This Town— That World

HOWLING GENIUSES

Now we are told this Do-It-Yourself craze is making the one-time peaceful confines of the American home a place more conducive to an early demise than all the automobile traffic you could jam together within two honks-and-a-holler.

And they cite the statistics, the very vital statistics, to prove that statement.

This, we are reminded, is not the day when the worst that possibly could happen to Papa when he arrived home was a mashed thumb as the result of the oak's inability to hit the nail that was between, not on, his fingers; or, perhaps, a mild concussion because he didn't have sense enough to stay clear of the little woman while she had a rolling pin in her hands. Gone, too, is the time when you could settle back and expect nothing more serious than a bloody nose or black eye to be wrong when you heard Junior give with his well-known wail of anguish.

Women used to inflict some slight damage to themselves with a chopping axe or cornfield hoe, too. But no more. The good, old days are gone forever.

Everybody has an idea, these days, that he or she is a howling genius and that all that is needed to prove it is a set of blueprints, a yard of instructions in small type or even somebody's word for it. So Johnny, who can't read, and Johnny's parents who didn't have enough sense to teach him to read, roll up their sleeves and go to it, tackling the weirdest gadgets and vilest concoctions an inventive age has been able to hatch up. They glance at the instructions, guess at some words, skip others, and have at whatever is before them.

The result is more mashings, manglings, poisonings, burnings, crimpings and doctor bills than the world has ever before seen. Junior tastes his developer to see

CITY COUNCIL CANCELS TAX

Jumps Gun on Tax Exemption; Officials Take Oaths of Office

The Prestonsburg City Council at its Monday night meeting jumped the gun on the new amendment to the Kentucky constitution exempting from taxation all household and kitchen furniture by making the exemption effective immediately.

The exemption statewide will not become effective until the Governor's Proclamation renders it effective.

Action of the Council was taken before the tax books for the current year were completed, City Tax Collector M. Robert Regan said. Although the exemption will mean some loss in tax revenues, the vote on making it effective now was unanimous.

Mayor Harry Sandige and Councilman Edward B. Leslie took oaths of office for their full terms at this week's Council meeting. Other members of the Council will be inducted to new terms at the December 5 meeting. The Mayor and Mr. Leslie were recently elected for full terms after having served by appointment, and their induction this week was necessary because they had been appointed to serve only until the two offices were filled by election. Wesley Campbell, city treasurer and a notary public, administered the oaths of office.

The treasurer's report, filed at the meeting showed that Prestonsburg is still operating "in the black."

CLICK IN 4th TRIAL DRAWS 5-YEAR TERM

Manton Man To Appeal Verdict; Special Judge Directs May's Acquittal

The fourth trial in circuit court here of Ray Click for the slaying at Manton of Otis Blankenship ended Wednesday morning in his second conviction, the jury in the case specifying for him a five-year pen term.

Click's conviction at the first trial of the case was nullified by a Court of Appeals decision, and in two subsequent trials the juries failed to agree.

Click, who has been acting as assistant jailer, is expected to execute bond and file an appeal from the verdict. The jury received the case about 6 p. m., Tuesday, deliberated briefly before recess of court for supper, then failed to agree after convening again Tuesday night.

With minor variations, the testimony heard during the trial was the same as that heard in previous trials: that four men, the defendant, Blankenship, Lloyd Click and Everett Stone, were in a small room at Manton when the lights went out. A single shot was fired. None could say who fired the 22-caliber rifle that had been in a rack on the wall. Ray Click testified he didn't and that after the shot was heard he found the gun on the floor and tossed it onto a bed. Frank Crum, policeman at Allen who at the time of the shooting was a deputy sheriff, testified the gun was covered by bed-clothing. Blankenship was mortally wounded; Lloyd Click was shot.

Lloyd Click was convicted of perjury after the first trial of the case and could not be used as a witness in subsequent hearings. Stone could not say how the shot was fired, but did testify the shot could not have hit both him and Blankenship, had it been fired by the weapon falling to the floor. A defense attempt to show the gun would have been discharged by falling failed when a blank cartridge with which the rifle was loaded did not fire when defense attorney Joe P. Tackett twice dropped it to the floor.

A Floyd county jury heard the case after Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill denied Commonwealth's Attorney Burnis Martin's motion for a change of venue. Removal of the trial to another county was asked on these grounds: that three previous trials and two "hung" juries were matters generally known and had created local prejudice in the case; that wide discussion of the case would make it difficult to secure an impartial jury from this county, and the fact that the defendant had been serving as assistant jailer also helped make it difficult for the Commonwealth to get a fair trial.

WAR VETERAN AUTO VICTIM

Glenn Lewis, 2 Others Die In Ohio Collision As Two Others Hurt

Glenn Lewis, 28-year-old Floyd county veteran of the Korean War, was instantly killed near Montpelier, O., at 3 p. m., Saturday in an automobile collision which claimed the lives of two others and resulted in the serious injury of two.

The smash-up of cars took place at a highway intersection as Lewis, a former resident of Cow Creek, was driving from Camden, Mich., to return to her home in Camden, Mrs. Benny Jarrell, wife of his former employer, and her baby from a Montpelier, O., hospital. Names of the other dead and injured, all of whom were Ohio and Michigan residents, were unavailable.

Lewis died of a fractured skull, broken legs and internal injuries. He had moved to Michigan from this county about two months ago. The victim was a son of Lee and Maudie Jarvis Lewis, of Woods.

Surviving, besides his parents, are his widow, Mrs. Beulah Music Lewis, four children, Diana, Allen Mitchell, Stephen Michael and Zella Frances; four brothers and three sisters, Woodrow Lewis, Albion, Mich., Charles and Dick Lewis, of Woods, Ollie Lewis, of Lancer, Mrs. Edna Fay Burchett, of Endicott, Mrs. Mary Alice Woods and Miss Norcie Lewis, all of Woods.

'I'm Square with the Lord,' Accused Slayer Declares

"I'm square with the Lord, and I want to be square with everybody else," said Samuel Robert (Bob) Stephens in an interview with the Times Tuesday, a day after he had been returned to jail here to answer to the law for the slaying in this county 21 years ago of Lacey Hunt.

"I want to pay my debt to society if I owe any," he continued. Although he did not discuss in any detail the charge confronting him, Stephens said he had never been happy during all the years of his freedom. "I'm an old man, and it's not a matter of great importance to me, but I would like to spend the rest of my days with my boy and my wife."

Stephens is now 63. He says he has had heart disease the last three years and has not worked for more than a year. In Louisiana, where he

FILE APPEAL FROM OPINION

Six Floyd Countians Ask Appellate Court To Reverse Judgment

Six former and present county officials filed with the Court of Appeals Monday their appeal from a lower court ruling that they jointly indebted to Floyd county $12,400.

The appeal to the Court of Appeals was from Special Judge Lawrence F. Speckman's ruling that former County Attorney W. W. Burchett owed the money for excess salary and fees from 1948 to 1953. Speckman held the others were jointly liable as members of the fiscal court, composed of County Judge Henry Stumbo and Magistrates M. C. Wright, J. E. Harris, Edgar Howell, and Ellis Martin.

The case had been brought by the Floyd County Good Government Taxpayers League.

1,506 RECEIVE POLIO VACCINE

Tho Clinics Successful, Less Than Third of Tot's Immunized, Clark Says

A total of 1,506 children between the ages of 1 and 9 received the Salk polio vaccine shots last week, M. V. Clark, administrator of the Floyd County Health Department, reported after the last of five clinics in the county had ended its work.

Largest of the clinics was held Friday at Garrett, where 441 children were inoculated. Youngsters from Maytown, McDowell, Drift, Bosco and Wayland as well as those from Garrett were included in those receiving the vaccine at this clinic.

The figures for the other clinics: Martin, 223; Betsy Layne, 165; Prestonsburg, 351; Wheelwright, 326.

Despite all the work of organizing and carrying on clinics at different times, it is estimated that less than one-third the children between the ages of 1 and 9 in the county have had the polio vaccine. There are approximately 11,000 youngsters of this age group in the county, and possibly 3,200 of these have had their first shots.

Mr. Clark expressed his appreciation for the services rendered by the Women's Clubs in each community where clinics were held and for the volunteer services of doctors of the county. The county school system cooperated in the clinics by supplying school bus transportation.

TWO DEMAND VOTE RECOUNT

Calton, Crisp Claim Correct Tally Would Show They Won Posts

A recount of the vote in the election Nov. 8 of City Councilmen at Martin is asked in a complaint filed in circuit court this week by Hargis Calton and W. D. Crisp, Council candidates who on the face of the official returns were defeated.

The plaintiffs claim in their petition, which was prepared by W. W. Burchett, Prestonsburg attorney, that a correct tabulation of the vote would show that they were elected. Named defendants in the action were Sheriff Gorman Collins, A. B. Meade and W. B. Boyd, members of the county election commission, and Charles H. Stanley, Leonard L. Osborne, Has Stone, John P. Samons, Eugene Frazier and James K. Crisp, members of the opposing Bee Hive ticket, also Willie Salsbury, Cecil Conley, Charles Luxmore, and G. H. Dingus, who were candidates with Calton and Crisp on the New Deal ticket.

Stanley, Osborne, Samons and Frazier on the Bee Hive and Dingus and Conley on the New Deal ticket were elected.

The plaintiffs' petition claims the Election Board "by mistake, oversight or fraud erroneously counted votes for the defendants that were actually cast for the plaintiff, and failed to count votes for the plaintiffs that were cast for them."

Grounds for the recount arise, it was said here, from "scratched" ballots. An example cited was similar to this:

The voter stamped an "X" in the circle under the Bee Hive emblem, then voted in the square opposite the candidates' names for certain individuals on that ticket, and crossed to stamp their "X" opposite the names of Calton and Crisp on the New Deal ticket. It is claimed the Election Board failed to count for Calton and Crisp ballots thus marked.

The suit involves the contents of the ballot boxes in John Possum and New Martin precincts.

Clothing, Toy Drives Will Be Held Saturday; Boy Scouts To Lend Help

The community drive for clothing and toys for distribution to needy families and children at Christmas-time will be staged here Saturday afternoon, with Boy Scouts assisting workers of the various churches in picking up contributions of Prestonsburg citizens.

Persons having either or both clothing and toys for this cause are being asked to telephone Radio Station WPRET, Phone 8951, which in turn will broadcast names and street addresses of donors. Patrolling trucks and Boy Scouts then will pick up the contributions promptly.

Toys will be repaired and painted well ahead of Christmas. Clothing for children of all ages is needed.

"A coat will warm a child's body—a toy will warm a child's heart," is the slogan for the drive.

MISSION LABORS OF 40 YEARS END IN DEATH OF 'MISS ANNIE'

Miss Annie E. Allen, the beloved "Miss Annie" of Baptist mission work in Eastern Kentucky for more than 40 years, died at 6:45 a. m., Monday at the Prestonsburg General hospital. Her passing at the age of 78 followed several years of ill health and a serious illness of weeks.

From 1948 till the time of her death she was a resident of Prestonsburg where she had previously been instrumental in organizing a Mothers' Club and in young people's activities at nearby Lancer from which grew the present Baptist mission at Lancer.

Born in Todd county, Ky., Oct. 31, 1877, she grew up in a home where the Bible was read and Christ was loved and prayers were said. At the age of 8 she united with the Bethel Baptist Church, near her home. After her graduation from high school she attended the State University at Lexington in 1895, later studying at Western State Teachers College, Bowling Green.

Following a period of public school teaching, she enrolled in the Woman's Missionary Union Training School for two years of study to equip her for work as a Baptist missionary in the mountain section of the state.

