SON OF FORMER RAIL EMPLOYEE SENTENCED FOR COAL STEALING

Earl Hamilton, 19-year-old Wheelwright youth, was sentenced in circuit court
here last week to a one-year
pen term for coal stealing.
Hamilton was given the same sentence for the same offense
last April, but was placed under probation by Judge John W. Caudill. Other similar offenses resulted in his arrest by G. L. Gray, special
C. and O agent, and his sentence last week. His father, now dead, it was stated, was a fireman for the railway company.

HAMMOND CHOSEN NEW PRISON HEAD

State Commander of Legion Appointed Superintendent of Frankfort Prison

James Hammond, of Paints-ville, state commander of the American Legion, last Thursday was named superintendent of the state reformatory
at Frankfort to succeed Elmer Deatherage who had requested that he be relieved of his prison duties in order to devote his entire time to his new duties as postmaster at Richmond.

Head of the United Pipe and Supply Company at Paintsville, Mr. Hammond is well known throughout this section, particularly among oil and gas men and World War veterans. He has for several years been a Democratic leader in Johnson county, and took an important part in the fight for Governor Chandler through the two primaries and the final election.

Mr. Hammond's appointment followed close upon the prison breaks and other disorders at the reformatory,
and one of his first tasks was the reorganization of prison supervision. Stricter guarding, with younger men employed as guards, was one of the first decisions made by the new superintendent. It was said last week that World War veterans may be given preference for guard positions.

tontsburg Tuesday night.

Mr. Calhoun's death resulted when struck by an auto. He was well known in this vicinity and leaves his mother and many relatives to mourn his death. Funeral arrangements had not been completed when this was written. Burial will be made in West Prestonsburg cemetery under the direction of
E. P. Arnold.

HIGH SCHOOL JUNIOR SHOT NEAR HERE

Miss Opal Banks, 17, Sus- tains Accidental Bullet Wound Sunday

Miss Opal Mae Banks, 17, year-old daughter of Constable and Mrs. John Banks, is in the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, seriously wounded as the result of what is said to have been an accidental shot from a revolver near the Banks home at Brandy Keg, above here Sunday afternoon.

A .32-calibre bullet penetrated the girl's left breast,
above the heart, and was removed from her back. The missile passed through her lung. Unless pneumonia develops, her chances for recovery are good, it was said Monday.

The girl's father told The Times Monday that the shot was accidental. He said he and other members of his family had been to Prestons-burg and that they had left a younger daughter at the theatre here. When he stopped the auto in front of home, he said, his dog ran to the car. His daughter, he said, picked up the revolver
and pointed it at the dog, apparently in an attempt to frighten the animal away in order to keep it from muddying her clothing. Though he did not witness the actual firing of the shot, he said, Constable Banks expressed the belief that the girl slipped on the running board of the auto and that in falling she discharged the weapon.

The wounded girl is a junior in Prestonsburg high school. The Banks family resided here until a few months ago when they moved to Brandy Keg, two miles above here.

Dr. Straus Charged As Unlicensed Practitioner

Dr. Seymour Straus, practitioner of medicine for the past few months in this county, more recently at Martin, was recently arrested on a warrant charging him with practising medicine without a license. He was released under $500 bond for his appearance in the Floyd quarterly court Monday. His bondsmen are R. R. Allen and Tom James.

NO INDIGESTION SUFFERED

Six prisoners on whom Chief of Police W. A. Wills had invoked Capt. John Smith's law that those who will not work shall not eat finally were released last week from the city jail.

But their release was no concession from Chief of Police Wills. Some of the "striking" sextette went to work. Others paid their fines or executed replevin bonds.

FOUR NABBED IN BURGLARY HERE

Husband, Wife Under Bond As Alleged Receivers of Stolen Goods

Theft of foodstuffs valued at $50 from the ware room of Bailey's Cash Store here Friday night resulted Saturday
in the arrest by Prestonsburg police of two men as the persons who broke into the building and of a husband and wife as receivers of the stolen goods.

Ep Banks and Junior Miller were arrested by Chief of Police W. A. Wills and Policeman Arthur Blackburn
and were charged with the theft. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blackburn, formerly of Buffalo Creek, were arrested at their home on Trimble Branch here and were booked as receivers of the loot.
Mrs. Blackburn named Miller, Banks and Bruce Blackburn as the parties who brought to her home the foodstuffs taken from the store. Bruce Blackburn has not been captured.

Banks executed $500 bond,
as did Blackburn. Mrs.
Blackburn was released under $300 bond. Miller yet remained in jail Tuesday morning. He returned only a few months ago from the Reform School at Greendale.

under the direction of E. P.
Arnold.

ASTHMA CLAIMS LIFE OF MRS. HAYES AT AGE OF 72 YEARS, FEB. 12

Mrs. Nan Hayes, 72 years old, died Tuesday, Feb. 12,
at the home of her son, Levi Hoover, at Garrett, a victim of asthma from which she had suffered for the past two months.

A native of Virginia, Mrs.
Hayes came to this county
where she had resided since girlhood. She had been a devout member of the Regular Baptist Church for 20 years,
and was one of her community's best women.

Mrs. Hayes was first married to George Hoover and of this union three sons and two daughters survive: Melvin,
Granville and Levi Hoover,
Mrs. Jack Jones and Mrs.
Booker Mullins, all of Garrett. Mr. Hoover died in 1908. She was next married to Epperson Hayes who preceded her in death 11 years ago. Of this union two daughters survive: Mrs. Felix Dudley and Mrs. Kendall Hayes, of Maytown.
She also leaves one sister,
Mrs. John Moore, Richlands,
Va., 42 grandchildren and 10
great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted Friday by the Revs.
Coburn, of the Regular Baptist Church, and Alextist Church, and burial was made in the family cemetery
at Garrett.

