INLAND STARTS TWELVE MILE PIPE LINE IN KNOTT

Marks New Development:
To Employ Large Number of Workmen

An eight-inch pipeline 12 miles long, running from Rock Fork, near Lackey, Ky., to the mouth of Possum Trot Creek, near Hindman, Ky., was started last week by the Inland Gas Corporation of this city. One report said that 500 men would be used on the job.

Thursday afternoon a member of the company's personnel stated that 200 men are now employed and possibly 150 more would be hired before the work is completed. No estimate of the expenditure was given.

Practically all of the labor is being acquired in Knott county and in the immediate vicinity of the line. The work is expected to be completed from 60 to 90 days. Plans for the work were formulated some time ago.

The Inland Gas Company has established a field office at Lackey for the purpose of handling the construction work. It is understood that smaller connecting lines from wells in the field to the new line will be added to the construction program as work on the main line advances.

This marks a new development for the company in the Hindman and Troublesome Creek area. Two new wells are now being drilled by the Inland in that section.

The line under construction will feed into the company's 16-inch pipeline that delivers gas to Armco and other industrial concerns located in the tri-state region.

Wheeler Addresses Kiwanis

Orville Wheeler, Paintsville, Ky., lieutenant governor of the Kiwanis district, addressed the local Kiwanis here last Friday night, using "Lincoln" as his subject.

Due to the illness of the club president, Judge John W. Caudill, "Ladies Night," which was scheduled for Feb. 19, is postponed until Friday, Feb. 26 to comply with Washington's birthday.

NYA Establishes 3 "Chair Factories" In Floyd County

A group of boys employed on the Bonanza NYA project working under the supervision of Mr. Otis Conley, are engaged in a work, typical of our mountain talent. Going to the woods for lumber and barks they are constructing chairs for the Floyd County Board of Education for use in the primary grades throughout the county.

On a recent visit to these chair plants the County Supervisor relates: "The construction of these sturdy chairs is indeed a result of skillful improvisation — an artistic product of something out of nothing." At the Brainard plant the stove was made from the gas tank from an old car, attached to a stove pipe. The turning lathe was run by an old mill wheel rigged up with belt and foot pedal. Two boys pedal, and one boy uses the lathe. The wheel had rocks tied to the axle for bearings. Only one boy could make the first, but all are making them now. At the Needmore

$100,000 For School Building Is Approved

Air-conditioned Structure Is To Supplant Old Byington Building. Telegram From Congressman May Confirms Approval. Construction To Be Rushed.

A brick air-conditioned school building to cost $100,000 has been approved in Washington for the city of Prestonsburg, it was announced this week by Congressman A. J. May and Mayor A. C. Carter. The building, to be one of the finest school buildings in the state, contains 22 class rooms, an auditorium seating 600 people and a basement under the entire building.

The Times received a telegram from Congressman May Wednesday regarding the new building, which reads as follows:

Washington, D. C.,

February 17,

To Floyd County Times
Prestonsburg (graded school project approved by bureau of the budget, Comptroller General and signed by the President Stop. Am assured by state office in Louisville that construction will be pushed vigorously Stop Letter follows.

A. J. MAY

Plans for the building, prepared by Art Hager, engineer and member of the city council, were drawn from a building at the Chicago World's Fair. Mayor Carter stated it is designed to house the graded school and junior high school pupils.

The much-needed building will replace the old Prestons-burg Baptist Institute building, built in 1904 by Prof. W. M. Byington and later sold to the Baptist Board of Missions. In 1918 the Board sold it to A. C. Harlowe who, in turn, sold it to the city board of education. The building now in use is constructed of home-made brick and kilned on the school grounds, is declared near dilapidation and unsafe.

Present plans call for the old building to be torn down and the new one to be situated with one wing near it and the other wing of the structure near the gym. Ishmael Triplett, superintendent of city schools, said that it would be H-type, two stories high and measure approximately 206 feet long by about 70 feet wide.

Each class room is planned for each particular grade and has storage and cloak rooms for each class. A large library and reading room is included in the plans.

Congressman May stated before leaving for Washington recently, that he intended to see the project through and has worked diligently toward its approval.

Mayor Carter said, this week, that for some time he has sought the approval of this project and has had the backing of the city council and the school board.

KEENAN TAKES NEW POSITION IN CHARLESTON

Severs Connection With Kentucky-West Virginia Gas Company

Dan S. Keenan, general supt. of the Kentucky west Virginia Gas Co., resigned his position with that company to accept a position with the United Caroon Co. of Charleston, W. Va. Mr. Keenan came to this county more than 10 years ago with the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, rising to the position of general superintendent through his ability and knowledge of the natural gas business and his pleasing personality. These qualities also brought him high honors in gas engineering circles of the state, having held the position of president of that body for a term recently.

Mr. Keenan's resignation from the service of the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co. ends a 25-year connection with the Bilesby Engineering Company, the parent company which operates the local concern, together with others throughout the middle West. Continued on page four

CHURCHES TO TAKE RELIGIOUS CENSUS

Thirty-Eight Church Workers To Check Eleven City Districts

The Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian churches of Prestonsburg are uniting, during the coming week, in a house to house canvass to invite people to attend church and Sunday School, and also to obtain information as to church membership or church preference, it was announced this week.

ONE-SIXTH OF FLOYD MOTORISTS HAVE LICENSES

Paying Usage Tax Under Protest; March 1 Set As "Deadline"

An estimate from the county clerk's office, Wednesday morning, showed a small percentage of the cars in Floyd county registered so far this year, 248 passenger cars and 106 trucks being licensed since Jan. 1. There are only 11 more days until the deadline of March 1.

According to the figures of a recent research, compiled by Miss Myrtle Paul, deputy county clerk, on the basis of registrations since 1931, the average increase per year in passenger car licenses for Floyd county is approximately 200 and the average increase for trucks is about 50.

Last year's registrations showed 1641 passenger cars and 591 trucks. Considering the average increase, the number so far licensed represents approximately one-sixth of the cars and trucks to be licensed this year.

No extension of time for securing licenses is expected. Miss Paul stated, due to the late deadline. Last year the deadline was set at Jan. 1, Miss Paul said, and an extension was granted to Feb. 1. Nothing official regarding an extension has been learned.

Those who have licensed their vehicles this year have done so under protest to the usage tax of three per cent imposed upon the purchase price of new cars as well as second-hand cars bought out of the state. Second-hand cars purchased within the state and re-licensed cars are exempt from this so-called "sales tax."

Those who have paid the usage tax will ask for a refund through their attorneys on the grounds that the tax is illegal, it is understood.

Return From Georgia

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Rose returned Monday from Grayson, where they spent several days. They were called there the latter part of the week by the illness of Mr. Rose's father.