As a worker for the Woman's Missionary Union of Kentucky Baptists Miss Annie entered upon her missionary career at McVeigh in the Pond Creek section of Pike county. The same work later took her away as far as Vanceburg, where she helped organize a Baptist church. Then followed work at Van Lear, and twice at Elkhorn City and surrounding area.

Aided by the Rev. and Mrs. Lewis M. Martin, a young couple just out of the Southern Baptist Seminary, Louisville, she conducted vacation Bible schools and planned revival meetings that led in the organization of Baptist churches at Garrett, Martin and Allen in this county. After moving to Allen in 1942 she continued her summer program of vacation Bible schools in Garrett, Martin, Maytown, Bosco, Cow Creek.

DOG LICENSE PROOF NEEDED

Says Warden Pointing Out Obligation of Dog-Owner; Over 400 Dogs Destroyed

A dog tag purchased but not worn by the dog is of no more effect than a licensed car which bears no license plates, and such dogs are subject under the law to impoundment and destruction if not claimed by their owners, Roy Cook, of Drift, county dog warden, said this week.

The warden, he pointed out, has no way of knowing if a dog license has been bought in compliance with the new law unless the tag appears on the collar of the dog. At the same time Cook pointed out that he has the authority to procure warrants for all dog-owners who do not license their dogs.

"I am going over the county carefully, trying to get all dogs licensed, but actually it's the duty of the dog-owner to look me up," he said.

Cook said he will return to Prestonsburg by mid-December or early January to complete the unfinished work here. This week he was in home territory, working the Drift-McDowell area.

As of this week the dog warden has destroyed more than 400 unlicensed dogs. He announced three new locations where dog licenses may be purchased; Arnold Hunter, Blue Moon; Harold Hardware & Furniture at Galveston, and Oliver Hall at Galveston.

MRS. WESTFALL'S MOTHER DIES IN CATLETTSBURG

Mrs. Wilson, mother of Mrs. Margaret Cottrell Westfall, died suddenly at the home of Mrs. Westfall in Catlettsburg, November 22. She had not been well for some time, but her passing came as a shock to her family. Her body was taken to her home at Williamsburg, Ky., for interment. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hobson left Tuesday afternoon for Catlettsburg to be with Mrs. Westfall.

BRYANT SAYS FARMS LOSING YOUNG BLOOD

Tells Group Here Higher Income a 'Must'; Leaders In Achievement Rewarded

"Unless we do something back on the farm by improved practices and increased farm income, the more intelligent and aggressive farm boys and girls will migrate to the cities, leaving only the clodhoppers on the farm," T. R. Bryant, retired associate dean and director of the Agriculture Experiment Station, told the 200 farmers, farm leaders and 4-H Club members who attended the county Achievement night program at the grade school here Friday evening.

If that is not done, he added, there is a very real danger of farm areas being relegated to the condition of those in China, farmed by peasants.

Listening to Bryant and receiving awards of either ribbons, certificates, pins or prize money were top corn producers, sheepmen, strawberry growers, 4-H Club members and leaders, and others of this county. Some of the farmers receiving awards for outstanding work were already known, but the names of many were not revealed until program time.

Released at the Achievement Night exercises were the names of the three corn derby winners, Lewis Burchett, last year's winner, took second place this year to J. L. Lafferty, of Cliff, who raised 21,925 plants and produced 11,524 bushels per acre. Burchett's yield was 14,130 plants and 87.4 bushels. Third place was reached by Billy Merritt, of Bonanza, with 11,524 plants and 71.3 bushels. Stevie Dotson, 4-H Club member, ranked fourth by raising 11,263 plants and 64.2 bushels per acre.

Leading sheepmen recognized were known for their winning fleece exhibits at the last State Wool Show and their profit averages per ewe were made public. Virgil Smith, who in competition with sheepmen of 60 other sheep growing Kentucky counties, took first place at the wool show, was given a prize check, and his average profit per ewe was figured at $34.34. Paul Dotson, who had the second prize winning fleece, computed an average per-ewe profit of $31.80 and James Allen ranked third with an average $24.37 profit. Henry Hale, local Farm Bureau head, received recognition for his third place in the State Wool Show. These profits were considered outstanding.

STATE'S RAIL GROUP ARGUES

Increased Freight Rates Now Under Consideration Will Ruin Coal Industry

The Kentucky Railroad Commission argued today that an increase in coal freight rates would "ruin the coal industry" and add to hazards on the state's highways.

"We have been doing everything the railroads asked us to do until they asked us to kill the coal industry," McCarthy told the I. C. C.

The case went before the full membership of the I. C. C. on an appeal by railroads from an examiner's recommendation that the Kentucky commission's action be approved.

The I. C. C. taking the case under consideration gave no indication when it might reach a decision.

Clarence Raymond of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, arguing for the carriers in support of the proposed increase, contended it would not result in any diversion of shipments from rail roads to the highways.

"We think Kentucky intrastate traffic should bear its fair share of the cost of maintaining transportation services," Raymond said. McCarthy declared he and other members of the railroad commission came here "representing the people of Kentucky to ask you not to put this extra 6 per cent on coal and thereby cause more trucks to go onto our highways. We're killing people with them now."

Was Accused Innocent?—False Teeth Don't Lie

"Store-boughten" teeth are costly substitutes for the original equipment, but last week Taylor L. Palmer, of Charleston, W. Va., decided his were worth every cent they cost. Perhaps more.

For his removable uppers and lowers last Thursday established his innocence of a child desertion charge lodged against him in quarterly court here.

His trouble started when he was identified by Eulah Mae Lyons, of West Prestonsburg, as the man to whom she was married in 1932 and who later deserted her before the birth of her baby. This man she identified as W. E. Miller. She saw him in a restaurant here a week earlier, then swore out a warrant for his arrest.

At the hearing last Thursday before County Judge Henry Stumbo she was asked to describe her former husband. She described him in detail, saying that he had two teeth missing, missing when she was married to him.

That gave the defendant, who claimed he was Taylor L. Palmer and had never seen his accuser, the chance he wanted. He immediately produced the physical evidence that all his natural teeth were missing, that he had false teeth.

County Judge Stumbo wasn't fully satisfied so he telephoned Palmer's dentist, Dr. Reginald Holland, made the necessary inquiries without apprising the dentist of his reasons for making the inquiry. Holland said he had known Palmer since their high school days and that Palmer had had false teeth since 1927 or 1928.

Judge Stumbo then called the wife of the defendant asked the same questions of her. She promptly informed him her husband had false teeth when they were married 17 years ago.

The plaintiff in the action said her husband was employed at Ashland by a construction company when they were married. Mrs. Palmer said her husband had his own business in Charleston in 1932.

Authorities wrote the whole thing off as a case of mistaken identity, and congratulated Palmer on his ownership of a fine set of teeth.

SERMON TO A STUMP

"I've sat under the voices of some of the most noted ministers in the country and I've listened to discourses, by radio, by some of the most famous preachers of the world; but I can still say—with a truth—that the most interesting sermon I ever heard was delivered to a stump, deep in an East Kentucky forest.

I was ten or twelve at the time and on that mid-summer day, I'd wandered off from my home on Adkins Branch of Rockhouse Creek and found myself about noon, a mile or more from home, and about the same distance from any road or traveled trail, deep in an untraced wood.

As I sat on a big popular log, debating with myself as to whether it was time to turn back, I heard a twig snap and on looking up, discovered a man emerging from a thicket of greenbriars and grapevines.

Almost instantly, I recognized the man as Hen Humphrey, a close neighbor who had moved up from Lotts Creek, the spring before and rented a place from Uncle Peter Adkins the same man from whom my mother rented our little house and the scrap of ground around it.

Hen Humphrey was about 40 at the time, and was a very religious man. He went with Uncle Peter, wherever Peter went to preach, and fill his appointments and not many weeks before the day of my experience with him and the stump he had given out word that "he'd been called to preach," but, up until then, he had made no attempt to answer the call.

Evidently Hen had been singing, for he carried a sanghoo in his hand.

He didn't see me as he laid his sanghoo on top of a big poplar stump and pulled a "Sweet Songster" from his pocket and lined a hymn, which he sang, all the way through, with his head thrown back; eyes cast heavenward; his voice floating away over the forested hills. With the song finished, he returned the hymn book to his pocket and brought out a little dog-eared, Testament. He selected and read a text which, he told the stump and his imaginary congregation, had been bearing on his mind for several days.

Then he began to preach and it wasn't long until he was, as we say here in the mountains, in a big way; waving his arms, falling to his knees, hands uplifted in solemn supplication; always with his eyes trained directly on the poplar stump.

He kept it up for nearly an hour and then brought the services to a close by singing another song, offering a word of prayer, and dismissing the "congregation" in the formal manner of the Primitive Baptists; announcing that there would be night meeting at his house, the next Sunday evening, beginning at early candlelight.

No, they didn't adjudge Hen insane. Frankly, I thought the man was out of his mind, although I'd enjoy being his hidden audience. I guess others were a little suspicious of Hen's sanity after I'd told my story. But a majority of the neighbors turned out for the Sunday meeting and Hen preached nearly as well, but not quite, as he had back there in the woods to the poplar stump. Hen was formally ordained as a minister at the next regular meeting of his church.

Antibiotics Good For Young Calves

Since it has been established that adding small quantities of antibiotics to rations improves the growth of chickens and hogs, the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky has conducted studies on the value of antibiotics in calf feeds. These results have involved over 100 calves. Following is the statement of the results of the investigations:

"1. The antibiotics, aureomycin and terramycin, stimulate the growth rate of the calves for the first 12 weeks of life about 10 to 20 percent. There appears to be little difference between these antibiotics.

"2. These antibiotics increase the appetite of the calves, which make them slightly more 'hardy' and increases their total consumption of feed.

"3. Calves fed antibiotics are slightly more efficient (feed required per pound of gain) than calves not fed antibiotics.

"4. Antibiotics tend to reduce the incidence of calf scours. In our studies, calf scours have rarely been a problem, but antibiotics did aid in scours prevention when scours was a problem. Research work at other stations indicates that antibiotics do reduce the incidence of calf scours. "On the basis of these results, as well as on considerable data obtained elsewhere, it appears that either aureomycin or terramycin should be included in all calf feeds that are to be fed to calves under 16 weeks of age. Beyond this age little benefit can be derived from the feeding of antibiotics.

"If farmers are not buying a commercial calf feed containing an antibiotic they may purchase an antibiotic supplement from the local feed dealer or mixer and add it directly to the calf's milk immediately before feeding. Generally about one teaspoon per calf per feeding is required of most antibiotic supplements."

If it's right and comes down with a near-fatal tummy-ache. Pop tinkers with the television set and suddenly freezes, his hair (if he has any) fairly crackling. And the wife and mother calmly doses the rose bushes with a powerful insecticide and winds up in a worse fix than the aphids.

Did I say everybody has the Fix-It-Yourself craze and winds up by fixing themselves but plenty? Almost everybody.

I can't fix anything. Everybody, including me, knows that. I sit back at a safe distance while the others tackle that light socket. My hair doesn't crackle well, anyhow. Besides, having a reputation for utter helplessness in things mechanical, electrical, etcetera, gets a fellow out of an awful lot of work around the house.

Back there a piece I said something about a howling genius. That's the way most of these household geniuses wind up—howling.

THANKSGIVING MEANS GIVING THANKS

Today is Thanksgiving. And, more than at any other Thanksgiving, I am thankful.

Thanksgiving and our publication date coinciding, I will not have the day off at home with my family. But the family is there. And why should I not be thankful?

There were things I wanted to do between Thanksgivings, and I didn't get them done. But I did some other things, a few things I should have done long ago, and these few things have brought me a deeper, more real sense of gratitude.

