

This Town— That World

Some have expressed resentment that the U. S. Weather Bureau has given these hurricanes women's names. Wittless Winnie comes to the rescue, however, with the observation that it's nothing but fair to call the women hurricanes, because they call some of those dear men tycoons, don't they?

NO JOE DOAKESSES, PLEASE

The most fantastic idea I've run across in these stories of Outer Space and Other Worlds and such is not one which depicts those beings from other planets as little men with a single eye in the middle of the forehead, or whatever they use out there for foreheads, but as just plain humans. This suggests that the stranger who moved in next door may be an intruder from Mars and for reasons best known to himself is keeping his secret well. Probably biding his time till a sufficient number of his pals arrive and dig out a weird array of out-of-this-world weapons to take matters mundane into their own hands.

This is plumb fanciful, but no more so than the popular conception of Martians. Who knows? Who knows, indeed, that human (?) life exists there, anyhow? I, for one, don't take any stock in such theories, but that doesn't make the whole thing not so. I don't like to admit it, but my scientific knowledge has never caused savants of the world to beat a path to my door.

But, for the sake of a tingle up the spine, let's admit there is human life on Mars and the boys up there are as anxious to explore World as some of us are anxious to scale Everest or go calling at the Poles. Say they've got designs on us and have the ability to reach us and to make war.

Oh, boy! That might be the finest thing this old world has run up against in centuries. Just let Xybstro and his gang establish a beach-head, or whatever you call it, on Earth, and then you'll see all the nations of this planet getting shoulder-to-shoulder, buddies in common cause, forgetting all past differences and worrying none at all about future spat while they're busy repelling this new enemy.

But to get back to the physical appearance of those Others. Please let's not have them look like Joe Doakes down the street. He's just a common, ordinary guy who sits around the house in his sock feet and gripes when his wife runs the vacuum cleaner near his footies and asks him to do her the honor of elevating them for just

LEWIS PULLS SQUEEZE-PLAY ON MINE PAY

Signs Northern Field To $2-a-Day Pay Raise; Area's Coal Men Parley

Southern coal operators were caught in another clever squeeze-play executed by John L. Lewis, chief of the United Mine Workers last week when he negotiated a $2-a-day wage boost from Northern operators, and now as they debate whether they will agree to the raise they have no other alternative but accept.

Operators of this section are concerned about what the increase will do to their business which yet is on tottery legs after a "sick spell" from which it is convalescing. Some fear the higher wages will force higher prices for coal which already is sorely beset by oil and natural gas, and the most pessimistic see another slump in business.

Lewis signed a new one-year contract Saturday with Harry M. Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators Assn. The Moses group represents northern commercial and "captive" mines owned by the steel industry. They employ about 125,000 of the industry's nearly 200,000 miners.

Lewis said he expects Joseph E. Moody, president of the Southern Coal Operators Assn., as well as mine owners in Illinois and in western states, to troop into union headquarters and sign on the same terms.

Moody refused to comment in advance of meeting of the Southern Association's executive committee and of the group's board of directors.

TALLY SHEETS CHECK FRAUD

Election Book Totals In 10 Voting Precincts Changed, Clerk Reports

County Clerk DuRan Moore told The Times this week that whoever made changes on the election commissioners' book containing the tabulated vote of the recent primary election failed to achieve anything, because two tally sheets signed by the election commissioners for each of the county's 60 precincts and bearing the correct returns had been kept by him under lock and key.

Insertion of a figure 1 in front of the correct vote for Mitchell Fannin, of Whitley City, in the State Auditor's race was discovered by the Clerk after his return here from a business trip to Louisville and Huntington, W. Va. Some of the figures added were in ink of a shade different to that used by Mrs. Moore in recording the count as originally made and verified by the commissioners.

Mr. Moore said the purpose behind the vote alteration could have been (1) to add to the vote total of Fannin, a native of Floyd county who lost to Mary Louise Foust, of Louisville, by a comparatively slim margin; or (2) the change could have been made in an effort to embarrass the Clerk.

"Whoever it was," said the Clerk, "they forgot that we had the tally sheets signed by the Commissioners locked up and that only Mrs. Moore and I had the keys. The Sheriff also may have had the third tally sheet. Now, if they could have changed the sheets I had locked up they

Groups Plan Founding Of Youth, Civic Center

First of a series of meetings to consider a plan for the founding in Prestonsburg of a youth and civic center was held Tuesday evening at the Municipal building.

Members of the City Council, Mayor Harry Sandige and representatives of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club attended the first meeting. The Kiwanis Club will consider the plan at its meeting tonight (Thursday), and other groups are expected to study it during the week.

The plan includes an offer by John Allen and Byron Nunnery to sell to the local organization the Harkins building on Arnold Avenue which they purchased recently. The structure was offered for $28,000, with a down payment of $8,000 and the remainder payable over a period of five years at 4% interest.

Pledges of $4,750 had been made up till 4 p.m. Wednesday. City Council members indicated they favored an appropriation of $600 a year over a five-year period toward paying.

Groups interested in the acquiring the property envisioned a youth center under supervision, a meeting place for civic clubs and possibly the founding of a library in the home, one of the largest in the valley. It has a full basement, nine large rooms on the second floor, and the first floor with its large hallway and sliding doors offers space for gatherings of up to an estimated 150 persons at one time.

Court Votes Bi-monthly Meets For September; Clerk's Salary Raised

The Floyd fiscal court voted at its meeting last week to hold only two meetings monthly, beginning with next month. The court will meet only on the second and fourth Thursdays hereafter, the order specified.

Salary of Mrs. Lillie H. Parker as clerk in the County Judge's office was increased from $250 to $300 a month.

Main business of the meeting was the paying of claims. New claims approved were paid in full, but those held over from last year and representing indebtedness contracted in 1953 or before July 31, 1954 were paid only in part. The average payment on these was about 11% of the total due.