"Talking Clock" Invented By Prestonsburg Jeweler

A "talking clock" that, instead of striking the hour, speaks it, is the product of the ingenuity of Duke Griffith, Prestonsburg watch repairer and former Floyd county miner.

Mr. Griffith has combined a clock and a phonographic principle into a home-made cabinet 23 inches high, 13 inches deep and 15 1/2 inches broad, after conceiving the idea of a clock to speak the time, in the latter part of 1935. Its "voice" comes from a record located beneath the clock mechanism and passes through a speaker installed over the clock dial.

The record automatically starts 15 minutes before the hour, announces the time and "hushes" until the next hour when the procedure is repeated. The record is timed commercially, possibilities of the clock mechanism. At the end of the 12 hours when the circuit of the dial is completed, a home-made trip wheel moves the needle arm back to the starting point on the record.

At present, Mr. Griffith employs a test record of commercial announcements and plans to buy a recording apparatus to make his own records for his clock. Citing the commercial possibilities of novel clock, Mr. Griffith said, "It can be used in transportation terminals, not only to inform passengers of the correct time, but to announce the arrival and departure of trains and buses." In restaurants it could "chirp" to idle would-be customers, "Attention, it's now 12 o'clock and time for a delicious chicken dinner."

Mr. Griffith has worked on the clock in his spare time during the past year and although it is not complete in all details, he stated that he had applied for patents to protect his unique invention. The inventor was injured in a coal mine at Lackey, April 6, 1918. He was not able to return to the mines, and in 1919 began repairing watches. He has been located in Prestonsburg for a number of

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adierka. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

—Mrs. Jas. Filler.

Adierka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adierka gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. B. E. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierka greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation. At all Leading Druggists.

IF COLD is in YOUR CHEST do this now

Before you go to bed rub Penetro on your chest and throat, then apply hot cloth. Relief quickly follows because Penetro is stronger, contains 113% to 227% more medication than any other nationally sold cold salve.

And because Penetro has a base of mutton suet, it conserves and concentrates body heat to enable this stronger medication to help nature break up congestion. The aromatic vapors of Penetro also help to relieve stuffiness and soothe the inflamed area.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

The Drift of Scotland.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—So high an authority as the Associated Press gives out a dispatch stating that Scotland is drifting toward America at the rate of eight feet a year.

This would be an excuse for the unthoughtful to say that the Scots always had a reputation for being close and now are becoming still closer.

To me, though, the main question is whether Scotland is going to bring England along with her. Among themselves, at least, the Scots have always had the reputation of bringing England along through the centuries. And if you don't believe it ask any true Scot. He stands ready to offer supporting dates, names and statistics.

By the way, I've noticed one outstanding difference between the two greatest groups of the Celtic race. To an Irishman's face you can joke about Ireland and he remains calm. But poke fun at an individual Irishman and you are hunting for trouble—and probably will soon be hunting for a doctor. Inversely you may jibe a Scot and get away with it. But just say the least little thing in derision of his native land and you'd better start running.

So-Called Modern Art.

I GUESS I must belong to a most ancient species—indeed, an almost vanished species. It's true I'm not quite old enough to remember when they shot Indians where the city hall now stands and Peggy Hopkins Joyce was called Love Apples. But I do date back to where a painting was expected, remotely, at least, to resemble the object it purported to represent.

I lived through the early stages of the artistic revolt—primitives, ultramodernists, post-impressionists, cubists, dadaists and so on—without ever becoming reconciled to the prevalent idea that a canvas apparently depicting a bundle of laths coming undone was supposed to be a nude lady's portrait, or that a spirited rendition of a yellow cat having an epileptic fit in a mess of tomato soup was an Italian sunset.

Lately I've seen examples of the latest school—the surrealist school. And if the practitioners of this form of beauty are artists, then I'm a kind-faced old Swiss watch mender. They're actually giving certain of these geniuses medals. What they ought to give 'em is something for their respective livers.

Uncle Sam the Spendthrift.

WE, we were good fellows while we had it, weren't we? We destroyed our forests. Result: Up water courses.

We indulged in an orgy of so-called "reclamation" schemes to drain unneeded swamplands, thereby destroying the breeding grounds and the natural resting places of emigrating wild fowl so that the once vast flocks are gone, probably forever.

We wasted our heritage of wild game, formerly a great factor in food supply aside from being a source of healthful joy to gunners. We needlessly polluted our streams.

But we're a resourceful race; give us credit for that. Now, through speed madness and drunken driving, we're preying merrily on human life. It's getting so that the citizen who insists on dying a natural death, instead of waiting for some mad wag of a road-hog to mow him down, can be regarded only as a sportsman.

Cruelty to Wild Life.

SOMETIMES women are almost as inconsistent as men—which is a frightful indictment to bring against any sex.

As a boy, I remember being severely lectured by a lady for robbing birds' nests—a lady whose nodding hat was crowned with at least four stuffed meadowlarks.

A few years ago, I saw women prominent in humane movements and good deeds, like that woman of the Scriptures who was called Dorcas—saw these women wearing the smuggled and forbidden aigrettes of the snowy heron, even though they must have known that each pitiable feathered wisp meant a cruel murder and a brood of fledglings left to starve. I still see these aigrettes being worn—against the law of the land and the greater law of common humanity.

And only lately, at a meeting to forward the prevention of cruelty to dumb beasts, I saw women swathed in their earlobes in furs of mink and otter. Seemingly they had forgotten that the animals whose pelts they wore had died in steel traps by slow degrees of infinite torture. Or maybe they didn't care.

Holdout Technique of Cards, Yankees Provides Contrast

THERE probably are other ways in which the business heads of baseball's two most efficient firms perform their daily chores. At this season, though, it is the manner in which they manipulate their holdouts that provides the most enlightening contrast.

Branch Rickey of the Cards is a prime exponent of the "let's raise hell before we sign the papers" school. Even when not blessed with such a gifted debating opponent as Dizzy Dean he is a firm believer in the benefits to be obtained from airing salary squabbles in press, news reels and any other available public forums.

Ed Barrow of the Yankees long has been convinced that unballooned negotiations provide the best results. Now and then—as during the later years of Ruth—Cousin Ed yields to the temptation of a fine fanfare of publicity during the weeks immediately preceding the signing of a contract. But the blather surrounding such yieldings only serves to convince him the more that regular methods are the best. Immediately thereafter he returns to the policy of offering a fair price.

But the fact that such high-salaried notables as Ruth and Dean usually are pretty close to a meeting of minds with the management before all parties start yelling in the papers—probably is the reason why few business managers take the winter furor seriously. Several big-time clubs are notorious for paying pitiful wages, but, in general, the average is high. So, because an Eddie Roush comes along very seldom, the magnates are happily fortified.

Roush never could have proved his point as easily as a Hubbell, who might give evidence that the added customers at one Sunday game are sufficient to pay his annual salary. But Eddie knew he was worth $100,000.

