This Town— That World

The melancholy days have come, but what's wrong with that autumn-opening rain?

THEY'VE SIDESTEPPED THE SIDEWALKS

It's weather like this and those snowy and rainy days to follow that will drive pupils walking to the new high school from the shoulder of the highway onto the paved surface of the road, there to take their chances with the whizzing traffic. Sidewalks should have been built before the school opened, but the State Highway Department has said neither "yes" or "no," and such a project at the expense of property-owners isn't even probable.

Official Frankfort hasn't been misquoted to us, a sidewalk was promised as long as two years ago when the city of Prestonsburg relinquished to the state all its rights to U. S. 23 through the town. Ex-Mayor Clark, Mayor Sandige and others have written letters; The Times has pointed to the inevitability of tragedy if something isn't done. Net result; nothing.

The highway hasn't even been repaired to remove those low spots or to drain off those miniature swimming pools that gather with every rain. Wonder how many girls' pretty dresses, or how many pretty girls' dresses, will be splashed with mud and water this very day as they walk to school?

You can wash stained garments but the blot of neglect doesn't yield to soap and water.

HEALTH BLDG. BIDS SOUGHT

Bids on Center Slated
For Opening Oct. 18th;
$90,000 Fund Available

Contractors' bids on the construction of the Floyd county health center building here will be opened at 2 p. m., Oct. 18, it was announced here by M. V. Clark, administrator of the Floyd County Health Department, upon his return from Frankfort.

Plans and specifications of the structure are available from W. T. Judy, executive chairman of the State Building Properties Commission, Frankfort.

The building which will be 66 by 62 feet, will occupy a site on the old Prestonsburg high school grounds. It will be a single-story brick, with full basement.

Funds appropriated by Floyd county, the state and federal government provide $90,000 for construction of the building and equipping it.

A dental department will be a part of the health department facilities when the building is occupied, Mr. Clark said. This service for school children will be maintained by county and state, with each sharing equally in paying local dentists for part-time services. All supplies will be furnished by the State Department of Health.

REPORT LAUDS SHERIFF, ASKS OFFICIAL HELP

Jury Says Official Acts
Should Include Closing
Known Bootlegging Spots

A report that commended Sheriff Gorman Collins for his efforts toward law enforcement and at the same time enjoined citizens to support such work and the Circuit Judge, County Judge, Commonwealth and County Attorneys to take action themselves toward curbing bootlegging was filed by the grand jury last Thursday afternoon as the jury completed the ninth and last day of its work for the September court session.

The report, signed by W. M. Terry, foreman, was comprehensive in its discussion of conditions and in its recommendations.

The jury commented on the large number of child desertion cases, recent work done to enforce the dog law, the program of aid to dependent children, the condition of the jail and courthouse and the several funds in the fiscal court budget.

Turning to the liquor traffic in legally dry Floyd, the grand jury noted:

"The Grand Jury, knowing the bootlegging situation in Floyd county and realizing that a large majority of law violations can be traced directly to traffic in or the use of alcoholic beverages, feels that drastic measures should be used. It is understood that many bootleggers have been caught two or three times each. Therefore the Grand Jury feels it is its duty to ask the Circuit Judge and the County Judge to issue orders closing places that have been caught with whiskey and beer in their possession for the purpose of resale, and further insists that the Commonwealth's Attorney and the County Attorney take steps to file suit against these violators of the local option laws, that these be forfeited and sold with the proceeds accruing to the state."

The report noted that the "Sheriff and his force are trying to do a good job, but their degree of success will depend to a large extent upon the cooperation and support they received from the people interested in improving conditions."

KNOTT MINER IS INDICTED

For Slaying of Neighbor
Of 1-Day On Hollybush;
Body Is Found In Woods

Truby Fields, 23-year-old coal miner, has been indicted at Hindman on a murder charge in connection with the ambush slaying of his neighbor of one day.

Fields is accused of killing Dewey Stacy, 67, who was shot to death Wednesday of last week, the same day he moved into the Hollybush community.

Stacy had formerly lived at Dwarf in Perry county and was reported to have lived in Knott county about five years ago.

Fields was released under $10,000 bond after Judge John Chris Cornett set his trial for the November term of Knott circuit court.

State Police Detective J. E. Combs said Fields was not given an examining trial because the grand jury was in session at the time of the killing. He added that Fields has made no formal plea, but denied to officers that he killed Stacy.

Officers said Dewey Stacy may have been mistaken for a brother, Augustus, who had previous trouble in the community.

Augustus Stacy, who had been indicted on a charge of shooting into a house, was arrested on that charge shortly after his brother was killed.

Meat Firm Here Sued By Price Man; $12,200 Total Sought in Wreck

A total of $12,200 is asked of the W. W. Grimm Wholesale Meat Company, of Prestonsburg, in a suit filed this week by Donald Dorton, of Price, who seeks damages allegedly suffered by him and his daughter, Kay, in a collision at Martin July 16.

The complaint, which was prepared by Paul E. Hayes, Prestonsburg attorney, alleges that Grimm's driver, John Wallen, so negligently operated the company's truck that it hit Dorton's car from behind.

Dorton asks $10,000 damages for permanent injuries he claims to have suffered, $500 for injuries to his daughter, $1,200 for damage to his car and $500 medical expenses.

JURY INDICTS 2 IN ROBBERY

$5,000 Bond Is Asked
For Howell, Dye; May
Absent During Probe

Although the chief witness against them was unable because of illness to make a grand jury appearance, Roland Howell and Charles Dye were named last week in an indictment charging them with armed robbery.

The indictment was voted on evidence produced by Sheriff Gorman Collins and Deputy Sheriff Troy Mullins. Lowell Hudson May, the former Salversville man whom they were accused of abducting and robbing, is ill in Ashland, his wife told authorities.

Howell and Dye already have spent almost three months in jail. They were imprisoned on June 27. Bond of $5,000 is asked for their release.

LAKE POISON JOB REPEATED

Reducing Small Shad
Purpose of Operation;
Lake Study Nearing End

The second poisoning operation to be undertaken at Dewey Lake this year was being completed today (Thursday), the second day of work by biologists of the State Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources.

A weakened rotenone solution designed to kill only shad spawned last spring was being used, Bernard Carter, chief biologist, said. The solution is being spread by boat.

The initial Operation Poison was effected by the use of a plane, and the poisoning job, largest to be undertaken in this section of the United States, killed off a huge number of large shad and carp. Despite its effects on forage and rough fish, that first poisoning killed only a few bass.

As a result of the work last spring, the shad spawn was below normal, especially in the lower reaches of the lake, but this forage fish reproduced itself so heavily up the lake that the current poisoning job was considered necessary.

"This is an experiment, and we aren't certain how effective it will be," Carter said. "In the narrower, shallower upper part of the lake we've killed a lot of young shad already, but we'll just have to wait and see how well we do down the lake."

Mr. Carter explained that this year's shad crop has already grown to a length of five or six inches, which is too large for forage for crappie.

Ellis Carter, assistant biologist, has conducted a population study this summer at the lake, and is now concluding his work. He has found, it was said, that the bass spawn this year was heavy, as was the crappie spawn. The rate of bluegill reproduction was ma-

STREET WORK BEGUN HERE

Property-Owners Finance
Surfacing Job; Lancer's
Annexation Is Discussed

Central avenue, which has been deep in dust all the summers of its existence and deeper in mud all its winters, is on its way out of both.

First work was done Tuesday preliminary to blacktop surfacing of the thoroughfare by the Johnson Construction Company, Pikeville, which is just now completing surfacing of the grade school grounds and the west end of the nearby playground.

To facilitate the Central avenue project the City Council at its Monday night meeting granted permission to the property owners to improve their property at their own expense by concrete or blacktop surfacing of streets to a width of 18 feet.

As a consequence of this first break in the street improvement stalemate, at least two other streets are scheduled for work. One is an alley paralleling Central avenue; the other is in the Webb subdivision of the Porter Addition. On Central avenue an unusual unanimity of opinion existed, with every property-owner subscribing his or her

New Store Opening Draws 1,803 Adults, Over 1,000 Children

During the three-day opening last week of the new DuRan Moore Hardware Company store on Lake Drive here a total of 1,803 adults visited and inspected the new business. To this number were added more than 1,000 children who called at the store and received theatre tickets.

The grand door prize, a 24-inch television set, was awarded Haskell Woods, of Gulnare, at the close of business Saturday evening. Bill Fitzpatrick, of West Prestonsburg, received the $50 trade certificate given as a door prize on the first day, and Richard Spurlock, of Prestonsburg, received the same award on Friday.

"We deeply appreciate the interest of the public in our business and the many expressions of goodwill we received during our opening," Mr. Moore said.

Hill Demands 2 Probated Prove Church Attendance

A new requirement was exacted Wednesday by Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill of two young men to whom he granted probation from one-year pen terms for breaking and entering.

If they are to enjoy liberty under probation, they must do more than what is usually required in a probation order—to be gainfully employed if work is to be had, to support their dependents, to obey the laws of the country and report monthly to the court.

These two will be required to attend a church of their choice. Moreover, they must prove to the court they are doing that by bringing to the judge letters from ministers of the churches they attend.

Judge Hill said he at first thought he would not consider probation for the two, George Click and William Jarvis. But their cases were investigated by the judge himself as well as by the probation officer. The investigations uncovered these facts, the court order pointed out:

Click, who is 21 years old, is single, a veteran of the Korean War with two years and one month service in Korea; he has completed the eighth grade of school, and he has never before been in court. Whereabouts of his father, George Click, Sr., are unknown.

Jarvis is 19 years old, married, and he and his wife are employed in Michigan. He is eligible for military service. Jarvis has completed the seventh grade and has never before been charged with a crime.

A liquor-selling charge against Lark Hunt which was dismissed Sept. 7 on motion of the Commonwealth's Attorney was reinstated last Friday by order of Circuit Judge Hill.

The order voiding the dismissal pointed out that the Commonwealth's attorney in moving for dismissal had said that the two witnesses on the indictment are in the state reformatory. The court inquired when they would be released, the Commonwealth's Attorney replying that he did not know when but that he did not believe in relying on the testimony of ex-convicts. The new order concluded that the court "is of the opinion it was in error" in sustaining the dismissal motion.

Court dragged almost to a standstill this week. One fine was exacted, and that in the amount of $25 from Dick Hinton on a charge of drunkenness. Sixteen cases were continued within the week, and seven cases were dismissed.

The court directed last week, on motion of Commonwealth's Attorney Martin, that a subpoena duces tecum issue against Magistrate John May requiring him to produce his criminal record book in court last Friday, the date on which his trial on malfeasance counts had been set. The cases were continued, however, until November 18, because Circuit Judge Hill disqualified and the cases were certified for a special judge.

DOG CLEANUP ASKED HERE

Dog Warden Invited
To Towns; Some Pay
Fines After Arrests

Roy Cook, dog warden, announced this week that he had been invited by Prestonsburg police to assist in the dog law enforcement here. The police of Martin invited Warden Cook several weeks ago to aid in cleaning up strays and in tagging dogs there. Remaining incorporated places in the county are expected to extend an invitation in the near future, Cook says.

Some of those for whom warrants were procured two weeks ago for non-compliance with the dog law have settled their cases by tagging their dogs and paying the court costs. Others have elected to stand trial, the warden said.

Cook emphasized this week that contrary to reports, he is not working under, or is responsible to, the fiscal court or county judge. The enforcement of the dog law is a state matter, Cook says, and Wayland Rhoads, dog-law administrator at Frankfort, is his superior. His reports are made to Rhoads and none go to any county official, he added.

Only four Kentucky counties are now listed with "action pending" on dog law enforcement, it was shown by a map prepared by Wayland Rhoads, dog law administrator.

Man with Unusual Mission Visits Prestonsburg, Tells of Experiences

The chaplain of the Mission to the Motorcyclists came back to Prestonsburg last Wednesday. He was here three years ago to visit Hale's Motorcycle Shop and since that first visit he has traveled thousands of miles over the United States and Canada, calling on those who answer the call of the open road via motorcycle.

Allan McHardy, now of Long Beach, Calif., has been on the road for years but nine years ago he took a turn—too fast. The story of his mission to his friends of the open road properly begins there. Let's allow him to tell it in his own words.

"One Sunday afternoon while out in the country doing a little highway racing I bent a corner too fast and ended up in a ditch with a severely mangled and broken leg and other injuries. I lay on the road for two hours before an ambulance finally arrived. Then as the ambulance went screaming back to the hospital, we were in a collision with another automobile, and in the second mishap of the day I went through the windshield of the ambulance, broken leg and all. I arrived at the hospital broken, battered and bruised.

"When lying on a hospital bed in serious condition a fellow does a mighty lot of serious thinking. I remember being told once that a fellow should be sure he dies right; because if he dies wrong he can't come back and die right. But still how carelessly we live, knowing that death is our destiny. He dogs our footsteps, lurks under every corner and in every shadow. In the past I had felt death's breath many times over my shoulder, but now it seemed death had finally caught up with me.

"I was very much 'alone' in that hospital under the dark shadow of death, for I realized if a person dies without God, he dies 'alone,' yes all 'alone.'"

Miss Yvonne Roberts, 17, Of Goodloe, Succumbs To Appendicitis, Last Week

Miss Yvonne Roberts, 17, of Goodloe, died at 7:45 a. m., Friday of last week, at the Methodist hospital at Pikeville. Appendicitis was given as the cause of death.

