FDR Shatters Third-Term Tradition

May, Re-Elected To Congress From District 7

SEN. CHANDLER, RATLIFF WIN ELECTION

PAINTSVILLE MAN CONCEDES LOSS TO MAY

Thursday morning, Mr. Turner conceded his defeat and warmly congratulated Congressman May.

At that time the vote stood: Floyd (complete) Roosevelt, 9,100; Wilkie, 3,711. Chandler, 8,962; Smith, 3,891. May, 8,616; Turner, 4,084. Ratliff, 9,087; Siler, 3,576.

Letcher (complete) — Roosevelt, 6,126; Wilkie, 4,405. May, 6,009; Turner, 4,405. Ratliff, 5,990; Siler, 4,344.

Knott (complete), 3,604 majority for May.

Martin (complete), 1,444 majority for Turner.

Johnson (complete), 2,847 majority for Turner.

Pike, with 30 precincts uncounted, 2,200 lead for May.

Perry, with 23 precincts to count, May's lead, 1,200.

Magoffin, five precincts to count, Turner 72 ahead.

As Congressman A. J. May, Democratic chairman of the Military Affairs Committee in the lower house of Congress, engaged in the tightest struggle of the state's Congressional elections, it was predicted by May headquarters Wednesday at noon that he would be re-elected by a majority of "at least" 8,000 votes over his Republican opponent, James W. Turner, Paintsville.

Meanwhile, this newspaper failed to draw a definite prediction from Turner campaign headquarters. Douglas Turner, the Republican candidate's son, told THE TIMES that "we are sitting tight for the moment."

In this, Congressman May's native county, 26 of 53 precincts gave Mr. May 3,945 votes to Mr. Turner's 1,828—a majority of 2,117.

Johnson county, Mr. Turner's home county, gave the Republican candidate a lead of 1,252 on the tabulation of 18 of the county's 28 precincts.

From the Kentucky river section Letcher county Wednesday afternoon reported 30 of its 54 precincts counted.

This Town... That World

MAY GO A-COLLECTING

Walter Price, coach of the Wheelwright football team, isn't so sure that he'll be able to watch his boys in their game with Louisa next Saturday. If Col. Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle of the radio Quixie-Doodling Stoopnagles, doesn't send that five bucks Walter won on the Quixie Doodle the Cunnel propounded Sunday to about the dumbest person anybody ever heard of on the radio, raddio or any other wireless outfit, Walter has a notion he may have to take the week-end off on a collecting trip to New York.

SHE SPOKE FROM THE HEART

Last Sunday, I heard an old woman thank a comparatively young man for a favor, and I was impressed by the deep ring of sincerity in her voice and in her words. No, she didn't say the polite, "Thank you." "Thank you so much." "How nice!" or any other of the stilted, meaningless phrases uttered in the best circles.

The old lady wasn't making a show of her gratitude—she was interested in letting only the person she wanted to thank know how she felt. And did she "get her message over"? I would cherish till the day I die what she said in that low, soft voice, meant only for his ears. Said she, honestly, in her own language, pure Anglo-Naxon, ungrammatical but the talk of Nature's genius woman: "You're good. They ain't many fellers like you."

75 FLOYD DRAFT REGISTRANTS ARE SENT QUESTIONNAIRES

Floyd county draft registrants whose order numbers are from 1 to 25 were asked Tuesday to execute questionnaires mailed to them within the next five days, and one of the county's two boards, Board No. 45, called on an additional 25 registrants to do likewise. Seventy-five draft registrants have, therefore, been supplied with questionnaires required by the Selective Training and Service Act.

It was emphasized this week that the Order Numbers as drawn in Washington do not necessarily apply in the thousands of counties of the country. For instance Order No. 1, as drawn in Washington "caught" the two who held No. 158 in this county. Order No. 2 from Washington "caught" No. 192 holders. But the third through the 18th "draws" in Washington were too high in serial number for Floyd county, and so these draws did not count here. So the next draw that included a Floyd county serial number would be Order No. 3 in this county. In other words, the 19th draw in Washington was Order No. 3 for Floyd county.

Those registrants notified, to execute their draft questionnaires have, if they wish to file claims for deferred classification, only five days. The draft boards here, failing to receive such claims, supported by affidavits, may construe failure to file as waiver of right to file for such exemption.

