FLOYD'S TWO TEAMS LOSE GOLF MATCHES

Heinze's Sons Play In Featured Match Sunday At Allen

In the last round of matches played in the Inter City Golf League, Sunday, Pikeville defeated Abbott Heights 10½ to 13½ and Paintsville won from Beaver Valley 28½ to 22½. The final standing in the league finds Paintsville and Pikeville tied for first place. Beaver Valley is second, and Abbott Heights third.

A special match between the two sons of Dr. Hal of Paintsville and the two sons of F. L. Heinze of Prestonsburg, featured the match played at Beaver Valley. Bob Hall startled the gallery by shooting a 79 for the course.

During the next two weeks qualifying matches will be held at Pikeville for the individual Big Sandy championship matches to be played there Aug. 28, 29, and Sept. 4, 5 and 6. The present holder of the championship cup and title is Robinson of Pikeville.

Whether he retains the cup depends on the golfing ability of Clarke Morell, Hagans or May of the Abbott Heights club, or Adkins, Malone or Brooks of Beaver Valley, in so far as Floyd county is concerned.

When asked if he would enter the tournament Carl Corbin, Beaver Valley member, remained non-committal, but said: "I'm glad to be satisfied with my Civil War golf. (Out in 61. Back in 65). I leave it to the other niblick tossers to upset the bucket."

NEW BUILDING WILL BE ERECTED ON COURT ST., NEAR CARTER BOULEVARD

Preparatory to the construction of a one story brick building on Court street opposite the Baptist Church, the frame building now occupied by the City Shoe Shop and the Spradlin Sign Shop was moved on rollers from the site of the new building approximately 50 feet.

The new building, which will be owned by Mrs. Osa Ligon, is intended to serve as a store containing general merchandise, and will be operated by Paul Francis of Paintsville the son of H. C. Francis, Prestonsburg merchant.

BOARD OF EDUCATION POSTPONES STARTING FLOYD HIGH SCHOOLS

High School Start Delayed From Aug. 23 to Sept. 7 in County

The opening date for Floyd county high schools was postponed to September 7, by the Floyd county board of education, which met in Superintendent Town Hall's office Saturday evening. The original date set for high school opening was August 23.

Two high schools, the one at Beaver on the head of Mud Creek, and the one at Bonanza will start August 23. All other high schools will adhere to the new ruling.

Superintendent Hall said that the postponement was caused by delayed construction on the new high school buildings at Garrett, Wheelwright, Betsy Layne and Weeksbury. Mr. Hall said that the steel strike was the major cause in the delayed construction as no steel could be procured for windows or girders.

Although the delay is caused primarily by high school construction in only four communities, the postponement is county wide in effect, including high schools at Maytown, Wayland, Martin, Prestonsburg, McDowell, Auxier, and others. Superintendent Hall explained the ruling was made county wide in effect because due to the recently inaugurated county wide system of graduation the Board

JOHNSON ARRESTED, MURDER SUSPECTED EXTRADITED TO VA. IN STRATTON DEATH

Deputy Constable Collins Arrests Johnson at Wheelwright

Although expected to violently resist, Gus Johnson, deputy constable who has figured in several gunbattles, meekly surrendered last Friday to Deputy Constable S. A. Collins who made the arrest at Wheelwright Junction.

A warrant for Johnson's arrest was issued by County Judge Walk Stumbo following the shooting and wounding of Charles Hansford at Martin last week. Hansford was wounded near the place Alton Patton was killed by Johnson several months ago.

After his arrest, Johnson, in the custody of Collins, was taken to Jenkins and lodged in jail there. Federal officers arrived the same day (Friday) with extradition papers to take him to Virginia for trial on liquor making charges and charges of evading and resisting arrest. The charges were more than a year old.

Although the federal officers expect Johnson to receive a five year sentence, he will be returned for trial in Floyd county after serving his sentence. Continued on page four

Son of Rev. Isaac Stratton Found Unconscious On Railway

With his head battered, Ballard Stratton, about 30 years old was found above the highway bridge on the C. & O. railroad tracks at Allen, Tuesday. He succumbed in the Stumbo Memorial hospital Wednesday, without naming his assailant. The coroner's verdict was "Death at the hands of party or parties unknown." Stratton was beaten with a club from officers report.

Witnesses and officers said that Stratton's body was placed across the tracks to look like an accident after the body had been hit by a train. The body was discovered however, before a train passed.

According to those who moved him to the hospital, Stratton's body was covered with blood, some of which had run into his shoes, which according to officers, proved that the victim was partially upright when hit.

Funeral services will be held for the deceased, who is a son of Rev. Isaac Stratton, at Banner, Friday at 2 p. m.

GRAY ARRESTS YOUTHS CHARGED WITH ROBBERY OF BICYCLES IN ASHLAND

Galloway Gray, of Allen, special officer for the C. & O. railway, took two youths, Tivis Cooley and Edgar Kidd, into custody at Allen last week, charged with the theft of bicycles at Ashland. Mr. Gray said that this was the tenth arrest made within the past month for robbery offenses against the railway.

Both youths received 30 day sentences in County Judge pro tem Akers' court for serving these sentences in the Floyd county jail, they will be transferred to Boyd county to be tried for robbery.

The bicycles stolen in Ashland, were placed on manifest train No. 94, it is believed, and unloaded at Allen. Mr. Gray said that both boys admitted the theft of the bicycles, but refused to tell details about how they placed the stolen goods on the train.

"Uncle" Jeff Sizemore, 94 Year Old Vet., Tells Civil War Experiences

Upon a recent visit to The Times office, "Uncle" Jeff Sizemore, aged 94, of Water Gap, one of Kentucky's few remaining Civil War veterans, combated the interruptions of phone calls and customers, to give a brief discourse of his war experiences.

Although presses were running in the rear of the building, candidates were broadcasting from the courthouse and sound trucks were blaring at the front of the building, "Uncle" Jeff, despite his age, was victorious in making himself heard never retreating before enemy noises.

Prestonsburg, said Uncle Jeff, was deserted by all except eight citizens early in January in the year 1862. Folks here had heard of the approach of General Garfield and his union forces and knew that a battle would be fought in this neighborhood. After the battle of Middle Creek was fought, Jan. 10, 1862, "Uncle" Jeff said that he helped bury the Confederate dead. He added that the next day General Garfield moved his headquarters to Prestonsburg in the house now owned by Mrs. M. J. Leete. Soon after he moved his forces to Paintsville to be nearer his food supply.

At Paintsville, General Garfield issued a proclamation to Big Sandians, asking them to return to their homes, and "Uncle" Jeff, with vigorous gestures, delivered the proclamation in my memory, word for word, in all the war time phraseology with which it was written.

During his discourse, "Uncle" Jeff paid slight heed to interrupting customers. Once, however, he paused until the customer was served, said, "where'd I quit?" and plunged back into stride. Again while a customer's order was being taken "Uncle" Jeff, who has

Man Who Broke Jail in September is Returned Here Saturday

After being arrested in Warsaw, Ind., Warnie Slusher, 31, who led a daring jail break from the Floyd county jail several months ago, was returned here last Saturday. Slusher was immediately remanded to the Knott county jail at Hindman for safekeeping. Slusher is wanted for three separate indictments in this county. He is charged with a boxcar robbery, jailing of the depot at Dinwood, Ky., and robbery of the postoffice and Troy Conley's store at Bosco. He was brought here by special C. & O. Agent V. W. Midcliff, after extradition papers were served.

Before his outbreak of crime in this county, Slusher was convicted of manslaughter in the Jackson circuit court. After serving five years of his 10 year sentence he was paroled.

Slusher has already confessed to the robbery of the store and postoffice at Bosco, which he robbed with the aid of Jack Hatfield. Hatfield is now serving two life sentences and one two year sentence, which under the habitual criminal act, resulted from his share in the robbery.

A minimum sentence of 20 years will similarly await Slusher here, if he is convicted of more than one robbery charge.