Miss Roberts was a daughter of Roscoe Roberts and Lizzie McKee Roberts. She is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Leonard Roberts, of Bypro, Linville Roberts, of David, Don, Woodford and Larry Gale Roberts, all at home, Mrs. Viola Griffith, of David, Mrs. Helen Burchett, Lima, O., and Miss Miranda Roberts, at home.

Funeral rites were conducted at 2 p. m., at a cemetery at Alphonse, Ky., the Rev. Green Allen officiating. Burial followed under the direction of Hall Bros. Funeral Home.

LAKE GROUP'S CLUB RAIDED

Whiskey, Beer Found Near Lancer; Several Cases Nearing Hearing

Six cases of whiskey and 10 cases of beer were confiscated at Dewey Lake Improvement Association clubhouse on the Brandy Keg road, near Lancer, by deputy sheriffs Saturday afternoon in a continuance of the drive by the Sheriff's office on Floyd bootlegging. Bill Williams, owner of the property, was placed under bond for trial before Magistrate John May who issued the search warrant, officers said.

Taking part in the raid were Deputies Troy Mullins, Frank Blackburn, Silas Derossett, Al Patton, Ed Amburgy and Jim Prater.

The same officers failed to find either whiskey or beer in raids the same day on the Steak House at East Point and the home of Marion Chaffins on Middle Creek, near Goodloe.

Another raid on the place operated by Dora Johnson at Wheelwright Junction netted four half-pints of whiskey.

Several charges of selling or possessing intoxicants for sale, all growing out of recent raids, are scheduled for trial Saturday before Magistrate May at Garrett.

"They may get their cases transferred to Prestonsburg for trial, but I will be there, still interested in the trials," May told The Times recently. He added that he will issue search warrants for any person's premises if a satisfactory sworn statement is produced.

FLOYD POLIO FUND UPPED

National Foundation
Sends $2,500 Check
For Chapter's Help

As a stopgap measure to meet Floyd county's acute need for funds to continue care of polio patients, a check for $2,500 from March of Dimes headquarters in New York was received last Thursday by the Floyd County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

"This money," explained Ray Howard, Chapter chairman, "is an advance supplied by chapters operating in the black. When it was realized that more than 1,200 chapters would exhaust the March of Dimes funds available to them, National Foundation headquarters called in funds from chapters which had surpluses."

Recognizing that polio respects no state or county lines, Mr. Howard said, chapters with funds have willingly answered the distress signals of those operating in the red to insure the necessary care of polio patients.

Encouraging the "haves" to help the "have-nots," Mr. Howard con-

NEW SCHOOL DRAWS MANY FOR OPENING

Visitors at Open House
Impressed by Facilities,
Spaciousness of Building

A steady stream of visitors inspected the new county high school building here during the open house periods, Friday and Saturday, and those who walked the long corridors and into each of the rooms upstairs and down and out along the wings only then realized the immensity of the undertaking just completed by the Floyd County Board of Education.

Although the brand-new spaciousness of all the 23 classrooms and their appointments, such as color scheme, lighting and furniture, drew wide interest, the Home Economics department cafeteria, music room, science department and library were most impressive.

In addition to the 23 classrooms, the two-story structure includes a library, study hall, first-aid room, offices, teachers' lounges and other facilities which make of the school one of the most modern built in this section of the state. The Home Economics department with its seven electric ranges, refrigerators, sewing machines, automatic washers and dryers and other equipment, is itself 92 feet long. The school has 34,000 square feet of floor space.

"Add the auditorium-gymnasium to this building, and you can walk till you can't," remarked one visitor.

Landscaping of the grounds is under way this week, and foundation work on the gymnasium is almost ready to start, it was said. Future plans include, in addition to location of the gymnasium there, a football field at the northern end of the school grounds, and adequate parking space.

Fulltime classwork began Tuesday after a half-day Monday. En-

WOODS FIRES ARE REPORTED

Warden Says Fire Danger
Serious Threat; Warrants
Issued After Banner Blaze

Three "summer" forest fires broke out in this county this year according to Forrest Burchett, forest warden. One at Banner burned over 20 acres, another over 15 acres.

"The general public just doesn't realize the seriousness of the threat of summer fires," Burchett said this week. "A summer fire can be just as destructive, in some instances more so, than a fall or spring fire," he added.

County Judge Henry Stumbo issued a warrant this week for Him Hall, of Banner, who, it is alleged, caused the fire there by negligently burning trash. The Tom's Creek fire Burchett said, was caused by Mrs. T. J. Hall burning trash. Name of the person or persons causing the Warco fire had not been learned as of Tuesday.

"Property owners are urged to be extremely careful in burning trash now," Burchett said. "The drought makes the threat of destructive blazes great."

It was learned that a publicity campaign is being prepared to lessen the danger of forest fires this fall. Several coal companies have indicated an interest in sponsoring it. Most of the larger coal companies hold a large acreage of timber reserves, it was pointed out.

Last fall and winter businessmen of the county sponsored in The Floyd County Times a series of ads furnished by the American Forest Products Industries, Inc., of Washington.

"The public is becoming more conscious of the need for forest protection," the warden said.

SOMEBODY TO TALK TO

An old Floyd county woman of other years who had the habit of talking to herself was asked why she did so. "Because I want to be sure I talk to somebody that's got some sense," she quipped.

Which recalls the story of the old desert rat who had prospected for gold alone so long that he finally turned hermit, returning infrequently to civilization only long enough to pick up some supplies. His long, white hair and flowing whiskers made him a picturesque figure but the desert dirt and sand and his tattered clothing made him just a bit repulsive, too.

When he met an acquaintance he answered only when spoken to, and plodded on without stopping. But those who came near him could hear him talking in a low mumble to himself.

Finally, one night, he started a church congregation by showing up and taking a back seat. And the minister himself was most surprised of all when at the invitation the old-timer shuffled down the aisle and gave him his hand.

Finally, the preacher asked, "Why have you made this decision?" "Because," said the old hermit, "I want Somebody to talk to, no matter where I am."

NOT AN OBT-TOLD TALE

Every now and then some older recalls Judge Andy Auxier, his unusual charges to juries, his quips directed at lawyers and litigants alike. Over the years many has been the anecdote told of him, of his ready replies under any and all circumstances, but one story that hasn't been told—not in print, anyhow—tells of the time when Judge Andy had nothing to say, could only bring down the gavel with considerable force and proceed with the court's business.

This was the time when a certain deputy sheriff was designated "to wait on the court." Brand-new at the job, impressed by the importance of his task and wholly unfamiliar with courtroom protocol and procedure, the deputy was determined to follow the judge's instructions to the letter.

He was told to call John Smith, Bill and Abe. So he dutifully poked his head out of a window and bawled, "John Smith, Bill and Abe."

Hearing this unusual summons for the appearance of witnesses, Judge Auxier told his bailiff: "Call one at a time, Mr. Sheriff, call one at a time."

"The deputy rammed his head out the window again and, parrot-like, chanted, "One at a time, one at a time."

His Honor could only wince, smort in disgust and finally say, "Now you've fixed it."

Whereupon Old Faithful for the third time stuck his head outside and yelled at the top of his voice: "Never mind, we've fixed it, we've fixed it."

THE SPOILERS

We shudder when we think of what youthful vandalism may do to that splendid new school building here. One example of this was found, the very first day the pupils registered. They walked into a building, resident in its colors, lighting, new furniture and fixtures. The spotters hadn't been around yet. But by 9 a.m. not a chain to the plugs for the lavatories in the boys' rest rooms remained.

That may have been done by only one or two unthinking boys, but the act reflected on every boy in the school.

Frazier, Hill Attend Education Conference

Chalmer H. Frazier, superintendent of Prestonsburg schools, and State Representative Lon C. Hill represented Floyd county this week at the state meeting of the Governor's committee for the White House Conference on Education.

They attended at Morehead last week a district meeting preliminary to the state conference. Approximately 300 outstanding leaders from all professions were invited to the meet by Phillip G. Davidson, chairman of the White House Conference. The conference was pursuant to a Congressional act calling for a nationwide study of education, its needs and what part the federal government should play in meeting them.

Purpose of the meet was the training of district officers by the state so that these officers in turn may instruct the chapter officers.

Girls attending from the Ashland district were Betty Sizemore, of Prestonsburg, president; Janet

Former Wayland Resident Dies at Daughter's Home in Petersburg, Michigan

George Lynk, 60, of Petersburg, Mich., but formerly of Wayland, died at Petersburg, at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Jack Smith, Monday, of a heart condition. He was a son of the late John and Lydia Lynk and was married to Ruth Haywood Lynk, who survives. A brother, Roy Lynk, of Charleston, W. Va., and four sisters, Mrs. Brida McGlothen, Mrs. E. J. Daniels, Mrs. Wm. Howell and Mrs. G. C. Lyon, all of Ashland, also survive.

Funeral services were held at the Wayland Methodist church at 2 p.m. today (Thursday) and burial followed in the Walker Martin cemetery there under the direction of Hall Bros Funeral Home.

TO INSTALL OFFICERS

Adah Chapter No. 24, Order of Eastern Star, will hold its installation of officers Monday evening at 8 o'clock, it was announced this week. All members are invited to attend.

day of the Stacy killing. The officers said Fields and Augustus Stacy, 54, had been involved in trouble along with several others in the community.

Dewey Stacy's body was found by Augustus about an hour after he was shot.

Combs said the two brothers, who were "batching" near Hollybush, had been at the store and Dewey started home alone. Witnesses said they heard shots but didn't investigate, thinking Dewey was shooting squirrels.

Combs said the victim had a shotgun, but that it apparently hadn't been fired.

Augustus hid in the woods after summoning help for his brother, but was found by officers near the scene of the fatal shooting, Combs said.

Funeral rites were conducted at the graveside Tuesday, the Revs. L. P. Tussey, Ashland Shepherd and Andy Moore officiating. Burial followed in the Moore cemetery at Pyramid under the direction of Carter and Callihan Funeral Home.

County Dog Warden Roy Cook drew the jury's commendation "for the manner in which he is trying to do a very difficult job." Cook deserves the support of all county officials and citizens from a standpoint of rabies control and sheep protection, it added. "It should be remembered the Dog Law is not a Floyd county law but is a state law, administered by the Department of Agriculture," the grand jury's final statement noted.

Investigation by the jury developed evidence, it was said, that some of the numerous child desertion cases presented during the grand jury session "were caused by husbands going to other states to find work, with the reluctance of their wives to leave home resulting in a weakening of family ties."

The report gave the state program of aid to dependent children a sharp wrist-slap in noting that in some cases this program "appears to encourage illegitimacy."

Commending Jailer Prock Hayes for his "zeal and attention to duty in a hard job," the grand jurors said it is difficult to see how any great degree of improvement could be made over present conditions with existing facilities. The report added that the courthouse "appears to be improved but still suffers by comparison with other counties of smaller or comparable size and assessment."

Following up on Circuit Judge Hill's instructions on county spending and financial conditions, the jury gave these figures:

The Y-I Right-of-Way Fund, which contained $11,000, now has $374. The T-6 Old Debt Fund, which at the beginning of the fiscal year contained $21,380, has already been over-spent, and $35.63 has been transferred to it from the Emergency Fund. The T-2 Road Construction Fund which started out with $3,500 has $951.32 left.

"If," continued the report, "the budget laws were violated during the 1953-54 fiscal year, it was a misdemeanor, the time for instituting criminal action ran out after 12 months, and the only remedy appears to be a civil action. The law limits expenditures to 65% of the budget during the first six months of the fiscal year during county election year."

During the 1954-55 fiscal year, 28% was paid on old debts, and during the current fiscal year 10% was this purpose, it was pointed out.

The grand jury questioned about 125 witnesses and voted 91 indictments.

share of the cost the full length of the street presently planned for improvement. A short sector at the northern end of the street may be improved later.

Financing aid to the project is being given by the First National Bank.

The Council Monday night discussed annexation of Lancer and opposition which has risen there to the move. Annexation has been sought by many there in order to get water from the Prestonsburg Water System. The opposition, it was said, came from those who have an adequate water supply. A survey to establish property lines was ordered by the Council, and the annexation case will go to court for a decision.

The Council voted David B. Leslie, traffic officer, 5% of parking meter collections as a supplement to his $200-a-month salary. On the basis of current collections this would boost his pay about $35 a month.

The bond issue planned by the city for waterworks and possibly other improvements has been temporarily delayed, it was said, while an attempt to locate owners of outstanding water bonds is being made. These would be retired by the new bond issue. Report of engineers on present sewer needs is also awaited.

Who Knows The Answer?

Should a newspaper publish the indictments made by a grand jury?

This is a question which we have long pondered. Our concern about the matter arises from the fact that we have for almost thirty years now published these indictments as a matter of court record, open to the public.

Yet, we remind ourselves at almost every court term, by doing so we work an injustice in certain cases. No great harm would be done if the reading public could or would bear in mind that a grand jury indictment is merely an accusation, an accusation often made on the testimony of only one witness, and that this does not necessarily mean that the accused person is guilty. But too often the defendant is branded as guilty by many, and even his or her subsequent acquittal does not clear away the stigma, however much that acquittal may be publicized.

Then should newspapers—this newspaper, say—no longer publish the work of the grand jury as a matter of news? Should it all be left to Dame Rumor to bandy about and exaggerate? Say a flagrant crime has been committed and an entire community is interested in the guilty being indicted—shall the newspaper play dead and let the people find out as best they may if their desires have been fulfilled?

Or should the newspaper delay publication of the news till the defendant is brought to trial? These are not mere rhetorical questions. They are questions we have been pondering from time to time for a long while now. We don't know the answers.

