This Town-- That World

PITY US DEBATERS!

Friend of mine opened a discussion, the other day, of a subject which isn't exactly pleasant to me. It was about the debating societies in the schools of yester-year.

The subject brought back memories of my attempts to become a full-fledged and 'arin'-to-go member of such a society—these attempts produced on by a father who couldn't conceive how a son of his could be so timid he couldn't stand on his hind feet and speak his mind on any occasion. Included in the memory book, too, is the record of abject failure on my part. I was right there, as ordered, for the organization, and I accepted my topic for discussion, and then made some show of getting ready for the great night when we would have at each other forensically. But when that night came for us to stand up there and spout off before our friends, classmates and neighbors—well, my health was right poorly, those days, and I always pulled up lame or something.

The only pleasant part about this discourse of my friend on the debating society was his description of what happened to a debater in a school far up an isolated creek in this section. It is one of the few sections where wild boys still range the forest. The subject for debate, it seems, was, "Resolved That the Gun is More Valuable Than the Dog," and the "hero" of this story took the affirmative—and how.

He was there to tell all and sundry the gun had it all over a dog. Then he began enumerating the points of superiority, and after while he got stuck and reached way out and came up with this one:

"Why, you take a gun and a feller can spot him a wild hawg up there on the hill, and slip up behind him with the gun and blow his brains out!"

ROOSTER-FIGHTIN'

The Courier-Journal recently broke the story of Bourbon county cock-fighting to officials there who solemnly averred they'd never heard of such a thing in those parts, despite the fact that handbills advertising one event had been printed and, presumably, posted.

Cock-fighting is nothing new in this section. Both Floyd and Pike counties have long had pretty elaborate lay-outs for this "sport".

DEEPER LAKE PLEAS MOUNT

1,717 Signed Petitions Returned Here to Date; Feb. 1 Deadline Fixed

Reports from various points over this area where interested individuals and groups are sponsoring the drive for deepening of Dewey Lake by an additional five feet of water indicate that not less than 3,000 petitions signed by residents of this section will be in the hands of the U. S. District Corps of Engineers, Huntington, W. Va., by Feb. 15.

As of noon Tuesday, exactly 1,717 signed petitions had been returned to the Times office. Many others are known to have been signed and accumulated at several points in this county.

In Johnson county, The Paintsville Herald printed the petition form last week and called on its readers to express their support of the lake deepening move. One sportsman there predicted Johnson county will supply 5,000 petition-signers.

February 15 has been set as the deadline for the petitions to be in the hands of the Corps of Engineers.

JURY DOUBTS REPORT CRIME IS ON DECLINE

Grand Jury Adjourns Tuesday; No Indictment In Garrett Murder Case

The grand jury of the Floyd circuit court expressed in its final report to Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill on its adjournment Tuesday afternoon doubt that crime in the county is, as has been stated, on the decline.

The report, signed by Herman Porter, foreman, related that in the seven days of the jury's work it had examined 123 witnesses and returned 65 indictments.

The jury's report noted that complete lack of local option violations reported between September, last year, and Jan. 5 by Floyd Magistrates and the County Judge would indicate that the county is practically bone-dry. "We of the grand jury are not so naive as to believe such tommyrot," the report added.

The one murder case to be investigated by the jury—that of Jerry Lee, Garrett policeman—did not result in an indictment and the final report made no comment. Tuley Salisbury, former Garrett man, was recently returned to the county jail here from Detroit after police there had reported he had confessed that he killed Jerry Lee. Salisbury had been held in the jail more than two weeks, and it is expected he will be released.

Commonwealth's Attorney Burnis Martin said evidence in the possession of County Attorney W. W. Burchett is sufficient to indict but that the principal witness is dead, and that a conviction at this time is doubtful. Persons on whom the Commonwealth would have to depend in a trial are widely scattered. He added that he believes evidence will later develop.

The jury's report took issue with

TWO WORKERS DIE IN CRASH

Freight and Motor Car Collide Near Harold; Two Section Men Hurt

Two C. & O. Railway Company maintenance workers were killed and two others injured last Friday morning when their motor car and the locomotive of an upriver-bound freight train collided, a short distance south of Harold.

The death of Curtis Lee Arms, 43, of West Van Lear, who died 20 minutes after the collision.

Okie Miles, 46, Whitehouse, who was instantly killed. The injured were Preston Scott, 45, of Richardson, and James Stewart, 58, of Zelda. Both are expected to recover, it was later announced at C. & O. hospital, Huntington, W. Va.

An official statement on causes of the tragedy awaits an official hearing which, it was reported here, was slated to be held in Ashland, Wednesday of this week. One unconfirmed report said fog at the time of the collision, 8:50 a. m., prevented the maintenance crew and the engineer of the locomotive from sighting each other in time to prevent the smash-up. Another, equally unconfirmed, said the maintenance crew, which was accompanied by W. R. Dawson, Pikeville, with a time limit for arrival at Harold, with the alternative of taking to a siding if they saw they

Dr. Cann, Two Others Hurt as Their Vehicles Figure in Allen Crash

Dr. C. B. Cann, well-known Left Beaver Creek physician, and two passengers in his auto were injured Monday morning in a collision at Allen involving Cann's auto, a Floyd county school bus and a semi-trailer truck.

Dr. Cann was taken to the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, suffering from cuts, bruises and shock. The others, Mrs. Roxie Terry, 52, Columbus, O., and Lonnie Jones, Jr., of Hi Hat, were brought to the Prestonsburg General hospital. Mrs. Terry suffered a severe laceration on her forehead and concussion of the brain, and Jones sustained broken ribs and bruises. All are expected to recover.

The wreck, it was said here, resulted from Dr. Cann's attempt to pass the school bus. As he did so, the truck loomed in front of him. In the resultant crash Cann's car was badly smashed. The six pupil-passengers of the school bus were uninjured.

Booze Load Taken From Hughes' Auto Is Valued at $500

State Police Detective Arch Thompson reported that Sheila Davis Hughes, 42, of Prestonsburg, was arrested Sunday and jailed at Louisa after an estimated $500 worth of whiskey, beer and gin was found in the trunk of Hughes' new car.

Hughes was booked on charges of drunk driving and transporting alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale. A trial date has not been set.

Thompson said Hughes was arrested three miles south of Louisa after reports were received from motorists that he was driving on the wrong side of the highway and had run several people off the road.

County Judge Dan B. Ball said the car would be impounded until Hughes' trial.

PEN RATLIFF IN RAPE CASE

Dinwood Man's Term Fixed at Ten Years; Officer Is Acquitted

The Floyd circuit court grand jury voted a new rape indictment against W. J. "Happy Jack" Ratliff, of Dinwood, Monday, and that afternoon a petit jury held him guilty of the offense and fixed his term at 10 years in the state reformatory. Waiving time for an appeal, Ratliff was sentenced by Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill, Tuesday morning.

The 24-year old Ratliff was accused of the rape of Mrs. Alice Eden, 38, of Martin.

Upwards of 20 witnesses, including the complainant, testified for the Commonwealth. Mrs. Eden told in detail of the attack on her by Ratliff and of his threats to kill her and burn her body in a nearby fodder-shock if she did not submit. Testimony of others wove the web of circumstances more tightly about the defendant. One witness told of finding a glove at the spot where the woman said she was attacked. Her brother-in-law described her condition when she made her way to his house, later that night. The policeman who arrested Ratliff told of the soiled condition of his clothing, and both Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Keathley told of Ratliff leaving their theatre around 8:30 that night.