National Youth Administration part time jobs were provided for 17,321 students attending school in Kentucky during 1936-1937 school year, Robert K. Salyers state NYA director, revealed in a report to the Washington office. The employment of these young people involved an expenditure of $777,014.54, the report stated.

Of the individuals employed, 4,176 were college students in attendance at 31 tucky institutions. The remaining 13,145 were enrolled in high schools throughout the state.

NYA assistance enabled 179 high school and elementary pupils of Floyd county to continue their education. This figure includes students aided through special flood and drought appropriations, Otis C. Amis, NYA supervisor of educational aid explained. Mr. Amis explained that a sizeable reduction was anticipated for the 1937-1938 school year.

The National Youth Administration student aid program is designed to furnish part-time employment for needy students in order that they may continue their education. Work is provided on projects designed and supervised by local school officials. High school students receive up to $6 monthly for their work, while young people in college may earn up to an average of $15 per month.

Household Questions

Removing Tar.—Tar is easily removed from the hands and clothing with lard, followed by warm water and soap.

A Refreshing Drink.—Rhubarb juice makes a good beverage of pleasing tart flavor. Clarify the juice with water and add sugar to taste. It may also be combined with fruit juices.

Washing Linoleum.—Dissolve a lump of sugar in the water when washing linoleum or oilcloth, and a brilliant polish will result.

Removing Wallpaper.—To remove wallpaper quickly, put a heaped tablespoonful of saltpetre to a gallon of water and apply freely with a whitewash brush while the water is very hot. The paper then can be stripped from the walls quite easily.

Heat the Nail.—Before hammering a nail into the wall either heat the end over a gas jet or hold it in boiling water for a few seconds. If the nail is treated in this way the plaster will not crumble and the nail will hold firmly for a far longer period than otherwise.

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging headache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

This Business of Golf.

OAKLAND, CALIF.—As I sit writing this, I look out where elderly gentlemen, intent on relaxing, may be seen tensing themselves up tighter than a cocked wolf-trap, and then staggering toward the clubhouse with every nerve standing on end and screaming for help and highballs.

I smile at them, for I am one who has given up golf. You might even go so far as to say golf gave me up. I tried and tried, but I never broke a typhoid patient's temperature chart—never got below 102. I spent so much time climbing into sand-traps and out again that people began thinking I was a new kind of hermit, living by preference in bunkers—the old man of the link beds, they'd be calling me next.

And I used to slice so far into the rough that, looking for my ball, I penetrated jungles where the foot of man hadn't trod since the early mound builders. That's how I added many rare specimens to my collection of Indian relics.

But the last straw was when a Scotch professional, after morbidly watching my form, told me that at any rate there was one thing about me which was correct—I did have on golf stockings!

Irvin S. Cobb

Congressional Boldness.

WARNING to pet lovers: If you own guinea pigs or tame rabbits or trained seals or such-like gentle creatures, try to keep the word from them that some of the majority members of the lower branch of congress actually threatened to defy their master's voice.

The senate always has been known as the world's greatest deliberative body—and, week by week and month by month don't those elder statesmen know how to deliberate! But these last few years the house has earned the reputation of being the most docile legislative outfit since Aesop's King Stork ruled over the synd of the frogs.

So should the news ever spread among the lesser creatures, hither-to so placid and biddable, that an example had been set at Washington, there's no telling when the Belgian hares will start rampaging and the singing mice will begin acting up rough and the grubworms will gang against the big old woodpecker.

Professional Orators.

WE HAVE in Southern California a professional orator who long ago discovered that the most dulcet music on earth was the sound of his own voice. He'll speak anywhere at the drop of the hat and provide the hat.

What's worse, this coast-defender of ours labors under the delusion that, if he shouts at the top of his voice, his eloquence will be all the more forceful. The only way to avoid meeting him at dinner is to eat at an owl wagon. But the other night, at an important banquet, he strangely was missing from the array of speakers at the head table. One guest turned in amazement to his neighbor:

"Where's Blank?" he inquired, naming the absentee.

"Didn't you hear?" answered the other. "He busted a couple of ear drums."

"Whose?" said the first fellow.

Foes of Nazidom.

THE veteran Rabbi Stephen Wise of New York has been reasonably outspoken in his views on Nazi treatment of his own co-religionists and the practitioners of other faiths as well. And one of the most venerable prelates of the Catholic church in Europe, while discussing the same subject, hasn't exactly pulled his punches, either.

So what? A friend just back from abroad tells me that in Berlin he heard a high government officer fiercely denounce these two distinguished men. About the mildest thing the speaker said about them was that both were senile. Somehow or other, the speech wasn't printed in the German papers—maybe by orders from on high.

Well, far be it from this innocent bystander to get into religious arguments and besides I have no first-hand knowledge as to the Christian clergyman's state of health, although, judging by his utterances, there's nothing particularly wrong with his mind. But I do know Rabbi Wise, and, if he's in his dotage, so is Shirley Temple. And I risk the assertion that he would be perfectly willing to have one foot in the grave if he could have the other on Herr Hitler's neck.

COLLECTING LIQUID RUBBER ON FIRESTONE PLANTATIONS IN LIBERIA

An ever-increasing supply of rubber comes from these plantations. Savings made by controlling raw materials and by more efficient manufacturing and distribution make extra values possible at no extra cost.

BECAUSE in Firestone Standard Tires—

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS—eight extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process. By this process every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber. This counteracts internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES—because under the tread are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING—because the tread is scientifically designed.

YOU GET LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE because of the extra tough, long-wearing tread.

Sunday School Lesson

GOD GIVES LAWS TO THE NATION

International Sunday School Lesson for August 15, 1937

Golden Text: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Matthew 22:37-39.

In the third month after leaving Egypt the children of Israel found themselves in the Wilderness of Sinai, a plain two miles long by half a mile wide, having precipitous mountains on either side. Here the Israelites were alone with themselves and God and here God chose to speak to them.

Calling Moses to the top of Mount Sinai, God delivered several messages to him for transmission to the Israelites. He first promised that if these people would obey his voice they would be (1) God's own possession among all peoples; (2) a kingdom of priests; and (3) a holy nation. When this message was delivered the people answered together, "All that the Lord hath spoken we will do."

God then tells Moses that, after certain preparations were made, God delivers to them what we now call the Ten Commandments or the Decalogue. Although given so long ago, the Ten Commandments are still the law of life for everybody; and the laws of our country are based upon them. These laws deal with our actions and not with mere thoughts or emotions and are addressed to each one of us as individuals because each of us will have to answer as individuals, to God for our actions.

"Thou shalt have no other gods before me." The necessity for the first commandment will quickly be understood when we realize that the Israelites were accustomed to nations having many gods. This commandment not only forbids the worship of many gods, but commands the worship of only one—Jehovah.

The second commandment forbids the carving of images, or their worship. God is a spirit and they that worship him in spirit and in truth. The danger of using symbols of any kind in our worship is that we are likely to attach so much importance to the symbol that we lost sight of the One it symbolizes.

The third commandment demands reverence for God. A name stands for one's character and personality. To take God's name in vain, lightly or heedlessly is to profane the character of God. Not only is all profanity which uses his name lightly condemned but the perpetual making use of the name of the Lord by those whose life does not square with their profession is as surely a violation of this commandment.

God's fourth commandment requires the keeping of the Sabbath Day, which God hallowed, or set apart as the day holy unto him. This commandment is being broken more often by Christians today than any other one of the Ten Commandments and the consequence is being felt and seen in the loss of spirituality, the increase of materialism, and the ease with which many Christians are succumbing to the temptations of the world.

The fifth commandment, the first with promise, commands reverence of parents. Perhaps no sign of the present time is more sad than that of the prevalence of disobedience on the part of children to parents and the lack of reverence and respect which children have for their elders. The fault lies, however, not so much with the children as with the parents who have either failed to train them properly or do not live so as to merit the respect and honor of their children.

