for You

The political bosses don't want him. Therefore he must be a man in whom the people can place their faith.

Democrats must seek to get in the run-off primary, the man who will be strongest in November.

To the Democrats who sincerely desire to defeat Tom Rhea, in the second primary, the Huddleston candidacy offers you your only hope of success.

To the Democrats who desire to defeat the Republicans in November Huddleston is your only chance.

Huddleston as state treasurer has proven his worth. He will junk the sales tax and raise the state's revenue through a luxury and an income tax.

He pledges himself to save the people $4,500,000 annually in the operation of the state government.

Write me Room 543 Seelbach Hotel, Louisville and tell me what you are going to do in your county.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS:

A kilowatt-hour is an electrical unit and is greater than the power of a horse working for an hour. When we speak of "working like a horse" we voice a gross exaggeration for a horse can do ten times the work of a man.

A kilowatt-hour costs the average customer on our lines less than 5 1/2 cents. So that you can easily figure out for yourself that any one who does laborious work that can be done by a little electric motor, is working for considerably less than a penny an hour.

Women who sweep with brooms, toil over washtubs, pump a sewing machine and do many other manual tasks, are selling their labor for this small sum. These "Cinderellas" should shift their burden to the strong muscles of ELECTRICAL horsepower. Best of all, the more you work electrically the less it costs per unit. Fully electrify your home and the cost of a kilowatt-hour, under our low rates, goes down to about 2.5 cents.

District Manager

HORSEPOWER A'PLENTY... "CINDERELLAS SHOULD RIDE

A little electric motor will sweep the house, wash clothes and do other laborious work. A woman who slaves at these tasks is working for less than 1c an hour.

The Favor of Other Men Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you. Feuds Die Out But Feud Tales Persist

By Jean Thomas

A recent tragedy in North Carolina, the slaying from ambush of a wealthy Northerner by a mountaineer has served to revive the perennial tales that represent our Southern mountains as a land of feuds and feudists, of blood-hatred and vengeance. The truth is that mountain feuds are dying out faster than the tales about them.

Certainly, the slaying of Thomas Price was not a typical answer of mountain people to such benevolence as he had bestowed upon his humble hill-folk neighbors. He had provided them with medical care at his estate, maintained a circulating library among them, contributed to their schools and churches. It was more in keeping with their nature that, as the dispatches said, "resentment ran high among them" against the slayer. It has been my experience among the mountaineers that they never forget a kindness.

I do not claim acquaintance with all the people of the southern highlands who have been unfortunate enough to have trouble with their neighbors. Yet many years of court reporting and ballad hunting in the Eastern Kentucky hills have afforded me an opportunity to know mountain life. Across the years I know of no parallel to the Price case among the people with whom I have been associated. I can recall no betrayal of a benefactor, and I have never known a mountain man, woman or child who would accept a favor without returning one.

It is hard, and takes a long time for a region to live down a bad name.

Once in New York I looked for employment as a stenographer. "Where were you last employed?" a prospective employer asked me. "In Rowan county, Kentucky," I answered. He fairly pounced upon the words, "Rowan county, dark Rowan, where the Martin-Tolliver feud was fought? Of course you went armed? They tell me those hill-billies are killing one another off down there. They say a stranger isn't safe. I didn't get that job, for then and there I turned on my heels and walked out.

I knew how Ben Martin, son of the first Martin to die in the troubles with the Tollivers, felt when he left home to get away from strife and worked as a farm hand out West. Ben Martin is a true mountain man, so when he mingled with his fellow-harvesters on the prairies he had little to say. Least of all did he ever speak of the circumstances that had caused him to leave home, mother, brothers and sisters to suffer home-sickness out in the "level land."

One day in the wheat fields at the noon hour—Ben Martin himself told me the story as he and his wife and I sat on the porch of his cottage—a harvester spoke of Rowan county "where the Martin-Tolliver feud is still raging." The feud had been ended for years, but the speaker went on: "Tehy say the feudists clapped handcuffs on John Martin and then riddled him with bullets." Well, live by the sword, die by the sword—I guess he got what was coming to him."