Draft Board No. 44 has named H. T. Hill, Cliff, as chief clerk, with Mrs. J. G. Porter, Prestonsburg, as stenographer. Board No. 45 named Joe Cooley, Harold, chief clerk, and Mrs. Sarah Virginia Ford, Prestonsburg, stenographer.

Below is an unofficial list of Floyd county registrants whose names are included in the first 1,000 order numbers. In order are order numbers, names and addresses of their holders, and their serial numbers. Many order numbers are omitted, since no Floyd county men held them, and some include only one draftee, as the high serial number listed by local draft board No. 44 was 2,558. Last week THE TIMES listed men who were included within the 150th draw.

ROOSEVELT HAS HUGE LEAD

PRESIDENT AHEAD IN 39 STATES OF NATION

Tradition-smashing Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected for a third term to the Presidency of the United States at Tuesday's election which saw a record-smashing total of around 60,000,000 voters go to the polls to register, in the democratic way, their preferences for leadership of the nation.

Until this year a political non-entity, although a leader in the field of finance, former Democrat Wendell L. Willkie, at the end of a campaign during which he fought in the face of odds recognized as terrific, saw his chances of attaining the Chief Executive's post go a-glimmering Tuesday night as the decisive states of Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois swung in the the Roosevelt column.

Willkie, whose sensational capture of the Republican nomination threw him into the spotlight as no Presidential candidate has been in recent years, won, according to available returns, nine of the nation's 48 states. His electoral vote, at 11:40 a. m., Wednesday stood at 63, while President Roosevelt held the lead in 39 states which afforded him 468 votes in the electoral college.

Mr. Willkie held safe margins in Kansas, Vermont, Maine, Nebraska, Iowa, Colorado, Indiana, North and South Dakota.

The "Solid South," with its bloc of electoral votes, Massachusetts, Connecticut and possibly New Hampshire in the rock-ribbed Republican reservation of New England, besides the four "pivotal" states of Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and Illinois, were held safely in the Roosevelt camp. The "Border" states of West Virginia, Missouri, Maryland were carried along in what amounts to a Democratic landslide.

As early as 11 o'clock Tuesday evening, newspapers that supported Mr. Willkie conceded the Roosevelt victory. Around midnight, though Willkie himself refused to concede, Sen-

COVER CROPS VALUABLE, FLOYD FARMERS SAY

Increased use of winter crops is providing more pasture for Floyd county stock, increasing the green manure crop and preventing leaching and soil erosion, according to County Agent S. L. Isbell, James Stephens, County Agricultural Adjustment Administration chairman, and a number of progressive Floyd county farmers.

Although some of the better Floyd county farmers and tenants have sowed winter cover crops on their row cropland for years, extensive use of protective covering did not begin until three years ago, when 75 acres were seeded, the agent explains. The following year, 375 acres were sown, and this year, the figure rose to approximately 1,500 acres. Nearly 700 acres this fall have been seeded to vetch, furnished through the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Besides vetch, rye grass and crimson clover are becoming more widely used in Floyd county, Mr. Isbell points out. The goal of a cover crop on every acre of row cropland in Floyd county is still far from being reached, he explained, but steady headway is being made in this progressive farming practice.

"The cover crops I put on my land after corn are worth more to me than the corn itself," says Mr. Stephens, who farms 69 acres at Cliff. Besides protecting the soil from washing and leaching, says the County Committee chairman, cover crops provide valuable stock feed and enrich the land when turned under for green manure. He used vetch, rye and winter oats as cover and does not leave any row cropland unprotected, he says.

Mr. Stephens also has increased the productivity and fertility of his farm through other good farming practices besides seeding of cover crops. He spread 1,000 pounds of phosphate last year on eight acres of Korean clover. "I mowed good hay off what I had phosphated and the part I didn't phosphate wasn't worth cutting," he asserts. He also used six tons of lime.

Mr. Stephens, who a few years ago, tilled corn on his hill land, says he has put his hills in grass and now has his barn full of hay. He has cut his corn acreage one-third, but is getting more to the acre as a result of putting corn only on level land and by rotation with grass, he says.