FLOOD APPEAL SOUNDED HERE

Local Red Cross Unit Seeks Donations To Aid 6-State Disaster Area

Floyd county has been asked to aid in the rehabilitation of the six-state flood disaster by contributing to the Red Cross, Ella Noel White, executive secretary of Floyd Red Cross Chapter, announced this week. President Eisenhower appealed Tuesday to the nation to respond to the call for Red Cross emergency funds and described the disaster in England, New York and Pennsylvania as "a terrible thing."

More than 260 trained Red Cross workers have rushed to the east and northeast flood areas to assist in meeting emergency needs and preparing for the major rehabilitation which will follow.

At this time the American Red Cross is operating 107 shelters, housing and feeding 12,000 homeless and providing clothing to everyone who needs it. More than 400 nurses and 150 physicians have volunteered for service in areas where headquarters are operating around the clock.

It was indicated this week that 8,000 families will register for Red Cross assistance and that there is great property damage in the disaster area. On the basis of preliminary figures, it is estimated that Red Cross relief will reach or exceed five million dollars.

This disaster is well likened to the 1937 emergency when the Red Cross rendered such timely aid in this area. Address your donation to Red Cross, Prestonsburg, Ky.

FARMERS GET FEDERAL AID

Federal Cost-Sharing On Conservation Program Amounts to 1/2 Million

Notice of Federal assistance has been extended to approximately 45,000 Kentucky farms participating in the Agricultural Conservation program since January 1, 1955. Roy C. Gray, Chairman of the State ASC Committee, stated recently. Cost-shares granted by the Federal government amounts to an average of 50 per cent of the cost of soil and water conservation measures.

The assistance made available in this voluntary program are for measures designed to obtain the greatest amount of conservation and which would not be carried out to the needed extent without the benefit of the cost-sharing program.

Kentucky's share of Federal funds appropriated for carrying out soil and water projects under the ACP totals seven and one-half million dollars. This appropriation includes approximately $800,000 for technical assistance that may be made available to farmers in carrying out earth moving practices, including reservoirs, drainage systems, diversions and terraces. Better than three million dollars remain in the budgeted program funds for all counties. These funds may be used for approval of soil and water conservation measures to be completed by the end of the 1955 ACP program year, December 31, 1955.

Emphasis is now being placed by many ASC County committees on encouraging farmers to sow cover crops for winter protection according to reports received, Mr. Gray said. Limited cost-sharing assistance is being made available wherever necessary to obtain the desired cover.

Workers for Retarded Children Not Dismayed by Problems

Beset by plugging handicaps and discouragements, a small group of Floyd countians, mostly women, are getting the thrill of their lives out of a work they started a few months ago.

They are working at a job new to them and new to this part of Kentucky. So it is that they have the true pioneer spirit as they do things never done before for children for whom little or nothing was ever before done.

They are getting their reward out of the unfolding of blighted young lives through this work. Often the results are barely visible, but they are there and are apparent though they sometimes are infinitesimally small. The work of this group is with youngsters who are handicapped through no fault of their own, who until this very year were the forgotten people. Nothing had been done before for them, nothing was expected of them or for them.

This group is the Floyd County Council for Retarded Children. The class organized for the training of retarded youngsters is now in its third month of work at Martin. The children taught there come from all types of homes, from varying strata of society. Nature plays no favorites when her whims take a cruel turn.

It all began last year with the interest of the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Martin, of Martin, in retarded children. Soon the help of others was enlisted, notably that of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Mandt, of Mantion. Around the first of the year Mr. Mandt as president of the Floyd Council for Retarded Children received from the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times and Radio Station WHAS a grant of $2,000. That put the Council in business.

With enough money for present needs, the Council faced other problems. There was the matter of a trained teacher. But that obstacle was happily met and overcome when Mrs. Joe Begley, of Boldman, who had specialized in psychology and related subjects was employed. Members of the Council are as enthusiastic about the teacher as they are about her pupils. "Wonderful" is the word they used in describing her and her little group. Then there was the matter of determining what child could be benefitted by attending the classes and which could not. Again fortune smiled on the Council. Dr. H. H. Leet, well-known Lexington, Ky., psychiatrist, was contacted. He would come to Martin. His first trip there was mostly in the nature of an experiment. He has been returning there monthly ever since—five times, to date.

The women aren't hauling out a familiar bromide when they used that word, "wonderful," in speaking of Dr. Leet. They mean it. For the man has never charged one cent for his services. Besides that, he flies his own plane to Pikeville "on his day off," from there drives to Martin, works a hard day examining new pupil-prospects, treating old ones. This is another labor of love with which the group is familiar.

A room in the Martin school was available during school vacation for the class. The teacher and psychiatrist were at hand. But there was the matter of transportation, and therein lay the toughest problem the Council faced. It remains a tough one, although County Superintendent Virgil O. Turner has pledged his cooperation toward making school bus transportation possible.

Homes of these children are located in a sprawling area extending all the way to D'wale, near Allen, to Martin, up Left Beaver Creek to Wheelwright and up Right Beaver to Garrett. Appeals for help from individual auto-owners haven't been too successful, and so in these first few months the job of driving the children to and from classes has fallen on a very few. Not for a few days only but day after day, week after week.

These few have kept the children in classes by going to their homes for them, of mornings, and returning them home at noon.

Now that school bus help is in sight, the problem of weather, distance from the bus route, the early morning hour at which some of the buses run—all these must be considered. "We're not worried about getting them home if the school bus can get them here," Mrs. Mandt told Superintendent Turner at a recent Council meeting.

The county school system expects

School Opening Here Delayed But Registration Set Aug. 30

Beginning of classwork in the new Floyd County high school here will be delayed a week to 10 days while important features of the big structure are being completed, Otis D. Spurlock, principal, said Wednesday.

