HUNTINGTON STATION INSTALLS ANTENNA

Rudolph H. Koch, of the radio department of Morell Supply Company, has been receiving numerous complaints of the poor reception being received from WSAZ. Huntington, W. Va. Mr. Koch, always anxious to discover the cause of any interference or poor reception from any station, wrote WSAZ at Huntington.

The following letter, just received by Mr. Koch, is self-explanatory:

Huntington, W. Va.
Dec. 1, 1936

Morell Supply Co.,
Prestonsburg, Ky.

Attention Mr. Koch
Gentlemen:

Two weeks ago we took down our old antenna and are now operating on a temporary aerial which has cut down our distance considerably.

If you will try a week from now and let us know how our signal is coming in, as we will then be operating on a new vertical antenna.

Yours very truly,
WSAZ, Incorporated.

Signed: W. C. McKELLAR
President

Mr. Koch stated that installation of the new vertical aerial would improve reception considerably over what we formerly had.

"Attack Tuberculosis First"

Leading Health Authority Says Public Health Enemy No. 1 Can Be Wiped Out

"The greatest need for health action is where the greatest saving of life and suffering can be made," said Dr. Thomas Parran, Jr., Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service. Dr. Parran has the reputation of being a fighter and he has already begun his war on the ogres of disease that are in need of immediate attention.

Tuberculosis comes first for it is the greatest of the public health foes, according to Dr. Parran. When we consider that 70,000 persons die needlessly each year in this country from that communicable, preventable disease, it is hopeful news that our leading health authority has determined to attack tuberculosis first and "to finish the job of wiping it out."

The fact that in the past thirty years the death rate from tuberculosis has been cut two-thirds is encouraging until we find that it is still the leading cause of death in the productive years, 15 to 45. Heart disease, for example, the leading cause of death for all age groups, takes its greatest number of lives in the older years, beyond the age of 60. The tragedy of tuberculosis is that deaths from it usually mean broken homes and orphaned children. Dr. Parran further said, "Our slogan used to read: Tuberculosis is preventable; tuberculosis is curable. I maintain that it now may be amended to read: Tuberculosis can be wiped out in our nation!"

In December the penny Christmas Seals are being sold for the thirtieth year. Their message this year is that amended slogan and an appeal to every thinking man and woman in this country to help in the war to wipe out tuberculosis before the next thirty years have passed.

MAYOR CARTER RETURNS FROM FRANKFORT

Mayor Carter returned Tuesday from Frankfort where he attended a meeting of the officials of municipalities and counties of the state to discuss the telephone rate controversy with Governor Chandler. The mayors and officials of cities and counties were invited by the governor to attend the meeting held in the state reception room of the new capitol building. Some time ago the Kentucky Public Service Commission approved a new rate schedule reducing the city telephone charges, but permitted the telephone company to eliminate free inter-exchange service. Protests over the state became so great that the commission rescinded their original order.

Approximately 100 mayors of the state (mostly members of the Municipal League) several county judges and county attorneys attended the meeting. Governor Chandler stated that the present investigation of telephone rates will be extended to all public utilities.

TAUL HAS BAD LUCK; TWO CARS HIT TRUCK

While returning home Sunday night about 11 o'clock, the truck which Taulbee Hamilton was driving was struck by another car on the curve at Knotley Hollow. Mr. Hamilton stated to The Times that as he was passing a car bearing a Carlisle county license, the car hit the rear end of his truck, knocking it side ways across the road. Leaving a party there with a flashlight he started walking to Prestonsburg to get a wreck er when another car coming up bearing an Elliott county license, struck the truck again, practically making it a total wreck. The second car was flagged by a flashlight, but did not heed the warning to stop.

COURT OF APPEALS HOLDS DRY VOTE IN LAWRENCE IS LEGAL

Local Option Election To Be Held In County December 5

7,185 ARE ELIGIBLE

The Kentucky court of appeals in a ruling handed down Tuesday, November 4, held the local option election called to be held in Lawrence county on December 5 to be legal.

The section of the 1936 local option election law requiring that petitioners seeking a local option election must state their postoffice addresses and the date they signed the petition is "directory" and not "mandatory," the court of appeals held in ruling on the case.

