Walter Burke Dies in Wreck Between Auxier and East Point Wednesday

FIREMAN BADLY HURT

Foggy visibility and a rock and earth slide on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad between Auxier and East Point, caused a trainwreck about 12:35 a. m. Wednesday morning, that took the life of Walter Burke, 50, veteran engineer, and critically injured Dave Corder, fireman. Duke Sherman, 40, brakeman, escaped with a scalded arm.

Reports state that the train wrecked a coal shifter, was unable to stop before smashing into the debris which littered the tracks as the result of heavy rainfall on the hillside. The engine, with all men in the cab, was derailed to the river's edge. Eight cars followed Burke, who lives in West Point, was killed at the scene. It is said he was long enough to reach an engine but slightly injured.

Who lives in West Point, a brother in law, of Prestonsburg, was taken to the hospital Wednesday.

Dave Corder, who is also in the hospital, in a serious condition.

Water was used to clear the wreckage of the mining assembly coal cars from the yard.

Damage was removed to allow delayed traffic to continue.

HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER

Now it came to pass in the reign of the good probam Judge Akers, that in quarterly court Monday a man sat on a jury at his brother's trial, and fined his brother the sum of $10. And as both of these brothers were nicknamed 'Shine,' great was the bewilderment amongst the spectators. Yea verily, 'twas so.

And it happened in this wise: Henry (Little Shine) Hall had been haled into court for a minor offense, and prior to his trial, his brother, 'Big Shine' Hall was selected for jury service.

And lo, Little Shine did not appear at the trial. His guilt was assumed and with Big Shine as one of the jurors, Little Shine's fine was set at the maximum. And when the spectators attempted to ascertain the identity of these brothers, great was the head scratching thereof.

FOUR CONTEST CASES ARE FILED AGAINST ELECTION WINNERS

Wayne Stumbo, Mell Petry, and Willie Hall Named in Suits

Four contest suits have been filed in the Floyd circuit court clerk's office as an aftermath of the recent August 7 primary election. All contests charge the winning candidates with illegal tactics.

The nomination of Wayne Stumbo for county sheriff on the Democratic ticket is contested by J. B. (Jim) Hall and Lee P. May in two separate suits. Election returns gave Stumbo 2845 votes; Hall, 170 and May, 1671.

Nomination of Mell Petry, Democrat, for Representative, is contested by Alex L. Martin, who received 1145 votes. Petry received 2185.

The only suit filed in the magisterial election was that of R. L. Holbrook against Willie Hall, winning Democratic candidate in Dist. No. 3. Hall received 359 votes and Holbrook, 342.

Contest cases filed by Jonathan Fitzpatrick, defeated democratic candidate for jailer, and John S. Layne, republican candidate for county attorney, have been settled. Circuit Court Clerk Troy Sturgill announced Thursday.

Aged Man Is Murdered As He Sleeps In Shanty

Robert D. Callihan, 65, Is Beaten To Death On Blood Spattered Bed. Officers Launch Manhunt For Killer

With the finding of the battered body of Robert D. Callihan, 65 years old in a blood spattered bed at Garrett, last Friday, another cruel chapter has been added to the annals of Floyd county crime.

Callihan had apparently been struck several times with head crushing blows as he lay asleep in his bed. The coroner's jury held that he died from blows wielded with a blunt instrument by person or persons unknown.

Callihan had been dead for about 30 hours when found in the Rock Fork shanty of Bob Keffer, Garrett miner, with whom he had been making his home. Since the finding of the body, Floyd county officers have been conducting an extensive search for Keffer who was probably the last person to see Callihan alive.

Mystery, worthy of a detective story, surrounds the death of the aged man. Callihan was reported to be a friendly person who was not known to have any enemies. He had been in Garrett only a few days since leaving his home in Ashland to seek work in the mines, despite his age.

Officers at Grayson, Sunday night, reported the arrest of a man suspected to be Bob Keffer who is wanted for questioning in the murder, but Deputy Sheriff Elson Kendrick upon his return from Grayson Monday revealed that the arrested man was not Keffer.

Deputy Sheriff S. A. Collins said that there was a report at Garrett that "Keffer was last seen on Salt Lick, drunk."

It is also reported that Keffer and Callihan engaged in an argument Wednesday over the Bible.

Funeral services for Callihan were conducted at his home in Ashland, Sunday afternoon.

CLINIC IS SCHEDULED FOR CRIPPLED YOUTH SPECIAL JUDGE BACH DECIDES COURT SUIT

Free Diagnostic Clinic Will Be Held Here Sept. 9. In Church

Miss Marian Williamson, director, Ky. Crippled Children Commission, has just announced that a free diagnostic clinic for crippled children will be held in the Presbyterian church, Prestonsburg, on Thursday, September 9. The counties included are Floyd, Johnson, Magon and Martin.

The clinic will be conducted by the Kentucky Crippled Children Commission, which administers a state and federal appropriation for the treatment of physically handicapped children under 18 years of age whose parents are unable to pay for such treatment.

Assistance in promoting the clinic and in locating new cases in need of attention will be given by Rotary, Kiwanis and Woman's Club and the county health department.

Judge Hears Case of Beaver Valley Against Stumbo At Hindman

Special Judge Chester A. Bach, of Jackson, Monday entered a judgment in the case of Pikeville Clinic against Dr. W. L. Stumbo and Anna Stumbo.

The court denied the claim of the Beaver Valley hospital to enjoin the Stumbo Memorial hospital from soliciting or receiving any patients not included in assigned contracts from Floyd county, and in all other respects denied the relief asked for by the plaintiffs against the Stumbos; also the court did not pass on or decide the question of the breach of the contract on which question most of the testimony was introduced by parties.

Judge Bach heard most of the testimony in this case in open court, and hundreds of witnesses testified. The preparation and trial of the case has extended over a period of several months.

M. E. Church Prepares For Closing of Year: Rev. Tyler to Preach

With the annual conference just two weeks ahead, the local Methodist Church is astir with activity in getting ready reports, bringing in finances, and putting things in order generally for the closing of the year's work.

Rev. H. F. King is completing his third year as pastor of the church and according to a statement made by him, this year has been the best of the three. Increased attendance at the church services has been a very important sign of growth in the congregation.

Rev. Tyler, presiding elder of the Ashland district, will preach Sunday morning. The business meeting of the quarterly conference will be held some time during his visit. Rev. and Mrs. Tyler will arrive Friday afternoon and will remain over Sunday. They will be guests at the parsonage.

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT TO CONVENE HERE SEPT. 6: JUDGE HANNA TO RETURN

Approximately 50 cases will be called September 6, when the Floyd circuit court convenes here for its regular September term, the circuit court clerk's office announced this week.

The major part of the felony cases will be heard later in the term, court attaches announced. The first few days will largely be taken up with misdemeanors.

Judge Hanna, of Ashland, who has been serving as special judge in this court, will return here to preside over civil and special cases, while Circuit Judge John W. Caudill will preside over criminal cases.

Judge Caudill said that in addition to the selection of grand and trial jurors the first day of court he would immediately begin hearing cases.

POLICE CHIEF SLAIN BY SHOTGUN BLAST FROM DRUNKEN MAN

Posse Scours Hills Sunday Night for Alleged Killer, Who Fleed

REWARD FOR KILLER

A blast from a 16 gauge shotgun Sunday at 8:30 p. m. took the life of Levi Hall, 45, police chief at McDowell, this county. Officers immediately began a manhunt for Matt Jones 35, who allegedly wielded the shotgun.

Authorities claim Police Chief Hall attempted to send Jones, who was drunk, home. The last time Jones was asked to go home, he cursed Hall, witnesses report, and said that he was going home after his shotgun.

As Hall was patrolling McDowell's streets near his home, Jones drove by in his car and discharged the full contents of a 16 gauge shell into Hall's abdomen. Hall collapsed into the arms of his step-son.

Jones immediately drove off. A posse hurriedly organized, found his abandoned car, the motor still running, about four miles from McDowell. Officers then began searching the hills. As the shotgun was not found in the car, it is known that Jones is armed.