Registration of students, however, will go ahead as originally planned next Tuesday morning, simultaneously with the opening of other high schools in the county school system. Freshmen will begin registration at 8:25 a.m., Tuesday, with the sophomores, junior and senior classes registering on the following day, beginning at the same hour.

Their registration completed, pupils of the school will await the announcement of the date for beginning classwork.

It is important that all who plan attending the school register on these two days, Mr. Spurlock said. Classes will be set up according to the two-day registration.

Work remaining to be done in the building is mainly the completion of the Science room and the lunchroom. Library equipment also remains to be installed.

The school principal said the date for open house, when the public will be invited to inspect the huge new school plant here, also will be announced soon.

County Superintendent Virgil O. Turner said formal dedication of the building is planned for this fall.

Vacation will end next week for the last of the 14,000-odd school children of the county as classroom work will be resumed throughout the county except in the new county high school here. The rural schools began their 1955-56 term last month.

Monday, the first day of the consolidated school term, will be devoted to a meeting of teachers at Martin high school, beginning at 8:50 a.m. Registration of pupils and organization of classes will be the next day's business.

Speakers at the teachers' meeting will include J. Mansir Tydings, director of the Division of Moral and

MINING FIRM SAYS RIGHTS ARE INVADED

Elk Horn Claims Deeds For Coal Mineral Gave It Rights-of-Way Title

If the permanent injunction asked by the Elk Horn Coal Corporation in a suit filed in circuit court here Tuesday against Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company and the Ranier Construction Company is successful, work on the laying of a pipe line to pull Virginia gas to the proposed hydro-carbon plant of the gas firm at Maytown may be delayed if not blocked.

Although a temporary injunction is asked first of all, notice had not been filed on the gas company Wednesday morning, and the case may not be brought before Circuit Judge Hill for several days yet. The coal company also asks of the court permission to reserve the right to sue the two defendant firms for damages.

Gas company officials expressed no surprise when told by The Times of the action. The suit is the first of its kind filed here.

It claims all rights-of-way, including those for pipe lines, were granted in deeds from landowners when they conveyed their coal and all other mineral rights except oil and gas. This contention, if upheld, would render ineffective the purchase of rights-of-way for the pipeline from the landowners whose mineral rights had been previously sold, and would force the gas com-

POLIO STRIKES FLOYD CHILD

West Prestonsburg Girl, 4-Yr.-Old Billie Jo Conn, Is First Case of Summer

Four-year-old Billie Jo Conn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Conn, of West Prestonsburg, is Floyd county's first confirmed polio case of the summer.

The tot, paralyzed in both legs, has been taken to Morris Memorial hospital, Milton, W. Va., for treatment at the expense of the Floyd County Chapter, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. She had not received the Salk vaccine.

M. V. Clark, health administrator, Floyd County Health Department, said the department has on hand a supply of Salk vaccine more than adequate to meet the present demand for second-round polio vaccine shots. The vaccine has been offered at a series of pre-school clinics conducted by the department, but there were few takers.

The second shots will be administered when as many as eight children are ready to receive it at the same time. This number is necessary to prevent waste of serum, it was explained.

Spiritual Values, State Department of Education, and N. B. McMillan, director of Research and Public Relations, Kentucky Education Association.

Other speakers will be County Superintendent V. O. Turner and M. V. Clark, Floyd county health administrator. Mr. Clark will discuss the new immunization program spearheaded by health departments.

Two films, one dealing with the Minimum Foundation Program and the other with Floyd county schools, will be shown by Miss Blanche Dingus, health coordinator for the Floyd County Board of Education.

Teachers have been instructed to bring writing materials to the meeting so that information can be noted on personnel sheets, state and federal income tax forms and other forms.

Group singing at the meeting will be led by Jesse Elliott, county school music director, and the devotional will be conducted by the Rev. Ira McMillen, Jr., pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here.

improvement and protection is another conservation measure for which assistance has been requested by many farmers.

Measures to encourage the development of sources of livestock water to obtain better grassland management are included in practices to be completed this fall for cost-sharing under the ACP. Such developments include construction of ponds, wells, developing springs or installing pipelines. Construction of drainage systems to dispose of excess water, including open ditches or tile drainage systems, are offered for cost-sharing. Improvement of established woodland stands in a practice for which many requests are also being made, Mr. Carey said.

Farmer that have a conservation need on their farms may apply at the county ASC office for cost-sharing assistance. Although the initial sign-up period ended on July 30 for taking of farmers requests, an opportunity is offered at any time for a farmer to request aid and to make known to his ASC Committee the conservation measures which he plans to carry out.

"No-Accident Month" Proclaimed by Governor; Mine Bureau Endorses

In a continuing effort to reduce the toll of injuries and deaths due to accidents a "September No Accident Month" campaign will this year be conducted for the fifth time in the tri-state mining areas of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia.

Originated by the safety engineering department of the Bituminous Casualty Corporation in 1951, the campaign has been endorsed and supported by the mining department of the three states, other insurance underwriters in the coal industry, educators, law enforcement officers and state officials.

Governor Lawrence W. Wetherby of Kentucky has officially designated September as No-Accident Month.

A. D. Sisk, chief of the Department of Mines and Minerals of Kentucky, is the coordinating chairman of the campaign, which also is endorsed by the U. S. Bureau of Mines and the United Mine Workers of America. In addition to the Bituminous Casualty Corporation, the Coal Operators Casualty Company and the Eureka Casualty Company support the program by furnishing posters, literature and other educational material.

"Think safety and save lives" is the theme of the 1955 campaign, and special emphasis is being given to the importance of keeping the rules of safety constantly in mind. Citizens of the tri-state area are urged to "think safety" at work, at home, on the highways and at play.