The Keathleys' testimony nullified

THIRD PARLEY HELD TUESDAY

For Area Development; East Ky. Foundation Formed at Meeting

The Eastern Kentucky Industrial Foundation, an organization with the specific purpose of bringing new industry to this section of the state and revitalizing its threatened economy, was founded Tuesday at a meeting at the Paintsville Country Club of business and civic leaders of the area.

The meeting was the third of a series begun with a Town Hall meeting in Ashland last November which has developed aid from the State Agricultural & Industrial Board toward a solution of Eastern Kentucky's economic problems.

One director from each of the 13 counties of the area and four directors at large were named for the Foundation, which will be incorporated. Marvin Music, of Prestonsburg, was named the Floyd county director. Directors at large are David Aronberg, Mayor of Ashland, R. A. Doyle, of the Kentucky & West Virginia Power Co., Ashland, Harry LaViers, Paintsville coal operator, and Norman A. Chrisman, Pikeville insurance man.

The area represented by the Foundation is composed of the Big Sandy and fringe counties.

John W. Woods, Ashland banker, presided as temporary chairman at the Paintsville meeting and made the opening statement. Eastern Kentucky's need for greater accessibility was a predominant note in talks heard during the meeting. The great, undeveloped means of access is the Big Sandy river itself, canalization of which long has been a dream.

Other speakers were N. A. Chrisman, John Ed Pearce, of The Courier-Journal editorial staff, Mayor J. B. Wells, of Paintsville, and Mayor David Aaronberg of Ashland. "We must do something for ourselves," Mayor Wells declared. "If a company can be organized and a small manufacturing plant

COURT VOIDS BUSINESS TAX

On Out-of-State Firms Voted by P'burg Council; Reverses Studio's Fines

Prestonsburg had a right to levy a business-license tax on Kentucky firms which operated here but not to impose such a tax on out-of-state individuals or companies, the Court of Appeals ruled Friday in the case which the Olen Mills Company, photographers, appealed from the Floyd circuit court.

Declaring that a state or city may not put a barrier around its borders to bar trade from other states, the high court held that the ordinance levying the tax is unconstitutional.

Three representatives of the firm were fined for soliciting business here and failing to pay the tax.

The ordinance set up a tax of $200 a year, or $10 a day, on all persons engaging temporarily in selling goods, wares, or merchandise in the city. But it didn't apply to "established businesses."

Judge Parker W. Duncan declared in the Court of Appeals opinion, "It is apparent that the ordinance is designed to hamper or destroy competition with local business, and therefore is discriminatory."

"The cumulative effect of such a tax, if adopted by a substantial number of municipalities, would not only lay an undue burden on the business involved, but might conceivably destroy the right to engage in a legitimate business beyond the borders of a particular state," the opinion said.

However, Judge Duncan explained the ruling doesn't apply to intra-state commerce—within Kentucky. Thus the city can levy the tax on persons residing in Kentucky outside Prestonsburg when they engage in commerce there.

The decision reversed the Floyd circuit court. The case was sent back for proceedings "consistent with this opinion."

GAS SERVICE FREEZE ASKED

United Fuel in Group Involved; Applications Not a Problem Locally

Columbia Gas Company asked the State Public Service Commission Jan. 22 for permission to deny fuel applications from persons seeking service.

L. E. Heckman, a spokesman for the company, asked for the freeze to become effective January 31 and to end April 30. He said this would give the company time to study its gas supply.

Columbia gas, through its subsidiaries—Central Kentucky Gas Company and United Fuel Company—serves Northern, Central, and Eastern Kentucky.

Heckman said representatives of its company had been negotiating with several sources of supply in an effort to get more fuel. "If we are forced to take on more customers

His 98 Years of Living An Even Flow of Years

What happens to a man in almost 99 years of living?

He gets married, and there are children, and deaths, and the changing seasons. But what else? What of a sensational nature?

Except for the time his house burned, the even tenor of the ways of Marlon Sword, of Grethel, who will be 99 years old Dec. 9, next, has been undisturbed. O'heap o' livin' has been his, but it has all been on the tranquil side, even to the deaths in the family.

Probably no man has lived so long and traveled less. He always seemed rooted to the locality in which he lived. When he married Nancy Hamilton 75 years ago he moved to Big Mud Creek. He moved one time since then and that was when his home burned.

In 98 years—some say he is 103 but the family Bible disputes this—you would think a man would have observed or participated in some event of transcendent importance to himself or others. Not so to Marlon Sword. Excepting the events of marriage, the birth and death of children, and the time his house burned, life has been an even flow of years. No event set them apart.

Born in a family of 14, the son of William and Chrissy Ramey Sword of Island Creek, Pike county, he grew to adulthood on a mountain

TIMES WORKS TO PRINT DAY EARLY THIS WEEK

The Times has worked overtime this week in an effort to publish a day early so that a member of its staff, J. E. Goble, can leave this morning (Thursday) to attend as a representative of the First Presbyterian Church here the fifth annual meeting of the National Council of Presbyterian Men. The national church meet will be held at the Palmer House, Chicago, beginning Jan. 30 and ending Feb. 1.

Because of this race with time this week, we have been forced to omit some news which arrived on Tuesday, a date which under ordinary circumstances would have been early enough to insure publication.

SUIT BY HALL ASKS $30,050

P'burg Man Claims Physicians Unjustly Declared Him Insane

J. M. Hall, former Prestonsburg restaurant operator, filed suit in the Floyd circuit court Friday, seeking to recover from two Prestonsburg doctors, Marvin Ransdell and A. J. Davidson, a total of $30,050 claimed as damages in Hall's commitment to the U. S. Narcotic Farm at Lexington in February of last year.

Fifty dollars of the amount is claimed as expenses Hall incurred in employing an attorney to aid in getting restored to him his civil rights following the findings of the two physicians. The remaining $30,000 is claimed as damages.

The defendant alleged that Drs. Ransdell and Davidson were appointed by the Floyd circuit court to make a physical examination of him and that their subsequent statement of findings was made "negligently, fraudulently, maliciously and without probable cause." The statement, the petition recites, said that Hall was "an insane person and requires supervision and control for his own welfare, which can best be provided by commitment to the U. S. Narcotics Farm." The statement of the doctors, it also is alleged, said Hall had become a confirmed addict.

Claiming that as a result of the physicians' statement he was arrested and taken to the Narcotic Farm, Hall states in his petition that he is child and retold the story to his children, his grandchildren, for years—yes, for generations—around his quiet fireside.

It was a dramatic tale of brother Mack going west and, as Marlon himself did in the evenings for years, he went after the cows. He was taken by the Indians and never came back for 11 years. He escaped and had

BOARD LISTS 3,343 NAMES

Planned for Purging From Voting Rolls; Session Near End

As of Monday morning the Floyd County Registration and Purgation Board, only two days away from the conclusion of its allotted 20 days of work, had submitted to this newspaper 3,343 names of voters scheduled for purgation unless conclusive evidence is shown that such action should not be taken.

The Board went on vacation last Saturday till the last two days of this week after its members had decided to wait till the end of the week returns from postmasters of notices challenging registration of voters.

"We just now are getting in shape to do something, and if we had a few more days to work the Board could get as much done as we have in the last 18 days," a member commented this week.

At that, the figures indicate that for the first time the county's Registration and Purgation Board will get results.

