PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY

This Town— That World

Any fishing a lot of us do, these post-election days, will be in salt water.

HE'S DISAPPOINTED

Wish everybody could take these elections as calmly as L. B. Moore, the Prestonsburg Republican who was (and still may be) a candidate for Railroad Commissioner. It was two days before the election, and he was in The Times office, seeking neither printing nor advertising. He was giving with predictions of his utter defeat. Guessed Pleaz Mobley would defeat him 40,000 votes. Then he paused a moment and added: "I might have put ads in 30-size newspapers and got out and visited every county-seat, spent maybe a thousand dollars and wore out a second-hand Ford car, and . . . But I might have got him stirred up and he would have beat me worse."

Finally the candidate without a hint of a sigh concluded: "I'll be disappointed if his majority is less than 40,000."

Incidentally, this Mr. Moore is running the pants of the aforesaid Mr. Mobley. If he wins by just one teeny-weeny vote, you'll have to say he won easily.

CLUE

One of these days somebody is going to die in a restaurant, and the mystery of his death might never be solved. So I write this for the benefit of future sleuths. He will die of starvation trying to make the waitress understand what he wanted to eat while one of those giant-size record players blares away.

WHAT TO END A SENTENCE WITH

There was a time when to split an infinitive was the unforgivable sin of the writer, a crime almost as dark as that of hanging a poor, innocent particle. But the rules are more flexible now, and splitting hairs in English is considered an offense more heinous than separating the component parts of the infinitive. To this day, though, I

Election week-end and its gathering of crowds at the 60 voting-places of the county and at the courthouse were attended by no more than the usual run-of-the-mill law infractions. No serious disorder was reported from any section of the county.

Most of those booked at the county jail within the week have been charged with drunkenness. The number of those accused of more serious offenses was actually less than that of the preceding week.

Those arrested on more serious charges were:

Henry H. Gibson, absent without leave from the armed forces, arrested here Sunday by Prestonsburg Policemen Bill Potter and B. L. Sturgill; Garnett Meade, drunk driving, jailed by State Trooper Armistage; Ermon Poe, carrying concealed deadly weapon, arrested by Deputy Sheriff Jim Prater; Robert G. Viccars, a.w.o.l., jailed by military police; Floyd Manns and Bill Wallen, booked Tuesday by Policemen Herschell Lester, of Martin, on charges of breaking and entering.

Chandler, Denney Win Primary Test

FLOYD VOTE COUNT FINISHED WEDNESDAY

JUDGE COMBS' FLOYD MARGIN CUT TO 1,180

Hays, Hill and Martin Win Legislative Races; Count Ends Wednesday

The bitterest state election campaign waged in Floyd county in its modern history went into the record book shortly after noon Wednesday when the Board of Election Commissioners concluded the tally of the last absentee vote cast.

The Floyd vote in the hotly contested race for the Democratic nomination for Governor was:

Jesse Nicholas Ryan Cecil, of Louisville, 128; A. B. Chandler, of Versailles, 4,217; Bert T. Combs, Prestonsburg, 5,397.

Judge Combs scored majorities in 40 of the county's 20 precincts, but in many of those he carried his lead was small.

Less than 10,000 Democratic votes were cast, and in the Republican primary only a few more than 1,000 were polled as all the interest centered on the Democratic primary.

The vote-count did not start here till late Saturday night because of an argument between County Clerk DuRan Moore on the one hand and Sheriff Gorman Collins and Commonwealth's Attorney Burns Martin on the other over the order in which the ballot boxes should be counted.

Three precincts were counted that night after it was decided to tabulate the vote by magisterial districts, starting with District 1. (A later dispute between Moore and Collins resulted in the filing of an injunction by the latter and a ruling by Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill.)

Veteran State Senator Doug Hays, of McDowell, won one of his toughest political battles and another four-year term in the Senate by defeating Former County Judge E. M. Moore, of Knott county, largely through the votes Hays piled up in Floyd. He and the two Democratic nominees for State Representative in this county are unopposed in November.

Representative Lon C. Hill, of Prestonsburg, of the 96th district

MINE LESSEE ELECTROCUTED

Warfield Johnson Dies As Face, Arm Contact Voltage-Bearing Line

Warfield Johnson, 59, Weeksbury mine operator, was electrocuted outside his mine last Wednesday. He was operating a mine motor and was "nipping" the machine backwards when his face and left arm came into contact with a high-voltage wire. He lived but a few minutes.

Mr. Johnson was the lessee of a mine from Jake Cooley. At the time of his death he had been working that day less than an hour. His face and arm were severely burned.

He was the son of the late Wiley and Lizzie Hampton Johnson and was married to Rena Little Johnson, who survives.

Surviving children are Wid Johnson, Eddie Johnson, Millard Johnson, Carl Johnson, Mrs. Myrtle Pack. Mrs. Larcie Blevins, Mrs. Dixie May Tackett, all of Weeksbury, and Estill Johnson, of Detroit. A brother, Birchfield Johnson, and a sister, Mrs. Polly Little, both of Weeksbury, also survive.

Funeral services were conducted at the home last Sunday at 10 a. m., the Revs. William Blankenship and Bennie Blankenship officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery at Weeksbury under the direction of Turner Funeral Home.

William David Patton, Well-Known Contractor, Succumbs Here Tuesday

William David Patton, 67 years old, well-known Prestonsburg building contractor, died at 12:10 a. m., Tuesday at the Prestonsburg General hospital, a few hours after having been taken there from his home. He was a victim of cancer from which he had suffered for several months.

A son of the late Jeff and Jane Campbell Patton, he was a native of this county and had spent most of his life in Prestonsburg. Many of the town's finest residences and business houses were built by him, and his last contracting job was the Educational building of the Methodist Church here which was completed last year. Mr. Patton had many friends and relatives here and elsewhere in the county.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Birdie Piggman Patton, two sons, William D. Patton, Jr., Logan, W. Va., and Everett Patton, Prestonsburg, one daughter, Miss Virginia Patton, of Lexington, and two brothers, Tom Patton, of Prestonsburg, and John H. Patton, of Illinois.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon from the residence on Riverside, the Rev. Harold W. Dorsey officiating. Burial was made in the Bascom May cemetery under direction of the Carter & Callahan Funeral Home.

COAL LOADING STILL CLIMBS

Increase in Production Seen Till Lake Freeze; Area Up 1,460,480 Tons

Coal production in the field represented by the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Operators Association is still increasing. It was shown this week in a release of figures complete for the year to July 30. The increase for this year over the corresponding period last year is 26.98 percent or 1,460,480 tons.

Production has been rising in the field since early in the year, it is noted. Figures released by the Bureau of Mines, U. S. Department of the Interior, for January and February of this year show for the Eastern Kentucky field, a production of 6,683 tons or 9.6 percent of the United States total. Last year for those two months the production was only 5,748 tons or 8.94 percent of the country's total production.

Pointing up the continued increase through the year in the East Kentucky field are other figures given by the Bureau of Mines as contributed by local producers in the area. For the months of January, February, March and April, the Bureau states that the field for those months last year mined 8,538 tons. This increase, the Bureau notes, would have been considerably larger but for railway strikes.

One factor that contributed to

Two Escapees Retaken; Louisa Man Eludes Hunt

La Grange, Ky.—Two of three escapees from LaGrange Reformatory were recaptured Wednesday by a Henry County farmer. The third got away.

They were among five who broke out early Monday, sawing bars in their dormitory window and then cutting through a fence. The other two were recaptured yesterday.

State police said they received a telephone call from Mrs. Robert Horton, Sulphur, notifying them that three men were on a bridge. Her husband held them at gunpoint while she telephoned.

