CIRCUIT COURT DOCKETS 178 FOR HEARING

During Term Starting Sept. 7; Two Scheduled For Murder Count Trial

The Labor Day holiday will end the long summer vacation for the criminal work of the Floyd circuit court, which on Tuesday, Sept. 7, will begin the job of clearing from the docket the 178 cases already listed for trial as well as hearing some of the new cases which will arise from grand jury indictment during the term.

Two murder cases are docketed for the term, but one of these results from an Appellate Court reversal of a sentence given at a previous court session. The new case is that of Ike Conn, of Printer, who is charged with the slaying of his sister-in-law. The old case is that of Ray Click, of Manton, whose earlier conviction in the death of Otis Blankenship was nullified by the high court.

Ten trials are docketed involving actions which could have resulted in violent deaths. These accuse the defendants of striking, shooting or cutting and wounding or with shooting at without wounding.

Pistol-totin' cases hit their lowest total since the more stringent law came into effect, with only five docketed. Eleven defendants face trial on charges of drunk or reckless driving, and 22 are listed for possession of intoxicants.

The most frequent offense listed on the docket is child desertion. There are 41 of these cases, with 28 listed for hearing on the first day of court.

The jury list, as released Tuesday by Circuit Clerk W. W. Cooley, contains both prospective grand and petit jurors. Their separation for service will be made by Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill after the term. Seventy-seven of the 178 cases docketed are tentatively set for trial on the first day of the term, but most of those actually to be heard will be set down for trial later in the month. The docket, as prepared, has cases set for only 11 days in the month, leaving the other days of the term open to docketing of new cases or the re-docketing of the old.

Names and addresses of jurors selected to serve during the term follow:

VALLEY COAL SEEKING PART

Of 10-Million-Ton Order Of Coal To Go Overseas, Floyd-Co. Operator Says

East Kentucky coal is making, through the cooperation of Senator John Sherman Cooper, a determined bid for a substantial part of the 10 million tons of American gift coal to be shipped to friendly countries before next June 30, a Floyd county coal operator said this week.

The part this coal field will take in supplying the big order will not be known for a few weeks, however, he added. In any event, some good effect is expected to result from the plan—more direct benefits if valley mines get orders for the coal; indirect aid through relief from the competitive pressure in other markets if mines of other fields get the lion's shares of the business.

The massive coal shipments, Foreign Aid Director Harold W. Stassen said, will help ease unemployment in American coal mines and help the industry move growing surplus stock.

Then at the same time they will help step up industrial activity overseas and create new markets for coal.

The 10-million-ton coal shipment will surpass the previous all-time high in such American-financed shipments. This was set in 1949 when 8,600,000 tons were given away, mainly because Europe's coal mines had not yet recovered from war devastation.

The 10 million tons will be about four times as much as the foreign Aid Administration shipped under the foreign-aid program in the last fiscal year, which ended this June 30.

Stassen vigorously denied, however, that the new program would disrupt normal commercial markets at a time when Europe's coal production has almost reached prewar levels.

Regulation Qualifies Scutchfield for Job Of Immunizing Dogs

Frank Scutchfield, Water Gap veterinarian, is the only Floyd county qualified under present State Department of Health regulations, to administer anti-rabies serum to dogs, it was pointed out here this week.

The regulations are subject to four amendments next month, however, it was said.

The present regulations provide that every person who has a license to practise veterinary medicine may vaccinate dogs, using any recognized type of serum.

Kennel-owners may vaccinate their own dogs after having procured a permit to do so, but may not inoculate the dogs owned by others.

Pending is a regulation which would grant permits to all persons who can show they vaccinated dogs for pay prior to June 17, this year. They, however, will be required to pass an examination, would be issued a permit on a 12-month basis, and would not be permitted to work within 20 miles of a licensed veterinarian.

COAL MEETING SET, MONDAY

Curb of Residual Oil, Government Coal Use To Be Asked at Meet

When representatives of the coal-producing areas of Kentucky and other states hold their first meeting next Monday with the President's new Interdepartmental Committee of Coal, the present predicament of the industry will be attacked on two salients, an industry spokesman said here this week.

One drive will be to eliminate or reduce the importation of the cheap residual oils which is blamed for much of the ills of the coal mining business.

The other will be a move to persuade the federal government to convert to the use of oil rather than other fuels in government buildings over the country.

The first move would be felt quickly, and would be a "shot in the arm" for coal. The other, it is held, would take effect more slowly but would aid greatly to the demand for coal.

Senator John Sherman Cooper said the meeting will be held in the office of the committee chairman, Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization.

The temporary chairman of the industry representatives is Roger F. Cooper, president, Kentucky River Coal Corporation, Lexington. He is not related to the Senator.

Two additional Kentuckians have been invited to attend. They are Harry La Viers, president South East Coal Company, Paintsville, and Hooper Love, president, West Kentucky Coal Company, Madisonville.

Other industry representatives invited are James W. Haley, vice president, Jewell Ridge Coal Corporation, Washington, D. C.; George Love, president, Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company, Pittsburgh; A. R. Mathews, president, Pocahontas Fuel Company, Inc., Pocahontas, Pa.; C. J. Potter, president, Rochester & Pittsburgh Coal Company, Indiana, Pa.; John R. Routh, president, Routh Coal Corporation, New York City; Ray E. Salvati, president Island Creek Coal Company, Huntington, W. Va.; and R. E. Snoberger, president, Traux-Traer Coal Company, Chicago.

Both the President's committee and the industry group were formed at the request of Senator Cooper to work out a comprehensive coal program to help the industry.

Cancer Clinic Begins At Martin; Mobile Unit For TB Tests Scheduled

The Cancer clinic which began work at Martin, Wednesday, will continue through Friday, it was said by the local Health Department. All applicants for examination must be referred by a physician.

The chest X-ray mobile unit will, beginning Aug. 31, offer people of the county free X-rays in the tuberculosis finding program, M. V. Clark, health department administrator announced. All persons 15 years or over may have a free chest X-ray, and also younger children if they have had known contacts with tuberculosis.

School teachers and other school employees, foodhandlers, and industrial groups should participate to

TO DEDICATE POWER PLANT

Formal Program, Aug. 2, To Dedicate Ford Station For Cooperatives' Service

H. L. Spurlock, manager of The East Kentucky Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation, Winchester, Ky., announced Wednesday that the Cooperative will formally dedicate its new steam electric generating plant, the William C. Dale Power Station, at Ford, Ky., August 28, at 2 p.m.

The Dale station, located on the Kentucky River 10 miles south of Winchester, is expected to be in operation by the last of this month. The station will initially utilize two 20,000 KB turbo-generators. Plans are now proceeding for the addition of a 66,000 KW unit. It will serve the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative and 18 other Co-ops.

The Dale station will use 400 to 500 tons of Kentucky coal per day during initial operations. This consumption will increase to more than 1,000 tons per day when planned additional capacity is put into operation.

East Kentucky's transmission system will carry power at 69,000 volts over more than 1,000 miles of transmission lines to the substations of the member cooperatives. These 19 rural electric cooperatives serve more than 125,000 farms and rural homes, churches, schools, and businesses in 87 counties in Kentucky.

The power station will be open to the public from 1 to 5 p.m. on the day of the dedication. The dedication program will start at 2 p.m., with REA Administrator Ancher Nelson delivering the dedicatory address. Others scheduled to appear on the program are Alex B. Veesh, East Kentucky president and president of Shelby RECC, Shelbyville, Ky., H. L. Spurlock, Senator John S. Cooper, Senator Earl C. Clements, Gov. Lawrence Wetherby, Judge Robert M. Coleman, chairman of the Kentucky Public Service Commission, former Vice-President Alben W. Barkley and Congressman John Watts.

Cooper and Senator Earl C. Clements co-sponsored the amendment, which also provides for the survey to include a study of flood control and navigation improvements.