An isolated case of registration and voting duplication drew the attention of the Board last week. Oma Ambury, the Board learned, was registered in both Kennedy and Drift precincts. Her registration in Kennedy was challenged on the grounds that she had moved away. The registrant appeared before the Board and stated she had voted at Drift in the 1952 general election. Check of the voting record in that precinct showed she had done so. But a check of the Kennedy precinct voting record showed she had been marked as having voted there at the same election, also.

Mrs. Ambury declared she did not vote at Drift at the last election. The grand jury may be asked to look into the matter.

The following is the number of names submitted for publication and purgation by precincts, and previous lists have been published from several of these precincts.

Prestonsburg No. 1, 122; Prestonsburg No. 2, 102; Spurlock, 24; Halbert, 34; Mouth Mud, 67; Betsy Layne, 36; Pointer Harve, 60; Clear Creek, 8; John Ant, 61; Abbott, 2; Dwaile, 5; Rough & Tough, 60; Martin, 68; Lackey, 87; Ivel, 25; Martin, 35; Arkansas, 3; Rock Fork, 20; Kennedy, 97; Ligon, 75; Burton, 62; David, 30; Cow Creek, 41; Antioch, 25; Clear Creek, 55; Cliff, 42.

WILL SUBMIT MERGER PLAN TO CO. BOARD

Consolidation Would Not Become Effective Till Building Finished

The Prestonsburg Board of Education broke free of a welter of opinion and discussion to go on record Monday evening in the first steps toward merger of the Prestonsburg independent school district with the county system.

The action was taken at a special meeting of the Board, which had been called, the chairman, Dr. George P. Archer, pointed out, to consider two matters:

1. A merger proposal.
2. A plan for an impartial survey of the school situation here.

Item 2 was considered unnecessary, all agreeing that only one conclusion could be reached at the end of such a study, and that a recommendation for consolidation of the two school systems.

The Board unanimously adopted this resolution which was introduced on the motion of H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr.:

"Whereas, the established policy of this Board of Education since the founding of the high school has been that of maintaining one high school and one student group, it is therefore moved that the present membership approve this established policy in principle and direct its efforts toward the continuance of such a policy; that the Board work toward the establishment of a legal and equitable agreement with the County Board by the time of the completion of the high school building, so that an orderly transition may be made.

Therefore be it resolved, the Prestonsburg Board of Education take necessary action for merger with the Floyd County Board of Education.

"The Prestonsburg Board of Education is hereby constituted a body of one to study and prepare a formal proposal of merger."

With Chalmers H. Frazier, superintendent of Prestonsburg schools, working with the Board in an advisory capacity, proposals will be set down in writing and studied at an early meeting of the Board, then revised and prepared for final and

By HENRY P. SCALF

Sometime ago, this column received a letter from F. B. Lambert, of Barbourville, W. Va., who is currently engaged in the preparation of a history of Cabell county, West Virginia. Currently engaged doesn't quite express his present work and, perhaps, it should be said that he is permanently engaged for the work has already consumed 16 years. Mr. Lambert, continues after the prefatory explanation: "I wrote a history of early schools, here, in 1910 and the old Kanawha Road, known by many people then as the James River and Kanawha Road, about 1913, when I was in West Virginia University."

"Prof. Callihan published this in his three volume History of West Virginia. Most of the work was done by history students and outsiders. He had a footnote to the bottom of my article saying F. B. Lambert furnished some of the material. I furnished all of it except a few lines which he 'corrected' but which were errors when corrected."

As a background to the rest of Mr. Lambert's letter it should be said that Jenny Wiley's daughter Jenny married Richard Williamson in Floyd county, and she and her husband emigrated to Twelve Pole Creek, in West Virginia. Their descendants and the descendants of Hezekiah Wiley, a son of Thomas and Jenny Wiley, are scattered over Southern West Virginia.

"As to Jenny Wiley, I do not know a great deal about her. I know she came from Southwest Virginia and that Indians killed some of her children. I have talked to an old man at Crum, William Crum, I believe, who claims to be a relative of hers. Possibly a descendant. I have Hardesty's book on Cabell, Wayne and Lincoln counties. This gives some account of her. Many people claim to be descended from her but no one ever gives me any direct line of descent, and I doubted if they could."

"A prominent official of Huntington, Mayor and City Commissioner, claimed to be a direct descendant, but never explained his line of descent. I try to trace families by complete lines and have hoped that some one would do this for this heroic woman but it seems no one has done so. I hope you do.

"I have seen accounts of her captivity but, just now, can't recall the references. Like all other early stories it never loses any lustre as the years go by. Historians used to be careful about this."

"I understand she settled in Johnson county, Kentucky, and died there while some of her sons went farther west. One, I believe, went to some other county in Kentucky and died there."

"Mr. Crum, I believe, if I am not mistaken, told me of seeing the bones of one or more of her children in a cave about two miles below Crum, near the Tug Fork."

Mr. Lambert's letter is ample evidence of the extent to which the story of the Wiley captivity rests in the consciousness of a people over a wide area of Southwest Virginia, Eastern Kentucky and Southern West Virginia. It is evidence, too, of the many additions and elaborations on the story. Wm. Crum's story that he had seen the bones of some of her children cannot possibly be true in the light of knowledge about Jenny as we have it. The child that the old Cherokee killed on the Tug Fork was buried by Matthias Harman and his group of frontiersmen, following after the captors of Jenny. The child killed on Cherokee Fork of Big Blaine Creek, in the present Lawrence county, although born in a cave, was buried, possibly by Mrs. Wiley herself.

Somewhere in the archives of Virginia may rest the report of her captivity as turned in to the authorities by Mrs. Wiley. That she made such a report is stated by a high official of Montgomery county, Virginia. No one has seen it and that it exists we are indebted to this official's reference in a report to the governor. If it is ever discovered, and historians have looked quite a bit, it may reverse many a story and many a conclusion of historians. The present writer thinks it is highly probable that most of what we think we know about this heroic woman of the border is conjecture and that dubious material has been accepted by writers. If we ever see the report by Mrs. Wiley, we would know. If, if—

A LITTLE GIRL LOST

Those who passed the county jail over a period of two or three days, about two weeks ago, heard something which caused them to stop and ask others, "Who is that?"

A childish voice was crying for Mommy. Those hearing the pleas for Mommy—"I want my Mommy to come and get me out of here"—thought a small child was in jail. And she wasn't far from a child. This 15-year-old girl who had been picked up as drunk, as an incorrigible, and lodged there till she could be sent away to the so-called Reform School.

"She's meaner than hell," we were told. "Throws shoes at the boys who work at the jail, every time they go up there where she is."

We're not criticising any official. Something has to be done about these cases. Mere children can't be permitted to carouse drunkenly through towns and up and down the highways. If they were, then the criticism would be indeed terrific. Good homes aren't open to such youngsters. The county has no place where they may be kept and taught the common decencies and the principles of good citizenship. There isn't enough love left to go around and reach all such as these.

Regardless of how charitable you may be toward the public and yourself for the predicament in which such children find themselves, however, you can't help wondering... Wonder who sold her the whiskey she drank, or who bought it for her and took her riding up and down the highway... Wonder what was done with them... Wonder about her Mommy and her Daddy... Did they send her to school?... How much love did she find at home?... Wonder if she hadn't been treated so cruelly along the way, that she felt like a hunted something... Wonder if it wasn't natural to throw something at the first human who stuck his head in view?...

THE BLOOD DONOR DRAFT

Several weeks ago, this column expressed the view that if young men can be drafted against their will and sent to war, donors should be drafted to supply the blood our wounded must so often have if they are to survive. A-3C Charles F. Music of the 3415th Medical Group, Lowry Air Force Base, Denver, Colo., read the piece and this was his comment:

"The trouble with the people back there is that they don't know how much the boys in Korea need the blood. I have a buddy here that just got back from Korea and he says that they need all the blood they can get over there."

