Governor Wetherby, who will fill out Clements' unexpired term ending next December, said he had no executive orders to issue and that he contemplated no changes in appointive department heads.

In his inaugural address, he asked state employees to return to work and "continue to render to the public the same loyal service that you have been rendering during the last three years."

Pikeville, Ky., Nov. 27—A soldier on furlough while he recovered from injuries suffered in an automobile accident, died yesterday of carbon monoxide poisoning, Coroner John G. Call reported today.

Call said Joe Willis Francis, 22, of nearby Heifey, was overcome near Heifey as he and two companions returned by auto from Williamson, W. Va., early Sunday morning.

His companions, John Maynard and Layton Tinson, both of the Heifey section, also were made ill by the fumes which apparently seeped through the floorboards.

Call said Maynard, driving the car, became ill on Rockhouse Fork and turned the wheel over to Tinson. Tinson also became ill and lost control of the car, which ran into a ditch.

Maynard and Tinson, too ill to remove Francis, sought help from a nearby farmhouse but the young soldier was dead before a doctor could arrive.

Francis suffered a knee injury in an auto accident earlier this fall while on furlough. Call said he understood he had received permission to remain at home while his leg healed.

Floyd County Times

Official Organ for Floyd County, Ky

Published Every Thursday by Prestonsburg Publishing Co

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Ky., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Why the Newspapers, Mr. Hays?

WRITING in the Point of View department of The Courier-Journal, Hume Hays, of Lexington, sweeps a big brush in painting black the County Clerks and the newspapers of Kentucky, thusly:

"The crime of aiding criminals by keeping information from the public and from honest officers is a crime that can be committed by any man or by any newspaper. Kentucky newspapers are aiding Kentucky county clerks in keeping on the registered voter list thousands of illegal voter names, which are the basis of stealing elections by failure to call upon grand juries and Congressional committees and clerks to remove the illegal names."

The Times refuses to accept for itself and the other newspapers of Kentucky the blame for this disgraceful state of affairs. On more than one occasion this newspaper has urged the purgation of the voting lists and branded the voting of the dead and otherwise departed as a ghoulish fraud on the living. Too, it has urged the Kentucky Legislature and the Administration in power to clarify the purgation laws so that they are understandable and enforceable.

Mr. Hays could have as justifiably blamed the preachers of Kentucky for the situation.

But the blame really lies on those who enacted the purgation law now in effect and on those who failed or refused to enact legislation at the last session of the General Assembly which would have given the state an effective means of clearing the voting lists of all except those who are entitled to a ballot.

Though he errs in placing the blame, the Lexington man does render by his contribution a public service, inasmuch as his comment draws attention to a situation decent citizens and worthwhile public officials will not permit to exist indefinitely.

So we forgive him.

Even in the matter of suicide, the women don't shuffle off as rapidly as the men. More women attempt such rashness, but somehow wind up as living failures. The statistician hints that this may be the result of the poor, mistreated female having in mind at the time nothing more than an attempt at going off the deep end in order to call attention to her grievances.

Bowl Game Results Improve Big Sandy Conference Prestige

The Paintsville Tigers upheld the prestige of Eastern Kentucky football, Thanksgiving Day, by soundly thumping the highly rated Vikings of Valley high school, 33-13, at Somerset to become the first champions of the Cumberland Lake bowl.

This victory, added to the great last-half comeback the Prestonsburg Black Cats made against Highlands of Newport in the Recreation Bowl at Mt. Sterling, brought the section's grid stock to a new high.

Paintsville, which in the Big Sandy Conference, had lost to Prestonsburg and Fleming-Neon, presented a fine array of running backs in Simonton, Gambo and Cottle, were directed by Tricky Bob Williams at quarterback. The heavier Valley team fell behind in the second quarter and never threatened.

Cubs To Meet Dec. 5; Plan Toy Collection

Regular monthly meeting of the Cub scouts here has been postponed from Nov. 28 till Tuesday, Dec. 5, with the themes, "Radio" and "Hiking" to combine two months' work. All committee members, Cub leaders, Cubs and others interested in the work are being asked to attend, since the Dec. 5 meeting will be the last at the church for 1950.