There are things that I, even now, hope to do between this Thanksgiving Day and next. Some of them I shall do, please God. Some of them I may not. But I am thankful that now I see things to be done that I never saw before.

Turkey and cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie and all the traditional things are fine, and may we all enjoy them with those we love. But without giving thanks to God for all our blessings what is Thanksgiving more than any other day when some feast while others starve?

UNUSUAL FAMILY

Little Johnny was curious about whence he came and he asked his mother about it. "God brought you," she told him.

Not satisfied with her answer, he asked her where she came from, and she replied, "God brought me." Still not satisfied, he asked his grandmother the same question and received the same answer.

Next morning he told his teacher: "Say, Teacher, did you know there hasn't been a natural birth in our family in three generations?"

In 1950, Mrs. Roberts said, 26 persons died of TB in this county. Only three persons have died of the disease this year, although there are 95 active cases under observation by the Floyd County Health Department.

During the year 23 of these active cases have entered tuberculosis sanatoria, and the remaining 67 are under treatment by their family doctors while remaining at home.

Facilities of the new TB hospitals, use of new drugs, along with bed-rest and proper food, have made possible the recovery of many patients who otherwise would not have had a chance," the nurse said.

More than 3,000 Floyd countians received free X-ray chest examinations at the mobile unit clinics held at five different locations in the county last April, and 463 X-ray pictures were made at the Health Department's office for follow-up and diagnostic purpose.

The Commission Draws The Line

We who have in our more sarcastic moments contended that the Kentucky Railroad Commission is perhaps the most aptly named of all governmental bodies, because it has served the railroads almost to the exclusion of all else and all others, now must back track.

The Railroad Commission has at long last risen up against the railroads in defense of another industry and through that industry the people who elected the members of that commission. It has officially protested an increase of 6 per cent in rates on coal shipments within the state.

With a frankness that is almost disconcerting Frank L. McCarthy, chairman of the Railroad Commission, told the Interstate Commerce Commission (which also has maintained a rather spotless record of loyalty to the railroads):

"We have been doing everything the railroads asked us to do until they asked us to kill the coal industry."

That's putting it pretty bluntly, but it shouldn't shock, for the truth of that statement was already pretty well known. Did the railroads want to discontinue a train, the Commission properly notified everybody, heard all the protests, all the arguments and then proceeded to give the railroad full permission. Did the rails want to discontinue a railway station, or do this or that, the procedure was invariably the same.

Could it indeed be that till

HEALTH NOTES

By Floyd County Health Department

AS LONG AS YOU LIVE

It may be a long time. Right now, you may not be thinking of the years ahead. You're still going strong at fifty. You can't do everything you could at 25, but you certainly aren't ready to be put on the shelf.

"On the shelf," useless and dependent—that's the way too many of us think of old age. But that's only one kind of old age. And it's the kind that can be avoided if you start planning now.

If you want to be thoroughly alive as long as you live, start a campaign to improve and keep your health. The old "stitch in time saves nine" was never truer. Your happiness at 70 depends on the slithers you take now. If you don't already have the habit, begin now the practice of getting a physical check-up at least once a year.

A number of the diseases that make dependent invalids of old folks start quietly without any outward sign that something is wrong inside. Only a doctor with his scientific tests can spot them. And almost every kind of sickness responds best to treatment in its early stages.

Tuberculosis is one such disease. It's tragic to see an older person bedridden or partially incapacitated by TB. He might be up and about and living a full life if his disease had been discovered earlier.

Today about 50 million Americans have TB germs in their systems. Of course, infection with TB germs need not mean disease, if the body is strong enough to fight the germs to a standstill. But if the body ever weakens, those germs may cause disease.

You should know whether or not you have been infected with the germs that cause TB. Your doctor can make the simple test that will tell you for sure. A "positive reaction" is nothing to worry about, but it is a warning that you must keep your body in the best possible health to prevent the infection from becoming disease. A chest X-ray as often as the doctor advises will make sure that TB is discovered early if it should break out.

To be sure that your later years are not shadowed by preventable illness and dependency, take full advantage of modern medical science. Get the physical check-up habit.

now the railroads have always been right and the people always wrong?

But it isn't too late for the Commission to reform and begin looking to the interests of the people. Members of the Commission know that the railroads are having a year before which all preceding records of net profits may fall. Business over the country is good, and coal shipments are far ahead of those of 1954 when the Chesapeake & Ohio, for example, had a record year for profits. They know that the railroads do not need this extra 6 per cent freight rate increase, and they know, too, that the coal business is not far enough out of the woods to be making a contribution of this size to the rails just as a matter of appreciation or goodwill.

At this late date we have a word of commendation for the Kentucky Railroad Commission. We like its stand in this matter. We sincerely trust we shall not have to wait so long again for another opportunity to commend.

Preview of Destruction

We like the obvious desire for world peace and preservation of the human race which prompted Thomas E. Murray, member of the Atomic Energy Commission, to propose inviting thousands of world leaders to an H-bomb test in order to emphasize the urgent need for atomic controls.

Depending upon newspaper dispatches for the details of Commissioner Murray's plan of letting the world know more of the awesome threat to the world which man has put together, we fear he has not gone far enough in his proposed briefing for annihilation. It would appear that he is depending overmuch on world leaders, and not on the people of the world to carry back to their own kind what lies in store for them if sanity is not restored to earth.

Intelligent citizens from all walks of life should be let in on the awesome spectacle. Every media of communication of news, thought and image should be put to work to record and transmit the whole ugly, devastating picture. The printed word, radio, television, motion pictures—all these should paint the full and complete story—paint it in all its stark reality, without editing of the picture.

The problem of getting the story in its full effectiveness behind the Iron Curtain still remains. The unknowing, trusting common people there might, after all, have to depend upon their lying leaders, and so never know the truth about what lies beyond the undrawn curtain.

If the little people of the world are given the truth, if their sources of information are made as adequate as those already in the hands of their leaders, all the villains stalking the world stage, all the plotters and marplots will be shunted aside, and peace will become a reality.

The first-place winner in each county will be awarded a $25 savings bond, and the Floyd County Soil Conservation District will give these additional cash awards to winners in the county contest:

High school—Seniors, $10; junior, $8; sophomore, $7; freshman, $6.

Grade pupils—Eighth grade, $5; seventh, $4; sixth, $3; fifth, $2; fourth, $1.

The contest rules already have been sent to all schools in the county, but if additional bulletins or rules are desired, these may be procured by writing or calling Mr. Johnson here.

"Since 75% of all land in Floyd county is in some kind of wood, it seems that a very appropriate subject for this year's essay contest has been chosen," Mr. Johnson commented this week.

He said that the contest sponsored locally last year by the Floyd soil conservation district produced 1,685 essays, the largest number submitted in any Kentucky county. "We believe Floyd county will lead again," he added.

Typical American names found in Antarctica include Mobil Bay, Wallgreen Coast, Edsel Ford Range, Rockefeller Mountains, Wrigley Gulf, Beaumont Bay, Cape Washington, and of course, Little America.

IT'S A GOOD WORLD

(The views expressed herein do not necessarily reflect the views of The Times.)

Last week a fine Christian youth said, "Miss Wilma, I can vote now, and I'll vote wet if this county ever has another election. Perry county gets all the taxes from the liquor our men drink. Why shouldn't Floyd have it?"

I asked if he thought the laws against murder completely prevented it. He said, No. I then inquired if he would vote for a law that would give people the right to commit murder. He again replied, No. Laws against murder do help curb it. I explained that when people vote for liquor, under any condition, they give a Go-Ahead signal to broken homes, heartaches, accidents that kill and maim; therefore the blood and blame become partially theirs if they favor the Green Light that causes these evils, as liquor in itself is wicked. He had never thought of that, he said. A man who claimed to be dry, but had voted wet, had not thought of that angle either till his wife and daughter were killed by a drunken driver. I asked the boy if he thought taxes from liquor ever paid half the crime caused by drink. He said no again.

God's word does not tell us to condemn evil only when we think it will do some good, but it says those who do not condemn evil are an abomination to the Lord. No one ever condemns sin by compromising with it, state controlled liquor stores in the bargain.

Drys cannot afford to vote wet if they know conditions will be much worse (which, however, is true, as records prove). They know Jesus would never vote wet. That is enough for them. Once a friend said Floyd county Drys were murderers. Asked how, he said when Drys force men to go to some distance to get liquor that makes them drunk, causing them to kill someone while coming home, the Drys are the murderers. I reminded him that only Satan can force anyone to go anywhere for liquor. Drys plead with people to shun even the appearance of evil.

Some question the intelligence of ministers who opposed bootlegging. (Two wrongs never make a right.) They think this county should receive the taxes, since many will obtain liquor somewhere, regardless. The Drys of Floyd county do not envy any county the tainted money it receives, at the cost of suffering, hungry children and wives in many cases. The price tag attached to taxes from liquor is too much like one Judas Iscariot found could never be removed from thirty pieces of silver he had thought he wanted. To envy any county its tax money from liquor would be identical to coveting the fortune some gambler has made at the cost of his soul.

Some schools now open ball games with the Doxology of a prayer. If more adopt the plan, perhaps the custom, together with the prayer of many, will put an end to the gambling reported to go on over our high school games, often under the eyes of women and children.

Several have sent word about log cabins that would be available to the county. One, near Allen, is said to include a spinning wheel. Report comes of another, on Mare Creek, built over a hundred years ago by one of the outstanding families in this section, a family whose names rank high in the history of Eastern Kentucky. Many think civic groups should rotate a week each in providing guides at the proposed cabin. Some believe each organization should retain half of the admissions, contributing the remainder to one central project, like the Retarded Children's School or perhaps and Arts and Craft program. The government is collecting mountain lore for a museum of mountain culture in the Great Smoky Mountain National Park in Tennessee. Rail and picket fences, footlogs, swinging bridges, trails and old roads are being preserved. Can we be less appreciative of our pioneer ancestors, whose physical hardiness, rugged independence, ingenuity, economic self-sufficiency, in both individual and community, enabled this section to produce many great men, who became eminent in various walks of life? Unless these valuable objects of an almost forgotten period are properly housed soon they WILL be gone forever.

It has been inspiring to hear Miss Annie Allen tell of the kindness of Dr. George Archer to her. His services were free to the little missionary. No church could have done more for Miss Annie than hers did. And she never omitted Sara Goble and others from various churches, because they, too, have been so good to her.

Hats off to the Prestonsburg Council of Church Women for censoring comics and to good merchants eager to assist in protecting our youth. If some children decide to go to another county to obtain bad comics, surely no one will question the wisdom of the good women who mean to direct our own youngsters sensibly. May their program become countywide. Tune in Saturday at 9:30 to hear them tell about their plans and goals.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

"TALE-TELLING"

We used to sit around the open fireplace and tell tales. Everybody knew many tales, but some of them were distinctly flavored by the teller and were known as Uncle Bob's yarns or some such title. After we had told and retold the yarns that everybody knew to begin with, we would beg for the ones that each member of our group knew best or could tell best. Often we did not know that the tale was traditional; the teller had so localized the tale that it seemed like genuine history. Actual stories in which supernatural beings or haunts appeared were very few. Most of them had a distinctly comic ring or were deliberately told to make the flesh crawl. Some of them ended with the teller jumping at one or another of the listeners. A good many actual murders took place just before and just after my birth, but none of them were as bold and as nerve-tingling in reality as in the growing yarns that grew up.

Everybody had a soldier relative, always a Southerner. Not often did we get military yarns, for the tellers of tales preferred to tell about the human side of war. I heard far more yarns about the raids on Yankees or henroosts than on Yankees. How to outwit the owner of something good to eat seemed to be the essence of being a good soldier. It was a sad day in my life when I found out that fully half of these true stories have been the common stock of soldiers since wars began. I have no doubt that many of the so-called authentic yarns that I heard were much better told in the days of chivalry itself, and were equally true then as just before my time.