Ben Martin, quiet, homesick lad, gripped his hands about his knees and kept silent—Ben, who as a little boy had knelt beside his dying father whose hands were bound while the guns of assassins poured lead into his defenseless body. "And it was not Tollivers who fired the shots," Ben longed to say. "But being a mountain man, he kept silent. He quit the farm that day and went his lonely way, seeking peace from babbling tongues.

Today, returned to his beloved Kentucky hills, Ben Martin lives in quiet. "It was outsiders," he told me, "that started the troubles and kept them alive. The man who filled more graves than any other man in Rowan county never himself fired a shot. There was no feeling between us and the Tollivers and there is none now." To prove his statement, Ben added in a gentle voice: "My blood cousin married a Tolliver—and look yonder."

A bevy of school children went happily down the road past his cottage with his hollyhocks and petunias and gay sunflowers. "Look at the least ones yonder. The blood of Tollivers and Martins runs in their veins. Bless you, look at them with their arms around each other. Do they look like they're carrying malice in their hearts?"

Ben Martin has given more than a quarter of a century to the service of his country. He saw battle in what he calls the "Spanish-American Skirmish" and in the World War. He was a great sharpshooter, though he will not tell you so—to learn of his war record you will have to ask his wife. Now for peace and contentment he has come back to his Kentucky hills. "There is no other place like them in the world," he says. "Here I am to spend the rest of my days with enmity in my heart against no man."

It is easy to understand how strife crept into the rugged lives of the hill folk. They came early into their mountain fastnesses seeking freedom from Old World tyranny. Before the days of surveyed boundaries and law courts they knew only the pioneer's defense, the gun. Even as they held safe the crude log cabin against the Red Coats and the Indians, as time went on, they defended their rights, real or fancied, against invasion by one of their own.

"I can't bide the idea of being scrouged," I heard a mountain man argue recently, when timber prospectors sought to buy the virgin forest that surrounded his wilderness cabin. He refused a fortune for his timber rather than let a saw-mill invade his little realm. But this trait of human nature is not peculiar to mountaineers. There are spite fences in up-to-date cities.

Even after the wilderness was laid out into counties, after courts of law were established and men voted by open ballot, calling out the name of their choice and giving their own names as voters, differences continued and sometimes became quarrels.

The Martin-Tolliver trouble, by the way, grew out of a county election. So long had mountain folk dwelt in isolation, settling misunderstandings and grievances in their own fashion, it was not easy for them to fall into a new way of doing things.

A judge, what of him? Why call a jury to settle how Neighbor Jones' sheep-killing dog should be dealt with?

Neighbor Brown didn't need those fellows down at the county seat to tell him that Jones' dog should be settled with at their choice and giving their

FEUD TALES

Continued from page 3. He reached for the old flintlock gun over the fireplace and finished the sheep-killing dog without ado. It made Jones as angry as a hornet, of course. But hadn't it made Brown's blood boil to see his helpless sheep mutilated, especially after he had warned Jones to tie up the dog? Why journey 30 miles over the creek-bed road to the courthouse and through a lot of gyrations to get Jones warranted?

An incident so simple caused bitterness among neighbors. In the uneventful life of the mountains a trespass or the loss of property became magnified into an insult, a violation of independence. The mountaineer mulled it over in his mind. He talked it over in his cabin with his family. The children were there and heard. There was no other room for them. Kinfolk joined in and loyalty sided with kinfolk. Just as the clans of Scotland joined in numbers and ill will so grew the mountain factions, descendants often of those same Scottish highlanders.

In some such way, after a dispute over the ownership of a hog, rose the Hatfield-McCoy trouble at Tug river. I have lived at Tug river, my nearest neighbors, the Hatfields. There were no locks on doors or windows in the little shack I occupied in their midst. One day when I was still a stranger there I set out to visit a sick child living at the opposite end of the railroad tunnel. At the tunnel entrance stood a giant fellow with miner's cap on his head and pick on his shoulder, his face dark with coal dust. He was one of the Hatfields.