The next three commandments have to do with our human relationships—life, purity, property and reputation. The sixth commandment "Thou shalt not kill," of course forbids the taking of human life by another. Some hold that this forbids capital punishment the defense of country or the taking of life under any circumstances. However, the Bible does not teach this. God commands punishment for murder and also expects men to fight in defense of their country. There are murderers, however, beside those who coldbloodedly set out to kill who violate this commandment. Those who recklessly drive automobiles, parents who do not provide adequately for their children, adulterers of milk and food-stuffs and the like are equally guilty.

The commandment against adultery is set next to that against murder because as Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein says, "adultery is very often the cause of and incentive to murder." Christ said that he who indulged in evil mental attitudes is as guilty as he who is an adulterer.

"Thou shalt not steal." This applies to underhanded dealings just as it does to the taking of property belonging to another. All "chiselers" wherever they are and whatever they do are stealing, whether it be time, property, money or another's work.

The ninth commandment forbids false witness or slander. The law primarily referred to the giving of false testimony in court, but also applies to the passing on of false facts about another under any circumstances. "Slander is like counterfeit money. Many people who would not think of being the first to circulate it will pass it along when it comes into their hands."

The tenth and last commandment is regarded by some as the most important of all in that it is the coveting of something one does not possess that leads to the breaking of the commandments against the ill-treatment of others. Were it not for covetousness, happiness and contentment in the world would be multiplied many times over.

His Time Was Worth Money — Wilbur Shaw knows the value of time. He was only two seconds ahead of Ralph Hepburn as they raced to the finish wire in the last 500-mile automobile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. And that two seconds was the difference between $16,000 and $50,000 in prize money. He is pictured showing his Green curvex a precision watch, to Paul Abbott, a racing enthusiast.

5,000 EXPECTED AT MEETING IN BREAKS

Picnic and Fish Fry Will Be Held Sunday, August 15

The biggest picnic and fish fry ever staged in Eastern Kentucky and Western Virginia will be held at the Breaks of the Big Sandy, on Sunday, August 15, when over 5,000 from all over the mountain region gather for their annual picnic.

Three main events have been planned for the day, the field trials of the coon hunters, the fish fry and the speeches by men of national reputation. Dogs from all over the mountain region will be brought to scent-out the coon trail, with a cash prize going to the winning dog. The qualifying heats will be held starting at 10 o'clock in the morning and lasting for two hours.

The finals will be held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, with the champion being crowned at the close of the event. The coon hunt is being held under direction of Pike County Coon Hunters Association, which organization has been active in the mountain sport this year and secured a number of coons to be used at the trials Sunday. Over 100 dogs have been entered in the preliminaries.

The fish fry which will be held at noon is being sponsored by the Pike County Fish and Game Association, who have secured the CCC enrolles from Camp Putney to

THE FARM AND HOME

(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

In reorganizing farms, it is often found necessary to relocate roads and lanes, especially where gullying has occurred in them. Private drives should be located where they will result in the least damage to the farm.

Many women prefer day old bread for making sandwiches. In preparing them for picnic lunches, they should be wrapped in wax paper packed away from other food and covered with a slightly damp cloth if they are to be kept out doors for some time.

In building, or remodeling houses, give attention to closet space. Fewer and larger closets carefully placed, with a window and artificial light, are now preferred by most homemakers. Some should contain cupboards and shelves.

Water and shade for livestock of all kinds are receiving attention by more farmers every year. Concrete tanks are appearing on many farms. Clean containers filled at least every day are considered essential for poultry.

Selling or penning of roosters, gathering egg two or three times a day and then keeping them in cellars, caves or other cool places help to improve the quality of eggs. They should be taken to town at least twice a week.

Refrigerator don'ts: Don't put hot foods into the refrigerator; don't crowd the shelves and hinder free air circulation; don't open the door unnecessarily; and don't store things in the refrigerator that do not need refrigerating, such as potatoes, canned goods and bananas.

fry the 2,000 pounds of fish for the day. The CCC are bringing their famous rolling army kitchen with its pans and ovens and they will put on a demonstration for the holiday crowd's 5,000 empty stomachs.

JOHNSON ARRESTED

Deputy Constable Collins said that he experienced no difficulty in making the arrest, but added that Johnson made several threats en route to Jenkins.
The shooting of Hansford by Johnson occurred in Elam's cafe at Martin. Hansford and his companion Lewis were brought to jail here by Gus Johnson, where they were later released. Deputy Constable Collins then took Hansford to the Stumbo hospital for treatment.
Although Johnson charged Hansford and Lewis with highway robbery, Judge Stumbo termed the charge untrue and issued the warrant for the arrest of Johnson. Tuesday, County Judge pro tem T. B. Akers announced that all charges against Hansford and Lewis had been dropped.

MANY SS RECIPIENTS GET AID LAST MONTH

$3979 Granted To Floyd Countians Through Local Office

A report issued by Dr. A. Y. Lloyd, director of Public Assistance, for release this week shows 408 persons in Floyd county received old age assistance in July. The total amount now being received by aged needy persons within the county is $3,979.

Assistance for aged needy men and women in Kentucky shows a steady upward trend, with a marked increase in the number of grants for the period ending August 1, as compared with the period ending July 1, 1937.

The total number of recipients of old age assistance in Kentucky for the month of July was 38,813. These persons received assistance checks totaling $386,075.65. If present steady advance is maintained, it is estimated that the aged indigent of the state will have received approximately $15,000,000 when Governor Chandler's term expires in 1939.

The many difficulties which attended the work of the Division of Public Assistance during the early months have nearly all disappeared. A thoroughly efficient staff of office and field workers assures immediate attention to all cases, with possible delay resulting only from a complete lack of documentary evidence to prove eligibility.

Putting Power to Work on the Farm

FOR many years the line crews of this Company have been engaged in extending electric service into rural areas wherever there was sound business justification for these extensions. Today, if you were to follow our poles and wires over county roads you would traverse 125 miles of line and pass the homes of 1,162 users of our electric service.

More and more the farmer is turning toward electricity for the profitable operation of his farm. For example, an electric milk cooler enables the dairyman to keep down the bacterial count to secure higher prices for his milk.

Rural folks receive a service equal to that enjoyed by city dwellers, backed by 50 years' experience in this business. Ours is not "amateur service"—it is electric service upon which the farmer may depend.

Electric rates to rural customers are the same as those paid by customers in the largest communities we serve. The only difference is that the farmer agrees to take a minimum amount of electricity.

Our city customers will commend this policy of low rates for farmers realizing that an efficient, prosperous countryside is the surest guarantee of busy industry and prosperity in the cities.

Right Out Of The Air

By R F SERVICE

Bob Burns again leads the comedy contingent that remains on the airwaves right through the summer.

With many of comedy's big names vacationing, listeners will have fewer programs with laughs this summer than in the last few months. The winter, incidentally, set a new high in hours of comedy on the air during the week.

Rudy Vallee is the most "two-fisted" orchestra leader in the studios. He uses both hands about equally, without a baton in either.

The majority of radio serials occupy daytime spots, few ever being heard in the evening. Most prominent exception is "One Man's Family," winner of more popularity polls the country over than any single radio program.

Carlton Morse, its author, built his serial around the personalities of Kathleen Wilson, Michael Raffetto, J. Anthony Smythe, Minetta Allen and Barton Yarborough, San Francisco actors.

Joe Cook is radio's most frequent visitor to the New York ball parks. Joe's interest in baseball has been reflected in his Saturday night variety show. Practically every week there's a baseball celebrity on the program.

Somehow or other it is the maestra among the radio folk who get a lot of pleasure out of cooking fancy dishes in their own kitchens. Many symphony conductors are experts with the mixing spoons and the versatile Robert Emmet Dolan, musical director of the Sunday Night Party, knows no less than thirty-four ways to scramble eggs!

Raymond Paire, "Hollywood Hotel" maestro, who has furnished the musical background for more motion picture stars than any other radio orchestra leader, continues to refuse film offers.