Of one thing we are certain, however, and that is this: The answer is short and definite. All indictments will be published, all that amount to more than common drunkenness or some similar triviality, or none will be published. We shall never set ourselves up to judge the guilt or innocence of this individual or that, and on that judgment decide to publish one name and omit another.

Whatever injustice we may commit unwittingly, it will not be that criminal injustice of playing favorites between individual and individual.

They Deserve A Good Turn—Help The Girl Scouts
Those of us who are appalled by the spread of juvenile delinquency and who are interested in means of eradicating the influences that in young lives should be cast about for the things youth needs, give earnest consideration to the Scout movement for both girls and boys.

It is quite possible that if we all gave these two groups the financial support we should be able to reach, in Floyd county alone, many of the underprivileged youths who would find a new way of life in the wholesome activities of Scouting.

Most of us know of the work of the Girl Scouts and the Boy Scouts, of their wholesome influence, of the splendid results they achieve in building young bodies and character.

But we do little about it. A relative few work at the job. Too few put their money to work for Scouting. We do not often enough remember that Scout hiking trails lead away from, not toward, the pool room or the whiskey store; that Scout camps and the life there are absolutely devoid of all those examples and teachings that lead youngsters along the wrong ways.

The Girl Scouts have a $30,000 investment in their permanent camp on Dewey Lake. They owe money on that memorial to the faith of a few. A payment on the principal, plus interest, plus the cost of the Girl Scout program for the year in all its phases will require a budget of $10,800. Money over and beyond this budget figure is needed to finance the construction of a caretaker's lodge there if Camp Chatterawha is to be protected as it should be.

There are many things to be done, things that cost heavily in dollars and cents, not to mention the volunteer work of leaders and troop sponsors.

So give liberally to the Girl Scouts during their drive that is now in progress. Your money will be an investment in youth, proof of your faith in the youngsters and in these organizations devoted to their development. Moreover, every cent you give will be spent here at home for your own daughters and those of your neighbors.

If This Was A Mistake It Wasn't FDR's
A fallacy that has existed in some quarters since late in the Battle of Europe in World War II has finally been dispelled, leaving the enemies of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt somewhat distraught.

This fallacy is the oft-heard claim that American forces were halted at the Rhine and did not advance until the Russians had taken Berlin, because FDR ordered General Eisenhower to do so. Now, President Eisenhower, the wartime commander-in-chief in Europe, frankly lets it be known that it was he who ordered the halt of American and British forces advancing on the German capital.

With becoming candor the present President long ago stated, in effect, that he was not mixing politics with a military problem at the time and that he himself ordered the halt because Berlin was a relatively minor objective.

Those who are expert with hindsight but whose foresight seldom levels on the mark have been pointing out for years now that this was a near-fatal mistake, that if General Eisenhower had been permitted to proceed into Berlin and assert American power and authority as he should have been the Russians would not have been able to spirit into their land the best scientific minds Germany possessed.

Winston Churchill expressed his fears at the time, first to President Roosevelt and after Roosevelt's death to President Truman. The latter replied that it was a matter of military deployment, with the decision up to the military.

Eisenhower himself later reported that "military factors, when the enemy was on the brink of final defeat, were more important in my eyes than the political considerations involved in an Allied capture of the capital," a city which, he said, "no longer represented a military objective of major importance."

Russia was our ally then, Japan remained to be dealt with. The picture in world perspective almost defied the human mind. General Eisenhower, we believe, acted on his keenest military instincts and soundest judgment, however faulty they may have been.

So now let the Roosevelt-haters go back to Yalta, when other mistakes, the infallible hindsight now reveals, also were made.

But we contend that both Ike and FDR did the best they could, using the limited foresight with which poor humans are endowed. Neither ever claimed to be clairvoyant, omniscient or infallible.

COUNCIL MEETS

The 4-H Club Council met Friday, September 2 at the home of Paul Dotson, of Middle Creek. During the business session the council voted that each club member that received a gilt in the pig chain last year is to give only one pig to a fellow club member this year. Any club member that would like to receive a pig this fall should send an application to the Extension office. Each applicant will be judged and those that have the best facilities for caring and feeding a gilt and most interested will receive the pigs. We will have seven pigs to give away this year.

Mrs. Frankie Best, Mrs. Alma Lowe, Mrs. Kelsie Elliott, and Robert M. Jones, Assistant County Agent, were appointed to a committee to judge 4-H record books this year. All record books must be in by the 15th of September.

The council voted to hold a special "Award Night" on November 18, to present awards to 4-H members and adult farmers that have won special awards throughout the year. Such as the best pig chain project, best strawberry patch, Green Pastures award, Corn Derby award, and other projects that have been carried out in the county.

Mrs. Dotson served refreshments at the meeting and everyone had a good time.

Poultry Judging Team

A training meeting for the poultry judging team is to be held Saturday morning, September 10. Members are asked to meet at the County Extension office at 9:30 o'clock.

Reorganization of 4-H Clubs

Mr. Boggs and myself are starting this week to visit all the 4-H clubs and reorganize them for the new year. Any teacher that would like to organize a 4-H club at their school, should contact the extension office and make arrangements.

All clubs will be visited as time permits.

County Fair

The county fair will be held October 6, 7, and 8, at Prestonsburg. Everyone is invited to attend our 4-H Club exhibits.

The 4-H Council will have a refreshment stand at the fair to raise funds that are badly needed to carry on their work.

Strawberry Tour

Saturday, September 3 several 4-H Club boys and their parents visited club members who have strawberry projects over the county. Problems were discussed and ways of improving their berries were pointed out. Several of the members have patches that they can really be proud of.

WRAPPING IMPORTANT IN FREEZING FOODS

The choice of wrapping paper is important for the successful freezing of foods. Packaging foods properly is as important as freezing only foods of good quality. Good freezer wrapping should have these qualifications: (1) It must be moisture and vapor proof to prevent freezer burn or dehydration (2) it must be pliable so it will adhere to irregularly shaped objects, thus eliminating as much air as possible. If air is left in a package, the frost will accumulate inside the wrapping. (3) The wrapping must be tough to withstand the wear and tear caused in moving packages about, and (4) it should take labeling that can be read quickly.

A letter sent out this week from Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation headquarters at Louisville urged Bureau presidents to support dog law enforcement. Henry Hale, of Blue River, is head of the Floyd county unit of the Bureau. The letter to the Bureau heads was signed by Dale Scott.

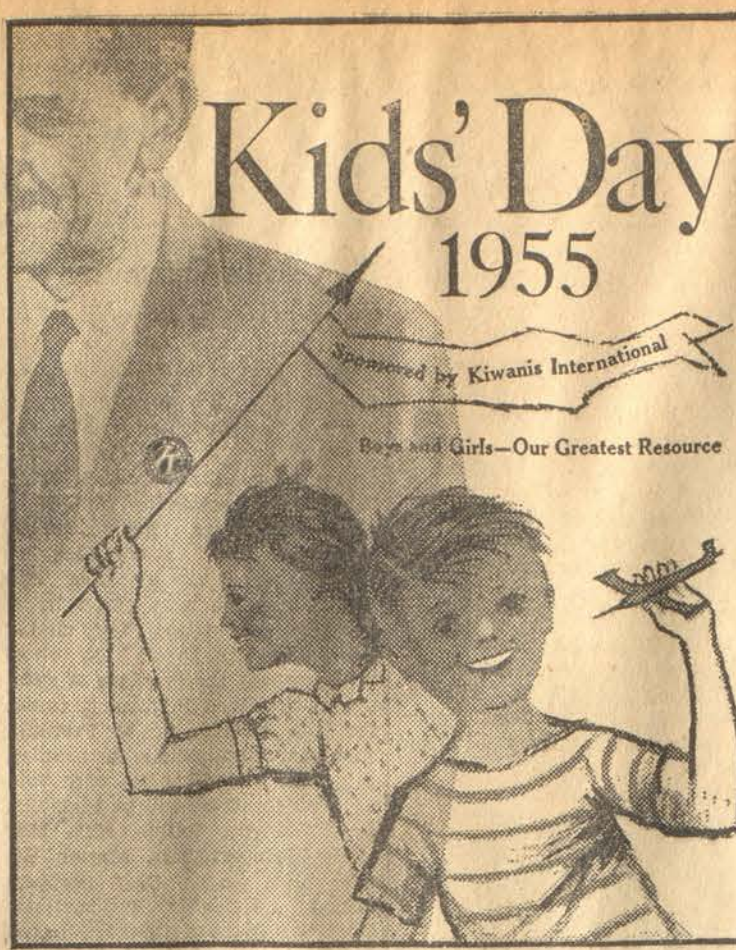

"This law, if properly enforced, will be of great benefit to the general public in the control of rabies, and will provide protection to the livestock farmer and the dog owner," Scott wrote. He mentioned that the delegates to the last State Farm Bureau convention had adopted a resolution urging complete enforcement of the law. Local directors were urged to meet with county officials and pledge support to the law's enforcement, sponsor co-operative advertisement in the local papers, contact sportsmen clubs, kennel owners, fox hunters clubs, and make arrangements with county health authorities for inoculation.

ROLLMENT CONTINUED TO PICK UP

Ottis D. Spurlock, principal, said. The school is not crowded, however, and the seventh and eighth grade pupils, 32 in all, who have been housed in the old high school building are being moved to the new school today (Thursday).

County Superintendent Virgil O. Turner said that persons who did not have an opportunity to inspect the building during open house are invited to visit the school at any time.

In Fayette county, some tobacco growers experimented by leaving a few rows unplanted at intervals, so spraying could be done with ground equipment.

LATE GREENS

Gardeners can protect their gardens this winter and get an abundant supply of leafy greens for the table this fall and early next spring. Seeding can be done up to mid-September. The varieties to use are: Siberian Kale, Seven top turnip, Purple top Globe turnips, and Southern curled mustard.

The seed is low, as one ounce will seed 400 square feet and usually clearing the weeds from the garden with a light raking is all that is needed in the way of land preparation.

There are several advantages to seeding the garden in greens. They are: (1) As the land is being prepared, weeds and crabgrass are scraped off, which, if done before they seed, will help with the weeding next year. (2) Greens are an excellent food-fresh food far into the winter, saving canned and frozen vegetables to just that extent.

(3) Greens that are not used will continue to grow, sometimes all winter. When they are turned under next spring, they will return plant food and, more important, quite a considerable amount of humus. (4) By reason of the improved soil, labor will be saved by the gardener next year, and (5) the garden can cope better with dry weather.

WRAPPING IMPORTANT IN FREEZING FOODS

The choice of wrapping paper is important for the successful freezing of foods. Packaging foods properly is as important as freezing only foods of good quality. Good freezer wrapping should have these qualifications: (1) It must be moisture and vapor proof to prevent freezer burn or dehydration (2) it must be pliable so it will adhere to irregularly shaped objects, thus eliminating as much air as possible. If air is left in a package, the frost will accumulate inside the wrapping. (3) The wrapping must be tough to withstand the wear and tear caused in moving packages about, and (4) it should take labeling that can be read quickly.

A letter sent out this week from Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation headquarters at Louisville urged Bureau presidents to support dog law enforcement. Henry Hale, of Blue River, is head of the Floyd county unit of the Bureau. The letter to the Bureau heads was signed by Dale Scott.

"This law, if properly enforced, will be of great benefit to the general public in the control of rabies, and will provide protection to the livestock farmer and the dog owner," Scott wrote. He mentioned that the delegates to the last State Farm Bureau convention had adopted a resolution urging complete enforcement of the law. Local directors were urged to meet with county officials and pledge support to the law's enforcement, sponsor co-operative advertisement in the local papers, contact sportsmen clubs, kennel owners, fox hunters clubs, and make arrangements with county health authorities for inoculation.

ROLLMENT CONTINUED TO PICK UP

Ottis D. Spurlock, principal, said. The school is not crowded, however, and the seventh and eighth grade pupils, 32 in all, who have been housed in the old high school building are being moved to the new school today (Thursday).

County Superintendent Virgil O. Turner said that persons who did not have an opportunity to inspect the building during open house are invited to visit the school at any time.

In Fayette county, some tobacco growers experimented by leaving a few rows unplanted at intervals, so spraying could be done with ground equipment.

LIVE AND LIKE IT

We're going to live, most of us, to a ripe old age. Science is steadily pushing the limits of life beyond the traditional three score years and ten. Octogenarians are everywhere. It is no longer a front page story when someone reaches the century mark.

It's time we started to think in terms of a life span between 80 and 100 years. You may say you don't want to live like Shakespeare's description of old age, "Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything." You don't have to. Modern science can supply most of these lacks. But so far, it hasn't found a medicine which will make us young again. The great victories that science has won over death make it increasingly necessary that we face the facts of age.

In grandmother's day, tuberculosis was considered primarily a disease of young people. Today, an increasing number of cases is being discovered among older people. Modern drugs and surgery can prevent death from TB for many of these people, but they must live with the disease, and it is not a carefree life. The medical and social scientists are helping people to learn to rebuild happy, useful lives despite such disability as TB. The normal physical results of aging may also yield in time to science, but so far there are limitations that we must accept.

Accept. That is the key word. First, we must accept the fact that we will be old and that isn't at all like being young. Then, we can prepare to make the most of it and enjoy it. Old age need not be a time of illness and misery. It is foolish for any elderly person to take it for granted that he must have aches and pains when the doctor can prevent and relieve many of them. Diet is important. Activity, both mental and physical, is important.

For centuries, philosophers have bewailed the fact that most human beings live just long enough to learn how to live, but not long enough to use their wisdom. Science is now beginning to give us our chance. Let's live and like it.