"You needn't be a mite afeared to walk through the tunnel," he said in a soft, musical voice. "Yonder comes the woman—his wife. She's going to see sick folks t'other side." He bowed to me as graciously as a knight to a queen. The woman, basket on arm, gave me a friendly smile and said: "I'm proud to make your acquaintance." Her man inquired solicitously, "Did you fetch a play-pretty for the sick baby-child?" The woman answered, "I did, for a fact—a poppet" taking as she spoke a corn-shuck doll from her basket, "and I fetched a jar of honey, too."

The stalwart son of the Hatfields, "own blood kin of Devil Anse," fumbled in the bosom of his shirt and drew forth a paper bag. "I fowed you might forgit, and a little 'un does crave sweetening, so I stopped at the commissary and got a poke of stick candy." He dropped it in the basket.

Such are the people whom romantic outsiders picture as feudists. They are as human, as simple, as kindly as you and I, and they hate a feud as bitterly as any of us. Too well they know what it means! Incidentally I have never heard the word from their lips. If speak they must, they always say "the trouble," or the "war," never the feud. And the enemy is always, in their words, "t'other side."

I recall a "war" in the mountains over a dividing line. The litigants called it a "line-fight case." Far back in the beginning of the trouble there had been loss of life, but the case was revised in court in my reporting days and disposed of with perfect amiability. There was no shooting in the courtroom. There was something exciting, nevertheless. The star witness produced an original land grant from a king.

The gratitude of mountain people is so much more characteristic of them than rancor. There was Jamie a helpless cripple until his fourteenth year, when the doctor unlocked his twisted joints with bloodless surgery and restored him. One day when he was still in casts from the hips down but able to use his hands a little I came upon him working with a scrap of leather and a punch.

"I'm making the doctor a pill pocket," he told me, and added eagerly, "Old Jethro's Eph fetched me this hide to make hit of, and this here punch." Then he leaned closer, glad flecks dancing in his dark eyes. "By Eph a-fotchin' these things, hit's the sign of peace betwixt old Jethro's people and mine."

The pill pocket was all Jamie had to give in return for the doctor's services—for the like of which an American millionaire's family paid a king's ransom to Lorenz. And Jamie's grandmother—what of her gratitude for the boy made whole? For days Granny, though stooped with age and rheumatism, kept at "seng digging" until she had a "great passel" of roots. "The doctor can swap 'em for cash money," she said.

Nor was that all the grandmother carried to the doctor. "A poke of walnuts, mind you, hulled and washed and clean as a hound's tooth at the creek." She had scoured them "because the doctor can't dibe a grain of dirt or gorm." It took Jamie a long year to finish the pill pocket while he was regaining the use of the joints of his fingers. "My people is a proud race of people," he told his benefactor, "and me and Granny, we ain't aimin' to take withouten we can give."

I met a neighbor of Jamie's, old Uncle Eli, past 70 and blind. He sang scores of hill ballads to me while I typed them, and I presented him with a bound sheaf of them. "But woman," he said, "me without eyesight and not apt at any task, I dast take them ballads and put myself in your debt." I tried to assure him that he was under no obligation; that the world owed him a debt for having kept the old songs alive and fresh in memory. My argument was lost on Uncle Eli. He pondered, then made his slow way into the house and fumbled in a hide-covered trunk in the chimney corner.

"They say you are allus searchin' for old curiosities," he said, returning with an old volume in his hand. "Well, thar's the Good Book my great-grandfater fetched across the briny deep. Iffen you're satisfied to swap, take hit and I'll be proud to have them ballads you writ off for me." He placed in my hands a rare old copy of the Bible.

There was a bullet hole in the thick leather cover. "Hit saved my life once," Uncle Eli said dreamily. "T'other side showed fight, long time ago. They fired pint-blank, through your door, but I were fixed fer 'em. I were expecting 'em. I taken the Good Book and spread hit out wide over my chest under my lindsey-woolsey shirt." He chuckled at the memory. "The Good Book ketched the bullet, and my life were spared." He paused a moment. "I everly thought a heap of hit, hit's done a good part by me. But you take hit, now, for them troubles is all past and forgot, long, long ago."