State police who arrested the two identified them as George E. Carroll, 24, Louisville, and Edward Stebbins, 26, Sanger, Calif. The man who escaped, they said, was Ernest Fannin, 26, Louisa, Ky.

BUILDING JOB STARTS HERE

Excavation Work on Big Structure for Kroger's Adds To Projects Here

Excavation for foundation work on the big store building to be occupied by the Kroger Grocery & Baking Company is under way on the lot owned by Edward Music and associates. It must be ready for occupancy November 1.

The block-and-brick structure will be 60 feet wide fronting on Court street, opposite the courthouse, and will extend back 150 feet. The structure is being erected on a 100 by 294-foot lot, and about 20,000 square feet of parking space will be left available to store customers.

Kroger's has announced that the store will not be as large as some of its super-markets but that none will be finer.

As this building project was being started others were nearing completion. Finishing touches are being applied to the new high school here, in preparation for the opening of school Aug. 29. Motel construction by Edward Music and Thomas Hereford is far advanced, as is work on the DuRan Moore building opposite the bus station.

Woman Believed Oldest in This County Dies At 103 at Adkins Home on Toler; Mrs. Hunt Survived by 145 Descendants

Mrs. Lula Belle Garrett Hunt, Floyd county's and perhaps Eastern Kentucky's oldest person, died last Friday at 5:05 p. m. at the home of a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Lizzie Adkins, at Amba. She was 103. No cause of death was given except the infirmities of great age.

Mrs. Hunt was born March 15, 1852, on Daniel's Creek, this county, the daughter of Mid and Martha Hunt Garrett. She was twice married, first to Jack Adkins, and after his death to Alex Hunt, of Banner, who survives.

She resided most of her life on Daniel's Creek and lived in this county all her life. Up to the time of death her memory was excellent. The last of her family, she was a

MOSLEY DIES IN COLLISION

Former Minnie Resident Instantly Killed As Car Truck Collide, Tuesday

Kenell Mosley, 30, former Minnie resident, is dead of injuries sustained when his car collided with a trailer truck at Kendallville, Ind., Tuesday midnight. He died instantly, the Kendallville coroner said.

Her name was not learned. Details of the collision were not learned here. Mr. Mosley suffered a crushed chest, broken hip and head fractures. The driver of the truck, whose name also was unavailable, was severely burned but is expected to recover.

Mr. Mosley was a son of Ben and Dolly Mosley, of Minnie, and was married to Oval Kidd Mosley, who survives. Surviving are four children, all at home; Gary, Rodsie, Billy Joe and Vernell.

June, Month of Brides, Is Hard-Pushed by July In Number of Marriages

June, which is traditionally the Month of Brides, barely nosed out July, which is traditionally hot in these parts, in the matter of marriages, records at the County Clerk's office show.

A total of 32 marriage licenses were issued here during June, and last month 30 couples procured the necessary papers.

A comparison of these figures with those covering the same months of the preceding year indicate that either there are more

Can Chandler Unify Party? Is New Topic of Discussion

Can "Happy" Chandler, who scored a great personal victory at the polls last Saturday, hold the Democratic party together and next November become the third man in the state's history to be elected to the Governorship twice?

The Democratic nominee says he can. His Republican opponent, Edwin H. Denney, says Happy can't.

There lies perhaps the biggest bone of contention remaining, since the primary is over and the vote finally counted.

It is argued, on the other hand, that the Wetherby-Clements faction of the party will recognize that a November victory for Chandler will mean Senator Clements' scalp, if Happy is able to take it or have it taken, next year when Clements is up for renomination by the Democrats. Chandler's election also will crest the party organization reins from the present state administration, and those who see a split argue he will lose. Moreover, he points out, it appears that two-thirds of the Democratic nominees were backed in the primary by the administration of Governor Wetherby. These represent all but two Congressional districts, and to punish these six Administration friends in order to get revenge on Chandler would be a distasteful task for Wetherby, Trout reasons.

It is argued, on the other hand, that the Wetherby-Clements faction of the party will recognize that a November victory for Chandler will mean Senator Clements' scalp, if Happy is able to take it or have it taken, next year when Clements is up for renomination by the Democrats. Chandler's election also will crest the party organization reins from the present state administration, and those who see a split argue

Mountain Districts Fail Combs in Governor Race

FLOYD COUNTY MEN IN STATE RACES, LOSERS

Combs Wires Opponent His November Support As Margin Nears 20,000

Kentucky's own version of the "long count" was nearing the count of 10 Wednesday afternoon, with a few state races in the Democratic primary still on the doubtful list but the big one, the battle for the party's nomination for Governor, decided as early as Monday.

Results of the primary gave A. B. "Happy" Chandler the Democratic nomination for Governor over Bert T. Combs by a majority of around 20,000 votes, and Edwin H. Denney, the Republican nomination over James L. Clay by upwards of 60,000 votes.

Judge Combs conceded his defeat Wednesday after clinging to the hope that his native Eighth and the Seventh where he has resided since leaving law school would pile up a majority for him that would overcome the big vote amassed by Chandler in the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth districts. But neither of the mountain districts lived up to his expectations, the Seventh with its big Democratic vote falling him worst, and Judge Combs sent the victorious Chandler his congratulations and pledge of support.

Harry Lee Waterfield, Clinton newspaper publisher who was Chandler's running-mate, won easily in a field of five for the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. His lead over J. D. "Jiggs" Buckman, his nearest opponent, will exceed 90,000 votes.

Conceding the Chandler victory Wednesday morning, Combs wired: "Congratulations and best wishes. You and the other Democratic nominees have my full support in the coming general election."

Similar messages went to Chandler headquarters from U. S. Senators Barkley and Clements, Governor Wetherby, Lieutenant Governor Beauchamp, Congressman Carl D. Perkins, Rumsey Taylor, Combs' campaign chairman, and others.

With only a few precincts un-

TALLY DISPUTE DRAWS RULING

Judge Hill Rules Clerk To Deliver Ballot Boxes As Commissioners Direct

A County Clerk has no duty whatsoever under the law in the conduct of a vote count except to keep the ballots safely in his custody and deliver them to the election commissioners as the commissioners call for them, ruled Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill here Tuesday night.

The ruling was made on the petition for injunction filed by Sheriff Gorman Collins and John Darby, both members of the county board of election commissioners, against County Clerk DuRan Moore. The two sought the court ruling after the Clerk and Sheriff had engaged in a second dispute since the vote-count began as to the order in which the ballots should be counted.

Tuesday night's disagreement began with the count of Magisterial District No. 3. The Clerk produced a ballot box from that district, as previously agreed on, but not in numerical sequence.

The court action was by way of a test of the powers of the clerk and the election board.

Judge Hill held that other duties of the clerk in connection with the vote-count include accepting the ballots and the returns as made by the election commissioners after the ballots are counted.

VACATIONISTS SERMON HERE FROM P'BURG CITES NEEDS

May Be In Connie's Path; Hurricane Headed Toward Carolina Resort Towns

Floyd county families at Myrtle Beach, S. C., Virginia Beach, Va., and other Atlantic coast resorts may be in the big blow that is Hurricane Connie now approaching the coast. Most seaside vacationists and residents already have been evacuated to safety, however.

Hurricane Connie, 125-mile winds swirling at her center, drifted slowly toward the Carolina coast Wednesday.

At 5 p. m., the big tropical storm, which posed a threat to the whole eastern seaboard, was centered some 200 miles southeast of Myrtle Beach, S. C. She was moving about six miles an hour toward Myrtle Beach, where last year's big hurricane Hazel struck land.

But the Weather Bureau said Connie likely will veer to the northward during the night and pick up speed as a low pressure trough of air approaches from the Great Lakes region.