The amendment, which revives hope of Big Sandy river canalization, followed by a few hours the House-Senate conference which approved an appropriation of $2,000,000 to begin construction of the proposed high-lift dam on the Ohio river at Greentop, Ky.

ASKS $55,090 DAMAGE SUIT

Injured Girl-Driver Of Truck and Mother Plaintiffs in Action

A suit growing out of a two-truck collision on Route 80 near Eastern last Nov. 27 and the serious injury of the girl-driver of one of the trucks was filed in circuit court Friday, asking a total of $55,090 for the two plaintiffs, Patsy Jean Osborne and her mother, Mrs. Irene Osborne.

Patsy Jean Osborne, who was critically hurt, asks $50,000 damages for permanent injuries and $4,000 for hospital and medical expenses. Her mother, doing business as the Martin Floral Shop, asks $1,000 for damage to the panel truck operated by her daughter.

Named as defendants were Pete and W. B. Turner. The complaint, filed by Paul E. Hayes and Tackett & Tackett, Prestonsburg attorneys, alleges that the truck owned by W. B. Turner and driven by Pete Turner, was negligently operated and as a result ran into the floral company truck driven by Miss Osborne.

Town of Martin Files To Add Extensive Area

Addition of extensive territory to the corporate limits of the town of Martin reached the courts last Friday with the filing by Marshall Davidson, Prestonsburg attorney for the city, of a suit to effect annexation, and at least one attorney already has been employed by dissenting citizens to fight the move.

The petition seeks annexation of five separate tracts on almost every side of the present town of Martin, which would be lengthened to an overall distance Route 80 of three miles or more.

Roughly, the areas sought for annexation are:

On the south, the R. M. Barnett Addition, the E. L. and D. C. Dingus Additions (which include the town of Dinwood) and the nearby property of Mason Moore, Dr. W. D. Osborne and some of the Amanda Dingus farm.

On the east, the developed section of Ice Plant Hollow.

On the west, that part of Buck's Branch extending up to and including the tipple of the Buck's Branch Mining Company, all of McGuire Camp and the property of Bascom Crisp.

On the north and northeast, following the right descending bank of Beaver Creek from the present city limits to the southern or lower boundary of the Harry Branham sub-division, to include that subdivision except Lots 2 through 10, including the village of Cracker, all land between the creek and Route 80, the highway right-of-way, lands of the C. & O. Railway, lots in Branham Hollow and the land lying between the highway and Beaver Creek that is owned by Glover Spencer, Frank Crisp and Pearl Mayo.

The suits points out that all these populated areas are contiguous to the town and would be given services enjoyed by the present municipality.

SENATE OKEHS RIVER SURVEY

New Locks, Dams Study Seen; Greenup Dam Work Expected Before July 1

The Senate approved Tuesday an amendment to the Rivers and Harbors Bill which directs the Army Corps of Engineers to re-survey the Big Sandy river and its two forks for possible canalization. Senator John Sherman Cooper wired The Times.

Cooper and Senator Earl C. Clements co-sponsored the amendment, which also provides for the survey to include a study of flood control and navigation improvements.

The amendment, which revives hope of Big Sandy river canalization, followed by a few hours the House-Senate conference which approved an appropriation of $2,000,000 to begin construction of the proposed high-lift dam on the Ohio river at Greentop, Ky.

Cooper and Clements said that the Army Corps of Engineers expects bids to be asked in September. Work on the proposed $58,000,000 Greenup dam could start this fiscal year. Construction is scheduled to end in 1961.

The Kentuckians said the dam will provide the first step in the canalization of the Big Sandy River because it will back up water as far as Lock No. 2 on the Big Sandy.

The Greenup project would have a non-navigable, gated dam of 32-foot normal lift between pools. The locks will consist of two parallel chambers.

The main chamber will have clear dimension of 110 by 1,200 feet. The auxiliary dam's dimensions will be 100 by 600 feet. The pool itself will extend 62 miles to the existing Gallipolis dam.

Greenup dam is the second high-level dam recommended for the Ohio River by President Eisenhower. The other is the new Cumberland dam just below Pittsburgh.

Of the Big Sandy re-survey Senator Cooper wired The Times: "When Senator Clements and I appeared before the Public Works committee to obtain inclusion of the Big Sandy project, we were informed that the unfavorable cost-

SPECIAL POLIO DRIVE BEGINS

11,000 Direct Requests For Floyd Help Mailed During Last Few Days

The special drive for funds to carry on the work of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis started in Floyd county Monday, concurrently with the beginning of drives throughout the country.

Ray Howard, of Prestonsburg, is leading the special drive for which no quota has been set but in which residents of the county are asked to be as liberal as possible with their contributions. The National Foundation has a deficit of $26,000,000 and funds are urgently needed to carry on the treatment of polio sufferers and also to further the research which is on the brink of conquering the dread disease.

In Floyd county last year $12,000 was spent on the treatment and care of polio patients, and the local chapter was forced to draw heavily on the Foundation to meet this load. The chapter is still in debt approximately $600, Mr. Howard said.

Howard mailed this week 4,200 special envelopes to Floyd countyans, asking their help, and approximately 6,000 more are being distributed through the schools. Any person who fails to receive one of these envelopes and who would like to help in the fight on polio is asked to mail his or her contribution to Postoffice Box 569, Prestonsburg.

GYM DECISION WEEKS AWAY

County Board to Ask Rehearing on Decision By Appellate Court

A final decision on the construction of the Prestonsburg-financed auditorium-gymnasium as an addition to the new county high school building here will probably be delayed until late next month, it was said here this week.

An effort was made last week to procure clarification of the Court of Appeals opinion which held the Prestonsburg independent district responsible for the payment of the bonded indebtedness to be incurred in the construction, even though the two boards by agreement effect a merger. Both county and state school officials wanted the opinion clarified to establish the independent district's responsibility in the event of merger by State Department of Education action, but this was not given.

So the Floyd county Board of Education this week filed for an extension of time in which to file a petition for rehearing, requesting oral arguments on Sept. 27. Meanwhile, Joseph R. Rubin, Louisville, attorney representing the City Board in the bond issue necessary to finance the building, had already filed for rehearing. The Appellate Court does not convene for its fall session until Sept. 20.

State education officials are anxious to get the question definitely settled before further action toward financing and construction is taken here, because it has numerous other districts in which the same question has arisen or will arise.

Return To Classroom Begins on August 30 For Larger Schools

The return to classroom work for pupils of all the county's larger schools will begin Monday, Aug. 30, it was announced this week.

The school term for the county system will begin with a teachers' conference at Martin on Monday, and pupil registration will start with the following day.

In Prestonsburg, grades 1 through 9 will register Aug. 30. Senior high school pupils will register the next day. There will be half-day sessions of school through Wednesday. A general faculty meeting for the Prestonsburg schools will be held Friday, Aug. 27. City Superintendent Chalmers H. Prazier, said this week, and another will be held on Monday, Aug. 30, at 1:30 p.m.

School holidays for the Prestonsburg schools will be: Labor Day, Sept. 6; Election Day, Nov. 2; E. K. E. A., Nov. 5; Dec. 21—Jan. 2, Christmas vacation; April 14-15, K. E. A.

PLAN SCENIC ROUTE ALONG LAKE SHORE

Park, Road Officials To Study Route Friday; Lodge Location Made

Two officials of the Division of Parks, Department of Conservation, and a representative of the Department of Highways will visit Dewey Lake, Friday, to make tentative location of a scenic highway route along the lake from Stratton Branch to existing roads which connect with Hager Gap and later will connect with the dam itself.

County Clerk DuRan Moore said here Wednesday, after conferring with Commissioner Henry Ward, of the Department of Conservation in Frankfort, that the road is considered a necessity before the Department can develop the full facilities of Dewey Lake State Park.