"The people back home don't have to get shot and sleep in fox-holes like our boys in Korea, so they can't realize how much one pint of blood means to a boy that has just got wounded. So I hope the people will give their blood in their own free will. Maybe some time some of them will need a pint of blood to save their life. But, if they won't give theirs when they can, I hope they don't ever need any, because then they will know how the boys in Korea feel."

formal presentation to the County Board for consideration.

If the two Boards cannot agree on merger terms, the case would be thrown into the hands of the State Department of Education.

In any event, however, amicably the whole transition may be settled, merger of the county and city districts will not become effective, until completion of the county's 23-classroom building here. And that may not be until opening of the 1954 school term.

The Floyd County Board of Education has received approval of its financing plans for the building, but sale of bonds yet is to be made and the building project advertised for bids.

Failure of plans for the new structure to include an auditorium was cited at the City Board meeting.

Every member of the Board—Dr. Geo. P. Archer, chairman, H. D. Fitzpatrick, vice-chairman, W. A. Spradlin, W. V. Bunting and Tom G. Dingsus—was present for the meeting.

WASHINGTON—The Air Force said there has been an increase in recent weeks in the number of "firing passes" by enemy aircraft at U.S. night fighters and bombers over Korea. This is reflected in the loss of three night-raiding B29s to enemy fighters this month, the first such losses reported in the area.

WASHINGTON—Thousands of inaugural visitors streamed through four embassies and the Apostolic Delegate's residence viewing priceless furnishings and rare art treasures. The embassies included the British, Norwegian, Brazilian and Korean—all on Massachusetts Avenue's famed "embassy row."

KANSAS CITY—Mrs. Louise A. Lewis, housewife, could not make it to the inauguration—but she hopes a watch of her design played a role in the ceremony. The wrist watch was sent to Eisenhower with the following message: "I hope you will wear this watch on Inauguration Day." Made by a Kansas City jeweler, the watch has the letter "L" in gold where the numeral 11 would be. At the noon point is the letter "K" and at one o'clock is "E." Other numerals are represented by gold stars. Mrs. Lewis says the arrangement symbolizes Eisenhower's emergence as a candidate at the "eleventh hour of the crisis."

Funeral rites were conducted Wednesday at 2 p.m., from the United Baptist Church, West Prestonsburg, and burial was made at Katy Friend, the Arnold Funeral Home directing.

BOONVILLE, Mo. — A paralytic stroke suffered last Thursday at Hite while she was driving her auto resulted the following day in the death at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, of Mrs. Virgie Salisbury Likens, 49-year-old Hunter woman.

Her auto ran into a roadside ditch when she was stricken but she apparently was uninjured, and her death was ascribed directly to the stroke.

A daughter of Joel and Sarah Martin, she was a native of the Left Beaver Creek section where she had many relatives and friends. She was first married to Bill Bryan Salisbury, and after his death to Taulbee Likens, who survives. She leaves four sons and three daughters, Cecil Salisbury, Bedford, Ind., Irvin Salisbury, with the armed forces in Korea, Feta Salisbury, of Hunter, Orris Salisbury, of the army in England, Mrs. Randolph Hunt, Catlettsburg, Mrs. Wannie Sammons, Hunter, and Mrs. Meredith Spurlock, Miami, Florida. Two brothers, Ralph and Rex Martin, both of Lexington, also survive.

Pending attempts to return to this country Mrs. Likens' two soldiers for the funeral, definite date for the rites had not been set Monday, it was said by the Hall Bros. Funeral Home.

Tread Lightly—Proud Foot!

That's a mighty proud foot you see there. It's resting on the accelerator of a gorgeous 1953 Cadillac. But we have a serious and timely warning for that proud and happy foot: Tread lightly! Down under that accelerator is a dynamic 210-horsepower engine—coupled with the smoothest, quickest-acting Hydra-Matic Drive in history. That great power was put there for the driver's safety—and to provide that smooth, effortless, steady ride which is the essence of luxurious motoring. It was not put there to enable a Cadillac to dominate the highway—or to dash into the lead when the traffic light turns green—or to out-maneuver the other cars on the road. So don't ever exhaust that accelerator—unless you're in an emergency, and must do so for reasons of safety. If other drivers covet the honors at the stop light—just let them go. They are first away by your courtesy—and that should be satisfaction enough for anybody. Just be happy and satisfied with the great luxury this powerful engine brings you—the infinitely smooth performance... the quick "lift" that comes when you nudge the throttle... the great reserve for a burst ahead in case of necessity. And be happy, as you can't help being, with the scores and scores of other wonderful things about this magnificent car—its easy, relaxing ride, for instance... its distinguished and inspiring beauty... its rich, luxurious interiors... its honored and respected name... and its truly amazing economy. Yes—there is so much about a Cadillac to inspire and delight its owner that he doesn't need the additional thrill of unleashing its spectacular performance when it isn't necessary. So that's why we're sure he'll "Tread lightly!" He isn't in competition with anyone.

spine-tingling adventures while hiding in a hollow log or skulking around Indian campfires.

Now life can be what would be humdrum to us but to others it would be pure, rare enjoyment. Marion Sword loved to sing. He went to neighbors' homes at night to sing. He and one of the elder Hamiltons, long since dead, sometimes would lift their voices in vocal harmony until midnight.

He had six children, four of whom are living. Nancy, his wife, died in 1919 and is buried nearby at the mouth of Branham's Creek in the Hamilton cemetery. Today he lives with his widowed daughter, Mrs. James Branham, and his widowed granddaughter, Ethel Hamilton. These three, representatives of as many generations, maintain a home by the side of the road.

Here come children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren to see their ancestor, Marion Sword. They snap his picture. He is one of the most photographed men on Big Mud Creek. No one knows without tedious counting how many descendants he has. Twenty-four grandchildren are on the list. More than that are listed as great-grandchildren. What makes the counting difficult is that the family is widely separated.

If you want to talk to Marion Sword as he lies on a couch before the fire, you find he has no inclination for conversation. You are just another visitor. He answers slowly and perhaps will rise to punch the fire with one of his two canes. Mrs. James Branham tells you the story of his life when you desist from questioning a man whom the years of nearly a century have bowed down.

He never carried a pistol in his life, never swore an oath, nor, to Mrs. Branham's knowledge, had a doctor. Her father had fever once upon a time. She is positive that since that time, which was over 60 years ago, he has never had or needed a doctor. If he is slightly indisposed and one of the family suggests a doctor he is up in arms. No doctor for him. Well, he has lived a long time without them.

He makes no statement as to what gave him a long life. He never drank but he uses tobacco. He declares it won't hurt a man. He has used it for so long he can't remember.

That a man can live from 11 years before the Civil War, which he remembers, to the present day without one brush with the law or the courts is remarkable in itself. Marion Sword was a litigant in a law suit over some land one time, a minor action that must have been a friendly means of adjudicating a difficult matter. He served on a petit jury or two in his life.

This is the story of his life. Uneventful, perhaps, to us, but to him it has been satisfying and complete.

the defendant's claim that he went to the show around 7:30 and remained there till about 9:30. Time of the crime was fixed at 9:30. Ratliff testified he stayed at the theatre till 9:30 and that at that time he was told by Mr. Keathley that somebody wanted to see him. He added that he walked across the street and was arrested. That, he said, was his first knowledge of the accusation against him.