Meanwhile, for the next 6 to 12 hours the storm probably will continue the same plodding course toward the coast.

Most of the eastern seaboard, mindful of the three big hurricanes which killed more than 250 persons last year, watched Connie closely. The hurricane loomed along the same path as Hazel, which ripped from South Carolina to Canada, ultimately taking 177 lives. Vacationists and permanent residents by the hundreds fled the Carolina beaches.

Waves up to 15 feet high pounded and battered the beaches. Tides were running two to four feet high.

MORAL CONSCIOUSNESS CITES NEEDS

Community's Big Need, Answer Given by Pastor

The community's greatest need is not a matter of streets and sidewalks, sewage systems, water plants, playgrounds or gymnasiums—it's need is a moral consciousness that would enable its people to determine what is right and wrong and which would create within the people the will and the courage to do right, regardless of the cost.

So argued the Rev. Ira McMillen, Jr., pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here, in his Sunday morning sermon. The sermon, "Let's Face It," was prompted, he explained, by earnest inquiries made by youths confronted by perplexing problems.

"Home influence and the influence of leaders in the community have not always been the best, and that could be said of almost any community in the nation," the minister said, adding, "Some are inclined to say, 'What is this young generation coming to?' when the amazing thing in some instances is that the youngsters have done well as they have."

The light attitude taken by the public toward law and order, the inclination to follow accepted standards even if they are bad, the failure of the people to insist on honest enforcement of the law—these were among the trouble "symptoms" he listed.

Of the unaring attitude adopted toward law and order, the Rev. McMillen said, ". . . some adults close their eyes or turn their backs on something that is known to be

Additional Employes Get Social Security Coverage In State

More than $3,000,000 a year is being paid by state and local political subdivisions for social security coverage on their employes, H. B. Fithian, director of the Division of Personnel Security in the State Department of Economic Security, reported today.

The first quarter of 1955 found 19,082 employes of 130 state agencies — including educational institutions and regular governmental activities—on which contributions of $516,486 were paid. In addition, 18,693 employes of counties, cities and independent group were included on which contributions of $336,412 were made.

Employees of all state agencies already are under social security, but a number of those in other political subdivisions are not yet covered, according to Fithian.

Coverage of separate political units includes 84 to 120 county school districts; 78 of the 106 independent school districts; 89 of the 120 counties; 79 independent groups such as electric and water plant boards, public libraries, housing commissions and hospitals.

Municipal employes covered include: Louisville, the only first class city; four of the seven second class cities; eight of the 11 third class cities; 41 of the 58 fourth class cities; 45 of the 78 fifth class cities and 19 of the 147 sixth class cities.

During the last year, 13 school districts, 11 counties; 18 cities and 10 independent agencies, such as public libraries, municipal utility plants, housing commissions and hospitals elected to place their employes under social security coverage.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

By James Taylor Adams

Adam Sits in the Shade and Listens

It was the afternoon of September 30, 1941. A soft warm day. I had left Wise about 3:00 and was footing along US 23 to my home at Big Laurel. As I approached Greasy Gap I saw a woman standing by the road, ahead of me. It proved to be Mrs. Lola Lovell who told me that her mother, Mrs. Minnie Collins, had a story she wanted to tell me.

"Hit come to me last night as I was trying to go to sleep," began Mrs. Collins. "Everything just as plain as if hit was only yesterday."

"Down there at Reim, between Norton and Coeburn, there's a big flat rock, or used to be, called the 'Beverly Rock.' I've played on it a-many and many a time, when I was a child, and I've sat on it a lot of times since I've been a grown person. They always told me that that was where the old Beverly lived after they first come into this country from the Mouth of Wilson in Grayson county, or maybe, hit was North Carolina; back there somewhere. Hit seems like that they were the first settlers on Guesses River, round Reim and Coeburn. I believe they said hit was old Freeman that lived at the Beverly Rock. That's the way I recollect it; but it could have been Old Ligey Bever it could have been Old Ligey Beverly, Freeman's daddy. He was the beginner of them all, Old Ligey was, I've heard them tell that he died during the February cold spell. I don't know what year it was, but hit must have been way over a hundred years ago. I've been told that Old Ligey Beverly was the first person to be buried where Coeburn is now. I don't know."

"No matter which Beverly it was that lived at the rock, I know that, about fifty years ago, it got nortared about that he had brought a whole fortune in diamonds in here from wherever it was he come from and hid them up the holler from the big flat rock. Died and left them, they said."

"Hit was a sight how people believed in it. My folks among the rest. They simply tore that little holler up from head to mouth. I was just a strip of a girl, at the time, but I couldn't much help wondering, I couldn't, where Beverly go all them diamonds."

"We lived right at the mouth of the holler; and I could see them go up with tools, in the morning, and come out at night, looking awful tired out and workworn. Old Man Cavendish put in the whole summer digging and prizing out rocks up that holler. He was taken with the idea more than anybody else, it seemed.

"If old Man Cavendish ever found anything nobody ever knew it. Hit was odd that he suddenly quit working at it; and from that day till his death you couldn't get him to talk about it. But every pretty day you'd see him a-slipping off up that holler, right alone by hisself; and he didn't carry any tools. I've heard hit said that somebody spied on him one day and seed him go to a little ledge of rocks and take out a boulder, about as big as a half-bushel, and then reach in and get something out of the opening; and they said that, whoever it was, said he seemed to be hugging whatever it was up to his breast and counting over something. I don't know you can hear anything. I do know that the old man had been worked up over it so much that he bought a rod of some sort to help him locate it. Paid a big price for it too. And hit wasn't long after that till he quit taking tools up the holler to work with."

Some folks will tell you that Old Man Beverly never brought any diamonds in here with him. They contend that he found a diamond mine up the holler. It was common knowledge in our neighborhood that Freeman Beverly found something, around Coeburn, somewhere, maybe up that same holler, and that he got Pat Hagan to send it off to be tested and they never heard from it any more; at least Beverly never heard from it again.

"Ah, law, you never can tell. Hit might have been Old Swift's silver mine that Old Man Beverly found. I know, myself, that a lot of the Beverlys have believed about the Swift mine and have done a lot of hunting for it in Stone Mountain and all around Coeburn, Reim, Tacoma and Norton."

SPORTS AFIELD

This time of year dogs require special care. Bodily cleanliness and sanitation around the kennel house and yard are absolutely essential to a dog's health. Parasites of all kinds thrive during the hot summer months, and particular care must be taken during this period if the dog's comfort and well-being are to be insured.

The development of DDT has about solved the flea problem, but care should be exercised in its use. Sprays of five per cent strength are highly recommended. Derris powder is especially effective in the control of external parasites, according to Henry P. Davis, dog editor for Sports Afield magazine.

Clipping your dog will make him feel cooler but it will also make him more vulnerable to insects—and he may get badly sunburned. Davis never recommends clipping long-haired dogs. He prefers to "strip" them with a stripping or plucking knife. This removes the dead hair, thins out the underpinning, but leaves an adequate coat for protection.

Be sure your dog has a fresh supply of water at all times, and plenty of shades. If you have no natural shade, plant sunflowers in the kennel yard. They are fast-growing plants and make excellent shade.

There is no real need to keep your hunting dog idle during the summer. It is neither pleasing to him, nor to his advantage. His muscles become soft, his keen ambition fades, and he is prone to forget some of the lessons he learned in game-handling manners.