Many such people I have met in the Kentucky mountains. To the world they may be "feudists" still but to me they are just people. There was Emmaline, who had lost her sight when she was a child and regained it in her teens. Emmaline "craved to larn to write a love letter," but not until I had allowed her to teach me to knit would she consent to begin her "larn-in."

Months afterwards she confided to me: "Woman, do you know that I'm aimin' to marry one of t'other side? We've writ a heap of letters to each other. Time were when Pap would ha' set his foot down on hit, but now he owns that no more doughty man ever backed a nag or lifted axe to tree than Jason." There was something else. "Woman, I'm wanting you to be my waitar along with his sister Elvirie." I protested that I had never been a bridesmaid. Couldn't she have Elvirie alone? But Emmaline said, "don't you appreciate that Elvirie, his sister, being my waitar, is our sign of peace? I'm wanting you to bear witness to our peace through mine and Jason's wedlock, with Elvirie by my side."

And there is Aunt Rimithie whom I visited in her one-room cabin in a quiet hollow below a hilltop burying ground where lay "Pap's men that fit the Red Coats." The headstones still showed the names of three solters of the Revolution. But down below, close beside her garden, was another burial plot with four ivy-covered graves.

"My four boys," she said. "They died for their rights, same as Pap's folks died. Her wrinkled hands were clasped; her trembling lips formed the soundless words, "God forgive us."

In the moonlight on the cabin step she told me briefly of "the trouble betwixt my people and t'other side, troubles that had taken away what she loved best on earth. "But hit's all passed away now," she said reverently. "We've all got peace here."

Presently she was singing an old-time Scottish ballad, the nearest to a lullaby that I have ever heard from a mountain woman.

"That were my baby boy's favorite song ballet," she said wistfully. "He were just turned 12 the day he and my three others were tuck. I couldn't put my boys off yonder on the hill. I wanted to keep 'em close by, here by my posies. Mought be the least one, he'd be wantin' to hear his mammy singing of a evening time that there favorite ballet he loved so good."

That is Aunt Rimithie today, who has been fantastically described as the "fiery-eyed mother of four desperate feudists."

Brave, silent Ben Martin and the Hatfield who was mindful of the sick baby-child; Jamie, filled with gratitude to his beloved doctor; Uncle Eli parting with his treasured Good Book; Emmaline with her sister Elvirie for her waitar, and Aunt Rimithie, singing in the moonlight to keep her boy asleep under the ivy—all these, as I see them, are living signs of peace in the Southern mountain land—signs that feuds are vanishing.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, acid often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. Don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. Do not drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

VOTE FOR WOOTON

Why should any mountain man or woman fail to support Bailey P. Wooton for Governor?

In the first place, it is our tradition that we stick by our own mountain people when they need help. And for 41 years Bailey P. Wooton has lived in the little mountain town of Hazard — has lived there the life of a good neighbor, a staunch friend and a citizen above reproach.

Mr. Wooton's record as Attorney General of Kentucky is such that it gives him an unequivocal endorsement for Governor. He has conducted the state legal department without fear or favor, and he is admirably fitted to give the people of Kentucky one of the best administrations in the history of the state.

We don't have to go to the Bluegrass to find a man worthy of our votes. BAILEY P. WOOTON IS RIGHT HERE AT HOME.

petuation of the principles enunciated in the Declaration of Independence, I felt more keenly the sacredness of the occasion than those who did indulge in such effort. I, therefore, sincerely hope that any one who might have expected me to speak upon this occasion will pardon me for their disappointment. I have never insulted the sacred memory of my comrades who died in the mud and mire of foreign battle grounds in defense of the ideals we celebrate on the Fourth of July, by taking advantage of such an occasion and forcing upon the good people who come out to reverence their country's birth, a political speech and if I must do so in order to win, then I shall go down in defeat, but HONORED defeat. I trust those who spoke politically on the Fourth did so in ignorance of the inappropriateness of the same and that by so doing they did not detract any spark of patriotism of anyone who may have been forced to listen to them. I shall discuss my campaign at the proper time and place, but, friends, please let me love Old Glory on the Fourth of July. Very sincerely yours, JOE P. TACKETT. Advertisement

Voters of FLOYD COUNTY KNOW the TRUTH About the Tax Pay

Note the Benefits our County has received and learn how the Sales Tax Worthy Aged and Unemployed Citizens and how this Tax can be used. FACTS — NOT THEORIES! DEEDS — NOT WORDS! ACTION — NOT HOT AIR!