13 WAYS TO DESTROY YOUR HOMETOWN

Here are 13 sure ways to ruin your home town. An interesting game is to figure how many of the ways apply it to your own lives or to your fellow townsmen.

1. Don't pay taxes. Let the other fellow pay his. Vote against taxes. Then fuss because the streets are not kept up.

2. Never attend any of the meetings called for the good of the town. If you do, don't have anything to say. Wait until you get outside and then fuss those who made the suggestions. Find fault with everything that was done.

3. Get all the city will give you and don't give anything in return. Write unsigned letters to the editor demanding more for your tax money.

4. Talk cooperation, but don't do any work for your city unless you get paid for it. And by all means refuse to serve unless they make you chairman.

5. Never accept an office. It's easier to criticize than to do things. Accuse anybody who serves in an elected office of being a publicity seeker. (Or a crook.)

6. Don't do any more than you have to. When others willingly and unselfishly give their time to make a town better, howl because that town is run by a clique.

7. Don't back your fire department or your police department. If the firemen work to bring the insurance rates down, tell everybody that is what they are supposed to do. Don't thank them or the policemen for endangering their lives that you might have a safer town in which to live. Demand special treatment, raise Cain if anybody expects you to obey traffic and parking laws.

8. Look at every proposition in a selfish way. If you are not the one who gets the most out of it, vote against it. Never consider what it will do for the town as a whole.

9. Don't do anything for the youth of the town. Criticize them as potential delinquents. Keep your feet on them. Encourage them to move away when they grow up.

10. If you have good town leaders, don't follow them. Take a jealous attitude and talk down everything they do.

11. Don't work on any committee. Tell them, "I'm too busy."

12. Don't say anything good about your town. Be the first to point up its short-comings. Pretend that if trouble comes your way it will be residents of some other town who will visit you while you are ill; bring their department if your home is burning; comfort you if you lose a dear one; stand back of you in disaster.

13. And don't support your local retail stores and industries. Claim the prices and services in stores of other towns are better. Claim industry and its payroll hurts the town. But if you need a donation, ask your local stores and industries for it. Expect them to back you, but don't back them.

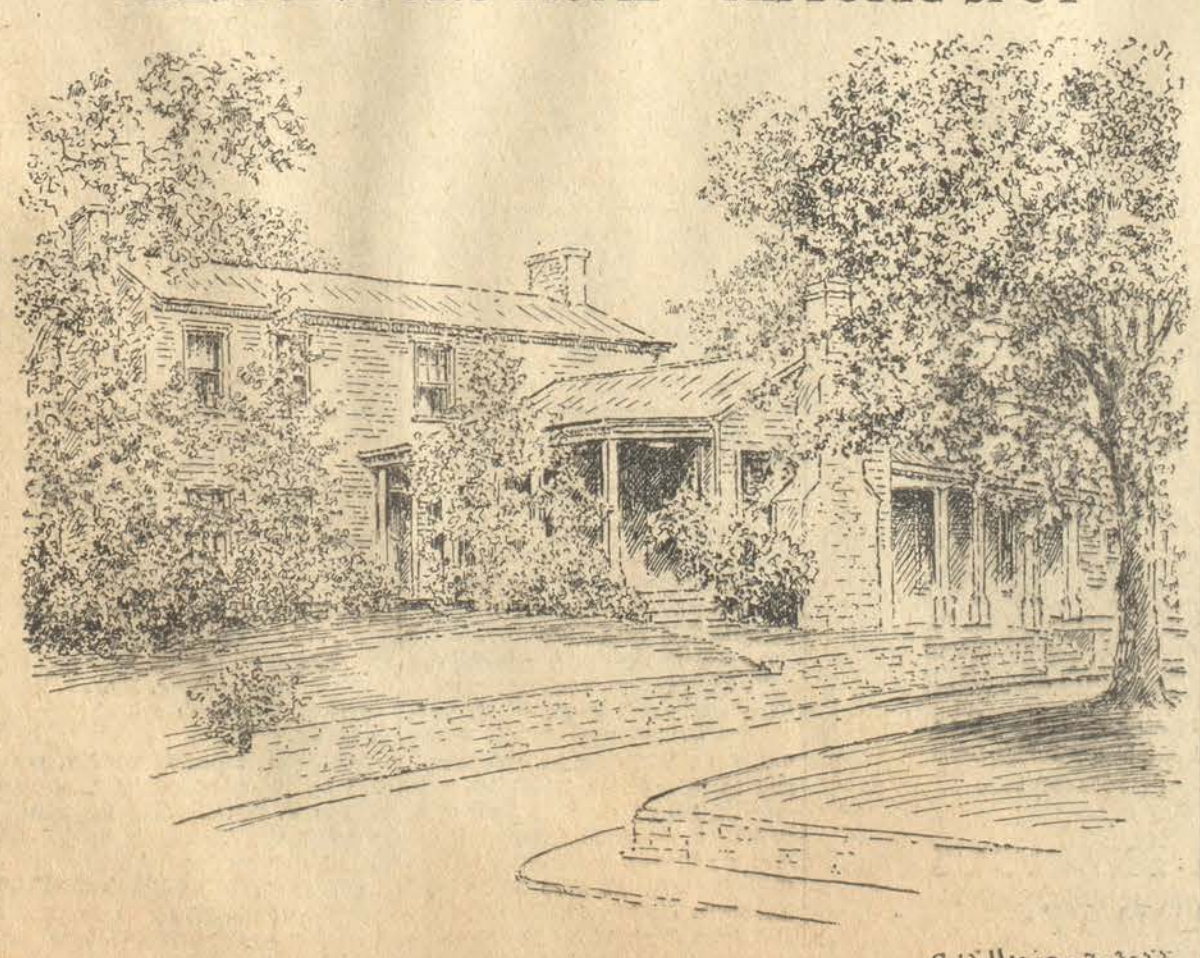

If these 13 steps don't ruin your town, it isn't your fault.

Washington, Aug. 17—Admiral Ross T. McIntire, personal physician to the late President Roosevelt, today was appointed a member of the American Red Cross' medical advisory committee. McIntire is now a private doctor in Chicago and Coronado, Cal.

PRESTONSBURG HOME—HISTORIC SPOT

Garfield Place, Prestonsburg home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude P. Stephens, was featured several weeks ago on The Cincinnati Enquirer's editorial page. A sketch by Caroline Williams, Burlington, Ky., (reproduced above through the courtesy of the artist and The Enquirer) was accompanied by the following legend:

"In Cincinnati 'Garfield Place' means a street and a statue of the country's 20th President, but in Prestonsburg, Ky., the name is given to a rambling old house that served as Garfield's headquarters during his Big Sandy campaign. He was Col. James A. Garfield at the time and it was here, just outside of Prestonsburg, that he won the battle of Middle Creek and prevented the Confederate forces from carrying out their plans to descend the Ohio River to Cincinnati. Garfield was made a general for his success in this campaign."

IT'S A GOOD WORLD

(The views expressed herein do not necessarily reflect the views of The Times.)

For some time numerous citizens in the county have been interested in seeing arts and crafts started here. At last the hopes of various ones are beginning to materialize. The unique part of it is that different ones who are starting several aspects of such a program had no knowledge that others were working along similar lines.

Prestonsburg Woman's Club has announced courses available to its members. Wayne Ratliff, county school supervisor, announces that Prof. Tom Young, of Morehead Teachers' College, will open a class in Fine Arts at the Martin school, first meeting Friday, Sept. 16, at 6 p.m. Everyone is welcome to enroll.

While many wish to study to beautify their homes or to develop hobbies, numbers trust the program will eventually include the handicapped and underprivileged, who could earn pin money this way, selling products or articles at Dewey Lake, in stores or roadside markets.

For years Mrs. John Roberts, county T.B. nurse, has discussed such a program (as a means to assist the needy) with various leaders throughout the county. Girl Scouts have been taught basketry by Mrs. Otis Spurlock, who will also demonstrate for clubs and other groups, if asked. Mrs. Elby Frost, of Martin, has asked to learn basketry, to teach it in DVBS work next summer. If a generation of young girls learn, ten years from now the county will have enough to teach the underprivileged, if not before.

Native willow and honeysuckle are available for basketry. Many materials usually discarded can be utilized for countless purposes that are gainful. Mrs. Winnie Johns suggests making plaques of wood, tiles, or trivets, and other articles. Wood-carving for boys and girls has been suggested.

Mrs. Johns, of Prestonsburg, Mrs. Rebecca Harmon, of Allen, and Mrs. Dora Blair, of Lanes, can teach weaving. The Wayland-Lackey-Garrett Woman's Club is noted for beautiful piecing of quilts and also quilting. Mrs. C. J. Cahill, of Drift, quilts beautifully. Mrs. A. H. Aders, of Hi Hat, and Mrs. Victor Reitz, of Allen, do braided rugs. Mrs. Grover Lowe, and Mrs. Phil Schroeder, of Prestonsburg, do hooked rugs. Davie Prater, of Bonanza, does leather work. Mrs. Herbert Ley, of Prestonsburg, teaches linoleum block printing. Mrs. Alvin Reed, of Drift, knits well. Anyone knowing persons who can make old-time handwoven mountain coverlets, or "kivvers" are asked to notify Mrs. Ivan Reed, of Drift. Also send her names of any individuals who can do candletufting, and of those who make small objects suitable for souvenirs, regardless of what they are.

Organizations desiring speakers on the Arts-Crafts program may contact any one of the following: Homer Wright or Rex Osborn, of Prestonsburg. Miss Blanche Dingus, of Hite. Mrs. Lewis Campbell, of Allen. Mrs. John Roberts, of Prestonsburg. Mrs. Herbert Ley, of Prestonsburg. Mrs. Winnie Johns, of Prestonsburg. Other names on request.

If you wish an exhibit of hand-made articles for display in your town for a few days, contact Mrs. Ivan Reed, of Drift, late this month. Tune in Saturday at 9:30 on WPRP to hear some of these leaders discuss this program. Kindly send some of them the names of highly skilled persons you know who are gifted in arts and crafts.

Do not miss seeing STAY ON STRANGER, the short film from Cavaleade of America, the brief story of Mrs. Alice S. Lloyd, of Caney Creek. It will bring more than one lump to your throat, especially when you pause to think that she has given her life here, we give so little to Caney in return. Looking over the fine group at Homecoming, one feels that had only one succeeded, Mrs. Lloyd's efforts have been repaid, but many, many splendid men and women from every walk of life, from every profession, prove the real value of her magnificent sacrifice and wonderful efforts to educate mountain youth. All Eastern Kentucky should do something for Caney in her lifetime.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

By James Taylor Adams

Smartest Man of His Day

Funny how one thing leads to another.

Some months ago there appeared in this column a story, as narrated by one John Morgan Lipps, of Wise, Virginia, concerning a haunted house at Mendota, Virginia, which had been rented from Peter Barker by the said Lipps, because, said Mr. Lipps, Mr. Barker "stood it just as long as he could." The climax of the piece came with Mr. Lipps sitting up with the ghost and catching it at its haunting; and it proved to be a big blacksnake which Mr. Barker had brought in from his fields to catch mice about the place.

The result was that some of Mr. Barker's descendants took issue with Mr. Lipps' version of the story; and, an investigation on this writer's part, developed a story of one of the most outstanding citizens and most interesting characters in Southwestern Virginia.

Peter Livingston Barker, I find, was born at Mendota, Washington county, Virginia, on April 18, 1858, son of William B. Barker, and named for Peter Livingston, an early settler in the vicinity of Mendota and a man who became famous as the husband of the woman who was carried away captive from her home by Benge, the half-breed Indian, who was killed by Capt. Vincent Hobbs near the city of Norton, who was a member of the company organized by Peter Livingston to assist in rescuing his wife from Benge and his savages.

Peter Livingston Barker was educated in the public schools of Washington county and the Hamilton Institute, now Hamilton high school. Mr. Barker was not the superstitious character which the story, as told by Mr. Lipps, made him out. In fact, my research has proven him to have been the very opposite in every respect. One Mendota citizen declared him to have been "the smartest man of this part of the country for his day."

When Mr. Barker had finished at Hamilton Institute, he studied law. But he did not practice the profession in courts, contenting himself with giving legal advice to his neighbors; and it is said that he kept many cases out of court and made peace among his disagreeing friends and neighbors by his knowledge of law and his spirit of good will and understanding of human nature. People from distant sections of the country fell into the habit of coming to him for legal advice which was freely given.

By profession Mr. Barker was a civil engineer and he served as a notary public for the better years of his life. He was the "writing man" for the Mendota neighborhood; and the citizens, for miles around brought their trades and professions to him to be transcribed ed to paper, sealed and recorded. Not only this, but he wrote thousands upon thousands of family letters for folks who could not write or who were slow with the pen or pencil. Few secrets were kept from Peter Livingston around Mendota; but he, it is said, never in all his life betrayed a trust. That was why the youngsters of the neighborhood had no qualms about getting him to write their love letters.

When Peter Livingston was 21, he was appointed a Notary Public, and he held that office continuously until his death on December 22, 1938. Early in life he was commissioned postmaster at Mendota, which office he held for several years; and which office is now presided over by Mrs. Margaret Litton. He also served as mayor of Mendota for several years and was in office, as such, at the time of his death.

Peter Barker was famous as a Bible student. One person who knew him well, said "he knew the Bible by heart." He often predicted things to come. Mrs. Litton tells me that he would often say to her, concerning events to come, "Margaret, you will live to see this come to pass, but Daddy will be gone." The daughter went on to say that his predictions of things to come always proved true.