A near all night search by deputy sheriffs Elson Kendrick, W. A. Wills and Constables Epp Laferty, Sol Warrick, John B. Laferty, Ab Bryant, and others whose names are unavailable, proved fruitless. Officers state that a close watch, however, is being maintained to apprehend the killer.

Funeral services for Mr. Hall were conducted at Clear Creek, Tuesday at 11 a. m., by the Revs. Aaron Pack.

M. E. Church Sponsors "Ding Dong Dumb Bell" at Abigail, August 31

Sponsored by the Methodist Church, home town players are now rehearsing for a play, "Ding Dong Dumb Bell," to be presented at the Abigail theatre, Tuesday, Aug. 31.

Franklin Moore and Louise Culbertson as blackface students, assure hilarious entertainment. They will be assisted by members of the same cast that played in the recent comedy given by the church.

Special numbers will be a feature of the evening.

Merchants Make Favorable Statements For Association

Six merchants, interviewed haphazardly, on Thursday morning, each made a statement favoring the proposed Merchants' Association for Prestonsburg and Floyd county. At a future Kiwanis meeting, details of organization will be worked out.

Mr. Cohen of the Leader Store said, "Such an organization will allow merchants to cooperate with each other, thereby giving better values to the customers. As a civic organization, the group will endorse all movements benefiting the farmers, laboring men, and the town and county as a whole."

Mr. Selb of the People's Store stated, "From my past experience, I believe that such an organization for Prestonsburg, if correctly organized, with the cooperation of other civic bodies, exert much influence toward the building of Left Beaver's roads and other improvements in Floyd county." Mr. Selb added that such an association would enable one merchant to help another.

M. J. Leebe, Jr., favored the proposed association with the statement "I'm for it!"

Mr. Hughes of the J. B. Dick Stores said, "We've been needing such an organization to give customers better service for some time."

Mr. Bailey of Bailey's Grocery said: "Merchants will never prosper as they should until they can cooperate not only with each other, but with the customers as well. I'm ready for the association any time."

Gordon Francis of Francis' Cash Store, said "Such an organization will enable us to look forward to cooperative dollar days, when we can give our customers money saving bargains."

Joe Di Maggio Will Have a Tough Time Busting Bam's Mark

I WAS just wondering:

If Joe Di Maggio has anything more than a faint chance to beat Babe Ruth's home run record of sixty in a season?

The kid's good. He's probably the best two-year-old performer in big time history. He slaps a baseball with authority. American league pitching is of inferior variety. He gets better day by day.

That's all on the credit side. The other side of the ledger is heavily red-inked with the names of Wilsons, Gehrigs, Hornsby and other broad-backed lads whose August marks and ambitions were similar to Joe's.

September licked them. Ruth had seventeen home runs during that month of his eventful 1927 season. He undoubtedly was in a hitting streak and he also was the Babe, a guy accustomed to performing magic.

Yet, there was more than a suspicion at the time that pitchers were helping him out a bit.

Not deliberately tossing him home run balls, you know, but laying fast ones down the middle instead of working the corners. Pitching to him in spots where, during the early season when the pennant race amounted to something, they would not have permitted his bat to come within a foot of a good ball.

That, so dugout gossip ran, was because he was a swell guy and was aiming at a record which would stand for all time and could only be made by him anyhow.

Nothing you could put your finger on maybe and, in fact, nothing wrong with it even if you could establish any truth in the gossip. But baseball authorities did do a bit of serious thinking and strong hinting to their aides at the time.

So—but even though that 17 in September has stumped all the Gehrigs, Hornsby and Wilsons since then, there's no harm in trying. Joe's a great kid as well as a great ballplayer. Along with Ruth and a few million other fans I say "more power to him."

Dodgers on Downgrade: 1937 Prospects Poor

What is going to happen to Burleigh Grimes next season even if the present owners do continue to flout the best interests of baseball by holding onto the Dodgers?

While wondering, I am not trying to rap the unshaven gentleman who has managed to get himself thrown out of almost as many ball games as his team has won this season. But facts are facts.

A few of these facts are that the Dodgers are not as strong and as interesting as they were twelve months ago. The hustling spirit displayed in late July, August and September of 1936 is missing in spite of front office manipulated ballyhoo to the contrary.

The now ailing Mungo, one or two other pitchers for whom Stengel took the blame last year while preparing them for future stardom, Manush and English, veterans with one final flash left in them, have sustained the club.

The truth is that the club is worse off so far as developing material for a winner next season than it was in 1936. The truth also is that the front office is more interested in applauding the rowdy behavior of its special policemen and in hounding little boys who chase baseballs in the bleachers, than it is in improving for 1937.

So I am wondering about Burleigh and his sad International Leaguers. Stengel was fired and still is being paid the $15,500 due him on his contract, because his team played the second best ball in the league from July 4 until October 1, 1936.

National league ball players are beginning to doubt the infallibility of Umpire Bill Klem's decisions. They continue to plug Dolly Stark as the best in the business except when he gets excited. Beans Reardon's work behind the plate, Babe Pinelli's snappy doings on the bases and George Magerkurth's all-around capabilities are words.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

THERE is a map of the United States in Bill Terry's Polo grounds office with red pins marking each city or hamlet that has a ball club. . . . Are Sonja Henie and Promoter Jeff Dickson about to indulge in a 50-G lawsuit? And, if so, what's it all about? . . . Keep an eye on little Jane Stanton, California's latest gift to tennis. There are those who insist she will be even better than Jacobs or Marble within another year and anyhow it will be a treat for your eyes just looking at her.

American horse owners are doing well by themselves abroad. J. E. Widener's two-year-old, Unbreakable, won his third straight in the Richmond Stakes and Ralph B. Strassburger's Firozapore whipped the best sprinters in Great Britain at Goodwood recently. . . . When the first international yacht race was held between Great Britain and the United States the British took one look at the America, visiting boat, and absolutely refused to bet. That may seem strange behavior for citizens who boast of their sportsmanship, but it also was wisdom. Although the home team made everything as tough as possible for the visitors, America won easily.

Jimmy Dykes knows that he will have to trade some of his pretty pitchers next winter for a catcher and outfield power to catch the Yankees in 1938. . . . Prettiest pitcher of the lot is Monty Stratton, who throws overhand, sidearm, underhand and very well. . . . Coach Billy Webb of the White Sox is almost as accomplished a sign-stealer as Detroit's Del Baker. . . . You don't want sign-stealers when you play the Yankees, though. . . . You want howitzers.

Ted Broadbribb, manager of Tommy Farr, claims to have another heavyweight who some day may be considerably better than the Welshman. This new sensation is still an amateur but he is an Irishman and his father is a cousin of Gene Tunney's mother. His name—Lydon—was Mrs. Tunney's maiden name. . . . When the wealthy young Dunbar W. Bostwick drove his Hollywood Audrey in the Hambletonian at Goshen recently he was the second amateur ever to compete in the classic. The first was John L. Dodge of Lexington, Ky. . . . Mid-weekly nomination for the world's worst bungling sports organization—the United States Golf association.

Yankees Helped Giants Get Blondy Ryan

The Giants freely admit that they never would have been able to get Blondy Ryan without the assistance of the Yankees. After Terry had been stymied on the deal for two weeks the Yanks bought Blondy from Milwaukee, ostensibly for their Kansas City farm, then sold him to their National league rivals. . . . If Joe Stripp behaves himself and hustles he may be a Giant next season. . . . Jimmy Ripple Blondy Ryan probably will be put on the trading block this winter. . . . Does the sudden appointment of Babe Hamberger as road secretary mean that the Dodgers really are going to be sold? Usually well-informed baseball people are saying that it does and that Business Manager John Gorman is staying at home to get the books in shape, a job which he does superlatively.