The sense of history was present among us, but it was hard to separate any event that happened before our time and any other one, however old. When an elderly ex-slave pretended that she had been George Washington's nurse, that sounded sensible as for one still living to have nursed Uncle Jerry or Uncle Joe, two of our oldest ex-slave-owners. I liked best of all Uncle John Elkin's stories about the Jackson Purchase in its early settlement days. He had even hunted as a small boy in the area before the Indians had sold it to the United States.

when they concerned himself. My neighborhood, maybe because my father was a doctor, had hosts of yarns about mysterious deaths or accidents. There were enough in actuality, but a group of tale-tellers around the fireplace could soon call up enough yarns to make your flesh crawl. The still-unsolved mystery of Pat Shehan and his death was told until I knew all the details. He was an Irish ditch-digger who drifted into our neighborhood, gambled and drank heavily, and was found dead and floating in Tennessee River. He was reputed to have had a lot of money, probably more from gambling than from ditch-digging. What happened to him and his money is still unknown at least legally. A good many actual murders took place just before and just after my birth, but none of them were as bold and as nerve-tingling in reality as in the growing yarns that grew up.

When an elderly ex-slave pretended that she had been George Washington's nurse, that sounded sensible as for one still living to have nursed Uncle Jerry or Uncle Joe, two of our oldest ex-slave-owners. I liked best of all Uncle John Elkin's stories about the Jackson Purchase in its early settlement days. He had even hunted as a small boy in the area before the Indians had sold it to the United States.

The Great Pillage Despoiled Sandy Basin's Forest Giants

By HENRY P. SCALF

Three quarters of a century ago Catlettsburg was the greatest hardwood timber market in the world. At that time, back in the '80's, while timbermen were mooring rafts at the mouth of Big Sandy, up on the headwaters stood, untouched, the greatest expanse of yellow poplar trees in the Southern Appalachians. Exploitation, which many conservationists call the Great Pillage, began there around the turn of the century, despoiled it completely in a short 20 years.

The headwater streams of the Russell Fork of Big Sandy River, scene of the Great Pillage, are spread out above the Breaks like scores of finger-like marks on the bottom of a bowl. These tributaries, some with picturesque names like Frying Pan, Roaring Fork, Holly Creek, McClure, Pound and many others, all join the Russell Fork, the waters emerging through Cumberland mountain at the Breaks, the canyon there serving as the broken edge of the bowl. Having entered Kentucky, the white waters of the upper streams flow more placidly down-river toward Catlettsburg.

Nearly all of Dickenson county, Virginia, lies within the bowl-like depression and to geologists it is known as the Sandy Basin. The county is celebrating its Diamond Jubilee this year, having been organized in 1880. Rugged terrain retarded development, but today it is crossed by excellent roads and dotted with modern towns.

At one time the Sandy Basin held the greatest concentration of game in the Southern Appalachians and hunters, like Boone, following the ancient wild animal trails, found themselves in a jumble of mountains too rugged even for their hardy souls. The area was left very much alone by settlers until the first quarter of the last century.

Here in the Sandy Basin was one of, if not the greatest, area of yellow poplar in America. The rich coves accelerated a rate of growth that created giants, up to six feet in diameter. On McClure, Crane's Nest, Frying Pan, Bart's Lick and the multitude of streams the forest behemoths crowded each other, reaching for the sky. The scattered settlers knew little of their value, timbering the inhospitable area was something to them that would be long deferred. Then, in the early '30's the speculator came, and when he was through the trees and minerals were owned by 'outsiders'. The munificent sum of twenty-five cents per acre, or maybe a little more, jingled in the pockets of the Sandy Basin mountaineer.

The "outsider" left and was not seen again. But the Yellow Poplar Lumber Company came, its officials reading old and yellowed deeds. When the lumber company left, the poplar was gone, the mountains were a scene of desolation not unlike the path of a hurricane.

To get the timber out it had to be splashed through the Breaks and here in 1910 the Yellow Poplar Lumber Company completed the world's largest log splash dam. Logs, bearing the painted triangle mark, began to roll into the backed-up waters of Russell Fork in April. In the next nine months 40,000,000 feet of yellow poplar cut from 20,000 acres, went hurtling, breaking, roaring, bruising through the rocky Breaks. The company stayed until 1917 and, having brought industry to the Sandy Basin, moved on again, hunting another area ripe for the axe.

But no one thought the trees would ever reach a market back in the beginning of the nineteenth century. The basin was unsettled, many of its creeks unexplored in 1810 when "Fighting Dick" Colley came to Sand Lick and built a three-walled cabin.

He was the first settler of Dickenson county but explorers and hunters had preceded him. Indians had trails all over the Sandy Basin, had beaten them down for hunters like Samuel Indicut and his companion, Sylvanus Brewer. Indicut was murdered by his companion near Abner's Gap. Brewer was the first man ever hanged in Russell county, which then exercised jurisdiction over most of Sandy Basin. He fell through the scaffold May 22, 1818.

"Fighting Dick" Colley was very much alone in the Sandy Basin for some time, but the game made up for the deficiency in companionship outside his own family. Soon a few others came to share the primitive country.

Time went on, the section remained isolated for decades. Then in 1876, Dale Carter, a wealthy Russell countian, brought suit at Grundy, in Buchanan county, to dispossess a vast number of settlers. The suit was later dismissed but the residents of Sandy Basin were aroused. They wanted no more suits in far-off Grundy. It wasn't the distance exactly, it was the condition of the distance. They got busy, had a new county created by the Virginia legislature. The state, caring little, cut the territory off from Russell, Wise and Buchanan. To most Virginians it was a backwards backwash anyway. The state didn't know it then but Dickenson county, youngest of the state, was to become a proud possession.

Almost immediately after the new county was formed the "outsiders" came, looked at the virgin trees and dug around in the coal "bloom" where the hillsides had broken or a settler had mined. G. V. Litchfield bought the first tract of mineral for fifty cents per acre. The first recorded sale of fine timber was made to Horsley and Tate, in 1825, when A. D. Alley sold for $21 five black walnut trees, measuring from 30 to 44 inches in diameter. After that, representatives of the Singer Sewing Machine Company snapped up every fine walnut tree they could get. No where in America could it find better, and certainly none for so little.

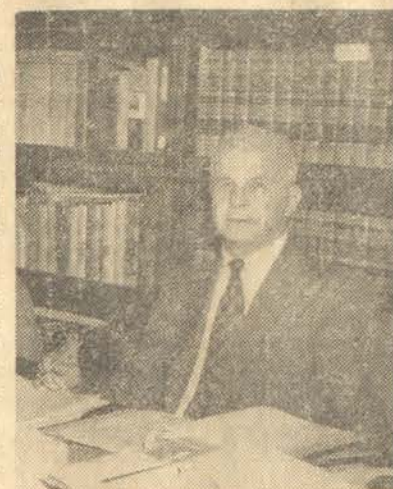

It is to Trial Justice E. J. Sutherland, of Clintwood, to whom we are indebted for the details on the Great Pillage. Southerland, steeped in the lore of his native county, and conscious of the unholy methods by which outside capital alienated from the mountaineer a great heritage, writes of it, if sparingly, in his book, "MEET VIRGINIA'S BABY". The book was one project of the Diamond Jubilee committee and Southerland found it an inadequate means to relate the full story, but salient paragraphs bespeak volumes.

"Prospectors and speculators crowded into the Basin and bought up most of the mineral and timber rights for a song, in some cases paying as little as twenty-five cents per acre for rich coal and timber land. The landowners had no idea of the actual value of their property at first."

The speculators were in a hurry, for there was talk of a railway, the Charleston Cincinnati and Chicago. Rights-of-way were purchased in 1887, but while nothing in the way of railway building took place for a long time, it was in the '80's when the greatest acquisitions of timber were made by the outside companies. There were many buyers, but in 1888 Bovee, Prentice and Keeney bought their first tract on McClure River. The Yellow Poplar Lumber Company, successor to B. P. & K., was a little late, making its first purchase on McClure in 1894, but it compensated for tardiness by the extent of despoilation. It had been detained on Beaver Creek and other valleys down Sandy.

Yellow Poplar built a few splashdams at or near the mouth of Roaring Fork that year and later at Haysi to shove the mighty poplars through the Breaks on their way to Elkhorn City where they were rafted. Finding these methods satisfactory in principle but the dams not large enough to take out the timber fast enough, the company determined in 1908 to build a splashdam on Russell Fork that would top all others of its kind in the world.

The dam captured the fancy of The American Lumberman and in its issue of March 19, 1910, details of the construction and operation of it were explained.

"At the head of the Breaks of Sandy the Yellow Poplar Lumber Company built the largest splashdam ever put in or operated for log driving purposes. The dam is 360 feet long from tip to tip of the abutments and about twenty feet shorter at the base. The abutments are 240 feet apart, the intervening space being divided into five flues, each forty feet wide, by piers ten feet thick. The piers are twenty-five feet high, 10x36 feet at the top, with a five-foot nose upstream to ward off logs and lessen the water pressure.

"When the dam is filled, water backs up to the junction of Pound River with Russell Fork 1,600 feet, up both streams about one mile, and the Bart's Lick about 2,000 feet. The first wagon load of supplies reached Headquarters camp March 1; the first logs were dumped into Russell Fork above the site of the dam April 21. During the succeeding nine months the loggers put into Sandy River about 40,000,000 feet of poplar which was cut from 20,000 acres of land. To get the timber necessitated the construction of twenty-five miles of steam tram and about nine to ten miles of mule tram—narrow gauge line equipped with wooden rails for hauling logs on trucks with mules."

The company had been dumping logs into the reservoir area for weeks and as the water backed up woodsmen piked them into the still water, shoved them toward the dam. Soon thousands of the finest yellow poplar logs on the American continent were crowded in a mile and half of water. The day came for the release of the forest giants; woodsmen, natives and company officials gathered for the event. The American Lumberman attempts a description of the great man-made drive:

The rugged Breaks of Russell Fork through which the released water from the lumber company's splashdam drove thousands of yellow poplar logs.

Full-scale production of oil from coal has begun in South Africa, 50 miles south of Johannesburg, where the conversion process begins with the gasification of coal. The gas then is used to produce conventional petroleum products and chemicals.

Scientists say that if the ice melted from the Antarctic continent, the world's ocean would rise 105 feet.

Reclamation work carried on by coal operators in surface mining areas pays big dividends according to a recent report of the Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission which said 66 Kansas open pit coal mines have been transformed into 384 acres of fishing grounds for Kansas sportsmen.

Aluminum production creates a constantly growing market for bituminous coal for steam generation of power, as illustrated by the fact that two new plants now in the planning and construction stages in West Virginia and Pennsylvania will each require around 1,000,000 tons annually.

Scientists estimate that Antarctica was tropical 350,000,000 years ago.

U. S. Army Engineers believe that by 1960 as much coal will move on the Ohio River for industrial use alone as moves today for all uses. In 1953 about 31.7 million tons of industrial coal moved on that river, out of a total Ohio River movement of 62 million tons.

West Virginia's 11 electric utility plants used coal exclusively for power generation in 1954.

Rededication of Citizens To Americanism Is Urged

A rededication of local citizens to basic American principles is being urged this week, Nov. 20-26, which has been designated as Know Your America Week.

The Citizenship division of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs has called on all clubwomen of Floyd and other counties of the state to join in observance of the week and to emphasize its importance.