"Daddy," said Mrs. Litton, "was a most kindly man. No one was ever turned from his door, and any one needing help knew to whom to go in any want or distress.

"I never expected to hear of John Lipps again. The man and his family were in hard luck when Daddy took them in and let them live in his house without charge. If he heard a ghost or found a blacksnake in the house, I never heard of it. I know that Daddy was not afraid of ghosts, I have nothing to say against John Lipps or his family. I do know that he came of a good family."

In addition to Mrs. Litton, Peter Barker reared a family of three sons and a daughter. The sons are Rev. Paul Barker, Mendota; William Thomas Barker, Cincinnati, Ohio, and John Pershing Barker, Bristol. The other daughter is the wife of Police Chief John W. Stover of Bristol.

The black shank tobacco disease was spread along almost all streams in Garrard county; floods also spread the disease.

Foxhunters and Wives Hold 2nd Annual Outing

The second annual outing of Floyd county foxhunters and their wives at Adams, on Big Blaine Creek, Lawrence county, was held last Saturday night. A basket supper was taken along and the men had an all-night hunt. In the morning breakfast was prepared by their wives. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. George Belcher, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Harris and Martha Ann, Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso Herald, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Burchett, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Burchett, and Wade Oliver Burchett.

DAVID

AIDS GIRL SCOUTS, RETARDED TOTS

The David Woman's Club held its regular monthly meeting September 13 at 7:30 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Lois Perkins. The president, Mrs. John Straton, presided. For the devotional, Mrs. Perkins read an interesting version of the 23 Psalm written by a missionary for Indian children. Mrs. Clark, chairman, gave a report on the library which was founded by the Club two years ago. The Club voted to employ a librarian for two hours each Saturday morning in order that the school children would have better access to the library.

Mrs. Crawford asked for volunteers for Brownie and Girl Scout Troup Leaders and Mrs. Nova Bussey and Mrs. Mathis volunteered to take a Brownie Troup. Members of the Club have been aiding at the School for Retarded Children every Monday for several months. The following volunteered to aid during the winter months: Mesdames Crawford, Howard, Camicia, Marshall, Nova Bussey, June Capelli, Willis and McKinney. The president announced that Mr. Spears is ready to start a course in first aid for club members. The business session was closed and Mrs. Ora Bussey presented an interesting program on Civil Defense. The co-hostesses, Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Clark, served refreshments.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our deepest appreciation to our many friends and neighbors who were so kind and considerate upon the occasion of the death of our son and brother, Morgan Greenville Stephens, and for every courtesy extended us through flowers and other services. Especially are we thankful to the ministers, Revs. Harold W. Dorsey and Floyd Laferty, and the Carter and Callahan Funeral Home for its kind and efficient services.

Culture of Hill-Folk Affected by 'Outside'

By G. M. HALE

Hillbilly is a title or epithet applied to the hill-folk of Eastern Kentucky. It is intended as a slur on their morals, education, and way of life.

We are not ashamed of being hill-folk, but we do resent the stigma which is implied by those who use the name Hillbilly. We are not ashamed of our ancestors reaching back in a direct line to the best blood of England, neither are we ashamed of our immediate forbears who came over the mountains to carve out homes and a manner of life in the wilds of these hills. We are not ashamed that our blood is not tinged with any other than the pure Anglo-Saxon strain.

It is no mark of infamy or disgrace to have grown up among the hills. It is no disgrace that our forefathers were poor, having not the advantage of a literary education. Their books were few but good and clean. Every family had its Bible and in the most part, lived by it. The Bible, a parentage of good stock, and the language of the forests were teachers unexcelled. Our people may have been uncouth, lacking social accomplishments, but they lived in an environment not cluttered with the modern whims of society.

The study of the Bible and the knowledge gained by the companionship of nature's wooded hills recalls the words of David, who said: "I will lift up my eyes to the hills from whence cometh my strength." In no other section of this broad land is to be found a truer Anglo-Saxon lineage than is found here. And this truth becomes very obvious when one begins to examine the circumstances peculiar to this region. A look at a map and a study of the topography of this section reveal the unique position of a few counties covering a territory commonly called the foothills of the Cumberland.

Fenced in by the wall of the Cumberland mountains on the east and the long, wide sweep of the Ohio valley on the north, this region enclosed by natural barriers became a secluded area peculiar in outline. It was a virtual eddy, passed by on two sides by the great cavalcade of migration to the West.

Only a few hardy souls, fired by the spirit of adventure braved the dangers of skulking Indians, came over the mountains to found homes in this wilderness. Their fathers had pioneered the settlements of Virginia and North Carolina. It was from those colonies—states later—that our ancestors came.

How do we know? Our grandfathers related to us what their grandfathers told them; and that goes back to, or beyond the birth of our nation and that is about the time homes in this particular region were first established.

The first pioneers, coming as hunters, penetrated as far as the Bluegrass, the habitat of the buffalo. Glowing tales told of this region by returning hunters led early settlers to that section. They came over the mountains by way of the Cumberland Gap—later known as the Wilderness Road—or by canoe down the Ohio river.

It was several decades later before homes were established in the hills, the locale of the Hillbilly. This immediate region covers five or six counties drained by the upper reaches of the Kentucky, Licking, and Big Sandy rivers. Emigrants coming over The Wilderness Road, which skirts the region on the south, did not stop in the hills but continued on to the more inviting Bluegrass.

Later, when the Red Men had been driven out, settlers came directly over the mountains and established homes in the more inviting valleys of these hills. In progress of time every likely valley had a home which later developed into a community built around a water mill, a blacksmith shop, and maybe a log cabin for church and school.

These were the forerunners of the Hillbillies. These were the hardy farmers who took root in the soil to become the solid citizens of a new state. The land they occupied became theirs by right of tenure.

A hundred years came and went. During this time sons of one little community sought and married daughters of another community and settled in other valleys. In a great sense each valley was populated by the offspring of the original settler. After a few generations each little community had spread to the borders of another, melting into a population common to the whole area.

Roughly speaking, the population was cohesive for a hundred and fifty years. The people held fast to their homes. They did not move about, had little or no contact with the outside world. Each home was a forge or factory and each farmer was a mechanic, who improvised tools for his farm, spinning wheel and weaver's loom.

The hill folk were generous, benevolent, and hospitable. Their doors were always open to the wayfarer, the widow or orphan. No one was ever denied the crumb of comfort. No charge ever was made for a night's lodging. To put a price on the little necessities of life, such as milk and butter, a few spoons of coffee, or a cut of meat to season a mess of beans—to make a charge for these little things was to commit a crime akin to sacrilege.

The burden of one was the burden of all. They assisted one another in clearing ground, rolling logs, and building homes. They stood shoulder to shoulder in all their undertakings. Together they subdued the wilderness and carved out a little commonwealth of their own, dedicated to their own peculiar way of life. All through the years the world passed them by and rolled on to fairer fields, leaving them unmolested in their mountain fastness.

As mentioned before, these were the people who descended from the best stock of the Anglo-Saxon. Their blood was pure as a mountain stream. No foreigner of another race or nationality had come to settle among them, to corrupt their blood or morals.

Sometime near the middle of the Nineteenth Century a slight mutual trade was established with the outside world. They found a market for the good timber they had been destroying in the process of clearing their farms. This was their first business encounter beyond their borders. The fine logs they had been burning were now bound together into rafts and floated to market. With the proceeds they bought supplies for their farms and freighted them home in small steam packets that plied the streams. This was their undoing, the beginning of the end of their quiet, smooth, way of life.

The prospectors came to spy on their holdings. Tests were made for coal, oil, and gas. Their findings were not made known. They went away and left the land owner guessing. The years rolled on. Hopes of the farmer faded and blinked out. Another generation passed. The uneventful life of the hill-folk moved on. Not conscious of the wealth buried in the soil, they still scratched the surface for a living.

The moneyed man elected to wait for a favorable time. It arrived about three quarters of a century ago. Then he came, quietly and without fanfare, secured title to the wealth of the hills, for a few dollars. The unwitting farmer did not realize what had happened to him until many years later.

It is said, "The mills of the gods grind slowly." This seems to be an example of the tactics of the unholly gods of commerce. Not until the coming of the coal tippie and driller's rigs and the exploitation of the natural wealth of his soil had been set in motion, did the mountaineer realize his loss.

It was not before exploitation was well underway and the news had been proclaimed abroad, that the outlying population learned of the wealth locked up in these hills. News quickly spread and rumors flourished. The great flood of emigration which had swirled around this region and flowed on, now began a back-wash—the tide had turned. Wave after wave of people of uncertain lineage washed in from the North, from the South and West—men of many bloods and many nationalities. Each wave carried a freight of fifty, a hundred, until, eventually thousands flooded our country. They were of every stock, strain and stratum of society.

Those immigrants in a great measure, were honest laborers seeking employment and potential citizenship. Many found homes and became a cultural asset to their neighborhood. Others were the riff-raff of out-lying towns and cities, the scum of society who came, to catch in the net of their trades, the guileless, unsuspecting citizen. Of all the professions that came, they came to have a part in the exploitation of the wealth of the hills—the lost bonanza of the hill-billy. The unwary hill folk were easy picking for the professional shyster, for as yet, they had not been schooled in the trickery of the world.

The influx of population was made up of people of many cultures and varied standards of morals. On this account there was a corruption of blood and confusion of cultures. The hill-folk lost their identity as such, by absorbing the ideals and culture of the new-comers.

Whether the culture of the hills was advanced or retarded through this process of blending is beside the point. What is to be emphasized is that the people of the hills, through the process of fusion, lost their quiet, easy-going way of life. And when the flood walls were down, customs, and concepts sought a common level.

Little by little the mixing of manners and customs spread throughout the hills. The old folk grudgingly surrendered the staid, sedate life for the frivolous new.

Now this story slips a cog and plunges sixty years later, pulling up at the present time. We are startled to find a new world, a world on wheels, on wings, and on a spree, scrambling for new things. Now milk and butter are sold for a price, the stranger pays for his bed, and Aunt Sue returns the cut of bacon.

To the outside world, we say, don't call us hillbillies or you'll be slapping yourself in the face.

Mrs. Browning, Second Ky. Woman To Be Named Grand Conductress, Next To Head World Organization

Mrs. Iley Baker Browning, of Ashland, formerly of Prestonsburg, was elected grand worthy associate grand conductress of the Order of the Eastern Star general grand chapter, at Washington, D. C. last week.

It is the second time for a Kentuckian to win that office since the general grand chapter was organized in 1892.

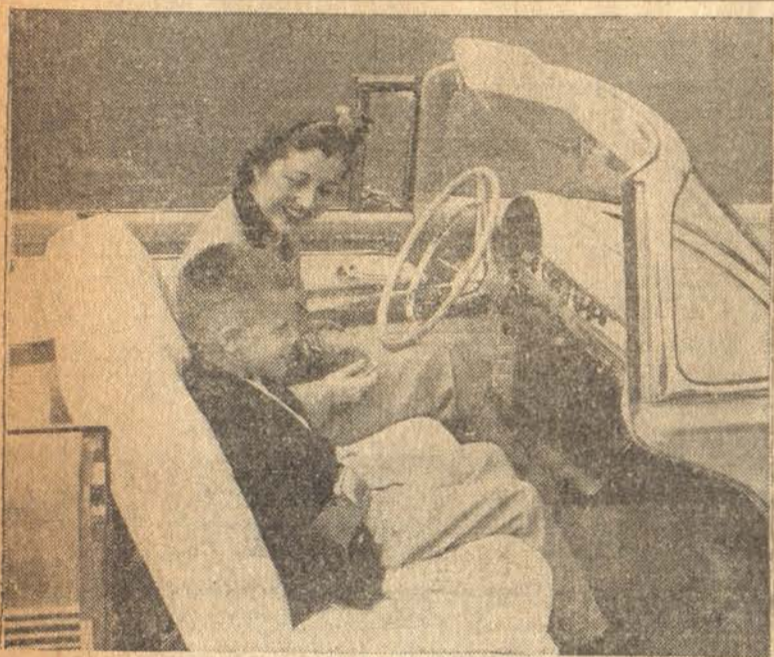

The order was fathered by a Kentuckian, Bob Morris, of La-Grange.

Mrs. Browning's election at the triennial session was unanimous. It puts her in line for most worthy grand matron, head of the body that holds jurisdiction over the order all over the world.

Mrs. Browning has been a member of Eastern Star since girlhood. She is a past matron of Adah Chapter, Prestonsburg, one of the oldest in Kentucky. She has held many offices in her own chapter and in the Grand Chapter of Kentucky. Several years ago she was installed worthy grand organist of the General Grand Chapter in session at Toronto, Canada, and when the Grand Chapter met in Milwaukee was named to two important places in the world organization—a member of the Ritual Committee and right worthy grand trustee.

The Kentucky Guernsey Breeders Association will hold a sale at Lexington Oct. 14.

A trench silo to hold 800 tons of feed has been made on the Croyle Farm in Nicholas county.

LIFEGUARD DESIGN—A mother makes sure that her son is securely seated in a 1936 Ford Sunliner. The new Fords, which will be shown to the public Friday (September 23) incorporate five safety features in a "lifeguard design" intended to reduce chances of accidental injury. On all new Fords, safety-designed steering wheels, door latches and rear view mirrors are standard equipment. Wheels are designed to absorb force if the driver is thrown forward, reducing the chance his chest might strike the steering column hub. Safety door latches (lower left) will resist crash impact, and help keep passengers inside the car where they are twice as safe, according to research figures. Mirrors have a special backing to help prevent shattering. Optional seat belts will withstand up to 4,000 pounds of force. Optional crash cushions for instrument panels and sun visors will provide added protection if a passenger is thrown forward.