ONE OF COUNTY'S OLDEST MEN DIES

James Allen Dies Near Hueys- ville at Age of 88 Years

An illness attendant upon advanced age resulted in the death Monday at his home near Hueysville of James Allen, one of Floyd county's best known citizens and oldest
men. He was 88 years old.

The son of the late Adam Allen, the deceased was born and reared within a few miles of the home where he died. He was first married to Miss Frank Gearheart. Following her death, he was married to Mrs. Bone Click Prater, widow of the late Jack Prafer, and to this union was born one daughter, Mrs. D. P. Dingus. His
widow and one step-son,
James Prater, of Hueysville,
also survive.

Mr. Allen had for years been a devout member of the Baptist Church. He resided in the "Bend of Beaver" between Hueysville and Midas, and his home was one where characteristic Kentucky hospitality was always dispensed to every visitor. He was known to hundreds of friends and relatives as "Uncle Jim,"
and held the deep regard of all who knew him.

Funeral rites were conducted from the home Tuesday afternoon by the Rev. A. L.
Allen, of the Regular Baptist Church, and burial was made in the cemetery near the home under the direction of G. D. Ryan.

ONE DEAD FROM WOUND RECEIVED IN FLOYD AFFRAY

Heath Fatally Shot Sunday at Garrett Fleeing Scene of Shooting

TERRY WOUNDED

An exchange of shots thru
a closed door resulted Sunday afternoon at Garrett in the fatal wounding of one man and the wounding of two others.

Earl Heath, 35 years old miner, of Garrett, died at the Beaver Valley hospital at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning
from the effects of a revolver bullet which struck him in his back and emerged from the left side of his chest.

Hence Terry, 33, Garrett liquor store owner, was shot through the jaw, and Calloway Minix, 21, was grazed
across his back by a bullet.

Minix' bullets are said to have struck both Heath and Terry. Calloway and Noah Reed Minix, brothers, were arrested by Deputy Constable Brewer, of Garrett, and brought to jail here early Sunday night. Noah Reed Minix was released without bond Monday, and his father was permitted liberation on a $500 bond demanded on a shooting and wounding charge. A murder warrant was issued for Tim Wednesday morning when authorities
were notified of Heath's
death.

The scene of the shooting
was the basement of a building in which J. W. Frick's store is housed. The front and larger portion of the basement is occupied by Terry's liquor store and portation room. A small room in rear of the basement is referred to as the "back room."
It is said by A. C. Cprier. The door between two rooms was locked.

Odor Danger Signal Used in Canadian Mines

Flashing lights and clanging gongs have proved futile, Canadian miners hereafter will be warned of danger by the smell of a skunk. In case of an alarm the engineer will break bottles of ethyl mercaptan, a chemical smelling like skunk, in air ducts leading to the mine, and in a few minutes the odor will be carried to the farthest corners of the mine by the ventilating system.

Miners are trained to run to certain designated points when they recognize the smell no one could fail to recognize.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Newspapers Are Useful A Leisure Class, Also A Real American Offense and Defense

Arthur Brisbane

The Supreme court says: "The free press stands as one of the great interpreters between the government and the people. To let it be fettered is to fetter ourselves." Certainly, the newspaper is to a nation what speech is to an individual, and it is to the crowd what a looking glass is to the individual. History will judge a people by its newspapers, its laws, its theaters, and it will have reason to criticize us.

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, repeating what Aristotle said before him, said civilization needs a leisure class, and defined as the "leisure class" those that keep a hired girl. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, thoughtful and wise, improves that definition; a leisure class for her is made up of individuals that "have sufficient economic security and sufficient leisure to find opportunity for a variety of satisfactions in life."

Charles Fourier, French philosopher, said it long ago, and elaborately. Henry Ford said it well, advocating a short work week, with two days off, that men might have time to spend pleasantly the earnings of five days.

All that will come, and more. In the past men worked too hard, while paid and fed too little, and never dreamed of Mrs. Roosevelt's "varied satisfactions," while the prosperous, as a rule, concentrated too much on foolish satisfactions.

All that knew him learn with sorrow of the sudden death of Charles Curtis, former Vice President of the United States. He was an American, a real one, proud of the red Indian blood in his veins. As a boy he rode horse races well and honestly; as a man, he rode the political race fairly. As Vice President he was content with the position that the American people and Constitution gave him. He would have made a good and loyal President had destiny so willed it.

The newspaper heading, "Britain is redoubling her defense plans to offset Germany," should interest somebody in America. This country is not planning to "offset Germany," but it has all Europe, including Russia and all Asia, to think about in these flying days. We should perfect our "defense plans" and particularly our attack plans. Then we should ask the world to look over our equipment and realize that it would be foolish to attack.

Senator Pittman of Nevada sees Japan shutting us out of China, "even at the risk of war"; says our business men "have been run out of Manchuria already." Japan might reply that her workmen have been run out of the United States.

The map will comfort Senator Pittman. Gigantic Manchukuo, bigger than all of old Japan, leans up against Outer Mongolia and Soviet Russia. Japan will not invite trouble with those countries, and war with the United States would invite it.

If you wonder "where all the tax money goes," read this: "In six months the state of New York paid $501,612 for official automobile expense."

And that does not include automobiles for the department of mental hygiene. One official discharged his chauffeur, paid by taxpayers, accusing him of cheating the state out of $2,000 in one year through dishonest gasoline and repair vouchers. That is almost "a business."

"Charlie" Schwab may be seventy years old, but he still "knows his way around." The government tried to get $19,654,856 from Schwab's Bethlehem Steel company, alleging profiteering. Instead of giving the government $19,000,000, the "special master," hearing evidence, says the government must pay $5,066,154 to Schwab and Bethlehem Steel. No wonder Carnegie, who was Scotch, thought a good deal of Schwab.