The court's opinion, written by Commissioner Osso Stanley, affirmed judgment of Judge Watt M. Prichard in a suit against County Judge L. D. Fyffe to enjoin the holding of a local option election. Dr. C. E. Skaggs and J. B. Vaughan, plaintiffs, contended the petition calling for the election was defective because a number of the subscribers to the petition did not state their postoffice addresses or the date of signature. It was admitted that all petitioners were voters in Lawrence county.

"The provisions of the statute that the postoffice address and date of signature of the petitioners shall be stated are interpreted," the court held, "as being directory, although their qualification as voters of the territory involved is, of course, mandatory because jurisdictional. The provision ought to be observed in the interest of orderly procedure and to enable the county judge or any interested citizen to identify the petitioners conveniently."

All voters who were registered and qualified to vote in the general election November 3 and all who qualify by registering at the clerk's office from now until the time the registration books are sent to the individual precincts, will be allowed to vote on the wet and dry question December 5, County Clerk Homer Ball stated. A total of 7,185 were registered on November 3, and nine additional voters have registered since the election, Mr. Ball stated.

Election officers to conduct the wet and dry vote at the 28 precincts in the county will be selected this week by the county election commissioners from lists of citizens submitted by the wet and dry forces.

Since the election will be held in December, it is likely that cold weather will prevail and that the vote will be light. This will mark the first time that Lawrence countians have gone to the polls in December.

On the ballots for the local option election there will be the following wording: "Are you in favor of adopting the local option law in Lawrence county?" Opposite the question will be two squares designated "yes" and "no."

Voters are still, in many cases, at a loss to understand what a "yes" or "no" vote in this election means. A vote "no" means to keep it as it is at present. A "yes" vote is a dry ballot.

SLATES

Medical men tell us that there are more diseases and disease germs now than formerly. We can believe this after remembering the old slate, which used to be a reputable and useful part of every "scholar's" outfit. Not to have a slate was to be wretchedly poor. To own a slate and a sponge attached to it was to be in the same style as one is now when he has a monogram painted on his car door or when he has an authentic coat of arms of the family (bought from some company for a dollar) engraved on all his stationery. The single slate gave distinction (cum laude); the double slate gave more than double distinction (magna cum laude). When sponges were out or got lost, coat sleeves, handkerchiefs, or just plain gobby hands did quite as well as a sponge in erasing. I never heard of germs in those days. I do not suppose there were any.

No more useful thing than the slate ever existed. What would arithmetic have been without a slate? Just think of John Jones' Estate figured out on a tablet! I do remember that one boy in our school worked out this problem on a shingle, a fair substitute in this instance. Every time I hear of a man's dying and leaving his estate to his three sons and two daughters (or was it the other way?) I am reminded of John Jones, who ever he was. He must have been a close friend to Ray himself to have evolved such a complicated will. (I refer of course to Third Part Arithmetic Ray.) Recent editions of this old standby text are called Practical, or some such belittling title. And dear old John Jones is now called Gordon Appgar. I attribute this degenerack to the passing of the slate.

"All work and no play," my teachers used to quote, and know the rest. Thus it was with the slate. It had many another use besides its invaluable assistance in arithmetic and writing lessons, and out or got lost, coat sleeves, handkerchiefs, or just plain gobby hands did quite as well as a sponge in erasing. I never heard of germs in those days. I do not suppose there were any. Often figured in these art exhibitions rarely to her own credit. Slates were, also a powerful means of defense, particularly when some larger boy failed to observe that age old maxim, "Jump on somebody your size." Along about the time that teachers' institutes began discussing germs, it became fashionable to lay all sorts of crimes at the door of the slate. This occurred also about the time young ladies quit boasting about their being 16 or 18 inches in the waist. So loud was the outcry that slates ceased to be in a decade, and today they are as unknown as ox-wagons or or side saddles. I wonder what in the modern school takes the place of the squeaking slate pencil, of the pictures drawn on the slate, of the notes we used to write, and especially of John Jones' Estate. Some cynic has said that if George Washington were to return to earth, he would recognize alone of the institutions of his time the old schoolhouse. In shoe box form and impossible location, yes; but poor George would sadly miss the old slate and its pre-germ uses.

That Is Perfection

Perfection does not consist in doing singular things; but it does consist in doing common things singularly well.

The sophisticated person finds little to enjoy. Everything is old to him.

No two men are exactly alike; and universal democracy can't overcome it.

Sum total of knowledge gained from century to century makes men wiser; and that's about all.