Of the Triple-A farm program, Mr. Stephens said:

"The program is giving farmers a chance to build up their land and to get their fair share of the national income."

TRAVEL BULLETIN TODAY'S ROADS

Prepared By Eastern Kentucky Automobile Club

KEEP TO THE RIGHT

"KEEP TO THE RIGHT" is not only good road manners, but the law! Yet, even though a pavement may be marked with white or black lines, like opposite poles of a magnet, some motorists are attracted to the inner line—or straddle the lines occupying two lanes of traffic. This action may be the result of inadvertence, confusion, selfishness, or just plain ignorance. Whatever may be the cause, if the guilty party could read the minds of those who are trying to overtake and pass, his embarrassment would be little him.

Driving in the wrong lane delays traffic, reduces the efficiency and capacity of the thoroughfare, confuses motorists, and irritates and causes other motorists to take unnecessary chances. In short, it is just poor driving.

"The thinking driver doesn't drink."

Johnson County Asks Issue Be Validated

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 5 — Johnson county petitioned Franklin circuit court today to validate its proposed $269,000 bond issue which the county debt commission refused last October 4 to approve.

The bonds were designed to refund an old road and bridge issue and were to bear five per cent interest and be paid from a special 20 cents levy on each $100 valuation.

State Local Finance Officer Harry Lynn approved the new issue, but the county debt commission, headed by the Governor, overruled him after receiving an opinion from the Attorney General's office questioning validity of the original bonds on grounds they exceeded the legal limit, and therefore a new issue to cover them would be invalid.

Did you buy YOUR car on "Millinery"?

YOU hear it said often nowadays that it's millinery that sells automobiles.

All right—let's put it up to one who knows. Did you buy your car on nick-nacks, trick devices, novelties?

We don't think so.

We believe that while considering style, and room, and comfort—you really picked your car on what it would do on the road!

Now, we take our hats off to no car for being smarter-looking than Buick. We'll match our product against any for room, for appointments, for fine finish, for comfort.

But beyond all that, we challenge the whole field to equal

Buick on its downright all-round performance ability.

On its power—on its pull—on its pick-up—on its easy handling (including freedom from shifting)—yes, and on its thrift.

Nowhere will you find a car that does so much so well and so frugally.

You'll find novelties in the new Buicks of course, but they're not the chief attraction. Instead you'll see the two big basic engineering developments of the year—FIREBALL design and Compound Carburetion.

Buick prices begin at $935 for the Business Coupe delivered at Flint, Mich. State tax, optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Ky., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

THE TIMES ENDORSES

1. Immediate completion of the Left Beaver, Middle Creek and Johns Creek road.
2. Consideration by officials of human needs, not the need for political influence.
3. Completion of all Farm-to-Market roads, by W. P. A. labor if possible, maintenance of these routes by the state rural road fund.
4. A trade-at-home policy followed by merchants and customers alike.
5. Full co-operation with all county and city officials, insisting that lawmakers and enforcement officers themselves obey the law to the letter.
6. Continuance of the Floyd county health department and the county agricultural agent work.

STILL FOR THE HATCH BILL

This is as of Election morning, 1940. The shouting of political orators is but an echo, the hosts are trekking into the polls. The results of the day's battle will not be known till late tonight.

And whatever THE TIMES may say here will have no political effect; this cannot, by any stretch of the imagination, be construed as a violation of the neutrality of this newspaper's editorial columns in the field of politics.

First of all, then, let us re-iterate our faith in the Hatch bill. It has cramped the style of the Democratic party in this election. If President Roosevelt is defeated, the loss may, in large measure, be attributed to this law barring federal employes from political activity and restricting campaign contributions.

But the law is just. If the Republican party benefits from it at this election, it will be hampered by it at the next.

In short, neither political party in power will be able, under strict enforcement of the Hatch bill, to build those political machines which reduce the common voter to the puppet-state.

The pity of it all is that each state does not complement the federal law so that state organizations may also retain their amateur standing. What is good for the nation should be good for the states that make that nation.