Next month, Cubs will help collect and repair old toys which will be distributed to needy children at Christmas-time. Estill Patton and Watt Hale, of West Prestonsburg, have volunteered to repair toys, and the boys have already begun collecting them. Persons having old toys to contribute should contact Ray Howard, Cubmaster, Mr. Patton or Mr. Hale.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court, rendered and entered at the November term, 1950, in the above-styled cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale on the property hereinafter described near Prestonsburg, Ky., to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 2nd day of December, 1950, at 1 o'clock, p.m., upon a credit of 6 and 12 months, the following described property, to-wit:

Lying and being on Little Paint Creek, in Floyd county, Ky., beginning on a stake in the right-of-way line of U.S. Highway No. 23, at the upper corner of the front yard; thence turning at left angle and running a straight line up the hill a distance of 210 ft. to a stake; thence turning at left angle and running a straight line down the hill and across the garden a distance of 210 ft. to the right of way line of U.S. Highway No. 23; thence running up the creek with said right of way line a distance of 210 ft. to a stake, the place of beginning.

(This property is the home place of Andrew J. Baldrige, deceased, and includes a good five-room frame house with basement under one room, fronting on U. S. Highway No. 23, within three miles of Prestonsburg, and a very attractive and convenient country home).

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 14th day of November, 1950.
EDMOND H. TACKETT,
 Special Commissioner,
 Floyd Circuit Court.

KNOW YOUR SCHOOLS
 And What They Are Doing

By County Superintendent's Office

Attendance Department:
 The school census shows that there are 15,257 white children of school age and 150 colored children in Floyd county.

Of this number, there are now enrolled in the public schools 10,479 elementary white children and 1,974 white high school children. There are 119 colored elementary children and 37 colored high school students.

In the nine county high schools, rural schools, (both colored and white) there are 305 elementary teachers and 79 high school teachers for a total of 384 teachers. These figures do not include Prestonsburg.

In addition, there are four special teachers for Band, Industrial Arts, Vocational Agriculture and Commerce.

Building Program:
 Work on the Wheelwright high school gymnasium and special classroom building is progressing rapidly. In addition to the gymnasium this building will contain a cafeteria, Industrial Arts department, and Music department. This will greatly relieve the high school as to classroom space. This building is the fifth major school building to be built in the county since the war.

YOUR TIME IS GOD'S TIME

When asked to prepare a statement concerning the proper use of time, a group of young people came up with these words: "Your time is God's time."

Grown-ups may well heed this truth.

One's time is really not one's own. Even though budgeted to include only such things as business, golf, gardening, travel or what not, it is still God's time.

And when we fail to include in our time budget a few hours for the Church and its constructive program, then the One from whom we get all the time we have is being ignored and we are losing priceless returns.

Time given to the Church and the enterprises for which it stands is an investment that pays dividends for all the other worthwhile things we have to do.

Try it. Take an interest in some Church—in the Bible—in an activity on the high level of service to others—and see how much more productive all of your time will be.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Can Clements' Blessing Win Governorship for Wetherby?

Can Governor Earle C. Clements, Senate-bound, name his successor, and, if he can, will he pass the mantle to Lawrence W. Wetherby? Has an Eastern Kentuckian a chance to win the Governorship? Or will it be Ben Kilgore or Harry Waterfield?

These are questions here discussed by Robert L. Riggs, Courier-Journal Washington writer.

Washington, Nov. 18—With the ink scarcely dry on the tabulations which made Earle C. Clements Kentucky's Senator-elect, the scramble is under way to unseat the man he leaves behind him in the Governor's office.

Already actively at work are two candidates who want to take the Democratic gubernatorial nomination away from Lawrence W. Wetherby next August. One is representative Joe B. Bates, of Greenup, a member of Congress for 12 years. The other is Ben Kilgore, of Franklin, who was defeated in the 1943 gubernatorial primary by J. Lyter Donaldson.

Of these two candidates, Kilgore is the more determined. Bates's attitude is that it would be profitless for him to run if there is another strong anti-Clements candidate in the field. If the Clements opposition is divided, Bates believes Wetherby—or whoever has the new Senator's blessing—will be sure to win the primary.

But Kilgore's position is that he is going to run—come what may. He would rather be the unopposed choice of the coalition fighting Clements. But if he can't have clear sailing, Kilgore is prepared to go into a three-or-four-way primary contest, backing not only Wetherby, but also Bates and any other anti-Clements candidate who cares to enter the lists.