The pointing dog and spaniel fanciers can devote the afternoons to yard-training lessons and to brushing up on the retrieving department. For the retriever owner, summertime is the best period to introduce youngsters to work in water. Cool, damp summer evenings offer the hound man an opportunity to give his dogs much-needed exercise and trailing experience by turning them loose on drag races.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

COMENDS MRS. JOHNS Editor, The Times: People of this section of the state, especially those who admire the beauty and loveliness in nature—and all motorists who are, and will be traveling over this road, should pause and give thanks to Mrs. Winnie F. Johns, who originated the Dogwood Trail. By her unselfish devotion and profound civic mindedness, plus strenuous work and perseverance, she gave to the people of the Eastern Kentucky mountains a living monument of eternal beauty. It was through and by her efforts which terminated in the transplanting of hundreds of small dogwoods along this lovely mountain road.

Out-of-state vacationists will be thrilled as they motor over this road when it is decorated in all its loveliness and wondrous beauty of dogwood blossoms. Glenn M. Clarke

HEALTH NOTES

By Floyd County Health Department

PREVENTING TUBERCULOSIS

TB is your problem. But, you say, you don't know a single person who has tuberculosis. Are you sure? How do you know? That's just the trouble with this insidious disease. It can hide for long periods behind a mask that imitates health.

If TB were like measles, it would probably be under complete control today. Medical science can plot the course of measles from the time of infection through the incubation period to the outbreak of the familiar symptoms. Within a specified time the disease is cured, and the patient is immune to another infection. Not so with tuberculosis.

In the first place, infection with tuberculosis germs do not necessarily mean that disease will break out at all. You can be exposed to TB, take in a good dose of germs from someone who has the disease, and yet be able to fight the germs to a standstill. Months, even years later the disease might start up either because of a new invasion of germs or because the body's defenses against the old infection have weakened. Even then tuberculosis may not declare itself openly. It can be active for some time without obvious symptoms.

Since a person who has TB may not feel ill, he may go about his business and pleasure as usual. Of course, he will be getting steadily worse and spreading his germ to those about him, although he looks as healthy as ever.

Another way TB differs from many other infectious diseases is that one outbreak doesn't always end the story. The cured ex-patient has to make an effort to stay well, for his disease can start up again if he is careless with his health.

There are no red spots to identify those who have active tuberculosis. You may or may not be one of them. But it is your responsibility to know. You can know for sure by having a regular physical check-up by your physician and a chest X-ray as often as he advises.

Every mother should make sure that her child builds good eating habits, stresses Dr. John Sizemore, clinician for the County Health Department. "Liking food is a habit, a habit that is vital to good health," Dr. Sizemore says, "and with some assistance from mother, the child could easily like wholesome foods."

- The health clinician listed the following ideas to help teach children the value of good eating habits. 1. Begin early to teach a child to like foods that are important to health. 2. Begin with a small serving of a food that is different or new to the child. Make the servings larger as he learns the new food.

- 3. Do not give up if a child rejects a new food. Wait several days before serving it again. Give a new or less liked food at the beginning of a meal or before a well-liked food. 4. Be sure the food tastes right and looks appealing. 5. Parents should set the right example by eating the same foods the child is expected to eat.

- 6. Act as if everyone likes and eats all the foods prepared. 7. Let the child have a part in preparing and serving food; this increases interest. 8. Decide where your child eats the best—away from distractions of the family table, or with another child who has a good appetite.

- 9. Avoid giving "tastes" of sweets and other foods that are not good for children.

wrong and they excuse it by saying, "He's a friend of mine, he did me a favor once, or... some joke over a shady deal, or get something 'fixed' by seeing the 'right people'." Is it any wonder that many youth grow up with a contempt for the law and a twisted view of what is right or wrong?

"Take the Bible approach," he advised as a solution to this major community problem. "Before people can change their ways they must be changed themselves; before they can think new thoughts and perform new deeds the miracle which Jesus called the new birth must take place."

He urged the creation of a strong community consciousness concerning moral questions, reminding his hearers: "Our worship is not to be an end in itself. Our Christian experience does not stop with a profession of faith any more than marriage ends when the ceremony is concluded." Only those who have a high standard of values received from Christ are qualified to lead.

IT'S A GOOD WORLD

(The views expressed herein do not necessarily reflect the views of The Times.)

A Times editorial two weeks ago begged this county to end vote buying. Fight the traffic that results in candidates for office and their supporters spending more than the offices legally pay. In Floyd county practically every public official, and perhaps a hundred or so respected citizens, will in some degree violate the laws which public officials are sworn to support and which every citizen worth his salt should respect."

Mr. Allen's article just quoted was ignored. Ours is not the only county where such crookedness prevails, but leading citizens agree none can be worse. Vote-buying is perhaps the major evil of this section and a chief cause of its so-called poverty in the midst of plenty, as actually Floyd is a wealthy county.

Not long ago a public official said, "Our boys can move to another county, (which he named), and run for office, or put out a candidate, and win every time." Asked how, he replied, "Because they will do things those people there will not do." Such is not to the credit of Floyd county.

Our county does elect some good men to office. But how many would claim they obtained their offices without knowing someone had bought votes for their behalf? In 1933 the Times editor begged Floyd to do as Montgomery county, which had all candidates pledged not to buy a vote or have one bought. No body paid any attention.

I never saw anyone buy votes, but a friend whose husband was once a candidate said their entire life savings must go for his share in the campaign pool. Amazed at the sum, I asked how one could afford it, since the office had a designated salary. She replied there were ways to make it pay three to five times more. Once a party morgul made a special call to urge Edgar May to run for a certain office. He guaranteed E. R. that he could "get rich" by making many times the income the state allowed for that post. (The boss is still content to be an engineer.)

While in charge of the county relief office, I was sounded out by some party bosses, who said if they were allowed to name the boys sent to the CCC, I could be nominated and elected as county court clerk. (The relief head selected CCC boys from needy families.) (I did not announce for office.)

While distributing cards on an election day once, I watched one man all day as he went behind a building with different voters, came out, nabbed others, and repeated the process. A few days later he voluntarily told me he would never buy another vote as long as he lived. Watching him and others tragedy of our great county, with its magnificent people and marvelous potentialities, for that man was an officer who should have upheld the law.

I was in another room of a home when a county official came there and handed a bag of money to the man of the house, and told him what to do with it in the election next day. The officer delivering that black satchel had sworn to uphold the law. And he was a pillar in his church.

These personal references are included to show that all writers put into print is not mere hearsay. Rich counties become impoverished where vote-buying prevails. People plead for good roads and other needs, while part of the taxes paid go to replace slush funds, known to be traditional here for generations. Nominees have reported paying defeated primary opponents large sums not to contest. Some paid figures higher than the salary of their office. Yet the same men spoke in glowing terms of honesty and good government.

A friend who was a witness in a contest suit said he told them he had not carried any money bags for his side to a single precinct. He then added no one had asked about his partner, who had had the money bags on the car seat between them. Our county has tolerated this sort of thing for years.

Mrs. Ed Stewart, of Maytown, belonged to the WAVES during the last war. She wrote a grand article, called, The Black Satchel, while in service. It was published in the Times, and is still in our file. It was the plea of a fine, young person, begging that home be made a better place, a respectable one.

Years ago we saw a young boy crying sadly. He said his coach had just told him his favorite teacher had paid several hundred dollars into a school campaign slush fund, to be sure of his position the next four years. "Isn't there anyone we kids can believe in nowadays?" that boy asked sorrowfully.

Times editorials and other articles have pointed the way to better days if more will cooperate. It is up to Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen. How will you teach and train your children? How do you live before them?