Conceived as a means of making the nation aware of the freedoms its people enjoys and of alerting it to the dangers of Communism, it is being participated in by more than 60 of the country's leading organizations, including veterans, fraternal and church groups. Devotion to American democracy is sought, an ethrough that devotion an awareness of and hostility to Communism.

Emma and other points between and beyond. Miss Annie moved in 1948 from Allen to Prestonsburg where she was active as a Bible teacher until illness prevented her from meeting her appointments.

In 1952 the Women's Missionary Union authorized the writing of the story of her life. The book, BEAUTIFUL UPON THE MOUNTAINS, has had a wide circulation among women of her church in the South. A closing paragraph in that work summarizes Miss Annie's testimony: "The wonderful grace of God! He never fails His believing children. Tell it on the mountains, tell it by the sea. Tell it everywhere. Grace and power come from God. His power is unlimited. His grace is sufficient."

Her pastor here, the Rev. Ira McMillen, said of her: "The life of this faithful servant of God was characterized by humility and personal sacrifice and gave evidence of one who lived daily in the presence of the Lord. She was a source of inspiration and encouragement to all those whose lives she touched."

It was her request that friends refrain from sending flowers for her funeral, and instead to give the cost of such floral offerings to the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here for use in the erection of a chapel for Sunday School and church services at Lancer. The Reverend McMillen announced this week that definite plans are under way for the construction of this chapel. Construction will begin as early next spring as weather will permit. He also announced that a memorial service for Miss Annie will be held next Wednesday evening at 7:30, during which a recording of the recent "This Is Your Life" radio program honoring her will be heard.

Surviving Miss Allen are her brother, James H. Allen, Guthrie, Ky., a niece, Mrs. Bill Hayes, of Guthrie, and a nephew, James E. Allen, Charleston, W. Va.

Her funeral was conducted Wednesday afternoon from Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, the Rev. McMillen officiating, and burial was made in the Richmond Memorial cemetery here under direction of the Moore Funeral Home.

Surplus Fresh Beans Find Market In Cans

When Melda Sue Moore of McCree county was unable last summer to sell fresh green beans from an acre-patch, she had the bright idea of selling them as canned beans. With the help of some of her family in picking and preparing them, Melda Sue did the actual canning. Some days she used three pressure canners, two of them borrowed from her aunt and grandmother. In her record book is this report:

"I have sold 17 dozen quarts of canned beans and have 13 dozen quarts to deliver before Christmas to the people who bought our beans, furnished jars and lids and paid me $3 a dozen quarts to can them. This will amount to $90. I also sold jelly amounting to $11.50, where the people furnished jars and sugar. With part of this money, I bought material and made a nylon coat."

"My canning projects (5,503 quarts in seven years) have meant a great deal to me and my family. The food canned has saved us around $500 each year on food bills, and enabled us to have more balanced meals and a greater variety."

Because of her mother's health, the responsibility of canning was left largely to this high school club member, said Miss Ora Wilkins Neely, UK home demonstration agent.

Women jurors in the trial were not guarded, by agreement of counsel on both sides of the case.

One of seven malfeasance cases lodged against Magistrate John May resulted in his acquittal last Friday afternoon on direction of Special Judge J. L. Hayes, of Whitesburg.

The other two cases were continued generally. On motion of Commonwealth's Attorney Martin the court ordered that the Floyd fiscal court pay the cost of transcript of the record in the trial for the purpose of an appeal to the Court of Appeals for certification of the law. The motion was granted over the protest of County Judge Henry Stumbo, who contended the cost would be a needless expense to the county.

George W. Thacker was convicted of an assault with intent to rob charge, was jailed six months and fined $500, while Winfred Stone, who was indicted with him, was given a 30-day jail term and was fined $200.

The charge of possessing alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale on which Luther Messer was fined $20 and given a 30-day jail sentence was amended on his appeal to circuit court to make the American Legion Club of Garrett the defendant, and the trial resulted in a $100 fine.

Other convictions within the week:

Samuel A. Ellwood, grand larceny, $75 fine; Malcolm Lewis, Herbert Lewis, James, Sherman and Ade Hunt, each charged with drunkenness, $10 fine and costs; Paul Hylar, child desertion, pen term of one year; Alfred Bradley, child desertion, two years.

Judge Hill indicated Bradley will be granted probation. The two-year term given John D. Martin last week for child desertion was probated.

Acquittals were won by these defendants: Virgil Moore, charged with possessing alcoholic beverages, directed verdict; Bonnie Parsons, drunk driving.

The charge of possessing alcoholic beverages against Oval Hall was dismissed on motion of the Commonwealth, subject to being re-docketed upon notice to the defendant. The same charge against Jim Wallace was dismissed because the defendant pleaded guilty to a companion case existing at the time, and the rape charge against Roscoe Fannin was also dismissed.

Rules were issued against Sheriff Gorman Collins and Deputy Sheriff Willie Johnson in separate cases.

ORDERS DELAY IN PAY RAISE

Federal Judge Grants Injunction As Hearing Planned on Objections

Federal Judge Edward A. Tamm ordered Monday a temporary delay in new wage raises for certain soft-coal miners until a hearing can be held on mine operators' objections.

The preliminary injunction temporarily blocked the Labor Department from putting the raises into effect. It was granted to the Central Pennsylvania Open Pit Mining Association and a group of more than 600 Virginia and Eastern Kentucky soft-coal operators.

Both groups challenged the validity of an order by Labor Secretary Mitchell setting a new wage minimum for coal companies with contracts with the federal government.

Under the law the government can prescribe wage minimums for firms with federal contracts totaling more than $10,000.

Mitchell's order would have increased the pay scale of some soft coal-miners from roughly $1.40 to $2.24 an hour. The raise was to have become effective Friday.

Industry attorneys told the court, mine owners would be irreparably injured if forced to pay the higher wages. But they said if they did not pay the raise, they would be prevented from bidding on government contracts.

Western Fiction Addict
Quits The Habit; "All
Just Like," He Says

When a man reads thousands of Western magazine stories and books, and quits suddenly, the natural question is "Why?"

Rush Scalf, a Buffalo Creek native, who has been working in Detroit since 1942 says the reason he quit the stories is, "They're all alike, anyway." He ought to know. He has read more Western escape fiction than any man we know.

Rush had an accident in his youth that rendered a knee stiff. After that he walked with a short step and a long, Friends called him Step-and-a-Half. The name stuck, followed him to Detroit. Always Step-and-a-Half occupied his time reading Westerns. It took three corner drug stores to supply him. When the news truck arrived at the drug stores, he went down, picked up the entire allotment of Westerns. These read, he went to another, got what that store had and in a short time he had gone the rounds of all three stores.

He would read one of the quarter books in two hours, would without moving pick up another. He took them to bed, carried them on the job. He didn't have to evade the boss' eagle eye to dig into one. Step-and-a-Half had been on the job for years and any dereliction in the reading of a Western was winked at.

Finally the Westerns had accumulated in the basement of his home until his daughter, with whom he lived, demanded clearance. The Salvation Army was called. The truck driver had to make a return trip to cart 'em all away.

And just what exactly made Step-and-a-Half quit? Well, it was this way. A fellow workman gave him a Western. He took it home, started to read. Suddenly it dawned on him that he had read that story 19 years ago. He threw it aside.

"I quit right then. My eyes weren't so good and I wasn't going to buy glasses just to read Westerns. After you've read a few thousand, you've read 'em all, anyway."

GI Loan Applications
Increase in October; Eligibility Explained

The Veterans Administration Regional office for Kentucky received 790 GI home loan applications for guaranty during October, the second largest monthly total since the current housing surge began, according to preliminary figures released by Mr. Ray R. Adams, manager.

The October total was more than 11 percent above the September total of 714 loan applications.

Mr. Adams said the high rate of applications for guaranty received from lenders on behalf of World War II and Korean conflict period veterans reflected the exceedingly high rate of appraisal requests earlier this year.

The number of proposed homes for which the VA received appraisal requests from builders jumped to 591, approximately 100 percent above the September total of 293.

The number of applications for guaranty received during the first ten months of 1955 exceeded those received for the first ten months of 1954 by 53 percent.

The total number of appraisal requests for proposed dwelling units received during the first ten months of 1955 exceeded the total number received the first ten months of 1954 by 60 percent.

Eligible veterans of World War II are reminded that they have until July 25, 1957, to use their GI loan benefits under Public Law 239, 80th Congress. Korean veterans have until January 31, 1965, to use their entitlement for GI loan benefits under Public Law 550, 82nd Congress.

A veteran must have served 90 days or more under conditions other than dishonorable, and at least one day of the active service must fall between September 16, 1940, and July 25, 1947, and June 27, 1950, and January 31, 1955.

Cadillac

Half its Horsepower is for Safety!

A pretty steep hill, you'd say?
Well, not so far as this gentleman is concerned. He just gave the accelerator a little encouragement with his toe . . . and swept from bottom to top so effortlessly he was scarcely aware of it.

For he's at the wheel of a beautiful new 1956 Cadillac. And beneath that long, sleek, graceful hood rests the smoothest, most powerful engine in Cadillac history.

The fact is that this great new Cadillac engine is powerful and dynamic far beyond the requirements of normal usage. In the course of ordinary motoring, it is entirely possible that the driver will never put the accelerator down to the floor board.

But how wonderful that extra length of throttle will be if he does need it!

It will be there for that burst of speed that can free him from a difficult driving situation.

It will be there in case he needs it for safety in passing . . . or to answer the challenge of a mountain road.

And even when not in active use, that reserve of power will add to his motoring pleasure.

It will bring him confidence and contentment and peace of mind . . . and it will provide unusual operating economy and dependability.

Of course, Cadillac's magnificent performance is only part of the exciting Cadillac story for 1956. There is inspiring beauty . . . and extraordinary luxury . . . and superlative craftsmanship.

Why not stop in soon and see what we mean?

We've got the keys and the car—all you have to provide is an hour of your time.

We can promise you . . . it will be the most revealing sixty minutes you ever spent at the wheel of a motor car.

Motor Permits Due Before First of Year

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 21 (Spl.) — The State Department of Motor Transportation today called on truck, bus, taxicab and rental car service operators to procure 1956 permits on or before January 1.

Commissioner of Motor Transportation John M. Kinnaird suggested that renewal application be completed and insurance carriers contracted so as to make the proper insurance filings with the department during the month of December. He suggested early filing so as to permit the proper processing of papers during the month and so that renewal authority may be returned before the first of the year.

Certificates and permits will not be reissued upon renewal in the future, Kinnaird said. However, renewal receipts to be attached to present certificates and permits will be issued each year.

The schedule of tag fees for each class of truck ranges from $22 to $300 depending on weight. Bus fees range from $1.50 to $8 a seat, taxicab fees are $12, $15 and $18 for four, five and six-passenger capacity vehicles, and operators renting cars pay a $2.50 fee for each passenger capacity.

Last year the department collected approximately $1,350,000 from these sources.

THINK SAFETY

AT PLAY

SAVE LIVES

With more leisure time, America has more time for play. But these playtime hours are marred by tragic accidents which could be prevented if we would only THINK, THINK SAFETY, that is. Be sure you know the safety rules of the game and THINK to remember them. Grown-ups as well as children should keep these rules constantly in mind:

1. Take it easy; don't overdo.
2. Swim only at supervised pools or beaches. Always have a companion with you.
3. Handle firearms carefully. Treat every gun as though it were loaded.
4. On the highway, follow the rules of safety, drive slowly, come home alive.
5. Never overload a boat; be sure life preservers are available for everyone.
6. Whatever the sport, wear the proper clothing and use the correct equipment.

Minimum Foundation To Cost $52 Million in 1956, Claim

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 15 — A fully financed minimum foundation program for education will cost the State $52,000,000 next school year and $63,000,000 in 1957-58.

