Members of the senior high school class presented an interesting two-hour play on Dec. 18 in the auditorium under the direction of Oliver Ratliff. A large crowd attended.

SCHOOL CHRISTMAS PROGRAM
Small children from the first grade through the fourth gave a delightful playlet on Friday before Christmas, when Miss Marjie Ferguson acted as Mrs. Santa Claus, while Jack Hayes was Saint Nick himself, presenting "Santa Claus and His Dolls," directed by Mrs. S. B. Begley. A packed house was present to enjoy the unique performance, which was followed by the distribution of Christmas gifts and parties in the various rooms as the school dismissed for the holidays.

SURPRISE GIFT
Mrs. C. C. Newsome was delightfully honored for the Yuletide, when a group of her friends, headed by Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, presented her with a lovely remembrance quite unexpectedly.

MR. MAY IS HONORED
At the conclusion of the pageant of the Senior League of the church Dec. 22, V. O. Turner, newly-chosen teacher of the adult Bible class of the Maytown Sunday School, made a short and appropriate speech before presenting G. A. May, Sr., and his faithful wife two large and beautifully decorated baskets filled with choice fruits and nuts, as a token of appreciation for their services to the Maytown church. Mr. May has served the church for 52 years, having taught the class for more than 28 years. "George," as he is affectionately called by all who know him, is the family patriarch, and has given much of his time and means to this church than anyone else.

His many friends regret to learn he is at this time seriously ill with flu.

FLU HIGHLY PREVALENT
Scarcely a home exists in Maytown that has not some one in bed with flu, which, however, seems to be a milder sort than that of the World War days. Among those confined to bed are G. A. May, Sr., H. F. May, Mrs. J. H. Allen, Mrs. Arnold Cooley, Miss Beryl Stewart, Frank May, several members of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hyden's family, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Mayo, Mrs. Lillie Salisbury, Roger Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Stapleton and children, Mrs. Amy Begley, and many others.

STUDENT REMEMBERED

A. sent a potted poinsettia on Christmas Eve, while the young folks' Sunday School class mailed Reba a box of choice candy, and her many friends remembered her with cards. Reba has the best wishes of everyone who knows her brave fighting spirit. The home economics class is busy preparing another surprise for her.

SHOWER FOR RECENT BRIDE
Mrs. E. R. May entertained a small group of friends to a menu shower in honor of Mrs. C. L. Allen on Saturday afternoon. Mesdames J. D. Mayo and S. A. Combs, the latter two of Prestonsburg, were recipients of attractive prizes upon winning various contests pertaining to foods and cookery. Total War Not All Bad, Says AP Writer

By MILO THOMPSON
Chief of London Bureau, Associated Press.

Total war such as London is experiencing today is not all bad.

Something happens to people who, facing death, have put aside all the normal and petty expectations and ambitions.

Their hope is not to have a better job, house, car or dress on some tomorrow, but to be alive.

There is something sublime in British reaction to blitzkrieg.

The lady who wouldn't notice a woman of the "lowah claws" even through a lorgnette now holds the slave's begrimed baby in the shelter.

The "limousine of the banker from the city" loads up with Cockney workmen at a bus stop to speed them home.

The maid sits in the mistress' parlor for her cup of tea at night.

The high and the low find they are actually just people whose knees can quake, whose hearts leap to throats, whose kinfolk are equally precious and whose possessions, large or small, are slipping.

In the presence of a stalking terror they feel the need of companionship and welcome whomsoever is closest.

And great is their amazement to find that they like this. They find qualities they never suspected in each other.

We have an aging maid-of-all-work whose case, I think, illustrates one side of what the war is doing to people.

She is on a small government pension earned by years of cleaning government offices.

She possesses a tiny cottage, a cat, a teakettle, a washtub and a cot.

There were a few speaking neighbors, but mostly her prewar life was a lonely one of puttering about the house and garden when she was not at her work. And at work she never was talkative.

Blitzkrieg made her a new existence.

Thickening bombardment eventually made it undesirable for her to go home to her cottage at nights and she began staying with us during the night raids.