Tune in Saturday at 9:30 to hear the Prestonsburg FYF.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D. Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

Where Are the Bluebirds? In all the years that I have studied birds as a hobby the most common question asked me has been "Where are the Bluebirds?" When I explain carefully, often giving figures, that the Bluebirds are still here and are as numerous as ever, I get a blank stare or a queer look of lack of belief. Long ago I learned not to feel offended at this attitude, for it is a perfectly natural one for many people to have. You see, most of the ones who ask me such questions were reared in the country and have moved to town. Because they do not see Bluebirds as they used to, they assume that the Bluebirds and they have changed. Ever since 1912 I have taken an annual Christmas Bird Census, which has been published in AUUDUBON FIELD NOTES, along with hundreds of other censuses from all parts of the country. I have just looked over my thirty-seven counts and found that I found, on the average, around 35 Bluebirds a count. One year I found 117 and have often gone as high as 60 in one day. Where are the Bluebirds? They are still here and have varied very little since I first began my studies. It is true that along in the mid-nineties a great many Bluebirds died from severe weather and thus were for a short time not up to their usual numbers, but the 1890's were a long time ago, considerably longer than the memories of most people who ask me about Bluebirds.

Just today someone asked me about dog fennel, in the same tone of voice that others have asked about Bluebirds. My answer was the same. Dog fennel is still here, as many acres of it, especially around rich-soiled barnyards. I could have taken my inquisitor today to places where the plants are more than knee-high now in full bloom. In fact, in just the last few days I have driven by farms where the odor of dog fennel pervaded the whole atmosphere. Like the man who spoke tome, I like dog fennel and am sure that it would be a cultivated plant if it were as rare as orchids. I can imagine aristocratic ladies showing this exotic plant to admiring garden club members. I recall that a red flowered variety of dog fennel used to be grown, by just a lady at Fidelity, and all of us, used as we were to the common barnyard species, raved over the odd cultivated variety, just as we raved over her stramonium, a cultivated species or variety of Jimson weed. Frankly, Jimson flowers are vrey pretty and suffer only because they are so common and have never been coddled by a connoisseur of flowers.

The thing that amuses me most about these questions about Bluebirds and dog fennel is that my home town is small, with excellent farm lands all around. Two minutes in a car would take my questioners into Bluebird or dog fennel territory. Maybe, in outgrowing up from a rural to an urban people, we have grown faster in some ways than in others. Some of my friends of big cities are avid about country birds and plants and are as much at home in the fields as they are in their city streets. Many of them have never lived in the country but have learned how to see and know natural landscapes and plants and animals. Others, some of them not too long from the country, seem never to have seen distinctly rural things or seem to have forgotten the smell of freshly-turned soil, the sound of whip-poor-wills at nightfall, the taste of sheep sorrel and wild plums. It has been almost a half century since I lived in the country, but my hobby has kept me aware of even remote places all the time. I do not have mud on my boots that I brought from Fidelity in 1906; those old shoes disappeared ages ago. But I do have mud on my boots from yesterday afternoon, when I walked around a wet-weather pond, a ten-minute drive from my house. Maybe we need to keep in mind how close, geographically and mentally, we are to where we came from. Fidelity is a hundred miles and more, air line, from my house; but these conditions that made and still keep Fidelity are within 'throwing distance.' And at this is a parable of how close we are to our folk origins, how near at hand is the past and its customs, how much a part of our daily lives are the events of unrecorded years that have meant so much to our being what we are.

Post-Mortem

Any election post-mortem should perhaps end with "the loser lost because he didn't get enough votes," but really there is more to the story of last Saturday's primary than that.

"Happy" Chandler scored his greatest personal triumph by winning over what appeared to be insurmountable odds. Nobody can take anything away from him, and nobody need try. Yet he got a lot of help from an unexpected source.

Chandler's victory over Bert Combs was due, in large part, to John Young Brown, of Lexington, who in announcing his support of the Prestonsburg man also announced his plan for a sales tax.

That, we think, did it. That was the kiss of death. The Combs campaign had been gaining momentum till that time. Thereafter it faded as Chandler, an old pro in this game of politics, hopped onto the issue with both feet and never permitted the people of Kentucky to forget it for a moment, even though Combs had not said he favored such a tax.

Judge Combs in defeat is a heroic figure. He told the people in plain language what he proposed to do if elected Governor. Perhaps he told them too plainly, too honestly. Mention the need of money and the taxes needed to raise money, and you have trouble in Kentucky if you are looking for votes.

It was a historic struggle in a state where politics is the breath of life to thousands.

FARM NOTES

BY O. E. BOGGS County Agent

BAGWORMS Bagworms are the worms that weave part of the foliage and even small branches into bags that hang on evergreens and some deciduous plants. These bags may be seen hanging on the plants practically all season of the year. When the eggs hatch and the young worms emerge they are ravenous feeders and unless controlled quickly, they often injure ornamental plants to the point where they never regain their former beauty.

Control: 1. Hand pick and burn these bags from November until March 15. Where there are just a few bags hanging on the plants they are easily seen during these months, and if they are all picked and burned, the worms will be controlled.

Control 2. The worms may be controlled by a poison-arsenate of lead, one of the best and one of the easiest to obtain. Four table-spoons of arsenate of lead and six table-spoons of slacked lime dissolved in one gallon of water will make a spray that will kill these worms. Of course, this spray must be applied when the worms are feeding and usually that is from the 15th of May until about the first of August. One good, thorough spraying when the worms are first seen to be feeding will kill them, and usually it will be all that will be necessary. The old bags will hang on the plant for several months, but there will not be any worms emerge to do damage.

In mixing this spray, use an old tin can, or a tea cup, and mix the arsenate of lead with a small amount of water, stirring until it goes into solution. Do the same with lime. Then dilute to one gallon. The spray will discolor the evergreens and other plants for awhile, leaving a white residue. However, this small amount of discoloration is much better than having the plants eaten up by these worms.

CAUTION: Do not spray the evergreens when the sun is shining directly on them or the temperature is above 75 degrees F. Wait until the late afternoon when the temperature has dropped and the sun has passed from those plants.

Friend of ours doubts he'll make it to the seashore for vacation this summer. No, it's not because Connie or any of her sister hurricanes that may follow have him scared. Says the knees in his bathing suit are worn out.

Air Force Group Urges Fair Deal For Red Captives

San Francisco, Aug. 10 — The Air Force Association today prepared an appeal to the Defense Department for a better break for airmen who have been subjected to Communist brain-washing.

The organization of 40,000 Air Force veterans, servicemen, and air-power enthusiasts, opening its annual convention, was drafting a resolution calling for:

1. More thorough preliminary briefings a disintegration for military personnel on the treatment they may expect if captured by the enemy, on the propaganda uses the enemy may make of their comments, and on the information they may safely give the brainwashers.
2. Greater assurance to captured men that they have not been forsaken and that their country will take strong measures for their release.

ELECTRIC PLANTS USE MORE COAL

Electric utility plants used more coal in 1954 than ever before, 118,411,000 tons, and also used it more efficiently than ever before. It required, on the average, only 0.99 of a pound of coal in 1954 to produce one kilowatt hour of electricity. Ten years earlier it took 1.29 pounds to produce one kw-hr and 20 years earlier the requirement was 1.45 pounds. In 1920, it was three pounds per kw-hr.

Luck At Kentucky Lake

Holding a couple of big'uns, a bass and a cat, weighing a total of nine and a quarter pounds is Wm. Epling, Tram merchant. The fish were taken from Kentucky Lake, below the dam, July 15. With Epling and Mrs. Epling on their fishing vacation were former Marshall County Judge Leonard Jones and Mrs. Jones, of Benton.

the increase in the Big Sandy field was the L & N Railway strike which diverted some of the production on that system to the C&O here. Other factor pointed out is the overall economy of the country that demands practically full production of steel. Coal men think production here will decrease when the lakes freeze in November.

LET'S STOP AND BE SERIOUS FOR AWHILE

Today in this world of excitement . . . While aroused about quality and style; I offer a suggestion for enlightenment: Let's stop and be serious for awhile.