The State this year is supporting common schools at a cost of $34,785,500.

These official estimates are being submitted tomorrow by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wendell P. Butler to the State Budget Division.

They constitute the Department of Education's official request for funds from the State Legislature for the schools for the two years beginning next July 1.

Speaking to the Eastern Kentucky Education Association at Ashland during the week-end, Butler reminded members that Governor-elect A. B. Chandler "is committed to the full financing of the foundation program in 1956." Then he added:

"Because of his positive stand during the campaign on the foundation program his election by a landslide can be interpreted as a clear indication that the people of Kentucky have faith in his ability, integrity and determination to carry out his commitment."

Butler warned the school people to be on guard against any efforts to change the school-foundation law in order to reduce the cost of the program. The law, he said, is entitled to a "fair trial."

"Unless the program is fully financed as now written, the services which the people of Kentucky said they wanted for their children will not be delivered," Butler asserted.

"Herein lies the danger — the danger of changing the law to meet a most figure. The Foundation program is dynamic, not static. The cost of the program is based on need—the greater the need, the greater the cost."

The cost estimates for the Budget Division were prepared by Dr. Stanley Hecker, research analyst in the Department of Education. They are based upon a projection of all factors of cost in the program.

It would require $57,750,000 of state funds in 1956-57, and $62,900,000 of state money in 1957-58 to accomplish the following:

1. Fully financed the minimum foundation program and its higher level of teacher salaries.
2. Guarantee that $26,212,500 will continue to be distributed among all school districts on a pupil-census basis—as was done before the Constitution and State laws were changed two years ago.
3. Insure that every school district will receive no less than $80 per child in average daily attendance.

Dr. Hecker said the State Revenue Department estimates that local school districts will be able to put up in 1956-57 a total of $49,700,000, and $41,300,000 in 1957-58, as their share of the foundation program, which is a state-local partnership.

Local districts this year are spending $38,551,000 of their locally raised revenue in the foundation program.

Thus, under these official estimates, the total amount being spent in Kentucky for the education-foundation program would rise from the $73,336,000 being spent this year to $97,450,000 next school year, and to $104,200,000 in 1957-58.

Butler told the E.K.E.A. it would have required an additional State appropriation of $18,000,000 this year to fully finance the foundation program—or a total State-local expenditure of about $91,500,000.

"It is easy to see what is happening," Butler said. "To fully finance the program for this year would have required a State appropriation of $53,000,000. The estimates are $58,000,000 and $63,000,000 for the next two years."

"In other words, this dynamic program is increasing in cost at the rate of $5,000,000 a year. Why?"

"More children, more and better trained teachers, better services for children, a higher per cent of attendance, and a number of other factors."

SAFETY GROUP ENVISIONS REVAMPED ROAD PROGRAM

Eastern Kentucky would fare right well in the matter of road modernization if the newly proposed highway plans are adopted. U. S. Highways 23, 460, 119 and Ky. 80 would be either rebuilt, relocated or expanded to additional lanes.

The three-billion-dollar program outlined by the Automotive Safety Foundation after over two year's study call for 1,000 miles of four-lane expressways to serve the state's largest cities and metropolitan areas.

Envisioned by the engineers of the Foundation is re-organization of the State Highway Commission, upping the gross weight limit of trucks and ending the state's taking over any more "2-cent" roads for maintenance.

The plan calls also for an expenditure of $144,215,000 each year for the next two decades. This is an excess of $26,215,000 over the present state income for roads. Many fiscal authorities see this need of additional millions as the real stumbling block to the Foundation's plan to modernize Kentucky's patchwork of roads. Aid to the poorer counties would be made, under the plan, by state-aid grants.

The Foundation report, prepared with the co-operation of the State Highway Department and the U. S. Department of Commerce, is highly critical of this state's rural road program. The state-maintained rural system consists of a large mileage of roads which have little state-wide travel function, the Foundation avers, and says that the mileage for which the state is responsible is twice that of 43 other states which do not follow this practice. This maintenance mileage spread thins out the financial resources available for construction and maintenance of an adequate system.

U. S. 23, under the Foundation program, would be rebuilt from the Ohio River bridge to Portsmouth to Greenup, expanded to four lanes from near Russellville on to Ashland and Catlettsburg. Between Paints-ville and Pikeville the road would be relocated and made two lanes wide.

Kentucky Highway 80, an east-west artery across Eastern Kentucky from Allen would be rebuilt from the Metcalfe county line to Columbia and for a short distance in Pulaski county. From the Laurel-Clay line to Manchester the road would be rebuilt, from Hyden to Dwarf, a Perry county hamlet, it would be relocated and reconstructed. Between Allen and Lackey, it would be completely relocated and rebuilt. An additional ten miles out of Elkhorn City would also be rebuilt but not relocated.

The route of U. S. 421 from Harlan to its junction with 119 would be rebuilt for four lanes wide.

U. S. 460—This route from Louisville through Central and Eastern Kentucky to Grundy, Va., would be rebuilt between Frankfort and Georgetown, and from Frenchburg to the Menifee-Morgan county line.

The portion from the Morgan-Magoffin line to Salyersville also would be rebuilt.

Travelers along this route also would receive the benefit of improvements to U. S. 23 from Paints-ville, since both routes follow the same highway between these two cities.

U. S. 119 — The Rhododendron Trail between Pikeville and Williamson, W. Va., would be relocated and rebuilt from the Harlan-Letcher county line into Whitesburg and on into Jenkins.

KY-15—Scheduled for partial reconstruction to Whitesburg. The extremely crooked portion between Stanton and Campton would be relocated and rebuilt. So would the stretch between the Wolfe-Breathitt county line and Jackson.

New Safety Standards Effective, December 9

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 2 — State Fire Marshal J. T. Underwood, Jr., today announced revisions to Kentucky Standards of Safety calculated to eliminate fire hazards will take effect December 9. The new regulations have been filed with the Legislative Research Commission as required by law.

"Most of the changes are engineering changes, and their main effect on the general public will be to assure them of greater safety in public places," Underwood said. "Standards adopted since present regulations were adopted four years ago have been changed, to correspond with current, national recognized rules of safety."

"Other changes are intended to take care of fire problems which have developed since 1951 and bring regulations into line with legislative enactments since that time."

Among new regulations is one that eventually will require "tight-fill" connections for general transport trucks unloading fuel at filling stations. Operators will be given five years to convert to a suitable fitting.

Purpose of the regulations is to lessen chances of dangerous spills which have resulted in several fires in recent months. A number of companies are using "tight-fill" connections now as a safety measure and to speed unloading.

"Through proper co-operation from petroleum marketers, we will see 'tight-fill' connections used exclusively within the next three to five years," Underwood predicted.

The new regulations also list special safeguards for filling stations and rules for storage and handling of flammable liquids.

Among other additions are regulations covering structural requirements of gymnasiums and other places of public assembly. Use of fire alarm systems will be required in nursing homes and hospitals and hotels, except in case where other acceptable safeguards are provided. Also included are new standards for domestic-type heating installations.

WARD URGES EXPANDED FLOOD CONTROL BUDGET

An expanded flood control and water development program for Kentucky was requested in a hearing before Budget Bureau officials in Washington this week by Henry Ward, Kentucky commissioner of conservation.

One of the projects urged is completion of the Big Sandy river survey.

Ward also asked for a change in federal policy to permit the use of government funds to provide for storage of water for future domestic, agricultural and industrial use.

"The federal government is the proper agency representing the people to deal with the broad subject of water resources," Ward declared. "Neither the states nor local governmental units are in a position to deal with the problems of flood control and the conservation and utilization of water resources on a broad scale."

"The traditional policy of the federal government is to limit its consideration of water to flood control, navigation, power and irrigation in the west. That policy ought to be expanded to include benefits available through utilization of resources of water."

Ward urged that "substantial funds be appropriated" at the next session of Congress to begin construction of small watershed projects, and pointed out that there are 138 applications for such projects in Kentucky.

"The act authorizing these watershed projects should be amended to provide specifically that the federal government will pay the entire cost of projects designed to produce control benefits," Ward said. "This act should not be left as open as it is now so that the Secretary of Agriculture may interpret it about as he pleases."

The following specific appropriations for the next fiscal year were urged by Ward:

Completion of Big Sandy river survey, $77,500.

Completion of Kentucky river survey—$100,000.

Start of construction of Buckhorn dam and reservoir on Kentucky river—$1,500,000.

Construction of Rough River dam and reservoir—$1,500,000.

Start construction of Lower Cumberland river dam—$2,000,000.

Planning of Nolin, Green No. 2 and Barren reservoirs on Green river—$150,000.

Construction of new Markland dam on Ohio river—$5,000,000.

Construction of new Greenup dam on Ohio river—$5,000,000.

Construction of new Greenup dam on Ohio—$15,000,000.

Start on reconstruction of Lock No. 41 at Louisville on Ohio river—$1,000,000.

Advance planning and design funds for New Richmond dam in Ohio—$150,000.

Catlettsburg floodwall construction—$2,000,000.

Ward urged that the Corps of Engineers be granted adequate funds to complete planning and surveys of projects in Kentucky so that specific decisions relating to construction needs can be reached.

He appeared as the official representative of the state of Kentucky.

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

Regular monthly business meeting of the Allen-Martin Woman's Club was held November 7 at the home of Mrs. Belford Reitz.

The president, Mrs. John Sherman, presided.

The first item of business was a detailed report on the convention held at Hazel Green. Mrs. Sherman gave an account of the day's business and reported that the club's yearbook received third place in the contest held.

The sale of fruit cakes was reported and the cakes were placed on order to be here for Christmas. The Christmas card sale was reported and the report was very favorable.

Mrs. Sherman has accepted an invitation to speak to the Wheelwright Club on "Floyd County's School for Retarded Children." Another clinic has been held to examine more children and it is hoped that through the Minimum Foundation Program the school will grow and can be relieved of the financial burden. Mrs. Begley reports great progress in those attending. She also commends volunteer workers who are so helpful to her and the children.

Several club members volunteered to assist in the polio clinic to be held at Martin high school. They have offered supplies and clerical help necessary.

Members were asked to observe M (membership) night at the next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. John P. Sammons. Each member is urged to bring a guest. The program is on education with Mrs. Russell Laven as leader.

Plans were formulated for the Know Your America Week to be observed by the club the week of Thanksgiving.

OIL DEALERS' RESOLUTION FAVORS ROAD BOND VOTE

Submission of a bond issue to finance completion of Kentucky's road system to a vote of the people was proposed in a resolution adopted by the Eastern District Petroleum Industries Committee at a dinner meeting held in Ashland Nov. 16 at the Henry Clay hotel.

The resolution pointed out that for 10 years the Kentucky Constitution has required that all its special highway user tax revenue be spent solely on roads, that no state has a higher tax on gasoline than Kentucky, and that these road taxes will produce 66 million dollars this year, $50 million from gasoline taxes and $16 million from car and truck licenses and other special road user taxes. It was also pointed out that Kentucky is currently eligible for another $15 million annual grant of federal funds on a matching basis, running to $31 million Kentucky's road fund potential.

Amendment of the Kentucky Toll Road Act to provide that no toll road project be undertaken without consideration and voted approval of the General Assembly was proposed.

In addition to this provision, the resolution voiced the oil men's desire that state and national highway deficiencies be corrected as rapidly as possible consistent with proven needs and economic planning; criticized the requirement of denied access type highways on the federal interstate highway system except in areas of dense population and traffic; recommended securing adequate rights-of-way to care for future traffic with deferment of building presently unneeded lanes until traffic builds up to warrant their construction; and suggested prohibition of all business places abutting limited access sections with provisions for access roads to service areas on private property where such business can locate and compete.