Those That Tried

Failures are facts that prove a man has at least actually tried to be successful.

Self-expression is seldom as beautiful as self-control.

If you want to make your friend happy instead of seeking to have him make you happy, that's the true gold.

Poise is something that keeps one from speaking too suddenly.

Sure Realizers

Youths who "have dreams of what they are going to be" are not likely to realize them.

Admitting our faults is half way to correcting them; but the laziest half.

Always be sure your friends can grant the favor before you ask it; then there won't be the pain and embarrassment of refusal.

We always feel great admiration for those clever people who can mend something when we break it.

By a chance that rarely favors desperate measures, Denison sprawled from the final leap across the bridge gap into a fringe of sand and willows that overgrew the eastern bridge approach.

Threading the undergrowth on his trembling horse, Denison got away from the bridge as fast as he could; somebody was still throwing rifle slugs toward it; but once away from the danger point, he lost no time in making himself heard.

Denison, from the willows, called loudly, "Who's driving these cattle?" "The man that owns 'em," shouted McCrossen, riding out into the open, fifty yards away.

Denison pushed into the open, "You're driving this bunch, McCrossen?" "I am. What do you want, Denison?" he demanded angrily.

"I want these steers, McCrossen. And I want you."

"These steers belong to me for wages, an' I've got twice as many back there yet. Now I've got just one word for you, Denison: Get out of my way an' keep out of my way."

"If you've got any rights in these cattle, turn 'em back to the Meadows and lay your claim for wages before the Stockmen's Claims Board," retorted Denison.

"What the hell's all this to you? Do you claim 'em?" demanded McCrossen savagely.

"I don't claim a hoof, but I want to talk with you, McCrossen, before you jump to the Panhandle."

"What about?" "About who fired my ranch house and about Henry Sawdy."

"Tryin' to pick a quarrel with me, eh, Denison? Well, you needn't try very hard. I don't like you, Denison. I never did. I never had any use for you. Now will you pull off these bumps that are millin' my steers?"

"Will you head 'em back for the Meadows and talk to me?"

"No!" "No!" The two refusals were fast. But while the second was being uttered, Rebstock cried, "Crowd him, Dave!" and fired at Denison.

The next instant three horsemen were plunging at one another on rearing horses and throwing their shots at one another in a very uncertain light.

Retreat was out of the thinking. Denison, caught between the two men, was forced to divide his fire. With a blow stinging his left arm, he jumped his horse past the two, whirled, and came back outside, with McCrossen shooting at him fast.

The maneuver of Denison's pot McCrossen into Rebstock's line of fire.

But hardly had Denison whirled when he felt a sickening blow in the stomach from McCrossen's gun, hardly ten yards away.

He had been crouching on his horse's back and was already stirrup-loose. He slid off and rolled like a cat toward the brush.

Rebstock saw the trick but, forgetting that a wounded man is the most dangerous man, he yelled and spurred straight at him.

The horse refused the smell of blood. He shied. Rebstock spurred him. As the horse reared, the feeble light of the moon struck, for an instant, Rebstock's features. In that instant Denison fired point-blank at him.

The blow was terrible. Rebstock's arms jerked high, and his gun flew into the air. He sprang convulsively upward, toppled and, as his frightened horse whirled, lurched from the saddle to the ground. He never spoke again.

Fully expecting that McCrossen would ride in to finish him, Denison flipped open the loading gate of his gun instinctively, and punched out the empty shells.

His head in a whirl, expecting that any instant McCrossen would be on him, Denison tried to reload. Just as he got the cartridge into his revolver, he caught the sound of a horse's hoofs and then heard Bob Scott calling.

"Here, Bob," exclaimed Denison from the brush. "Look out for McCrossen."

Scott slipped off his horse. "McCrossen won't bother for a while. Are you hit, Bill?"

"I stopped a couple of slugs somehow. What about McCrossen?" he asked irritably.

"He's lyin' over by the bridge. He wants to talk to you, Bill."

"Twist a tourniquet around this arm before I try it, Bob. Don't trust McCrossen. Have you got his guns? He'd like nothing better than another crack at me," muttered Denison, staggering with Scott's help, to his feet.

"McCrossen's stripped clean," declared Scott. "He's dyin'. That's the plain truth. Can't you make up your mind to see what he wants?"

"Go ahead. But give me my gun and watch out," muttered Denison.