Cleo Locatelli, the welterweight, writes from his home in Italy that Il Duce is readying several more good box fighters to come over here and collect next winter. . . . Every member of the A's, from Connie Mack down to the bat boy, has been sick or injured at one time or another this year. . . . Wes Ferrell is planning to enter the movies in the fall. . . . Pitcher Jimmy DeShong wants to tour the country with his own band when he's through with baseball. Even now he carries 100 records of his favorite songs so that he can entertain himself when the Washington club is on the road.

Tip from a veteran and well-informed minor leaguer—"That claim about Newark stepping into the National league and finishing in the first division is overrated. The International league is very overslay this year." . . . Ball players say that the White Sox infield is the worst kept in the American league. . . . The high moguls (nasty men call them dumb bunnies) of the U. S. G. A. should take a lesson from the lack of interest being displayed by local golfers in this year's amateur championship.

Zeke Bonura indignantly denies rumors that he eats spaghetti for breakfast each a. m. The big first baseman says he has had eggs every morning since he joined the White Sox. . . . While the smaller clubs continue to suffer, close to 100,000 cash customers have witnessed the popular price fights at the Garden this summer. . . . One of Joe Medwick's Jersey neighbors and pals reports Dizzy Dean as definitely headed for the Giants next year. Says teammates believe all the Great Man's carryings on of the past few months are merely the build up. In other words, Branch Rickey, master manipulator of the Reds, is going to get the St. Louis Cardinals.

THE AMAZING New Firestone GROUND GRIP TIRE

PROVIDES GREATER DRAWBAR PULL, GREATER TRACTION AND SAVES MORE TIME AND FUEL

NEWS of the amazing performance of the NEW Firestone Ground Grip Tire is sweeping rural America. Farmers everywhere who have seen this new tire are so enthusiastic about it that sales have been climbing steadily upward and production has been greatly increased to meet the demand.

Why all this enthusiasm? Those of you who have seen the new Firestone Ground Grip Tire in action know the answer. Tests show that it will pull a three-bottom plow under soil conditions where other makes of tires can pull only a two-bottom plow. The re-designed tread gives greater traction and better self-cleaning action. It will not pack the soil—in fact, it leaves a mulch on the surface of the tread track that prevents rapid evaporation of moisture in the soil. These tests also show up to 30% more available drawbar pull on dry sod, up to 40% more on dry plowed ground, up to 50% more on wet plowed ground than with any other tire tested.

Only in Firestone Tires do you get so many patented extra-quality features. The Ground Grip Tread is patented and is made of specially compounded rubber which resists the action of sun, rain and snow. Gum-Dipping is a patented Firestone Process, by which every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber which gives added strength to resist the strain of heavy pulling. The Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords under the tread are patented. This Firestone construction feature binds the tread and cord body into one inseparable unit.

You want and need ALL these features. Only Firestone has them! See this new tire at your nearest Firestone Implement Dealer, Tire Dealer or Auto Supply & Service Store today.

Sunday School Lesson

GOD CONDEMNS INTEMPERANCE

International Sunday School Lesson for August 29, 1937

Golden Text: -Wine is a mocker, strong drink a brawler; and whosoever erreth thereby is not wise.—Prov. 20:1.

Some may wonder just what connection the first reference given above may have with a temperance lesson. The two verses tell of the punishment which came to the two sons of Aaron, Moses' brother, because they presumed to offer "strange fire" unto Jehovah when it had not been commanded by him. As a result of this ill advised action, both were consumed by the fire and died. Why or how their offering offended, we are not told, but from the inference in verse 9, of the same chapter, it may be assumed that they were under the influence of wine when the offering was made. If this inference is correct, then we do not wonder at the anger of God toward Nadab and Abihu, who had been that day consecrated to the priesthood.

In Leviticus 10:9 Jehovah specifically commands Aaron that he and his sons, shall "drink no wine nor strong drink, when ye go into the tent of the meeting." This is the first word of the Lord against the drinking of alcoholic beverages recorded in the Bible, and is spoken directly to Aaron. Alexander Maclaren says, "Nothing has more power to blur the sharpness of moral and religious insight than even a small amount of alcohol. God must be worshipped with clear brain and naturally beating heart. Not the fumes of wine in which there lurks almost the tendency to excess, but the being filled with the spirit supplies the only legitimate stimulus to devotion. Besides the personal reason for abstinence, there was another—namely, that only so could the priests teach the people the statutes of Jehovah. Lips stained from the wine cup would not be fit to speak holy words. Words spoken by such would carry no power. Our lives must witness to the eternal between good and evil if we are to draw men to 'abhor that which is evil, and cleave unto that which is good.'"

Not only are the priests or ministers of God forbidden to drink wine, but those persons in places of authority should refrain from all intoxicating beverages. Proverbs 31:4, 5 reads as follows: 'It is not for kings O Lemuel, it is not for kings to drink wine, nor for princes to say, Where is strong drink? Lest they drink, and forget the law and pervert the justice due to any that is afflicted.' Surely this warning from the Word of God is clear to any who reads. Drinking on the part of those whose hands are on the reins of government might cause them to forget the law of the land and to be unjust to those who are in trouble. Alcoholic drinks becloud the mind and rob one of sane judgment.

Everyone knows that history is full of lessons which should teach nations that intemperance and debauchery eventually bring about destruction. A careful search through the annals of time will repeat at intervals the story of a many people, victorious and conquering, only to be practically destroyed in a few generations by evil habits and intemperance. A warning against just such a situation is given by the great prophet Isaiah to the people of Ephraim, who, it seemed, were exceedingly corrupt. In the first six verses of the 28th chapter of Isaiah he denounces the drunkards of Ephraim and predicts the speedy downfall of their beautiful city of Samaria. In the next two verses, he points his arrow at the tribe of Judah and declares that they are just as corrupt, being no less conquered by wine than the people of the Northern Kingdom. In words that paint a graphic picture of conditions, sparing nothing, Isaiah warns against the destruction, which inevitably follows such abandonment to worldly pleasure, to the utter disregard of the things of God.

Our lesson closes with the words of Paul to the Romans, who were having an argument among themselves about what they could or should not do in the matter of eating meat which had been offered to idols. Paul's injunction to these people is an injunction to all Christians today in the matter of abstinence from all forms of intemperance. It said "It is not good to eat flesh nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth." He lays down the great principle of abstinence for the sake of others.

H. Jouett declares, 'I am not only responsible for my life, but for its influence. I am therefore to consider both my deeds and their influence. How does my life trend when it touches my brother? In what way does he move because of the impact of my example? Toward liberty or toward license? To the swamps of transgression or the fields of holiness? These are determining questions, and I must not seek to escape or ignore them. My brother is a vital part of my life. I must never shut him out of my sight. How is he influenced by my example? If meat make my brother to stumble, I will eat; no flesh while the world standeth.'

What a wonderful change would come over our communities and the nation if every man and woman, tempted to indulge in questionable pleasures would be willing to consider and accept the responsibility of his or her influence and abstain from even the appearance of evil for the sake of its probable effect upon others.

Science Predicts a New Race of Sun Worshippers

Terraced parked streets with the streets heated and cooled by the control of man-made solar radiations, and buildings of glass, shaped to admit a maximum of sunlight, form the basis for this city of 2000 A.D. The lower view shows a sports terrace high up on a building where radiant heat, or the man-made solar radiations, are broadcast and received like radio waves, to provide year-round sports outdoors. Drawn by Max Feldman and Olindo Grossi, architects, the designs for the city were shown in New York City recently at the opening of the combined showrooms of 14 building industry companies of American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corporation.

COMpletely discarding former concepts of the city of the future in which taller and taller buildings predominated, a new city has just been projected in which size and intricate mechanics are supplanted by a scientific application of natural and artificial sunlight to broaden the living scope. Shown in New York City recently by the Sixth Avenue Association, at the opening of the world's largest building industry showroom by 14 companies of the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corporation, the designs for the city speculate on the application by the year 2000 of scientific facts recently discovered.