Once he held out most of the summer before Cincinnati met his terms. At other times he may have remained away from spring training merely because the shifting sands of Texas and Florida did not agree with his aging dogs. But all the while he knew he was worth $100,000 and since the days of the lamented Chris von der Ahe no club-owner has been willing to sacrifice a sum merely to humor a stubborn whim. So Eddie got his way.

Apart from the Dean-Rickey advertisement and one or two other carry-overs of similar nature this winter's show of holdouts seems considerably below the usual ballyhoo par. Most of the boys—altogether as one who likes to see greedily and mismanaging owners clipped for extra dough now and then I make this statement sadly—seem to have as little heart in their demands as Hank Leiber did twelve months ago.

Public prints reported the big outfielder as threatening to coach baseball at Arizona university rather than sign the contract offered by the Giants. Hank is a valuable young player and, even though the Giants' terms seemed very decent, this is a world which favors a guy getting all he can.

In the midst of his most violent protestations he made one mistake, though. He kept writing to friends in New York asking how the Giants were reacting to his demands. This definitely revealed a chink in his armor. So, having heard the gossip which may or may not have reached Horace Stoneham's ears, I was not surprised to see Hank walk into a Pensacola hotel only a few days late.

Rocky Mountain basketball teams usually travel long distances in autos for their league games. Panhandle A. & M. recently finished a 450-mile auto trip and won a one-point victory. Last winter the Utah Aggies left for a 135-mile auto trip at 8 a. m. and didn't arrive until 9 p. m. because of snowdrifts, slides and cold weather. Then they climbed out of the cars, put on their uniforms and won by a big score to clinch the championship. The pioneer spirit still prevails. . . . Only three members of the Hershey hockey team remain in the town during the off-season. Lloyd Blinco works as an assistant golf pro, while Audley K. (Tut) is an accountant with a college degree and Russ Russell keeps in trim in the lumber yard.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

EARLY baseball odds make the Browns, Phillies and A's 200 to 1. . . Helen Jacobs, Peggy Scriven, Dorothy Round, Jesse Owens and most of the basketball stars bear out physicians' claims that most good athletes have flat feet. . . Pedro Montanez, the Puerto Rican lightweight, wears bright red shoes while working out in the gym. . . Women played basketball almost as early as men. In fact, they started one month after Dr. James Naismith invented the game in 1891. . . Mort Lindsay, captain of the Jack Dempsey team in the coming national ten-pin championships, has participated in 27 of the A. B. C. tournaments. . . The U. S. G. A., always whining about being mistreated in the papers, has a publicity department that is tops in nuisance value.

Gents who persist in saying that Joe Louis needs extra tape and bandages for his oversize paws, should take a look at the Bomber some time. Actually he has very small mitts for a heavyweight. . . One reason for Minnesota's gridiron success is that 9,000 candidates turned out for the university's intercollegiate and intramural athletic teams during 1936. Of these 400 were candidates for the frosh football team and 233 for the varsity. . . Rev. Reginald Ferrier is president of the American Mouse Fanciers' association, a new organization. . . Umpire Bill Dineen was surprised, and elated, to discover a big increase in his American league contract. . . Fourteen members of the 1936 Columbia varsity and junior varsity crews will be available again this year.

Hockey gossips say that the poor showing of the amateur Rovers is due to jealousy among the players. The boys remember inter-town and inter-sectional feuds in their native Canada and so team play is sacrificed in one of those "every man for his own self" scrambles. Russ Russell, Hershey wing, has not missed one of the more than 140 games played since he joined the B's. . . Lucien Gagnon, the Hershey goalie and a protege of the famed Georges Veziha, stopped 99 out of 100 shots while helping the Quebec Bears win the Allan Cup in 1932. . . Lester Patrick, manager of the Rangers, is one of the nation's best story tellers and can sing a bit, too.

Bill Terry's Son Won't Follow Dad's Footsteps

Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, has a son at the University of Virginia, who doesn't participate in athletics. . . Fred Frick, son of the National League president, confines his DePauw university sporting attention to golf.

Joe Falcaro, former match game bowling champion, has a sixteen-year-old son whose footwork and other actions on the alleys are ringers for those of his old man. . . Hungary, England, Bohemia, Germany and Norway provided the ancestors for the members of Marquette's varsity basketball five. . . Al Barabas, who scored Columbia's Rose Bowl touchdown against Stanford, has given up the notion of being a lawyer. Instead he is selling accident insurance along with Ivan VanBree, former Colgate track captain.

A new combine from the West has joined Jack Pfeffer in an effort to oust Jack Curly from local wrestling, proving that some people never learn. . . Dr. Bier examined a fighter at Pompton Lakes the other day and asked him if he was suffering from amnesia. "I never touch it," declared the pug. . . Gunboat Smith is head runner for a Wall Street house. . . Doctors keep telling Tony Canzoneri it will be a boy. . . Johnny Dundee never misses a local fight and thinks he can still beat most of the local scrappers. . . Aldo Spoldi is a regular Metropolitan Opera patron when not belting over lightweights. . . After delivering two knockouts in a row, Indian Quintana feels so much better that he will demand another chance at the bantamweight titleholder. . . One reason why Promoter Bill Johnston is topping all the 35-year-old records at St. Nicholas Palace is a very good press agent.

Members of the Kokomo high school basketball team became so indignant after losing five straight games that they demanded Coach Al Campbell change his methods. The coach merely told the boys not to come out to practice any more and awarded their uniforms to new candidates. . . Paul Mishler, Bloomington H. S. center, and Jim Butler, Decatur Central H. S. (both of Indiana), wear No. '00' on their basketball jerseys. But in spite of having plenty of nothing, they're both high scorers.

Jimmy Johnston, Jr., who took plenty of short-end dough on the Pastor-Louis battle, provides the following list of historic encounters where long-price layers walked the plank: Dave Shade vs. Jimmy Slattery, Willie Jackson vs. Johnny Dundee, Ace Hudkins vs. Ruby Goldstein, Billy Petrolle vs. Jimmy McLarnin, Jimmy McLarnin vs. Sid Terris, Tony Canzoneri vs. Jimmy McLarnin, Jim Braddock vs. Tuffy Griffiths, Jim Braddock vs. Baer, and Schmeling vs. Louis.

The Cameroons, former German West African territory almost as large as Germany itself, have been mentioned in news reports with discussion of the possible return to Germany of her pre-War African possessions. The area is now administered under mandates, the greater part under French control, but with a narrow strip of the northwestern edge governed by Great Britain.

"The average man's mental picture of Africa comes to life in the Cameroons," says the National Geographic society. "Spreading fanlike inland from the sharp angle in Africa's west coast, they have lush lowland jungles, tangled rain-forest, cool, high grasslands, pygmies, elephants, lions, gorillas, rubber, ivory, and mahogany, and in some regions the blighting plague of sleeping sickness spread by the tsetse fly."