The 10-year term given Ratliff was the minimum penalty. The maximum is death. Jarvis Allen was appointed by the court to defend Ratliff after it had been shown he was unable to employ counsel.

Trial of Deputy Sheriff Scott Compton on a charge of malfeasance in office resulted Saturday in his acquittal. The charge against Compton, defense testimony showed arose from an execution issued for Lonnie Jones, Jr., on a $12 debt, a part of which had been paid and not credited to Jones through oversight Compton collected the full amount of the execution, and the error was discovered when he reported to the County Judge's office. He had not returned to Jones the money due.

Jones claimed Compton threatened to jail him—a charge which the officer denied. The amount due Jones on overpayment was paid him on conclusion of the trial, it was said.

Otherwise during this last week of the January term, five were fined—three on pleas of guilty. The defendants in these cases, charges against them and the amounts fined were: Roy Salisbury, shooting on public highway, $50; Douglas Sampson, reckless use of deadly weapon, $5; Valls Prater, detaining a woman against her will, plea of guilty, $100; Ralph Martin, cutting and wounding, $100 on plea of guilty; Willie Shepherd, entered plea of guilty to charge of possessing whiskey, $50 fine.

Drunk charges against Salisbury and Martin, one for assault and battery against Sampson. And a second whiskey possession charge against Shepherd were dismissed. Other cases dismissed: Edward P. Frasure, child desertion, and Roy Hicks, detaining a woman, both for lack of evidence.

Trial of Neise Gilliam, former officer here, on two charges of malfeasance was continued till April 27.

The February court term which will convene Monday will hear only equity cases.

State Sends Tax Forms To Kentucky Taxpayers Prompt Filing Is Urged

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 26 (Sp.)—State income tax forms have been mailed to all persons who filed tax returns last year and Department of Revenue officials urge prompt filing to avoid a rush around the April 15 deadline.

A new short form for persons whose income came from wages, bonuses and commissions and not more than $100 in dividends and interest will make filing easier, and most taxpayers will be able to file returns without outside help, the officials believe.

Required to file returns are single persons who had a 1952 gross income of at least $1,500 or a net income of $1,000. Married persons living together must file if they had a combined income of $2,500 or a net income of $2,000.

In special cases help in filing is available here or in Revenue field offices in Ashland, Covington, Lexington, Owensboro, Bowling Green, Harlan, Louisville and Paducah.

Persons who owe at least $30 in tax may pay it in three installments throughout the year.

IT'S A GOOD WORLD BY WILMA

Recently we heard Bro. Jones, superintendent of the Baptist Sunday School in East Williamson, speak on Tithing at the First Baptist Church, Martin, at a Brotherhood meeting. We do wish every Christian might hear this young man tell of his personal experience in giving according to the only scriptural plan given in God's Book. He told how they could not make ends meet when they began tithing more than ten years ago with a weekly income of thirty-three dollars. Today his tithes often amount to as much as his income did then. God can and does pour on tithers a blessing there is no room to receive, particularly spiritual ones.

He explained how God had to whip him into line a few times, as other tithers can testify. He told how God collects from us when we fail to tithe, too. Less than one percent of the Christians in America could afford to tithe before the last war but we can all afford to pay twenty-eight percent of our income today in taxes. That is a simple matter. And, sadly, even Christians, many of them, prefer doing that and meeting the other more horrible costs of war (loss of the flower of young manhood) to tithing, which is the only way whereby the gospel may be spread rapidly enough to avert future wars instigated by non-Christian nations.

Mr. Jones explained how Christians use every pretense of tithing, by giving to poor relatives, worthy folks, by donating castoff clothing or counting their labor on the church, etc. He made it really plain that God has the one and only plan.

Church members who believe tithing was limited to Old Testament times should read the 7th chapter of Hebrews and also Luke 18. If we accept one part of the Bible we must accept it all. Nor can we afford to do our own interpreting about tithing and other doctrines. Too many folks get scared into tithing. Fear of God is the beginning of Wisdom, but we should tithe for love of God, to advance his kingdom, not because we get sick and afraid and rush out to buy something for the church, and say, "Now, here, Lord, this represents the back tithe I failed to pay. It's yours, for your glory, and I'm going to use it for the church, only it still belongs to me, you see?"

We had an interesting and amusing experience in our home state long years ago when two prominent women were discussing tithing. One said, "Oh, sure, John and I tithe. We always have. We go way above the tithe. Why, children, we pay fully a hundred times the tithe!" God bless her poor ignorant soul. The tithe is ten percent of all we have. Ten times that is all we possess. A hundred times it would be ten times what anyone has. Yet that good church worker thought she was tithing the truth.

If you plan to tithe there is just one way to do it we have found from long years of experience, keep books on it. Do not be like the good sister who said she and her husband were just dying to tithe, years ago but that they had no way on earth to estimate their income. Let me add that they had no difficulty at all estimating it when Uncle Sam began collecting income taxes!

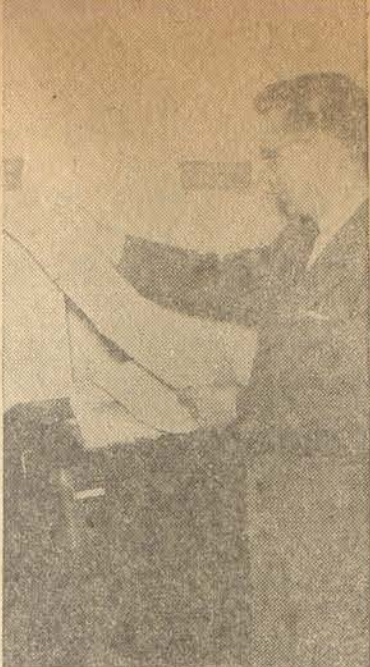

Once we heard of an old woman who paid more on a bus her church bought than anybody else. So she called it HER bus. And it was her bus. She could say when it ran and where, which direction, or even skip a route if she wished to control a matter scheduled to be voted on some night. She was so spiritually anemic she never knew that a poor young widow who put in one small dollar had actually given more than she had, for God looks at what we have left. And the rich woman had made her gift, in the first place, "in order to get in a lower income tax bracket." Why, she built this church," her folks would proudly say. How filthy some lucre is in the sight of God.

The Bible does not say tithing what is left or after debts are paid. It says tithing, and we have families of pitifully low incomes who can and do tithe systematically and joyously, while others who are rich in material possessions, are too poor to tithe or give either. The vast majority of us do what we want to do. Where there is a will there is a way.

Fiddle-de-dee, errors continue in this heap column. Last week a grammar class wound up a history class. And discouraged was substituted for encourages. What kin ye do?

Ever see Mrs. Carl Stewart of Estill? She is a woman who looks twenty but can prove she has seven children, including a daughter who is a high school junior and proud to be told she favors Mother, one of the prettiest women in this county. Mrs. Stewart has the only twins I have ever had in the classroom whom I could tell apart. They are anything but identical.

Our school kids in grammar love playing cards now and then in class. Hold on, brother, not bridge, or rook, but grammar cards! First, they had a game of identifying the parts of speech from cards. More recently, the typing department has made some which list several hundred questions and answers taken from their regular lesson material. And do the children adore them? There may be a little something, after all, in some of these new-fangled ideas of recent years.

If You Remember . . .

The old man pushed a broom and muttered to himself. All of his working years he had known nothing but the broom or mop or boxes of paper or the many odd ends of drudgery and toil.

