

COUNTY OFFICIALS MUST FINGERPRINT EVERY PRISONER

Probated Defendants Must Be Fingerprinted, Avers
Circuit Judge

FAR REACHING EDICT

Every person arrested in Floyd county, no matter for what offense, will have to be fingerprinted, Circuit Judge John W. Caudill announced Wednesday after receiving a letter from J. M. Watters, director of Kentucky's Division of Correction. This far-reaching edict applies to everyone arrested in the future, to probated defendants, and to prisoners now in jail.

All probated defendants are now being notified by Probation Officer R. W. Shelton to meet him at the courthouse to be fingerprinted at 9 a. m. Tuesday, June 8.

Edict is Legal

To the letter received by Judge Caudill was attached a pamphlet from the Attorney General's office citing Kentucky statutes proving the fingerprinting edict to be legal.

Fingerprint Drunks

Henceforth all persons arrested, even for drunkenness, by a sheriff, constable, policeman, or any arresting officer, are requested to be fingerprinted. The prints will then be filed in the Welfare Department's office, Frankfort.

The text of the letter to Judge Caudill follows:
Judge J. W. Caudill,
Prestonsburg, Ky.

Dear Judge Caudill: Kindly read the enclosed Attorney General's opinion.

I hope you will require all arresting officers to take fingerprints of all persons arrested.

Equipment and instructions will be furnished free of charge upon request.

Very respectfully,

J. M. WATTERS, Director
Division of Correction.

KIWANIANS FETE RAILROAD GUESTS

Hudson, Railway Official, Introduced to Club by Lon S. Moles

The Chesapeake & Ohio lines and other Kentucky railroads held a "field day" in the Big Sandy territory May 21. At noon Z. Wel's, counsel for the Chesapeake & Ohio lines and chairman for the Seventh District for the Kentucky Railroad Association, was host to some 20 members from various counties which included all Eastern Kentucky.

At this meeting there was a cross-section of representation including ranking railroad officials, attorneys and general agents who make up the membership of the district organization. Railroad problems were discussed, luncheon served at the Hotel Herald, Paintsville, the meeting extending until 3 p. m. with Mr. Gardner C. Hudson, executive secretary of the association, presiding.

At the close of this meeting all present were invited to attend the Kiwanis dinner at the Valley Inn, Prestonsburg, where Mr. Hudson was guest speaker of the evening, this being the railroad program for the year which had been assigned to Lon S. Moles, local agent for the Chesapeake & Ohio lines and secretary. Continued on page four

FLOYD SCHOOL CENSUS SHOWS 16,500 NAMES; 685 ARE NAMED HALL

Information gleaned from files of the census report of Floyd county schools compiled by Leonard Martin and Stanley Combs, shows that of the report's total of 16,500 names, 685 are Halls. There are 10 Bill Halls, nine Junior Halls and eight Charlie Halls. Other figures show that workers Martin and Combs visited 2,073 homes during the school term. Each month they showed, there was an average increase of 75 in the county's schools. Absences investigated numbered 3,997.

Statistics also revealed that this year's school enrollment topped that of last year by 3,500. Wheelwright's color school, with an enrollment of 99, led all other schools in attendance.

ANNUAL BUDGET SET AT $181,114.63 BY FISCAL COURT

Levy Rate Is Established for Prestonsburg's Graded
School District

The budget for 1937-38 for Floyd county was set at $181,114.63 by the Floyd fiscal court which met May 20. Main expenditures of this amount will be $17,000 for the construction of roads, $20,461.55 for courthouse expenses, and $12,700 for the payment of outstanding warrants.

Other business conducted by the court included approving of the levy for the Prestonsburg graded school. It was ordered that upon each $100 valuation on both real and personal property there be levied $1.50 for general expenses, and a levy of $.10 for the sinking fund. The court also set a levy of $2.00 upon each male citizen in the county over the age of 21, not exempted by law.

The court approved the purchase of S. G. Rice's interest in the contract for the construction of a bridge at Banner by Riley Hall, of Allen, N. Hall, one of the original bidders with Rice, and Riley Hall executed a fidelity bond of $25,000 with W. L. Stumbo, Lackey; J. B. Meade, Prestonsburg; Dave Conn, Banner, and K. F. Hall as sureties. Construction to begin immediately.

HISTORY PUPILS OF BOTH SCHOOLS HAVE WON MEDALS

A medal awarded by the Prestonsburg Daughters of the American Revolution for the senior high school student most proficient in American history will be given to Sue Martha Ransdell during commencement exercises June 1. Jack Allen, high school instructor, announced Thursday. Troy Shepherd was winner of second place.

Already the D. A. R. has presented a medal to Margerilla Branham, junior high school student for her highest score in American history. The medal was presented by Mrs. Everett Sowards, who was introduced by Mrs. Grace D. Ford. Sara Clay Stephens, another junior high school student won the medal in the music essay contest, offered by Mrs. Kathryn Stumbo Frazier. It was presented by Miss Anna Martin, principal of the graded school.

RANSELL HEADS ASHLAND MEET

Director of Floyd Health Department is President of Big Sandy Group

Marvin Ransdell, M. D., director of the Floyd county health department, presided at a meeting of the Big Sandy Public Health Group at the city hall in Ashland Tuesday. Dr. Ransdell, the group's president, opened the meeting with his introductory remarks about the problems of teacher education in relation to the school child.

He stressed the importance of cooperation between health departments and teachers for an efficient public health program. Before his departure for Ashland, Dr. Ransdell said that the meetings of the health group to discuss problems of public health common to all were held every other month at the city hall in Ashland. "The Big Sandy Health Group," he said, "is composed of the personnel of the health departments of 10 Eastern Kentucky Counties. At these meetings the counties of Boyd, Lawrence, Greenup, Elliott, Rowan, Magoffin, Johnson, Martin and Floyd are represented."

Tuesday's program in Ashland consisted of speeches by various doctors, health officers, nurses, sanitary instructors, and a round table discussion by the group.