To increase the use of natural sunlight, a new glass that admits 85 per cent of the sunlight but is not transparent, is utilized in the construction of specially shaped towers that are faced into the sun. Street frontage is retained but sunlight is admitted to all streets by setting the towers back with garden terraces that also serve to park the street, about one and a half or two stories high.

Artificial sunlight is utilized by broadcasting and receiving from plates along the street radiant heat or the heat ray, which is similar to heat given off by the sun, to warm and cool people without warming or cooling the air.

Already applied in a modified form for the more advanced types of air conditioning, these rays can be transmitted through the ether as is a radio wave, and on special terraces in the residential section, they are used to provide both winter and summer sports throughout the year, with skating shown in the designs on an upper level, and tennis, swimming, basketball, and other sports below.

Open air theatres are heated and cooled with the rays, and on the parked terraces just above the street they are transmitted from special broadcasters and receivers to provide outdoor dining cafes in both winter and summer.

Drawn by two architects, Max Feldman and Olindo Grossi, winner of the Prix de Rome in 1933, the only point in the center of buildings where sunlight does not reach is utilized for a parking area connected to arterial underground highways, and equipped with compressed-air conditioning.

Cross streets are at a lower level than avenues with underpasses of glass to eliminate intersections.

DIPHTHERIA

Diphtheria is a dangerous, catching disease that causes the death of many children. It often comes on with only slight symptoms, such as sore throat, chilliness, a little fever or aching pains and may be mistaken for tonsillitis or laryngitis or some other less serious ailment. Yet, even when the symptoms are slight there is great danger.

Little Children in Greatest Danger

Children are most defenseless against the disease, especially those under five. The very young child is not only more likely to take diphtheria but also more apt to die of it than are older children.

A Disease No Child Need Have

No child need have diphtheria. It can be prevented by simple, harmless treatment. Take your children to your doctor or to a clinic and ask to have them protected against diphtheria with toxoid (toxin antitoxin is still used in some communities). All children, when they are six to nine months of age, should have this treatment. The doctor or nurse will advise you how often to come and what to do. The treatments, usually one to three in number, are simple and harmless and quickly given. It takes a few months for the protection to develop.

Six months after the treatment, take the child back to the doctor to find out if he has had enough treatments to make him safe. He can tell this by giving the Schick Test. Be sure to do this. Then you can be certain that your child is safe and that you need never fear diphtheria.

What to Do for Diphtheria

If before they are treated (immunized), or before protection has developed, your children show the symptoms described in this pamphlet call the doctor at once. This is especially important if there is diphtheria in the neighborhood. The doctor will give his curing medicine—antitoxin. A delay of one day in giving this medicine may mean the difference between life and death.

A child who is sick with diphtheria should never get up or sit up until the doctor says it is safe for him to do so, even though he feels better and begs to sit up. If he does not stay in bed long enough he may have a weak heart the rest of his life. The two things to remember are: Get the doctor at once, and keep the child in bed long enough.

Diphtheria is now raging in some sections of the county, rather early for diphtheria, and it may mean a peak year for the disease. Five cases were reported from Burton in two days. Better have your child immunized against it, free, at the health office.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills, a multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

HALL DIES OF BLOW DEALT 3 WEEKS AGO

Alex Hall, 26, Gets Fractured Skull But Does Not Realize It

Funeral services were conducted last Friday for Alex Hall, 26, who died of a blow on the head sustained Aug. 6. The blow is said to have been wielded with a blunt iron instrument by a man named Frasure.

Not believing he was seriously hurt after receiving the blow, Hall was very active, leaving his home on Beaver to vote in the recent August 7 primary.

He was not admitted to the Stumbo hospital at Lackey until August 11. It was then learned that Hall's forehead had been fractured and infection had set in. He succumbed August 18.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Monnie, and by three children: Farmer, Town and Jerlene.

AUXIER

A family reunion was held at the DeLong farm, the home of Mrs. Warren M. Meek, on Sunday, Aug. 22, commemorating the getting together of the only members of Mrs. Meek's family.

The day was delightfully spent at the country home with a midday dinner spread in the spacious dining room. The large table, set for 25 people, held a vase of beautiful cut flowers in the center.

After the midday repast the afternoon was spent most pleasantly renewing old memories and taking pictures.

Those who were present to enjoy the day were: Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Stratton and son, Charles, of Brownsville, Pa., Judge and Mrs. M. F. Patrick and children, Richard, Julian, Roger, Billy, Dorothy and Patsy, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Patrick and sons, Ray and Roy, of Salyersville, Ky., and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Harmon and sons, Herman and Richard, of Wayland. Mrs. Greenville Meek, of Auxier, Miss Virginia Ann Bragg, of Ashland, and Mrs. Arthur Bragg, Miss Dorothy Bragg, and Mrs. Warren M. Meek, at home.

Ceramic Factories Once Aided by Royal Patrons

In the early part of last century the arts were very much under the patronage of the rulers of the different countries in Europe. The ceramic factories in particular owed their success to the assistance given them by their royal patrons. This patronage sometimes meant real ownership, and distribution of the productions often went to favorites of the court at a severe loss to the factory. In the end the cost was largely assumed by the taxpayers, they at least had a part in giving to posterity many of the lovely things which collectors possess today, according to a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

The art of making true porcelain such as was made in the Orient was not discovered in Europe until the beginning of the Eighteenth century. Many chemists had made experiments trying to solve this elusive substance but were not successful.

The marks of Dresden or Meissen porcelain are best known as the "crossed swords." The mark is usually under the glaze in blue. This mark was not used regularly until 1725, but became the exclusive mark after 1740. Now and then we find very beautiful cups and saucers with a yellow or ruby ground with panels of Watteau figures and bearing the mark "AR" in monogram. Such pieces are supposed to be of the earliest Meissen period, and made under the ownership of Augustus of Saxony. A piece marked with a cut across the hilt of the swords means it was sold in the white and decorated outside the factory.

RIGHT OUT OF THE AIR

By EARLE FERRIS

Joe Laurie, Jr. is a "funny" comedian. By that we mean he's unique because he doesn't want to be funny on the air. Joe is more anxious to get a certain philosophy across to listeners rather than make them laugh at cut and dried gags. This philosophy is that we all look pretty ridiculous to a disinterested observer like Joe's "Floyd the Fly."

Cecil B. DeMille's yacht is in commission again. Long out of service because DeMille was so tied up with his Radio Theatre and picture work that he couldn't spare time for it, the boat is in use every weekend now with the great director and parties of friends aboard. DeMille will be back in harness when Radio Theatre returns to the airwaves on September 13.

Johnny Trotter is the newest band leader to come up from North Carolina to radio fame. Johnny recently drew the musical assignment on the Thursday night Music Hall program. He organized his first band while a student at the University of North Carolina.

Irene Nobilette's ability to change her voice at any time has saved Tim Ryan considerable worry — and money. Irene can become a screeching soprano, a moderate-voiced contralto or a deep-voiced woman at a signal from Tim. Consequently, Irene carries all the female speaking roles on the Tim and Irene Mutual network broadcasts each Sunday afternoon. Tim never has to worry about female types when narrating his show.

Ferde Grofe's immortal compositions made him far more famous for his writings, than for his conducting. But since he began his CBS concert series, Grofe is recognized by American music lovers just as much for his conducting as for his composing.

Shortage of top rank dramatic material adapted to the requirements of the microphone is making a new trend in radio production. Writers are being commissioned to do one act plays for certain stars. Recent example was the Sunday Night Party's hiring of Colin Clements and Florence Ryerson to do a piece which was later called "Her Majesty the King," for May Robson and Jean Muir. The program had the two stars but no good material. The one-acter was written with the two actresses in mind.

NBC page boys recently conducted their own popularity poll around Radio City and voted Jane Froman as one of the best-liked artists in radio.

Don Voorhees, musical director of the CBS "Cavalcade of America" programs, is more than a purveyor of good entertainment. Scores of vocalists now enjoying great popularity on the air, claim that if it were not for Voorhees' tolerance and understanding, they would have progressed no further.