Much thought is given to society . . . A new car will cover the lost mile. Why worry about being so tidy? Let's stop and be serious for awhile.

Many worry and strive to become mighty; Strenuous efforts often become vile. Why destroy our nerve and become flighty? Let's stop and be serious for awhile.

The solution is simple and in balance. To be learned by even a child. So let's turn to the Creator of talents; Let's stop and be serious for awhile.

The Lord gave us all that we possess . . . To use with a conscience that's mild. Just use your share and don't seek the rest; Let's stop and be serious for awhile.

I'd rather be free from worldly affairs . . . And keep His good works on file. So I could follow Him the rest of my hours; Let's stop and be serious for awhile.

Betsy Layne Has Fire Truck After Seven Years of Effort

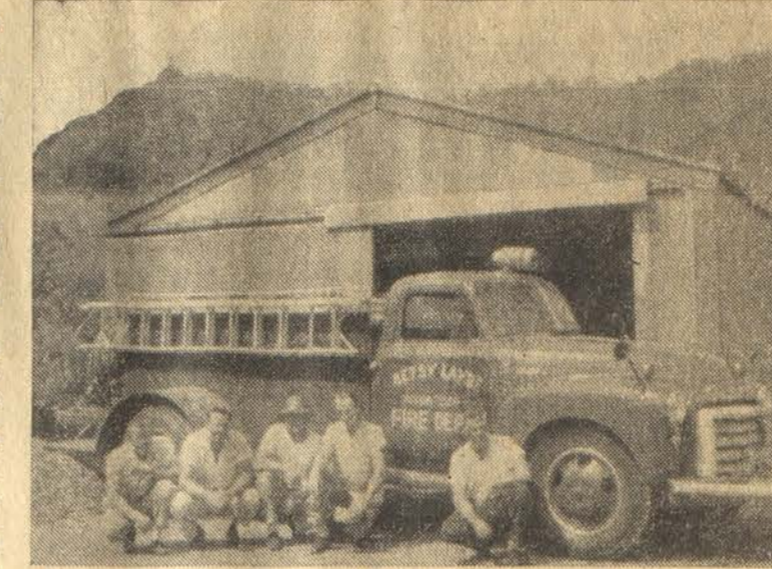

The Betsy Layne-Mare Creek community has fire protection. To prove it the members of the volunteer fire department can drive out one of the valley's most modern, if small, fire trucks.

That fire truck will take the community out of the Class 10 category of fire protection which is really one with no protection at all and put it in Class 9 with a reduction in insurance rates of about 20 per cent.

The new truck, its equipment and the metal building housing it cost approximately $6,000. No one knows for sure how much it cost in volunteer labor, for the 25 members of the volunteer department gave freely of their spare time in soliciting funds, installing equipment and doing the many necessary things to initiate a fire department from scratch. The new truck, replacing an old dilapidated jalopy, which the boys weren't exactly proud of, was bought last November. The metal garage was bought last month—on credit. The department owes $2,000 on that yet. They have set aside the last two weeks of August to make a drive for the money to retire the debt. Judging from their persistency in getting this job done, they'll raise the money.

Idea for the fire department at Betsy Layne-Mare Creek originated in the minds of the members of the Betsy Layne Men's Club back in 1948. The club was a group of young men, sparked by fellows like Walter Hall, merchandiser, Jack Branham, insurance, James George, restaurateur, and John Martin Porter, filling station operator. They met every month, mostly for recreation and general gab, but in a more serious mood one night some one suggested a fire truck.

Since 1948 they have been plugging for that fire truck with its modern housing and equipment "James George's persistence helped us," says Jack Branham. "He kept his chin up even when everybody else was despondent." James George was the first fire chief.

Walter Hall is doubly proud of the new building. He tells some of their troubles before it was acquired. "The biggest trouble was in the winter time when we had to keep our original truck outside in the weather. We couldn't keep water in it, for it would freeze. Then theft bothered us a great deal. We'd lose tires and batteries regularly," he said. "Now we can store the truck, full of water, with less danger from freezing and little danger at all from theft."

John M. Porter, the present fire chief, succeeded George when he moved to Middlesboro. He details statistics on the new fire truck. It has a capacity of 1,000 gallons, will pump out 400 gallons of water per minute. It can be hooked into a well, fire plug or stream with ease, and pump direct from the source. "We haven't tried the new truck yet on a fire but the old one put out 12 building fires besides many grass fires. We are not worried about about what we can do with this one," the fire chief says. Looking at the modern fire truck, the property owners of Betsy Layne and Mare Creek feel less worried, too.

COACHES SEE LACK OF DEPTH BIGGEST WEAKNESS OF TEAM

By Quentin Allen

With a week of practice gone by during which they have had a good look at the current Black Cat football team, Coach Bob Wallace and his assistant, Bill Goebel, Jr., have come to definite conclusions.

The team is light but scrappy; the big weakness lies in its lack of depth. The first team is of good size and fast, but the second and third teams are smaller and slower, especially in the line.

The weakest position on the team, according to Coach Wallace, is the guard position. There are only two experienced boys at guard and neither is too heavy. Those boys are Rube Tackett and Dick Leslie, who, Wallace, hopes, will make up for their lack of size in hustle and aggressiveness. The boys backing them up are green and inexperienced, and though Bob Lucas and Rudolph Allen are showing promise.

The Black Cat squad had had 38 candidates this year, with only 12 of these being returning lettermen. Wallace has arranged the team in three squads according to experience. The summary of the team, position by position, as made by Coach Wallace, follows:

FIRST TEAM—

Center—Wayne Dixon, 195, looks good. Has been working well and should be a standout in the line.

Guard—Rube Tackett, 165, is small, but is a hustler and works hard to get the jump on his line play. His hustle will make him a good lineman.

Guard—Dickie Leslie, 175, co-captain this year who has switched from tackle to guard for his speed. Is a hard worker and will be a mainstay in the line.

Tackle—Bruce Howard, transfer from Paintsville at end of last season. Weighs about 185 and is quick for a big boy. Will play a lot of ball.

Tackle—Bill Rorrer, biggest boy on squad, who was a week late in reporting, which gives him a lot of conditioning to do but will add 205 pounds in the line that lacks weight.

End—Monte Rice, 180, a well-built boy who should be tough to beat.

End—Carl Sizemore, 180, has worked at guard some but his six-plus frame is too good to keep off the end spot. He has been hampered since the first day with a bad cut on his left hand.

Quarterback—Lowell Hughes, all-state last year and all-stater-to-be this year. He'll be the heart of the team. Co-captain with Dickie Leslie.

Left Half—Lowell McKenzie, has been bothered by a cold and now by a charlie horse. Once he gets the kinks out, he's expected to do a fine job.

Right Half—Buford Crager. Will be probably the best halfback on the squad. He has a fine pair of legs and much is expected from him.

Fullback—Curtis Tussey, a sophomore, is shaping up to be a real fine fullback. He needs to learn a lot and is picking up every day and looking better.

Now for the second team, which has only two experienced boys, Paul Phillip Hughes and Jim Daniels:

Center—Dextor Music, 160, a tall, rawboned type who is working well at center. Should turn out to be a good substitute for Dixon.

Guard—Rudolph Allen, green and inexperienced but is working hard and improving rapidly.

Guard—Bob Lucas, a good-sized boy who has shown a lot of promise. He may develop into a fine guard.

Tackle—Jackie Stumbo, Vic Calhoun, Scott Hopson, Bobby Gene Howell and Franklin Baldrige, all new boys who are promising, are scrapping for second team berth at tackle.

End—Frank Sweeney, slow for an end but a hard worker. If he should improve in speed he should be a fine end.