FORMER FLOYD JUDGE HURT WHILE FLOWING

A run-away team caused former Floyd county Judge Ed Hill, now living on a farm near Westerville, O., to suffer a broken collar bone while plowing, his daughter, Mrs. E. R. Clarke, of Prestonsburg, stated Monday. Mr. Hill is receiving medical treatment at his Ohio home.

NEW FILING SYSTEM STARTED BY CLERK

A new system for filing whereby a doublecheck is maintained upon every Floyd county voter who has registered has been inaugurated by County Clerk A. B. Meade in his office. Master binders contain data about each voter who has registered in the county's various precincts.

Caudill Gives Reasons For Tour and Free Day

Speaking of the Good Will tour planned by Floyd county merchants and civic clubs for May 31, Judge John W. Caudill, president of the Kiwanis club, said Wednesday: "With this tour we are trying to get people to realize that Prestonsburg is the capital of this county and here we have merchants, lawyers and doctors. Our citizens do not have to go to other counties for their 'ills and needs.'"

Featuring free movies all day at the Unique Theatre, May 31 is hailed as the day for all Floyd countians to come to their county seat. A motorcade of 30 cars will tour both Right and Left Beaver and the lower portion of the county extending personal invitations to citizens.

Cooperating with the various clubs, business men and men and merchants are combining to make the occasion a premier event. Speakers will be featured at the courthouse, special attention and

MRS. NUNNERY DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Host of Friends and Relatives Attend Funeral Rites at M. E. Church, South

After a lingering illness death came to Mrs. Octavia Brown Nunnery, 41 years old, prominent Prestonsburg church woman, at her home here Friday, May 21. The funeral, held at the Methodist Church, was attended by a host of relatives and friends, who held Mrs. Nunnery in high esteem.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Brown, Mrs. Nunnery was born on Johns Creek Nov. 13, 1895. Her marriage to James H. Nunnery occurred April 22, 1915. Mrs. Nunnery soon became a member of the Pilgrim Holiness Church, where her consecrated Christian life became an inspiration to many.

She is survived by her husband, James H. Nunnery; four daughters, Mrs. Ernest Compton, Misses Eula Mae, Pauline, and Avelle Nunnery; by two sisters, Mrs. Robert Damron and Mrs. Arnold Compton; by one brother, W. H. Brown, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Brown, all of this city.

Ministers officiating at the funeral services were: the Rev. Carpenter, who gave the address; the Rev. Redding, scripture; the Rev. Steele, who read the obituary, and the Rev. Malmberg, who delivered the prayer. Burial was made in the Porter cemetery under the direction of E. P. Arnold.

Active pallbearers were: J. O. Carter, Heber Burke, Sam Hale, C. R. Stone, Harry R. Burke, C. B. Weddington, E. E. Clark, James Roark, J. S. Kelly, E. L. Hobson, Gilbert Crabtree and W. M. Compton.

BANKS-BURCHETT

Announcement was made this week of the recent marriage of Miss Joan Banks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Banks, of Water Gap, this county, to Beverly Burchett, son of Mrs. Lou Burchett, of this city. The ceremony was performed at Greenup by Judge J. R. Shepherd. Both of these young people are former students of Prestonsburg high school.

FLOYD HUNTERS AND FARMERS ARE INVITED TO MEET

Floyd county sportsmen are invited to attend the three day meet of the Kentucky Sportsmen's league to be held in Pikeville May 28, 29 and 30. Registration will take place in the Hotel Hatcher.

Cumulating with a muzzle-loading rifle contest May 30, other featured events will be the coon and fox hunt May 28, and the bait-casting contest and dance May 29. Among those who will give addresses on wild life and forest and soil conservation are W. R. Allen, University of Kentucky zoology professor; Major James Brown, director of game and fish division, and Dr. O. W. Thompson, the league's president.

Dr. Wheeler, lecturer of the U. S. Forest Service, will be in Pikeville by special request of the league. His talk and pictures cover game, fish, scenery, and will show how Kentucky is suffering more from forest denudation than any other state of equal size on the Mississippi drainage basin.

FLOYD'S 4-H CLUBS COMPETE IN EVENTS DURING RALLY DAY

Winners Will Go to State Meet in Lexington

Teams from Floyd county's various 4-H clubs competed in five different contests during Rally Day, May 20, at the Prestonsburg gymnasium to determine winners eligible for the Junior Week championship meet which will be held in Lexington June 7-12. Contests in home practice, a style show, clothing judging, farm practice and good health featured the day's events. Betsy Layne team, composed of Ruby Stratton and Ada B. Boyd, won first place in the home practice event, with Prestonsburg placing second. The Prestonsburg team was composed of Shirleen Branham and Helen Steele. The washing of women garments was the subject of the contest.

Among the eight entrants for the style show and clothing judging contests, Ruby Stratton, of Betsy Layne, and Nora Spears won first places respectively.

In the farm practice demonstration, Little Paint's team, composed of Clyde music and William Baldrige, placed first, the subject of their demonstration being treating hens for lice and mites. The Bull Creek team of Curtis Marix and Burton Marshall placed second.

Entrants in the health contest were Burkland Marshall, Clarence Crisp, Zeon Warix, Carmel Clark, Clifford Marshall, Carl Rabinette and Curtis Warix. In this event 13-year-old Clifford Marshall was given first place but was Continued on page five

OPPENHEIMER-CLARKE

Miss Ruby Oppenheimer attractive Prestonsburg high school graduate, was recently married to Mr. Arnold Clarke, of Prestonsburg, at the home of Rev. John Stepp, in Inez, Ky.

Mrs. Clarke is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Oppenheimer, of this city. Mr. Clarke, county employe, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Clarke, of Prestonsburg. The young couple are making their home in Prestonsburg.

FEW SENTENCES GIVEN THIS TERM OF CIRCUIT COURT

Jack Hatfield, Holder of Two Life Sentences, Taken to Begin "Doing Time"

ENDS SATURDAY

Described by courthouse officials as being one of the "best" terms of circuit court since the election of Judge John W. Caudill, the current term, which began April 1, ends Saturday with records showing that only 15 men have drawn penitentiary sentences. The majority of these were for one and two years; only two men drew life sentences.