A major park installation that must await road construction because of the present inaccessibility of the site, except by water, is the lodge with nearby vacation cottages planned for the area. The lodge, it has been learned, will be located at Arrowhead Point, on the west side of the lake opposite Big Branch.

The proposed road would begin with the end of the existing road at the Stratton Branch recreation area, skirt the lake to touch Arrowhead Point and connect with the existing road in the Goble Branch vicinity, near the Girl Scouts' Camp Chatterawha. This would provide connection with Hager Gap and the Auxier road. Connection with the dam would be made by another road construction project, planned to extend from Van Lear via the dam to the Auxier bridge.

Prestonsburg Sea Scout Troop No. 8 petitioned Mr. Ward through County Clerk Moore for a campsite and mooring dock. Mr. Ward said the Department of Conservation will be happy to work with the Scouts of both requests but added specific requests should be made. This will probably be discussed during the officials' visit Friday.

Officials who will visit the lake are: T. J. Nelson, assistant director in charge of planning, Division of Parks; Walter Childs, engineer, Division of Parks; and J. J. Pollitte, chief locating engineer, Department of Highways.

The Sea Scouts will apply for a

FLOYD SCHOOL SYSTEM GAINS

In Fund Distribution With $264,081 Total; $47,454.26 for P'burg

The tentative allotment of equalization funds announced this week by State Superintendent Wendell P. Butler indicates that the Floyd county school system will regain most of the $56,749 it lost in the distribution of this fund last year.

The county system is tentatively scheduled to receive under the school equalization program this year $264,081.36, as compared with the $188,120.19 received last year.

The Prestonsburg independent district will receive $47,454.26 under the equalization distribution.

Mr. Butler announced the distributions were tentative, and that total allotments for the present are $5,367,266.94. A contingency fund of $205,733.06 has been set aside for instructional salaries because of increased teacher training in the present school year over last year.

Final allotment of funds will be made on or before March 1, taking into consideration adjustments that will be made over preliminary estimates. The new equalization law calls for this procedure.

Funds appropriated by the General Assembly to the Public School Foundation program, plus funds raised locally made it necessary to reduce the total estimated cost to 70 per cent of the amount necessary to finance a complete foundation program in each school district. The equalization allotment was well over last year's figure of $5,573,000, however. Thirty-one more school districts will receive funds this year.

"In determining tentative allotments it has been assumed all districts met requirements for eligibility for participation in the equalization account of the Foundation program fund," said Butler. "Before it can be fully determined that every district has met these requirements for eligibility for participation, salary schedules and close estimate budgets must be received from all the districts and school terms set in the various districts."

LOST LAKE CRUISER RAISED

Shown above is the cruiser of Dr. T. E. Walden, Paintsville optometrist, which sank in Dewey Lake several weeks ago. The boat sank in the wide area of the lake, a short distance above Goble Branch, and was recovered in about 30 feet of water last Friday night by a salvage crew employed by an insurance firm. Also shown in the photograph is "The City of Prestonsburg," sturdy stern-wheeler owned by Byron M. Thompson of Prestonsburg, which towed the salvaged boat to dock.

One Fault Kills A Good Law

The Court of Appeals was probably fully justified in taking issue with the "class legislation" fault in the new law which demanded payment of property taxes as a pre-requisite to licensing of a motor vehicle. Certainly there is no reason that a bus company should be exempted from the tax-payment demanded of a private citizen.

But it is regrettable that the law cannot be immediately amended and set to work collecting taxes from vehicle-owners who have been successful fugitives from the tax collector for years.

The law added to the responsibilities of County Clerks, Sheriffs and Tax Commissioners, and it made the work of motor vehicle dealers more onerous and time-consuming. But it was sound legislation except for the one destructive fault that the courts found. Honestly complied with as the Floyd Clerk and most other clerks proposed to do, it would have collected much-needed taxes; and, equally important, it would have kept off the road many the jalopy whose owner would have decided it was not worth licensing if it meant paying other taxes he had previously escaped.

The next session of the General Assembly should not overlook the same legislation, corrected to pass muster in the courts.

Does A Million-Dollar Industry Interest Us?

Does it interest Floyd county in general, this word of a specialist in the business that the county could under certain conditions have a sheep industry worth between half a million and a million dollars a year?

The "certain conditions" referred to, remember, would reduce the dog population of the county and bring the dogs under control.

Is it worth a million dollars a year, or three quarters of a million, to the county to abide by state law, curb depredations of dogs, have them immunized against rabies, etcetera?

HEALTH NOTES

Prestonsburg not long ago subscribed $225,000 to induce a manufacturer to locate a plant here. The community needs new industry; so does the county. Its business and professional men, old and young, were willing to lay cash on the line, or to go in debt, to make that possible. On several occasions the people of Floyd county have cooperated with those of other counties in financing campaigns designed to win for this valley canalization of the river. Our dream of this great hope is not dead, even now; it will return, and we shall back the gossamer-thin dream with substantial cash and honest effort.

It is well that we do these things, even though we fail. For in them we find a community of purpose, recognize together our needs, and work together doing what we can about them.

All of which points to the good sense in our joining together to bring this other new industry to Floyd county that would convert farming into a thriving industry and at least in part inject into the local economy some strength lost through the closing of many of the county's coal mines.

This state law we have is a good law. But it appears that the greatest enforcement agency left to us is the public conscience. If there are enough citizens, enough dog-owners, among us whose consciences will not permit destruction of a neighbor's livestock by his dogs, and if there are enough who care enough about the lives and well-being of others, as well as about their dogs, to obey the immunization feature of the law—then enforcement will be possible.

It's our county and our future; also, it's our dogs. And it's our problem to face and solve, if we can.

Southern Bell Releases Directory with "New Look"

The new Prestonsburg-Martin-Allen-Wayland telephone directories were released this week with an entirely "New Look" appearance.

Jack Stone, group manager for Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co., pointed in particular to the yellow page advertising in the back of the book. Previously, ads were inserted in the book in what the telephone company described as a split-page type directory, numerical numbers at the top of each page and classified, or business ads, at the bottom.

The variety of classifications in the new type directory describing products, services, professions and businesses will provide a convenient and easy to use guide when one wants to locate a firm or individual, Mr. Stone said.

Many new and changed listings and other helpful telephone information is included in the directory which is easily distinguished from the old grey-covered telephone book by its green cover.

SCHOOL NOTES

By
Otis D. Spurlock
Supervisor of Instruction

Teaching your child to read is a task which the classroom teacher accepts wholeheartedly and graciously. However, the interest of the home in the school and the cooperation of the home with the school are of importance in preparing the child physically, emotionally, and intellectually for the reading program of the school. Children reflect the attitudes and the interests of their parents. Motivation toward reading is usually greater in a home where reading is a frequent activity than in a home where parents never engage in reading.

The parents have many opportunities in the everyday life of the child to establish desirable attitudes, habits and skills which will help him succeed when he meets the difficult task of learning to read.

Many parents and teachers would like to have some very definite suggestions to follow. Below a few suggestions are listed. In future articles more suggestions will be given.

GENERAL HEALTH—See that the child enjoys good general health. If the child has any physical deficiencies such as diseased tonsils or adenoids, bad teeth, etc., they should be corrected. The child should be vaccinated and immunized against contagious diseases.

VISION—If possible, have any eye examination before the child enters school to determine the state of his vision. Provide him with glasses if necessary. It is surprising how many young children are far-sighted.

HEARING—Determine the state of his hearing. Slight or an exaggerated degree of deafness has often been the cause of failure in reading.

CHRONOLOGICAL AGE—It has been found that in order to make very much progress in reading a child must have attained a mental age of least six years and that a mental age of six and one-half years more nearly insures success. Some children have a mental age which is lower than their chronological age.

Adjustment to school situation: Help the child build some of the desirable attitudes such as: (1) Build up a happy expectancy in the child for his school life. Do not frighten and confuse him with threats of "what will happen when he gets to school." Always try to speak well of the child's teacher.