Give a Little To Honor One Who Has Given Much

As social events go, that linen shower slated to be held Saturday afternoon at the Clear Creek school at Hi Hat will be no dazzling event, but its importance is such that it deserves the attention of every Floyd county resident.

For this is to benefit the Caney Creek Community Center at Pippa Passes, Knott county, the school that has over the last 39 years benefitted thousands of young people in Floyd and surrounding counties. A committee of Caney alumni says bed linens, towels and dish towels are badly needed.

We are convinced the need for these items exists, but even if there were no great need the gesture represented by this giving of gifts to the school by the people it serves should be made. It is the least we can do.

These gifts should be made to help some boy or girl toward an education,
and, even more than that,
to express our appreciation to Mrs. Alice Lloyd for her years of sacrifice, work and devotion on behalf of the youth of this section.

Mrs. Lloyd has grown old at Caney Creek. Nobody forced her to go there, and she doubtless has been happier in her great, unselfish service there than she would have been in any other work at any other place in the world. Yet the people of Eastern Kentucky owe her a debt that, try as they may at this late date, they will never fully pay.

It isn't necessary to make a trip to the Clear Creek school to do your part. You can mail your gifts or send them by a friend who is attending the shower.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

5. It was said by the county 4-H Club Council.

The 4-H Club Council only this week completed two roadside "welcome" signs and erected one near Harold and the other at Maytown.
Two more are to be erected soon, it was said. These two will welcome motorists from Magoffin and Johnson counties. The signs erected were built by the students of the Mayo Vocational School and Russell May,
of the May Sign Service, lettered them without charge.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Two thousand western ewes and two carloads of ewe lambs, have been added to flocks in Boyle county.

Wildfire disease was introduced to several farms in Breathitt county when tobacco plants are bought.
Herd owners in Ballard county will take part in district feeder-calf sale in October.

These are only two of the 10
children who at one time or another
have been in class. All are human beings who are no longer forgotten
by all except their own families. All are finding that they're loved, and they're thriving under the treatment.

"Much better behaved children
than normal youngsters," say those who have worked with them this summer. "They need our help, and
we need the help of other people
in this work, particularly the help women can give."

The class for retarded children is
for all the county, and only those problems such as transportation, together with a reluctance on the part of some parents to enter their children for training, are holding
the number of pupils as low as it is.

Under present Kentucky school
law, Superintendent Turner explains,
funds are not available to care for
these handicapped children, although they are included in the school census and per capita funds are collected on each of them. All present law provides for is a school
with a teacher or teachers to be available to all. But the retarded need special care and attention, so
the ordinary schoolroom benefits
them none.

If and when the Minimum Foundation Program is implemented,
special teachers, transportation
equipment—all these will be supplied the retarded, he explained.

Martha Bell was in the woods hunting some herbs on the day set for hearing Booker's complaint;
and he won an uncontested decree of divorce.

A Pike County Court officer expressed it as his opinion that the Wright vs Wright involved the older person (Booker) ever to be a party to a divorce case in the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

And a mind to sue Booker had.
He sued in court, praying a decree of divorce, charging stark and inhuman treatment on the part of Martha Belle (that's Mrs. Wright's first name) because she has been going off to the woods to hunt for herbs, leaving him to sit alone and lonesome all the day long.

"Hain't a bit use of her doing like she does," declared Booker. "I fit in the Spanish-American war, to afford help otherwise. Four special seats will be made available.

Lunch for a few youngsters may be supplied. Mrs. Begley may continue as special instructor for the retarded, working at Martin half of the day, then driving to Betsy Layne
or some other point to teach in the high school remainder of the day.

So intense has this teacher's interest in the retarded children been
that she learned to drive an automobile only this year, so that she could make the trip to Martin and
return home without herself being faced by transportation difficulties.
En route to Martin, she picks up
some of her pupils. This summer
she did special work at the University of Kentucky to equip herself
for even more effective service to
the retarded.

Mrs. Begley is a high school teacher, and her services in this department are much in demand.
That in itself presents a problem,
for it will be necessary for a schedule to be worked out whereby she
can teach the retarded half a day,
then go to high school for the remainder of the day to work with algebra students. If this cannot be arranged, Mrs. Forrest Johnson, Allen elementary teacher who did excellent work with the retarded as
a substitute teacher for three weeks,
may be the special teacher.

With transportation still uncertain, another problem presents itself.
This is a classroom. The Martin school is crowded. A classroom must be found elsewhere. But the Council has seen so many difficulties surmounted, somehow, that its members feel a room will be made available somewhere in Martin at the geographical center of the county.

If you wonder why these people
are bothering to see that children
they never knew anything about a few months ago get this "break"
in life, and why they are troubling themselves about what they will be able to do in the months to come for other children whose need is as great as these who already have been reached, you might find the answer by attending a meeting of the Council—or, better yet, by visiting the classroom and seeing the youngsters and their teacher at work.

"If the people of Floyd county
will only visit the children and see them at play together and learning things they need to know, I know we'll not have to worry any more about transportation or a room for classes or anything," said
one leader in the work.

What has been achieved this year
besides getting youngsters examined
by a psychiatrist and taken to school and back home again? Hear the teacher in a quiet voice that bells the enthusiasm she has for
her job tell of a few of her pupils.

There was a 17-year-old boy who was brought to Dr. Leet's clinic.
That day Dr. Leet learned that, although the boy was considered blind, he could discern fingers before one eye, a hand waving in front of the other. He clung to the woman who accompanied him when the doctor sought to examine him. He was a frightened, cowed creature
who did not talk and to all appearances could not see. But patience, understanding and the psychiatrist's skill opened a whole
new world to the youngster. Dr.
Leet found, first of all, that the boy's impaired vision was due in large part to an emotional disturbance, and that he could be taught.
Now the boy stands erect, can recognize and write 21 words, plays ball quite well with other youngsters and literally talks "a blue streak."