Jack Hatfield, who was sentenced for two years on a charge of storehouse breaking, received an additional sentence of life under the habitual criminal act. Hatfield had already been sentenced to life by the Knott circuit court at Hindman, making for him the unique record of two lifetime sentences and one two-year sentence.

Others Sentenced

John Parsons was found guilty of wilful murder and drew the only other life sentence given at this term of court. Others receiving sentences were: Troy Cole, Newt Cole and Albert Marshall, all receiving two year sentences as members of the famed Blackleg gang charged with syndicalism. Wilburn Ross was sentenced to one year for grand larceny. Eugene Maynard, manslaughter, five years; Ed Hicks, manslaughter, two years; Leonard Samons, storehouse breaking, one year; Arnold Patton, storehouse breaking, one year; Harmon Huff, storehouse breaking, one year; Tom Fitzpatrick, cutting and wounding with intent to kill, two years; Emmett Tackett, manslaughter, two years, and James Sturgill, one year for seduction. PRE-GRADUATION EVENTS ANNOUNCED

Class Night, Banquet, Baccalaureate Sermon To Be Held

School instructors, Thursday announced the scheduled high school events which will culminate with the graduation of 55 seniors at the commencement exercises June 1, in the Prestonsburg gymnasium.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by the Rev. G. W. Redding at the Methodist Church, 8 p. m., Sunday. Music will be furnished by the girls' glee club. The junior-senior banquet will be served by the Woman's Missionary Society Monday evening at the Methodist Church.

Class Night with various exercises and songs will be held Monday night in the Prestonsburg gymnasium. The valedictorian is Chester Patton and James Prater is salutatorian. Students will wear formal attire.

The coming events have already been prefaced by the Senior Day picnic at Broke Leg Falls in Morgan county Wednesday. The trip was taken in the school bus and was chaperoned by Miss Minnie Grace Harris and Richard Greenwell, high school instructors.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

The Gabble of Tourists.

GRAND CANYON, ARIZ.—It gets on your nerves to stand on the rim of this scenic wonder and hear each successive tourist say, "Well, if any artist painted it just as it is nobody would believe it!"

After I heard 174 separate and distinct tourists repeat the above it got on my nerves and I sought surcease far from the maddening round-tripper, hoping to escape the commonplace babbling of eastern sight-seers and revel in the salty humor of the unspoiled West. And I ran into a native who said, with the cute air of having just thought it up, "Yes, sir, I never felt better or had less."

Irvin S. Cobb

And I encountered a gentleman who in parting called out, "Say, kid, don't take in any wooden nickels." And then, speaking of someone else, remarked, "If I never see that guy again it'll be too soon."

Renaming Hors d'Oeuvres.

THE controversy over giving a more American name to hors d'oeuvres—which some cannot pronounce and none can digest—rages up and down the land. What Sam Blythe, that sterling eater, calls these alleged appetizers you couldn't print in a family newspaper, Sam's idea of a before-dinner snack being a baked ham. A sturdy Texas congressman calls them doo-dabs.

But if I were living abroad again, I know what I'd call them. When you behold the array of this and that, as served at the beginning of luncheon in the average table d'hôte restaurant over there, and especially in France, you are gazing upon what discriminating customers left on their plates at supper the night before.

Scrambled Cooking.

DOWN below Flagstaff, Ariz., but somewhat to the eastward, in a picturesque city which saddles the international boundary, I found a unique condition.

Food available is across the Mexican line at a restaurant owned by a Greek gentleman with a Chinese cook in the kitchen. But the best Mexican cookery is done well over on the American side by a German woman whose husband is an Italian.

So our own native-born citizens, when hungry for the typical dishes of New England or Dixie, journey beyond the border patrols, passing on their way many of their Spanish-speaking neighbors bound four miles northward for a bit of superior tamales and the more inflammatory brands of chili.

Dueling a la Europe

UNTIL Dr. Franz Sarga, the dueling husband of Budapest, really serves one of his enemies en brochette, as it were, instead of just trimming off hangnails and side whiskers, I decline to get worked up. You remember the Doc? He set out to carve everybody in Hungary who'd snooted his lady wife and found himself booked to take on quite a large club membership. But so far he hasn't done much more damage than a careless chiropodist could.

Once, in Paris, I was invited to a duel. I couldn't go, having a prior engagement to attend the World war, which was going on at that time, so I sent a substitute.

He reported that after the principals exchanged shots without peril, except to some sparrows passing overhead, all hands rushed together, entwining in a sort of true-love knot.

The Forgotten Man.

THOSE whose memories stretch that far back into political antiquity may recall the ancient days that seem so whimsically old-fashioned now, when our present President was running the first time on a platform which, by general consent, was laughed off immediately following election. He promised then to do something for the forgotten man. Remarks were also passed about balancing the budget right away. We needn't go into that.

But the forgotten man figured extensively in the campaign. Then, for awhile, popular interest in him seemed to languish. So many new issues came up suddenly, some, like dyspepsia symptoms, being but temporary annoyances, and some which lingered on and abide with us yet, including Mr. John L. Lewis, the well-known settee.

And now, after these five changeable, crowded years, we have solved the mystery—we know who the forgotten man is. The name is Tugwell, spelled as spoken, but you can pronounce it "Landon" and get practically the same general results.

"Oh, Mother," he sighed. His eyes were tearless, but the aching pain was released. Her arms folded around him; her cheek lay against his hair; they were close in that mystic bond of mother and son.

"It's hard, Hugh."

"I'm glad you know." He groped to his feet, stood by the mantel. "Don't grieve too much. I have to get myself together—meet it. It has happened to quite a few others . . . they've lived through it."

"It isn't hopeless? Tell me about it, for while I saw you getting haggard and silent, it wasn't until Dorrie came this week that I realized—"

"Did she speak of it?"