(2) Encourage him to work and play amicably and sympathetically with his sisters, brothers and children in the neighborhood. (3) Impress him with the fact that you expect him to be courteous and obedient at all times. (4) On occasion let him run errands, deliver messages and perform tasks which will require self-reliance, independence and initiative. (5) Encourage him to handle his playthings carefully and to put them away in an orderly manner when he is through.

(6) Encourage neatness and orderliness with materials. (7) Teach him to respect property. Help the child in making decisions and solving problems. (1) Allow the child to help select clothes he is to wear at different seasons. (2) Give the child opportunity to help choose the clothes he will wear each day to school. (3) If he has pets, encourage him to assume the responsibility of caring for them. (4) Make him responsible for certain household tasks.

How can parents help in the development of a desire to read? (1) Use of puzzles (2) Alphabet blocks and books. (3) Making scrapbooks. (4) Picture books with few descriptive words below the large pictures. (5) Establish proper respect for reading by teaching the child the care of books. (6) Encourage him to dictate to you and "write" letters to relatives.

All of the activities and things mentioned in this column is not a complete list, but they will be very helpful if used by teachers and parents in helping children along their way to reading.

PLEASE!

A LOT OF US MAY NOT GET ANY MORE HELP BECAUSE THERE'S NO MORE MONEY LEFT IN THE MARCH OF DIMES!

GIVE TO THE EMERGENCY MARCH OF DIMES - NOW!

Sometimes this column does a little service that may bring justification for its existence up a notch. Witness a letter from Elizabeth Gentry, of Mountain City, Tenn., dated July 29, 1954. She writes:

"I appreciate your service in helping me to locate some of the Lewis family. They moved from Floyd county to Greenup county. My grandparents died several years ago and Uncle Andy Lewis passed away in 1948, but most of all his children are living in Ashland, Ky. I have an aunt still living at the old home place in Oldtown, Ky., and the Rev. Oaks lives at Ashland. A cousin, W. E. Lewis, and a number of others read my letter in The Floyd County Times and wrote to me."

To those who do not know about the search for Mrs. Gentry's relatives, this column recalls that several months ago, Mrs. Gentry wrote, asked about her people. A little research was done at the courthouse, a resume of the known data was printed with Mrs. Gentry's letter.

R. Lee Stewart, of Morehead, friend of this column, and a contributor of data on families and happenings when asked, writes July 9, about Knott county:

"I do not know the first settler at Hindman but am under the impression that Samuel Cornett, who had built a water mill just above The Forks of the left branch and a two story log house, was the first settler, Solomon Everage, my wife's grandfather, was a much younger man, and perhaps was a cousin to Samuel Cornett, since Samuel Cornett's mother was Mary Everage."

"Peyton Duke married a daughter of Samuel Cornett and he came from North Carolina. Lewis Hays was Doug Hays' father and his mother, Solomon Everage's daughter Margaret, Doug and my wife were first cousins. Lewis was a son of Captain Anderson Hays and lived about half way down from Capitan's to The Forks of Troublesome, McPherson, the postoffice, was not spoken of by the local people, because they had known it as The Forks before the postoffice was established.

"I do not know who was the first postmaster of McPherson or for whom it was named. More than likely it was named for some one who was connected with the Post-office Department. Lewis Hays was the first clerk, both county and circuit, of Knott county. Chick Allen, Norman Allen's uncle, ran against Lewis Hays and lost the election by only 80 votes. The names of the county officers of Knott elected in August, 1884, are Dr. David Calhoun, county judge, Fielding (Babe) Johnson, county attorney, (lived in the old house on Carr Creek you wrote about recently) Madison Pigman, sheriff, Ison Stone, jailer, Hiram Maggard, assessor.

"Leslie Hindman was not lieutenant-governor at the time Knott was formed, as has been said. He lived in The Purchase, in Fulton county. I think it was James R. Hindman, from Casey county, who was lieutenant-governor, when Knott was formed.

"I did not know Hawk Sizemore. Some eight years ago, I met, down in Greenup county, an old man Sizemore who was up in his late eighties. He said that he was a cou-

BY WILMAY
(The views expressed herein do not necessarily reflect the views of The Times.)

When Dr. Wade Mahood fell dead of a heart attack last April, no one was with him except his two-year-old great-grandson, little Mike Campbell, who carried the news to the family. Recently Mike noticed a picture of "Papa and Mama Hood," as he called them, and began talking to his grandmother Allen about the incident. She asked him if Papa Hood had said anything when he fell. Mike replied, "Yes, he said, 'Jesus. That was all.' All who knew Dr. Mahood well have no doubt he saw Jesus coming to meet him as he answered that last call.

The continued plea to do something for our handicapped children stirs us all. No one disapproves of the help being given countries abroad, but it is difficult to understand why so little federal aid is available here at home for many who need it badly. Unless trained properly in time to be self-supporting, these handicapped children will usually become permanent public charges.

A majority know it will be some time before our county can raise funds to employ trained experts for this task. But a love for Christ, and sympathy for crippled children, and a love for that type of work would be worth more than years of specialized training without those requisites. Floyd county has many teachers who could do an excellent job with these children, if given the chance, and at no extra pay, if building and equipment were provided, and if someone would bring the pupils to a central point or two.

Surely there are churches that would permit the use of their basements for such work. Civic organizations and private individuals could provide transportation and materials. What better project could exist? Why not pioneer instead of waiting till the rest of the state sets a pattern we must some day emulate? What would you do, Mr. John Doe, if your child were among the handicapped?

Have you ever noticed how richly God blesses churches that are generous? Ever watched the growth of those willing to be led? We recall how numbers in one church years ago protested when someone suggested paying the pastor for a revival he held. They never had paid for one, and they did not mean to start it then. But when a fine young man proposed doing it, the majority approved. They paid the pastor for three weeks of hard extra work (Why not? Other men get paid for overtime?) Today that church annually pays a pastor, an evangelist and a singer all for a revival. It has grown tremendously. Compare the churches that give their pastors vacations, with pay, with those that are afraid the treasury cannot afford to. Notice the difference. God loves children of faith. He rewards faithful ones who trust Him. Since people in most professions get vacations with pay nowadays, why not God's servants, too? When this is provided for them, from the treasury, each member who contributes has a share in it, and often the widow's mite is the largest gift of all.

Have you trouble keeping frozen peaches from darkening? Try the method used by Wayland's Home Ec teacher. After adding lemon juice, Lassia Hatcher places a waxed paper on top before putting the lid on the container. Her ability in the culinary line would scare anybody. The first time we served her a meal we were so excited we forgot and left the main dish—platter of cold meat cuts—in the refrigerator. She was on the train and en route home when we remembered having served only a vegetable plate. Her conversation is that interesting, and her reputation as a cook is enough to impress any novice!

If you want to treat your freezer and similar equipment right, keep them well waxed, and make a plastic cover for your freezer, lid and all. Then cover the handle with a piece of quilted plastic. Ask any dealer if there is not plenty in taking proper care of equipment, yes, sirree!

Saw little sixteen-month-old Della Lou Burke, progeny of Hern and Jean, correctly point to each part of her body as a tiny cousin called "Nose; mouth, hair, teeth, feet, fingers, tummy, etc." Watch out when that kiddie starts to school.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

"CHILD OF NATURE"

As man has become sophisticated and, therefore, has sprung further from the folk, he has lost much of the lore of nature that he once possessed as a matter of course. Today much of our nature is second-hand knowledge, after it has been intercepted for us by the genuinely learned. In other times few were learned; most people had to develop their own philosophy of nature and abide by it. Some of the folk philosophy about weather and seasons and rains and snows is valid today, but that same accurate observation was mixed up with other stuff that was pure superstition. The folk did not and do not distinguish between the two.