Dr. G. A. Stevenson, "fellow" in the University college of Oxford, suggests to the London Times that the pax Romana ("Roman peace") of ancient times, when Rome ruled the world and would allow no fighting, should be followed now by a pax Britannica ("British peace"), England ruling the world, telling everybody what to do.

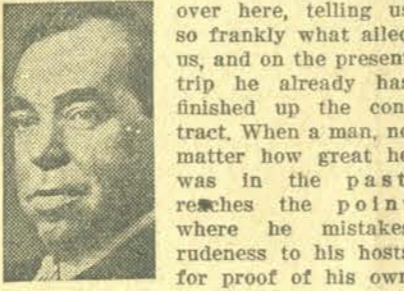

American Olympic athletes appearing on the field in Germany met with gloomy silence, contrasting with applause for European and Oriental Olympic squads. The Americans, who defeated Germany at hockey, score 1 to 0, will survive the silence. Had they been wiser, they would have stayed at home. A German-Jewish player, Rudi Ball, by the way, was the star hockey player for the Germans.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Shaw Comes Through

HOUSTON, TEXAS.—I always said there was only one living person who could convince me that George Bernard Shaw was not the smartest man in the world—and that person would be George Bernard Shaw. And, by gum, he did it! For this admirer he began the disillusioning job the last time he was over here, telling us so frankly what ailed us, and on the present trip he already has finished up the contract. When a man, no matter how great he was in the past, reaches the point where he mistakes rudeness to his hosts for proof of his own brilliancy, instead of just bad manners—well, to me one of the most distressing sights on this earth is that of an extinct crater still trying to be the flaming volcano it once was.

Irvin S. Cobb

Only for Westerners

WHAT, I ask you, is the use of being a consistent old line Republican back East, with fine banking connections, when all you're permitted to do, as the other fellows start drawing their hands for this year's big game, is to fuss with the discards?

Why, lots of us can remember when it wasn't regarded as fatal to the Presidential prospect of a bright member of the G. O. P. younger set if he happened to reside on the Wall Street side of the Allegheny mountains. In fact, quite the contrary.

Now it seems there's a rule that only westerners may look longingly toward the White House without being accused of trying to peep in the deck before the deal.

So-Called "Sunny South"

IF THE poetic pioneers who first christened the lower cross section of our country the Sunny South came hither at this season of the year, I think I know what actuated them.

They called Dixie the Sunny South for the same reason that naturalists have named a certain type of African hyena the laughing hyena—not because the creature laughs so often, but because he laughs so seldom that it naturally attracts attention.

After contemplating lowering or leaking skies for a straight ten days, I'm beginning to wonder whether the sun has retired from business permanently. Probably about next July I'll wish he had.

Valuable Advice

TODAY I ran into my old and wise friend, Bassett Blakely. He stuck to the cow business whereas Will Rogers was weaned from it. Otherwise, these southwesterly ranges might have produced one more corn-fed philosopher-humorist with a national reputation.

During the depression, Bassett tried to borrow a sizable sum from a gentleman with a well-earned reputation for frugality. It was a forlorn hope.

"No," stated Bassett, emerging from the interview, "he didn't let me have any money, but on parting he gave me free of charge some beautiful advice. Bassett, my son, he said, never feed your stock dry fodder in windy weather. I did that in March of 1884 and one shuck blew away on me."

Long's Machine Endures

LAKE CHARLES, LA.—I mean no disrespect for any man's memory, but for most anyone of us who ever tasted success the verse that was written about little dog Rover might serve as an epitaph: "While he lived, he lived in clover, but when he died, he died all over."

I would have said that Huey Long's machine, being essentially a one-man machine, would start falling to pieces before ever they buried him. But it yet endures and is powerful and, right or wrong, it functions. People here still believe in his policies, still perpetuate his organization, still endorse his designs. Most dictators sip the bitter cup of defeat while they live. Here is one who from the tomb looms almost as tall as he did when he walked in the flesh.

Admire such a man's record or despise it, nevertheless you have to take off your hat to a personality that can project itself back across the grave.

They're All Ranches

OUT in California, every patch of ground where things grow, regardless of size, is a ranch. So far as I know there are only two farms in southern California; one's a lion farm and the other is an ostrich farm. I look for the day when a Hollywood scalp specialist will refer to his establishment as a dandruff ranch.

In Texas, which we just left behind us, nearly everybody is a rancher, too, or used to be. Today we're in the land of the planters, and if we kept going, bearing north, tomorrow we'd be among the farmers.

The so-called gentleman-farmer, as we know him back east, doesn't flourish anywhere down here. There are show places aplenty along this Louisiana coast, but they weren't built for show places—they were built for homes.

STAR DUST Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

GINGER ROGERS is a girl to be pitied, though you may not think so when you consider those gay, glamorous pictures that she makes with the nimble-footed Fred Astaire. But it's because of those same pictures that Ginger has a grievance.

For it's as a result of all that dancing that Ginger's feet hurt. She has to practice the various new routines for days at a stretch, and then do them over and over again for the picture.

You'd think that would make her feel that, when her work was done, she'd had enough dancing. But not at all—when she arrived in New York recently for a vacation she announced that she was going to see a lot of new plays—and do a lot of dancing! As for her partner, Fred Astaire, he's so happy these days because of the arrival of his brand new son that he doesn't know whether he's on his head or his heels.

Kay Francis has a lot of fun when she descends Hollywood; she is one of the few actresses who doesn't look actressy when she's not working; as a result of that fact, few people recognize her and she can go to theaters and night clubs without being mobbed by admirers. She doesn't depend on dark glasses, either.