He could not remember a home or where he was born but he did remember that when he was young he snatched fruit on the street or stole in stores. For that he had spent time in the workhouse and reform school. When he was released he went back to the street, and soon, in his teens, he went to work—pushing a broom and wielding a mop.

The well-dressed and opulent passed him at his work. For years he cared little that they were rich and well fed. But senility and long worry about food and shelter brought him around to think, one day, that they were safe and well-fed and could sleep in a dry, warm room. Born in him was a plan. A plan that would bring him food and a good bed and money to spend.

When it was over he had killed and the bags of money were taken away from him before he had run two blocks. The judge that read what the old man's peers thought should be done was solemn as only those who deal in life and death can be. He had said that the old man must spend his life in prison.

And there he is today, although awfully old. He pushes a broom and cleans and mops.

After 17 Years Public Does Not Comprehend Social Security Extent

Many people are still unaware of the extent to which social security payment affects the community, declares Tommy Thompson, social security representative for Floyd County working out of Ashland field office of the Social Security Administration.

As old-age and survivors insurance enters its 17th year of operation, Thompson says, over five million people are receiving $200 million in insurance payments each month. The total paid in 1953 to these retired workers, their families, and to dependent survivors of deceased workers who were insured, will be more than $2½ billion!

In the past 16 years, Thompson believes, American families have built up more protection under Federal old-age and survivors insurance than they generally realize.

For example, 80 percent of all jobs in the country are covered by the program, and 62 million persons are now covered for benefits on the basis of their employment in covered work. Twenty-three million of these are permanently insured. Four out of five mothers and children in the United States are protected under the federal program in case of the death of the family breadwinner. The total face value of the life insurance protection underwritten by the system is over $275 billion.

Thompson argues that the program comes home to Floyd County in the form of added purchasing power where it is needed most. Most of the wage earners, their employers, and self-employed people here pay social security taxes regularly, which buys insurance for them. But right now regular cash payments are going into the homes of people who have retired and to homes where the wage earner has died, to replace income which has been lost.

Profit Facts—Farm profit is the difference between the price farmers get for their products and the cost of producing them. In 1953 the cost of production is expected to be UP and farm prices DOWN. Even though there is little the farmer can do to increase the price of his products, there are many things that he can do to hold down production costs. As a rule the higher the acre yield the lower the unit cost. The Kentucky farmer who produces just average yields in 1953 will find the "going tough." So, throughout the year this column will touch on facts that tend to increase yields and lower costs. Most important of these are fertility, varieties, and "doing the right thing at the right time."

Fertilizer Facts—Supplies of fertilizer in 1953 are expected to be about 10% more plentiful than in 1952, which is fortunate because about 20% of our present day production is the result of added plant food.

The Kentucky Experiment Station says that lime and potash, used in addition to manure on experiment fields outside the Blue Grass, increased corn yield 35 bushels, wheat 15 bushels and hay almost 1 1/2 tons. At the present prices of fertilizer and crops, each dollar invested in fertilizer returned $7 in products. Higher yields and greater net returns would probably have been obtained from larger fertilizer applications and the use of nitrogen. The dollar returns from fertilizer on tobacco is usually at the rate of 10 to one.

Variety Facts—For early seeded crops here are the recommended varieties: Oats—Andrews and Columbia, Clover—Kenland.

Census Facts—For the past 30 years the number of farms in Kentucky has been declining at the rate of 2,000 per year. During the past decade 78 Kentucky counties lost population, the greatest reduction taking place in Lyon, Trigg, Wolfe and Livingston counties.

Let Tolls Pay for These Major Highways

THE TIMES approves the toll road program proposed by Governor Wetherby, for these reasons.

1. Modern, trunk highways from other states must not by-pass Kentucky, and they will if the state cannot with federal aid finance their construction within Kentucky.

2. Kentucky's highway needs are so great that expenditure of great sums of tax monies on these super-highways would work an injustice on those other parts of the Commonwealth which are crying for roads, any kind of improved roads, and whose cries could not be heeded for a simple lack of funds.

3. Highways of the "super" class should be paid for by those who use them, and tolls, not taxes, would collect directly from these users, not from motorists who never travel them.

4. Construction of these major routes by toll funds would leave the usual fund sources for other road construction untouched, and so it would be possible for the state to reach out in the construction of a comprehensive system of improved roads throughout Kentucky.

The Blue Grass Automobile Club at Lexington has suggested that the state should first determine if modern free roads can be provided without toll financing. The Club pointed out that other states have found these means without resorting to tolls.

It should be remembered, however, that each of Kentucky's neighbor-states has a sales tax—a money-raiser every Kentucky Administration has been afraid to touch with the proverbial ten-foot pole since the day when "Happy" Chandler defeated the late Tom Rhea after Governor Laffoon had imposed a sales tax.

This sales tax is working in other states, and it is not so unpopular there that Administration forces are weakened. It could work in Kentucky. It is the most logical alternative to toll roads.

We greatly prefer this to the issuance of revenue bonds by the state to cover road construction costs, as is suggested by the Lexington club. We are provincial enough to contend for our share of improvements at home when it is done at the public expense and to object to a bonded indebtedness to be paid for through taxes when the money spent would serve mainly the metropolitan areas of the Commonwealth.

We seriously doubt, too, that the people of Kentucky will approve bonds for these specific highways.

This toll idea is not a permanent fixture to annoy users of these highways for generations. When cost of building the highways is amortized, the state would take clear title to the roads thus built, they would be the people's and the tolls would be lifted. It sounds like a good idea to us.

Livestock Facts—Kentucky's 3.9 million head of livestock (exclusive of products) are valued at 1/3 billion dollars. But, Kentucky farmers are doing little to aggressively promote the improvement of livestock. Only 14 counties have organized Livestock Improvement Associations. Such local associations can do much to improve livestock quality and production methods. How about your county? If you do not have such an association, why don't you help organize one.

Volunteers Map Finale For 'Dimes'

You still have a few days to get that March of Dimes contribution in. The nationwide campaign to raise polio-fighting funds closes January 31 when an estimated 1,500,000 volunteers will begin tabulating the results of their month-long efforts to raise the needed money.

In a last-minute appeal, Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, reminded campaign workers that more polio sufferers than ever before are counting on the March of Dimes for needed financial aid.

Cites Unpaid Bills
"We simply cannot let a single patient suffer for lack of funds," Mr. O'Connor said. "We must raise enough money to care for 59,000 who were stricken in 1952 and prior years and still need our help."

"This is in addition to the more than $7,000,000 in unpaid bills inherited from last year, together with the responsibility for pushing our research programs to the limit. We simply can't coast during these last few days."

Although local campaign leaders are optimistic about the results of this year's drive, no one could say whether or not the necessary funds would actually be raised.

Half of all money contributed to the March of Dimes is used by our county chapter to help pay cost of treating local polio patients or, in emergencies, polio patients elsewhere. The other 50 per cent finances March of Dimes research, professional education and epidemic aid programs.

it's clean, safe, thrifty, worry-free

Why do you use electric lights at home? Because you know from experience that electricity's the cleanest, safest, thriftiest way—the best way, all things considered—to do the job.

You want the same dependable performance in a water heater . . . so let electricity do that task, too!

It makes sense. People who use electric water heaters say it does—and there are more of them every day. You couldn't pay 'em to go back to old-time methods.

Your plumber or electric appliance dealer has a size and type of electric water heater for every family, every purse.