My mother often told me that her father, who was a pioneer child and probably could barely read and write, would point out this or that planet or constellation just as familiarly as he might have introduced his large family to somebody who, like him, had come as pioneers all the way from distant North Carolina. He knew the phases of the moon and, apparently, planted his crops, or butchered his hogs, or harvested his grain or tobacco accordingly. When I was a child, there was not a person whom I knew who knew one planet from another; just a few of the constellations had their own local names as well as the names usually found in books; Job's Coffin, Ellenyard (Orion), the Big Dipper, etc. That was about all the astronomy we knew except, by referring to the almanac, we could tell when eclipses were to occur and could tell the phases of the moon. One person out of ten, probably, planted or harvested or butchered according to the size of the moon and its waxing and waning.

Take home-made medicines as they were known then and compare the strange traditional knowledge of ignorant people with the ignorance of genuinely educated people today. Every plant, it seemed to me, had its own special value as a medicine, whether it was taken in a tea or eaten in some way. I used to know all sorts of plants that I gathered for wild greens; many a time I brought in a basket full of wild things that Mother cooked; with

TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY

Considerable criticism has been directed towards me as County Clerk by the many persons who have presented themselves at the polls only to be denied a ballot because their names had been stricken from the list of qualified voters. This blame has been incorrectly placed upon me. Probably because by law I have custody of the voter registration books, it is easy to believe that the County Clerk is at fault for whatever errors exist in these records.

Let me assure each of you that the blame is not chargeable to me. While one of the duties of my office is the registration of voters, which places your name on the voter's books, it is the County Board of Registration and Purgation which makes the decision and orders a voter's name stricken from the list.

I AM NOT A MEMBER OF THIS BOARD. The members of the Registration and Purgation Board are German Vance, Chairman, Martin, Kentucky; Eugene Allen and S. R. Hatcher, Allen, Kentucky.

We have had a Board of Registration and Purgation for many years, but prior to 1952 the law did not require or allow them to be very active in correcting the voter lists. However, in 1952, the Legislature enacted a new and complete Registration and Purgation Law. The Board was given more time to perform this work, the pay of the members was increased, and their duties were more fully set out.

The law required that the Board of Registration and Purgation, after notice is given to the voter, and an opportunity to be heard is granted, shall purge from the names of all ineligible persons among whom are names of those who (1) have died (2) have moved out of the precinct (3) have been adjudged insane (4) have been convicted of a felony (5) have changed their names by marriage (6) have failed to vote at a primary or regular election for two consecutive years.

After completing its purgation of the registration books, the Board is required to notify the County Clerk of all names purged by it.

From what source the Board gets its information to purge, I do not know, but as many of you know their information has been incorrect.

You can easily see that the only thing the County Clerk has to do with taking a voter's name off the books is what the Board of Registration and Purgation orders him to do.

If you find that your name has been improperly stricken from the registration lists, as many have been, I hope this explanation will allow you to place the blame where it rightfully belongs, to the Board of Registration and Purgation.

However, if you have moved, and your name should be transferred to another precinct, or if your registration needs to be corrected in any way, I shall, as always, be at your service to help in any manner possible.

Because of the many names which have been improperly purged I would suggest to all voters that they check their voters registration card in your County Clerk's office, when you are in Prestonsburg.

The Voters registration books are now open and will remain open through Sept. 4, 1954.

Always at your service,

Your Friend,
DuRAN MOORE

Strawberry Tour Made Over County; Meeting Set for Sheep-Growers

The county's first strawberry tour was held Wednesday and reports are that the plants were found in a good condition. W. W. McGill, specialist in strawberry culture with the University of Kentucky, said the plants compare well with the state average.

The tour, conducted by Assistant County Agent Ervin C. Joseph, began at James Crager's farm on the Auxier road, proceeded to the Goble Branch area, returned to Prestonsburg and went on to Beaver Creek, ending at 3 p.m. at the farm of Virgil Smith. There were seven persons on the tour. This county has 42 acres in strawberries.

A sheep meeting will be held at the Municipal building here Friday at 10 a.m. R. C. Miller, sheep specialist of the UK Extension Service, will preside. Purpose of the meet. County Agent Ellis Boggs said, will be to make up the order for sheep for interested farmers. As it stands at present, it is expected that 300 head of western ewes. ### Dewey Lake Ass'n Holds First Meet; Is Granted Charter

First meeting of the Dewey Lake Association, which was chartered August 5, as a non-profit organization to promote the recreational facilities of the state park there, was held Tuesday evening at the Dewey Lake Inn. The meeting, attended by interested persons from a wide area, was presided over by E. H. Tackett, Prestonsburg attorney. The purposes of this organization will be confined solely and only to the promotion of Dewey Lake as a recreational area for the purpose of attracting tourists and the improvement of the park and its facilities," Tackett said. "We would be naive indeed if we didn't know that a little pressure in Frankfort in the right places can bring about much needed improvements of the lake," he added.

Objectives of the Association as given in the charter are, specifically, to encourage the attraction of tourists and to promote laws and regulations for the protection of the forests, fish and game of the area.

Among those who spoke briefly at the meeting was J. P. Noonan, of the State Highway Department, Pikeville, who pledged the cooperation of his department in carrying out any objectives of the Association that might concern the Highway Department.

A committee of five was appointed to draw up the by-laws and suggest the needed officers of the Association. The committeemen are Carl Corbin, Dr. Jack D. Salisbury, Harry Sandige, Harris S. Howard and W. R. Callihan. This committee will report to the members at the next meeting, Tuesday evening of next week.

Two Local Cars Stolen; One Recovered at Wayne

One of the two cars stolen here last week was recovered Monday but information on the whereabouts of the other is completely lacking. The recovered car, a Plymouth, belonging to the Lake Motor Company, was found parked on the highway eight miles out of Wayne, W. Va. The car was stolen last Thursday evening from the dealer's lot on North Lake Drive. The key had been inadvertently left in the automobile.

The other car, a Pontiac owned by David Leslie, was taken last Friday night, from the street in front of the owner's residence on North Arnold avenue. Mr. Leslie, who had returned home around 11:30 p.m., had retired and was aroused by a noise, but did not investigate. The car was pushed down the street and the ignition wired over. The car had recently been painted gray. Mr. Leslie gave the license number as Kentucky 270-085.

An attempted theft of an automobile was made on Highland avenue the night Leslie's car was stolen. Although the car was pushed a considerable distance from where it was parked, the would-be thieves were unable to wire it over.

Rites for Wm. B. Short, Native of Abbott-Cr., Held at Arnold Chapel

Mr. Short had been in failing health since he suffered a broken back in a mine accident six years ago. He was a son of the late T. J. and Minerva Jane Robinson Short, and was a native of Abbott Creek. Mr. Short was a member of the Methodist Church.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Virgie Gibson Short, two daughters, Geraldine and Betty Lou, both of Cliff, a brother, Worley Short, of Cliff, and two sisters, Mrs. Anna Fitzpatrick, of Flatwood, Ky., and Mrs. Mary Jane Hunley, of Russell. Burial was made in the Pruitt cemetery on the Abbott road, the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home conducting.

WHO'S CRAZY NOW?

My wife has something to be thankful for, especially at this squirrel-hunting season. I gave up hunting, a few years back, after Vester Fraley and Carl Horn had walked me literally into the ground in a search for quail which was almost as fruitless as some of these more recent quests for the elusive bass.

Having dropped hunting, I find it hard now to understand the enthusiasm others have for the sport. So I can see why some folks think I'm off the beam about this fishing business. They can't see how any sane man can rise before day-break, start out in a driving, cold rain, and fish all day in such weather, come home without fish, swearing never again, and—crazy man!—go back the next day for more of the same. But what about these hunters who will walk miles over the worst terrain, face briars, sharp rocks, the heat, the cold—even rattlesnakes, and no snake medicine at hand—just for a shot or so at a squirrel? Or what about the duck hunter—worst of the whole breed, in my estimation—who will climb out of a warm bed on a November morning, drive miles to that favorite spot, crawl into a duck-blind and sit there, motionless for all his discomfort, up to his haunches in ice-water waiting for a duck to come within range?