Here's good news for all of us. Ed Wynn and Jack Pearl are to be heard on the air waves again, and it's quite likely that B. A. Rolfe will also return on a Saturday evening program—and as a result of the many letters that have poured in asking for him. So, you see, the letters that you write your radio favorites really do have some effect.

If you have sat and suffered through some of the shorts that supplemented feature pictures, and decided that you could think up better ones yourself, here's your chance. Centaur Films, a new organization, would like to have the public submit ideas for short subjects—and they'll give away an automobile each day for the best idea presented!

Errol Flynn, who became famous overnight as a result of his looks and his acting in "Captain Blood," is one of the few movie stars who have really written a book—written it all himself, I mean. A good publisher has accepted it. Which reminds everybody of all those announcements of the novel that Jean Harlow was said to be writing, ever so long ago, and of the reports that it never came to anything because she had a quarrel with the person who really was writing it for her. Elissa Landi has written several novels that have been published, of course; they're good enough so that she can abandon the screen for the typewriter any time she wants to. She returned to the stage briefly not long ago, but the play was not a success, and now she's going to make some more pictures in England.

Mary Pickford just can't stop working. As if producing pictures weren't enough, she's going to broadcast again—this time from the projection room of her home, Pickfair.

Isabell Jewell is finally getting the breaks that she has wanted. She did very well, indeed, in "A Tale of Two Cities." Then she turned in an excellent performance in "Ceiling Zero." So she was given a test for the role of "Lotus" in "The Good Earth," for which practically everybody, including Anna May Wong, has been tested, and so far hers is the best. They're going to get at the making of this picture at last, and a good thing it is, too—the planning and discussing of it have been going on everlastingly, it seems.

Popular football players used to sell bonds after they were graduated from college. Now they go into the movies, if they can. Nick Lukats, a Notre Dame star, is the latest recruit.

ODDS AND ENDS... That weekly program of Bing Crosby's has become one of the most popular on the air... Add "The Ghost Goes West" to the pictures you really must see... Margaret Sullivan, who is too, too temperamental, was actually ordered to throw things in a scene for "The Moon's Our Home"... Douglas Fairbanks has sold "The Mark of Zorro" to Twentieth Century-Fox, and reluctantly, because he wanted to make it again himself... With songs added, it will probably be used for Lawrence Tibbett... Myrna Loy may be teamed with Robert Montgomery... John Barrymore almost lost his job in "Romeo and Juliet"; however, told that he'd have to do better work, he improved so fast that he's turning in one of his best performances.

All Around the House

To dice or cut marshmallows easily dip a dry scissors into powdered sugar.

Meat thawed quickly is likely to be tough. Keep frozen meat in warm place before cooking.

To roll marshmallows in coconut shake them one by one in a bag of shredded coconut.

Rub equal parts of linseed oil and vinegar well shaken into leather covered chairs, occasionally. It keeps them in good condition.

If your cactus does not bloom pinch leaves and branches, leaving only branches that grow upward. Water whenever soil is dry.

If an apple tree is broken by winter storms, pare off the splinters with a sharp knife or chisel and treat the wound with creosote, then give it a coat of linseed oil and lead paint. Do not let the creosote touch the live bark.

One teaspoon of chopped maraschino cherries and one tablespoon of orange juice added to boiled salad dressing makes a delicious dressing for fruit salads.

Chocolate cake scorches easily on the bottom and sides because of the large percentage of fat it contains. It is therefore necessary to bake it in a moderate oven.

Tie a cheese cloth or paper bag over the mouth of food chopper, when cutting bread, nuts, etc., through it. Every bit will then be saved.

Add one-eighth teaspoon of cream of tartar to cinnamon and sugar used in apple sauce. It gives it a delicious flavor.

STRENGTH ALL GONE

MRS. R. M. Clark of 217 No. Horton St. Jackson, Mich., said "Eight years ago I was all run down—my strength all gone. I couldn't do my housework. I started taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I rested better at night and I would awake feeling refreshed. My appetite improved and I gained in strength. 'Prescription' is absolutely the best tonic I have ever used." Buy now of your nearby druggist.

HOW TO "ALKALIZE" YOUR STOMACH ALMOST INSTANTLY. Amazingly Fast Relief Now From "Acid Indigestion" Over-Indulgence, Nausea and Upsets.

IF you want really quick relief from an upset or painful stomach condition—arising from acidity following over-eating, smoking, mixtures of foods or stimulants—just try this: Take—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a full glass of water. OR—2 Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets, the exact equivalent of the liquid form. This acts almost immediately to alkalize the excess acid in the stomach. Neutralizes the acids that cause headaches, nausea, and indigestion pains. You feel results at once. Try it. AND—if you are a frequent sufferer from "acid stomach," use Phillips' Milk of Magnesia 30 minutes after meals. You'll forget you have a stomach! When you buy, see that any box or bottle you accept is clearly marked "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA. Neither Commended. The passions of youth are scarcely more opposed to safety than the lukewarmness of age. Folly Confounds. It is the folly of the world constantly which confounds its wisdom.—Holmes.

5 P.M. is a test of how you FEEL. How do I feel.... Rotten! why do you ask? "Because, you are not yourself!" It is all so simple, too! That tired, run-down, exhausted feeling quite often is due to lack of a sufficiency of those precious red-blood-cells. Just build up these oxygen-carrying cells and the whole body takes on new life... food is really turned into energy and strength... you can't help but feel and look better. S.S.S. Tonic restores deficient red-blood-cells... it also improves the appetite and digestion. It has been the nation's standby for over 100 years... and unless your case is exceptional it should help you, too. Insist on S.S.S. Tonic in the blood-red cellophane-wrapped package. The big 20-oz. size is sufficient for two weeks' treatment... it's more economical.

STARVATION OF THE WILD

In the midst of the recent cold wave, when the ground was heavily blanketed by snow, we were forcefully reminded of our thoughtlessness.