FARMERS! PROPERTY OWNERS!

Your Real Estate Taxes Have Been Reduced for State Purposes from 30 cents to 5 cents on the $100. That reduction means that you now pay 500 per cent less tax on Real Estate than formerly. Your auto license tax has been reduced 40 per cent and your truck license taxes have been cut 31 per cent.

OPPORTUNITY FOR FLOYD COUNTY TO WIPE OUT ITS TOTAL INDEBTEDNESS

Taxpayers in our County are reminded that our present County indebtedness is $969,963.00 Return from the Sales Tax, paid to Floyd county, by the State the first year is $35,726.10 THIS FACT IS VITAL! It means that within a few short years the Sales Tax revenue received by our County will enable our people to free themselves from this indebtedness and make it possible for county taxing authorities to make substantial reductions in the tax rate, if not eliminate it entirely, now being paid by our people. Repeal of the Sales Tax at this time would eliminate the possibility of our getting rid of our County's debt for many, many years.

truthful statements that the Sales Tax can be repealed without hurt. Repealed Floyd County immediately loses $35,726.10 each year. UNPAID.

SINGLE STATE EMPLOYEE, PAID OUT OF DIRECT TAXATION, (leaving us without Government) in order to save hundreds of savings even if possible, would in no wise meet the needs of State. INSTEAD OF PAYING MONEY TO OUR COUNTY would call EVENUE LOSSES GOOD. That would mean huge additional outlays again upon their backs the heavy tax burden from which the Sales TAX IS SURE AS DEATH. Hence, it is to every taxpayer's advantage to quit to everybody. Don't fall into a trap — baited only to catch you WHO AND WHAT THEY WILL TAX if their plan for Sales Tax

Remember, Please! A vote to repeal the Sales Tax is a vote to place a heavier burden upon real estate. The Sales Tax is now law in 26 States and in New York City. Three States have a graduated tax. Sales Tax legislation is pending or planned in 16 other States. Can 45 States and America's largest city be wrong? TO DATE NO STATE HAS REPEALED ITS SALES TAX!

The Sales Tax has kept the schools open that our boys and girls have been accorded is the birthright of every American Child. IN ADDITION TO THE HELP RECEIVED FROM THE SALES TAX HAS ENABLED OUR STATE TO PROVIDE WARMTH FOR HUNDREDS OF OUR WORTHY AGED AND NEEDY UNEMPLOYED CITIZENS. When real estate taxes were reduced last year State revenues were lowered to the point that the common school per capita was cut from $6 to $2.48. Through the personal efforts of Hon. Thomas S. Rhea, who vigorously fought this proposal, the school per capita, THROUGH THE MEDIUM OF THE SALES TAX, was increased to $11.60.

NOTE THE RESULTS IN FLOYD COUNTY With a $2.48 per capita prevailing Floyd county would have received $36,339.44 With a $11.60 per capita Floyd county schools have been kept open and our county received $169,974.80 If the Sales Tax had not been operating Education in Kentucky would have been dealt a serious blow. School terms would have been shortened; teachers underpaid and school plants everywhere would have suffered grievously because of the lack of necessary funds.

Mr. Rhea's Program for a Greater Kentucky 1—OLD AGE PENSIONS—In line with President Roosevelt's Plan. Mr. Rhea says: "Let us not forget our obligation to assist the aged and unemployed. Let us provide for them immediately." 2—$7,500 TAX EXEMPTION for average farmer and homeowner giving homesteads further relief from burdensome real estate tax. 3—EQUAL EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY for your Boy and Girl with FREE TEXTBOOKS through all 12 Grades. 4—REMOVAL OF SALES TAX from all Foodstuffs and Other Necessities of Life.