Such crazy people! But aren't we all a little "tetch'd" in some department or another?

Johnson Youth, Denied Trip To Prestonsburg, Ends Life With Blast

Shortly after he had been denied permission Sunday morning to come to Prestonsburg, 14-year-old Joseph Brown, formerly of this county, ended his life at the home at Colista, Johnson county, of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Brown.

The boy placed the butt of the shotgun against the floor, with his head against the end of the barrel, and pulled the trigger, relatives said in reconstructing the tragedy. The blast tore away the top of his head.

Surviving besides the parents are the following brothers and sisters, Troy Brown, of Middle Creek, Dewey Brown, Jimmie Brown, Irvin Brown, and Hazel Brown, all of Colista, also one half-brother, Clinton Patrick, of Colista.

Funeral services were held at 1:00 p.m. Tuesday at the home of his brother, Troy Brown, on Middle Creek by the Rev. Vern Conley.

Burial was made in the family cemetery in this county.

"All Types of Insurance"

Gordon Moore

Cheap Insurance Is More Expensive . . .

Recently several circular letters and magazine articles have advertised a "saving" on fire and automobile insurance, offered by various "mail order" mutual insurance concerns.

Don't be misled . . . You get reasonable insurance rates (all established by underwriting bureaus) by purchasing your insurance protection from established, reputable local agents who are here on the ground and services will be available should you have a loss against which you are protected in the standard insurance policies in your safety deposit box.

You should not be expected to indulge in lengthy correspondence with some stranger in Kalamazoo, or Timbuktu. The local boys would be on the job, would check and report the loss, and settlement would be made without difficulty or quibbling.

"Moreover, the established insurance agents are your friends and neighbors. They help support the schools which are aiding in the mental development of your children; they help support the churches that provide your spiritual stimulation; they help support the police agencies that protect your property against plunder; they help support the fire department that protects your property against fire; they support the city, school district, county and state governments that bestow many blessings upon you.

"Why should you take your insurance business from these benefactors, these friends, these fellow citizens and give it to some foreign concern that doesn't give a tinker's damn about Floyd County, except for what profit they can extract from Floyd County?"

"The few cents you would save on every hundred dollars of insurance protection you now have wouldn't begin to compensate you for the trouble and inconvenience in event of a loss. It isn't worth the difference.

"Cheap insurance is like any other cheap commodity; it's very apt to be more expensive in the long run."

'Like a Spirit...Something Intangible,' Is Caney

By Claude Frady
(In The Hindman News)

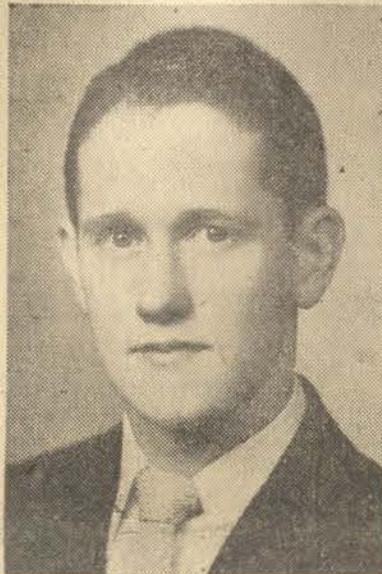

On September 5 hundreds of men and women and their families will hold a reunion deep down in the valley of Caney, at one of the most unique institutions in the nation.

The Caney school, known as the Caney Creek Community Center, is difficult to describe. It is like a spirit—something quite intangible. There are numerous buildings, built of plank hewn from native trees or stone carved out of nearby quarries; but they are rough and plain. Rock-patched paths lead everywhere on the campus, winding in and out through flowers, shrubbery, and trees, so thick the high-noon sun has difficulty penetrating.

The homecomers might walk down the campus, starting at The Firing Line, and see the buildings either sprawled on the level ground, or perched on the steep hillsides. They'll walk past Opportunity; past Dreyfus House, then on to Pilot and Atlas, twin houses high above the road. From there they will see the grade school building; and, on the hill in back of that, the huge, rough, two-and-a-half story, wooden dormitory. Then just below and down a creek a bit, Galahad; but they will have to look closely to see it.

After passing Gloria and Plankside, and crossing a basketball court, the homecomers will go around the path until they stand in an open area, paved with creek-rock. Above their heads a huge American flag will be waving. Below, toward the creek, they'll see the postoffice building. On across the creek, they'll see Sycamore and the grown-over foundation for a much-needed large dormitory.

Looking up the hill, they'll see Hunger Din, the dining hall; and IF, the registrar's office; and Radcliffe Cottage; and, although they won't be able to see them, they'll know that Eagle's Nest, Star, and Somerfield are on the hill beyond.

Lowell Martin, a graduate of Garrett high school and Caney Junior College, is staying at the Caney Cottage in Lexington. He is a pre-medical student at the University of Kentucky.

If they continue their walk, they'll pass Community House and Service Wing, and the Little Theater in between. They'll pass The Shack, and come to the Library, built out of rock on the spot where an old barn once stood.

There they'll stand and look across the Meadow, an expanse of green grass rare to Caney Valley. They'll see Syracuse, the last house on the lower end of the campus.

They'll walk straight up the hill from the Library, up steps that zig and zag because of the steepness, to a flat where stands the Science Building.

This much is tangible—these buildings—these trees and shrubs—these paths.

But there is more. A gray-haired, kindly, keen-eyed little lady, dressed in a white uniform, sits behind a desk in a well-heated room, pecking on an ancient Oliver typewriter with one finger of her left hand.

There she sits and works, as she has for thirty-eight years, fourteen hours a day, seven days a week. Never does she leave the house that provides her office and her living quarters. Several years have passed since she has been closer than her office door to the outside world.

Overhead, in front of her desk, hangs an old rifle, so low that a man must bend his head to get past it. Nothing is ominous about the rifle; it is just souvenir of long years ago, given to her by an old mountaineer.

An automobile headlight points down the ceiling directly above the desk. Attached to the headlight is a cable that runs across the ceiling and down the wall to a battery that rests on the floor. Whenever a power failure occurs, the resting battery is employed, and the work goes on.

Scores of faces of young men and women look out from pictures placed on tables, filing cabinets, and hanging on the walls. They are the faces of doctors, lawyers, ministers, engineers, teachers, accountants, nurses, public officials, county agents, farmers and business men; or they are the faces of young people who are in the midst of their training for a life's work.

Those pictures represent only a small part of the thousands who have been influenced by Mrs. Alice Lloyd and the Caney School.

Mrs. Alice Lloyd, a former Boston newspaperwoman, came to Kentucky in 1916. She had suffered an illness that had left her partially paralyzed in the right side of her body.

She came to Kentucky to rest, as well as to serve, and was staying at Ivis in a cabin owned by a church group, when Abisha Johnson, from the creek of Caney, came to her and asked that she come to Caney and teach his children to live "unlike the hawk."

A bent, illiterate, mountain man, Abisha visioned a life better than he had known—like Solomon Exerage, whose appeal brought Katherine Pettit and May Stone to Hindman to establish the Hindman Settlement School. Abisha believed that "learnin'" would bring a better life for his children. The "furriner" would bring "light" to the darkness of Caney.

Little could he realize the far-reaching effects of his vague dream. Mrs. Lloyd went to Caney, and with the help of Abisha built a crude plank shack, the first of many buildings on the campus. She started contacting friends in the east who she thought might help her to start a school.

The help came, more buildings were added, and little by little the Caney Creek Community Center, as the project was officially called, grew until it consisted of training through two years of college.

For many years the Caney Creek Community Center has worked cooperatively with the Knott County Board of Education to provide the grade school and the high school at Caney. The junior college is a completely private school.