Wallace Was Council Nominee for Honor

Eagle Scout Gabriel Wallace, of Prestonsburg, was the nominee of Lonesome Pine Council this year for the honor of being the delegate from Region Four to the nation's capital during Boy Scout Week. After many ballots the honor went to Eagle Scout Emmett Sutton, of Toledo, O. M. L. Johnson, secretary of the Report to the Nation Committee which handled the selection of the delegate, wrote the Prestonsburg boy, in part:

"You have an outstanding record as a Scout, as a student, as a church worker and as an active, young citizen. So close were the qualifications of those nominated by various Councils that one member of the committee remarked: 'The only reasonable choice is to send them all.'"

Nurse Helen Edginton finds that polio didn't have any effect on the young fellow's appetite.

BLADES OF BLUEGRASS

By JACK WILD

Lexington, Ky.—Once upon a time, half a century or so ago, some people professed to be alarmed about the evils attending overemphasis in Kentucky colleges of—of all things—oratorical contests.

In those days, according to Historian James F. Hopkins in his book, "The University of Kentucky: Origins and Early Years," college students were able to get as excited over intercollegiate oratorical contests as their grandchildren later were to become over athletic events.

In 1881, for instance, some 40 students from State College (now U.K.), several from Kentucky University (now Transylvania), and numerous persons not connected with any college, took an afternoon train from Lexington to Georgetown to be on hand when Georgetown College selected the orator who would represent it in the fourth annual contest of the Intercollegiate Oratorical Association.

The try-outs were held in the Scott county courthouse, but it was decided to withhold the name of the winner until the next day "to prevent the awful yelling that the admirers of the contending speakers indulge in while waiting for the judges to bring in their verdict." The press duly reported that the visitors "took the town for the next twelve hours, leaving there at 1:40 a.m."

Eventually the representatives from Georgetown went on to win the I.O.A. contest with a speech entitled "Conservation and Reform in Government." The decision was "received with yells of joy." Rumor had it that officials of most member institutions of the league were concerned over the fact that oratorical contests were playing hob with regular studies and good habits. Indeed one school—Kentucky University—withdrawed from the association. The faculty later relented and allowed the students to participate in the oratorical contest of 1893. Despite a decline of student interest in oratory within the next decade, as late as 1907 a contest between Kentucky University and State College "was attended with the roars and yells of college students trying to cheer their teams to victory."

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

Some weeks ago the election was over, and many of us sighed a sigh of relief, for a national election is a trying experience. It is fortunate that we have such things only once every four years. If they came oftener, we would soon be nervous wrecks. Outsiders must wonder at our quadrennial fireworks and imagine that just about one more will be the last one.

To a folklorist the election of a President is one of the most folkish customs we Americans have. Even though we imagine ourselves advanced and highly civilized, we are basically still very folkish. As far back as the ancient Romans just such carryings-on as we have were the style. The very word candidate arose because the seeker of an office dressed in a white toga to show how pure his motives were, how honest he was. And the ancient candidate appealed to his voters in almost the same words as those now used: "Turn the rascals out." "Elect a good man, true to your highest office." The opposite party has all the scalawags; mine has all the ardent patriots." And that sort of bunk got and gets votes. Politics need stirring up sometimes, it is true; but the quadrennial stirrings seem not to have created any new ways of appealing to the people.

When some excited partisan says to me that there has never been such a time as this, when public affairs have been in such a mess, I like to remind him of Harding's day or Grant's, the former not too far away. When I hear ugly words being used by people of all political persuasions, I remember my reading about the famous campaign of 1800, when the dignified president of Yale, the grandson of the even more famous Jonathan Edwards, proclaimed boldly and "with no fear of successful contradiction," that if Long Tom Jefferson were elected President, the virtue of no American woman would be safe. Don't you imagine that many a politician wishes he had said that?

The very funniest thing about our recent election is that the national figures used the same tactics and even the same language that were fashionable in little old Fidelity a half century ago. Most of the candidates, of whatever party, would probably feel pretty tolofty toward Fidelity, but they seem to have failed in a half century to get above Fidelity manners and Fidelity tactics. Smears, ugly words, specious promises, name-calling—the pattern is perfect, for politics is, as I have said, plain folksy. Shakespeare knew this as well as any one has ever known it. When Brutus and others conspired to put Caesar out of the way because of his encroachments on Roman rights, most of the people who rallied to support the conspirators had an axe to grind or hoped to get something for themselves in the scramble that would result when the head man was murdered. Brutus, as Anthony said, was an honorable man. He honestly felt that by killing his best friend—and the gossips said, his father—order could be restored and the ancient regime saved. When the rabble were about to mob him and the conspirators, Brutus made a high-minded speech, one that could not be improved on today, in which he stated his convictions and reasoned with the multitude. They were stilled but not convinced. Brutus rather condescendingly allowed Anthony, as Caesar's friend, to say a few words. Beginning cautiously and stumbingly, as one unaccustomed to speak before the mob, he slowly reversed the calm reason of Brutus and caused the mob to turn violently against the conspirators. Politicians who wish to learn how to sway people should study carefully Shakespeare's version of Anthony's great tirade. And it worked; the reaction against Brutus ultimately seated on the throne of the empire Augustus, and Caesar was avenged. Somehow, I have never seen political oratory that seemed destined to work any such world miracles; most of it follows beaten paths and rarely shows any changes from one election to another.

Coal's Place in Manufacture Of Synthetic Chemicals Told

(From Bituminous Coal Research)

Demand for synthetic chemicals by 1975 is expected to reach 30 billion pounds per year excluding products used as fuel. If coal were the basic raw material to produce all these chemicals as well as to satisfy expected demands for synthetic liquid fuels, more than 400 million tons of coal would be consumed annually in these two markets.

To the oil and gas industry, the 30 billion pounds of synthetic chemicals represent a market of 38,780,000,000 pounds of oil and gas annually. They estimate that if these chemicals were made from oil and gas rather than from coal, their investment in new and existing capacity would be more than $5,000,000,000 between now and 1975.

Coal, oil, and gas industries are all interested in synthetic chemicals for very obvious reasons—additional markets and more money for their products. Gasoline at the refinery is worth 11 1-2 cent a gallon. Familiar chemical products from the coal hydrogenation process have an average value of 50c a gallon. Synthetic chemicals, then, have a much greater potential value per ton of coal than do synthetic motor fuels.

Because it would take a long period of time and huge capital investment before synthetic liquid fuels could become a major factor in the over-all fuel picture, it appears that synthetic chemicals is a more attractive and accessible market for coal in the next two decades.

A few years ago practically all synthetic chemicals were derived from coal as a result of the coking process. The production of these chemicals has been limited by the demand for coke for steel making. As the need for these chemicals grew, the oil and gas industries conducted a vigorous research program to learn how they could be produced from oil and natural gas. Coal was not able to capitalize on this growing market because processes had not been developed to convert coal to chemicals in large yields.

What portion of the synthetic chemical market the coal, oil, and natural gas industries each will get will depend on how vigorously the technical problems that are involved in developing better processes to produce synthetic chemicals are attacked, and on economic factors that are unpredictable today.

Only about 100,000,000 tons of coal are currently used for the production of coal chemicals. Practically all this is used in chemical recovery coke ovens. A group of experts from Koppers, Inc., in a report to the President's Materials Policy Commission, estimated that by 1975 if the proper technology were developed, about 129,000,000 tons of coal could be used for coke making and chemical recovery; 135,000,000 tons could be used in producing chemicals and liquid fuels by hydrogenation; 155,000,000 tons would be consumed to make chemicals and liquid fuels by the Fischer-Tropsch process; 5,200,000 tons could be used for the production of synthetic ammonia and 3,800,000 tons could be used for making synthetic methanol. These figures are based on coal's getting all the raw materials market for synthetic chemicals and synthetic liquid fuels.