Then there was the girl of 14 who,
Mrs. Begley says, "is so anxious to learn," and cries when she misses a day at school. She has learned to crochet well in the few weeks of classes.

These are only two of the 10
children who at one time or another
have been in class. All are human beings who are no longer forgotten
are finding that they're loved, and
ment.

seats will be made available.
Lunch for a few youngsters may be supplied. Mrs. Begley may continue
as special instructor for the retarded, working at Martin half of
the day, then driving to Betsy Layne
or some other point to teach in the high school remainder of the day.

So intense has this teacher's interest in the retarded children been
that she learned to drive an automobile only this year, so that she
could make the trip to Martin and
return home without herself being
faced by transportation difficulties.
En route to Martin, she picks up
some of her pupils. This summer
she did special work at the University of Kentucky to equip herself
for even more effective service to
the retarded.

Mrs. Begley is a high school teacher, and her services in this department are much in demand.
That in itself presents a problem,
for it will be necessary for a schedule to be worked out whereby she
can teach the retarded half a day,
then go to high school for the remainder of the day to work with algebra students. If this cannot be arranged, Mrs. Forrest Johnson,
Allen elementary teacher who did
excellent work with the retarded as
a substitute teacher for three weeks,
may be the special teacher.

With transportation still uncertain, another problem presents itself.
This is a classroom. The Martin school is crowded. A classroom must
be found elsewhere. But the Council has seen so many difficulties sur-
mounted, somehow, that its members feel a room will be made available somewhere in Martin at the
geographical center of the county.

If you wonder why these people
are bothering to see that children
they never knew anything about a
few months ago get this "break"
in life, and why they are troubling
themselves about what they will be able to do in the months to come for
other children whose need is as
great as these who already have
been reached, you might find the
answer by attending a meeting of
the Council—or, better yet, by visiting the classroom and seeing the
youngsters and their teacher at
work.

"If the people of Floyd county
will only visit the children and see
them at play together and learning things they need to know, I
know we'll not have to worry any
more about transportation or a
room for classes or anything," said
one leader in the work.

What has been achieved this year
besides getting youngsters examined
by a psychiatrist and taken to
school and back home again? Hear
the teacher in a quiet voice that
bells the enthusiasm she has for
her job tell of a few of her pupils.

There was a 17-year-old boy who
was brought to Dr. Leet's clinic.
That day Dr. Leet learned that, although the boy was considered
blind, he could discern fingers before one eye, a hand waving in front of the other. He clung to the woman who accompanied him when the doctor sought to examine him. He was a frightened, cowed creature
who did not talk and to all appearances could not see. But patience, understanding and the
psychiatrist's skill opened a whole
new world to the youngster. Dr.
Leet found, first of all, that the
boy's impaired vision was due in
large part to an emotional disturbance, and that he could be taught.
Now the boy stands erect, can recognize and write 21 words, plays
ball quite well with other youngsters and literally talks "a blue
streak."

Then there was the girl of 14 who,
Mrs. Begley says, "is so anxious
to learn," and cries when she misses a day at school. She has learned to crochet well in the few weeks of
classes.

These are only two of the 10
children who at one time or another
have been in class. All are human beings who are no longer forgotten
are finding that they're loved, and
ment.

"Much better behaved children
than normal youngsters," say those
who have worked with them this summer. "They need our help, and
we need the help of other people
in this work, particularly the help
women can give."

The class for retarded children is
for all the county, and only those
problems such as transportation, together with a reluctance on the part of some parents to enter their
children for training, are holding
the number of pupils as low as it is.

Under present Kentucky school
law, Superintendent Turner explains,
funds are not available to care for
these handicapped children, although they are included in the
school census and per capita funds
are collected on each of them. All present law provides for is a school
with a teacher or teachers to be available to all. But the retarded
need special care and attention, so
the ordinary schoolroom benefits
them none.

If and when the Minimum Foundation Program is implemented,
special teachers, transportation
equipment—all these will be supplied the retarded, he explained.

SATURDAY EVENING POST ARTICLE TELLS HOW STATE BUILT HALF-MILLION DOLLAR TOURIST BUSINESS IN PERIOD OF 7 YEARS

How Kentucky has built up a $5,000,000 a year tourist business, second only to tobacco as an income producer for the state, is told in a full-length feature article in this week's issue of The Saturday Evening Post.

The article, written by Falcon O. Baker and entitled, "Kentucky Strikes It Rich," relates that the Bluegrass States' great boom in tourism has come about within the past seven years since she began pouring investments into recreation facilities for the state parks.

Chief credit for the tourist bonanza is given to Henry Ward, the state commissioner of conservation, and to ex-Governor, now U. S. Senator, Earle Clements, and the present Governor, Lawrence Wetherby.

At the time Kentucky began to invest in recreation facilities, the article points out, the state parks attracted fewer than 500,000 visitors annually. A million came in 1949, and by 1950 there were 2,000,000. Last year around 4,000,000 visitors were entertained.

The Post writer explains that when Clements became governor he appointed Ward commissioner of conservation and gave him a free hand to develop the state parks. The parks program has mushroomed until today Kentucky operates more park cottages and cabins than any other state except New York.

The post article is illustrated with seven full-color photographs showing Kentuckians and visitors from far and wide enjoying the state's recreation facilities.

Circus Wagon Kills Boy Who Was Hero

SUPERIOR, Wis., Aug. 15 — A 12-year-old Superior boy was killed today when he was struck by a truck-drawn circus wagon, apparently as he tried to rescue another boy in danger of the same thing.

David Coon, whose arms were crushed by the wheels of the wagon, died at a hospital shortly after the accident.

A witness, Mrs. Stella Sickler, said that a group of boys tried to jump on the wagon as it rounded a corner, and eight-year-old James Laga apparently was caught somehow on the vehicle.