In the early days most of the work was on a grade and high school level, there being very few schools for several counties around. The Hindman Settlement School and the Prestonsburg High School were in operation, but in between there was no school. Many walked into Caney from the

SHACK

Left—Nestled deep among towering Knott county hills is the present Caney Creek Community Center and its cluster of buildings—Opportunity and Pilot and Eagle's Nest and all the others. Above, the shack from which this monumental work of one woman in the field of education sprang.

Many other features about the Caney Junior College make it unique.

For room, board, and tuition there is no charge. No boy or girl with ability and integrity is kept from getting an education because of financial difficulties. However, those who are educated at Caney are expected to serve in the mountains.

Caney is not a terminal school. Those who survive the scholastic, spiritual, and moral tests, are sent on to the University of Kentucky. The boys stay at the Caney Cottage, located near the University campus. The Caney Cottage, owned by the Caney School, has helped hundreds to further their education. Rooms are generally found in private homes for girls who go on to the University.

The Little Theater, called "the recreation pulse" of Caney, is the scene of numerous speech and dramatic activities which the students remember long after they are gone. Here Christian Forum is held every Sunday evening, and boys and girls seated in a semi-circle expound ethical problems that are presented. Everyone has an opportunity to speak; indeed everyone is urged to speak. Here, too, operettas such as "H. M. S. Pinafore" or "The Mikado" are produced and plays from Shakespeare or some other classic writer. And here, at graduation time every student is given a topic on which to make an extemporaneous talk.

The objective of the Caney Junior College is, in the words of the founder, "To train selected mountaineers as professional men and women for efficient and consecrated leadership in the Southern Highlands." Mrs. Lloyd followed the idea that Horace Kephart expressed in a book called OUR SOUTHERN HIGHLANDS: "The great need of our mountains is trained leaders of their own. The future of Appalachia lies in the hands of these resolute boys and girls who win edu-education fitting them for such leadership."

Is this objective being realized? Caney has provided over one thousand grade school teachers and over one hundred high school teachers; eleven doctors; seventeen graduate engineers; nine attorneys; four county agents, a certified public accountant, a medical technician, and many other useful citizens.

New Safety Officers For State Police

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 16 (Sp.)—The appointment of four Kentucky state troopers as full time Safety Education officers has been announced by State Police Commissioner Charles C. Oldham.

According to the State Police head the four officers will spend most of their time on the new Kentucky Highway Lifesavers program. They will contact civic, business, fraternal, labor and industrial organizations in an effort to effect greater highway safety.

Oldham said Alton G. Evans, Lebanon native and veteran State Trooper, will head the newly created section. Evans, who has recently been promoted to corporal, has a wide background in the field of safety education.

The policeman-educator will make public speeches, and also show a new technicolor safety film concerning the Kentucky Highway Lifesavers. The film has just been released by the state police and the Governor's Coordinating Committee for Highway Safety.

RULING GIVEN

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 11 — Single precincts in a city or county which recently voted in a city-wide or county-wide election may conduct separate local option elections within the three-year period following the last at-large election in the community, it was held by Assistant Attorney General William F. Simpson.

Simpson held the three-year provision against further election in "the same territory" applied to the entire territory, and that it would be legal to conduct precinct elections within less than the entire territory which previously voted. The ruling was given to the Rev. W. J. Arvin, Nicholasville.

Truck Operators Must Get Permits

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 18 — The State Department of Motor Transportation today called on some 285 truck permit holders to procure either a contract carrier permit or a local cartage certificate. These carriers have been operating under exemption permits which have been declared void by law.

James E. Scully, Assistant Commissioner of Motor Transportation reminded all such operators to furnish a detailed statement at once "clearly setting forth exactly the type of operation performed, the area served by such operation and the commodities hauled in the operation."

All exemption permits became void June 17, he reminded, as he warned that strict enforcement of the new law will begin September 1.

Special Notice

Due to Disagreement of the Management
The Sandy Valley Speedway
is hereby put up for sale.

This is a money-making enterprise, and is on the increase, and if promoted and operated smoothly and efficiently it will turn out much better and will be the greatest entertainment throughout the entire area.

Horse racing is being promoted and is drawing keen interest. Many horsemen have promised their support in giving us horse shows and big races.

This is the best track through the entire area. The drivers like it better than any other track they run on, it is centrally located in the Big Sandy Valley and in the heart of Eastern Kentucky and is convenient to people who are coming one hundred miles from every direction to see the wonderful entertainment. I put this entertainment here for the people of this territory so they would not have to leave the valley or go so far away to have their amusement.

The track is where it is paying off well, but I am going to sell it as it is not easy to promote a business under disagreements. It just can't be done.

So somebody is going to get themselves a good deal, as it is going to go. So come and see me.

Call 2102 or write Box 467, Prestonsburg.

The racing will go on uninterrupted, and can be turned over to new management without interference.

More School Pupils Get Medical Exams

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 17 — An increasing number of medical examinations are being given Kentucky school children each year, with more than 172,266 such examinations being given during the past school year, E. B. Whalin, director of Health and Physical Education, reported today to Superintendent of Public Instruction W. P. Butler.

"In some respects substantial progress was made—while in other respects it was not so progressive," said Whalin.

In addition, local school districts reported an outlay of $296,300 for health service, an increase of $20,000 over the previous year, while the "disappointing thing" is that 8,000 children did not receive daily physical education instruction last year, who received it the preceding year.

However, the total physical examination jumped from 146,080 for 1952-53 to 172,266 for 1953-54.

Whalin also noted that in 73 districts, 100 per cent of all pupils enrolled were given physical examinations, and that there were 140,000 corrections made of physical defects.

Grant county homemakers tooled and laced 105 billfolds, coin purses and key cases following a craft lesson.

PROSPECTIVE VOTERS URGED TO REGISTER FOR NOVEMBER

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 16 (Spl.)—Governor Lawrence W. Wetherby today appealed to Kentuckians to prepare themselves for the duties of citizenship this fall, by seeing to it they are properly registered to vote in the November election.

Voter registration books for the November election opened August 12 and will close September 4, after which they will be closed until following the Nov. 2 general election.

"It is highly important that all qualified citizens prepare themselves for the highest privilege of citizenship—that of participating in the selection of their officers," the Governor urged all Kentuckians.

During the period between now and September 4, persons who have moved from one precinct to another, those who will have lived in the precinct sixty day prior to November 2, or who will become twenty-one by November 2, may register to vote, the Governor pointed out.

After September 4 there will be no further opportunity to qualify to vote in the November election.

YANKEES TROUNCE DODGERS TO WIN LITTLE LEAGUE TITLE

Prestonsburg's first season of Little League baseball ended Friday night with the Yankees emulating the famous Big League team for which they were named by defeating the Dodgers in the third and final game of the play-offs to cop the League championship.

The redoubtable Yanks copped the first, a free-swinging affair, 18 to 6, with each team getting 14 safeties. The winners in this one came from behind to take the series lead.

In the second game Thursday night, the Dodgers ran wild on the bases to overtake the Yankees and even the series with a 19-18 victory.

Friday's night's "sudden death" game saw each team get a dozen safeties, but it might as well have ended in the second when the Yankees scored nine times on six hits, two walks and an error. The Dodgers battled gamely back, making their strongest bid in the fifth with four runs, but were never able to overcome that early-inning deficit.

Because this is Prestonsburg's first year of Little League play the champion Yankees will not be eligible for district competition.

One of the most oft-repeated questions going the rounds in athletics circles of the state currently is a query exploring the University of Kentucky's football recruiting plans.

Prospective collegiate grid candidates, high school mentors and just plain fans are voicing the knotty point, "Has the change in football coaching administration at the University scuttled the Wildcats' 'Kentucky-first' recruiting policy?"