Charles Vanda, whose work as west coast program director for CBS is attracting national attention, has a colorful background. Vanda at one time served as feature writer on one newspaper while holding down the berth of drama critic on another. He has written copy for a advertising agencies, toured Europe with a musical unit and was a magazine columnist.

Fred Grofe, who has taken over the Banker's Hour heard on the CBS network on Friday nights, plans to feature several of the numbers which elevated him to the ranks of one of America's foremost composers.

The eyes of aspiring girl vocalists of the nation are now being focused on the career of Trudy Wood. Six months ago, the petite warbler was just a member of a singing group heard with Johnny Green's orchestra. This month she was selected by Green to sing on the show he has taken over from Fred Astaire.

Pretty Jean O'Neill, feminine vocal star of "The Toc Revue," is called "the college boys' pet radio inspiration," by NBC attaches.

Radio fans who have long enjoyed the voice and personality of Harry Von Zell on the Phil Baker and Prec Allen programs were delighted when Harry was selected to emcee the CBS Sunday night summer show while Baker is in Hollywood. Von Zell is one of the most versatile men on radio, combining the talents of producer, announcer, actor and master of ceremonies.

MAY THANKS VOTERS

I take this method of thanking the people of this county for their support and influence in my race for sheriff. I can truthfully say I made a clean race without being out any money more than legitimate expenses. I feel proud, by receiving the vote I did, with the odds against me and fraud and money spent against me by some of my opponents. I received 1734 votes.

Respectfully,
LEE P. MAY.

Solves the Summer Supper

By BEULAH V. GILLASPIE
Director, Sealtest Laboratory Kitchen

TENDER, sweet summer squash stuffed with tasty creamed chicken. Maybe that won't make a hungry family sit up and take notice after a day outdoors. You'll serve it soon when you see how easy it is to prepare—and after one taste you'll know that here is a regular feature for summer menus.

CREAMED CHICKEN WITH SUMMER SQUASH
6 small summer squash 1 1/2 cups milk
4 tablespoons butter 1/2 cup chicken stock
Salt—Pepper

6 tablespoons 2 cups diced flour cooked chicken
Steam the squash until tender. Cut out the tops and take out the pulp. Invert to drain. Cut up the pulp, and cook until excess water evaporates. Melt the butter in a double boiler. Add the flour and mix well. Add milk and chicken stock gradually and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add chicken and squash pulp and season with salt and pepper and heat thoroughly. Sprinkle the insides of the drained squash with salt and pepper and fill with creamed chicken. Serves six.

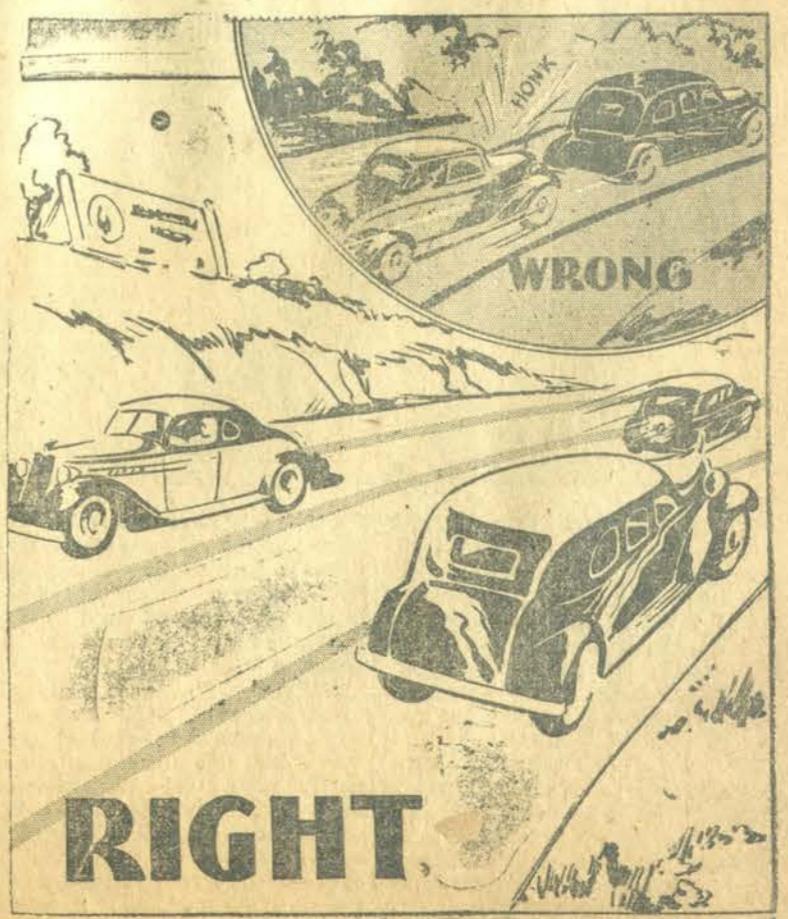

STEPHENS CONCEDES HILL NOMINATED

I want to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to the people of Floyd county, who so loyally supported me in the recent August primary for County Judge. Edward P. Hill has won the nomination over me by fifty eight votes and I want to still say to the public I will not contest him and I am for him 100 per cent and feel there is no doubt about his being elected this fall. I feel that Mr. Hill will make an excellent County Judge and will serve the people well.

I wish to further state, however, since my home and newspaper have been made an issue in this campaign and feeling that there is considerable feeling among the people generally against those who have acquired something, I now offer same for sale. I would never have entered this race in the beginning if the people of Left Beaver Creek had received the proper consideration from the State Highway Commission. My whole heart is for the people of this section and will be until they get an outlet. You all know that you will soon be traveling almost seventy five miles to cover less than two miles in this section. However from the vote I received in this section, evidently the people doubted my sincerity in their behalf. I am still working and will continue to do everything I can to further completion of this road.

Say, did you know there is one corporation in Floyd County that has saved approximately $200,000.00 within the last eight years in taxes? Let us hope that the people will again soon be represented. I believe under Edward P. Hill all the people will be represented and that both the rich and poor alike will receive a square deal and when the people have accomplished this purpose, they will be satisfied. Everybody get behind Edward P. Hill and make his term a success.

I am yours very truly,
HENRY STEPHENS, JR.

SADDLEBAGS, RETICULES CARPETBAGS, ETC.

Trunks on automobiles or even trailers themselves could hardly contain as many and as varied things as people used to carry in saddlebags and other popular containers.

The old-time carpet bag was much more ample and could be stretched to fabulous proportions. It came to be the badge of important travellers and similar in style to the aviation bag of our time.

In those earlier days we had trunks too, great big fellows that had to be packed skillfully and roped tightly to keep them from being torn all to pieces.

early college days. Some of my earlier schoolmates used to help pay their way thru college by hauling trunks, another passing institution, as you all know.

I cannot define reticule. I suppose it means any small container for necessary articles, usually carried along by a woman. There have been so many varieties since I could first remember that I should not attempt to list all of them.

The old-time carpet bag was much more ample and could be stretched to fabulous proportions. It came to be the badge of important travellers and similar in style to the aviation bag of our time.

out of style I felt when the telescope began to lose caste; I coveted the more stylish suitcase of the other fellows.

Mont St. Michel Tides Among World's Wonders

One of the fastest and strongest tides in the world ebbs and flows off Mont St. Michel in Brittany. With a deep moaning sound heard for miles, the tide flows, rushing back over the eight miles it has receded at ebb-tide and within a few minutes transforms about 100 square miles of ocean bed from a stretch of sand into turbulent sea.

The highest tides of the year occur before the spring and autumn equinoxes, when the Mont is entirely surrounded by water. At other times throughout the year at the new and full moon the tide also runs high, though not reaching the equinoctial records.

The granite islet of Mont St. Michel rises 250 feet. The quaint houses of the one-street village and the Gothic abbey and castle are surrounded by a medieval wall and towers.

In addition to the scenic lure of the Mont, there is the attraction of omelettes Poulard, cooked by a special method in a long-handled iron frying pan over an open fire, and Pre-Sale, which is the local variety of lamb, raised on the salt marshes. And besides these regional delicacies there is an abundance of sea food lobsters and fish.