Non-Profit Organization Proposed by Henry Ward At Louisville Convention

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 19 (Spl.)—Creation of a non-profit operating organization to manage Kentucky state park facilities was proposed in an address here today by Henry Ward, state commissioner of conservation.

Ward's suggestions were outlined in an address on state parks at the annual convention here of the American Institute of Park Executives.

"The people of Kentucky have many millions of their dollars invested in state parks and their facilities, and they are entitled to the best possible management which can be provided," Ward declared. "Handing of the parks as political patronage is the surest way to stop the progress which has been made in recent years and to halt further beneficial development."

Ward said that he had planned to work for the creation of the operating organization in connection with a proposed $3,650,000 revenue bond issue for the construction of new facilities in the state parks.

"It is most likely that revenue bonds could not be sold without assurance to the bondholders that the facilities financed out of their sale would be operated on a business-like basis, with provisions for continuity of sound operating policies," Ward added.

"It is my personal belief that such an operating arrangement would be improvement over the plans now in effect. I am proud of the recognition which has come to us for the progress we have made and the manner in which we have operated state parks for the past eight years, but I also am willing to admit that there are defects which exist under the present system.

"The most disastrous effect of the present system is that there can be no assurance of continuity of policies and personnel which make for good state park operations, as well as good operations in any other business endeavor," Ward continued.

"Furthermore, the present system provides no guarantee that profits from the state park facilities will be used in the public interest. It is my firm belief that such profits derived from investments of the taxpayers money should be used to operate and maintain the parks and to make improvements in them. There has been much discussion lately that the state parks might be leased out to private interests, and I feel that this would be very much against the public interest, for two very good reasons.

"The first reason is that any private operator who got a concession at a state park through politics would have to assume that he had only four years, and therefore would be encouraged to get his while the getting was good. Maintenance of properties and operations in the best interests of the public and as a part of the broad program to increase the tourist business in Kentucky could well be forgotten under such an arrangement.

"The second reason that I oppose such a plan is that I believe that the profits which can be made from

5th MAYTOWN FLOWER SHOW HAS VARIED ATTRACTIONS

Mrs. Edgar May, of Warco, and Mrs. Goldia Osborne, of Eastern, shared top honors in the Maytown Woman's Club's fifth fall flower show. Mrs. May was awarded an engraved loving cup for the most outstanding arrangement in the entire show with an arrangement featuring Crown of Thorn branches in a low yellow container with yellow Chinese figurines displayed in front of a red velvet panel. Mrs. Osborne's arrangement was of Better Times Roses in a natural wood-stemmed container.

Other prize winners were Hugh Rowland, best men's entry, and Freddie Reed, best child's entry. All prize winners were displayed in the Martin Drug Store following the show.

The judges were Henry C. Hagen, head of the Agriculture department of Morehead State College, and H. D. Patton, Morehead florist. Mr. Hagen told the audience in an informal talk following the musical that this year's show far surpassed former shows and that the overall improvement was amazing.

There were 211 entries this year in the 19 classes, with blue, red and white ribbons being awarded for first, second and third places. The names of the winners appear in that order.

Asters—Mrs. Edgar May, Mrs. Gorman Collins and Mrs. Roy Martin. Marigolds—Mrs. Pete Wicker, Mrs. Thomas Flannery, and Mrs. S. J. Tallent. Roses—Mrs. Goldia Osborne, Mrs. Goldia Osborne and Jennifer Martin. Miniature bouquets—Mrs. Hugh Rowland, Mrs. Ed Stewart and Mrs. Roy Martin. Zinnias—Mrs. Thomas Flannery, Mrs. Ed Sutton, and Mrs. Roy Martin. Dish gardens—Mrs. S. J. Tallent, Mrs. Fletcher Gayheart, and Mrs. S. J. Tallent. Cacti—Mrs. Ima Rowe, Mrs. Ed Stewart, and Alice Manuel. African violets—Bonnie Hopson, Mrs. Hugh Rowland and Mrs. Hugh Rowland. Large arrangements—Mrs. James B. Click, and Mrs. Mary C. Jones. Tithonia—Mrs. S. J. Tallent, Mrs. S. J. Tallent and Mrs. Ed Stewart.

Mixed bouquets—Mrs. Ed Stewart, Mrs. Thomas Flannery and Mrs. Roy Martin. Men's entries—Hugh Rowland, Edgar May, Edgar May, Dried arrangements—Mrs. Thomas Flannery, Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, and Mrs. Pete Wicker. Dahlias—Mrs. Edgar May, Mrs. Edgar May and Mrs. Thomas Flannery. Children's entries—Freddie Reed, Jimmy Ison and Jennifer Martin. Special arrangements—Mrs. Lois Martin, Mrs. Ed Sutton, and Mrs. Thomas Flannery. Petunias—Mrs. James Allen, Mrs. Roy Martin, and Mrs. Roy Martin. Artistic arrangements—Mrs. Edgar May, Mrs. Edgar May and Mrs. Thomas Flannery. Miscellaneous group—Mrs. John Ison, Miss Sandra Patrick, and Mrs. Ed Stewart.

The table settings, added to this year's show, drew as much attention as the flower arrangements.

the state park facilities—which I know are there because we are making them now—should go to the public rather than into the pockets of private individuals."

Ward said that he has studied the various methods under which both state and national parks have been operated, and has concluded that the best is the one under which facilities at Mammoth Cave and several other national parks are operated. They are leased to a non-profit organization called National Park Concessions, Inc., the directors of which include a number of officials of the National Park Service and officials of the organization. Any profit from operations must be expended on improvements in the parks.

"Such an arrangement makes possible the application of good business practices to the operation of the park facilities, and provides an assurance of continuity of good management which is essential to the success of any venture," Ward said.

"The need for such an arrangement is apparent in Kentucky now," he continued. "The state park program was made a major issue in the Democratic primary campaign, much to my personal regret and to the detriment of the parks. What will happen to the state park program in the future is now a very clouded question. It is assumed by practically every person working in the parks now they will be replaced under the political change, and many of our best people are already quitting for other jobs. No one can blame them for that.

"Operating state parks has come to be big business. Their income now is over $2,000,000 a year. It is in the public interest that they be operated in a business-like fashion, and I am convinced that cannot happen under political management. "I also am convinced that leadership for the development of the best plan for developing and operating the parks must come from outside the realm of political office-seekers and office-holders, and that a deep and continuing interest in them should be maintained by those who have no personal axes to grind," Ward declared.

The Kentucky Experiment Station says $25 worth of potash brought increased tobacco yields worth $388.

WATKINS TO PREACH

Bishop William T. Watkins, of Louisville, will preach at the First Methodist church, Sunday, at 10 a.m., according to Harold W. Dorsey, pastor. Watkins is resident bishop of the Louisville area of the church which includes this section.

Bishop Watkins, a native of Georgia, has studied in American and foreign universities. Since being ordained a deacon in 1918, he has served pastorates in Georgia, was professor of church history at Emory University, elected bishop of the church in 1938 and assigned to St. Louis, and served some time in South Carolina.

Watkins is author of "Out of Aldersgate", a biography of John Wesley, and of several religious booklets and articles in religious journals.

Johnson Homicide Case Continued by Agreement

The trial of Irvin Napier, 30, in the Johnson circuit court on a charge of slaying Jack Dempsey Miles with a butcher knife was continued by agreement last week.

M. O. Wheeler, attorney for the defense, and Commonwealth's Attorney Bill Johnson and Claude P. Stephens, of Prestonsburg, special assistant, told the court that an important witness to appear for both sides was missing.

Miles was fatally knifed at Whitehouse, 12 miles northeast of Paintsville, August 30.

The slain man's father employed Stephens, a former U.S. district attorney, to aid the prosecution.

Broiler chicken houses are being built on about 20 farms in Pulaski county.

WHAS SLATES 2nd 'CRUSADE'

Two Retarded Children From Floyd To Appear In Saturday Program

Again this year Radio Station WHAS, Louisville, is conducting its "Crusade for Children," beginning at 10 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 24, and continuing through 2 p.m., Sunday, it was announced this week.

Two retarded children from Floyd county who have benefitted from the training received in classes made possible by the $2,000 grant made following last year's Crusade will appear on the television portion of the marathon program. The Crusade will feature on both television and radio stars of stage, screen, radio and television.

The Floyd county children will be accompanied to Louisville by their teacher, Mrs. Joe Begley, and Mr. Begley, of Boldman. Floyd county boys who are interested in help for handicapped youngsters are being asked to listen to the program (it cannot be viewed via television in this part of the state), and to contribute to the Crusade.

A. H. Mandt, of Mantion, chairman of the Floyd County Council for Retarded Children, said this week that the Council is applying for a second grant of funds with which to continue the work begun this year.

Information regarding the progress of agencies and institutions which received grants from the 1954 WHAS "Crusade for Children" has been released by Victor A. Sholis, vice-president and director of WHAS, Inc. The second quarterly reports containing the information cover expenditures and activities through August 31, 1955.

The Crusade is dedicated to raising funds for the extension and improvement of care and services now provided mentally and physically handicapped children of Kentucky and Southern Indiana.

Incorporated only last January, the Floyd County Council for Retarded Children received a $2,000 grant from the 1954 WHAS "Crusade for Children" which enabled it to launch its program by instituting a series of monthly clinics to screen youngsters and determine the nature of their handicaps. Eighteen children have been examined and given various treatment during five clinic sessions.

A school was opened June 13 for a daily summer session with an average of eight retarded children in attendance. Five of the children are Mongoloids, three have simple retardation complicated by psychiatric problems, one is an epileptic, and two suffer hearing and speech defects.

"During the summer," The Floyd Council reported, we devoted most of our effort toward social development, language development, and appreciation of group work and play. Progress in these areas has been great. Children who would hardly respond to any approach are now laughing, talking and singing together. Two of our children have made marked progress in primary reading and writing. With one exception, all our regular students have learned to recognize their own names when written, and to copy them.

"Our regular fall and winter session began August 30, with three hours each day, five days a week. We will soon be in our own house with ample recreational facilities, privacy for individual lessons, and other conveniences. Provisions have been made for hot lunches for those children who need them," the Council reports.

Mrs. Begley, the teacher hired for the school, attended a three-week workshop at the University of Kentucky College of Education this summer which was made possible by another 1954 WHAS "Crusade for Children" grant.

Among the stars of stage, screen, radio and television who will combine their talents to entertain television viewers and radio listeners of the Crusade are Eydie Gorme, Don Cherry, Randy Atcher and the Red River Ramblers, Jim Walton, Bud Abbott and many other WHAS radio and television personalities. WHAS officials also are contacting several other nationally famous personalities in regard to appearing on the Crusade.

In order to facilitate the making of Crusade pledges this year, a WHAS Crusade Pledge Center has been set up in Lexington. You may join the 1955 WHAS "Crusade for Children" by calling Lexington 96235. Volunteers from the Lexington Junior League will receive the calls at the Pledge Center.

New Landing System For Naval Aircraft On Carriers Tested

A new system of landing aircraft at sea with mirrors and colored lights underwent its first tests last month on the Navy attack aircraft carrier USS Bennington.

Based on an idea developed by the British Navy, the new landing system consists of a large concave mirror and banks of green and amber lights mounted on the port side of a carrier's angled flight deck.

About 150 feet astern of the mirror is another row of lights, amber in color, which are reflected as an image or "blob" of light. It is the image in relation to side reference lights which the pilot sees when making a landing.

As the pilot approaches the flight deck for a landing, the position of the lights and an image in the mirror indicate whether his glide path, speed and altitude are in proper relation to each other for a safe landing.

The new system, for both day and night operations, is known as the "deck landing mirror sight". The combination may eventually replace the Landing Signal Officer who now brings the pilot and his aircraft to a landing with the use of hand-held paddles or lights.

With the advent of jet aviation and the increased size and speed of modern aircraft, carrier operations have become more demanding on the LSO's abilities.

According to Commander Amerigo J. Vesovi, project officer for the tests, "the new system not only reduces the elements of human error, but also gives quick and accurate signals to the pilot—literally with the speed of light. It also allows the pilot to pick up a reference signal at a far greater distance."

tinued, is one way the March of Dimes assures that the lives and usefulness of polio patients everywhere in the country can be saved.

The check received by Floyd Chapter will help meet long-overdue back bills for providing treatment and equipment for polio patients in this area, he said. He predicted that because many of these patients will continue to need help, the chapter would be forced to ask for additional funds in the near future.

"The financial burden our chapter has had to assume is unfortunately shared with others," Mr. Howard said. "Destitute National Foundation chapters will need an estimated $8,000,000 from Headquarters to meet patient care bills for the remainder of this year."

"Our present situation may be the lot of other communities next year. It is hoped that the money we have received can be returned to National Foundation headquarters from contributions to the next March of Dimes in January of 1956 for assistance to other chapters in need."

"The promise of the Salk vaccine is bright, but the full realization of that promise is for the future. As we in Floyd county know only too well, polio isn't licked yet."

Johnson-co. Magistrate Sues Sheriff McKenzie For $35,000 in Damages

Magistrate Vern Conley, of Johnson county, last week filed a $35,000 suit for damages against Johnson Sheriff H. L. McKenzie, claiming permanent injuries had been inflicted on him by the Sheriff in an altercation July 22, last. Conley is represented by Joe P. Tackett, Prestonsburg attorney. McKenzie, the only Democrat in the county administration, pleaded guilty in circuit court Tuesday to a charge of assault and battery on the magistrate and was fined $500.