Where Kite-Flying Originated

According to tradition, kites were invented by Archytas of Tarentum four centuries before Christ, but they have been used by savage tribes of Asia from time immemorial, and kite flying has been a national pastime of the Chinese, Japanese and other East Indians. The origin of kite flying is obscure, but it is generally ascribed to religion. The Koreans attribute its origin to a general who many hundred years ago inspired his troops by sending up a kite with a lantern attached. The soldiers believed it to be a new star and the sign of divine help.

About Shortcake
You'll find your baked shortcake much easier to split in layers if you divide the dough into 2 parts, fit one portion in the pan and brush with melted butter; then top with second layer of dough and bake.

"Saucy Eggs"
A delightful way to prepare poached eggs is to cook the eggs in hot tomato soup instead of the usual hot water. Serve the soup as a sauce.

A Tint-Hint
Here's a grand way to tint curtains evenly—and easily. If the curtains are fragile, place in roomy bag or an old pillow slip and close at open end. Thoroughly dissolve the tinting agent in water in your Hotpoint electric washer. Add the curtains, which have been washed, and let them agitate for 3 to 5 minutes. Curtains made of sturdier material may be placed in the machine without being placed in a bag.

For Bigger and Better Cream Puffs
When baking cream puffs or eclairs the one-step, cold oven way, made possible by the temperature and moisture controlled Hotpoint oven, drop the mixture by smaller spoonfuls than usual on the baking sheet; baked in the cold electric oven, cream puffs expand to greater size, producing not only a delicious crunchy product, but yielding more servings than the same recipe baked the ordinary way.

An outdoor theatre (left) and parked terraces just above the street level, which will be warmer in winter and cooled in summer by the control of radiant heat or radio-like heat rays in the ether, were included in the plans for a city of 2000 A.D. shown in New York City recently by the Sixth Avenue Association in connection with the opening of combined showrooms for 14 building industry companies of the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corporation. Table in upper right shows science's most recent evaluation of the ether waves emanating from the sun and the position in these waves of the recently discovered heat rays which can be reproduced artificially and used to warm or cool people without warming or cooling the air.

A WEATHERLESS city where streets will be warmed in winter and cooled in summer, with terraces on the buildings for outdoor recreation in all seasons, is the latest projection of science. Overpowering skyscrapers are replaced by scientific towers of a new glass that transmits 85 per cent of the sunlight but is not transparent, and the buildings are specially shaped to admit sunlight to a number of rooms, with some of them resembling arrowheads and others, airplane propellers. Drawn by two architects, Max Feldman and Olindo Grossi, winner of the Prix de Rome in 1933, designs for the city were shown recently by the Sixth Avenue Association in New York City at the opening of the world's largest building industry showroom by fourteen companies of the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corporation. Breaking completely with former conceptions of cities with taller and taller skyscrapers, these designs speculate on how known scientific facts may be applied by the year 2000 to broaden and improve the life of the individual by bringing him more out into the open. The heat ray or radiant heat, which is now beginning to be used in the latest air conditioning, is used to warm and cool people on the streets without warming or cooling the air. Similar to light and radio waves, this ray can be transmitted through the ether as

The Snack Has Come Back

By BEULAH V. GILLASPIE

THESE long hot days invite one to laze away the hours—and a refreshing cooling "party snack" (such as is shown here) adds so much to the luxury of "lazing." The little snack boards are popular and modern note.

PARTY SNACK
Coconut Cottage Cheese and Water-cress Sandwiches
Stuffed Celery Olives
Cafe Creme Glace

COCONUT COTTAGE CHEESE SANDWICHES
1/2 cup cottage cheese 2 tablespoons shredded coconut
3 tablespoons nut finely chopped Whole wheat apple bread and salt
Combine cottage cheese, apple and coconut, and add salt to taste. Spread between thin slices of buttered whole wheat bread. Cut in strips. This makes about 12 small sandwiches.

STUFFED CELERY
1/2 cup cottage cheese prepared
2 tablespoons horseradish chopped Salt
celery leaves Small celery stalks

Combine the cottage cheese, celery leaves and horseradish and salt to taste. Select deeply grooved celery stalks and fill with cottage cheese mixture.

CAFE CREME GLACE
1/2 cup sugar 3 cups milk
3 cups hot Whipped cream
strong coffee
Melt the sugar in a saucepan over low heat and allow to heat until light brown in color. Add to hot coffee, stir until dissolved, add scalded milk and chill. Pour into tall glasses and serve with whipped cream to which a little sugar and vanilla have been added. Serves six.

U. OF KY. WILDCATS FACE TOUGHER SKED

Blue and White Footballers To Open Against Powerful Vanderbilt

From the Big Sandy to the Mississippi and from the Ohio to the Tennessee line, all sections of Kentucky will be well represented on the University of Kentucky football squad that will report to Coach Chet Wynne September 1 on Stoll field to prepare for the hardest Wildcat grid iron schedule in many years.

Coach Wynne has written to all the candidates advising them to be in first class physical condition when they report for practice for there will be no time for conditioning if the Kentucky team is to be made ready for its opening game Sept. 25, with the powerful Vanderbilt University Commodores.

Wildcat followers this season will have the opportunity of playing five games in Lexington, all against worthy opponents. The first home game will be played Oct. 9 against the respected Georgia Tech eleven, Washington and Lee, a traditional foe, will appear in Lexington the following Saturday, and Manhattan will be the Kentucky foe October 23. Two weeks later the Wildcats will be host to South Carolina, and, as usual, Tennessee will be the Thanks giving opponent.

Miss Francis' Letter Tells Of Experiences In China

(Editor's note: The following letter was written by Miss Lyda Mae Francis, secretary to the American Consul in Shanghai, China, who, since the outbreak of the Chinese-Japanese war is an American refugee in the Philippine Islands. The letter was written to her parents here, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Francis.)

The Foreign Service Of the United States Shanghai, China

Dear Folks:

This past week end was a most enjoyable one for me. I went aboard the Chinese boat, Ning Shin, with about 22 others. We left Shanghai Saturday afternoon and got back this morning, after visiting the island of Pootoo and Ningpo, a large Chinese city south of Shanghai. The island of Pootoo is very picturesque and is the home of several thousand Buddhist monks. There are several hundreds of temples on the island. No animals are killed, there no meat is eaten.

A group of 40 U. S. marines had gone down about a week before we did, and they had pitched their tents on a bluff overlooking a large sandy beach.

Sunday afternoon the monks put on quite a show for us down on the beach. A whole string of them in bright red robes and headgear came marching down the hill, followed by a troop in brown and black robes. There were also three old Chinese ladies in the procession.

Down on the beach about 20 small trenches had been dug and in them was placed paper money (it looks like tin foil in the shape of an egg) and then burned with incense sticks.

The old ladies stood with their hands in a prayer-like position, while the monks threw firecrackers up in the air. We heard that the husbands of the ladies had died and that they had traveled to the island to get the monks to perform this ceremony. Their husbands' souls would then be assured of getting into the great beyond.

We ate with the marines after the ceremony. Had just the most excellent baked beans I ever tasted. (I heard the cook wanted some sugar to put in them and couldn't find any, so he took some raspberry jam instead. I mean to tell you those were the best beans I ever tasted.)

They had lony wooden tables for us to eat on, and while we ate, hundreds of monks and Chinese coolies would come and stand nearby watching us. They got a little too close once and one of the marines (he was a cook, barefoot, and such a scream!) took a long stick of wood and came out and began waving it like he was going to bear them apart. The onlookers fell back. We all laughed until our sides were sore.

QUESTION: How may one remove the sand from spinach preparatory to cooking?

ANSWER: By cutting off the stem (which contain little food value, before washing, a great deal of the sand and grit will be eliminated. Then wash by lifting the spinach up and down in a large pan of lukewarm water, renewing the water until there is no sand in the bottom of the pan. After cooking the spinach, lift it from the pan. In so doing, any sand which escaped the washing will remain in the liquid.

QUESTION: When cake recipe specify pastry flour, is there any way one can substitute general purpose flour and get good results?