A thoughtful Prestonsburg woman telephoned this office and asked us to remind our readers to feed the birds this winter while the snow hid their source of food supply from them. We, of course, were grateful for this suggestion.

It may be a little late now for The Times to point out the necessity of human aid for wild life, yet it may help you, as it does us, to be reminded of our duty to birds and other wild life.

Song birds, quail, rabbits and other wild life in this section, for years threatened with extinction at the hands of the hunter, marauding youngsters and prey-ing animals, are, these days, being stalked by starvation. In Ohio, it is estimated, sixty per cent of the quail have died during the recent blizzard and heavy snowfall. There are no statistics available for this section. The loss, doubtless, has been heavy. Whatever it has been, we will can afford to sustain it.

It costs little to plant unused ground in sorghum or buckwheat for winter feed for the birds. When heavy snow falls, food scraps, scattered about your premises will serve the same purpose.

Our interest in wild life should extend beyond that of a boy armed with slingshot or rifle or of the hunter during the hunting season.

NO ERROR OF OMISSION

Errors of commission and omission are twin evils. By the same token, the commission of good deeds and the omission of bad ones are partners in the good life.

The late Legislature made some errors of omission. It failed to do all the things that could and should be done, all the things the Governor and its members wanted to do. But one of its "omissions" certainly was not of the erroneous type.

That laudable omission was failing to repeal the law which after 1937 merges the offices of Sheriff and Jailor.

The Legislature "omitted" to repeal this just and money-saving law, but not as passively and easily as the word indicates. There was a fight waged to separate the two offices, but it failed.

Where two offices, now flourish but one will be in 1938. Kentucky then will to that extent join other states in progress toward administrative reform. The taxpayer to that extent will profit.

This is but one of the many such reforms to be undertaken. Beginning next week, Governor Chandler, his advisers and the General Assembly begin the work of sweeping governmental reorganization. The people of Kentucky sincerely trust that all changes are made in the work of reorganization with the same fine effect as that attending the reform here cited.

President's Philosopher

On Centralized Power
President Roosevelt in his speech on January 3 quoted from the words of a wise philosopher at the time I sat many, many years ago. The President did not name the philosopher but the latter's identity was revealed. He was the late Professor Royce of Harvard university. The words quoted by Mr. Roosevelt were: "The Philosophy of Loyalty." The message not quoted by the author said: "The tendency to the concentration of power in our national government seems to me, then, a danger. It is a substitution of loyalty."

WILL JOHNSON COUNTY VOTE DRY?

The subject of whisky and its control, now that it has become a legalized and respected article of commerce, will continue to be a topic to worry candidates for office at each election in the future. Almost all drinkers who have formed an almost unbreakable habit of drink, would vote to have it banished from the face of the earth if it were only possible.

When the national prohibition plan was abroad in the land and there was not a drinker in all the whole country who was not in favor of the amendment. They thought it would be an easy way to break a habit that they, themselves, more perhaps, than anyone else despised.

The worst drunkard you can find will generally tell you that he wishes whisky could be put out of his reach forever, where that it would be an absolute impossibility for him to get hold of it.

Then why, you will wonder, do these men go on drinking? And indeed it is a question which even the drinker himself cannot answer. Men who have acquired the strong drink habit seldom ever free themselves from it.

There is no doubt that the subject of local option will be up for the voters to pass on at the election next fall. Whether or not Johnson county will continue the present practice of allowing the open saloons anywhere and everywhere will be determined at the polls by the voters.

If they vote saloons out of the county there will be the problem of the bootlegger to think about. If they don't vote the saloons out there will be the continued problem of easily accessible liquor for every man and woman, for every boy and girl who cares to partake of it.

The bootleg era introduced liquor among a class that prior to that time never touched the stuff. School girls and boys became, to a certain extent, boozers. In Paintsville and Johnson county before the prohibition era a school boy filled with liquor would have been a disgrace to himself and the entire neighborhood. During the prohibition days such sights as young men and young women under the influence of liquor were not uncommon.

Conditions in Johnson county with liquor bearing the stamp of legality, seem pretty terrible. And even with a legal liquor store every few blocks in towns and others at practically every crossroad throughout the rural sections, the bootlegger still flourishes to some degree.

Whisky is an age old problem which never has been completely solved and it is almost certain to remain unsolved so long as time lasts and human nature remains at anything near its present stage of civilization, barbarism, or whatever stage the human race has ascended or descended to.

THE MILK ORDINANCE

Passing of the milk ordinance for the city of Prestonsburg by the city council at its January 18 meeting was probably one of the greatest things the council could have done for the protection of the health of the citizens of Prestonsburg. Prior to passing of the ordinance, Prestonsburg was one of the few county seat towns in the state without a milk ordinance, and was probably the only one of its size in the state without this legislation.

This ordinance, known as the "short ordinance," we hope, will be a stepping stone to the Standard Milk Ordinance. This ordinance is very liberal and will work no hardship on any one, neither producer or consumer, but will give the consumer an opportunity to know just what grade milk the family is using. A few of the most salient features of the ordinance follow:

This ordinance provides that everybody selling milk ordinance provides that everybody selling milk in Prestonsburg must first secure a permit from the county health department. This insures that each dairy is registered for supervision. It requires that all milk sold in Prestonsburg must be bottled in the regulation milk bottle and be capped with a cap bearing the name of the dairy and the grade of milk he is producing. These grades will be given by the health department to each individual dairy, after inspection of the herd, barn, general equipment and methods of handling milk. These gradings will be made every six months or oftener, and the grade of each dairy will be published in the county newspaper.

With the grading, each housewife can see and know just what grade of milk she is giving her family. In the past she has been buying milk blindly with probably no thought but that she is giving her children the best and purest milk in town. It's of great deal more importance that you know the grade of milk you are giving your family than to know the brand or grade of coffee, flour or other commodities you are buying for family consumption, because no other article of food is capable of causing as much sickness as bad or impure milk.