A THOUGHT FOR ARMISTICE DAY

BY CLARENCE POE,
 In The Progressive Farmer

What was Tom Watson's phrase (I used to know him) about a Georgia day in early spring "when one might dream that the sons of men, made in the image of God, once loved one another . . . and will again—some day?" Certainly it seems harder than ever to believe this in November, 1940, when even Thanksgiving Day will find our churches praying for victories of fire and sword and slaughter . . . and our young men are necessarily called to military camp to prepare for possible wars we older men and women have done so shamefully, shamefully little to prevent!

"Armistice Day" indeed! What mockery it will be to observe it on November 11 this year and talk of "the dead in Flanders fields" when America, England and France, the victors of 1918, so soon forgot the vision of world peace and "a war to end war" for which our heroes died! On every American program for Armistice Day, 1940, somebody should read what Editor W. W. Waymack of the Des Moines Register said just the other day:

The failure of vision and of understanding and of courage about a better ordering of the world, after the first World War, is primarily responsible for the crash of the world now. Woodrow Wilson was right. William Howard Taft and Elihu Root and Charles Evans Hughes were right. Henry Cabot Lodge, in the post-war period, William E. Borah, Hiram Johnson, and others who frightened us out of playing a role commensurate with our strength in maintaining and improving the agencies of international peace, were wrong. They . . . guaranteed that we should have to face the risks that we face today. The risks of courageously cooperating for a decent international order at least allowed us a chance. The risks of not cooperating left us precisely no chance at all—no chance of escape from the crisis that now appalls us all.

And along with reading what Mr. Waymack says here someone should also read at least a few of the stirring phrases in which the nation's President in the first World War, Woodrow Wilson, summoned America to fight for a cause and then lamented our utter desertion of that cause:

The world must be made safe for democracy . . . The right is more precious than peace . . . Mere agreements may not make peace secure. It will be absolutely necessary that a force be created so much greater than the force of any other nation or any alliance that no nation, no probable combination of nations, could face or withstand it. If peace is to endure, it must be a peace made secure by the organized major force of mankind . . . The impartial justice meted out must involve no discrimination between those to whom we wish to be just and those to whom we do not wish to be just. It must be a justice that plays no favorites . . . It (the peace treaty) is the first great international agreement where the principle adopted has been, not the power of the strong, but the right of the weak . . . The nation went into the war to make an end of militarism, to furnish guarantees to weak nations, and to make a just and lasting peace . . . The anniversary of Armistice Day should stir us to great exaltation of spirit because of the proud recollection of that never-to-be-forgotten November which lifted the world to the high levels of vision and achievement upon which the great war for democracy and right was fought and won; although when the victory was won at so terrible a cost of life and treasure we withdrew into a sullen and selfish isolation . . . and in every anxious year that has followed, circumstances we might have controlled have gone from bad to worse . . . Our civilization cannot survive materially unless it be redeemed spiritually. It can be saved only by becoming permeated with the spirit of Christ. Here is the final challenge to our churches, to our political organizations, to our capitalists. Shall we not all earnestly cooperate to bring in the new day?

giving Congressman May 2,919 votes to Mr. Turner's 2,325. Appellate Judge Alex L. Ratliff was running slightly behind May in his campaign for reelection to the judgeship.

At May headquarters here it was said that, with only five of its precincts uncounted at noon, Perry county had given Congressman May 1,000 majority.

Knott county was reported from the same source as polling a heavy Democratic majority as usual—three of its 26 precincts giving May 805 votes to Turner's 197. Ratliff at that stage of the race was leading the ticket in Knott by a slim margin.

Thirty-six of Pike county's 94 precincts were reported: 4,424 for May; 4,026 for Turner.

Leading May by 260 votes after six of Magoffin county's 26 precincts had been tabulated, Turner was slated by his own headquarters for a majority ranging between 300 and 500 in that county over May.

Martin county's complete vote reported a majority of 1,342 for Turner.

On the face of available returns, Congressman May's re-election was held a certainty here Wednesday afternoon as this was written.

OSCAR SEARS IS CLAIMED

GAS DEVELOPMENT PIONEER DIES, AGED 65

Oscar A. Sears, of Ashland, who for years was prominent in the development of the Floyd county gas field, died Sunday afternoon in the Cleveland Clinic, Cleveland, O., after five years of failing health.

Mr. Sears was 65 years old, and was recognized throughout the Tri-State region as one of its most astute business men. He was a pioneer in the Eastern Kentucky gas business.