She was far more nervous than we were. Starting up in fright at mere gunfire or at some queer sound made by a truck on the highway.

So it hurt our consciences to have her sitting alone in a corner of the kitchen or below stairs in her own room, while we were before the fire in a strong room with battened windows. We asked her to come in and sit in the same room with us during the evenings.

She began to spruce up her appearance. She showed her appreciation in innumerable little helpful ways.

The third step in her regeneration came when our house was bombed. A period followed when no one could live in our house. So she went down the street to spend her nights in one of the public shelters.

There she found a new world in which people like herself, talking her own language, laid their coats and pallets side by side, listened to a common radio which drowned out the gunfire, held long conversations about the affairs of the whole neighborhood, traded bits of information about the effect of the bombs, played cards; in fact had a nightly tea party until lights-out time.

After that we could never win her back to staying in the house during the nightly raids.

She was almost gay as she packed her little basket and set off in the gloaming to reach the shelter before the siren sounded.

At the crack of dawn and after the morning "all clear" she would be back bubbling over with the news she had gleaned and repeating bits of conversation from the friends she had made.

For the first time in her life she had become a really social being and, for all her continuing moments of terror, she seemed to grow younger.

War had brought her a tongue and a host of friends and a part of their myriad adventures.

I tell this story, not because it is great drama, but because it is typical. It has been happening all over the London area.

Discovery of several such cases, with false information concerning dependents and given with the intention of evading the class I classification, already have been made.

Colonel Frank D. Rash, state director of selective service, said that Kentucky stood near the top in the number of army trainees accepted by the army after selection by local draft boards. Only about 11 per cent of Kentuckians passed by local boards had been rejected, he said, whereas other states show up to 28 per cent rejection.

First Aid Classes Planned By Cross

The certainty that many fatalities resulting from accidents of all kinds can be eliminated was pointed out by Ella Noel C. White, executive secretary, Floyd County Chapter, American Red Cross, in announcing a series of classes of first aid to be sponsored by the local chapter beginning here January 6.

Carl G. Ford, of the Prestonsburg school faculty is chairman of the safety organization, and is taking an active part in the safety program here.

Edward D. Sharp, national Red Cross representative, Washington, D. C., said recently:

"National headquarters of the Red Cross in Washington recently revealed that many letters are received each month recounting instances where first aid training was the means of saving lives and preventing lasting injuries."

Miss White said, "In our own state and county we also have had numerous instances called to our attention where knowledge of first aid came in handy."

"Police and firemen, employes of public utility companies, bus drivers and various others are being trained by Red Cross instructors in an effort to lessen the number of fatalities that occur on our highways and in our homes," Miss White said. "We feel that our local chapter will be performing a distinct and much-needed service to the community in training everyone possible in the rudiments of first aid and its application."

Automobile accidents are increasing at an alarming rate, the toll of lives taken on highways and in city streets continues to mount in many places in spite of traffic safety and stringent traffic laws. The Red Cross has been working hand in hand with local officials throughout the country in efforts to control traffic fatalities and crippling accidents, and the national organization has incorporated this accident prevention work in its year-round program.

All persons interested in receiving the first-aid training should communicate with the local Red Cross chapter at once, in order to be enrolled in the class.

A dam 155 feet long and seven feet high was made at a pond-digging demonstration in Meade county.

Gilbert Hobbs, 64, Wayland, Dies Dec. 22

Gilbert Hobbs, for the last 12 years a well-known church and civic leader at Wayland, died Dec. 22 of heart disease, an illness with which he was stricken early last spring. Mr. Hobbs was 64 years old.

A member for many years of the Church of Christ, he was one of his community's best men. He was a native of Tennessee and had been employed as a miner, until ill health forced his retirement six years ago, by the Elk Horn Coal Corporation.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Mida Gross Hobbs, four sons and three daughters: Revis, Noble, Vellie and Joe Hobbs, Mrs. Tula Turner, Mrs. Champ Gibson and Miss Lois Hobbs, all of Wayland.

Funeral rites were conducted from the Church of Christ at Glo, and the body was taken to Carvel, Ala., for burial under the direction of the Arnold Funeral Home.