The civil suit, also named the sheriff's bonding agency, the Employers Liability Assurance Corporation of Massachusetts.

In the attack, Conley allegedly was struck over his left eye with a soft-drink bottle.

Jailer's Primary Duty To Care for the Jail

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 19 — It is the primary duty of the jailer of a county to care for a jail and for his deputy to do likewise, rather than to assign a deputy jailer to ride about the county to make arrests, Assistant Attorney General Earle V. Powell advised a Harlan county magistrate.

While jailers and their deputies have the power to make arrests "these powers are incidental to his duties" in connection with the jail. "If a deputy jailer is needed and there is sufficient work to keep him busy in and around the jail, he should not go about the county acting as a sheriff or policeman. If he has enough time on his hands to roam around the county then there was no reason for appointing him a deputy jailer," Powell wrote.

Gardner, UK Specialist In Vegetable Gardening, Has Change of Status

John S. Gardner has contributed his final newspaper article as field agent in vegetable gardening to the Extension Service of the University of Kentucky.

In 34 years of service to both town and country gardeners, Mr. Gardner wrote 1,360 newspaper articles giving details of growing vegetables through the season. His suggestions were read and followed by hundreds of garden owners in this and other states.

In addition to his newspaper articles, he wrote bulletins, circulars and leaflets dealing with successful gardening, and often addressed garden groups or spoke over the radio. He visited every county in Kentucky many times.

Mr. Gardner commanded the respect of older vegetable growers, homemakers clubs and organizations of farmers, as well as of the younger groups of 4-H club members and Future Farmers, said Dean Frank J. Welch of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics. He was an outstanding leader and teacher for all individuals and groups interested in gardening.

Commercial vegetable growing which received valuable aid from Mr. Gardner included the pickle industry in Ohio, Meade and other river counties, sweet potatoes in the Purchase region of the western part of the state, vegetables and potatoes in Jefferson county, and general gardening in many other regions.

Educated in Pennsylvania and Missouri, with practical garden experience in both states, Mr. Gardner has served the people of Kentucky since April 1, 1921.

While he is discontinuing the strenuous work of extension field agent in vegetable gardening, Mr. Gardner will remain at the University on a part time basis, in what is known as "change of status" capacity.

SISK ASSISTS SCOUT DRIVE

Scout Executive Plan State Fund Campaign; Goal Set at $250,000

Final plans are being made this week by the Scout executives of Kentucky, meeting at the National Conference of the Boy Scouts of America, for the state-wide co-ordinated finance campaign of the Boy Scouts to be held the month of October.

Dr. A. A. Page, president of Pikeville College, is drive chairman in Lonesome Pine Council.

Approximately $250,000.00 will be raised by the seven Boy Scout Councils serving the Kentucky area this year. The drive coincides with the Community Chest campaigns all over the state, but does not in any way conflict with Community Chests, since the Boy Scout campaign is being staged in communities not having Community Chests.

The 1956 budget of $250,000.00 serves approximately 40,000 Scouts and Scouters in the state. All money raised in each Council is disbursed by that Council through its Executive Board and Treasurer. No money collected is sent to a state-wide treasurer.

Sidney Rosenblum, long-time worker in state-wide fund-raising activities is serving as chairman of this year co-ordinated campaign. He is being assisted by Mack Sisk, of Frankfort, who is serving as public relations chairman. Each council maintains its own office staff and professional staff of men who give guidance to 3½ million boys and 100,000 volunteer men and women, currently registered in the program, in the nation and community by community. A total of more than 27 million people have been registered participants in the Boy Scouts of America alone.

The best citizens of America believe that the Scouting Program has gone forward toward keeping America free, through its character building and citizenship influences for boys and men.

Cpl. Thacker Commended

Mr. and Mrs. Brucon Thacker, of Langley, Ky., received two letters of commendation of their son, Cpl. Morris Thacker, who is stationed with the Air Force in Chaumont, France. These letters, from Lt. Col. Robert B. Wood, commended Cpl. Thacker "for his initiative, application and attention to duty displayed while on an assignment for the 82nd Engineer Aviation Battalion."

Cpl. Thacker has been in the service for the past 17 months and has been overseas 12 months. He spent some time in Hahn, Germany before reporting for duty in France.

Wetherby Commends UN Proclamation

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 19 — Kentucky, throughout her history, has maintained a "steadfast purpose toward expansion of democratic ideals, one of which is attainment of peace with honor throughout the world." Governor Wetherby declared in proclaiming October 24 as "United Nations Day" and asking for its appropriate observance.

"I urge the people of the Commonwealth to remember the release of wounded and oppressed Americans from Communist prison cells procured by this organization," said the Governor. "On behalf of the people of Kentucky I commend the United Nations for this and other outstanding achievements in the belief that it may be the medium for all mankind to fulfill ever greater destinies."

Milling, Forestry Show
Set For Laurel County;
Two-Day Program Slated

From 4,000 to 5,000 farmers and forest owners are expected to attend the seventh regional Logging, Sawmilling and Forestry Show September 29 and 30 on the Clarence McDaniel farm in Laurel county, Kentucky.

James A. Newman, extension forester of the University of Kentucky, reports that the program for the two days is packed with demonstrations of modern logging and sawmilling machinery and equipment, for both large and small forestry operations. Newman is general chairman of the committee for the show.

An acreage of mature timber on the McDaniel farm has been set aside for in-the-field demonstrations of tree felling, skidding, loading, and sawmilling.

In addition there will be a centrally located "midway" where visitors can see displays featuring machinery, equipment, and educational exhibits.

Forestry is still big business in Kentucky, Newman points out. Forest products harvested annually are valued at 40 million dollars. Landowners have been urged for many years to grow more and better trees, and it is just as important to get the crop of wood harvested in an economical way. At this show, good forestry practices as well as efficient handling and utilization of forest products will be highlighted.

The show site is 6 1/2 miles west of London and 1 1/2 miles south of State Route 80, in Laurel county. The highway nearby will be marked with directions to the show site.

The show is sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Kentucky, in cooperation with other state, regional, and national organizations and agencies.

Interstate Park at Breaks First of Kind in Nation

A 1000-acre park is being developed here where the Russell Fork of the Big Sandy River breaks through the mountains on the Kentucky-Virginia border near Elkhorn City in Pike County...

Special to The Times

Elkhorn City, Ky., Sept. 19 —History is being made in the development of the 100-acre Breaks Interstate Park near here by the sister Commonwealths of Kentucky and Virginia...

Dedication of the park at ceremonies held there on Labor Day marked an important milestone in its development...

For example, Henry Ward, Kentucky Commissioner of Conservation who has been active in promoting the park in recent years and is now a member and secretary of the Breaks Interstate Park Commission...

Ward is a strong advocate of acquiring land needed for the full development of the park and a parkway system along the highways leading to it in Kentucky and Virginia...

"The people also ought recognize that the cost will be involved in the proper development of the Breaks Interstate Park will not be small, and they should be willing to take a bold and broad view of its potentials and not be satisfied with anything short of full development," Ward declares.

There are many strong boosters of the Breaks area as a park, and one of the newest recruits in their ranks is Alben W. Barkley, former vice president of the U. S. and now a U. S. Senator for Kentucky.

Senator Barkley was among the speakers at the Labor Day dedication of the parks. It was his first visit to the Breaks, and he found the view out over the canyons beautiful and awe-inspiring.

He told the gathering that "man's efforts are dwarfed here by Almighty God and a true Christian can worship as devoutly at this spot as in any man-made house of worship."

The park is at the place where the Russell Fork of the Big Sandy River breaks through the Cumberland Mountains forming a gorge that is one of the most breath-taking sights in the whole mountain region.

Cliffs on both sides of the gorge rise some 1,600 feet above the bed of the canyon and the river that drops more than 400 feet while coursing through the mountains for about five miles. Lookout points on the cliffs provide vistas of unexcelled scenic grandeur stretching for miles in an area where the Cherokees once did battle with the Shawnees and where today a railroad tunnels and threads its way through the mountains.

Wild flowers poke their heads through crevices giving color at the proper time of year and springs of clear water are plentiful. Numerous waterfalls are formed as the river takes its swift downward course through the bolder-strewn ravine.

For about as long as the oldest old-timers living in the neighborhood of the Breaks can remember there has been agitation for some sort of a part to take advantage of this scenic wonder. But only in recent years has anything concrete been done about it.

Back in the fall of 1949 a Governor's Tour sponsored by the State of Kentucky and the State Chamber of Commerce visited the site and Earle C. Clements, then governor, told local residents that his administration would build a road to the Breaks, which was then practically inaccessible from the Kentucky side.

Clements built the highway and the present park became a practical project.

The Commonwealths of Kentucky and Virginia agreed on the park as suggested by the Breaks Park Association, an organization of interested citizens living in both states. Legislation approving a pact between the states—necessary under the United States Constitution—was sponsored in Congress in 1953 by Senator Clements, Representative Carl Perkins, of Kentucky's Seventh District and parallel officials from Virginia. Legislatures of both states took action to create the park in 1954.

At the dedication both Barkley and Clements praised Governor Wetherby and his administration in working for the park. Singled out were Wetherby and Ward. Wetherby gave the commission $50,000 from his emergency fund to match an amount given by Virginia in order to get the park started. Ward and the Kentucky Division of Parks did much of the planning.

Today there is a paved highway that takes visitors to both the Kentucky and Virginia sides of the Breaks. These are picnic and parking areas and rest rooms and the best vantage points for scenery are set aside for lookouts.

The land which comprises the present park area was donated to the park commission by the Clinchfield Coal Corporation which still has large holdings in the area.

Ward and other dedication speakers cited the efforts of Kelly J. Day, Pikeville businessman, who has been working for the park probably longer than any other individual, and State Senator M. M. Long, of Virginia who is also a long-time advocate of the park.

Day and State Representative Goebel Newsome, Elkhorn City, are other Kentucky members of the Park Commission.

When Mrs. Louis Kelly, of Washington county was unable to attend her homemakers club meeting, other members taught her how to braid, blend colors and lace the rug that is now room size.

Most Children Get Health Instruction

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 19 (Spl.) — Health instruction was made available to 461,547 of Kentucky's 598,729 public school children during the last school year, it was announced today by Superintendent of Public Instruction Wendell P. Butler.

The information was included in a report of Don C. Bale, director of the Health and Physical Education Division of the State Department of Education.

"More and more, the public is beginning to realize the necessity of a sound program of public health in the public schools," Butler said. "We believe much progress has been made along this line and trust that with full implementation of the school program there will be increasing numbers included within it."

The report also showed that 452,973 immunizations against disease were given to pupils, while 123,805 defects were corrected during the year.

Daily physical education was offered to 205,535 children, and 148,078 medical examinations were given.

Bale said that 123 of the State's 224 school districts are meeting full requirements of the health code.

FUNDS UP

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 19—General fund collections were $10,160,135 for August while road funds receipts totaled $8,082,000—both substantial gains over a year ago, the Department of Revenue and Finance reported. Total general fund collections were $16,242,363 and road fund collections were $12,316,770.85 for the first two-months of the current fiscal year, both up substantially over a year ago.

The increase in receipts is largely due to current collection of the individual income tax.

Cats Lose 19-0 Contest To Hazard Hi Bulldogs

The Prestonsburg Black Cats dropped their first Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference game in two seasons last Friday night in bowing to loop-leader Hazard, 19-0.

During the '54 season the Black Cats romped through the conference without a setback.

Both inexperienced clubs battled to a first period scoreless deadlock, with the Black Cats missing a golden opportunity after pushing the ball to the Bulldog 10 in the first three minutes, but four downs resulted in a two-yard loss.

Midway the second period, the Perry countians missed their first touchdown try. Tackle Don Simor grabbed Lowell McKenzie's fumble on the P'burg 12, but the Black Cat defense tightened and three plays later Lowell Hughes booted out of bounds on the 47-yard line.

In 13 plays, Hazard drove to paydirt with halfback James Ozee climaxing the drive from the two and barefooted Jim Scutchfield booting the point after for the 7-0 halftime lead.

Prestonsburg, which had a minus of one yard rushing for the night, took to the air in the last half as all-state quarterback Lowell Hughes heaved the ball on every play except two. In open field, Paul Hughes, Carl Sizemore and Buford Crager caught Hughes' passes at will but once inside the Hazard 31-yard markers, the would-be-receivers couldn't hold the oval.

At the start of the fourth period, fullback Pat Stidham picked off a pass that was juggled by end Carl Sizemore on the 40-yard line and two plays later he hurled 35 yards to end Tommy Johnson, who scored.

Hazard upped the final margin to 19-0 in the last four minutes when tackle C. A. Noble fell on James Ozee's fumble in the Black Cat end zone.

Hughes completed nine of 23 passes, six to brother Paul Phillip, for 137 yards and Hazard gained 142 yards on the ground and 81 on the passing of Astor Sizemore and Pat Stidham.

Junior end Monty Rice sprained his ankle in the first period and will possibly be out for two weeks.

Prestonsburg's second home game will be Friday night at 8 with another E.K.M.C. foe, Elkhorn City.

THE NEW JOHNSON MOTORS

More powerful motors, color and styling are the trend in the marine field, said Ed Music after viewing the 1956 line of Johnson Motors during a closed circuit telecast in Prestonsburg.

The telecast was the first to be used by a marine equipment manufacturer in introducing new products to its dealers. Originating in New York, it was seen in 18 U. S. cities by some 2,200 Johnson Motor dealers, Music stated.

son's 1956 outboard line would include nine models in six sizes, ranging from three to 30 horsepower, and would be in a two-tone combination of "holiday bronze" and white.