Mr. Sears had resided for several years in the Ventura Hotel in Ashland. Though in failing health for the last few years, he had maintained his interest in his many business enterprises.

Born in Ann Arbor, Mich., Mr. Sears attended the University of Michigan in that city and was graduated from the law school of the institution. Although he was admitted to the Michigan bar, he had never practiced law in the state's courts.

His active business career began more than 30 years ago when he became interested in the lumber business in Lexington. Later, when he set up offices in the Kitchen building in Ashland, Mr. Sears completed his first major business transaction, selling 1,000 acres of timber land in Bell, Perry and Letcher counties in Kentucky to Henry Ford, Detroit motor magnate.

In 1930, he was one of the principal figures in another large sale when the Twin-State Natural Gas Company, of Charleston, purchased from him oil and gas lease holdings of 10,000 acres running from the Tug river to the boundaries of the city of Charleston.

At his death he was the president and principal stockholder in the Eastern Kentucky Exploration Company, the Midland Gas Company, and the Aetna Gas Company. He also owned a half-interest in the Marrowbone Gas Company with George Martin and John Smith, of Catlettsburg, who hold the remainder of the firm's stock.

He held oil and gas leases in Floyd, Martin, Lawrence and Estill counties in Kentucky, in Mingo county, W. Va., and in Lawrence county, Ohio. During the most active years of his career, Mr. Sears had offices in both Ashland and Charleston.

He was a member of the Ashland Elks Lodge.

Mr. Sears is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Minnie Geiser and Mrs. Ora Jenkins, both of Columbus, O. It was said the body would probably be taken to Columbus, O., for burial.

Combs Is Member Of Last Appeal Draft Board

B. F. Combs, Prestonsburg attorney, Friday was named by Governor Keen Johnson as a member of the Sixth District board to which men registered for selective military training may appeal rulings of local draft boards and county appeal agents. Counties included in the district are Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Knott, Martin, Lawrence, Magoffin, Morgan, Boyd, Carter, Elliott, Greenup, Lewis and Rowan.

Each district board is composed of an attorney, physician and representative of labor, industry and agriculture, who serve without pay. Each board elects a chairman from its membership and the latter appoints a clerk.

The district boards constitute the final "courts of appeals" in the state and any exceptions to their rulings must be taken to Washington. Also named to the sixth district board were Dr. J. Proctor Sparks, Ashland; C. D. Gardner, Ashland; Freeman Webb, Olive Hill, and C. B. Varney, of Road Fork, Pike county.

Appointment of an attorney for each local draft board to whom men registered may go for free legal advice, expected to be made in a few days, and replacement of a dozen or more local draft board members and county appeal agents who resigned will complete the selective service set-up in Kentucky.

CONGRESSMAN MAY MAKES STATEMENT

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 7TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT:

I am addressing this statement to all the people of this Congressional district who so loyally supported my candidacy in the recent election. My re-election at this crucial time in our country's history by such a striking majority is an effective endorsement of my official record and I am so profoundly grateful that words are inadequate to express my deep appreciation.

I further wish to express my appreciation to my opponent, the Hon. James W. Turner, who co-operated with me in conducting a clean campaign. Mr. Turner and I have been friends for many years and this friendship will continue.

Sincerely,
A. J. MAY.

SHIKE'S POKES

(Views expressed in this column are those of the writer and not necessarily those of The Times.)

Now that the election is over, we can settle down to the task of building a defense that is second to none in the world without someone all the time yelling, "Politics."

If you will note in a February issue of THE TIMES, just after the UMW of A convention, that I predicted that FDR would be re-nominated and re-elected.

Of course, John L. Lewis is used to it—nevertheless, it's another trip up "Salt River" for him—and a good thing about it, we are not paddling the canoe as we usually do.

John L., one time, accused Wm. Green of being a "Fiddler." Seems that he is now playing "Second Fiddle."

The Wilkie boys had the right string but the wrong Yo-Yo.

Results in the Drift precinct should remove all doubts of the leadership that we miners followed.

I still say that the smartest young statesman of this generation in Kentucky is John Young Brown, Lexington, Ky. That fellow will go places yet.

After the results of the election, it seems that Joe Louis should stick to boxing. Boy, he really took it on the chin.