She shook her head. "I only knew something is very wrong. I met Lizzie Pendleton this week in a department store. She said, 'Too bad about Hugh and Dorrie.' I asked her what she meant, and she gave me an odd look, and said she supposed I knew—and swept away. I pieced it together."

He began to pace the room. Then he told her the story, or as little as he could, minimizing, suppressing, scanting details. "I suppose you have to know—I hoped you wouldn't. But situations like this never stand still. To go back to where we were—he shook his head—"is impossible. Something is killed—destroyed."

His mother's eyes were filled with tears; she looked suddenly old and white, her vitality borne away by her deep suffering for him.

The telephone rang in the closet under the stairs and they heard Kezia scramble to answer it. Her oment by, "You won't be home?"

Yes, cars have a way of getting out of commission at times! . . . I'll tell your husband not to expect you . . . Here? Of course he's here—got in an hour ago."

She appeared at the library door then. "Hugh, the telephone." She lingered a moment, caught by the gravity of their faces. "It's Dorrie," she whispered.

Hugh took up the receiver. "Hello, Hugh," she began with hesitation. "I didn't think you'd be home until tomorrow."

"You didn't?"

"No, I didn't," her voice strengthened and had a whip of defiance in it. "Anyhow I'm at the Lawrences, and they find they have a flat tire, wanted me to stay all night . . . But if you're home I'll send for a taxicab."

"Shall I come for you?"

"No need of it. It's way across town. I'll be along in half an hour."

"Very well," said Hugh grimly, "but don't come here. Go to our own house."

He began to gather up his things. "I'll take your car, Mother, if you don't mind."

Kezia hovered over him in excited solicitude. "I'll drive you over, Hughie. Come, Jerry, help me get the car out." She paid no attention to his protestations that he drive himself, but hurried away with Jerry following.

Soon Kezia sounded a summoning horn from the driveway. Hugh put down his burdens in a corner of the hall. "I'm going . . . but I'll be back in a little while. I'm only going to talk to her."

He strode out the door. He waved to Kezia in dismissal. "Thanks—but I want to walk."

CHAPTER XI

The walks were littered with leaves that scuffed under Hugh's feet. His shadow lengthened as he passed under one arc light, shortened as he approached the light at the next corner. He walked slowly, took the long way round, that he might give Dorrie time to get home; for Cun to get away; time for her to rehearse her story for the last time. And he must be cool, as he was now, viewing the whole thing with balance.

The turmoil which had mounted in him the last hour, and which had increased when he heard Dorrie's voice on the wire, ebbed away.

Dorrie had taken off her hat and coat. They were thrown on the davenport. A plaid scarf with russet tinges was still around her neck. "Hello, Hugh," she said briefly.

"Hello, Dorrie."

She leaned over and tied the lace of her shoe. "Have a nice trip?" she inquired as she raised her head.

In spite of himself the sight of her flushed cheeks, her strange shining eyes, sent a tremor through his blood. He rested his arm on the mantel. "I had a profitable one."

She cogitated this. "Meaning—?"

"What I said."

"Very well—if you wish to be enigmatical!" Cruel pin-points danced in her eyes. "Are you going to ask me if I had a profitable time while you were away?"

"I took it for granted."

She shrugged. Then said: "The house is cold; you'd better build a fire if we're going to stay here."

Under his steady gaze her eyes dropped.

"I must have a talk with you," he said slowly.

They went into the sun room with its wicker furniture. Formally Hugh drew up a chair for her, brought her coat and laid it around her shoulders. He touched a match to the asbestos-backed grate, adjusted the flame. Then stood in silence. Dorrie looked into the fire; her white hands were clasped around her knee. She lifted her creamy eyelids. "Going to tell me you're through?" she asked.

"Yes, Dorrie, I'm through."

He thought she trembled a little, and the discernment that she was in need of pity, even as he, battled with his resolution. He stood watching her eyelashes flicker over her cheeks as she looked down.

"Hugh, you'll make it easy for me?"

"Certainly."

She relaxed in her chair a trifle. "It's one of those things which can't be helped. At first I was disappointed in him—he didn't act the way I expected when you found out. But when Joan went off the deep end—nothing seemed to stand in his way then."

"Except me."

Her "yes" was small, almost inaudible.

Curling bronze hair, white skin, lovely face, he must look his last upon them. Even desire was forbidden. The hate which surged up in him at her shallowness was almost as great as his desire.

"Yes, Dorrie, I'm Through."

Something rose in his throat which made it difficult to speak. He swallowed.

"No need to prolong this, is there?"

She started. "You're going?"

"You won't be afraid to stay alone tonight?"

She gave a gesture of dissent. "I'll be at Mother's. After you apply you'd better go away a bit—not far . . ." It was on his tongue to say "near enough for him to see you occasionally—keep him from other entanglements," but he checked it. He turned and left the room.

Hugh went back to his mother's house to live, occupied his old room in the south corner. He spent some evenings at his club, playing cards, others reading in the company of his mother, or in long rambles. Margery and Will were unobtrusively sympathetic when he met them; Kezia was crassly exultant.

"What a relief! We can have sage in our chicken dressing now!" Dorrie had disliked sage. But if Kezia saw Hugh's annoyed look when the radio moaned out a love song, she usually shut it off and dialed a different station. She made an effort to be more thoughtful of her mother in his presence, evidently wishing his approval. Once or twice she tried to discuss Jerry with him.

"Why do you give Jerry a mere nod when you come in? You could be civil—say a few sentences now and then. I tell him that it's just your way—one of those big, silent business men with the reconstruction of the nation on your shoulders—but I wish you'd be decent."

"It's no go, sis. I don't like him."

"How can you say that? You don't know him." She was aggrieved.

He rattled his paper as a signal that he wanted her to take herself from the arm of his chair so that he might read. "I think I do."

Their eyes met and a thwarted look crossed her face. She flounced off his chair with: "You'll all drive me to something one of these days! . . . No one takes me seriously!"