How many housewives would accept a sack of flour from your grocery if it was delivered to you in a plain white sack with no name or grade on the sack other than the single word "flour"? How many would accept a bag of coffee delivered under the same circumstances, merely labeled "coffee"? Not one would, yet that is exactly what you are doing when you accept a bottle of milk for your family with name or grade printed on the cap, or maybe pure milk.

There is nothing in this ordinance that would regulate the price of milk or prevent anyone from delivering milk in Prestonsburg provided they have met the terms of the ordinance. There is nothing in the ordinance to prevent you from buying from your favorite dairy, but it does give you the opportunity to know what grade of milk you are giving your family, and if you prefer to continue giving them a low grade milk well, that is your business.

This ordinance will not be popular with some of the dairymen, because they feel they are already selling at the milk they can produce, though it be of an inferior quality, so why invest in more and better equipment in order to produce a high grade. Others are anxious to cooperate with us in an attempt to give Prestonsburg a better and safer milk and are ready and willing to make necessary changes to raise their grades.

Let us insist that you give your family the best milk obtainable. Nothing less than Grade "A" is good enough for our children. See that they get a quart of milk every day.

Even after this, Garth had to bear the brunt of the heavy work. Much of the time the others were forced to stop off, to get the cramp out of their legs or rest their arms. And when they paddled, their unskillful stroke kept Garth twisting his own stroke to keep the canoe from being swerved from side to side like a ship with the wind.

Hard work been the only consideration. It would as soon have done it all. There were, however, reasons for more speed than he could make alone with the heavily loaded skin-covered craft. The summer was now far along. The days were rapidly shortening, the nights becoming colder and darker. Delay would mean a serious chance of being caught in early autumn blizzards. Even Lilith Ramill might not be able to survive an all-day drive of snow. Such a storm would undoubtedly kill her father and, not improbably, Huxby also. Persistent use of the paddles would continue the toughening of the three chechacos. It would also quicken the speed of the canoe as they required skill from practice.

He himself kept to his stroke like the born voyager he was, dipping his paddle for hour after hour. His steady pull never varied except when, at long intervals, he shifted the paddle over to the other side. He stopped that blacklike stroke only when landing had to be made for food or sleep.

On the third day Lilith attempted to stop stroke with him. She paddled until so exhausted that she broke down and wept. After that Huxby quit less often, though he never came so near overhauling himself.

They had twice camped on muskeg. The third afternoon brought them to a ridge where the stream dashed through a gorge. So far as could be seen the rapids looked easy to shoot. Garth said it was a portage.

Strapping a pack from his tump-line to look the canoe on his shoulders. Total load was a full two hundred and fifty pounds. At sight of it, the others took on all the rest of the gear and equipment. For miles Garth went up and down rocky slopes, through brush and bogs. Twice they were sheer falls that showed why they had taken to land.

At last, below the lower fall, he reached the canoe in the eddy of a pool. The others sank down on bank, outspent. He built a fire, rolled tea for them. They expected to camp overnight. He ordered back into the canoe.

Garth didn't chance waiting here. May be foggy to see tomorrow," he expected. "Sit flat in the bottom, and your paddles inboard."

Understood when a few strokes of the paddle brought the canoe to the pool. For a long two crouched low in the bottom of the frail craft glanced down the swirling torrent of white water. Garth smiled at their cowering. He had often shot worse rapids, and he had been down these before. Skillfully as an Athabaskan, he drove the canoe clear of the whirling whirlpools and dodged rocks with deft twists of his

the foot of the rapids, he headed up a bit of gravelly beach helped Mr. Ramill and Lilith. When he remarked that there was gold in the gravel, Huxby nearly fell from the canoe in his haste to get out.

"Why didn't we bring the gold?" Lilith laughed and stretched out on the grass above the gravel. "Gentleman, your lady is building a nest."

"Don't mind him, Vivian," Lilith said in on the banter. "You can get a cup for panning. I need only to boil Alan's tea."

By glanced sidelong at Garth hastened to help the girl. Her hand had fattened out beside Garth. A yawn, Garth stretched up his hand and let them fall. The left one down across the millionaire's shoulder. The back of the hand felt a tingle under the leather coat. Huxby again gained possession of the would have been easier if he pulled out the weapon into the stream. The instant he passed as quickly as it crossed Garth's mind. He was a sportsman who shoots at boma, or tigers from the elephants. There is far more in talking a beast that has all the stalker.

Garth had now experienced phases of canoeing through muskeg, a running of rapids, and the difficulties and followed. In the next more rapids had to be very hard portages, the canoe was twisted and in blind leads. In the country, the pests of mosquitoes and sting-time the flask of grease and pitch dope began to give out. Most of the camps were on wet ground. For days the party were drenched by a steady drizzle, varied only by downpours that kept Lilith and her father bailing the canoe.

At the announcement of the loss,

Several times fog on the water compelled Garth to put ashore. Without sight, even his training could not enable him to follow the right channel. He was not an Indian. But between the forced halts, he put in still longer hours of paddling.

Matters were coming to a pinch. After the first wetting by the rain, what remained of the meat spoiled. It became so fly-bitten and tainted that Lilith threw it away before Garth could prevent the wastage. He decided to give them all another lesson.

In the fast that followed, Mr. Ramill was the first to fail. Huxby came next; Lilith last of the three. By the third day they had given up all paddling. On the fourth, they lay slumped in the bottom of the canoe. Garth only tightened his belt again and dipped his paddle in his strong, steady, seemingly tireless stroke.