John L. Lewis is still batting 1000 per cent. No one he ever endorsed has ever won an election.

Cox Calls Roosevelt Good Will Ambassador

Miami, Fla., Nov. 6—James M. Cox, former Governor of Ohio and Democratic nominee for President in 1920, made this comment on President Roosevelt's re-election:

"Much has been said about Ambassadors. We nominate one, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Ambassador of Good Will. There is much to be done at home and abroad. We hope and believe he will do it."

Cox issued the statement from Dayton, O., through one of his papers, the Miami Daily News.

Of course you want to get the news of the folks at home—get it in THE TIMES—$1.50 per year.

Pay Raised to Hush Anti-Roosevelt Employers' Moans

New York, Nov. 6—Walter J. Black, publishing house president, said Wednesday that as a result of the President's re-election he would give a 10 per cent salary increase to each of his 50 employees.

"I'm sick and tired of the way business men talk and act about Franklin Roosevelt when most of them have thriven under him just as I have," he said.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

FROM FIREPLACE TO HEATERS

When I was caught in a storm not long ago in the Mammoth Cave National Park, I sought refuge for the night in an old, deserted church. There I found among other remnants of former times a Wilson heater. In the silent watches of the night, when I tried to sleep on the floor, I began to connect that old stove with a whole cycle of changes in the heating of houses.

Forty years ago it was practically impossible to find in most rural sections any other way of heating a house except with the open fireplace. That was the style we inherited. We cut cords of wood and still did not have enough to last through the winter. It was always necessary to get out in the worst weather and cut more. Practically all of the heat went up the chimney, however poetic the open fire may have been. One side, at least, was warm when the open fireplace was in its heyday. Backlog, forestick, andirons, taking up the ashes, cooking on the fire, wood ashes for lye and soap-making—all of these were tied in with the big open fireplace.

By degrees came heaters, but for many years they had to fight their way. They were called unhealthful, because they heated the air of the room too much. The fact that they consumed much less wood was in their favor, but it is hard to give up old things. Stove-wood is so much smaller that it does not take so much strength to carry a load of it as to wrestle with a huge backstick. The wood for the stove is likely to be saved and not chopped at the woodpile, thus depriving the household of the useful chips. And the fire cannot be seen, an objection I have often heard. I recall how much some people rejoiced that they had stoves with isinglass doors, through which the light could shine. Besides, there was the Franklin stove, which with a little manipulation, could be a stove or a grate. Just in recent years I visited in an old-fashioned house where a Franklin stove was still being used, a pretty fair substitute for the open fireplace. One of the objections to a stove is that tobacco-chewing loses most of its zest with one.

Some of the stoves that we had in the early days were cast-iron things that could produce a lot of heat but could rarely warm six feet away. We used to crowd around the stove at school, not to keep warm so much as to break ranks and be less formal than we were in our seats. There may be colder places than the old one-roomed school at Fidelity, but in a half-century I have not found them. The two cast-iron stoves roared like furnaces, but winter crept right up to them. We boys dragged in piles of dead saplings and larger wood to replenish the fires, taking turns about in the mornings to build the first fires. We did not die from exposure, for tight houses were unknown then. Besides, we were wrapped up in several layers of winter clothing, so much so that we perspired freely when we played Dare Base or Wolf Over the River. Then in the cold room we sat-developing a cold that most people regarded as the normal accompaniment of winter.

Stoves are still doing their work well and will long continue to do so, but I fear the old fireplace is a passing institution that few of the younger generation will remember as we do. Dream pictures in the burning coals will have to be sought elsewhere; boys' energies will have to be directed to something else besides bringing in heavy backlogs.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all who assisted us during our recent bereavement, especially the ministers, Rev. C. C. Newsome and the Rev. A. L. Allen, the Ryan Funeral Home, Mr. Turner and other members of the Maytown faculty for their co-operation in the services. If some one who sent flowers fails to receive our personal acknowledgement, please accept our appreciation and know that a few cards were not removed until in the rain at the grave, as several designs arrived during the service, and some cards seem yet to be unlocated. Again we thank all who served or offered their services.