End—Jim Daniels, a senior this year, will be seen a lot of duty despite his lack of size. He is a hard worker and has a lot of spirit.

Quarterback—Paul Phillip Hughes, the understudy of his brother, Lowell, will be a fine sub and may run some at halfback and fullback.

Left Half—Leslie Goble, a hard worker and in fine shape, is temporarily hampered by charlie horses. Once he gets into running shape, he'll make the regulars hustle to keep their jobs.

Joe Harris, who has been bothered by a charlie horse, is expected to do some fine playing this season.

Right half—Charles Dotson has been working out at end but is considered too short for the job. Has been shifted to half only recently.

Fullback—Glenn Anderson, doing well and may develop into a good boy.

43 PLAYERS GREET COACH AS CATS START PRACTISE

Coach and Mrs. Wallace photographed at their apartment here soon after arrival.

Head Football Coach Bob Wallace and Assistant Coach Bill Goble, Jr., greeted 43 candidates for the 1955 Black Cat varsity squad last Monday as they started two workouts a day until the first game with Atherton in Louisville.

Coach Wallace was enthusiastic about the squad's attitude. "I don't believe I've ever seen a group of boys with better attitudes."

He commented that the squad is green. Of the 43 now participating in the practice sessions, only 12 are returning lettermen, and only one is a senior letterman.

HARRIS NAMED BAT KING

Yanks Win Pennant; Dobart, Akers Share Homerun Honors

Milford "Toodles" Wells, commissioner, has declared that tournament play does not count in the official Little League averages. This gives the regular season batting championship to first baseman Henry Harris, Jr., who compiled a leading average of .533. Harris beat out the Yankees second baseman John Grant Anderson by swinging for three hits in four times at bat in his last game.

Last year's batting champion, Roger Dobart, fell to fifth place as he garnered a .491 total, behind the third and fourth place men, Junior Young and Thurman Akers, respectively. However Dobart, the Dodgers handyman held his own in the home-run race as he clouted a tying total of six to match the Cardinals Thurman Akers who came fast in the last portion of the season.

The leading pitcher of the league was Jim Mosley who played infield, outfield, and catcher with the same excellence as he pitched in compiling a total win mark of seven games as against only one defeat. It was Mosley's all-around play that led the Yankees to their second straight pennant in as many years and his play that sparked the Yankees winning streak which ended at 20 games.

Tournament play, as it now stands, finds the Yanks victors over the Dodgers in a slugfest, 20-3, with Mosley pitching fine fall and first baseman Bobbie Pearson rapping a homer, two doubles, and two singles for the hitting honors. In the other game between the Cardinals and the Indians, 10-2, as the Cards got a late start in what seemed to be a pitchers battle for five innings.

Final season averages:
Henry Harris (Cards)533
John Anderson (Yanks)528
Junior Young (Dodgers)511
T. Akers (Cards)510
Roger Dobart (Dodgers)491
B. Campbell (Cards)486
S. Bailey (Cards)488

WHAT'S YOUR ANSWER, DAD?
Every dad should answer these four questions for the benefit of his growing son:
(1) Does your boy know how to use firearms safely?
(2) Does he know how to fish and understand his joys and hazards?
(3) Can he identify the many forms of wildlife?
(4) Does he know what real conservation means?
If you answer "No" to any of these questions, learn what a BOYS OF WOODCRAFT SPORTSMEN'S CLUB for boys 8 to 16 years old can do for your son. He will have fun while receiving instruction in the safe use of firearms, fishing, fly and bassbug tying, accident prevention, first aid, the study of wildlife and conservation of natural resources.
From now until September 24 there's a special Davy Crockett Boys of Woodcraft membership campaign in full swing. Ask a representative listed below to tell you how your boy can enjoy these lifelong benefits together with safe, sound, legal reserve life insurance protection at a cost of only a few pennies a day.

The Kentucky Division of Publicity has distributed a new pamphlet entitled "The Lure of Fishing in Kentucky" which describes the fishing in all of the state's waters. It is a very attractive and informative 32-page publication. However, concerning Dewey Lake, we would like to take issue with one part of a statement describing the lake.
"If you want to get away from the crowds and just have some fun fishing—try Dewey!" (Unquote.) Any week-end, I would like to take the author of that statement to the lake and get his opinion as to the number on the water.

Industrial Development Need is Pointed Out

The need for industrial development in areas of under-employed rural people was recently pointed out by Under-Secretary of Agriculture, True D. Morse, when he cited the results of a survey in the South. He said that each additional 100 factory workers in a community brings 296 more people, 112 more households, 51 more school children, 174 more workers, 4 more retail stores, 107 more passenger cars, and adds annually $590,000 more personal income, $360,000 more retail sales and $270,000 more bank deposits.

Candidate Recovering From Self-Inflicted Wounds in Pike-co.

Pikeville, Ky., Aug. 9 — Bruce M. Evans, candidate for the State Senate, was reported in "good condition" today following an operation for wrist wounds authorities said were self-inflicted last Saturday.

Dr. M. D. Flannery reported he performed the operation to repair tendons in Evans' left wrist. The physician said Evans was expected to leave Methodist Hospital in "less than a week."

Sheriff Alex Blackburn said Evans, a 72-year-old retired railroad man and miner, slashed his wrists election day at his home at nearby Meta.

Dr. Flannery quoted Evans, "I don't know what happened, I just blacked out." The doctor said Evans had been in ill health and had been suffering from pains the past two weeks.

Evans, a Democrat, was seeking the nomination for senator from the 31st district, running against incumbent Dr. J. E. Johnson of South Williamson.

Unofficial tabulations from 53 of 99 precincts in the district gave Johnson 1,756 votes to 1,748 for Evans.

40 Questions and Answers On the POLIO VACCINE

(Information compiled by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.)

1. What assurance do we have that the Salk vaccine is safe?

Every possible assurance. The report given by Dr. Thomas Francis, Jr., last April showed that the vaccine used in the 1954 field trials neither caused polio nor other major reactions and was 60% to 80% effective in preventing paralysis due to polio. It was 60% to 70% effective for Type I virus, about 90% for Types II and III. There is reason to believe the Type I part of the vaccine will be more effective this year than last. New and more stringent tests for safety also now are required by the U. S. Public Health Service on every lot of vaccine released for use.

2. Isn't there a risk to vaccination?

There is some statistical risk to every immunizing procedure, to every major and minor operation, to the use of many drugs. The risk in polio vaccination is less than exists in many widely used vaccines and drugs. The benefits far outweigh any risk. So far as polio is concerned, the major risk in the future will be for a child to go through a polio season without protection of the kind vaccination can bestow.

3. How long does it take for the vaccine to protect?

Three injections are necessary for full protection. The first shot begins to take effect from seven to 10 days later; at that time, detectable antibodies are present in the blood stream. The second shot, two to four weeks after the first, brings a sharper rise in antibodies. With these two injections, a child should be protected against paralytic polio for the current polio season. Long-lasting immunization develops only after a third or booster shot seven months to a year later.

4. Can a vaccinated child become a polio carrier and spread the disease?

Yes, but not because he has been vaccinated. Anyone can become a carrier of the disease if the polio virus enters his system. Children who are themselves protected by antibodies induced by the vaccine may be infected by natural exposure to the polio virus and for a brief period excrete the virus, thus exposing their contacts to infection. The vaccine, while protecting those injected against paralysis, does not eliminate the possibility of subsequent infection. Only a very small percentage of those who carry the virus actually become sick from polio.

5. Can the vaccine CAUSE someone to become a carrier?

No. Inactivated virus, such as is used in the Salk vaccine, cannot multiply in the body and be excreted, which is how polio is spread.