A few nights later he was sitting by the dying fire in the living-room, leaning forward, staring at the embers, when she came in a little after twelve.

Items of Interest to the Housewife

Economic Ironing—When ironing dispense with the ironing blanket and fold all the large things flat on the table, forming a "pad." On top of this I iron the small things, and when they are done, I find that the large things are quite nicely pressed.

Bacon and Macaroni—Break two ounces of macaroni into small pieces and throw into quickly-boiling salted water. Simmer until tender. Fry two ounces of streaky bacon cut into small pieces, then drain the macaroni and add it to the bacon. Add seasoning, one-half ounce of butter, and a scrape of nutmeg, and stir over a low heat until the macaroni is brown. Turn on to a hot dish and serve with dry toast.

Ladders in the Hosiery—Place your silk stocking over a glass tumbler when repairing a ladder. The light shows up the cross-threads, which can then be picked up easily with a fine steel crochet hook.

Better Bread—Home-made bread is lighter and keeps moist longer when mixed with skim-milk instead of water.

Maple Oatmeal Cookies—Two and a half cups fine oatmeal, one cup maple syrup, one quarter cup water, two and a half cups flour, one cup shortening, one teaspoon soda. Boil water and syrup together, add soda, then shortening. Cool slightly. Add to dry ingredients and allow the mixture to cool thoroughly before rolling out.

Cooking Cauliflower—To prevent it breaking while cooking, wrap loosely in muslin.

Soft-Boiled Eggs—When soft-boiling eggs, put them in boiling water, boil for one minute and turn off flame, leaving eggs in the water for another four minutes. This prevents them from hardening and saves fuel.

Making a Cushion—A useful flat cushion can be made from an old blanket. Fold it carefully to the size required, taking care that it is quite smooth and then secure the "layers" together with a few strong stitches. Slip it into a cover made from any pretty piece of material. These cushions are very useful when you want to make a chair higher, and are comfortable and firm to sit upon.

Using Skim-Milk—Skim-milk is excellent for milk puddings, providing a dessertspoonful of finely-grated suet is added to replace the missing fat.

Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for May 30, 1937

Golden Text: "Be not fashioned according to this world, but be yet transformed by the renewing of your mind."—Romans 12:2.

In our last lesson we saw Jacob taking advantage of Esau's improvidence, driving a selfish, hard bargain for the birthright. The next step was to secure ratification of the transfer from his father, who very old, practically blind, and rapidly approaching death.

To accomplish this, Jacob again resorted to trickery and deception, prompted and encouraged by his mother, Rebekah. This mother played favorites in the family and was willing to aid Jacob in defrauding Esau. The head of the family, Isaac, also had his partiality for Esau. Out of this improper attitude of the parents was to come much unhappiness and suffering for all concerned—a fact that should not be overlooked today by parents or children.

Having overheard Isaac planning to formally bless Esau, Rebekah planned and helped Jacob to execute a fraud on the dimly seeing Isaac. Certainly this was no worthy example for a mother to place before her son, but Jacob himself was not without responsibility, being old enough to be fully aware of the gain he was seeking and the injustice he was doing.

We can hardly escape the conclusion that Jacob was willing to be tricky in order to have the advantage. Relating this episode is another interesting substantiation of the truth of the scriptural account, which depicts its heroes and heroines in their weaknesses as well as in their worthy characteristics.

Shortdealing and trickery always have two sides. Rebekah and Jacob made the mistake so often encountered in life of counting the profit to be gained without considering the loss which was sure to follow. In securing the paternal blessing, they emphasized in their minds the fact that Jacob would succeed Isaac as head of the family, that he would inherit a double portion of the material wealth, that he would become the family priest and the recipient of the divine blessing, but they failed to consider the consequences which would run concurrently. The record of Jacob's succeeding years brings conclusive evidence to us, as it brought to Rebekah and Jacob, that unfairness and fraud was and is unprofitable.

Rebekah, the mother, seeking to advance the interests of her favorite child, continued to make him a fugitive from his home, a wanderer in an alien country, and, so far as we know, never saw him again as long as he lived. Jacob found the ill gotten blessing long postponed, only to be received years later after a life of hard service, many perils and a dangerous escape from his adopted country. Fleeing from an irate father-in-law, Jacob became more frightened as he contemplated the inevitable meeting with his brother, Esau.

Early in his flight from his home at Beersheba, en route to his mother's brother's home in Haran, Jacob found the divine presence at Beth-el and realized God's providence and goodness so profoundly that he became a faithful follower of Jehovah thence onward through his life. In this vision, Jacob received God's assurance of continued presence, of sustaining care, and of an ultimate return to his native land. It is significant here to point out that as long as Jacob remained in his home, under the watchful care and ministrations of his mother, Jacob felt no need of and had no awareness of God's protecting care. Not until he became a fugitive, alone and frightened, did he become conscious of the every presence of God. So it is often with us.

In response to God's covenant with him, Jacob erected a memorial pillow and made a vow to God that in return for his goodness and mercy, and for his providential care, he would obey him and contribute a tithe of his possessions to his cause.

After many years spent away from home, Jacob found it wise to make the return pilgrimage to his native land. He had prospered greatly in Haran and was returning home with all his wealth, his wives, children and servants. However, before he can reach his home, he must pass thru the country where his brother Esau lived and Jacob was terrified. The night before the inevitable meeting, Jacob was alone by the brook Jabbok and while there wrestled all night with God. From that wrestling Jacob went forth a new man with a new faith, a new courage, a new dependence upon God. There God changed his name from Jacob to Israel. From then on, Jacob took his proper place—he found his better self and, though he had not reached the heights, he was on the way.

Fighting Infantile Paralysis

When it becomes necessary in fighting a disease to change from monkeys to children, the scientist labors under a tremendous sense of responsibility. For three years Charles Armstrong has been studying infantile paralysis by experimenting with monkeys. We have seen that he had that the port of entry to the deadly germs through exposed nerves ending in the nose. He coated them with picric acid and alum and waited for six days. Then he poured into their nostrils the virus that kills 20 out of 26 untreated monkeys. The method saved 24 out of 25 whose noses had been galvanized by the picric acid and alum.