Terms Used by Birdmen

Dog fanciers have nothing on bird students when it comes to strange sounding words of description. Most of the terms used by ornithologists are absolutely necessary in writing bird descriptions. For example, says a writer in the Washington Post, birdmen refer to the feathers covering the base of the quills on the wings and tail as coverts.

White Potato From America

The white potato was introduced into Ireland from this country. The Irish, however, were the first to recognize potatoes as a staple food. Sir John Hawkins, a slave-trader, carried some potatoes from Virginia to Ireland, about the year 1665, and Sir Walter Raleigh, who had estates in Ireland, in the county of Cork, began growing them on a large scale. He popularized them as food to such an extent that they became known as Irish potatoes.

Reservation in Hawaiian Islands

Since 1898, when the Hawaiian islands were annexed as an American territory, more than 27,000 acres have been set aside for army and navy reservations alone. Of this total 14,400 acres are being used for Schofield barracks, largest army post in the nation. In addition to these 27,000 acres, Hawaii National park, also owned by the Federal government, contains 118,225 acres. This park is located on the islands of Hawaii and Maui.

Baseball, English Game, Played as Early as 1744

Baseball was a popular children's game in England as early as 1744, 95 years before Abner Doubleday organized the first baseball team in America.

Robert W. Henderson, in the official bulletin of the New York public library, says of the game played in England nearly 200 years ago: "It was not rounders, nor one-old-cat, nor even four-old-cat. We repeat: a children's game called baseball, in which a player after striking a ball, ran round the bases until he reached 'home.'"

The evidence is found in a book well known to book collectors. For many years it was regarded as the first book issued for children by the first publisher of children's books. The claim has in recent years been proved erroneous, but the book is still cherished regardless of the fact that it is no longer established as the first in history.

Not alone was baseball made known to the children of the United States through the pirated juvenile books, but English children coming to this country with their parents, brought the game with them, and baseball was played here long before Abner Doubleday gave the game his attention at Cooperstown, N. Y. He outlined a more systematic type of play, according to J. A. Krout (Annals of American Sport), but he did not invent baseball; England did that.

Saint Sarah, Egyptian, Is Claimed by Gypsies

That Saint Sarah was a gypsy is the firm conviction of the nomad gypsy tribes of Europe. If Provençal legends are to be believed, says a correspondent in the New York Times, she landed at Saintes-Maries-de-la-Mer with the two holy women who gave their names to this village namely, Saint Mary Salome and Saint Mary Jacoby. Sarah was their servant, and all three are declared to have been personally acquainted with Jesus.

Since Sarah was an Egyptian, and since her skin was burnished, the gypsies adopted her as their own. She is their private saint. Further, their wanderings to Saintes-Maries have formed the subject-matter for poems, novels and folk songs.

Formerly, the gypsies "occupied" this Mediterranean village for four days; the first two for fasting and prayer, the last two for hilarity and amusement. Within the past century the number of days has been reduced to two, but the program remains unchanged.

During this two-day pilgrimage Saintes-Maries assumes unusual animation and color. Its population is magically increased and the historic hamlet becomes a chaos of dialects, melodies and costumes.

Early Veterinarians

Ancient Egypt, Greece and Rome had veterinarians. But then they concerned themselves with horses, the only animals deemed valuable enough to merit medical care. Most important to the ancients were their armies, and horses composed a big part of their armies. The first college for veterinarians was established in France in 1761; in America almost a century later. Then came the machine age, and horses lost their value. Veterinarians became fewer and fewer. But the recent increase of valued pet dogs and cats saved the profession. Veterinarians have their own medical association, and must study three or four years in a recognized college to become members. Student "vets" study all domestic animals, but often specialize in one, or even one breed of dogs.

"The Petticoat Candidate"

Gen. William Henry Harrison, first Ohio president, was called "the petticoat candidate" during his hard cider campaign of 1840, and here's how the nickname started: Before the battle of the Thames, several Indians, friends of the Americans, told Harrison that the British general, Proctor, had promised his Indian allies that he would turn Harrison over to them if the American general was captured. In turn, Harrison replied that if Proctor was captured, he would hand him over to the Indians on the American side so that they could dress him like a squaw. For this courageous response, a group of ladies presented Harrison with a petticoat that might be used as a starter if Proctor was captured, and later his opponents tried to make something out of this by labeling him "the petticoat candidate."

"Stink Birds"

Found only in northern South America, hoatzins (also called hoactzins) resemble pheasants, are brilliantly colored in olive, brown, buff and yellow. They exhale such a strong odor natives dub them "stink birds." Relics of prehistoric times, they are gradually losing their power of flight. Rounded, stubby wings permit them to fit only from branch to branch. They live near rivers and lakes, yet do not eat fish, but instead munch leaves and fruit. If the adult hoatzin is strange, the baby is even more so. Before it can fly at all, it climbs trees with sharp claws in the ends of undeveloped wings. It is also an excellent swimmer. Both these abilities are lost, however, as it grows up.

White-Headed Vultures Reach Age of 118 Years

Dr. A. D. Peacock, Professor of Natural History, Dundee university, in writing on the ages of animals and birds, says:

The potential longevity of the toad and frog may reach 36 and 12 to 16 years, respectively. A Japanese salamander has lived 40 years in the zoo.

Exact European records show 40 years for captive alligators. Experienced students believe that no great ages are attained in lizards and snakes.

For birds the figures tabulated are not exact in all cases, nor average, but as they relate to actual observations a certain value attaches to them. The figures represent years.

White-headed vulture, 118 (in captivity); parakeet, 120 probably (in captivity); parrot, 120, probably (in captivity); golden eagle, 104 to 150; falcon, 100 to 162; eider duck, 100; crow, 100; swan, 70 to 100; raven, 69 to 100; eagle owl, 68; heron, 60; goose and duck, 50 to 80; 57 certainly for the goose; ostrich, 50; crane, 43; pelican, 41; gulls, dove and sparrow, 40; hawks, 30 to 40; cuckoo, 32; oyster-catcher, 30; rhea, 30; cassowary, 26; skylark, 18 to 30; canary and peacock, 24; crane and goldfinch, 23 (in confinement); linnet, 23; magpie, 23; kiwi, 20; nightingale, 12 to 25; turkey, 16; pheasant and partridge, 15; pigeon, 10 to 20; hen, 10 to 30; robin, 12; thrush, 10; goatsucker and swift, 8 to 9; starling, 8 and wren, 2 to 3.

Siam's King Given Bath Before His Coronation

"May you reign for 120 years!" cries the chief priest at the coronation of a Shah of Persia. When the ceremony is over the Shah appears before his people seated on a marble throne brought from Shiraz. Surrounded by princes and ministers, he puts to his lips a pipe loaded with jewels instead of tobacco, then inquires as to the welfare of his people, and expresses his hopes for the future.

The date and time of the coronation of a king of Siam is fixed by his Brahmin astrologers. Before his coronation, writes a correspondent in London Answers Magazine, he has to endure a ceremonial bath seated on a dais, of which the four sides are square to the cardinal points of the compass. King and dais are enclosed by curtains, then the water is turned on. This is done no fewer than eight times, the king facing in a different direction each time, and getting a thorough soaking.

Then comes a blast of unearthly music from conch shells, during which the very wet king is dried and invested with his royal robes. He then receives the nine-storied umbrella from the Chief Brahmin, together with the crown, sceptre, sword, and other regalia.

Rice plays a very important part in Japanese coronations.