"Most visitors arrive in the French portion of the Cameroons through Douala, low-lying port on an inlet from the Gulf of Guinea. Here are attractive homes of the few European residents, and a sprawling trading center with native villages nearby. In the dry season Douala is hot and breathless, in the rainy season drenched in an almost continuous downpour, with an average rainfall of 13 feet. From here are shipped a large part of the Cameroons' products of rubber, ivory, ground-nuts, palm oil, almonds, hides, timber and cacao."

"Two short railroads, leading north and east from Douala, form the first step into the real Cameroons. A short ride behind a wood-burning engine that uses even ebony and mahogany logs among its fuel, and the traveler is ready to 'jump off' into the interior, where signal drums still carry messages in primitive codes, roasted termites' eggs and crocodile steaks are delicacies, and natives go fishing with bows and arrows."

"Once away from the railroads, travelers find that bridges are woven of vines in the Cameroons, or one may cross a river by sitting on the head of one negro porter with hands and feet resting on the craniums of four others—as long as the stream is no more than chin-deep. "Back of the hot jungle of the coastal lowland lies a high and fertile plateau, covered with grass or open woods, and boasting a cool and healthful climate despite its proximity to the Equator a few hundred miles to the south. Farming is done with hoes only, for plows and draft animals are still unknown to Cameroon agricultural practice, at least in the interior.

"On the northern plains native sultans still exercise nominal rule, and their subjects are mostly Moslems. In Fomban, the Sultan Njoya maintains an excellent museum of tribal antiquities, one of the finest of its kind in the world. He dwells with 200 wives in a three-story palace surrounded by attractive gardens, and his capital is a trading center with neat, well-kept markets. "Still farther north is Ngaoundere, largest all-native city in the Cameroons, where the ruling sultan boasts an orchestra of 100 pieces, wears robes of white velvet encrusted with gold on state occasions, and has thousands of vassal horsemen at his command."

"From this city southward, for 500 miles, runs an automobile road to Yaounde, the seat of government of the French mandate.

"Driving along this road, a traveler may see primitive tribes who wear no clothes, but he probably will see no wild animals, though they are all around him. Lions, leopards, hyenas and baboons abound, but they keep well out of sight in the thick grass that often is six feet high.

"South of Yaounde, the Cameroons are almost all jungle—the home of gorillas, great herds of elephants, and little-known pygmy peoples. Here the natives live on a plane far below that of their neighbors on the healthier northern uplands. This is the region of the tsetse fly, which harbors sleeping sickness and spreads the disease by its bite. Authorities estimate that this plague has taken a million lives in the last 50 years. Other diseases, such as malaria, rickets, dengue and elephantiasis also are widespread in the region. The French authorities have established hospitals at Ayos, however, and are making important progress against the disease with a new medicine, Tryparsamide."

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

Sunday School Lesson

THE POWER OF JESUS OVER DEATH

International Sunday School Lesson for Feb. 21, 1937

Golden Text: "I am the resurrection and the life."—John 11:25.

The question which Job, despairing of life, asked, "If a man die, shall he live again?" is a question which man has been and is still asking. This question and the longings of the human race for some knowledge of the life hereafter are best and most satisfactorily answered in Jesus Christ, who is Lord of Life and the Master of Death.

On three recorded occasions Jesus demonstrated his power over death by restoring life to those who had died. The first was when, seeing a funeral procession and moved with compassion at the grief of the mother, he restored life to the son and gave him back to his mother. The second was when he raised from death the little daughter of Jairus and the third is the incident recorded in our lesson for this week.

Receiving a message from his beloved friends, Mary and Martha, that their brother, Lazarus, was seriously ill, Jesus deliberately tarried in Perea for two days before going to Bethony where they lived. He when he began his journey that Lazarus was dead and so informed his disciples, but in order that their faith might be strengthened he told them he was glad he had not been there before.

When Martha heard that Jesus was coming, she went to meet him and rebuked him for not having come sooner. Jesus sought to reassure her mind and strengthen her faith and then asked to see Mary. Soon Mary came and, falling at Jesus' feet, uttered the same words that Martha had uttered, "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died." Moved at the deep grief of the sisters and the wailing of the Jews who were with them, Jesus asked, "Where have ye laid him?" Touched to the very heart by the intense sorrow of his friends, Jesus displayed the human side of his dual personality and went with them.

They proceeded to the cave in which Lazarus had been placed four days before and, in spite of Martha's objection that decomposition had more than likely set in, Jesus commanded that the stone be rolled from the door. This done, Jesus offered a prayer of thanksgiving to God and as a means of informing those who stood by what he was about to do was in conformance with the will of God, he cried with a loud voice, "Lazarus, come forth." To the amazement of those who were there, Lazarus immediately responded and came forth from the tomb still bound in his grave clothes.

This is the last miracle which John records and has been called Christ's crowning miracle. It is his last miracle before the miracle of his own resurrection and, with this exception, is the climax of all the signs which were told to prove "that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God: and that believing ye may have life in his name."

Jesus had often demonstrated that he was the Lord of Life, when he healed the sick, the hat, the lame, restored sight to the blind and hearing to the deaf; fed the hungry and forgiven the sins of the penitents. By restoring life to those who had died, and by rising from the grave himself, he made it clear that death had no power over him and that he was Master of Death.

May we be sure of power over death? Jesus shows us the way to have this assurance when he says: "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall never die." Wilford T. Grenfell says: "As for the hereafter I know little or nothing about it; but that of not of any great importance, because I want it no more. I am very much in love with life; and I enjoy so much, I want as I can get of it. I want more of it after the incident called death. I believe that Jesus Christ has meant all in this mortal life that he claimed he would mean. When he says concerning the future, 'Because I live, ye shall live also, and he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live,' I simply believe it."

The New Pictures

"THE GOOD EARTH"
A marvelous production of Pearl Buck's literary masterpiece. It reputedly cost $3,000,000 to make and took four years to complete.

Pan Muni, as Wang the Chinese lover of land, and Luise Rainer as O-Lan, his wife, give splendid performances. Walter Connolly plays the gambling old uncle, Tity Loser is Lotus, the sing-song girl, Charley Grapewin is the old father, and Jessie Ralph is Cuckoo. Wang's sons are played by Roland Lui and Keye Luke.

"SINNER TAKE ALL"
This mystery movie was adapted from Whittman Chambers' "Murder for a Wanton."

It has many suspects and three murders. The head of the homicide squad is on the job, however, and strange to relate, seems to keep ahead of Bruce Cabot's detective work. Dorothy Kilgallen is a reporter and Margaret Lindsey is one of the family who receive threatening letters.