REFUND TO GO TO PEDDLERS

COURT OF APPEALS DECIDES AGAINST TAX MEASURE

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 26 (Sp.)—About 590 persons who procured licenses under the Peddlers' License Act will be eligible for refunds totaling approximately $12,500 or $25,000 each when the mandate is handed down by the Court of Appeals in the case of Denton vs. Warren County Court Clerk, according to an announcement by the Department of Revenue at Frankfort this week.

While refunds cannot be made until the mandate is handed down by the court, H. Clyde Reeves, Commissioner of Revenue, indicated that the department had already received approved 50 applications for refunds. Reeves said, "We will make it as easy as possible for the taxpayer to get his money back," and added that a simple letter stating the number of the license, the amount paid, and the county in which the license was procured is all the information needed to place the taxpayer in line for a refund.

The court's decision may affect the exemption granted persons selling cigarettes from trucks to retailers from buying a $25 wholesalers' cigarette license. Department officials are expected to announce their decision during the week on this point, it was stated.

Revenue Dep't Charges Retailers 'Padding' Cigarette Prices

Special to The Times
Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 2—Numerous Kentucky cigarette smokers are being charged an extra penny on their 10c brands of cigarettes due to the illegal practice of some retailers in selling such brands for 12c with only 1c state tax stamp affixed to the package, according to an announcement today by Revenue Commissioner Clyde Reeves. The state tax on each package of cigarettes is 1c or fractional part of the retail selling price. "The retailers have a perfect right to sell 10c brands at 11c, state tax included, but if the smoker pays 12c, the state is entitled to 2c tax," Reeves said. He suggested that the smokers check their packages of 10c cigarettes and not pay over 11c unless a 2c tax stamp has been affixed.

Reeves said that field agents of the department are constantly checking retailers in an effort to protect the public and to collect any taxes which may be due. "Criminal prosecution will be resorted to if necessary to enforce this phase of the Kentucky Cigarette Tax Law," he added.

Director, Floyd County Health Dept.

MILK—THE BEST FOOD FOR GROWTH

Any dairyman knows the effect of milk on the growth of farm animals. Scientists, too, using dogs, pigs, chickens or rats in laboratory experiments have frequently demonstrated this striking effect. If a pair of young animals of the same age is fed the same diet except that only one of the pair receives milk, the milk-fed animal always grows more rapidly than the other and has more of the characteristics of health.

That milk influences the growth of children in the same way has been proven convincingly. In a boys' school in England each boy in one group was given a pint of milk daily in addition to his regular food. As a result, the average gain in height and weight of the boy who received extra milk was almost double that of the boy who continued on the original diet.

Studies of food habits of isolated tribes throughout the world show that when a tribe uses large amounts of milk, its members are usually tall and well-built. A famous example of this is the comparison of the two tribes of India. The one are among the finest specimen of mankind, tall, strong and stalwart. The basis of their diet is milk and its products. In contrast, members of the other tribe, which uses very little milk, are small, poorly developed and listless.

Adequate supply of safe, good-quality milk should be available for all children. The best information available indicates that approximately a quart of milk, or its equivalent in other dairy products, is desirable daily for the average growing child, but the average child receives considerably less than this amount.

Milk is the nearest approach to a perfect food that we know. It is an economical food to buy. A quart of milk supplies half the energy needed by a child of five. With fresh fruits and vegetables an adequate diet can be provided inexpensively.

interesting talk at the function, which was attended by a large number of Floyd county Masons.

CREDO NO. 1

(During the last few weeks, as the national political campaign waxed ever hotter, THE TIMES has found some of our contemporaries' Credos amusing, since each had a political foundation, body, head and tail; none without some sort of political significance. Now, with the campaign over, with the voting under way but with the results yet unknown, THE TIMES here sets down a Credo by which this nation must live, if it is to survive.) I am an American.

Yesterday, I voted for whom I pleased; therefore, I am a free man. Yesterday, I expressed my opinion about the two Presidential candidates, and nobody could do aught about it other than to offer his or her opinion; there was no Gestapo listening in, no firing squad awaiting me.

Yesterday, I had my say. I criticized Roosevelt or Willkie. I predicted dark days ahead for my country, if my favorite lost. I exercised to the fullest the right of free speech. I read in my newspaper the fullest expression of the rights of a free press.