In 1936 the epidemic of infantile paralysis raged in Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi. Armstrong was sent for, but before he could reach the field 154 children were stricken. The people were panicky. Business was virtually at a standstill and public meetings had been banned.

The doctors were converted to the new method that seemed harmless enough, but Armstrong was not at all sure that children could be saved by it as had the monkeys. On one point the research worker was quite insistent, the spraying must be done by the physicians. The galvanizing had to be done three times, and then once a week as long as danger threatened. The doctors did not have time for the routine work, they had other duties to attend to. Why couldn't the mothers do it for their own children? It was simple enough to spray the stuff into the children's noses, but the rank and file did not even possess atomizers. The doctors must show them how to make mops and use them effectively. The people were quite sure that the work was so simple that they

CORRECTION

We are informed this week by C. J. Ladson, former superintendent of the Autocrat Coal Company's mine at McDowell, this county, of an error appearing in the May 14 issue of The Times. Our mistake was due to misinformation. We thank Mr. Ladson for this kindness and quote a portion of his letter, as follows: "The abandonment of Autocrat Coal Co. mine at McDowell was not caused by differences between the union and company officials, as the personnel of the Autocrat Coal Co. as a whole have always operated union mines in this as well as other states, and the grievance at McDowell were trivial. The main reason was that the mining conditions at this particular mine were of such a nature that it could not be operated successfully without a loss which was suffered by the Autocrat Coal Co. for several years, with the scale of wages and the mining conditions as paying of a high scale of wages for the inferior quality of coal for a low seam was the cause of abandonment." Explaining the mine fire, he continues: "The fire was caused by children and grown up men entering the mine after being warned by the State Mining Department and the Autocrat Coal Co., thereby building a fire to keep warm, to play around and for the purpose of playing card games and stealing junk rail and scrap from the mine without permission to enter said mine." Mr. Ladson states that the fire was started in the mine after its legal abandonment by the Autocrat Coal Co.

NYA COUNTY MEET IS WELL ATTENDED

The county wide meeting of NYA employees held at Allen, Ky., Beaver Valley Golf & Country Club, was well attended, an estimated 350 youths being present. This number is close to 100 per cent of the total number of workers which on May 21 was 369.

The morning session was taken up with the following program, Mrs. Edward P. Hill, county supervisor, in charge.

Music—Betsy Layne band. Song—"America" and Salute to the Flag by NYA boys and girls.

Mrs. Hill in a brief talk expressed thanks to the youths and local supervisors for their support and cooperation during the year and to the co-sponsors, the county board of education and Town Hall, county superintendent. Appreciation was expressed to Mr. Isbell, county agent, the county health department, the fiscal court, Mayor Carter, Prestonsburg Woman's Club and to all who helped in any way to promote the NYA program in Floyd county.

The supervisors of the local projects were introduced by Mrs. Hill. Miss Oneida Weston, NYA worker of Auxton, W., was then presented and she gave a talk on the subject: "What NYA Has Done for Me."

Brief addresses followed by Miss Patty Ritchie, area supervisor NYA, F. A. Maggard, district director NYA, Town Hall, county school superintendent, Circuit Judge John W. Caudill, W. Arch Bennett, state supervisor in charge of NYA work projects, Louisville, Ky.; Allen Cammack, director NYA district No. 9, Owenton, Ky.

Music—Betsy Layne band.

Benediction—Rev. George Reisinger.

Following a picnic lunch, races and field games were enjoyed. Pictures were made of the gathering and an address by Robert K. Salyer, of Louisville, completed the afternoon program.

A meeting of project supervisors was held in the clubhouse following the program where phases of the work for the county were discussed. Mr. Salyer and Mr. Bennett from the state NYA office, declared the NYA program as conducted in Floyd county the past year to be sound and expressed their thanks to Mr. Maggard, district director, to Mrs. Hill and the various local supervisors for the work that they have done. Mr. Salyer said: "You have a good program in Floyd county, one we believe to be sound. A short time ago I was asked to bring to the regional NYA conference in Chicago a sample set of reports used in connection with the project operation in Kentucky. A set of Mrs. Hill's monthly reports was selected as being an excellent picture of a county-wide program, and was taken to this meeting." Mr. Salyer and Mr. Bennett also commended the home hygiene feature of the program that is being conducted through the co-operation of the county health department and asked that one of the notebooks being made in that group on child care be sent to the state office for permanent display. Mr. Maggard in the closing talk thanked the supervisors for the cooperation given him and the good work they had done during the year.

Miss Pattie Ritchie, area supervisor, selected a number of articles from the exhibit of articles produced on the work projects, that were on display in the clubhouse for the state wide NYA exhibit that was to be displayed at West Liberty, Ky., May 24 when Mrs. Roosevelt dedicated the Morgan county high school building.

The office of the agent is continuing to receive new work sheets and is urging all farmers who have not signed work sheets this year to do so at once.

The county agent advises farmers not to sow grasses or clovers until after July 1, as the months of July, August, September and October are the most desirable months of the year for seeding grasses if the field is in a cultivated row crop. (Corn is a good example.) Korean lespedeza, however, should be sowed not later than June 1, as it matures its seed in the fall and the plant is killed by frost.

ROUND-UP IS FOR PRE-SCHOOL TOTS

This Week's Baby Clinic is To Be Held at Garrett By Health Department

Following the baby clinic to be held at Garrett May 24, the first of the summer "Pre-School Roundups" will be held at Drift, May 26, Dr. Marvin Ransdell, head of the Floyd county health department, announced Tuesday. "The purpose of these roundups," Dr. Ransdell explained, "is to immunize all pre-school children before the next term of school begins."

Aside from the weekly baby clinics which are held in Prestonsburg on the first Mondays of each month, in Wayland on the second, in Wheelwright on the third, and Garrett on the fourth, Dr. Ransdell said that during the summer months one or two of the pre-school roundups will be held in different localities every week.