"CONFLICT"
This picture is based on Jack London's story, "The Abysmal Brute," and the scene is laid in the great outdoors of the old logging camp days.

John Wayne has the lead and Jean Rogers is the beautiful blond reporter who is trying to find out about a pugilistic racket. Tommy Bupp is very good as the orphan; Harry Wood as cast as Kelly, and Ward Bond as Carrigan.

"MEN ARE NOT GODS"
This is the story of a dramatic critic, played by A. E. Matthews, who writes a scathing review of an opening night of Othello.

Gertrude Lawrence begs the critic's secretary, Miriam Hopkins, not to run the review, as it will injure her husband, Edmund Davey, who played the part of Othello.

Mrs. Hopkins obligingly red-pencils the review and as a sequence loses her job and also grows to know Mr. Davey quite well.

"OFF TO THE RACES"
This is another adventure of the Jones family.

Jim Summerville has the role of a horse-loving uncle who visits the Jones family and persuades the young suitor of his niece to bet his slim bank account on a horse race.

Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Shirley Deane, Florence Roberts, George Ernest and the rest of the cast give nice performances in this simple little comedy.

THE FARM AND HOME

(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

Money that is spent without a reasonable return in satisfaction is money wasted. Why should money that might go for recreation, for instance, go for a light accidentally left burning all night, or for cheap dishes that were quickly broken?

A working library on home-making problems is easily built up. Bulletins obtainable free from the state agricultural college, articles from farm magazines, and good advertising material may give a start. Many persons like to make a scrapbook or keep a card catalog on home beautification, gardens, foods, etc.

To be 'healthy' means more than being physically fit. It includes mental reactions that are true, and having a wholesome, helpful attitude toward other people. Health depends on heredity, environment, but also upon a person's reactions to his environment.

To prevent food spoilage, watch the temperature, moisture and easy access of air where food is stored. Cellars and refrigerators may largely control temperature. Foods such as milk and tomatoes, which spoil easily because of their large amount of water, must be handled carefully.

When children have a regular schedule of household work they learn to plan for it and develop a sense of responsibility. As most people have to face difficult situations in life, it makes it easier if they have learned to carry their share of the load.

When laundering the baby's clothing, do it separately from the regular family laundry. A mild soap is preferable. Rinsing that is thorough removes all traces of the soap. Clothing of the older child may be washed with the regular laundry.

MRS GUNNELS DIES

Mrs. Maggie Collins Gunnels, age 77 years, died Saturday, Feb. 13, at the Paintsville hospital. She was a young woman of excellent character and a member of the Free Will Baptist Church. She is survived by her husband, Elvis Gunnels, and infant child, age 13 days. Also surviving her are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Collins, four brothers, John D. Collins, of Ivel, Ky.; William Collins, of Rock Castle, Ky.; Red Collins, of Ivel and Ingram Collins, of Martin, Ky., and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Ratliff, of Ivel, and Mrs. Sallie Atkins, of Betsy Layne.

Her body was taken from Paintsville to the home of her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gunnels, of Betsy Layne, where funeral rites were conducted Monday by Rev. Isaac Stratton, assisted by Rev. Pem Hunt. Burial was made in Alice Scalf cemetery on Mare Creek.

FOOD PRICES AND PROSPERITY

There is, we hear, some weeping and gnashing of teeth over the fact that the price of retail foods is advancing, having reached a six-year high as the New Year began.

While the general level was higher than at any time since March, 1931, it was only 34.6 per cent to the 1923-25 level. Encouraging, however, is the report that there has been a sustained increase in farm prices and that farmers in Floyd county and elsewhere, are actually receiving prices for what they sell that are above the level of prices for the things they buy.

What we don't know about economies will fill many large volumes but we are intensely interested in seeing farm prices go up, because of our conviction that, in the long run, prosperity of the people of the United States depends primarily upon the prosperity of the nation's farmers.

Meanwhile, what about advancing food prices? Well, that will have to be met by advancing wages to people who work by increased salaries to people supposed to work and, perhaps by eating less food on the part of those who neither work nor are supposed to work.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Interesting items of news that recently caught the attention of editors include:

The electrocution of a young woman in a large city, when she forgot that she had rigged up a live wire to protect her room from intruders.

Another was the fatal stabbing of a man attending a banquet, where more than 500 persons listened to a speaker, but were unable to tell how, when or by whom the man was murdered.

The third was the 'lucky mistake of a postman' who misread an address on a large parcel and delivered more than $300,000 worth of stolen jewelry to an honest family. The gems had been stolen in another city and were intended for a 'fence' but were promptly delivered to the police and eventually returned to the owner.

There are two carloads of students on the tour this year, one of them is placed under the supervision of Woodrow Allen, Caney Creek registrar; the other in charge of James Goble. Mr. Goble is the son of Mrs. Cecil Kendrick, of Prestonsburg. He recently left the University of Kentucky, where he is a student to assist with the Crusade.

THREE PROBATED; TWO SENTENCED

Continued from page one. Chickens valued over $2.00. Auction of the invalid mother. It was stated, Bailey, the third to be probated, had confessed guilty to the charge of receiving stolen goods, and was under a jury sentence.

In Monday's session, Judge Caudill passed sentences upon Joe E. Lam and Charlie Cox, who was tried here on a change of venue from the Wolfe county court, was convicted of murder by a Floyd county jury and given 21 years. Lam received a sentence of four years on a robbery charge.

Did Case, Nob's Cole and Harrison Ousley were not formally sentenced by Caudill pending their appeals. Bonds were set for Smith at $3,000, for Cole at $5,000, for Ousley, $2,000 and for Case, $1,000. Floyd county judges in the January term of court, returned verdicts with three years against Case on "Blackleg" charges; two years for Smith in connection with a robbery charge; two years against Ousley for shooting at without wounding; one year against Case on a grand larceny charge.

Other cases are pending further investigation by the parole agent, Judge Caudill said Monday. A parole agent from the state department is expected to be there before the beginning of the April term of circuit court to conduct further investigations.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR "UNCLE WILL" GEORGE ARE HELD SUNDAY

Funeral services were held Sunday on Little Paint Creek for William J. (Uncle Will) George, age 66 years. Formerly a resident of that section, he was living at Wheelwright at the time of his death, Saturday, Feb. 13.

"Uncle Will," as he was familiarly known, was the father of 10 children and had 11 grandchildren. His wife was formerly Emma Music.

Mr. George was converted in his youth and was a devout member of the Methodist Church.

Death came as a climax to an illness of long duration. He is survived by his widow; four daughters, Mrs. Icy Dalton, Ansted, W. Va.; Golda, Malissa and Margaret George, of Wheelwright; six sons, Frank, Albert, Irvin, Grant, Jack and Sam George, of Wheelwright, and one sister, Mrs. Macy Jane May, Portsmouth, O.