Crowds Kept Cool In Texas Hot Spot At Dallas Pan-American Exposition

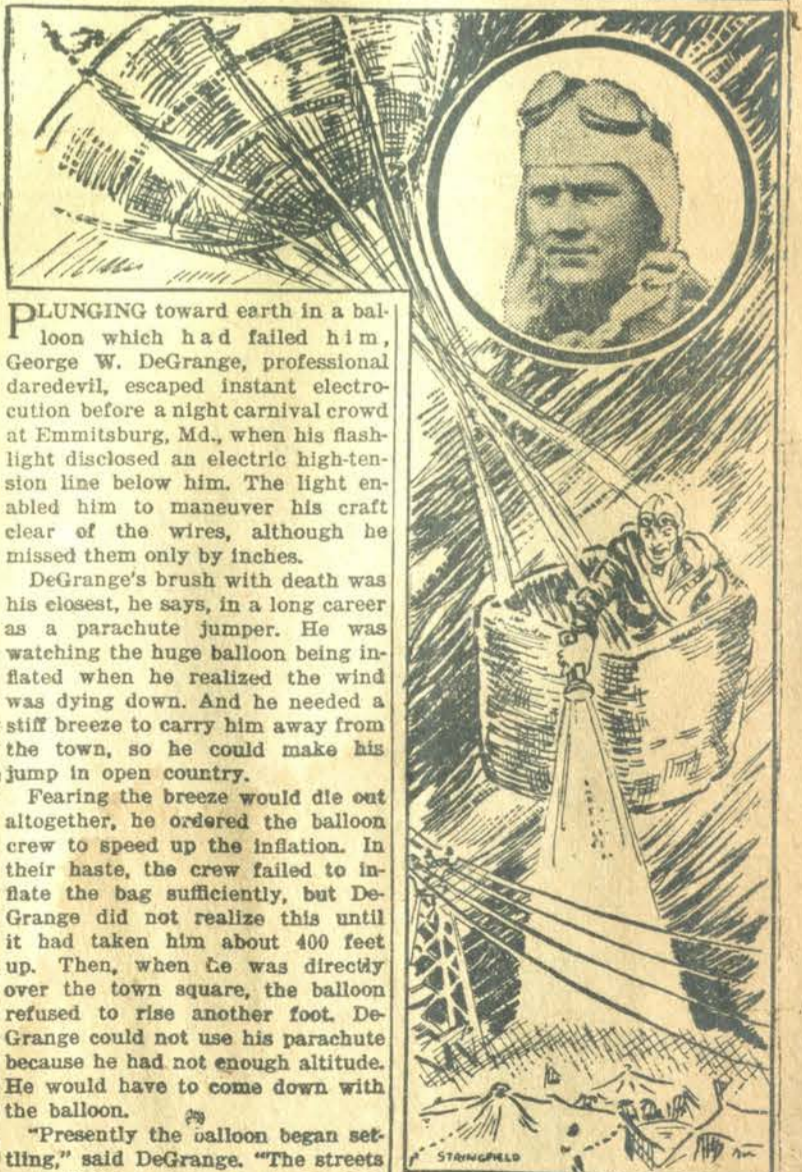

NO matter what the weather is outside, the merry-makers who throng to the Casino, immense night spot at the Greater Texas and Pan-American Exposition in Dallas, have no difficulty in becoming comfortable and remaining that way, once they are inside the building. Air conditioning creates ideal weather for the patrons, just as it does in trains, hotels, restaurants, stores and countless other locations throughout the country.

of the performers and other employees. Only one attendant is required, to keep the temperature and the humidity at correct stages and to maintain constant circulation of the purified, cool air throughout the immense building.

William B. Henderson, executive vice-president of the Air Conditioning Manufacturers' Association, declared that the Casino is one of the country's most conspicuous examples of the success with which weather can be "made to order" in any structure. Unaffected by changes in outside temperatures, some of the most famous entertainers in the country, including the internationally known dancers, Georges and Jalna, shown here, have thrilled many thousands in the air conditioned Casino.

Daredevil Faces Electrocuton In Air Before Big Carnival Crowd

PLUNGING toward earth in a balloon which had failed him, George W. DeGrange, professional daredevil, escaped instant electrocution before a night carnival crowd at Emmitsburg, Md., when his flashlight disclosed an electric high-tension line below him. The light enabled him to maneuver his craft clear of the wires, although he missed them only by inches.

DeGrange's brush with death was his closest, he says, in a long career as a parachute jumper. He was watching the huge balloon being inflated when he realized the wind was dying down. And he needed a stiff breeze to carry him away from the town, so he could make his jump in open country.

Long training in handling balloons and parachutes helped me out, but I never would have had a chance if that flashlight hadn't worked when I needed it, and if I hadn't made sure those batteries were fresh when I put them in. In escaping the wires, DeGrange landed in the top of a towering poplar tree, entangled in his parachute. Using his light, never, he worked himself free and down to safety, giving the carnival crowd its second thrill of the evening.

SYNOPSIS

Preparing to close her summer home and spend the winter in France with a great-aunt, Anne Vincent, a middle-aged widow, accedes to the pleas of her adopted daughter Rachel, twenty and pretty, that she tell her about her real mother, Anne, an unselfish, understanding soul, finds the task difficult. Rachel learns that her real mother was beautiful eighteen-year-old Elinor Malloy, deserted by her young husband, before Rachel's birth. He was killed in the World War. In desperate financial straits, Elinor had agreed to Rachel's adoption at birth by Anne, whose own baby had died. Elinor subsequently had married Peter Cayne, a wealthy New York business man, and had a son. To soften the story for Rachel, Anne omits telling her that her mother had been callous and selfish. Rachel goes fishing with Bob Eddis, a local boy who runs a library and does wood carving. She refuses his plea to stay in Rockboro and marry him instead of going to New York to look for a job. Anne decides that it is time for Rachel to learn more self-dependence. Rachel makes arrangements to stay in New York with "Pink," a keen, vivacious girl absorbed in her job. Anne leaves provision for Rachel's finances in case of need and leaves for Europe. Rachel, bent on seeing her real mother, looks up Elinor Cayne's number. Rachel learns the Caynes are not yet in town. Pink takes Rachel to dinner at Tom and Rhoda Steele's where she meets Oliver Land, a shabby genteel young man out of work who suggests that she apply for a job as a photographer's model for advertising illustrations. He agrees to introduce her to the head of an agency. Rachel is not entirely happy with Pink Matthews. Her desire to see Elinor Cayne increases. Through Oliver Land she meets Louis Vinco, is hired as a photographer's model and succeeds on her first assignment posing for furniture advertising. Oliver makes her feel her indebtedness to him.

Rachel knew better. Oliver hung around because she liked him and he liked her, very much; yet it was not as simple as that. Oliver was not a simple person. He might like her—very much—but he might also be willing to take that commission, though he never admitted it outright. Rachel didn't feel that she could offer money to him; if she did and he took it, it would change everything. Men shouldn't take money from women like that. Then Rachel would wonder what difference it made, it was all right to help a friend in trouble; what difference did it make whether the friend was a man or a girl? But sometimes she always balked her when she would speak to Oliver about money, she didn't quite trust his way. It seemed, though she hated herself for suspecting it, a bit too histrionic.

"Everything seems to be going nowhere, nothing happens that makes sense," she thought unhappily. "I might as well have stayed in Rockboro with Bob Eddis. I've done nothing at all about the one thing I wanted most, nothing." She looked at the clock. She must go to an appointment made for her by Vinco, photographs for an automobile company, she would sit, smiling gaily, in a long red roadster with a young man model beside her at the wheel, also smiling gaily because (supposedly) with the least amount of gasoline and the greatest amount of ease they were passing all the bigger grander higher-priced cars on the road! It bored Rachel to think of it.

CHAPTER VI

It turned out not to be a bore at all. The man model who sat beside her in the car was quite different from the usual Vinco brand. Rachel thought she had never seen him before but he told her she was mistaken. "I was there the first day you came," he said, "I've been hoping to see you again, but I'm not around very often. My name's Curt Elton. I know yours, you're Miss Vincent."

It reminded her a little of Bob Eddis, he was so offhand, yet personal in his look at her. He didn't seem like a model, he wasn't slick, he wasn't collegiate, he wasn't handsome and self-conscious. He was plain and rather gangling, with a square face and humorous intelligent eyes.

"This doesn't seem your game exactly," said Rachel, as he opened the door of the car for her.