David then pushed him to safety, but fell under the wheels himself.

Officers of the family organization were elected for the ensuing year.

There was speculation that some of the southern mine owners might balk and refuse to sign, even quitting their association if the major southern operators decide to accept the Moses-negotiated contract terms.

Several times in the past Lewis and Moses have gotten together and written a new contract and southern owners have reluctantly gone along.

The coal industry has been going through an unprofitable period for several years, but greater fuel and energy demands in 1955 have improved the coal business somewhat.

Lewis said he will give the rest of the coal industry until Sept. 1 to accept the new contract voluntarily. After that time, he said, he will take steps aimed at compelling ratification.

The Lewis-Moses terms call for a $2 per day pay boost in two stages. Miners' basic daily wage has been $18.25. Under the new agreement the hourly rate is to be increased 15 cents on Sept. 1 and another 10 cents next April 1. This will bring the daily rate to $20.25.

The agreement also calls for time and a half pay for Saturday work and double time for Sunday work, but few miners normally work on these days.

The annual vacation period has also been increased. Miners have been having five work days off per year, in addition to the July 4 holiday. Now they will get eight work days off, and $140 in vacation pay. The vacation next year will start June 28 and run through July 9.

KENTUCKY HAS SMALL FRUIT

Production, New Survey Shows; Farmers' Income Dominated by Tobacco

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 25 — Commercial fruit production in Kentucky—mainly apples and peaches—constitutes less than one-half of one per cent of the total cash receipts by Kentucky farmers, a special fruit production and marketing survey completed under auspices of the Federal and State Departments of Agriculture disclosed today.

"The cash farm income pattern is dominated by tobacco, which usually constitutes some 40 per cent of the total income," according to the report.

The report—compiled by the Agricultural Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Division of Markets of the State Department—pointed out that Kentucky orchards produced $933,000 worth of apples for the year and $912,000 worth of peaches. Sales, however, on the market were $762,000 for apples, and $552,000 for peaches.

Commercial production of apples is concentrated in areas near Paducah, Henderson, Bedford, Covington and Louisville.

Areas of concentration are those from which buyers may obtain supplies in season, and out of which growers may transport their surplus production, the report added.

"Owners of commercial orchards in Kentucky are faced with complex problems," the report continued. "Much of apple and peach acreage is near large cities and large industrial developments. Labor for harvesting is seasonal.

"Better care of existing orchards; co-ordinated, more efficient marketing are factors that could help fruit producers who now own orchards. But there is little indication from results of this survey that strictly commercial apple and peach production will expand greatly in Kentucky during the next few years."

On the contrary, the report noted that the last agricultural census noted a declining number of fruit trees.

It has been pointed out, however, that all gas companies laying pipe lines have heretofore bought rights-of-way from the landowners and that a court ruling reversing this procedure would involve highways and many other types of construction where such easements were required.

Elk Horn's complaint, filed by the Prestonsburg law firm of Howard & Francis, claims that according to the laws and usage of the state of Kentucky as interpreted by the Court of Appeals, the provisions of mineral deeds divested the grantors, their heirs and assigns of any further right to grant such rights-of-way to other persons, and that these deeds vested in the coal company exclusive rights-of-way for all railroads, tram roads, pipe lines and similar enterprises.

Kentucky West Virginia's contract with the Clinchfield Coal Corporation, of Virginia, calls for Clinchfield to supply 12,750,000 cubic feet of gas a day, and Ranier is the contractor building the Kentucky sector of the line to convey the gas to the Maytown plant. Elk Horn's suit specifically mentions six tracts of land, the mineral under which it owns and which have been or will be traversed by the pipeline. According to a map filed as an exhibit with the suit, there are in all about 30 Floyd tracts involved. The tracts mentioned as affected by the line and the acreage of each follows:

S. S. May, et al, 99.17 acres; J. W. Webb, et al, 100.65 acres; J. B. Patton, et al, two tracts of 29.2 and 27.5 acres; Samuel Click, et al, 18.2 acres; J. B. Hays, 225 acres.

Elk Horn contends that the existence and use of the pipe line would be an unlawful infringement upon its properties and hostile to its rights; would prevent and render it impossible for Elk Horn to exercise its rights to mine and remove coal and other mineral underlying and in the vicinity of the pipeline for the reason, among others, that the presence and use of the pipeline will constitute a dangerous hazard to the prosecution of mining operations under regulations established by the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, and that Elk Horn as a result would lose vast quantities of coal and other minerals.

Lockwood Beats Retirement, Takes New Job With Virginia Corporation

The Lockwood, veteran Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company employe, has beat Father Time and retirement by transferring to work with another company where he can continue work past the age when workers normally retire to the rocking chair and a pleasant shade. With the company here he was within 22 months of retirement.

Mr. Lockwood and family moved this week to Dante, Va., where he began work Aug. 1 as superintendent of gas production for the Clinchfield Coal Corporation. The firm, owner of huge coal and gas holdings in Virginia, entered into a contract a few months ago to supply the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company a big gas volume for use in the $9,000,000 hydro-carbon recovery plant to be built by Kentucky West Virginia near Maytown. Pipelines to link that field with the plant are now under construction.

An employe of Kentucky West Virginia and its predecessors for 32 years, Lockwood was supervisor of maintenance at the time of his resignation here. He and his family came here from Louisiana and had resided in Prestonsburg the last 15 years.

WHAT ABOUT A TURBAN?

There isn't much fun and no relaxation whatsoever, as many my age will agree, in taking a couple of youngsters to the city with less than two days to see everything they want to see. Especially if you haven't been given proper warning and gone through several weeks of conditioning the old legs. I'll take my Zoo Parade on television if you don't mind.