The resolution suggested the federal highway program be financed appropriations from the federal treasury without any new or increased taxes until such appropriations exceed federal receipts from special highway user taxes (federal 2 cent gas tax, oil tax, car tax, etc.) The federal government now collects 2 1/2 billion dollars from automotive excises and spends only $75 million dollars on highways.

Forty officers and leaders from the 13 County Petroleum Industries Committees comprising the Eastern District were in attendance. Among these was Marvin Music, of Prestonsburg.

The principal speaker was Herbert Clay, executive secretary of the Kentucky division manager of the Standard Oil Company, Louisville, and C. J. Bolton, Jr., a member of the KPIC executive committee and manager of the marketing division of the Ashland Oil and Refining Company, Ashland.

Mr. Clay urged economy and business-like planning for needed improvement of highways. He cautioned against undue wasteful haste, pointing out the acute cement shortage this fall as a warning against planning an immediate larger program than manpower and available materials can economically handle. He pointed out that no new federal taxes are needed for interstate highway system because our national road spending now leaves available in federal treasury over a billion and a half dollars of the taxes collected on such highway user taxes as the 2 cent federal gas and diesel fuel tax and other oil, car, tire and parts excises. Clay said our highway needs had been overemphasized by construction and material interests who profit from highway spending.

Mr. Compton urged earliest feasible completion of the Kentucky primary road system. He recommended a bond issue to provide needed funds that our present high 7 cent gas tax and other highway user levies cannot produce. Compton asserted that no state has a gas tax rate higher than Kentucky, labeling this rate as the highest we can impose without injury to motorists, oil companies and gas tax revenues.

The 1956 Buick SPECIAL 4-Door Riviera

THIS ONE is the news-maker that's front-page big.

This one is the new Buick SPECIAL for 1956 — the biggest bundle of high-powered energy and high-fashion luxury ever offered in Buick's lowest-priced Series.

Just a quick listing of some certain facts will give you the picture.

First—its engine is a big new 322-cubic-inch V8 engine with an all-time high in horsepower for this Series—and an engine that hits the record book at a neat 8.9 to 1 compression ratio.

Second—its getaway—with the double-action take-off of the new Variable Pitch Dynaflo*—is spectacular even at only part throttle—and comes with a new boost in gas mileage to boot.

Third—on ride, this new SPECIAL is more than great—what with all-coil springing, and torque-tube stability, and a new deep-oil cushioning, and a whole new front-end geometry that adds a wonderful "sense of direction" to the car's travel.

Fourth—on room, luxury, interior finish—there's never been a Buick SPECIAL like this before. From the big, broad seats to the stunning new instrument panel—there's new decorator smartness and quality throughout.

But get the picture on price, and you have the biggest reason why this sizable automobile is so extra special a buy.

For this Buick comes to you at a figure so close to those of the most widely known smaller cars, the difference in price is small change.

So—come in and see and sample this beauty. You'll find it, we firmly believe, the biggest package of automobile at anywhere near its budget price.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

SPORTS AFIELD

Facts about antlers are mixed up with myths, legends and a lot of folklore that sometimes border on the ridiculous. One common error among hunters is the belief that a year-old-buck is always a spike, a two-year-old has two points on each side, and a point is added each year until the very, very old bucks have super-duper antlers. This just isn't so.

Trying to estimate the age of a deer by the number of points on his antlers was long considered standard procedure, but it isn't at all accurate. Teeth show age much more accurately.

In classifying the deer family, scientists used the antlers as a main item. Deer and their near relatives are placed in the order of the artiodactyla, the split-hoof animals. This order includes mountain goats, big-horn sheep, pronghorn antelope and muck oxen. These four have true horns that are hollow and are not shed each year. (For a time it was thought that the antelope shed their horns, but now we know they merely drop the outer shell.)

The deer family, known as Cervidae, is a division of the Artiodactyla.

Wayland and Maytown Lose Unbeaten Status; Coleman Racks up 82

Wayland and Maytown fell from the ranks of the unbeaten basketball teams last week-end in the 15th region cage race, but Wayland's Kelly Coleman continued to score the nets with 82 points in the two outings.

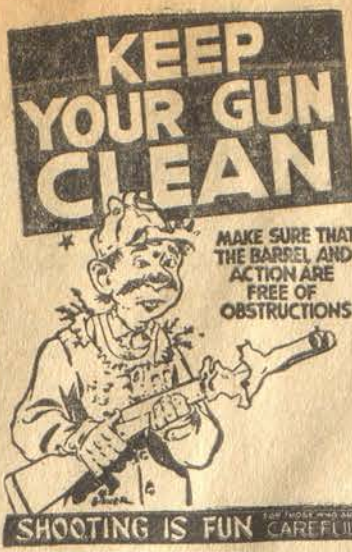

Flat Gap and Oil Springs each recorded victories to run their unbeaten strings to three games and retain the leadership in the 59th and 60th districts.

Friday night, "Copper John" Campbell's Wayland Wasps stung Auxier, 96-60, as the uncanny Coleman dumped in 43 markers. The following night, diminutive guard Granville Williams flipped in the winning goal with five seconds left as Hindman overcame a 20-point deficit to edge by Wayland, 76-69, an addop the Floyd county school from the unbeaten ranks.

Wayland led 16-8 at the first quarter, 42-30 at the halfway point and Hindman knotted the count at 54-all at the close of the third period as 6-3 center M. Ward did the damage with a 10-point spurge.

Coleman was high man for the night with 34 points, his lowest of the season, and teammate M. Robinson tallied 17. Hindman was paced Stringent Strip Mine Control Urged in Ky.

Frankfort, Ky.—More stringent control of strip mining throughout Kentucky has been urged by the Kentucky Academy of Science.

At its 41st annual meeting here, the academy also urged the prohibition of any strip mining in Cumberland National Forest.

Other resolutions asked that State parks be continued "under complete control of the State of Kentucky" and favored a bond issue for improvement of the parks.

Dr. J. G. Black, Eastern Kentucky State College, was named president of the academy. Dr. A. M. Wolsson, Murray State College, was chosen president-elect.

WITH THE '55 SEASON PAST BETTER DAYS MAY BE AHEAD

By Quentin Allen

The Prestonsburg Black Cats made a surprising record this season in compiling a 5-1-3 entry on the won, tied and lost ledger.

At the start of the season prospects were definitely dreary. The team was green, entirely new, lacking almost any battle-scarred veterans to lend the willing but inexperienced boys to victories.

Coach Bob Wallace has done a whale of a teaching job. As one said, "We like to work hard under Coach Wallace. He treats us like equals, and we have a lot of fun in practice."

Making practice, long considered by the best ball players a dull but very necessary session, interesting is a trait not possessed by many coaches. So the evidence of the players liking their practice and their football manifested itself in the final standings for the season, a creditable record of five won, one tied, and three lost.

Two of the three loses were by one point and the third at Hazard, was a disappointing game when the team was definitely dull and flat. They had just played their hearts out in the Atherton game only to see a clear-cut victory snatched from them by a slow clock.

What are the prospects for next year?

According to Coach Wallace, now thoroughly familiar with the people of the area and the boys, it will be a better team than this year's eleven. "There will be better balance. Our offense just started to click at the end of the season with our halfbacks really beginning to rip through the line. It looks as though McKenzie will develop into a much-needed break-away runner. If James Buford Crager gains some weight, he'll be the meanest runner in the conference. Boy, he likes to hit!"

What of the quarterback situation with all-state Lowell Hughes graduating to college ranks? "Well that will be well-handled by Paul Phillip Hughes. I think he can do a fine job for us. We could put Crager and McKenzie learning the quarterback position in case Paul is hurt. They both can throw a football pretty well. That's another thing that will help us next year. We have some boys in the backfield who are pretty versatile."

"Do you expect your boys to be better acquainted with your system?" he was asked.

"Yes, I do. Naturally, after one year of running my plays they will be pretty much acquainted with them. Instead of starting from scratch as we did last season in the learning of the plays, the boys will know them from the very start. Spring practice will be devoted to polishing the boys' knowledge of plays."

Do you expect any help from Auxier, which could be coming here to school? "I expect some help, but you can't make a boy into a football player overnight. He's got to learn to love contact, to be able to take it as well to put it out. If I could round some of the Auxier boys up for spring training I'm sure they could help us next season. I understand there's some pretty big boys at Auxier."

How about depth? "Pretty sad, I'm afraid. That will be our weakest point. It depends, of course, how our boys develop during the summer. Some are going to do their Daily Dozen, a exercise designed to build them up. They want to have a good football team that bad."

Who will be expected back? "First liners such as Paul Phillip Hughes, Bill Rorer, Monty Rice, Wayne Dixon, Rube Tackett, James Cragor, Lowell McKenzie, Bobby Gene Howell, and Joe Jack Harris. Backing them will be Johnny Jackson, Danny Chaffins, Ralph Shepherd, R.D. Allen, Ronald Strickland, Henry Hughes, Bob Lucas, Red Minix, Billy Herald, most of whom will be in the line. Jackson and Chaffins look like up-and-coming backfield replacements who'll see a lot of action next year."

Who did you lose from this year's team? "Our all-state quarterback Lowell Hughes, our good tackle Dickie Leslie, End Carl Sizemore, who contributed a lot, and Jim Daniels, a real, little fighting end. We'll have to hustle to replace these men who carried away a lot of determination and leadership from the squad."

How are you liking Prestonsburg? "Just fine. I love this town because they're so crazy over football. Of course I like the people and I'm looking to better years with our football teams."

Hughes Only 'Repeater' On '55 All-Star Squad

Pikeville high school, 1955 football champion of the Eastern Kentucky Mountain conference, dominated the all-Conference team selected by the loop's nine coaches at their annual meeting in Pikeville Sunday.

The Panthers placed four men on the first team and one on the second. Whitesburg and Elkhorn City each placed two, and Prestonsburg, Hazard and Paintsville each had one representative.

Prestonsburg's all-state quarterback, Lowell Hughes, was the only repeat member from the 1954 all-Conference team.

The individual season scoring mark went to Pikeville halfback, H. L. Justice, who scored 121 points in 11 games, three shy of Buddy Fields, all-time mark of 124 in 10 games.

Other action taken in the stormy session was an amendment to the constitution that will require all members to meet each other in basketball at least one time in the 1956-57 season.

M. C. Napier high school, of Hazard made formal application as to become the tenth member of the loop, but the action on the application will not be taken until the spring meeting.

Under the Dickinson voting system, which the conference uses to determine the annual standings, Whitesburg was in the runner-up spot over Fleming, although both posted 4-2 records in the league.

OPEN SEASON WITH MEADE

Only Two Lettermen Back for Black Cats; 20 Games On Schedule

The 1955 version of the Prestonsburg Black Cats got into action Wednesday night when they met last year's regional powerhouse, Meade Memorial, at Paintsville.

According to Bill Goebel, mentor of the Prestonsburg five, the Black Cats will be entering the season's schedule with only two lettermen returning from last year's squad.

The Hughes' brothers, Paul Philip and Lowell, all-state footballer who will captain the Prestonsburg five this year, are the two returning lettermen.

Along with Lowell and Paul Philip will be Wayne Dixon, Chuck Wiechers, Carl Sizemore, Lon Clay Hill, Melvin Stuart, Bruce Howard, Lowell McKenzie, Rube Tackett, Joe Jack Harris and Ralph Shepherd.

Missing from last year's squad by graduation are Ronald Goble, Bert Dixon, Joe P. Tackett, Clifford Goble and Ronnie Leslie, the latter now attending K. M. I.