Both Bates and Kilgore obviously are counting Harry Lee Waterfield, of Clinton, out of next summer's race for Governor.

At the present, Bates is on a tour of Kentucky in an effort to find out not only what support he may expect in the primary, but whether or not he can expect to be the sole candidate of the coalition.

Bates has planned to make public announcement of his findings in about a week. If he discovers that it appears unwise for him to continue as a candidate, he will remove himself from further speculation. But if he decides there is a possibility he could be the one on whom the anti-Clements combination could center its support, he will keep himself in the race, even though he does not make formal announcement of his candidacy.

When he started this current survey, Bates had convinced himself that Waterfield, who lost to Clements in the 1947 gubernatorial primary, could be induced to stay out of the forthcoming contest. He was not, however, aware of the degree to which Kilgore is determined to wipe out the memory of his 1943 primary defeat. It is yet to be seen whether or not Bates would consider Kilgore's candidacy a sufficient obstacle to cause him to drop his own plans.

At any rate, Bates is going to have an opportunity to learn firsthand just how Kilgore feels about it. Kilgore sent him a telegraphed invitation to a conference in Louisville Tuesday.

For seven years Kilgore has been making his comeback plans. He has kept alive such organization as he managed to throw together in 1943, and has added to it. He has made speeches for Democratic nominees in each election. In order to keep his political record straight, he went on the stump for Alben W. Barkley in the 1944 Senatorial election, even though it cost him his job as Kentucky director of a large insurance company.

Kilgore wanted to try again in 1947. He had been told by people he considered well informed that if he would become a candidate for Governor, Clements would not enter the race. But Kilgore stepped aside in order to help Waterfield because Waterfield had been Kilgore's campaign manager four years earlier.

But Kilgore has made up his mind to do no more stepping aside, whether the request comes from Bates or even from Waterfield.

Both Bates and Kilgore, and no doubt many other aspirants are interpreting the November 7 election figures as an omen that next summer is the ideal time to run for Governor against a Clements-supported candidate.

Although the Clements majority of only 56,418 might be considered a respectable showing in the face of a national Republican trend which laid low such outstanding Democrats as Scott Lucas and Millard Tydings, the anti-Clements people claim it is evidence of political weakness on the part of the new Senator.

They point out that in two or three districts where incumbent Democratic House members had Republican opponents, Clements' margin of victory over Charles I. Dawson was smaller than the Congressman got. For example, in the Eighth district, Bates beat Elmer Roberts by 13,100, whereas Clements defeated Dawson by only 10,209.

In the Fifth district, Brent Spence beat Thomas W. Hardesty by 14,250, whereas Clements' victory margin in that Northern Kentucky area was only 3,085. The only district in which Clements did better than the sitting Congressman was the Seventh. There, the margin was 9,262, while first-time Carl Perkins beat Dr. O. W. Thompson by only 7,577.

It was in Louisville that the anti-Clements forces found their greatest satisfaction. There, Clements barely carried Jefferson county, which is Wetherby's home, by 736, while the sitting Republican Congressman, Thruston Morton, was rounding up a majority of 12,428.

The anti-Administration group interprets these figures to mean that if the Louisville organization can't deliver better than that in a general election, it will be unable to persuade the rest of the state to give Wetherby the nomination next August.

There is, of course, no rule of politics which requires Clements to have a candidate for Governor next summer, nor one that requires him to stay by Wetherby if he does have a candidate. It would, however, be out of character for Clements not to try to nominate and elect a man closely tied to him.

Senators are vulnerable if, when they come up for renomination, their party has in the Governor's chair a man hostile to them. That is why it is important both to Clements and to his political ally, Senator Virgil Chapman, to have a friend at Frankfort.

Despite their claim that he lost face in the recent election, the Clements' opponents have such respect for his political capacity that they would like to convince themselves that he will sit out the 1951 gubernatorial primary.

Their argument goes like this: Clements has nothing to gain from engaging in a political fight next summer, because the Governor nominated then would not be in office when Clements is up for renomination in 1956. The gubernatorial race for Clements to be concerned about, they argue, is the 1955 primary.

So far as Wetherby is concerned, they argue that Clements has no obligation to endanger his own standing by making what might be a losing fight for Wetherby next summer.

These arguments, of course, ignore the fact that it is not Clements' nature to sit on the sidelines while a fight goes on for control of the Democratic party in Kentucky. They also ignore the fact that Clements' ally, Chapman, will be up for renomination in 1954, while the Governor chosen next year will still be in office.