ANSWER: While pastry flour makes lighter, more finely-textured cakes, general purpose flour can be used to produce a comparatively good product. However, since general purpose flour is "heavier" than pastry flour, 1 tablespoon must be subtracted, after sifting, from each cup of general purpose flour to be comparable to each cup of pastry flour called for in the original recipe.

QUESTION: How is it possible to cook brown sugar and milk mixtures, when making sauces and candies, so that they will not curdle?

ANSWER: By cooking over very low heat and stirring the mixture constantly during the process, curdling may generally be prevented. The electric Calrod unit is especially adapted to slow cooking because its heat is controllable from a very high to a very low degree.

A CHAPTER ON BOOTS AND SHOES

Where are the cavalry boots that used to be the mark of the young man all dressed up? Where are the brass-toed boots with red tops that the little ones wore? Where are the brass-toed shoes and brogans? Nearly all of these lasted down into our time, but only brogans can claim to be alive in any ordinary sense of the term. The last boy in our neighborhood to wear boots went by that name as long as he lived. I think he rather enjoyed the distinction, too, for he could lope like a horse and clatter up the aisles at school, making enough noise to be the envy and despair of the rest of us. The last pair of genuine cavalry boots I ever saw on a civilian were as classy as any of those treasured as keepsakes of some distinguished ancestor who had fought in the Civil War.

Brass-toed shoes were great things, too. They were sturdy things made with wooden pegs, and as hard as planks. The brass across the toe helped one kick a gate off its hinges without ill effects to the toe. My last pair lay a round in the pile of old shoes for a long time; then my older sister threw them out the door toward a pile of rubbish to be destroyed. By chance they landed in a tree and hung there until the tree died and fell down. They had been so strongly built that not all the weather could harm them. When the tree fell, I then nearly growled, nailed them up against the side of the smokehouse, where they hung for a decade or two, getting lost when another building had to be erected. I wish I knew what became of those tough little wooden pegged shoes that could last so long.

Our generation is too soft footed. Some of these dainty men and women ought to know the exquisite torture of putting on a pair of brogan who probably wondered why shoes some cold winter morning

Some stones are harder than these brogans but not all stones are. A piece of paper lighted at the fireplace and inserted into each shoe in turn, can help a little; but one had better except the hard leather as one of the ills that flesh is heir to and ram the feet into the prison that feet were long ago condemned to.

Two of my great uncles were shoemakers, but they died long ago and were saved the humiliation of seeing the half soles I used to put on my own shoes. We had a set of lasts and could do simple repairs. If the brogans were in capable of bending before the original soles were thin, they certainly were not any less adamant after the clumsy half soles. I did not use wooden pegs, however, for they were going out of style.

When shoes got old, they were discarded but not actually destroyed, for there were many other uses that shoes had besides wearing them on feet. The uppers could supply leather for all sorts of farm needs. The old shoes themselves, brogans especially, could be nailed to the wagon brakes, hee up, and thus help check the wagon's speed as we went down the hills. Long before brake lining for automobiles was heard of, we used this simple device for the same purpose.

Then as now old shoes came in handy at weddings. One raw winter day one of my neighbor boys came by on his way to water his horses at the spring near the church. He had just heard that one of the boys we had gone to school with was to be married in front of the church. We gathered up some old shoes and celebrated in true fashion, sitting astride and bare back on our mules. There the old shoes lay until the next spring, when they greeted the people who had come to reorganize the Sunday School. One sitting astride and bare back on our mules. ### America's Greatest Motor Boat Event Will See World Record Craft In Action

By LATTIMER SHAW

WHILE 90 percent of all motor boat racing in the world is conducted in the United States, it is strange that in the development of our 12 liter Gold Cup boats, our oldest and proudest class, the sportsmen of Italy and France seem to have a secret concerning speed which we don't seem to possess.

The fastest one-mile speed established in this country with a supercharged 600-hp. Gold Cup boat is 76.08 miles an hour by Notre Dame, owned by Herbert Mendelsohn, of Detroit. Until a few weeks ago the world's record was held by Guido Cattaneo, of Italy, at 85.51 miles an hour. Then along came Maurice Vasseur of France, and raised it to 87.31 miles. And now, on August 4, Count Theo Rossi, of Italy, in a boat of his own design, has boosted it to 90.97—more than 14 miles an hour better than our best!

This has not been at all the fault of American designers, owners or drivers. Since 1920 the rules of America's oldest and most glamorous motor boat contest have imposed upon our sportsmen great heavy hulls weighing at least 1600 pounds and other restrictions of boat and power which have made it impossible for us to match the speeds of the European craft built with only one limitation—an engine not exceeding 726 cubic inches cylinder capacity.

The thirty-fourth Gold Cup race in Detroit on Labor Day, September 6, may tell a different story but the odds are against it. Count Rossi, Cattaneo, Vasseur and several other top-notch European drivers will be there with their new world record boats and it is extremely doubtful if our five or six Gold Cup craft can suddenly jump ten or fifteen miles an hour to stave off the foreign invasion.

Count Rossi, Europe's most experienced motor boat enthusiast, is the most likely winner if his two new boats, Amagi and Aradam, named for two mountains he helped to capture in Ethiopia, can hold together for 90 gruelling miles.

Due to the rule that foreign boats, admitted to the race for the first time, must enter through American clubs belonging to the American Power Boat Association, a victory by either of Count Rossi's boats will carry the cup to the Oakland Yacht Club, of Oakland, Cal., and thus bring true a dream Pacific Coast yachtsmen have held for the entire 33 year history of the famous Cup. Other honors will also go to the Oakland Club if Count Rossi wins—the Aaron De Roy trophy for the fastest lap and another gorgeous new trophy.

Among his many activities Count Rossi, a young bachelor, is an all-around sportsman and was captain of the Italian bobsled team at Lake Placid a couple of years ago. In addition he is head of the great Martini & Rossi vermouth company, the world's largest makers of vermouth, and his co-workers have bet on him by putting up one of the most magnificent prizes ever seen in the motor boat world—the $5,000 Martini & Rossi perpetual trophy for the fastest 30-mile heat made in this and subsequent Gold Cup races. No wonder the Oakland Yachtsmen are sending a big delegation to Detroit to root for their Italian team!

Oliver was sitting up now. "I oughtn't to have come, I tell you. Bill and I've been thrown out of the hotel, we haven't been able to pay our room rent for three weeks and we're both down to carfare and we've been trying to find somebody who'd tide us over, just a loan, things are bound to break better for us soon, and—there it is. Forget it, Rachel. I'll be all right in a minute or two."

"But you said you were hungry, Oliver, that you hadn't eaten for a long time."

"Did I say that? I'm a fool! When did I say it?"

"Just before you fainted. Is it true, are you hungry?"

"Not any hungrier than usual. I had coffee this morning, and a roll, the maid on our floor sneaked them off somebody else's tray. She's a good old scout."

Rachel looked about her distractedly. "There's almost nothing in the house to eat, but I can phone to that little restaurant across the street and get them to send something."

"No, don't think of it. I'm all right. If I could have a little more hot milk—"

"Of course." She hurried again to the kitchen, heated more milk, made a couple of slices of toast.

"Now," she said, when she came back, "I want you to eat all of this, it's not much. And, Oliver, look here, I've felt all along that I owed you something—a commission—for taking me to Vinco and getting me started there and now's certainly the time for me to pay it, and I'm going to."

"You don't owe me anything. I won't take anything from you."

"Don't be ridiculous. I do owe you something. And I'm going to pay it." She went into her bedroom and took out all of the money in her bag except a little silver.

"Now," she said, coming back and folding the bills flat, "you're to take this and find Bill and get yourself a room and some breakfast in the morning—"

Oliver had expertly flipped the bills. "There's $50. You don't owe me anything. I'll possibly take this. You know I can't." But he made no move to return it.

"I feel I owe it to you," said Rachel, "and anyway you need it. I wouldn't have it on my conscience to send you out of here broke and nowhere to go. And as for saying you can't take that little bit of money from me, that's rot. Why can't you?"