In the light of the moon, McCrossen, propped up by a frying pan, reclined against the trunk of a half-grown tree. His eyes were closed.

"Here's Bill, Dave," Scott spoke low and gently. "You said you wanted to speak to him."

"Yes, Dave?" said Denison, haltingly.

"I'm done, Bill."

"Dave," exclaimed Denison, "I'm sorry it had to end this way."

"I talked pretty rough tonight," said McCrossen, brokenly, spitting the blood out of his throat.

"That's all right, Dave." "Didn't really mean it all. You've always shot square, Bill. If some folks I've trained with had done that way, I mightn't be here tonight. Bill, a favor—"

"Go on, Dave." "I've got an old-maid sister back East. She's all I've got. I'd hate her to know this come, rustlin', Bill."

"It'll never be said, Dave." "Let it be a straight-out fight, Bill—you know."

"I know, Dave; I know. What's her address?" "In my trunk, Bill," murmured McCrossen thickly. "Promise?" "I promise."

"Give me—your hand."

Pardaloe was the first to reach Gunlock on the way home shortly before daylight. He rode in on his way to town to get hold of Dr. Carpy for Denison, whose condition worried him.

"I Know, Dave; I Know. What's Her Address?"

Fortunately the surgeon was already at Gunlock, whether he had been summoned to care for Sawdy.

With Sawdy's flesh wound already bandaged, Carpy sat in the living room, drinking a pot of coffee supplied by Jane.

He was enjoying in leisurely fashion his third or fourth cup of steaming stimulant when the sound of hoofs was heard. In a moment a resounding rap came at the door.

Jane started. In terrified appeal, she looked at the doctor. Carpy responded by calmly wiping his lips.

"Who's there?" he demanded curtly. "Bill Pardaloe" came the response. Carpy flung the door open.

Jane ran out of the bedroom. "Oh, Mr. Pardaloe!" she cried. "Where is Bill? Where is he?"

"He's on his way back to the hospital." "Is he hurt? Is he wounded? Tell me!" cried the frantic girl.

"Why, no, yes—that is, he was almin' to get back to the hospital before Doc found out he was gone," parried the veteran awkwardly.

Carpy intervened sternly: "Where is he now? Talk, Bill!" "Ain't I talkin'? He's on the way here with Bob Scott."

"Then he's not hurt?" cried Jane. "Why, no, yes—a little, maybe," stammered Pardaloe.

Unexpectedly, she kissed him with clinging warmth...

BLACK WIDOW SPIDER FOUND AT FORT GAY, SAYS LOUISA PAPER

S. B. Noe, constable of Butler district, killed three black widow spiders at his home near Fort Gay recently. The black widow is the most poisonous of all spiders and you may be surprised to know that it was found in Wayne county, as this is the first indication of its presence here. Mr. Noe's identification of the spiders is not to be doubted, however, because he formerly lived in Texas where the black widow exists in abundance and is therefore able to identify the species on sight. These spiders have a red spot on the underside of the abdomen; this could scarcely serve as a means of hasty identification, because if there is anything you must not do it is to pick up one of these spiders and turn it over to inspect its coloring. The best identification is the jet black color, the big globular abdomen, which suggests a big black shoe button; and the length of its legs, the front leg being the longest, the third leg the shortest of the four legs. On her back and around her spinnerets she has a variable number of small red dots. She is large, with body half an inch long.

Medieval Gilds, Archers Conduct Colorful Fetes

Twice each year, Vise, a quiet little city on the border of Belgium and Holland, decks itself in festive array and holds celebrations reminiscent of medieval times. Its Gild of the Arquebusiers holds a fete, while the Gild of the Free Arquebusiers make merry a week later, states a writer in the Boston Globe.

Even though the arquebus, a sixteenth century gun, which preceded the musket, went out of use about 1570, its carriers in this city, the arquebusiers, have kept up their ancient gilds and today membership in them is still looked upon as a mark of distinction. Twice annually they turn back the calendar 400 years and stage these celebrations with all the color of the Middle Ages.

Other Belgian cities as well as Vise preserve gilds and contests that date from medieval times. Just as colorful as the Fetes of the Arquebusiers are the archery contests still held throughout the year in Bruges by the Archers' Company of San Sebastian. Once made up of men who formed the bodyguard of the Counts of Flanders, this company still prides itself that Charles II of England visited its tower in 1556 and wrote his name in its golden book. His brother, the Duke of Gloucester, even tried his hand at the bow there and left behind a silver arrow, still the show piece of the tower.