Today, I voted. Nobody peeked over my shoulder to see how I voted. There was no Storm Trooper at the voting place to dictate how I should vote. There was no Secret Police about to arrest me for my act as an American. Yesterday, I argued. Today, I voted. Both days, I had my preference of two men.

Tomorrow, as it will become known that my candidate or yours won, I have a privilege, a privilege that I shall exercise—and it is that of realizing and admitting that the winner of this Presidential campaign will be my President as well as yours for the next four years.

I am an American. I know that the President-elect must be the President of a UNITED States, if this nation is to survive. I know that the campaign is past, that the burning questions of yesterday are cold embers today and that the exigencies of the future make them pale as gray ashes.

I know that some of my neighbors opposed "my man," and they know that I voted against "their man." So what?—They will be my neighbors and I will be theirs tomorrow and the day after and, maybe, for many other days. We are, each of us, ingredients in the grand and glorious recipe that makes a powerful nation—the United States of America—a "blood pudding" from the veins of the Founding Fathers and all the patriots since the 13 original colonies shook loose the shackles.

And so I believe that, after all has been said, after everything has been done that could be done, we have something more precious to preserve than two candidates, the two parties or our little political prejudices. I believe that the day is past for the little hatreds of politics.

This is our Credo No. 1. This, because we are Americans. Monday is Armistice Day. Last Monday was day before Election. What a contrast!

I GET "TOLD"

Speaking of the comments of old women, I have reason to know that they can be quite frank, too. A few days ago, with my hat off and displaying a forehead that is growing more lofty from day to day, "Aunt" Isobel Allen looked me over for a minute or so, then remarked: "You ought to be a better looking man than you are—your daddy was a good-looking man."

A BUM STEER

We're not going into the details of the matter, but it seems that a local Willkie-supporter stated shortly before election that he had prayed for guidance in his choice between the Presidential candidates. So, morning after election, Paul Francis calls this fellow on the telephone.

"Is this—?" Paul inquires. Assured that he had made the right connection, Paul then announces: "Well, this is the Lord speaking. I just called you up to apologize for giving you the wrong lead on that election yesterday."

Plainsong Chanters Accorded Praise Of New Yorkers

The Kentucky Mountain Chanters scored another triumph when they appeared on the American Common program October 17 at the New York World's Fair.

"The songs of the Kentucky mountains represent the most typical of our early English immigrants," wrote H. W. Anderson Director of the American Common, in a letter to Mrs. Edith James, leader of the group, in which he expressed his appreciation to her and other members of the "Chanters" for their contribution to the program.

Following the program at the Fair the Chanters were invited to appear at Columbia University where they were enthusiastically received on October 19.

According to New York critics, the Floyd chanters are the only group in the United States original in their presentations of the oldest traditions in American music.

It was impossible for Mrs. James to take all members of the group as the trip entailed many personal sacrifices. Those who accompanied her were Sam Laferty, Albert Hall, George Goodman, Alex Wallen, "Uncle" Si Boyd, Carpenter Holbrook and Tom James.

TOBACCO INCREASE IS CITED

A 50 per cent increase during the past five years in the number of farmers producing burley tobacco is cited by James Stephens, chairman of the Floyd County Agricultural Conservation Association, as one of the principal reasons Kentucky farmers asked to vote on a three-year marketing quota plan in the referendum vote on November 23. It was said that Floyd county tobacco-growers eligible to vote in the referendum total no more than 10.

Most of the new growers began producing burley tobacco in 1937 and 1939 when no marketing quota was in effect, Mr. Stephens says. Twelve per cent of the total burley crop is now being produced by the 105,000 new growers who have begun production of burley tobacco since 1935.

Business Survey Plan Talked At Meeting

The Prestonsburg Co-Operative Business Men's Association at a special meeting Friday at the Auxier hotel voted to sponsor co-operative meetings of the business men of Floyd county for the purpose of promoting better business relations between the merchant and consumer.

Under consideration is a plan to make a county-wide survey, using a form questionnaire to be filled in by the consumer that the merchants may be in a better position to serve them.

At the next meeting of the Association to be held at the Auxier hotel at 7:30 p. m., Friday it is expected the majority of the Prestonsburg merchants, as well as many from the county, will be present.