Oliver still held the bills in his hand. He looked at her miserably, almost with tears. "You're so kind!" he said. "You're so lovely, Rachel. And I'm nothing at all. But I love you. That's why I can't take any money from you." Before she could answer he went on, quickly: "Don't say anything, there's nothing you can say. I'm ashamed to be such a louse, I'm ashamed that I came here and—made you all this trouble. I'm going now. You'll forgive me, won't you, beautiful, dear Rachel?" He rose unsteadily to his feet and poked up his hat.

"I'll forgive you if you take the money," said Rachel, shaken and distressed. She caught the bills from his hand, pushed them into his pocket. "There, forget about it, go along and find Bill, unless—are you really strong enough to go out alone, Oliver? Do you know where Bill is?"

He flung his arms around her and held her against him, kissing her cheek and forehead and eyes. "I'll never forget this as long as I live," he whispered. "There's nobody in the world but you who would be so wonderful!" And as swiftly as he had embraced her he released her and went to the door and was gone.

Rachel stood perfectly still listening to his step on the stairs. Even in her confusion it occurred to her that he was oddly vigorous for a man who had just come out of a hunger faint. He had made, it seemed, a quick recovery. Almost too quick. And hadn't there been something histrionic in the whole episode?

CHAPTER VII

She went to the morning conference in a mood of reckless determination, for she was still angry and disturbed about the scene with Oliver.

She came into Vinco's agency before the hour, but Curt Elton was already there and the two of them went together to the chromium, plate-glass and black lacquer arrangement which was Vinco's private office and the pride of his life. "You still want to do this?" Curt asked, as they knocked.

She nodded. She didn't dare let him see how much she wanted it. Terriss had not come but Vinco was waiting and gloomy.

"I don't know why Terriss is so late," he said, looking anxiously at a ghostly clock which was nothing but a glass face and black enamel hands and numerals, with no visible works.

"It's only two minutes past ninety-three," said Curt; "yes, and there he is," for there was a knock at the door.

Terriss was the most commonplace man Rachel had ever seen, there was nothing about him that could be remembered. Not until later did she realize that complete inconspicuousness is the best disguise in the world.

Curt moved over beside her as they all sat down again. "I suppose you know something about this matter," Terriss said to Rachel, "but I'll explain more fully. My client is a wealthy business man. His wife is almost twenty years younger than himself and I gather he has always relieved her of responsibility, shielded her from everything hard and disagreeable. They have, by the way, one son, a boy about seventeen, his parents think him brilliant and promising, but he's not very strong so they've never sent him away to school, he's had tutors and gone to private schools."

"There has been petty thieving going on in my client's apartment for some months; he has checked up everyone and everything as far as he can without saying anything to his wife, he doesn't want to alarm her or make her nervous. He has had, on one pretext or other, new and very intricate locks put on all the outside doors, thinking that some of the apartment house servants may have a passkey. He's had burglar alarms installed so that outside entry is practically impossible. He has had the private lives of his servants looked into and found nothing suspicious. He's up against it. At my suggestion he's finally consented to let me plant an operator in the household."

"And why don't you use one of your regular employees instead of breaking in on me like this?" grumbled Vinco.

"My client has seen my regular employees and refused to have any of them."

"He might refuse me then," said Rachel. She wondered why Cayne had not once been mentioned by name.

"May I ask you a few questions, Miss Vincent?"

"Of course."

"I'll explain first about my client's servants. There's a couple, the woman's the cook and the man's the butler, and he also valets for my client, they've been there a long time, my client has perfect trust in them. Then there's a chauffeur who lives outside, he's been there a long time, too. The lady, my client's wife, has never had a personal maid, I mean regular, there's been a sort of seamstress and maid coming in several times a week. But now this woman's taken a full-time place somewhere and my client thought it would be possible to put a woman in the house to look over the situation and trace this thieving and not have his wife disturbed by knowing about it."

"But I thought they wanted a housemaid or a waitress—I don't believe—I don't know if I could do a personal maid's work!" exclaimed Rachel. "It would mean hairdressing—and manicures—and probably massage—"

"I thought of that and asked my client, but he says his wife goes regularly to one of the big beauty establishments and he knows she wouldn't change, she enjoys the place and is used to it. But you'd have to keep her clothes in order and wait on her and be generally useful, maybe help out the butler and cook, answer the phone, perhaps look after the boy now and then, that would give you the run of the house and a way to get close to everybody in it."

"I could keep her clothes in order and I can sew," said Rachel doubtfully.

"I think all this is nonsense. Miss Vincent isn't the type, you can see yourself, Terriss, she's too good-looking and too well educated, your client's wife would smell a rat," objected Vinco.

"Miss Vincent, please take off your hat," said Terriss. He took his spectacles from his pocket. "Smoothe your hair back, wipe off your lipstick and put on my glasses. Now, in a uniform and cap you'd be just a nice healthy-looking girl, with your eyes obscured. You'd have to leave the enamel off your nails. I'd never have gone this far if I hadn't seen that she'd look all right. As for education, that doesn't matter, she won't have to pull any Latin or Greek."

"I don't know any," said Rachel. "The thing now is to sell Miss Vincent to my client. He's difficult in some ways, but a very fine man, Miss Vincent. I've gone over your record here, Miss Vincent, I know that your father's dead, your mother's abroad for the winter and you're living with Miss Matthews, who's employed by an advertising agency. Can you direct me to some known and reliable person who will vouch for you to me and to my client? Someone who's known you from childhood and knows your family?"

Rachel hesitated. "It's a little difficult," she said. "There's Mr. Hobart Grable, my mother's lawyer, but he probably wouldn't approve my doing this and he might alarm my mother."

Mr. Terriss listened with satisfaction. "If Hobart Grable's your mother's lawyer you've already vouched for yourself, Miss Vincent. I know Mr. Grable."

Vinco broke in fustily: "Let's get down to cases, let's get down to cases. When will Miss Vincent see your client, when will she know whether or not he likes her? I want to get her appointments arranged, I want—"

"And another thing, Louis," said Curt Elton, "this may be a very short job for Miss Vincent. I think she ought to be sure you're going to take her back on your staff."

Terriss was suave and quick. "I don't consider that Miss Vincent has ever left Mr. Vinco's staff, this work is in the nature of a leave of absence and I can't begin to tell you, Vinco, how greatly I appreciate your finding Miss Vincent for me. I felt when I called you up you were the one man in New York who could help me."

Under this blandishment Vinco beamed. "Of course Miss Vincent's not leaving me permanently, I wouldn't think of letting her do that, what do you think I am?"

"I think you're awfully good," said Rachel, gratefully. "Nothing's settled anyway, Mr. Terriss' client may not like me."

"There you are," said Vinco. "Now everything's fixed except this cranky client of yours and the sooner you see him the better."

"We'll go over to his office right now if it suits you, Miss Vincent."

"If it suits Mr. Vinco to let me, you mean," said Rachel.

"Go along, go along, and let me know what happens."

The meeting broke up at this and Curt turned to Rachel. "You took just the right line with both of them. I'm going to wait here to find out what happens."

On the way with Terriss, Rachel felt the reality of her adventure and began to wonder how much Peter Cayne knew, whether or not his wife had told him about her first child and if he knew her name.

"There's one thing I'd like to ask," said Rachel. "Your client—can you suggest any way for me to—to make the right impression on him?"

"Be yourself and natural, that's all. Anything phony's bound to seem phony, that's my motto. I noticed you didn't talk much there at Vinco's which is all to the good.

Electric Siren Protects Trucks From Hijackers; Mechanism Sounds an Alarm

To baffle "pirates" of the highway, trucks laden with precious merchandise are being equipped with a secret combination alarm which stops the engine abruptly and sounds a piercing siren when cargo or cab is attacked, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The electric timing mechanism is always in operation, even when the truck is parked in a garage, and any attempt, even by the driver, to start the engine, enter the cab, tamper with doors or with the alarm system itself, will set off the alarm unless the secret combination is worked properly. This combination is trusted only to the driver and can be changed only by the manufacturer.