'CATS MEET FOUR TEAMS THIS WEEK

Four Games This Week: Meet Wheelwright Here Saturday

A batch of "cat" going "round-and-round" was witnessed here Monday night on the local gym floor as the Prestonsburg Blackcats, and the Maytown Wildcats engaged in a fast, slightly rough and close game. It ended 29 to 27 in favor of the Blackcats.

A number of local fans told the writer that the Maytown team displayed more sportsmanship than any team to appear here this season.

At the end of the first quarter, Maytown led the scoring 9 to 8; at the half-way period Maytown still led 15 to 14; at the end of the third stanza the Right Beaver boys increased their lead to 24 to 22, but the Blackcats turned the tables in the fourth quarter and came out of the meek winners by the score of 29-27.

The Blackcats were without the services of Craft, Carter and Patten. Prater uncorked an offensive and was high point man for P'burg team with nine points; Holbert, of Maytown, with nine points, was Maytown's high point man.

Wednesday night, Feb. 17, the Blackcat meet Belfry, there. On Thursday night, they meet Betsy Layne Bobcats, there. Saturday night see Wheelwright journey here to engage the Blackcats. The Cats go Sunday to McTowe'll to play the school team there between trains.

Twice America's Economy Champion

ONCE CHAMPION—a notable achievement . . . TWICE CHAMPION—absolute proof of absolute superiority. Over mountain and desert, through burning heat and drifting snow, for two years running a Graham Supercharger has won the official U. S. Economy Championship in the 352-mile Gilmore-Yosemite Economy Sweepstakes. This year, a Graham Cavalier finished second . . . Open to all stock cars, certified by the American Automobile Association, no championship is so bitterly contested as the Gilmore-Yosemite Economy title . . . Winning the title with a mark of 53.4 ton miles per gallon and 23.95 actual miles per gallon, a Graham Supercharger, for two years straight, defeated 20 or more cars representing nearly every American manufacturer—for two years straight, demonstrated its sole right to the title, "America's Economy Champion" . . . Call today for your sample ride in duplicates of these famous national champions. Prove to yourself the truth of the great Graham Supercharger slogan, "—faster and faster on a gallon of gasoline than any car in America."

RIDING BEHIND

When riding horseback was the chief method of getting anywhere, it often fell to the lot of a younger brother or sister to ride behind an older brother or other member of the family. When one was very small, this was a thrilling experience; but after one could ride alone, it was nothing short of insult. His brother, with a scant two or three years start ahead of you, would be given the chief place in the saddle; you would have to cling on in your misery or stay at home. And when you got to the country store or to church, you had all the staring eyes turned in your direction. Big brother frequently did something to call attention to helpless childishness, hoping thereby to glorify his own mature size and ways. If the saddle were one with a horn on it after the Texas fashion, and brand new, it was all the more humiliating to be seated behind it rather than on it. Though greatly experienced, I still do not know the proper way to hold on while riding behind. When I got scared and grabbed my brother under the arms, I was threatened with annihilation; when I held on to the saddle, he accused me of pinching him. I felt I would surely fall if I did not hold to something. What I wanted was to reassure myself occasionally by placing my hands on the horn of the saddle the way the big boys did.

Riding behind when the horse is smooth-gaited is not so bad; a hard-gaited horse, the kind we used to say could trot all day in the shade of a tree, just about ruined us. The big boy in the saddle could crook his legs and take out some of the jolts; our dangling legs were not braced against anything to relieve the jolt. The worst thing the rider-behind could experience was a horse-race, in which a big brother desired to beat all the other boys. Though I never knew any boy to get killed in such races, I have always feared for the little fellows tightly clinging regardless of the rules, to the wild horseman in the saddle. Many a farm boy who has never been to sea has experienced all the pitches and tosses that a ship can make.

Pillions had disappeared before our time, I suppose, butadies still often rode behind, especially young girls who accompanied their fathers to the country store. The pillion had been replaced by an ordinary saddle blanket, but I think that the girl who rode behind showed fine horsemanship in being able to stay on. The rules about holding to the prominent pommel in the saddle seem not to have obtained here, as something had to be allowed for womanly weakness. The fine old custom of having the young lady ride behind her swain was gone before our time, but I would like to have seen it; I presume that is where back-seat driving got started.

Sarah Ann's Cooking Class

Years ago only the cooks of royalty and the very wealthy were skilled in the art of cooking. The great crowd of people knew only one way in which to prepare their plain fare. Today, the modern housekeeper, with a little trouble, can learn the new methods of making the everyday food more attractive and beneficial. Get your family interested in some new dishes; there is nothing like interest and zest for the jaded appetite.

Creamed Veal in Potato Border

7 or 8 medium Irish potatoes.
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg, well beaten
1 tablespoon butter
1-2 cup milk
2 cups cooked diced veal
1 cup thick white sauce
Parsley—paprika
Buttered carrots — 2 small ones for each serving
Pare and boil the potatoes, drain and mash. Add the milk, egg, salt and butter. Whip until smooth and fluffy. Form a circular border of the mashed potatoes on a well-oiled baking sheet, using a pastry tube for this purpose. Brown in a very hot oven. Transfer by sections to a very large platter. Fill the center with the veal which has been combined with the well seasoned white sauce and thoroughly heated. Garnish with a dash of paprika, carrots and parsley.

Chicken with Tomato Sauce

1 tablespoon flour
1 frying size chicken
1 cup tomato juice
1 small onion
1-2 teaspoon chili powder
Salt and black pepper

1 large can tomatoes
1 egg, salt, butter
Paprika and red pepper

Salmagundi Toast

1 pound of Hamburger
2 tablespoons butter
1 can vegetable soup
1 can of thick gravy or white sauce

Spinach Dumplings

1 egg, 1-4 cup water
2 cups flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 cups hot finely chopped spinach
Beat egg until very light. Add water and mix well. Add flour, salt and baking powder and mix thoroughly. Roll dough thin and cut into squares. Place a tablespoon of well seasoned spinach in center, fold dough over, pinch ends together. Drop in boiling, salted water with 1 onion, sliced, cover and cook 15 minutes. Serve with roast pork and scalloped tomatoes.

Shirred Eggs With Chicken Livers

Clean and separate livers and cut in pieces. Sauté in a little butter until tender. Do not cook too long. Season with salt and pepper. Grease rameskins and put a layer of liver in the bottom. Break an egg carefully into each one. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and put a small piece of butter on top. Bake in an oven 325 deg. until eggs are set but not hard.

Creole Sandwiches

Cream 4 tablespoons of butter. Add 1-2 teaspoon finely minced onion. 1-2 cup finely flaked canned shrimp, 1 teaspoon of lemon juice, 1-2 teaspoon prepared mustard and 2 tablespoons finely chopped olives. Use as a filling for white or Graham bread.