About 50 men take part in the tournaments, wearing white jackets and shooting from a bandstand at the back of the tower. Their target, a clay pigeon on a pole above the building, is a hard one to hit, and on windy days it sometimes happens that no one breaks it.

History of London Runs as Far Back as 43 A. D.

London, the greatest city in the world, lies 50 miles above the mouth of the River Thames, spreading over both its banks. It has an area of 693 square miles and a population of more than 8,000,000. London is really the mother city of the British empire, and it would take the visitor weeks to view all the sights in the grand old city, which dates back so far that there isn't a recorded time when there wasn't London. The Roman legions were there in A. D. 43.

The British metropolis is but 1 1/2 hours by rail from Southampton.

London has always been the workshop of Great Britain's literary lights. There toiled Shakespeare, Chaucer, Coleridge, Defoe, Dickens, Dryden, Gibbon, Goldsmith, Johnson, Keats, Lovelace, Marlowe, Milton, Raleigh, Shelley, Thackeray, and scores of the men and women who built the sturdy foundation of literary England. Many of the houses connected with the lives of these great writers will stand.

LOCAL YOUNG MEN. STUDENTS OF U. OF K., VISIT PARENTS HERE

Huddle Info Reveals

$253 Is Necessary for Big Ten Player

IT COSTS $253 to get each Big Ten football player ready for a game. This includes such items as equipment, coaches' salaries and stadium upkeep, but fails to include the prep school draft price, intercollegiate waiver price and incidental rewards, emoluments and bonuses.

Bill Osmani, Holy Cross' great sophomore fullback, wants everybody to know that his kid brother, Joe, is even better. Joe right now is achieving numerous touchdowns for Central high of Providence.

Can it be that the commercial aspect of football finally has dried up all the human juices of the customers? A few years ago a cheer for the visiting team always was the first act on the program.

Minnesota's quarterback doesn't play favorites. Fourteen Gophers have shared in the scoring this season. Princeton players say that Danny Lewis of Williams is the best center they have opposed in two years of facing such other greats as Robertshaw of Navy, Ray of Dartmouth and Hauze of Penn.

Navy's football program, which peddles for four bits, should be the best money maker of all such aids to the athletic association. It is filled with fat ads from armament manufacturers and similar disciples of peace and prosperity.

Kipke Is One of Game's Most Nervous Coaches

Aside from the way Penn walloped his Michigan team, Franklin field also provided another severe strain on Harry Kipke's nerves. While watching a game he wanders up and down the sidelines, nervously picking and chewing blades of grass.

Skip Stahley, Harvard assistant coach, sighs whenever he thinks of the high school team he saw perform in his Lebanon home town several seasons ago. The backfield was composed of Dick and Jack White, now of Princeton; Ditt, North Carolina fullback, and Pete Smith of Temple.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

THE New York State Assembly this winter will be asked to investigate the conduct of the commissions supposed to regulate boxing and racing. Red Rolfe has been adding to his World Series winners' share by betting on his Alma Mamma, Dartmouth, to win football games.

It is time somebody noted that the nation's longest intercollegiate football winning streak extends back to 1931. Morgan college has won thirty-nine games since then. The biggest single bet ever cashed at a pari-mutuel racetrack was when the old Hildreth castoff, Bruns, won at Pimlico.

Sixto Escobar Was Handy at Baseball

Sixto Escobar, bantamweight expert, was ace as a baseball and volley ball player during his school days at Barceloneta, in Puerto Rico. Carlos Indian Quintana claims to be the first Cholo Indian ever to become a prize fighter.

One of Manhattan's plays is a double shift which frequently catches an opposing lineman offside. Then, before he can get back into position, the Jaspers walk him in, snap the ball and get five yards for nothing.

If the New York State Athletic Commission would depart from its provincial attitude and invite young Joe McGuigan of Philadelphia to referee occasionally the New York State Athletic Commission would improve its staff of referees 100 per cent.

The foul most frequently overlooked by officials who like the hours and the pay is holding in the line. Charles Francis (Socker) Coe, the celebrated writer and broadcaster, has lost so much weight that he now looks like only one man.

Manners in China Manners are a matter of routine in some of the government offices in China. Employees must greet their superiors with "How are you?"