The forthcoming political test of strength is going to make for tense relations among members of Kentucky's Congressional delegation. Bates and Noble J. Gregory, who has promised Bates his support in the heavily Democratic First District if Bates runs for Governor, will continue to lead the anti-Clements fight, as they have done ever since Clements failed to appoint Gregory to the Senate seat Alben W. Barkley relinquished.

Firmly in the Clements camp will be Perkins. For the remaining four Democrats, there will be a constant pulling and hauling. They are Brent Spence, John A. Whitaker, Frank L. Chelf and Thomas R. Underwood. Whitaker represents the same district that Clements represented when he was in the House, and was Clements' choice as successor. Underwood managed Clements' campaign for Governor in 1947. Chelf has been closely associated with Clements since 1944. But all three likewise are closely tied to their fellow House member, Bates.

Underwood has another tie to Clements in that he naturally is interested in the renomination and reelection of Chapman, whom Underwood succeeded in the House. Hence, he and Chapman will have to line up together in the forthcoming struggle for party control.

Kentucky has had a 10-year

POPULATION GROWTH 4%

TELEPHONE GROWTH 129%

A good gauge of Kentucky progress and prosperity, and of the size of the telephone job that's been done, is a comparison of population growth with telephone growth. While the number of people in Kentucky was increasing 4% in ten years, according to the census, the number of telephones jumped 129%.

A large part of this telephone growth has taken place in just the last five years. During that short time Southern Bell has built $45,470,000 of new telephone facilities in Kentucky... increased the number of telephones by 71%... nearly doubled long distance circuits and more than doubled rural telephones.

We've spent more to expand Kentucky telephone facilities in the last five years than we had invested in the state five years ago. And we're going right on doing our best to meet the continuing heavy demand for service in town and on the farm.

SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND

Where Money to Expand and Improve Service Comes From

It doesn't come from the money you pay us for telephone service... that money goes to pay wages, taxes and other operating costs. The money to build new facilities must come from people with money to invest. That's why the future of telephone service depends on the Company's continued ability to pay for the use of the money invested in telephone facilities.

RADIO TALK HAILS MAJOR ROLE OF COAL IN PEACE AND WAR

Special to The Times

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27—The relative safety of coal mines in the event of an enemy's attack on American industrial positions is described in a radio interview broadcast this week over more than 130 stations in 38 states and the District of Columbia. This natural advantage is explained by William H. Cooke, Chairman of the new Coal Defense Committee, in the "Americans, Speak Up!" program conducted by Bill Slater, nationally-known network personality.

"Wartime has always pointed up the fact that American coal mines are relatively safe from attack," Mr. Cooke points out. "Scattered throughout 28 states, most of the thousands of mines are many miles inland. They need not be camouflaged nor do they require anti-aircraft protection. The deep mines are actually underground factories. Mr. Cooke reminds the radio audience that "never did this nation want for coal" during World War II, describing the accomplishment of the coal industry as "an excellent example of free enterprise doing its patriotic duty." Reminded by Mr. Slater that another global war will increase demands on all industrial effort, Mr. Cooke offers this explanation of why coal "stands

Destroying Scenic Value Would Not Be Economy

A grievous wrong is about to be done one of Kentucky's most valuable scenic attractions, the Cumberland Falls State Park. The Times is reliably informed that state authorities are planning to build a bridge within the park area, crossing the Cumberland at a point upstream from the present ferry site. Conservationists have warned repeatedly that this would mean permanent injury of the park's great value as a wilderness tract.

A bridge is sorely needed in the area, to replace the slow and uncertain ferry service. But the bridge, as we've said many times before, should be outside the park. This would mean relocating a portion of Highway 90 which traverses the park. A suitable place for the bridge would be at Bunch's Creek on the park boundary. A highway routed in that direction would adequately serve the needs of park visitors, and other travelers, without disturbing the serenity and natural beauty of the park.

The highway, of course, never should have been built in the park. The fact that it was built there, however, offers no excuse for aggravating the wrong and making permanent the injury to the park by building a bridge there. The excuse offered for locating the span there is that this would be cheaper than relocating the highway. Obviously it would be cheaper in terms of highway dollars, if that is all that is to be considered. But what of the cost in terms of irreparable damage to one of Kentucky's proudest tourist attractions?