"It isn't. But Louis Vinco comes from my home town in Ohio and used to go to school with my brother, and when anything comes along where I might possibly be used, he sends for me. He's a good scout, Louis."

They sat for awhile after this, following directions. Rachel tilted her profile and smiled her smiles. Curt Elton kept his hands on the wheel and gazed ahead intently yet confidently, like a good driver accustomed to speeding.

When the long ordeal was over Curt Elton waited while Rachel took off the sport outfit sent for the picture and put on her street clothes. "Will you go somewhere and have a cup of tea with me?—or a cocktail, if you'd rather. I'm hungry and you ought to be. Or are you one of the ladies who never eat for fear of spoiling the perfect figger?"

"I don't know if I'm a lady, I haven't heard the word for so long. But I certainly eat and I'd love some tea, for I'm dead."

Curt caught her arm as they passed an old-fashioned hotel.

"Let's stop in here, then. This place has good muffins and nice deep-cushioned chairs and they have real India tea, which should always be drunk, Miss Vincent, without any fixings—no sugar, cream, lemon or whatnot."

"Oh, I must have a tiny pinch of whatnot!" said Rachel; and then, "I don't know what makes me so silly. It must be because I'm tired."

It was early, there were few people in the tearoom. The tea and muffins were delicious and at first Curt and Rachel ate in the pleasant greedy silence of hunger. But at his second muffin Curt paused and spoke. "I'm awfully glad you came out with me. It was kind. I was afraid to ask you, really, for fear you'd turn me down."

"Well," said Rachel, reflectively, "it's the first time I've been out with one of Vinco's young men."

Curt stopped her with a shout. "Hey, lay off, I'm not one of Vinco's young men, God forbid. I'm just a country newspaper boy taking a sabbatical year to learn about the big city. And Louie Vinco, the good-hearted guy, throws a piece of easy money in my way as often as he can, because he worries about my finances. I'm not really hard up, but Louie thinks anything less than a plush suite and a private bath with valet attached is squalor. Needless to say, Louie didn't get those ideas in our native village."

"If you don't like being a model and don't need the money, why do you do it?" asked Rachel.

"But I just told you I'm a newspaper man and a comparative stranger in town. I want to know people, all kinds of people, and I want to do all kinds of things. This is my year off. When it's over I'm going back home and edit the paper my father edited." His face clouded for an instant, but he went on: "I'll have a lot of experience and a lot of pictures in my mind to keep forever. Like you, sitting there looking like, yes, you do—like Marlene Dietrich in 'Blue Angel.'"

"But What's It All About?"

"All legs and wispy ostrich feathers! Thanks! I can only hope you mean it kindly."

"Most girls would have screamed with joy."

"Then you've tried it before, that line?"

"It's my test. I say to a girl, 'You look like Marlene Dietrich in 'Blue Angel'' and watch how she reacts. Then I rate her, the count ranging from one-half of one per cent to ten."

"And what does the rating prove, Mr. Einstein?"

"It doesn't prove anything. The trouble is, I try to do this modern young man patter and it never works out, the girl doesn't give the right answers."

"Now that's all settled," said Rachel, "suppose we skip it and talk sense. How long have you been here?"

"Since the first of June. I have a room in the Caledonia where O. Henry used to live. I get a new job every two weeks or so and between times I work for Vinco. It's all against his principles to take me in this odd way, but he's intent on improving me and, do you know, sometimes I fear he's succeeding. I bought one of those deep blue shirts the other day from a swell haberdasher. I'm slipping."

"Tell me about your jobs," begged Rachel, "and don't take that last muffin, it belongs to me."

"I've driven a taxi, been a door-man for a chop suey joint, sold ladies' hosiery from door to door and delivered hats for a Fifth Avenue milliner so far. How's that? I'd like to get a job as a waiter, but there's a stiff union. I may do some amateur window washing, or janitor work, and I wait awfully to be an usher at Madison Square Garden."

"But what's it all about? Why do you try all this? Don't tell me you're writing a book."

"I might at that, a Worm's-Eye View of New York, maybe."

"It sounds grubby enough for a worm."

"Listen, my haughty beauty, in spite of the popular adage soap has very little to do with morals and none at all with interest of character, I know stacks of people who don't wash and don't shave much, but they're swell, nevertheless."

"Cleanliness combines very well with other attractions, though," Rachel maintained. "I must go on home," she continued, rising, "I'm going to get dinner tonight. Thanks ever so much for the tea. It's been fun." She was surprised that she was speaking the truth, the half hour with Curt Elton had reduced her discontent and pushed her difficulties into an easier perspective.

She stopped on the way home and bought mushrooms and bacon, limes and avocados, and as Pink was late she had dinner almost ready when the other came in. "Oh good!" exclaimed Pink. "I'm so glad we're going to have something here instead of going out. I'm so tired I'm sunk. What elegant food!"

Just as they sat down to table there was a ring at their bell and a florist's box came for Rachel. She opened it to find snapdragon and African daisies, all pale rose and orange and yellow, with a card saying "You look like these, not like Marlene," but no name was signed.

So she had to tell Pink about Curt Elton and Pink said he seemed a good scout. "And a lot better than that so-and-so Oliver Land, if you ask me," she added.

"There's nothing the matter with Oliver except that he can't get a job," said Rachel, annoyed by Pink's cocksureness. "Since when have you got a down on people because of that?"

"This Elton lad seems to have no difficulty in finding jobs," replied Pink, calmly.

"That's different, he's quite another type. Everyone's not so smart and up and coming as you are, Pink. We're not all made alike."

"And thank heaven for that. But I do like a man to earn his own living and not cadge it."

Rachel had a grievance she had not aired. It would now make a reprisal.

"I don't criticize your friends, Pink. Not that I think so much of them—there's that girl across the hall, she's been in here half a dozen times and always to borrow something, carfare or a hat or an evening dress—"

"Genie Moore is going to be a great singer some day and she's only got money enough to pay for her living and her lessons and I'm glad to help her along. She works like a horse and she's got to have decent clothes when she gets a chance to sing at a private house. I suppose you're still peeved because I loaned her your white evening dress. I wouldn't have done it if she could have worn mine. I had it cleaned for you, didn't I?"

"This doesn't need to be a brawl," said Rachel. "I certainly didn't like your lending my white evening dress without telling me, but—"

"It was a chance for her to sing as a substitute and I didn't have time to do anything else. I should think you'd want to help another girl along. Look here, I'll buy you another evening dress and you can give me the white one and I'll give it to Genie Moore."

"Certainly not," said Rachel, stiffly. She didn't want to quarrel with Pink. She had come home feeling better than in weeks, the flowers had added to her peace of mind, but now somehow she and Pink were fighting. Over what! Over Oliver Land. She went on after a minute: "I don't want to defend Oliver especially, you'll think I'm interested in him and I'm not, but you ought to be fair, Pink. He may be a great actor some day just as Genie Moore may be a singer."

"It's right to help Genie because she works and tries to help herself," blazed Pink. "Oliver Land's a loafer and a beat!"

Rachel got up and put on her hat and coat. "I'm going to the movies," she said, blindly. She stopped at the door, remembering that Pink was tired. "Leave the dishes, I'll wash them when I come in," she managed to say.

Her mood of discontent and loneliness had come back stronger than ever. She was, she thought, an utter failure. She sat in the nearest movie theater and watched the rearing comedy without seeing it, while all around her the audience chuckled and chortled. Finally, in the midst of the longest, loudest laughter she rose abruptly and went out. At the side of the theater foyer a telephone caught her eye. With sudden resolution she went in and dialed a number she knew by heart: R-E-4-5674, and as she heard the click of the connection and the far muffled ringing of the bell her heart began to swell and hammer painfully. A man's voice answered, a servant: "Yes, this is Mr. Peter Cayne's apartment . . . You wish to speak to Mrs. Cayne . . . What is the name, please, I will see if Mrs. Cayne is at home."