Most of the chemicals produced by coal carbonization and coal hydrogenation are aromatics. The demand of end products that require these chemicals in their manufacture, according to the President's Material Policy Commission, will create a synthetic chemicals market of 30,000,000,000 pounds in 1975. Three-fourths of these chemicals will be used in the production of plastics and synthetic rubber. The rest will be utilized in the manufacture of insecticides, solvents, and miscellaneous aromatic chemicals.

Bituminous coal can be processed by carbonization, gasification, hydrogenation, oxidation, extraction, etc., to give a large number of valuable industrial and domestic products. Many of these chemicals have use as primary products; some must be processed further.

Carbonization yields ammonia; aromatic hydrocarbons such as benzene, toluene, xylene, naphthalene, anthracene, etc.; tar acids, tar bases, cyanogen compounds, ethylene, etc. Gasification of coal or coke yields synthesis gas from which a variety of chemicals are made including alcohols, aldehydes, plastics, and synthetic ammonia. An electrochemical process uses coke to produce calcium carbide and acetylene, from which vinyl resins, neoprene rubber, acetic acid, etc. are made. Hydrogenation will produce benzene, toluene, xylenes, mixed aromatics, phenols, and cresols. The relative yield will depend on the operating conditions selected. Oxidation will yield a number of chemicals particularly carboxylic acids. The extraction process will produce coal resins. The above chemicals are necessary for the manufacture of many of the common products in the field of plastics, synthetic rubber, solvents, detergents, pharmaceuticals, insecticides, dye stuffs, explosives, etc.

No estimate of the future value of coal as a chemical raw material is available. An indication of coal's present importance in the field, however, is the fact that in 1951, the value of coal chemicals produced from U. S. coke-oven operations was $185 million, exclusive of coal gas. If coal processes were developed and used to satisfy the expected demand for synthetic chemicals and liquid fuels in the next 25 years, the material would be tremendous.

The names of many of the chemicals derived from coal means nothing to the average person. As soon as these chemical terms are translated in relation to their end use, however, it becomes apparent that these are a part of everyone's daily living.

Toluene is used to make fingernail polish, food preservatives, flavoring, soap perfumes, and polish for furniture and automobiles, as well as TNT, the well-known military explosive.

Xylene is used in the manufacture of synthetic fibers, colored ink, food and cosmetic dyes, lacquer and other coatings.

Mothballs, shower curtains, upholstery material, automobile seat covers, insect repellents, gun powder, and baby dolls all come from naphthalene.

The famous DDT, other weed killers, and fungus eliminators come from methyl naphthalene. Wood preservatives for fence posts and lawn furniture also depend on this chemical.

The synthetic detergents which have already captured half the packaged soap market are expected to hold 75 percent of this market by 1955. These detergents are made from phenol, the chemical that also supplies the plastics used to manufacture telephones, radiator cabinets, fountain pens and bottle caps. The phenols also provide many rubber chemicals from which automobile tires and tubes, rubber paints, and suspenders are made.

The insulation of the electric wiring for your Christmas tree lights depends on a coal-derived chemical called cresol. This substance is also used for the manufacture of household disinfectants, shatter proof automobile glass, as a flotation agent in concentrating copper ore.

Many of the non-fading colors used in dresses, draperies, and suits can be made from aniline. This chemical is reprocessed to make rubber chemicals for the manufacture of shoe heels and soles, and automobile tires. It also supplies the pigments to color rubber balloons and life rafts.

Toluidines are used to make yellow pigments for print dresses and draperies as well as newspaper and magazine inks.

Benzene, one of the more commonly known chemicals is used to make synthetic rubber, and plastic moulding powders for the manufacture of toys, combs, hair curlers and fountain pens. Many paints, masonry water proofing, water proof adhesive tape and "Neolite" shoe soles also depend on benzene.

These are only a few of the thousands of products that can be made from coal-derived chemicals. It is expected that new chemicals will be obtained from coal when the hydrogenation process is perfected to take coal apart chemically by chemical. Important fundamental and pilot-scale research is being pushed by universities and the government.

Coal's future as a chemical raw material should be great. How fast it will come will be decided by the growing demand for synthetic chemicals competitive economic factors, and how soon research can develop the processes to get these chemicals cheaply out of our abundant coal supply.

Krankfort, Ky. — Improvement in the safety record of Kentucky's coal mines was noted by the State Department of Mines and Minerals as a fatality record of 74 was chalked up for 1952, compared with 106 deaths in 1951. Nine of the 74 deaths occurred in December, with a Breathitt County mine fire accounting for four of the number. Hopkins, Harlan, Floyd, Pike and Leslie counties had one death each.

The department noted that roof falls was the leading cause of fatal accidents—accounting for 38 deaths.

Scouters Meet Here, Prepare for Annual Fund-Raising Drive

As the several districts of the Sandy Valley Girl Scout Council were engaged in their annual finance drives, Mrs. Ray Howard, Prestonsburg, answered the oft-heard question, "What are the Girl Scouts doing?"

The Pikeville and Betsy Layne districts have completed their fund-raising campaigns, both exceeding their quotas. Other districts were in the midst of the work, and the Prestonsburg district was readying its drive.

Pikeville Girl Scouts are taking an active part in the building of a community center there.

Wheelwright's Scouts are planning a mother-daughter supper, the girls preparing the food and bearing all expenses by either earning the money or saving money through the sacrifice of normal enjoyment such as movies and the like.

The David Girl Scouts are planning to attend graduation ceremonies of St. Mary's School of Nursing.

The Senior troop in Prestonsburg is beginning nurse's aid training at the Prestonsburg General hospital, and Troop 2 has just completed work on two Proficiency Badges, with nine girls in child care and 10 in first-aid. They have begun work in music, and for the first time in the history of Prestonsburg scouting have called on their consultant for special training in art. Mrs. Reba H. Mayo is assisting in this art work.

Martin Girl Scouts are beginning a library for local hospitals, taking particular care that all children hospitalized there have reading material. There, two persons carry the full work-load of scouting activities, Mrs. Howard said, pointing to the need for assistance from assistant leaders, district chairman and executive officers.

February will find every troop in the Council observing International Girl Scout Month.

Prestonsburg district's quota in the finance drive is $1,200, and large business firms in the Council will be asked to contribute $2,000. Other districts of the Council have been asked to raise $2,800.

In Fleming county, 1,029 soil samples from 265 farms were tested in 1952.

1952-53 Hunting Season For State Ended Jan. 18

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 29 (Spl.)—The hunting season in Kentucky came to a close Sunday, January 18, after which it became illegal to kill rabbits or quail.

The season opened on November 20 and reports from throughout the state indicate a generally good season for the hunters of both the rabbits and the quail. In many sections, reports show, the rabbit population has been at an all-time high, while quail populations have been spotty, says the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. There will be no open season for hunting in Kentucky until the squirrel season opens, and the date for that season has not yet been set. The duck season ended January 10.

Kentucky may have a second archery deer hunt during this 1952-1953 season, if the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission reacts favorably to a recent proposal by officials of Bernheim Forest Park. Forest plantings at Bernheim have been damaged extensively by the herd of European Red Deer on the area, and the archery hunt has been proposed as a solution to the problem. Guns, of course, are illegal in the park, which is under contract as a state refuge.