Whenever he found himself nearing his limit, he headed ashore, boiled tea, slept, and then put off again. The fifth day began to draw on the last reserve of his wiry endurance. Towards noon he made the boggy shore, almost outspent. He dragged out the wolfskin knapsack anchor, with its load of platinum alloy. The girl and the two men lay in a stupor of starvation. He himself was so tired that he could not have lifted even Lilith ashore.

As he rested on the west sedge he recalled the place as one of his former camp sites. A spruce-covered ridge of higher ground here thrust out into the muskeg. The first remembrance brought another. The second gave him strength to pull his rifle from the canoe and climb aslant the ridge end. There was a berry patch on the east slope. The fruit would be better than nothing. He hoped, however, for something more.

Circling to get the wind in his face, he crept through the spruce thickets until he could peer out on the open ground of the berry patch. Luck was with him. The old black bear had gone off and left her cub. He rested the rifle barrel on a spruce branch to get a sure aim.

That was the end of famine. Gorged upon the fat, tender meat of the bear cub, even Mr. Ramill rapidly regained strength. He was still rather weak, however, when they came to the last portage.

The approach to solid ground was across a narrow belt of muskeg. Near the far side of the swamp, the millionaire failed to jump squarely upon a tussock of niggerhead grass. He slipped and plunged headfirst into a pool.

Huxby was following close behind, alert for every move of his partner. He sprang to grasp the feet of the sinking man. A heave dragged him out, slimed and spluttering. Huxby worked over him, scraping off mud, until Lilith hastened back to help assist her father across the rest of the quagmire. Once on firm ground, the millionaire joked about his mishap.

"Haven't had a bath since the last rain," he said. "This one is higher class—equal to the mud baths at Hot Springs. How about my pack Lilith?" She looked in his foxskin bag. "Everything there, Dad—with some mud added."

Garth had been too far ahead, with his heavy pack and canoe, to see or hear the accident. Mr. Ramill joked again about his extra bath when they took to the canoe at the far side of the portage. But all the time until they reached the evening camp and he started to wash the mud from the leather coat, he did not notice that the pistol was missing.

At the announcement of the loss,

Huxby met Garth's gaze with a stare of cold hostility. Garth walked up to him, empty-handed.

"If you've done what I think you have," he said, "I call you for a show-down."

The engineer's lips tightened in an ironical smile. He put up his hands. Not to be fooled by the seeming bluff, Garth went over Huxby's tattered clothes, from coat collar to moccasins. The pistol was nowhere on the engineer.

"This is one time I'm due to apologize," Garth admitted.

"I accept no apology from you," Huxby replied.

Lilith looked from one to the other, her own lips tightening.

Mr. Ramill good-humoredly interposed, as he hung the washed leather coat before the fire: "Postpone your fight, boys. We're still in the muskeg. I'll built a cockpit for you when we get out."

That won a chuckle from Garth. Huxby smiled with his lips—not with his eyes. As Lilith looked from Garth to him, her eyes narrowed and her lips tightened.

pressed loathing for all the grease and grime that smirched herself and the men. "Mud! slime! rancid fat! spoiled meat! Alan Garth, I know that I have to go in dressed like a squaw. But this—this filth!"

He surged the canoe around shoreward with a powerful sweep of his paddle.

"Not necessary, Miss Ramill. A scouring with hardwood ashes and sand will do the work of soap. We can go in sweet."

They landed where an ice jam of some spring break-up had gouged through the muskeg mud at the end of the ridge and left a clear beach of glacial sand and gravel. Up over the ten-foot cut bank, Garth started a fire with one of his two remaining matches.

Even Huxby joined in gathering other piles of fallen birch branches for more fires. While they were burning, Garth beached the canoe and tilted it so that the sun would dry the soggy inside. Huxby stirred the fires, and Mr. Ramill broiled the last of the partly spoiled bear-cub meat, while Lilith tried out a cupful of the rancid fat for a final mess of mosquito dope. Garth brought the girl pitch for the mix from the nearby thicket of young spruces.

No cleaning could be done until the fires burned out. When Mr. Ramill took off the spits of cooked meat, all squatted down as usual to share the meal. Garth smiled his thanks as he took the slab of hot meat handed to him by the millionaire. The smile hardened.

A sudden change had fallen upon his three companions. He could easily guess the cause. They realized that this was the last meal they were to share as fellow voyageurs with him.

The moment they stepped from the canoe onto the wharf at the emergency refueling post, their forced companionship with him in the lost valley and on all the long trip out would be at an end. Instead of a trio dependent upon their opponent for food and guidance—for life itself—they would be a trio not only independent of, but hostile to him and his interests.

That was at least true of the two men. And even Lilith betrayed in her look and manner a vivid consciousness of the impending change of relationship. As for Huxby, the cold gloating in his stare showed how he was anticipating the robbery and ruin of the man who had so far outplayed him.

CHAPTER VII

The Gaffed Wolf.

Mr. Ramill's good-humor over his fall into the muskeg pool had not been forced. It was based upon his feeling of physical well-being.

Instead of having been broken down by the hard toil and exposure of the trip and that severe lesson in the meaning of famine, he had come through it all in even better shape than before the start from the lost valley. The days of starvation had completed Nature's raid upon the degenerate fats and poisons of his once obese body.

There had followed the feasts of tender bear-cub meat. He was again putting on weight, but it was hard muscle. The healthy blood flooded his brain with a comfortable glow that was not to be dampened by any amount of toil or discomforts.

He was paddling as vigorously if not as skillfully as his daughter, when, mid-morning of the twenty-fourth day from the valley, the canoe neared a wooded point that rose well above the swamps. Garth called out from the stern of the canoe:

"If you want a surprise, friends, shut your eyes while we take ten strokes."

He knew that Huxby would keep on staring ahead. But he guessed right about Lilith and her father. At the end of the tenth stroke, the girl flung up her paddle and uttered a shriek of joyous amazement:

"The river! The river!"