Rachel stammered painfully: "I—I don't want to give my name—please tell Mrs. Cayne it's—it's—someone she knew—a long time ago—"

The voice answered as if by rote: "What is the name, please, I will see if Mrs. Cayne is at home—"

"Ask her please to speak to me—she used to—know me—" begged Rachel.

There was a pause, and then, "Mrs. Cayne will speak to no one who does not give a name," and the receiver was hung up.

The shock of the rebuff cleared up a little of Rachel's disordered emotions. She walked home slowly, thinking that she had been incredibly absurd.

When she got back to the apartment Pink had washed the dishes—whether as a rebuke or a peace gesture, Rachel did not know—and shut herself in her room.

As she dashed around trying to dress and make coffee at the same time, the next morning, Rachel realized that Pink was still angry. She had not fixed any orange juice for Rachel or even cut the extra slice of bread ready for toasting, which the first one up usually left to help the later riser on her way. And yet Pink knew Vinco's stiffness about punctuality. Rachel hurried and burnt her fingers and cracked a glass and spilled the cream in the tiny refrigerator. At last she was ready but she had to take a taxi to the office, which was an extravagance. But when she came in, feeling bothered and fussed, there was Curt Elton talking to Mr. Vinco and his smile and greeting made her feel better. "Oh, those flowers!" she said. "They were so lovely. I can't tell you—"

"Never mind trying. Listen, I've had good news for me. All those auto pictures have to be made over, the photographer, poor nut, used the wrong plates or the wrong lens or something. I'm going to pin a medal on him."

"It's true, Miss Vincent," said Vinco. "You have to go back there as soon as you're through with one other appointment. You've got to model an evening wrap for a fur catalogue, but that's all."

Miss Dean was writing down the first appointment on a card and while she did it Rachel heard Vinco going on with his talk to Curt.

Geographers Say London Is Sinking Into the Sea; Inch Added in Year

London is sinking into the sea, so the Royal Geographical society tells us, and this year she has completed another inch in that seaward journey, reports a London correspondent in the Chicago Tribune.

London has sunk 80 feet in all, but it has taken 5,000 years to do it. It has not sunk at a regular rate either, but by fits and starts, and the Royal Geographical society says that the "next 50 years are likely to show startling changes."

"There are many ways in which geologists can ascertain what has happened in the past and forecast with reasonable accuracy what is likely to happen in the future. There is a historical check on many things."

For instance, in the reign of Henry VIII, Cardinal Wolsey built the Bridewell palace on the embankment at Blackfriars. He would not be likely to build a palace where the ground floor would be flooded at every high tide. Yet that is where the palace was. When they were laying the foundations for Unilever house, which stands on the site of the old Bridewell palace, the palace wharf was found to be seven feet below the ordinary high tides of today.

Geologists say that London has not sunk the usual amount every decade. There was a period of about 200 years when the subsiding ceased and then there occurred such a quick sinking that wide areas were flooded.

A tide only 15 feet above the spring level would submerge most of the city today.

London's danger comes from the sea up the river, rather than from the sources down, as is the case with American floods.

DRIFT BEATS SHELBY 9-2 IN LEAGUE GAME

Drift Continues to Lead the Big Saady League
Big Sandy League in Wins

(By "Shikepoke")

The "Gas House Gang" of Drift with their "Murderer's Row" functioning perfectly, humbled the Shelby nine at Drift, Sunday, 9 to 2, to retain their league lead.

The Drift team collected 9 hits while L. Stumbo was holding Shelby's sluggers to two.

Ted Stumbo doubled Vincent home in the first inning and came back in the third to lash out another two run hit, scoring Vincent and M Stumbo.

Shows pinch hitting for Akers in the eighth, with two on and two out, hit another two run bingle.

Milton Stumbo, the Medwick of the Big Sandy league hit a triple in the seventh with two on, and scored a moment later on Ted Stumbo's long fly to center.

Young Lloyd Stumbo continued his great pitching by completely handcuffing Shelby's sluggers. While allowing only two hits, he downed 12 via the strikeout route. By virtue of their victory, Drift continues to lead the Big Sandy League.

Drift goes to Wheelwright for a game August 15, and plays Pikeville at Pikeville August 22, in two games that promise to be red hot encounters.

German Race Uses More Than Twenty Dialects

In describing Germany, Julius Caesar called that part of the country inhabited by the lowland tribes Germany Inferior, or Lower Germany, and the more elevated regions to the south and southeastward, Germany Superior. In time the linguistic designations of Low German and High German were applied to the dialects used by the inhabitants of these two regions.

There are more than twenty distinguishable dialects in the speech of the common people of the Teutonic or German race. These dialects shade into one another, observes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the difference increasing according to separation, traveling on a line from the highlands of southern and southeastern Germany toward and through the lowlands bordering the North Sea and the Lower Elba.

The Low German language comprehends several dialects of the north of Germany as well as the Frisian, Dutch and Flemish dialects, while the High German dialects are usually classified in two divisions as South German and Middle German. But since the time of Luther, whose translation of the Bible into what is known in literature as new High German, in distinction from the cruder literary language of the antecedent old High German, all these dialectic differences have been rapidly dying out, and are perpetuated only in the spoken language of the lower peasantry.

Of the Low German dialects, the old Frisian is practically extinct. Dutch is the national language of Holland, more correctly the Netherlands, and has a literature of its own, while Flemish has given way to the language of northern Belgium and by more than 200,000 people in the Nord department of France.

Goldfish Are Produced by Selective Breeding

Goldfish as we know them do not exist anywhere in the wild state. They are a product of long years of selective breeding. The wild fish from which goldfish were developed belong to the carp family and are numerous in the streams of China. They do not naturally have the golden hue, but are dark in color, much like ordinary carp, although the species tends toward albinism.

Centuries ago the Chinese fish culturists interbred light-colored specimens and produced many beautiful varieties. Fanciers further induced and strengthened the golden and silvery colors by regulating the quantity of mineral in the water.

When goldfish are restored to a natural environment, says a writer in the Indianapolis News, they often revert to the original dark color after a few generations. It is supposed that goldfish were introduced into England in 1691. Some of the first specimens sent to France were presented to Mme. de Pompadour, mistress of Louis XV. Goldfish are produced in large commercial aquariums.

Most Valuable Wood

Teak is the most valuable of all known timbers. For use in tropical countries it has no equal, and for certain purposes it is preferable to other wood in temperate climates, according to Tit-Bits Magazine. Teak has great strength, elasticity, and remarkable durability. It is not very hard, is easily worked, and takes a beautiful polish. The average weight of a perfectly-seasoned piece of teak wood is between 38 and 46 pounds per cubic foot. Once seasoned, it does not crack, shrink, split or alter its shape. Teak grows in India, Burma, Siam, the Philippine islands, and the Malay archipelago. The trees are about 100 feet to 150 feet high, and 2 feet thick when full-grown. They often produce leaves 2 feet long by 1 foot wide, which the natives use for thatching and wrapping bundles. The leaves contain a red dye once used in treating silk and cotton.

States and Shore Line

The United States coast and geodetic survey lists only seacoast and not the coast of the Great Lakes. Florida has 399 miles of coastline on the Atlantic and 798 miles on the Gulf of Mexico, a total of 1,197 miles of seacoast. California is listed second with 913 miles of seacoast. In tidal shore line (including islands) Florida has 2,276 miles of shore. Though according to the methods of the coast and geodetic survey Maine has only 228 miles of coast line (without islands). If all the indentations are measured that state would have about 3,000 miles. Michigan has a total of 1,715 miles of coastline on the Great Lakes, including 905 miles in the Upper peninsula and 810 miles in the Lower peninsula.

Father of Experiment Stations

Norman Jay Colman (1827-1911) is sometimes called the father of the experiment stations because he was the author of the Hatch bill which authorized their creation in the states and territories. As commissioner of agriculture under President Cleveland he succeeded in raising the bureau of agriculture to an executive department represented in the cabinet. He was the first secretary of agriculture and was editor of Colman's Rural World, a Missouri farm paper.