4-H FARM ACCOUNTING PRIZES TOTAL $8,500; MUST OPEN BOOKS SOON

Cash prizes of $5 to $25 will be awarded 800 boys and girls making the best records in the 1937 National 4-H Farm Accounting Contest, announces the national committee on Boys and Girls Club Work. Five other contestants whose record books score highest will receive merchandise prizes valued at $100 to $500.

Winners of the 805 prizes, which total $8,500, will be selected by the state and federal extension specialists. All private information in the records will be held confidential and records returned to owners after judging.

Parents are urged to aid contestants whose work in the past three contests has shown how to cut costs and increase profits. Blank record books and rules and prize list can be obtained through local leaders or County Agent S. L. Isbell. Believing that an accurate knowledge of costs is necessary to good farm management, and desiring to continue its aid to 4-H club training, the contest is sponsored and all prizes are provided by the International Harvester Company.

Every bonafide club member is eligible to compete in this contest and no fees or obligations of any kind are incurred. Records must run for a period of 12 consecutive months between January 1, 1937, and February 28, 1938, and contestants are urged to obtain their record books at once in order to collect the required data while it is still warm.

JANUARY PLACEMENTS NRS EXCEED THAT OF DECEMBER, LAST YEAR

During January 1,893 placements were made in private employment in Kentucky by the National Reemployment Service, according to Myer Freyman, state director. The report is incomplete in that final reports from the Paducah district office due to flood conditions were not filed with the state office.

While this figure fell short of the record number of 4,222 private job placements set in December, it far exceeded private employment activities for the corresponding months of the three previous years: a 300 per cent increase over last January, 123 per cent above January 1935 and 44 per cent over the same month of 1934.

January also marked the second successive month that private placements exceeded placements on public works jobs which numbered 1762 for the month.

Of the total 3,655 job placements made in the state, 2,964 were men and 691 were women; 316 of the placements made were veterans.

Other activities of the Service for the month included the registration of 3,948 new applicants of which 135 were veterans; 5,141 renewals of applications and 10,299 reinterviews; 4,713 referrals of persons to job openings were made in effecting the 3,655 placements. Field representatives made 2,015 employer visits of which 1,967 were to private employers. The five of those actively seeking work through the National Reemployment Service in Kentucky numbered 176,729 at the close of the month as compared to 179,186 as of December 31. The number represented a marked decrease as compared to the January 1936 figure of 232,146.

Activities for Pikeville district show: Total placements, 277; private placements, 181; public placements, 96; new applications received, 591. Active file (those seeking work through NRS offices, 25,305.

Bayer Aspirin acts to fight fever, and the aches and pains of a cold. Relief comes quickly. Ask your druggist for genuine BAYER ASPIRIN by its full name — not the name "aspirin" alone.

Multiplication Is the Way of Life and Love

We are all either stretching or shrinking. Our world, home, work, business is becoming bigger or less. None can stop still. A business that does not grow ceases to pay dividends; a shopkeeper that does not continue to get new customers may well shut shop. A man who does not accumulate ideas and visions is donning old age, however few years he has lived, for age is not a matter of years. The woman with no friends cannot live like the woman with a large circle of friends. By adding there is growth; but subtracting there is death and stagnation.

Here's that Fast "Phillips" Way

To Alkalize Stomach Quickly

On all sides, people are learning that the way to gain almost incredibly quick relief, from stomach condition arising from overacidity, is to alkalinize the stomach quickly with Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

You take either two teaspoons of the liquid Phillips' after meals; or two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Almost instantly "acid indigestion" goes, gas from hyperacidity, "acid-headaches"—from over-indulgence in food or smoking—and nausea are relieved.

Try this Phillips' way if you have any acid stomach upsets. You will be surprised at results. Get either the liquid "Phillips" or the remarkable, new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Only 25¢ for a big box of tablets at drug stores.

Mother of Our First President

THE girl who was to become the mother of George Washington was something of a belle in her native colony, Virginia. Mary Ball, descended from a good English family, was called "the rose of Epping Forest" in her girlhood, Epping Forest being the name of the Ball homestead. Orphaned early, she had as her guardian George Eskridge, a wealthy Virginia planter.

At twenty-two, Mary Ball married (on March 6, 1730) Augustine Washington, then a widower with two little boys. Her first child she named George after her old family friend. Five other children were born of this marriage, four of whom survived. When Augustine Washington died, she was left with a brood of youngsters to care for. George was then only eleven. Fortunately, however, states a writer in the Indianapolis News, the husband had provided for them amply.

George Washington was still a young boy when he became possessed of a great desire to be a midshipman. His mother had been half-hearted about this plan at all times, but finally (so the story goes) when his sea-chest was being carried down to the wharf by a porter, she refused to let him go. He accepted her decision with good grace, and devoted himself to surveying instead. His activities in the next years often took him far away from her and gradually prepared him for the great role he was to play in American history.

Mary Ball Washington was sixty-eight when the revolution began. Since communication was then so primitive, she often did not know for months at a time whether her son was alive or dead. Yet she maintained outward calm and courage. One of her sayings was, "The mothers and wives of brave men must be brave women." The members of her household knew, though, that every day she went off by herself with her Bible to a quiet spot called Meditation Rock.

At last Cornwallis surrendered in 1781 and the revolution was won. Ever mindful of his mother's anxiety for him, Washington sent off a courier at once to bear her the news.

Mary Ball Washington lived to be over eighty, mentally keen and unfailingly cheerful. She died in 1789, the year her son was elected first President of the United States.

Washington at 25

WHEN George Washington sat for this rare miniature, he was only twenty-five but he was already well on the way toward becoming Virginia's first citizen. His marriage to Martha, the wealthy widow of Daniel Custis, in 1759 and the death of his half brother, Lawrence, made George at twenty-nine perhaps the richest man in Virginia and certainly one of the richest in America. But before that—in his early twenties—he had made his mark as a soldier who could combine reckless courage with thoughtful purpose.

SYNOPSIS

Kezia Marsh, pretty, selfish and twenty, arrives home in Corinth from school and is met by her older brother, Hugh. He drives her to the Marsh home where her widowed mother, Fluvanna, a warm-hearted, self-sacrificing and understanding soul, welcomes her. Kezia's sister, Margery, plump and matronly with the care of three children, is at lunch with them. Hugh's wife, Dorrie, has pleaded a previous engagement. On the way back to his job at the steel plant founded by one of his forebears, Hugh passes Doc Hiller, a boyhood friend whom he no longer sees frequently because of Dorrie's antipathy. Fluvanna Marsh wakes the next morning from a dream about her late husband, Jim, whose unstable character she fears Kezia has inherited. Soon Ellen Pendleton comes over. She is an artificially inclined girl who is a distant niece of Fluvanna's and a favorite of Hugh's. She happily tells Fluvanna she has become engaged to Jerry Purdie. Ellen fears that her father and mother, Gavin and Lizzie, will not approve the match. Hugh and Dorrie go out to the Freeland Farms to dance with their friends, Cun and Joan Whitney. Whitney, who has been out of work, announces that he has landed a new position. They see Ellen Pendleton and Jerry Purdie. Cun and Dorrie dance together and then disappear for a while. Darning with Joan, Hugh is amazed to find her in tears. Apparently she has some secret worry over her husband, Cun. Hugh sees Kezia accompanied by a young man. When Ellen and Jerry speak about their engagement to Ellen's parents, Lizzie is disagreeable until Jerry sympathizes with her imagined ailments. Gavin, a banker, is cold to Jerry's proposal. While Lizzie unbends slightly, the matter is left pending.