It has been estimated that relocating Highway 90 and putting a bridge at Bunch's Creek would cost $1,500,000, as compared to an anticipated cost of $600,000 for building a bridge in the park. Cumberland Falls Park is worth considerably more than the $900,000 difference in terms of dollar value alone. We earnestly hope that Governor Clements, who has the final say, will not be influenced by false concepts of economy into permitting damage to the park that would be costly and everlasting. Build the bridge, by all means, but build it outside the park!—Louisville Times.

Rabbit Hunting Can Be Dangerous to You As Well As to Rabbit

Rabbit hunting is usually dangerous only to the rabbit, but it may also be a source of danger to the hunter if proper precautions are not taken.

"Rabbit fever," as tularemia is often called, can cause illness and even death to its victims. Since no satisfactory method of immunization is yet available, it is particularly important that care should be taken to avoid infection.

Certain preventive measures should be observed at all times. Rubber gloves should always be worn when dressing rabbits; a rabbit should always be shot on the run, never if it can be caught sitting; throw the carcass away if, upon examination, small white or grayish spots are seen on the rabbit's liver; hands should be kept away from the face whenever handling wild rabbits; never handle a wild rabbit which has been found dead or which has been brought in by a dog or cat; cook rabbits thoroughly, so that no red meat or red blood remains. Through cooking of the meat destroys the germs.

If these precautions are observed, there is no reason for fear of tularemia to interfere with anyone's enjoyment of rabbit meat, which is nutritious.

Although wild rabbit is the principal source of tularemia, other animals, such as ground squirrels, opossums, chipmunks and porcupines, may be infected. However, the largest number of cases occur during the rabbit hunting season, which indicates that wild rabbits are responsible for most of the tularemia in the state. During 1949 a total of 10 cases were reported in Kentucky.

Further information regarding tularemia may be obtained from your family physician or from the Floyd County Health Department.

At the Point of Pain!

At Last!

With new Surin

No Internal Dosing—simply smooth it on!

Now, comes a new way to relieve the nagging local superficial pains of muscles and joints as well as those of simple colds and fatigue with a 1-minute gentle rub-in of new SURIN ointment. The secret of SURIN is in the use of the modern research drug—b-methacholine chloride, which doctors call a vaso-dilator. This increases local blood supply where applied, and allows fast penetration of SURIN's selected local analgesics and relaxing agents for speedy pain relief at the point of pain! Thus SURIN fights pain 2 ways! In a few minutes you feel a glowing sensation of soothing warmth that lasts up to three or more hours. SURIN is so easy to use and you can apply it without fear! SURIN is creamy-white—washes off easily and will not stain washable fabrics. Money back at your druggist's if not satisfied.

*SURIN is not intended as a cure or treatment of the above diseases. It is to be used only for temporary relief of local, superficial pain.

Farm Youth Needs Broader Education, Says U.K. President

"The education of a farm boy or farm girl in times like ours must not be strictly limited to technical knowledge," Dr. H. L. Donovan, president of the University of Kentucky, declared last week in an address at Louisville before the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation's annual convention.

As in the past, the U.K. president said, most of this country's future leaders will come from farm homes, and upon them will be lodged the responsibility for winning the war for the minds of men. If they are to successfully meet this challenge, he continued, an education that stresses technical training alone will not suffice.

America's farm youth of 1950, the convention audience was told, must be given a broad and fundamental education that will help it to understand, appreciate and interpret the function of democracy. The education of farm boys and girls must include basic knowledge of English, chemistry, biology, history, political science, literature, philosophy, ethics, economics, sociology, music and art, Dr. Donovan declared.

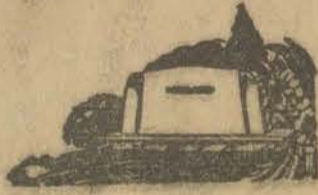

"No man or woman who expects to be a leader in the second half of the 20th century," he said, "can be ignorant of the social sciences and the humanities, nor hope to succeed unless he or she understands the complexities of our civilization."

"Because of the scope of our vocation as farmers, we must be broadly educated in many fields of knowledge. Because of our responsibility as citizens we need to understand and appreciate, and be able to interpret, the unique function of democracy in the world in which we live."