"With the increase in family boating in recent years," he said, "there has been an emphasis on larger, roomier boats and heavier loads. The 30-horsepower motor, which replaces the '25', has been developed to provide more carrying capacity in cruisers and runabouts and for water skiing."

Outboards now are built to meet every individual or family need for the small water fisherman up, he commented. The 1956 Johnson line includes motors of 3, 5½, 7½, 10, 15 and 30-horsepower, with the 15 and 30 available both in electric-starting and pull-cord models. Most of the new motors, he was informed, already are in production.

Ready about late autumn will be a fancy version of the 30-horsepower motor, called the "Javelin," with polished steel trim and concealed controls.

A closed circuit telecast is one which is beamed to specified locations only and cannot be viewed on TV sets owned by the general public. (Adv.)

CAGE CLINIC

The Kentucky High School Athletic Association will hold the 15th regional officials' basketball clinic at the Pikeville high school gymnasium, October 10, at 7:30. Charlie Vettiner, veteran K. H. S. A. A. basketball clinic director, will be in charge to discuss the 1955 rule changes.

WE BELIEVE THIS

This is one fish story that is believed even by our esteemed fishing editor. An Englishman by the name of Bill Gunson was fishing with a rod and reel in a contest in England last week and he claims the record for having landed the SMALLEST FISH EVER CAUGHT.

When the prize catch was placed on a druggist's scales, the little flatfish weighed 2½ grains, or about six thousandths of an ounce.

PLAYER OF THE WEEK

H. C. Francis, Jr., of the Francis Stores in Prestonsburg, announced that last week's "Black Cat Player of the Week Award," goes to sophomore halfback Paul Phillip Hughes, who caught seven passes for 102 yards in the Hazard game.

CUMBERLAND LAKE

The scenic waters and surrounding landscape seen in the 1956 advertisement of Johnson Motors, is Kentucky's Lake Cumberland. The pictures were taken in the spring. It hoped that this publicity will bring more tourists to the area.

WORLD'S RECORD

The September issue of Happy Hunting Grounds publication of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in Kentucky, has an excellent story on Leitchfield's D. L. Hayes, who caught the world's largest smallmouth bass at Dale Hollow on July 9, this year. The record holder measured 27 inches in length and 21 2/3 inches in girth.

SQUIRREL SEASON

The first half of the split squirrel season ends October 15th, and the second half opens November 19th.

NEWS ABOUT DOC

Doc Ferrell's debut at Owensboro high school was a successful one as his grid team tied highly-favored Evansville Central, 7-7. He has another tough one in Evansville Memorial this week.

THE WAY THEY DID

High school football in Eastern Kentucky presents many oddities during the course of the season, but last week-end many more than usual cropped up.

In the Jenkins-Pointsville fray, Saturday night, Paintsville halfback Franklin Patton headed toward the goal line from his own 30-yard line with nary a Jenkins defender near by. Thinking he had crossed the goal line for the six-pointer, Patton calmly tossed the ball to the official, who caught the ball with the ease of an all-American end. A glance at the sidelines and chain-marker indicated that the ball was resting on the two-yard stripe rather than the end zone.

Following a brief discussion by the officials in question, Paintsville retained possession and promptly went the final two yards on the next play.

JUDGE VERSUS FAN

A Pikeville football fan, somewhat delayed by the heavy traffic to the Louisa-Pikeville game, Friday night, pressed the accelerator too heavily while en route to the game in Louisa, and was quickly notified of same by a state highway patrolman who happened to be in the vicinity. The fan explained to the patrolman about his destination and the fact that he was late to the game, but to no avail.

The Lawrence County Judge, a staunch Bulldog supporter, was on the way to the game when located by the fan and patrolman. Not wanting to miss the kick-off the judge told the fan he would hear the charges after the game.

So all three marched over to the contest which was already in progress. The local eleven was having a tough time as Pikeville, largely through the play of 200-pound senior tackle Bill Scott, ran up a 32-0 halftime margin. During the halftime intermission, the Judge and fan happened to meet at the concession stand.

Not too happy with the progress of the game, the Judge asked the fan how well he knew Coach Clayton Powers, to which the fan replied, "We're close friends." Upon hearing this the Judge commented, "If you will see to it that that big tackle (Scott) stays out of the game the last half, we'll forget about that little speeding incident. The fan made a bee-line to Coach Powers and related his trouble and proposition, which resulted in Scott watching the second half from the bench. Final score: Pikeville 32, Louisa 0.

Saturday night, after Hazard scored against Prestonsburg, Coach Jim Caudill sent in his place-kicking artist, Jim Scutchfield. There was nothing unusual about this—until Jim booted the ball square through the uprights, barefooted.

Stars of TV Wrestling To Meet at Fair Here

The Floyd County Fair Association has big-time professional TV wrestling booked for October 4, at the Athletic Field. Miss Jeanetta Collins will meet Miss Cora Combs for a fight to the finish, and two top junior heavyweights, Jules LaRance and Mitch Lassen will meet in the men's bout.

Miss Collins is known the nation over as "The Kentucky Wildcat". Miss Combs is from Hazard, and is the Southern Queen champion, a title she has held for four years. Miss Combs is the nice easy-going type, but if it takes roughness to get the job done she can dish it out.

Mitch Lassen is one of Chicago's top TV wrestlers, and is a strong opponent for LaRance. Lassen has wrestled some of the top mat men of the nation. He is known for his well-used drop-kicks.

LaRance is the Junior heavy-weight champion of Canada. He has held the championship for seven years in the United States and Canada as well as in nine foreign countries.

The matches will begin at 8:00 p. m., and the doors will open at 7:00 p. m. Both matches will be two out of three falls to win, with a 60-minute time limit.

APPOINTMENTS MADE

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 19 — Governor Wetherby reappointed three members of the State Advisory Council on Mental Health for terms ending June 30, 1959. Named were: Dr. John H. Rompl, Lexington; Edward T. Breathitt, Hopkinsville, and Robert T. Burke, Louisville.

IN HAWAII

25th Div., Hawaii — Pvt. Ballard H. Allen, son of Mrs. Della Allen, of West Prestonsburg, Ky., recently took part in battalion training tests held by the 25th Infantry Division on the island of Hawaii.

The two-day test was divided into three phases—defense, night withdrawal and attack. The island is about 200 miles from the unit's home station at Schofield Barracks on Oahu.

Private Allen, an assistant mortar gunner in Company D of the 35th Regiment, entered the Army in August, 1954.

HONEST ABE

Yes, he walked miles one cold night, after closing time, to return a few pennies when he found he had short-changed a customer. Americans may justly be proud of Honest Abe. His background was one of poverty and religious simplicity. "All that I am on earth," said President Lincoln to Reverend A. D. Gillette, then of First Baptist Church, Washington City, "I owe to my Baptist mother. I am glad to see you, doctor; you remind me of my Baptist mother."

Abraham Lincoln was born February 12, 1809, just north of Hodgenville, Kentucky. Both of his parents were Baptists and members of Little Mount Baptist Church near Hodgenville. He confessed the Christian faith in the church of his parents. Although he was never baptized, the influence of religion upon his life was a great factor in making him a man of the ages.

Lincoln's faith was strong. He frequently quoted from the Bible. Once he countermanded a military order during the Civil War, which would have converted churches into hospitals, maintaining that the need of spiritual strength derived from worship justified his action.

Another direct fruitage to America from this stream of religious simplicity is seen in the fact that Thomas Jefferson often went to hear a country Baptist preacher by the name of Elder Tribble from whose preaching he received his ideas of religious liberty, and wrote them into the Declaration of Independence.

Thus, in many areas of life this refreshing stream is seen: The blind Baptist bard, John Milton, gave to the world "Paradise Lost"; John Bunyan, languishing in an English prison for his Baptist faith, wrote, "Pilgrim's Progress", the world's second best seller. Also, Daniel Defoe, author of "Robinson Crusoe", shared the faith of the foregoing and likewise, Lloyd George, Charles Evans Hughes, William Fox, and countless others who would joyfully join hearts and voices with the Baptist preacher, Dr. S. F. Smith, in his own immortal song, "America".

"My country 'tis of thee, Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing;
Land where my fathers died, Land of the Pilgrim's pride,
From every mountain side, Let freedom ring!

PRESTONSBURG, KY.

Dedication of St. Juliana Church and the blessing of the school took place at Martin last Thursday at 5 p.m. His Excellency, the Most Reverend William T. Mulloy, D. D., Bishop of Covington, began the ceremony by celebrating a Pontifical Low Mass. He was assisted by Rev. Charles Donovan and the Rev. Charles Hoffer. Rev. Father Smith was master of ceremonies and the Rev. Joseph Wimmers was the announcer for the radio broadcast of the entire ceremony.

In his sermon, Bishop Mulloy thanked all present who had contributed in any way to the furthering of this worthy cause, especially praising the priestly zeal of the Rev. Charles Donovan, who had formerly labored in this mountain area, of the Rev. Joseph Wimmers, former pastor, and of the Rev. George Nerbonne, present pastor, who worked and planned constantly for the church and school. The Bishop also expressed his sincere gratitude to the Sisters of Our Lady of the Way hospital and of St. Juliana School. Added to the impressiveness of the ceremony was the presence of Mr. John Donovan, who assisted in the sanctuary in the uniform of a Knight of St. Gregory.

Besides the priests already mentioned the following were also present for the ceremonies: Rev. Anthony Kraft, C.P.P.S., Rev. Raymond Seifert, C.P.P.S., Rev. Ambrose Wagner, Rev. William Schreder, T. O. R., Rev. Francis E. Campbell, Rev. Robert Witt, Rev. Leo Frankrone. There were also present Sisters from the following Orders: Sisters of Charity, St. Joseph hospital and Our Lady of the Oaks hospital, Lexington, Sisters of St. Benedict, Mount Mary, Hazard, and Sisters of Divine Providence, Our Lady of the Mountains Academy, Paintsville, St. Francis School, Pikeville, and Sharon Heights hospital, Jenkins.

A number of students of Our Lady of the Mountains Academy were also present, some of whom took part in the choir singing. Others were altar boys who served with the boys of the parish.

Several out-of-town guests attended the dinner. Among these were Mrs. W. E. Gilson, of Ashland, Mrs. E. P. Hill, of Prestonsburg and her sister, of Georgia, Mrs. Roy, Mrs. Blevins, and Mrs. Deshotel, all of Wheelwright.

Lackey Woman Dies, Heart Attack Victim; Burial in Magoffin

Elsie Lilly, 55, passed away at her home in Lackey, Sept. 14, at 9:30 p.m. as an aftermath of a heart attack.

Mrs. Lilly, ill the last two years, was born in Johnson county, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Caudill. She was a member of the Garrett Missionary Baptist Church and a resident of Lackey for the last 30 years. She received her education in the Knott county school system.

She is survived by her husband, Samp Lilly; one daughter, Mrs. Mary Brown, Lackey; one son, Calvin C. Howard, North Judson, Ind.; two step-daughters, Mrs. Moyer, Fairborn, Ohio, and Mrs. Estalene Warner, Man, W. Va.

The Rev. Rush Slone officiated at services held Sunday at the Garrett Missionary Baptist Church, with the burial being made in the Fairchild cemetery in Magoffin county. The funeral was under the direction of John N. Taul, Mt. Sterling, Ky.

EAGER SAFE-CRACKERS SPEND FRUITLESS NIGHT

Detroit—Burglars broke into the Borin Transit Mixed Concrete Company to get a heavy safe. They dragged it through an office, across a yard, into a garage, and hoisted it into a company truck with a company crane. They used a crowbar to pry a chain off a gate and drove off.

That took at least half the night. In the safe was an old out-dated deed to a house. That was all.

FRENCH PAINTER DIES

Paris, Aug. 17—French painter Ferdinand Leger died today of a heart attack at his home in Gif-sur-Yvette, near Paris. He was 74.

Fire Prevention Plans Announced

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 19 (Spl.)—More than 1,000,000 pieces of fire prevention literature will be distributed in Kentucky during National Fire Prevention Week, October 9-15, it was announced today by State Fire Marshal J. T. Underwood, Jr.

Underwood said his office also will coordinate Kentucky fire prevention activities of national organizations, including the National Board of Fire Underwriters and the National Fire Protection Association.

Pointing to recent large fires in the state, the fire marshal called on local officials, fire departments and civic organizations to plan fire prevention programs in their communities.

Highlighting state-sponsored activities will be a state-wide radio fire drill in which upwards of 400,000 school children are expected to participate. The 15-minute program will be broadcast simultaneously by 46 Kentucky radio stations and will be heard on radios placed in schools by fire departments and local fire prevention committees.

Climax of the show will be a fire drill of 4,000 public and parochial schools throughout the state.

In another state-wide Fire Prevention Week project, school children of all ages will compete for a share of $960 worth of U. S. Savings Bonds. They will be asked to complete in 25 words or less the sentence, "Fire is our most dangerous enemy because . . ."

First prizes in six age divisions will be U. S. bonds with maturity value of $75. Second, third and fourth prizes also will be offered. The contest is open to school children only, grades 1 through 12.

Underwood said entry blanks were being sent direct to schools but that blanks may be obtained by writing to him here.

A special Fire Prevention Week speaker's bureau has been set up. Underwood said, and 60 civic clubs have already requested fire prevention programs.

Other projects include distribution of home inspection blanks to school children, fire prevention film showings, and distribution of fire prevention comic books and blotters.