"We'll miss those boys, but I feel we have a better potential squad this year. For one thing we have a gym, though small, which will allow us much more practice and time to polish our play. It's too small for home games but it will serve the purpose," Coach Goebel said.

"This year's squad will have pretty good balance. We average around six feet in height and have one or two capable boys at every position. They're good shots, one of the best shooting squads I've seen here in the past four or five years," he added.

"If they develop, I expect a fine team. Of course there are many pitfalls and every coach knows them. I think that we have the leadership and the desire to win games."

Coach Goebel revealed that a new plan has gone into effect in bringing new talent to the team. It is a plan of playing freshmen and sophomores on the "B" team. Juniors and seniors who cannot make the varsity team will not play on the second team, since this team is primarily for the development of inexperienced hands for the varsity team.

"However," Coach Goebel explained, "any freshman or sophomore, or even an eighth-grader, if he's good enough can play on the varsity. We feel that the intramural system, to go into effect next year at the new auditorium-gymnasium, will enable those juniors and seniors who can't make the varsity to get their fill of basketball."

This year's team, according to Coach Goebel, will tentatively start out with Lowell Hughes and Lowell McKenzie at guards, Paul Philip Hughes, at one forward, Carl Sizemore and Wayne Dixon fighting it out for the other forward post and Chuck Wiechers and Bruce Howard vying for the center spot.

The schedule includes 20 games, all to be played on the road. The schedule:

November 23—Meade Memorial at Paintsville; Nov. 29-Dec. 3—Floyd County pre-season tourney at Wayland; December 6—Belfry (away); Dec. 9—Bridgeport at Paintsville; Dec. 10—Hazard (away); Dec. 13—Paintsville (away); Dec. 16—West Liberty (away); Dec. 17—Martin; Dec. 20—McDowell (away); January 7—Lucasville, Ohio (away); Jan. 10—Hazard at Paintsville; Jan. 12—Garrett, there; Jan. 13—Betsy Layne, there; Jan. 18-21—Paintsville Invitational; Jan. 24—Wheelwright, there; Jan. 31—Wayland, there; February 4—Martin, there; Feb. 8—Maytown, there; Feb. 13—Pikeville, there; Feb. 17—Inez, there; Feb. 21—Elkhorn City, there; Feb. 24—Paintsville, there.

tyla, and includes deer, elk, moose and caribou. These are all cud chewers. Their antlers are solid, and each season the whole rack is shed and a new set grown.

The female caribou are the only females among the deer family that regularly grow antlers. There are exceptions among the whitetails and mules; sometimes a doe will grow antlers.

How an animal can drop antlers and then grow a new set of similar size or larger between late winter and early autumn, is something of a marvel. But they do it, we are assured by Arthur H. Carhart in an article in Sports Afield magazine.

The animal that grows a big set of antlers is a very healthy animal. A buck must get the right sort of nutrients to build those antlers. Your best chance of running into a trophy buck is in country where there's an abundance of limestone country that grows big antlers on prime bucks.

MAY BE LAST YEAR

The 1956 football season may be the last of the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference since the loop's nine voted last Sunday to require every school in the loop to meet every team in basketball in the 1956-57 season. Three schools, Paintsville, Pikeville, and Whitesburg, voiced strong disapproval to that requirement and two of the schools, voting no, had their representatives say they would drop out of the league before they would meet every school in the winter-time sport.

Currently, the cage requirement is six games to be eligible for the conference championship, but half of the schools fail to schedule that number and are not interested in competing for the crown. Six is also the required number in football, but three schools play all the members, while Whitesburg meets only five, but chooses an outside member (by permission of the conference) in the Cumberland Valley Conference, since they say, they can't schedule enough opponents in the E. K. M. C.

The Eastern Kentucky loop was the first league in the state to require active participation in all four sports, and many of the state's circuits have modeled their program on the same basis, but if they have the stormy sessions that the E.K.M.C. does, something is brewing all the time.

HUGHES REPEATER

All-State quarterback Lowell Hughes was the only repeater on the 1955 all-Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference football team from the previous year. For the second successive year, he was a unanimous selection. (See the complete team elsewhere in this edition).

AUXIER STRIP'S INEZ

Auxier's 62-58 conquest of the 1954 state champion Inez Indians Tuesday night, was the first for a Floyd county team over the Martin county five in a great number of years. The victory for Coach Jack Frost Wells was a personal triumph, for Coach Claude Mills was his roommate and teammate at Pikeville College, a few years back.

Coal was the only fuel used in the generation of electric power in Michigan in 1954.

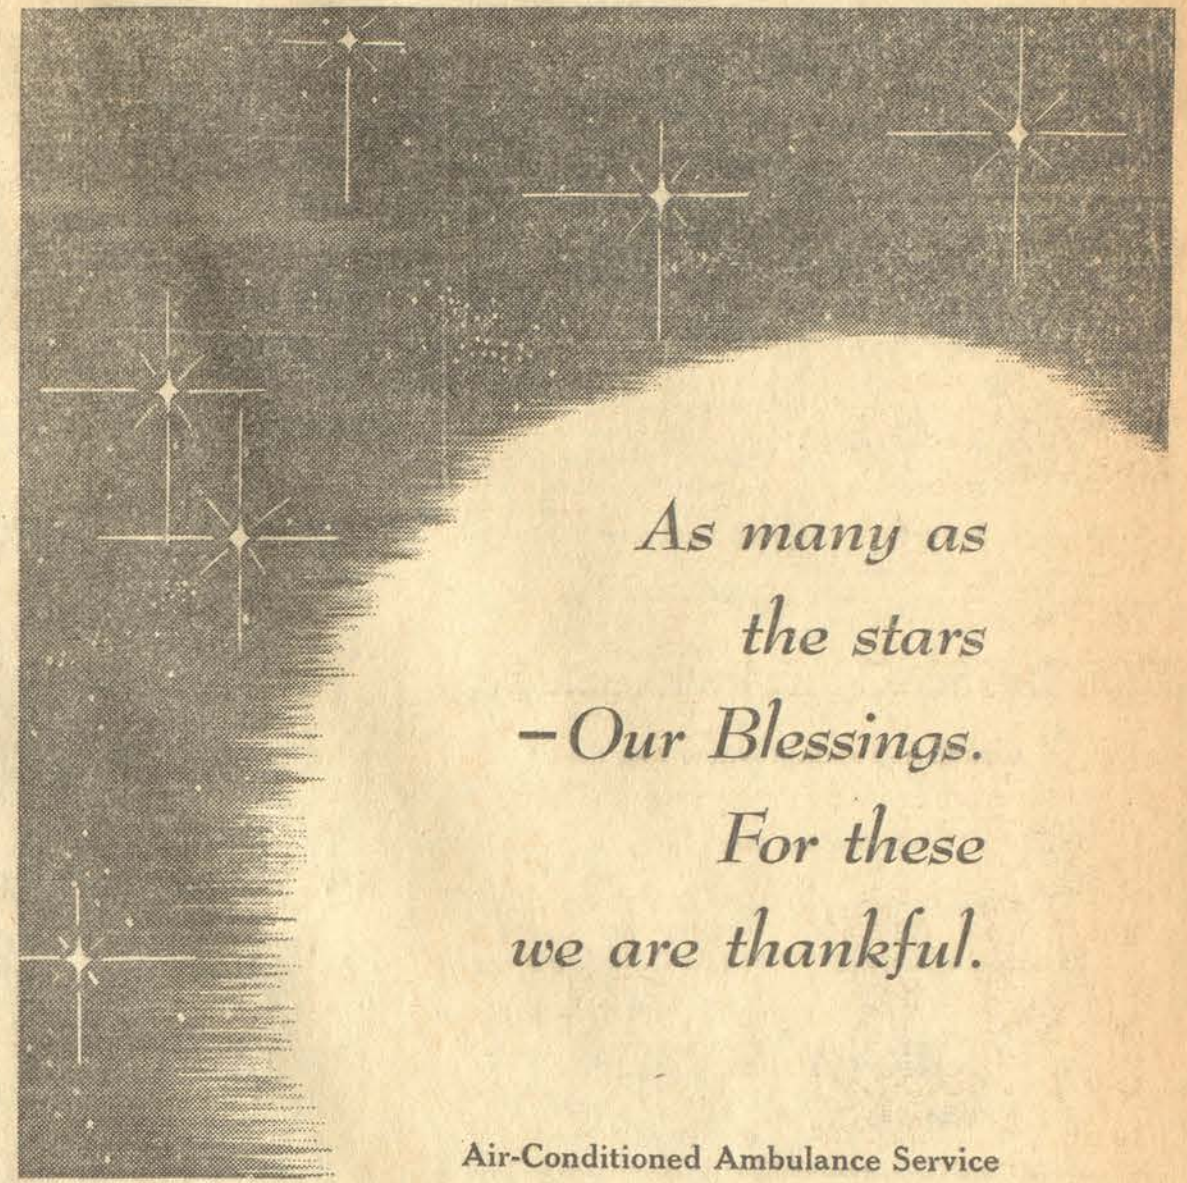

PRE-SEASON OPENS TUESDAY

The annual Floyd county pre-season basketball tournament will open in Wayland next Tuesday, with the host Wasps the heavy favorite to cop the crown.

Garrett is the defending champion of the meet, but "Copper-John" Campbell's unit is the defending 58th district champ.

Railroads are vigorously promoting a so-called "Cabinet Committee plan" to restrict public controls over transportation rate-making—returning such power to railroad hands.

Both Protect You...

Both Are Modern!

Your rights and privileges as an American citizen are protected by the Constitution, a unique and magnificent document whose principles are as sound today as when written, over 150 years ago.

Through the years, amendments have been added to keep the Constitution up-to-date.

The same is true of the regulatory powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Congress has enacted more than 150 amendments to the Interstate Commerce Act since it was passed in 1887, completely overhauling it twice.

In principle, present ICC regulations governing the various transportation systems are pertinent, constructive, and modern in concept. Under these principles, we have developed the greatest competitive transportation system in the world!

Marines Open Office
In Pikeville; Sgt. King
To Be Here Wednesdays

Louisville, Ky. — Marine Major John C. Johnston, officer in charge of Marine Corps recruiting activities throughout Kentucky, has announced the approval of Marine Corps authorities to open a Marine recruiting sub-station in Pikeville.

The nearest Marine activity serving this area in the past was the Marine recruiting office in Hazard. The Pikeville station will include Pike, Floyd, Morgan, Lawrence, Magoffin, Martin, and Johnson counties in its territory.

The Major has appointed Staff Sgt. Floyd Lee King to assume the duties of noncommissioned officer in charge.

Twenty-three-year-old Sgt. King, a veteran of Korean service, has been a member of the "Leatherneck" Corps for the past five years. Since his original enlistment, the Burlington, North Carolina Marine has traveled half-way around the world, including duty at Parris Island, S. C., Camp Lejeune, N. C., Japan, Korea, and 29 Palms, Calif. Among his decorations for service, King holds the Marine Good Conduct medal, National Defense medal, Korean Service medal with two battle stars, United Nations medal, and the Korean Presidential Unit Citation awarded to the First Marine Division.

Sgt. King said recently that he hopes to become a "real member" of this Kentucky region. He added that "having lived all my life (before service) on the farm, I believe that I'll be able to understand the problems facing the youngsters in this area."

He added that enlistments are now unlimited for eligible young men and women in the United States Marines and that complete information may be obtained about the many opportunities of Marine service at the recruiting office located in the Federal building in Pikeville.

Also residing with the Marine recruiter in Pikeville, is his wife, the former Miss Christine Marie Clark, of Burlington, N. C. He will be at the Postoffice building in Prestonsburg from 10 a.m. till 12 noon each Wednesday.