But there are rare moments with a boy, all bug-eyed and rarin' to go, on a trip such as this. En route, our youngster wanted to know what they had at the zoo. Camels and lions and tigers and hippopotamuses and rhinoceroses? Yes, he was told.

"Snakes?"

"Yes."

"Any cobras?"

"Yes."

That did it. He was disgusted. "Mom, why didn't you tell me last night? I didn't bring my hute!"

The total vote compiled by Fanning this county was not altered on the record book, and Moore certified this correct total to Miss Foust when she came here last Friday.

Precincts in which the returns were altered 100 votes each by placing a 1 in front of the correct figure were Depot, Antioch, John Ant Garrett, Cliff, Maytown, New Martin, Rock Fork, Richmond and Gayheart.

The Clerk said that when he and Mrs. Moore left to be gone for a few days he instructed girls working in the office to keep an eye on persons inspecting the vote tabulation but that it was impossible for them to do this all the time.

Third Row—Mrs. Marie Mullins, Garrett; Mrs. Virginia Rice, Morehead Training School; Mrs. Esther Cummings, Wheelwright; Nancy Sue Dingus, Betty Layne; Dixie Trapp, Salysville; Alice Harris, Prestonsburg.

The state conference of home economics teachers was held at the Future Farmers of America Leadership Training Center in Hardinsburg, Ky., August 8-12.

Mrs. Jessie Newell, supervising teacher, Jacksonville, Ala., State Teachers College, opened the conference, speaking on "Our American Family". She said the home will always remain the school of all schools and the parents will always be the most important teachers.

"The influence may be good or it may not be so good, but the influence is there," she said. She also said young people are marrying in greater numbers and at a younger age than ever before.

An encouraging sign concerning the recreation of the family, Mrs. Newell said, is that in the modern home there is a tendency to emphasize recreational facilities as provision is made for recreational space in-doors and out-doors.

Another trend is the modern house, Mrs. Newell said the trend is away from the laboratory-type kitchen to the one with enough space for family living as well as efficient work.

Mrs. Francis Goldsmith, head of home economics department of the University of Louisville spoke on "Apparel Arts and The Home Economics Teacher in 1955."

"The teacher, she said should know good current design, silhouette, color and fabric, and be able to assemble from current market costumes which are esthetically satisfying, that fit her own figure problems and her own pocketbook."

The teachers spent some of their conference time in general sessions and group work and in making plans to adapt the "New Curriculum Guide for Home Economics In The Schools of Kentucky" to meet the needs in their home making department.

Floyd county home economics teachers attending the state convention were Ruby Akers, McDowell, Mrs. Esther Cummings, Wheelwright, Nancy Sue Dingus, Betsy Layne, Alice Harris, Prestonsburg and Mrs. Marie Mullins, Garrett.

Members of 17 homemakers clubs in Nelson county have helped 1,439 non-club members with information learned in their clubs.

Young Kentuckians Still Moving Away UK Economist Says

Kentuckians still tend to export their children to other parts of the nation where they help create higher per capita incomes for those states, according to a University of Kentucky business research specialist.

Dr. Johnson, assistant professor of economics at the University, says that many young Kentuckians move to industrial centers where they are paid higher wages than they could receive in Kentucky, and "then when they get out of work they come back home."

He also notes that a smaller percentage of people are employed in Kentucky than in most of the other states, and that "our average wages are lower but we are closing this gap in Kentucky."

One way the situation in Kentucky might be improved, Dr. Johnson believes, is to provide more jobs for women in industry. Kentucky is far below the national average for employment of women who want to work.

Dr. Johnson discussed the state's economic problems at the Kentucky Workshop in Education, held recently at UK.

Kansas Debt-Free First Time In 32 Years

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 13 — For the first time in 32 years, the State of Kansas became debt-free on July 1.

On that date, the state finished paying off the last of its World War I veterans' bonus bonds. Final payment was $259,375, the last quarter-million bond retirement plus interest.

In all, the $31,650,000 in bonds cost the people of the Sunflower State $21,839,813 in interest, because the bonds were issued under a statutory provision that only a million of them could be retired annually.

Kansas Legislatures in the past few years have defeated all attempts to provide bonuses for Kansans in military service during World War II and the Korean conflict.

"KENTUCKY DAY"

Over 400 farmers and bankers attended "Kentucky Day" at the U. S. Soil and Water Experiment Station near Coshocton, O., on July 7. They were most impressed with the basic research work being conducted and the practical application of new cultural practices, forestry management and water utilization methods.

$20,000 Caskets Hold Two Doctors

Wilmington, Mass., Aug. 13 — Two old-time Wilmington physicians, who were married to each other, rest in Wildwood Cemetery in two of the most expensive coffins ever built.

The caskets, specially constructed of rare woods for Henry Hiller and his wife, Dr. Frances B. Hiller, cost $20,000 each at a time when a dollar was worth a dollar.

The elaborate burial cases were the idea of Mrs. Hiller, who devoted many months to supervising their construction.

SPORTS CHATTER

By Gordon Moore

Next Tuesday in Pikeville, Eastern Kentucky football fans will have the opportunity to see eight of the loop's nine teams in action in the first preview contest ever staged in the Big Sandy valley. Each team will play one 15-minute quarter. (See schedule elsewhere on this page).

One of the oddities of the attraction is that not one of the eight schools' bands will be permitted to play at the game. Yet these same bands are called upon to play at the team's home games—and usually away—in all kinds of weather to stimulate school spirit.

Last year's Kentucky state high school basketball tournament netted a cool $82,296.39. The gross take was $108,138.86. Not bad for four days of basketball.

The annual 1955 clinic for Eastern Kentucky football officials will be conducted by Dr. Lyman V. Ginger at Pikeville high school, Thursday (today) at 8 p.m.

It cost $136,976.73 to run the affairs of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association (530 high schools) through the school year 1954-55.