"It's a shame when a woman is at the age when she can enjoy life most," continued Jerry, "and she is taken with something ghastly like that! My aunt was a wonderful looking woman too." He hitched his chair an inch or so nearer Lizzie, looked into her face with sympathy and interest.

Pale fires lit in her eyes, a revival of vanity. "Wonderful? . . . Perhaps not now, but you should see my pictures taken when I was Ellen's age! I remember when I was young and lived in Ridley, Mr. Parkinson—later he became the lumber capitalist out west somewhere, Oregon, I think—used to call me the Rose of Ridley! . . . You remember that, don't you, Gavin?"

"Uh-mm."

"Ellen has something of my look—at times."

"A girl is usually indebted to her mother for her charm."

Lizzie laughed and tapped him with her eyeglasses. "I see why my girl was so taken with you!" The ice in her voice which had broken up with mention of her illness, now became a fluid running quantity, light, even playful. "But, seriously speaking, we feel our child is too young to think of getting married."

"Working?" asked Gavin in the first pause.

"I have a job as storekeeper at the Arrow Steel Works," Jerry answered.

"H'much?"

"Thirty-five a week."

His fist at his lip, Gavin shook his head. "N'much."

"No, but I have hopes of getting something better. A fellow has to start at the bottom in the steel business. I intend to go to the school for salesmen if I can get in."

Gavin looked at him through his thick-lensed glasses. "Keep a car?"

"A sort of one." Jerry grinned.

Gavin glanced at Jerry's suit meaningly. He had computed its cost and suspected Jerry of extravagant taste in clothes. Lizzie shook her head at him. "Settle it again—no hurry," he muttered. He left the room precipitously and did not return.

Lizzie changed to a more comfortable chair, and drawn by Jerry's deferential attention, recounted in a tangential flow stories of her activities before she had been stricken, of her two sons, Caleb and Gavin Junior, the trouble she had keeping competent help, the oriental rugs she had bought, and the hotels she had found most agreeable in Atlantic City.

It was almost twelve when she rose to go upstairs. She even shook hands with Jerry cordially. "Be patient," she admonished them. "I'll see what I can do with her father."

Ellen went to the front steps with Jerry. "You ruinous man," she whispered, "captivating Mother like that!"

"I took your cue. You said 'Be nice to her' and I followed instructions."

She kissed him. "We might sit here on the steps while you smoke a cigarette."

"A cigarette? How about two?"

"Make it two," she answered laughing. She was proud, hopeful, unutterably happy.

The first Hugh Pendleton had come out from Connecticut in the year 1802, made his way with horses and an ox team over the hazardous mountain roads, and taken up land along the Penachang Valley in Ohio. He built a cabin near the stream and traded with the few settlers and the wandering bands of Indians. He sent for his family, his wife, with three small children, and his two brothers. Hugh started a store which flourished as the settlement grew into a village. He made trips to Pittsburgh by boat for supplies and bartered or sold, according to the need of the individual. Presently the word traveled about that two settlers, Wyant and Nash, had erected a blast furnace on the shore of the river a few miles above the settlement. They turned out stoves, kettles and castings, crude in appearance, but serviceable.

Hugh's trips to Pittsburgh had awakened his interest in the need for iron in a new community, and a nebulous idea took form as he weighed out coffee and tea and flour. He talked of it to his sons, Hugh and Caleb and Silas, and fired their youthful imaginations.

Wyant died and Nash moved on to Indiana, abandoning the simple furnace, while Hugh figured and planned and explained to his sons.

The Pendleton boys went into partnership when they grew up, started another furnace. By the middle forties, Hugh Junior, Caleb and Silas Pendleton were the owners of a successful iron works which employed eighteen hundred men.

The Pendletons intermarried with the Woods, the Renshaws, the Mofatts, the Debarrys, newcomers from Virginia, the east and England, until in the nineteen thirties the relationships would have taken a genealogical expert to unravel. The society of the town was a spider-web of distant cousinships turning up at unexpected places. Much of the leadership of old Hugh Pendleton had descended to the men of the family; the women had grace and fastidiousness. Alien blood mingled with theirs, warm blood, cold blood, but something racial persisted.

Fluvanna was the great-granddaughter of the first Hugh, descending through Hugh, his son. Her father had been Ely Pendleton, and she his only child—a swaying, anemone creature, fine-boned as most of the Pendleton women were. Light brown hair grew back from a curving hairline; the tracery of the brows above full eyelids might have been done by a pencil stroke; the nose was sensitive; the mouth curved and wistful.

Although James Marsh had been welcomed among them as a cousin of the Clements, there was not a great deal of approval of the marriage of James and Fluvanna. There were local grievances—families whose sons had yearned for Fluvanna and been passed over. Although pride in clothes was a Pendleton credo, James was thought to lean toward too great an elegance in dress. His handsome bearing was no novelty; many of the men had that; they suspected his grace, his flattery, as qualities which did not go with the solid virtues of monogamy. As the years went by, the older ones shook their heads oracularly as reports of his irregularities came in—gambling, drinking, neglecting his business, Ely Pendleton looking grim and Fluvanna, gay in company, but when off guard, seeming frightened and distraught.

Ely Pendleton died suddenly, and Fluvanna and her family moved into the old house with her mother who was an invalid. A year or two of comparative ease and prosperity followed. James was thoughtful toward the suffering mother; debts were paid; the feverish prosperity of the War was on. James made money in the stock market and it erased the galling sense of obligation he had left when old Ely, stern-browed, thin-lipped, had met his pressing deficits. Mrs. Pendleton died just after Armistice day, and James was very kind that winter.

Then business took a holiday, stocks slumped, and Fluvanna began a gradual parting with the income her father had left in trust for her. Her mother's money had been left to her unconditionally, and that went in appalling amounts to cover the very good securities, sure to hit a hundred and ten, which James had bought on margin.

The more James lost, the more he drank, the oftener he was seen morose and truculent, leaning over his cards late at night, playing with men who were luckier than he. Late one afternoon, the town rang with the news that he had killed himself.