6. How is the vaccine made?

The three known types of polio virus are grown on cells of monkey kidney tissues in flasks or bottles. The tissue culture fluids, containing the virus, are treated with formaldehyde to destroy the ability of the virus to cause disease. This treatment is called "inactivation." The virus, however, retains its ability to stimulate the human body to produce its own polio-fighting antibodies. The final vaccine consists of inactivated virus of the three types known to cause polio.

7. What is meant by "provocaction"?

It has been found that certain kinds of injections during the polio season have a slight tendency to provoke paralytic polio, with paralysis occurring in the arm injected IF THE INDIVIDUAL CONCERNED IS ALREADY INCUBATING THE DISEASE. The nature of this phenomenon is not wholly understood.

ICC DENIES SUSPENSION

Of Increased Rates On Coal Going North To Lower Lake Ports

Division 2 of the ICC declined recently to suspend increased rates on fine coal moving to lower Lake ports and other increases in the all-rail rates on fine and lump coal which were included in a package deal to take effect Aug. 1.

At the same time Division 2 did suspend all of the changes proposed by the railroads in the refund provisions with respect to coal moving ex-dock in the northwest by varying modes of transportation. This means that the refunds will now apply, as they have during the past year, to all coal moving ex-lake docks regardless of how such coal is transported.

This action of Division 2 followed an informal conference between protesting coal shippers, dock operators, and consumers and respondent railroads. At this conference J. F. Fishwick, general solicitor of the Norfolk and Western Railway, presented a statement in behalf of the eastern railroads. A statement on behalf of the western lines was presented by R. K. Merrill, assistant general solicitor of the Milwaukee Railroad. The producers, dock operators and consumers who had the previous day, Wednesday, met in Washington to correlate and consolidate their presentation, which was made.

This decision is most disappointing to the coal industry because it allows the railroads to increase freight rates on approximately 50 or 60 million tons of coal at a time when coal production is below the declared safety floor of 500 million tons annually, the National Coal Association pointed out. It should be equally as disappointing to the various committees and other executive and administrative bodies that have recently observed the need for lifting coal production to a higher level, and which have publicly stated that one of the impediments in lifting such production to a safety floor is the high level of rail freight rates applicable on bituminous coal.

Dr. Dickerson Speaks At Methodist Church; Dorsey, Pastor, Absent

Dr. Z. S. Dickerson, head of the Education Department, Alabama State College, Florence, Ala., was guest-speaker at the Methodist Church here Sunday night in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Harold W. Dorsey. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Z. S. Dickerson, Sr., of Prestonsburg.

Speaking on the subject, "How Should a Christian Live in Today's World," Dr. Dickerson pointed out that religion is not merely an individual matter. "The individual's relationship to God," he said, "is of primary importance, but God also has a plan for society as a whole. The life each Christian lives in his relationship to others plays a part in bringing about God's plan for the world."

Present society, with its emphasis on individual achievement and its struggle for prestige, overlooks the broader relationship of religion to society as a whole, he said. His talks also included those principles which underlie the Christian's thoughts and actions toward others in business, government, education and other areas of life.

Pikeville Woman Takes 34 Years To Complete 4 Years of High School

Pikeville, Ky., Aug. 8 (Spl.) — Even though it took her 34 years to get through high school, Mrs. Joe Hunt, Delbarton, W. Va., isn't discouraged.

She took 30 years of that time off to get married and raise a large family of eight children, the youngest of whom is now an 11-year-old sixth-grader.

Now a college freshman with almost a full summer's work behind her, Mrs. Hunt is starting on a four-year course which will lead to a high-school teacher's certificate. "I've wanted to go back to school ever since I left it," she says, "and then a few years ago I read in a newspaper column the advice that a middle-aged person should find a hobby, or return to school. So here I am."

The 49-year-old mother of three boys and five girls re-entered Burch, W. Va., high school, which she had left after her sophomore year, in 1953, and got her diploma there last May. She expects to finish a third of a year's work in the ten-week summer session at Pikeville Junior College, and enroll as an advanced freshman this fall.

STATE PUBLICITY DIVISION RECEIVES GRAPHIC AWARDS

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 8 (Spl.) — Kentucky's Division of Publicity has swept the field in receiving awards on printed promotional literature entered in competition for judging by the Southern Graphic Arts Association. Two first-place awards and a second-place award were extended to the three publications entered by the Kentucky promotional agency.

In Kentucky Travel Annual, a four-color, 40-page tourist promotion piece, was awarded the Highest Award of Merit by the Southern printers group as the outstanding printed area promotion piece. The Kentucky State Park Rate Book received the same award for top excellence among hotel, motel, and park rate books. In addition, the official Kentucky Tourist Map received the second place certificate in the maps classification.

The awards were announced at the 34th Annual Convention of the Southern Graphic Arts Association at Hot Springs, Arkansas. Framed copies of the award certificates were presented to Mack Sisk, director of the Division of Publicity. The awards were adjudged in recognition of general excellence of content, photography and art, layout and general appearance, and printing quality. All of the publications were lithographed by the Courier-Journal Lithographing Co.

In addition to Sisk, those receiving principal credit for production of the prize winning publications were: Marshall Peace, associate director, John Whisman, publications editor, and Ernest Giancola, artist, for the Division of Publicity.

Kentucky's Division of Publicity has received a number of national awards in the past two years in recognition of its promotional activities. Last year the division was cited by the National Association of Travel Organizations as having done the nation's outstanding job of area promotion.

DEPOSITS SINK WHILE LOANS

Rise in Section's Banks; Turner, of Paintsville, Compiles Annual Figures

Deposits in the 28 banks of the 16-county Eastern Kentucky area which formerly comprised Group 7 of the Kentucky Bankers Association have dropped within the last six months by $4,742,774.58, a composite statement compiled by J. Douglas Turner, executive vice-president of the First National Bank, Paintsville, shows. This was a decrease of 3.7% from the $128,-819,528.96 the banks had on deposit Dec. 31, last year.

The statement compiled by Turner compared bank figures as of June 30 this year with those of the last day of 1954.

While deposits dropped loans and discounts were as of June 30 up to $46,903,838.88, an increase of $2,-961,707.72 over the Dec. 31 1954 total.

The banks had cash on hand June 30 which totaled $23,411,689.50, which was a drop of $9,816,897.71 from the total six months earlier. In all other respects, however—in U. S. government securities, other investments and assets, surplus and reserves—the totals were up as of June 30.

The three Floyd county banks, these figures show, had a deposit decrease of only 1.1% while the biggest drop was in Elliott county where the loss in deposits was 14.6%. Floyd bank deposits last Dec. 31 stood at $12,968,218.59 as compared with $12,830,263 on June 30 this year.

Only two other counties among the 16 showed a lighter drop in deposits than Floyd. Pike had the lightest, only 5%, or $110,769.16. Knott county's loss was 9%, the Dec. 31, 1954 total there of $1,741,405.29 dropping by $15,393.57 at the close of business on June 30.

The only county showing a bank deposit gain was Greenup where the total stood June 30 at $5,335,-880.74, which was 4.4% over that of Dec. 31.

Deposits decreases in other counties of the area follow in dollars and also in percentages:

Boyd, $1,462,747.55, 3.7%; Breathitt, $334,878.91, 12.6%; Carter, $337,-801.05, 4.4%; Johnson, $435,106.56, 5.4%; Lawrence, $177,727.93, 5.2%; Leslie, $61,185.47, 5.4%; Letcher, $515,241.51, 8.3%; Magoffin, $134,-303.23, 7.4%; Martin, $86,828.09, 7.2%; Morgan, $461,275.77, 12.3%; Perry, $539,230.10, 6%.