Russell Williamson, Inez principal for the past 27 years, is the representative on the K. H. S. A. A. Board of Control for Selection 8 (15th-16th regions) and he is also president of the organization. His current term will expire on June 30, 1956, but the election of a new member will be held in January by the principals in these two regions.

In reply to several requests we are publishing the 1955 University of Kentucky football schedule.

Sept. 17—L. S. U.	Away
Sept. 24—Ole Miss.	(8 p.m.) $3.50, 2.20
Oct. 1—Villanova	Away
Oct. 8—Auburn	Away
Oct. 15—Miss. St.	(8 p.m.) $3.50, 2.20
Oct. 22—Florida	(8 p.m.) $3.50, 2.20
Oct. 29—Rice	(2 p.m.) $3.50, 2.20 (Homecoming)
Nov. 5—Vanderbilt	Away
Nov. 12—Memphis State	(2 p.m.) $2.50, 1.50
Nov. 19—Tenn.	(1:30 p.m.) $3.50, 2.20

Four for three—that's what you get when you buy U. S. Savings Bonds. A $75 E bond will return $100 in nine years and eight months.

Injured Ligament Ends Branham's Ball Career; To Resume Railway Job

The football career of Prestonsburg's Franklin "Set" Branham, former University of Utah backfield ace, came to an end recently with his injury while scrimmaging in the Canadian Professional Football League. He is 26.

His mother, Mrs. Fanny Branham, of Prestonsburg, said she had learned that her son's injury consists of torn ligaments in his knee. An injury to the same knee cut short his Canadian pro play last year after an auspicious start. "I'll just have to forget football now," he told his mother. He added that doctors told him he barely escaped an operation, and that one may be necessary later.

Branham was with the Toronto team of the Canadian league when injured. He has returned to Salt Lake City where he will resume work with the Union Pacific Railway upon his recovery.

Branham is one of the all-time greats of local football, and was the first Prestonsburg high school gridder to be named to the mythical all-state eleven.

Coon Drag To Feature Sportsman's Day at Fair; Fishing Contest Scheduled

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 12 (Spl.)—A coon drag to determine the best coon hound in Kentucky will be a feature of Sportsman's Day at the State Fair on Saturday, Sept. 17. The race for the championship will be run in front of the grandstand and will climax several preliminary races which will serve as qualifying rounds.

The coon drag is only one of the features to be staged by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources for sportsmen at the Fair. A full day's program has been arranged with the preliminary races starting at 10 a.m. Participants must enter their dogs before 9 o'clock that morning and the entry fee is $5. Dogs may be entered by writing to Kenneth Glass, Waddy, Ky., who will be in charge of the races. The championship finals will be run at 11:30 and 12 o'clock and the winner in the tree and line classifications will receive a trophy and 100 per cent of the entry fee will be divided between the two winners.

Following the coon drag championship, Junior Conservation Club District casting champions will compete for the state title in two age groups. This contest will be held in front of the grandstand, starting at 1 o'clock. Then will follow a bird dog field exhibition which will feature dogs setting and retrieving quail. An archery exhibition will round out the program.

Throughout the length of the fair an exhibition of interest to sportsmen will be staged by the Department at the Fish and Wildlife Building. Birds, animals and fish native of Kentucky will be exhibited and information about the operation of the Department, game laws and seasons and free literature will be available.

A fishing contest for youngsters will be held from 1 to 4 p.m., on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, September 14-17, with all gear furnished by the Department and with awards being made for the biggest and best catches each day.

ORDER APPEALED

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 25 — The State Tax Commission appealed an order of Franklin Circuit Court which held four out-of-state barge lines, which ply the Ohio River, are not subject to payment of franchise taxes to Kentucky. Approximately $150,000 in annual tax liability is involved.

AREA'S TEAMS SET TO PLAY

A Full Preview Game At Pikeville Ball Field; Hazard Not Participating

Eight of the nine high school football teams in the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference will play a full game preview at the Pikeville athletic field at 8 p.m., Tuesday, August 30.

Hazard, the ninth member of the loop, will not participate, due to a K. H. S. A. suspension until September 1.

According to the drawing by the E.K.M.C. Board of Control, held last Saturday in Elkhorn City, Belfry and Fleming-Neon will play the first quarter of 15 minutes, Elkhorn City and Jenkins will battle in the second quarter, then Whitesburg and Paintsville are matched in the third, and Pikeville and Prestonsburg will climax the evening's activity.

The captains of each team will determine who kicks and who receives by the toss of a coin.

Belfry high school is in the market for an assistant football coach to help with the current grid chores, since Head Coach Guy Patterson was injured in an automobile accident last Friday night and will be in a cast for about three months. Interested coaches should contact Donald Elswick at phone 166, Pikeville.

Virtually all high schools in Eastern Kentucky are having difficulty filling open dates on their schedules. Prestonsburg needs a game for September 2; Hazard would like to fill September 16 or October 14; Elkhorn City hopes to fill September 16; Fleming has two dates open, October 7 and October 28; and Paintsville is seeking an opponent for October 14.

Paintsville high school has one of the biggest high school teams ever in Eastern Kentucky football history with a line average of 210 pounds. Tackles Freddy Webb and Jim Cyrus weigh 260 and 250 pounds, respectively.

Pilot Uninjured as Plane Lands in Cornfield

Harlan, Ky., Aug. 15. — A Columbus, Ohio, pilot escaped injury yesterday when his small plane crashed into a cornfield beside KY 219 near Twila.

Pilot Gene Hall was attempting to make an emergency landing on the highway. He said he was on the way from Columbus to Kingsport, Tenn., when he ran into fog. Hall said he had no instruments and was unable to fly above the fog.

The flier said he thought the landing on the narrow winding road would have been successful if his left wing had not hit a fence post. The impact threw the craft rightside up in the field.