If every child is brought to these clinics sickness will be minimized in lower grades of the county's various schools. Dr. Ransdell will be assisted in the work of these clinics by his staff of nurses as he is at the weekly baby clinics.

In the baby clinics Dr. Ransdell explained that usually 18 to 20 babies were brought in for examination. They are weighed, measured, the mothers are instructed as to care and feeding, and the babes are immunized against diphtheria, and vaccinated for smallpox.

KIWANIANS FETE RAILROAD MEN

Through the unusual efforts of Dr. M. J. Leete, chairman of the Kiwanis program committee, this meeting was said to be the most successful of the year, 94 per cent of the membership being present, all enthusiastic and responsive to hear what the railroads had to say for themselves. After introduction of guests, Mr. Hudson was introduced as guest speaker for Lon S. Moles, and spoke for 30 minutes on matters vital to the railroads and the public. In part he said:

"If American railroads are to provide the best service of which they are capable, at the lowest possible rates, they must be treated on the same basis as their competitors, and relieved of the threatened danger of any additional costly government regulation."

Mr. Hudson opened his talk by calling attention to the dependability, safety and economy of railroad transportation, and pointing out that the railroads are constantly trying to provide still better service at still lower rates. He also outlined the important contributions made by railroads to national prosperity, mentioning particularly their employment; their payment of the highest average wages in railroad history or in the transportation industry; their annual purchases of more than 70,000 different items of materials and supplies; and their tax payments averaging a million dollars a day. Tax payments by the Chesapeake & Ohio in Floyd county alone amount, he said, to about $125,000 a year, and in the entire state taxes paid by all railroads total about $5,000,000 a year of which two million is spent exclusively for the support of public schools.

The speaker warned, however, that continuation of railroad contributions to national welfare, and of their efforts to improve service and reduce rates, are seriously threatened by possible enactment by Congress or the Kentucky Legislature of bills to limit the number of cars which a railroad can haul in a single train, and to require employment of unnecessary men in train crews. Both of these bills he characterized as "dangerous." These and also that all forms of transportation be required, as the to establish a six-hour day railroads are, to pay their with eight hours' pay, to provide for government inspection of signals, and impose other unnecessary requirements on railroads, would greatly increase costs of operation without in any way promoting safety or efficiency of service. Passage of all of them, he said, would result directly in eventual government ownership of railroads.

Mr. Hudson urged, on the other hand, that railroads and their competitors by highway, water and air be put on the same basis of regulation, partly by relieving the railroads of some of the old and now unnecessary regulation imposed on them, and partly by providing for water carriers and airplanes "such reasonable regulation as is necessary for the protection of the public." He expressed particular hope that the Senate would repeal the "long and short haul clause" of the Interstate Commerce Act by passing the Pettengill bill, already passed by the House of Representatives, and thus make it easier for railroads to meet competition by reducing some of their freight rates.

Maintenance of the Kentucky law fixing the weight of trucks at 18,000 pounds and their length at 30 feet was also strongly recommended by the speaker, although he explained that the railroads' interest in this matter was secondary to that of the public in protecting motorists and small truckers from the danger, and highways from the damage, involved in operation of larger and heavier trucks. He urged

MISS GOBLE ADDRESSES HIGH SCHOOL CLASS

Richmond, Ky., May 22—Miss Naomi Goble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Goble, of Prestonsburg, a senior at Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College, spoke to the girls of the Madison county high school, Richmond, at the chapel hour Thursday morning, May 20. Miss Goble's topic was "The Department Store." Miss Goble will receive her degree from Eastern at the thirtieth commencement exercises to be held next week.

A number of senior girls at Eastern have been working out a guidance project on vocations for women under the supervision of Mrs. Emma Y. Case, dean of women. Vocations have been studied from the standpoints of remuneration, opportunity for service, necessary preparation, possibility for promotion, and personal traits required.

Two other senior girls, Mary Katherine Holcomb, of Nicholasville, and Kathryn Campbell, of Hustonville, also spoke to the girls of Madison High at this program, over which Mrs. Emma Y. Case presided.

FEW SENTENCES THIS COURT TERM
Go to Penitentiary
With Johnnie Adkins, sentenced to one year on a grand larceny charge, and Chester Meade, who broke parole and was found guilty of grand larceny, both convicted at a previous term of court three others will go to the penitentiary this week under the care of Sheriff M. T. Stumbo. They are: Leonard Samons, Johnnie Parsons and Jack Hatfield.

During this term of court Doc Maddox, Burt Arnett and Tom Bates were convicted of keeping disorderly houses. The court ordered that these houses be permanently closed. Each of these men, however, is repealing his case.

Dismissing the juries last Friday, this week the court has been engaged chiefly with cases in equity. Judge Hanna, of Ashland, special judge appointed by the court of appeals, will return to Prestonsburg June 21. At that time he will hear 10 cases continued from this term of the court.

the Colorado beetle, as they are numerous this spring. Lead arsenate is a satisfactory spray poison. Many gardeners report to the agent their failure to grow cucumbers. They report that the vines thrive until about the time they should bloom, and then turn yellow and die. The agent has found that the cucumber beetle lays her eggs on the ground at the time the young plants burst the soil, the eggs hatch into a larvae or worm which feeds on the roots and eventually leaves the plants without a root system. The way to prevent this is to place hot caps (the gardener can make them from boxes with cheese cloth or canvas) over the cucumber hill on the day the seeds are planted, and then place about an inch of soil around the outside. This effectually prevents the insect to lay her eggs.

GOING TO TOWN

No globe trotter can ever know the thrill of travel that we experienced when we used to go to the county seat. Measured by modern standards, the town was not far away. 10 miles or so, but it was a major event in the farm home when we decided on making such an adventurous trip.