When a truckman starts out with his valuable load, he must first turn a key in a lock in front of the cab door. Then he must enter the cab and within a given number of seconds press a certain combination of

Let the other people do the talking, only listen to what they say."

They reached a high business building and took the elevator to the twentieth floor and Rachel saw that Terriss was watching her closely. "Are you nervous?" he asked, as they walked down the long hall.

"Of course," she said. "It's too exciting for words. I can't believe I'm actually doing this."

"You're all right," he said. "Here we are."

He opened a door marked "Planter's Engineering Co." and gave his name to the boy in the anteroom and a few moments later they were following this boy down an inner hallway to a door at the end. A loud impatient voice told them to come in and as they entered Rachel saw, rising from behind a great flat desk, an impressive man with a crest of white hair, his manner authority and decision personified.

"So this is the young-lady," he said. Then disregarding Terriss and looking at Rachel, "What is your name, please?"

Terriss did not permit himself to be disregarded. "This is Miss Vincent, Mr. Cayne."

This was the crucial moment and Rachel held herself rigid with fear, but Mr. Cayne gave no sign of any recognition of the name. Nevertheless, Rachel could not speak, but she managed to bow naturally.

"Sit down," he ordered. "Sit down, Terriss. I suppose," turning to Rachel, "you know what I'm looking for?"

Now she must speak. She pulled herself together. "Mr. Terriss has told me something about it. Not in detail."

"Mr. Cayne," said Terriss, "Miss Vincent qualifies with me for a chance at this job. She assures me she can do the routine work of a lady's maid and we can have some extra instruction given her so that Mrs. Cayne will not suspicion anything. You don't want Mrs. Cayne to know why Miss Vincent is there? You want her to feel that Miss Vincent is a servant just like the others—"

"I haven't said that I'd engaged Miss Vincent yet. But that's right, whoever comes in there must be like the other servants and Mrs. Cayne mustn't be bothered. She isn't very well, she's high-strung and imaginative and besides she's—she's like an impulsive child, she couldn't hide her feelings, she'd be certain to give the show away without intending it." His voice softened into indulgence as he spoke of his wife.

"Would you like to talk to Miss Vincent alone?" asked Terriss. "I'll wait outside."

"That's a good idea. I won't be long." He nodded Terriss out and Rachel was left facing him. "Now, young lady, let's get down to brass tacks. You can do a lady's maid's work, can you? Where did you learn it?"

"At home, taking care of my own clothes. I understand that this position doesn't require expert beauty-shop work."

"That's right." He looked Rachel over from head to feet. "I don't know, I don't know, I've seen all the women on Terriss' regular staff and they're terrible, Elinor wouldn't stand any of 'em for a split second. Now you're a lady, anybody can see that. Maybe you're too much of a lady, too pretty. You'd have to tone that down, but Terriss said you could. This isn't going to be easy, you know. Whoever the thief he's smart, too damned smart. It must be one of the servants, but they've all been with me, why, they're like friends. It's unbelievable!"

Rachel, remembering Terriss' warning to let other people talk, sat silent through all this, listening and watchful. "I wonder why he seems lonely," she thought. "He's grand. I like him."

SEW-YOUR-OWN wouldn't be your weather prophet for the world, but you know, Milady, and so does S-Y-O, that it's always fair weather when good fashions get together. Which brings us to today's three sparkling new frocks—a whole crowd of style for the pretty part of any man's family.

A Fun Frock.

Rain, nor gloom, nor a flat tire (either kind), can dampen the spirits of the girl who wears this buoyant, young sports frock (above left) on her daily rounds—be they on the fairway, the campus, behind the counter, or merely from pillar to post. You can easily see why it's a winner: a button-all-the-way front, the matched collar and general shipshape styling make it just that. It's surefire in acetate, or silk crepe.

Here's to Mothers.

Sew-Your-Own loves nothing more than catering to mother's wardrobe needs. The frock above (center) is for all mothers: old sweet ones, young darling ones, yes, even for mothers-to-be. It is easy to run up, easy to do up, and best of all, easy to look at. Smart simple lines make it a favorite of women who demand more than a passable appearance when they're "just at home."

Little Brown Girl.

An all-over suntan is her forte, and many sunny days are ahead for young Miss Fortunate whose mommy chooses to interpret the fetching model at the right. A scallop-edged waist front accentuated by frou-frou trim is right down her avenue, and a gored skirt, that's second to none for class, fits into her scheme of things to a T. Mother, why not make one dressy version, as pictured, another finished differently for school? (Perhaps with a simple braid trim) Rayon prints, gingham, or sheer wool, will do nicely as the material.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1249 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1207 is designed for sizes 34 to 50. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35 inch material. With long sleeves 4 3/4 yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1366 is designed for sizes 8 to 14 years. Size 8 requires 2 1/2

What You Seek

Have you ever thought how many objects you pass without even noticing them; how many voices and sounds fail to register with you?

It seems that one usually sees what he is looking for and hears that to which his ears are attuned.

Perhaps this is what Emerson had in mind when he said that no one brings back from Europe anything which he did not take over with him. (Excluding merchandise of course.)—Ohio Farmer.

George Washington, Farmer.

Washington was a mighty farmer in his day, and some idea of the extent of his farming operations may be formed from the following facts: In 1782, he had 500 acres in grass, sowed 600 bushels of wheat, 600 acres with oats, and prepared as much with barley, corn, potatoes, beans and peas. His stock consisted of 140 horses, 112 cows, 285 working oxen, heifers and steers and 500 sheep. He constantly employed 250 hands, and kept twenty-four plows going during the whole year, when earth and weather would permit.

POLICE CHIEF SLAIN BY SHOTGUN BLAST

The deceased is survived by his wife and four children: Estill Hall, Dony, Ky., and Bonnie, Ray, and Cuba, all of McDowell.

FOOTBALL WARRIORS BEGIN TRAINING HERE FOR BELFRY OPENER

Lettermen Are Available For Every Post Except One In Backfield

With their opening game against Belfry approximately a month away, the 1937 edition of Coach Messer's Prestonsburg Blackcats began practice for the approaching football season at Gasco park, this week.

Although the Blackcats will miss the services of such graduated warriors as Jones, Meadors, Archer and others, this year's squad includes let termen for every position on the team except one backfield post.

Among those returning let termen are three, Allen, Holcomb and Mayo, who were chosen last year for the mythical All Conference team. Two others, Craft and Sturgill will report, who were chosen for the second conference team.

The total group of lettermen to report for practice is: Ends, Allen, 141, and Goodman, 159. Tackles: Dotson, 197, who last year won honorable mention on several all-state selections, and Burchett, 190. Guards: Fitzpatrick, 161, and Sturgill, 164. Quarterback: Holcomb, 155.

Three lettermen have reported for backfield positions. Mayo, 166, last year's captain, Craft, 152, Carter, 152.

The Blackcat schedule has not yet been released but it is expected that the 'Cats will face Belfry here in the opener and then tackle St. Xavier's mighty team in Louisville for their next game.

Other teams the Blackcats are expected to meet are Hazard, Barbourville, Van Lear, Russell, Pikeville, and Paintsville, to round out one of the toughest schedules ever attempted by a Blackcat eleven.

SPECIAL JUDGE BACH DECIDES COURT SUIT

Continued from page one of several months. It is understood that both sides will prosecute an appeal to the court of appeals of Kentucky.

According to reports of the attorneys in the case, Judge Bach had enjoined the Stumbo Memorial hospital at Lackey from receiving as patients any of the persons covered by a large number of contracts assigned by W. L. Stumbo and Anna Stumbo to the Beaver Valley hospital at the time of its sale at Martin.

However, most of these assigned contracts were with coal companies, and the contracts for hospital services are required to be entered into direct with the employees and also a majority of the number of contracts are not in force for the reason that the companies with whom they were made have long since gone out of business.