Close upon the cry came the deep-lunged shout of her father: "By the Almighty, you've done it, Garth! We're out."

Huxby continued to stare fixedly ahead at the mighty flood of the Mackenzie. He was last to speak: "Out of the muskegs; but a long way from out of this d—d North!"

"Long by canoe or even by steamer," Garth agreed. "Not so far, though, by air passage. We can make the emergency supply post by two or three hours' paddling downstream."

"What of it? That fellow Tobin told us planes never stop there, unless foul weather runs them short of gas."

Garth met the suddenly anxious looks of Lilith and her father with a smile.

"All pilots have orders to sight non-stop posts in passing. Tobin has a distress signal. There'll be a plane coming south from the Arctic coast within three days—probably tomorrow. You'll be lying in the lap of luxury at Edmonton within a week or ten days."

The millionaire felt at the grease-and-pitch mat of his month-old beard. He chuckled. "A bath and a barber! Hand over that last cigar, Garth. Here's where I celebrate."

He opened the gold-mounted case, bit off the tip of the sole surviving Havana, and snapped his patent lighter. It failed to flair. He tossed it over into the water, and turned to Garth, with an impatient command: "Give me a light."

"Only two matches left, sir."

"Enough to light a cigar. Pass them over."

Instead of taking out his waterproof match case, Garth took up his paddle. "The rule is, never burn your last match until you have to. You've thrown away that little flint and steel. The fire-drill is all right in dry weather but hard to use in wet."

Huxby dipped his own paddle. "Come on, Mr. Ramill. By his own account, three hours more will rid us of him and his insolence."

"Wait," said Lilith. She pointed to the bank where the pleasant green of young spruces showed among the weathered white trunks of fire-killed birch trees. "If we have so much time, we'll land there and clean up."

"But—with the post so near, my dear Lilith!" Huxby protested. "That fellow Tobin had any amount of soap?"

"All the more reason. I'll not have even a common navy see me in this condition. The rags can't be helped. But the dirt!" Out burst her suppressed loathing for all the grease and grime that smirched herself and the men. "Mud! slime! rancid fat! spoiled meat! Alan Garth, I know that I have to go in dressed like a squaw. But this—this filth!"

Coronation of New King or Queen Is Great Event

A great thing to see in London is the crowning of a new king or queen. It does not happen often, but when it does it is an event to remember, says a writer in the Detroit News.

The actual crowning, or coronation, takes place in Westminster abbey and the archbishop of Canterbury is in charge of the ceremony. The new king sits in the famous Coronation chair, which is covered for the event with cloth-of-gold. He promises that he will govern by the laws made by the British parliament; that he will carry out a rule of justice and mercy; and that he will maintain the Protestant religion.

The Coronation chair dates back to the time of King Edward I, who ruled six and a half centuries ago. It is made of oak, but under the seat is "the Stone of Scone," which was taken away from Scotland during the reign of Edward. Before that the stone had been used during the crowning of Scottish kings.

There is a legend that the Stone of Scone was used as a "pillow" by Jacob, the Hebrew patriarch. The legend says that the stone was moved from Palestine to Ireland, and from there to Scotland before it fell into the hands of the English. There is reason to believe, however, that it was obtained from a quarry near Scone, a town in Scotland.

Underground Schools

Unlike Britain, where schools are built so as to admit as much fresh air and sunlight as possible, the Lapps burrow under the earth. Only the thatch or tiled roofs of their schools can be seen. The rest is all cellar. Sunlight does not matter, because for at least six months of the year it is perpetually dark, while for only three months does the sun shine continuously. Fresh air in the form of cutting blasts is most unwelcome, and in winter, spring, and autumn everything is done to keep it out. The atmosphere in Lapp schools, with every crevice blocked and heating apparatus full on, is more than English lungs could bear, but the people there are used to it.

Seneca Root

Seneca root or seneca snakeroot is a plant of the milkwort family known to botanists as Polygala senega and found growing mostly in rocky woods and on eroding hillsides. It is a smooth perennial plant with a short rootstock as thick as a lead pencil and rather thick roots. The roots and rootstocks have medicinal value.

Something Brand New in Necklines

PATTERN NO. 1784-B

1784-B

An unusually clever and interesting yoke treatment, front and back, distinguishes this altogether lovely daytime frock. With the neck opening at the back, the V-shaped yoke extends over the shoulder and combines with a soft high neckline to give a new and flattering collar effect, equally fetching front and back. Full set-in sleeves drop gracefully to the wrist and the waist portion gathers to the yoke in the rear to provide essential fullness. A flaring panel, as fashion dictates, features an otherwise simple skirt which is dart-fitted at the back and a novelty belt adds a finishing touch.

Victoria, B. C.—Two months ago a woman listened to a joke cracked by her husband. She laughed. Then her laughter turned to yawns. And she has been yawning ever since. This is the predicament of Mrs. P. E. Wakefin, forty-two-year-old mother of three children. She has been to the hospital twice since the day upon which her husband, a taxicab driver, told his unfortunate joke but doctors haven't been able to stop her yawns.

40-CENT GAS HERE IS LOW THIS WEEK

The Prestonsburg and West Prestonsburg 40-cent gas supply this week was very low—in volume.

At home you couldn't drop off for a siesta, snooze for fear the gas would go completely off and freeze you to death or come back on and asphyxiate you. Business houses might have used additional help, since gas stoves required close attention as the gas by turns roared high, then dropped to a new low.

In West Prestonsburg two or three families whose only source of heat was from gas were obliged to leave their homes and take shelter in a nearby church where a coal stove was utilized.

"Regulator trouble" was given as the cause of the erratic gas pressure.

You may be freezing now. But just wait till you get your bill at the end of the month. It'll burn you up!