The actual going was an adventure, though it seemed small in comparison with the arrival. There were strange people and horses among the way, there were crops to inspect, there were woods to drive through, where we might see and hear a ruffed grouse. We always stopped at the spring at the foot of the big hill to water the horses or at the church half way to town to get a drink from the cistern. After a few miles we would be in strange territory, from there on it was like traveling in another world. Six or eight miles from home we could hear the "cars," as older people called the train: the horses pricked up their ears and panned along like the war horse of the Bible that senses battle from afar.

Now the big day began. We unhitched our team and tied them to the wagon wheels. We joined other parties of shoppers and went "up town." We purchased repairs for the plows, extra horse collars or pads, plowlines and other farm necessities. If the women folks had come along, they bought shoes and clothes galore. If there was a stand being operated near the square, we indulged in the extravagance of a glass of pink lemonade around. At noon we strolled shamefacedly back to the wagon, fed our horses, and ate our lunch. Rarely we stayed up town and ate cysters or cheese and crackers. After noon we put the finishing touches to our shopping and then started home to tell of the great adventures. A last purchase was sure to be a sack of bananas as a sort of peace offering to those who could not come with us. Full of excitement and talking loudly, we drove out of town and across the hills, keeping up our spirits as long as we were in strange territory but getting rather listless and sleepy after that until we saw home and began to organize events of the day to overwhelm the others with envy. "And so to bed," as Pepys would say, to dream about the great things we had seen at town. And for weeks afterwards we would imitate some of the queer people we had seen and tell how Old Beck got scared at the train.

Sarah Ann's Cooking Class

The housekeeper who is thrifty as well as a good cook knows the art of making good sauces. The most indispensable of all sauces is the white sauce, it appears throughout the menu; in soups, entrees, sauces with vegetables and sometimes as the base for desserts. Any left-overs combined with the appropriate sauce may appear to the family as a new and interesting dish.

Horse Radish Sauce

1-2 cup cream or evaporated milk
4 tablespoons horse radish
1 tablespoon vinegar
1-2 teaspoon salt
Beat cream until stiff. Mix horse-radish, vinegar and salt. Fold into cream. This is a favorite sauce to serve with beef. For variety add 1-2 cup apple sauce and serve with roast pork or duck.

Thin White Sauce

1 tablespoon fat
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup milk
1-4 teaspoon salt
Use for creamed soups, bisques, purees and sauce.

Thick White Sauce

3 or 4 tablespoons fat
3 or 4 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
Use for souffles and croquettes.

Melt the fat in a saucepan. Stir in the flour and cook until bubbling and smooth—2 or 3 minutes. Pour in the milk about 1-2 at a time, stirring constantly until perfectly smooth and creamy. When all the milk is added, cook the mixture over boiling water while seasonings and other ingredients are added. If after careful mixing the white sauce is lumpy beat with a rotary beater until smooth.

Cucumber Sauce

1-2 cup cream or evaporated milk
1 large cucumber
2 tablespoons vinegar
1-4 teaspoon salt
Beat cream until stiff and add salt and pepper. Add vinegar a little at a time. Peel cucumber, chop and drain well. Beat into the cream. Chill. Serve with cold salmon or broiled flounder.

Spanish Sauce

2 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped celery
1-2 tablespoons flour
1-2 cup thick tomato pulp
Heat fat, add onion and celery. Cook until delicately browned. Blend flour and stock, add tomato pulp and combine with the mixture. Cook about 10 minutes. Chopped ham or bacon may be added.

Medium White Sauce

2 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons flour
1-2 cups milk
1-4 teaspoon salt
Use for creamed and scalloped mixtures and sauces.

STAR DUST Movie Radio By VIRGINIA VALE

WHENEVER a crowd of actors, producers, directors, and writers get together in Hollywood, the most exciting arguments take place over questions that can never really be settled.

Not since the days of the Tamadge sisters long ago, have film fans had the fun of watching sisters climb to fame as screen rivals.

Olivia de Havilland

Mary Livingstone, who has played such a big part in the success of the Jack Benny radio programs, is thinking very seriously of taking part in a Paramount picture starring Ruddy Rogers and Shirley Ross.

Innumerable fans have acked me if the impressive mansion and estate which Fredric March presents to Janet Gaynor in the course of the plot of "A Star Is Born" was especially built for the picture.

The enterprising young Grand National company certainly stole a march on the rest of the studios when they signed Stu Erwin to a starring contract.

Ever since Myrna Loy finished "Parnell," she has been enjoying a lazy vacation at Ensenada, Mexico, where a gleaming, luxurious hotel shares scenic honors with the harbor which is said to be the most beautiful in the world.

ODDS AND ENDS—A little boy working on the set of "Varsity Show" at Warner Brothers came down with measles, and the whole troupe headed by Dick Powell had to knock off work and watch for symptoms for two or three days.

STEPHENS RITES HELD SATURDAY

Independent Order of Odd Fellows Officiate at the Grave

Funeral services for Edgar P. Stephens, whose death occurred at Paintsville, Ky. Wednesday, May 19 were held at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. Woodford Howard, of this place Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Harry F. King of the Methodist Church officiated, assisted by Rev. George Redding of the Baptist Church and Rev. Arnold T. Malmberg. Music was rendered by the choir members of the different churches with Mrs. E. R. B. Burke at the piano.

The rites were attended by a large number of friends and relatives from this community and other towns in this section. The floral offerings were profuse and beautiful.

Out of town relatives and friends who attended the services were Lewis Stephens and family of Ashland, Ky.; Mrs. Miranda Gearheart and daughter, of Betsy Layne; Dr. Orris Gearheart, of Martin; Dennis Farchild and Mrs. Lu'a Crisp, Allen; R. Plenty of Ice Cubes when you have ELECTRIC REFRIGERATION

OUTSIDE temperatures do not influence an electric refrigerator because of its reserve capacity. As the outside temperature rises, the motor may run longer, but this automatic functioning assures perfect inner temperature control. Food is kept within the safety zone of below 50 degrees and plenty of ice cubes are constantly ready to tinkle into tall glasses. Electric refrigerators freeze more than twice as fast!