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

NEW YORK. — They say poker is dying out, its place being taken by bridge, a game played with 52 cards and frequently, as between partners, with fully 52 times that many harsh words.

And out on the dude-ranches, old cowhands, who once were almost rough with heifers and calves, are being schooled in discreet love-making and other romantic exercises to qualify them for celebrating Be Good to Debutantes week next summer.

LOS ANGELES may have its drawbacks (loud cries of "no!" from all native sons, including the foreign-born ones), but she certainly spoils a fellow for the clinkers.

Take Chicago, where the weather bureau, if so inclined, frequently might report a two-inch fall of soot. Or Pittsburgh, where a chap comes home for a week looking as though he'd been cleaning out a soft-coal stove.

Yet heating engineers say that proper smoke consumers would produce such saving in fuel cost as to pay for themselves in about one year.

Crucity to Wives. MAYBE you'll remember — it was in all the papers — the lady who got a divorce in Chicago some time back by alleging that on the Fourth of July her husband assailed her with firecrackers.

But assume the union had lasted until now. You can imagine the poor woman's anguish if, through the last political campaign, her husband had made her read all the polls taken on the election by the inspired outfits that did take polls and through that period had compelled her to listen on the radio to the average professional broadcaster on football games.

Outwitting the Laundry Man. SEEING a Pullman porter pry open a car window with one of those burglars' tools which Pullman porters carry for that purpose gave me an idea.

I'm going to buy one to use on dress shirts when they come back from the laundry with the little flaps on the collar band cemented down over the back button hole.

Dear Horns Expensive Deer horn, highly prized by older generation Chinese as a curative agent, retails in China at $5.80 to $11 per ounce, and special quality horn with red velvet runs as high as $100 an ounce.

On to Success— With It Comes Boldness in New Ideas; Our Sphere of Friends and Activities Expands

A POOR salesman may be a genius at gardening; an indifferent stenographer sometimes never suspects her own gift for cookery, for dress design, for ability to pick up foreign languages.

Often we have to begin slowly — reading, or finding courses of instruction within our means, or working out a program for ourselves in solitude; but every day something can be done toward the new way of living.

Then living begins to be fun. We meet people with the same tastes, not just the chance acquaintances who come our way in an ungenial profession.

our real work turn up on every hand. Best of all, even a small success has a vitalizing effect on character.

That is the most interesting discovery that success brings in its train: those who are living successfully make the best friends. They are free from malice and spitefulness. They are not petty.

Bacteria Attacks Unprotected Areas of Meat—Expert Explains Way to be Sure Meats Will Keep Thru Summer

By S. Eugene Colgin I have smoked more than two billion pounds of meat. On my father's farm 30 years ago I discovered that what happened to meat during smoking in the old smokehouse, Pine drops of moisture appeared on the hams and sides.

Years of research, since, have revealed what really causes meat to spoil. Note photograph "A." This is what the eye of the microscope sees when focused on that old enemy, green mold. Mold is a cidness, usually near the bone. It is a bacteria, shown here through the microscope's eye. And photo "C" shows that pest called the "skipper," which is in reality the larva of a fly.

There is only one known way to prevent all these troubles. That is thorough smoking. Of course everyone knows how uncertain the old smokehouse is. Other so-called smoking methods, or substitutes for smoking, are likewise risky.

"fungus"; technically not a bacteria, but its action is similar. This parasite attacks the surface of the meat.

Inch with FIGARO Condensed Smoke. It penetrates. It positively prevents mold, rancidness, or drying out of the meat.

BRIGHT STAR

By Mary Schumann

Mary Schumann, pleasantly remembered for her "Strong Enchantments" last year, again demonstrates her ability to tell an engrossing story in "Bright Star," this paper's new serial release. Her unusual insight, her sympathy and understanding contribute in no small measure to making "Bright Star" the wholly convincing novel that it is.

Here is a tale of unexpected love that took roots in the decaying remains of a shattered past. You will wait expectantly for each installment as the central characters wade from the sea of despair to find new confidence in a mutual understanding. You'll be delighted to read how a "bright star" that was steadfast finally appeared in the sky to replace the others... merely comets.

"Bright Star" contains all those elements necessary for a truly readable novel... love, adventure, despair, a pleasing variety of characters... a worthy package of fiction ready for your enjoyment in every issue!