"If you have sons and daughters who plan to pursue the vocation of farming, see to it, if you expect them to become real leaders in the last half of the 20th century, that they get a broad and fundamental education."

"LIKE PEAS IN A POD"

Individualists in our country have often been fearful that our civilization will ultimately make all of us as much alike as peas in a pod. So many of the gadgets of civilization are now standardized that it would seem easy to make our thinking just as standardized. Within bounds this might be a great idea—maybe a bit of this making things alike that do not mean too much would give us more time to stress the things that do matter. Now in this matter of clothes; is it true that clothes make the man, or are clothes necessary obligations we owe society? That we will not be repulsive? Most men that I know are perfectly willing to let well enough alone and wear the same type of clothes indefinitely. There is nothing quite so comfortable as an old shoe unless it is an old suit. Fortunately for us men styles do not change too rapidly for us all to indulge in this love for our old belongings. But the fact that style, even for men, changes makes the laziest of us by and by get the new suit or the new shoes and thus not become objects of wonder to other people. Standardization thus saves a good many fine men from becoming museum pieces.

I have never been surprised at Oliver Wendell Holmes' old man that he wrote about in "The Last Leaf," the old Major Melville, who continued to wear his Revolutionary War clothing after society had standardized another type. The old fellow may have been "tetched in the head," or he may have been a little more brave than most of us. Anyway, this same tendency exists in most of the men I know and is checked, I hope, by a fear of being too far behind the times.

It is true that we as a people are eating much the same standardized food, driving standardized cars, reading standardized newspapers, and using the same general language. Because if this we can soon fit into the places where we drive our cars or where business calls us. But down under this standardized exterior we are still vastly and interestingly different. Though we are not so provincial as were our ancestors, before the days of such complete standardization, there still runs in our veins a local kind of blood that is pretty hard to type. For example, can you imagine a Southerner, from the Deep South,

Music Program Features Woman's Club Meeting

Wayland, Ky., Nov. 27 (Spl.)—The Lackey-Garrett Woman's Club was entertained the evening of November 21, at the home of Mrs. J. Crittenden Wells, with a musical program featuring Deacon Terry and his Spiritual Evangelistic Quartet under the direction of Dunbar Scott. Mr. Scott played a number of piano selections, including several request numbers.

A brief business session was held before the arrival of the evening's entertainers. A card was read from Mrs. Hiran Houghton asking for material, needles, and yarn from each club to be sent to Germany to be made into infant clothing. The club voted in favor of this project and Mrs. Roy Souleyrette volunteered to get the material together.

The program for the evening was on the subject, "Music and Television" with Mrs. R. H. Messer in charge. Mrs. Dick Mandt spoke on television, relating how she and her husband had received television in a tent here in the mountains where reception is impossible in most homes.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Wells served refreshments to the six entertainers, four guests and 29 members, as follows: Mesdames Frank Harman, C. E. Warf, Charles Hornsby, Dick Mandt, guests, and Mesdames John S. Hampton, Melvin Hayes, S. M. Martin, Willard Castle, J. E. Miller, Fred Hall, Gorman Collins, Carlton Wrightson, W. T. Hatcher, John Wallace, Roy Souleyrette, Frank Cooley, Geo. Evans, Roscoe H. Messer, Edgar Dale, Ralph Wright, John E. Feldt, R. F. Vinson, J. T. Spillman, E. C. Blanton, Ellen Hornsby, R. L. Gardner, C. B. Ison, James T. Fraley, Noah Howard, M. M. Collins, Alex Begley, and Felix Coburn, members.

NOTICE

It has been called to my attention that a great number of my friends do not know that I no longer own an interest in the Funeral Home at Martin, formerly known as Arnold and Hall, now known as Hall Bros. Funeral Home.

I wish to take this means of announcing that I do not have any interest in any funeral home other than the Arnold Funeral Home in Prestonsburg. I established this funeral home which bears my name, in 1925, from which my friends and neighbors have always been given the most efficient and sympathetic service possible at a reasonable price. In 1948 the new funeral home on Second street that we now occupy was built, the sole reason being that I felt that the people of Floyd county should have the best facilities in the state made available to them for the care of their loved ones.

You can rest assured that as long as the ARNOLD FUNERAL HOME is operated by my partner, Franklin W. Moore, and myself, the same fair treatment for all that has distinguished this firm for the last 25 years will be given to those we serve.