Before the answer is forthcoming, it might be well to point out to the uninformed that former Coach Paul Bryant, who left last February for Texas A. & M. initiated a unique policy in 1952 decreeing an end to all recruiting of football players for UK grid teams from outside the state of Kentucky. Under the plan only five out-of-state boys would be accepted a year and these had to be volunteer petitioners.

While virtually the entire football world hailed Bryant's plan as

Lack of Reserves Seen
As Team's Weakest Spot
In Coming Grid Campaign

By GORDON MOORE

The Prestonsburg Black Cats, champions of the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference in 1951 and 1952, are expected to be strong contenders for the title this season with the return of 15 lettermen.

Forty-five candidates reported for fall practice at the Prestonsburg athletic field Monday morning. Twenty-three were on last season's squad that won seven and dropped three and finished fourth in the loop.

The nucleus of the '54 unit will be junior quarterback Lowell Hughes, one of seven returning regulars, and all-Conference halfback Clifford Goble, along with handyman Kendall Alexander and speedster Ronnie Goble.

Lost by graduation were tackle Tom Spradlin, fullback Johnny Thompson, guard Bucky Burchett and end Paul Ousley. Spradlin, who was a regular for six years, and Ousley played on the East squad in the annual East-West football game in Lexington last Saturday night.

Now in his sixth season at the helm of the Black Cats, "Doc" Ferrell, a former University of Kentucky three letterman, has one of the better coaching records in the state. In the past four seasons his teams have lost only one home game, that a 7-6 loss to Jenkins in 1952, and have a combined total of 35 won and 5 lost.

Prestonsburg will operate from the split-T formation with Hughes, a brother of twice all-slayer John Delmar who now is a University of Kentucky quarterback, leading the passing attack. With him in the backfield will be senior halfback Ronnie and Clifford Goble, both 160-pound regular holdovers, and fullback K. Alexander, who will alternate with Hughes at the quarterback post.

Other aspirants for the backfield are Chester Shepherd, a six-foot 170-pound senior, who has two seasons of experience, and Bert Dixon, six-foot 175-pound senior halfback.

Ferrell should have a good first string line, but if any injuries occur lack of depth may be a distressing factor.

The line will have Donald G. Leatherford, six-foot-two inch, 190-pound senior end; Dee Caldwell, 6-foot, 190-pound senior end; Tackles Ed Ousley and Donald Puckett, both six-foot seniors who weigh 195 pounds; Guards, Randall Wells, a 190-pound junior two-letterman, who is the fastest man on the squad, and Charles Salyers, five-eight, 155-pound junior.

The center position will go to returning regular Joe P. Tackett, a five-foot-eleven, 170-pound junior. Defensive line assignments are expected to go to Donald Harrington, 150-pound senior, and Thurman Lafferty, 165-pound senior.

An experienced man can be placed at every position, but a light backfield may be the biggest handicap facing Ferrell and his assistant, William Goebel, Jr., a product of Morehead State College.

Meade Named Coach At South Portsmouth

Poster "Sid" Meade, well-known Eastern Kentucky basketball official and Weeksbury grade principal, has resigned his Floyd teaching post to accept the superintendent and basketball duties of the South Portsmouth city school system.

A graduate of Morehead State College, Meade formerly coached at Flap Gap in Johnson county from 1946 to 1950. His teams won 70 per cent of their games and advanced to the finals of the 15th regional tournament in 1949.

Since 1950, he has been principal at Weeksbury. During the past summer, Meade worked toward a doctorate degree in education at the University of Kentucky.

W'wright Youths at Play Steered from Delinquency

By Gordon Moore

Wheelwright, a Floyd community of 3,000 people, located at the southern tip of Floyd county, has curbed any thought of juvenile delinquency by providing its youth with a diversified recreational program.

Through the efforts of Wheelwright high school athletic director, Adrian Hall, and the local athletic association, approximately 200 youths daily make use of the swimming pool, golf course, tennis courts, playground equipment, basketball, volleyball and badminton courts.

In addition, Wheelwright offers its youth the opportunity to play in one of two Little Baseball Leagues, a junior league, and the semi-pro team which is currently in second place in the eight-team Tri-State League.

The benefits of the early baseball training have already paid good dividends as the local high school has competed in the state high school baseball championships for the past two seasons, and the school's cage teams are annually one of the contenders in the 58th district.

Tennis has become one of the major sports for all groups as two of the lighted-asphalt courts are in constant use throughout the day and early evening. The golf course, lying up what was formerly known as "Garbage Hollow," was built over the old garbage dump. Rolling greens and narrow fairways test the accuracy of the most ardent golfer.

It is not an uncommon sight to see teen-agers of both sexes blasting on the hillside of the nine-hole course which also has one of the most modern clubhouse in the area.

In use also is approximately $5,000 worth of playground equipment which is especially designed for body-building programs for all growing youngsters.

Virtually every child in the community has learned to swim in one of the state's finest pools, which includes baths, concession stand and several hundred lockers. The pool itself measures 50x120 feet.

Coach Hall, who is directly responsible for the physical education program of 800 children during the school year, feels that the summertime recreational program provides the youngsters with a thorough knowledge of all sports and makes working with them more enjoyable during school hours in the new Wheelwright high school gymnasium.

In the past three years, 11 of Hall's outstanding athletes have won athletic scholarships in colleges in four different states; two have entered professional baseball and 70 per cent of the total graduating athletes have entered college.

Francis Stores will again promote the Black Cats Football-Player-of-the-Week Award during the coming grid season. A three-man committee will choose the outstanding player each week, and the Francis stores will present the winner with an award.

Tommy Thompson's slugging Yankees won the second half of the Prestonsburg Little League pennant race, then went on to capture the League championship by trouncing the Dodgers in the two-best-of-three playoff series. Lowell and Paul Phillip Hughes were Thompson's assistants.

Since this is the first year of competition for the Little League here, the Prestonsburg champs are not allowed to participate in the National Little League sectional and regional championship play-offs.

Forty-five candidates answered Coach "Doc" Ferrell's first call for football practice Monday morning. This number is expected to increase with the opening of the fall term. The Black Cats open with Crum, West Virginia, here September 3.

Kentucky's first home game with Maryland, September 18, is an afternoon contest.

a step in the right direction, it failed to succeed in that other schools hesitated to follow the lead and, in fact, invaded this state to "steal" away several of the best prospects. In addition, there were not five outstanding volunteer applicants from outside the state each season.

Thus, the futility of restricting to the state's boundaries became apparent and, with the coming of new coach Blanton Collier to replace Bryant, the policy was revised.

Essentially, the Kentucky-born, Kentucky-educated, ex-Kentucky high school coach still has the utmost faith in the products of Kentucky high schools as football material for the state university and he has expressed intentions to continue bringing every top-flight Kentuckian to UK. However, in an attempt to "keep up with the Jones" (Tennesseans, etc.), Collier also is aiming to bring in some of the best out of state prospects that can be interested in UK—without placing any restriction on the number which may be granted scholarships each year.

Despite the revision in Kentucky's recruiting, you have the assurance of Coach Collier that fans will be watching a predominantly home-grown team representing their state university for a long time to come.

The current drought in the Dust Bowl began in Arizona in 1942, spread into New Mexico and Texas in 1943, to California in 1945, crept to Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas in the early 1950's.—Sports Afield.

FRIENDLY ARGUMENT

MANILA — Ceferino Manantan got around to talking about the Indochina War. The Philippines, said Manantan, should stay out of that fuss. No, disagreed Leoncio Camat. These Commies, ugh. We should all pitch in and lick them. One word led to another. Manantan and Camat pulled out their knives. Manantan was killed, Camat suffer serious head injuries.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our deepest appreciation to the many friends and relatives who did so much for us upon the passing of our dear brother, Adam Stanley, and for every courtesy extended to us through flowers and personal services. Especially we are thankful to the ministers, Isaac Stratton and Alfred Miller, for their consoling words and the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

The Stanley Family.
