

HONOR SYSTEM ABANDONED
Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 9 — State Police Commissioner P. A. B. Widener discarded the so-called "honor system" of handling out-of-state motorists who violate traffic laws, directed that those guilty of gross violations be taken immediately before a judge or magistrate for disposal of their cases.

The honor system had resulted in a high "back-log" of cases in many courts, Widener said.

Farm Leaders To Attend UK Farm and Home Week; 4-Day Program Offered

Several farmers, their wives and others from this county are planning to attend the 44th annual Farm and Home Week at the University of Kentucky, Jan. 31-Feb. 2, it was said here. Three Floyd county farmers will participate in the programs, it was noted.

Vincent Smith, James Allen and Paul Dotson, outstanding sheepmen, will take part in the session devoted to sheep production on Feb. 2.

There will be separate sessions for farm-folks on all days except Wednesday afternoon, February 1, when there will be a general session on the subject, "The Farm Family of the Future." Speakers at this general session will be R. G. Gustafson, president of the Resources for the Future, Inc., Washington, whose subject will be, "Your Farm in an Atomic Age;" and Mrs. Luella Canterbury, Chicago, psychologist, analyst and lecturer.

Other meetings will consider such subjects as soils and fertilizers, specialty crops, storage of crops, strawberry production, seed improvement, agricultural engineering, social security for farmers, the production of beef cattle, hogs, sheep and poultry, tobacco production, irrigation, dairying, the rural community and church, the outlook for agriculture, and many phases of homemaking.

Many organizations of farmers, stockmen and women will meet during the week. A homemakers chorus will sing one evening and visitors will have an opportunity to see a basketball game between the University of Kentucky and Duke University. Many other events of interest are listed in the official program.

PERKINS BILL SEEKS RELIEF

For This, Other Areas Suffering Job Shortages; Cites Unemployment Data

Congressman Carl D. Perkins introduced recently a "depressed-areas act" aimed at relieving unemployment in such labor-distressed sections as Eastern Kentucky.

The bill is similar to one introduced in the Senate last July by Senator Douglas (D., Ill.). The Douglas subcommittee is holding hearings on the problem.

The Hindman Democrat said Douglas told him the subcommittee will hold hearings in Perkins' Seventh Congressional District sometime in February, but has not yet decided on places and dates.

Perkins said the unemployment in five Eastern Kentucky areas is far above that for the state as a whole.

Total employment in Kentucky amounted to 976,800 last month, with total unemployment of 58,700 or 5.7 per cent, he said.

But in the five Eastern Kentucky areas, the unemployment figures ranged from 8.5 per cent to 12.8 per cent.

He listed areas with employment, unemployment, and unemployment percentages as follows:

Hazard areas (Breathitt, Perry, and Letcher counties)—17,815 employed, 1,698 unemployed or 8.7 per cent.

Pikeville area (Pike county)—10,865 employed, 1,633 unemployed or 12.8 per cent.

Prestonsburg area (Martin, Johnson, Magoffin, Floyd, and Knott counties)—20,782 employed, 2,273 unemployed or 9.9 per cent.

Employment in the areas totals 98,933 while unemployment totals 10,208 or 9.6 per cent.

Perkins said that there are families in the Seventh district without food and that children go to school without having been fed. He said that three out of every 10 persons there are subsisting on relief.

In the four years between 1950 and 1954, the district's population declined more than 10 per cent as a result of people being forced out by economic necessity, Perkins said.

"These good people resent unemployment and the necessity of accepting handouts," Perkins declared. "They do not want more relief, but a program to provide them with jobs in their own communities."

The major provisions of Perkins' bill are:

1. It sets up an agency whose sole function would be to help distressed areas.
2. The agency administrator is authorized to make loans or grants up to 100 per cent of the cost for construction of industrial plants and commercial facilities, including commercial water, to attract new industries to depressed areas.
3. The administrator is authorized to construct needed public facilities, including secondary roads, to attract new enterprises and help established business. The contributions of local communities will depend upon their ability to pay. The United States Government will pay the balance.
4. Federal procurement agencies shall buy supplies and services to the maximum practicable extent from depressed areas.
5. The agency shall make available to depressed areas market research and other forms of technical assistance.
6. The secretary of labor is directed to provide suitable re-employment training and vocational education to the unemployed.
7. Unemployed persons in depressed areas who avail themselves of retaining opportunities are entitled to extension of unemployment insurance for an additional 13 weeks.

Lawrence County Plans Rabid Fox Destruction With State Assistance

Lawrence county plans to war on rabid foxes with gas bombs. Hostilities will open Feb. 1 and continue two weeks, officials of the Kentucky Department of Conservation say.

Foxes will be whelping in herdens in early February and the carbonmonoxide gas cartridges will be released in all dens identified with the co-operation of local farmers. The incidence of rabies in the animals, particularly in the Big Blaine section, has been high in recent weeks. Fifty head of livestock have either died or been destroyed as the result of rabies in Lawrence county.

Fred Arrington, secretary of the Lawrence county farm bureau, quoted a Conservation Department official that rabid foxes have been reported in about 30 counties, mostly in the eastern section. He said Breathitt county had suffered most.

Three Lawrence county residents took rabies shots after being attacked and bitten. The foxes were killed.

Farmers have reported a loss "in the neighborhood of 50 livestock," Arrington said. He added that of 10 fox heads recently examined by the State Public Health Laboratory in Lexington, eight showed evidence of rabies.

If the gassing program is not effective, Arrington said, trapping will be started.

No new evidence that rabid foxes existed in Floyd county appeared this week but the situation was being watched by the local Extension Service and others.

"I don't think this would have happened on concrete!"

"It happened so fast, officer! I was taking it easy because I know this type of pavement is slippery when wet. I stepped on the brakes to slow down for the curve and my car suddenly went completely out of control. I skidded into the other lane of traffic and right into that other car. I don't think this would have happened if I had been on a concrete road."

You're right, Mr. Motorist. There's less chance of such an accident on concrete. Concrete pavement has greater skid resistance than other pavements. Your tires get a tight grip on its gritty surface. This means better vehicle control and quicker stops without skidding, even though it may be raining.

Remember, the type of pavement can often mean the difference between life and death. You're much safer when you drive on a skid-resistant concrete pavement.

PAYMENTS STOPPED

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 9 — Commissioner of Agriculture Ben J. Butler announced removal of indemnity payments for cattle infected with Bang's disease and sent to slaughter—and lifting of the requirement for blood testing calves before they are vaccinated, as an economy measure.

Butler explained that he expected to save approximately $13,000 for the remainder of the year.

"The practical situation is this: We have only about thirty per cent of our federal money available to last us for one-half the fiscal year."

Rate of payment for diseased cattle could not exceed $25 a head for grade cattle and $50 for purebred cattle. Average payment was approximately $28.

ELECTION LAW STUDY ASKED

Fayette Group Proposes Legislature Authorize Review of Existing Acts

(From The Lexington Herald, Nov. 3, 1955)

General Assembly authorization of a study by the Legislative Research Commission of Kentucky's laws pertaining to elections and political parties was proposed yesterday by the Fayette Committee for Citizenship which stated many of the laws should be revised.

The FCC also called on all local candidates for the Kentucky Senate and House of Representatives to "take a position in regard to the proposal."

The committee listed the following examples of laws that need revision:

1. "The period of time between the holding of an election and the certification and announcement of the results is too long. This keeps candidates in suspense and where there is a long ballot and a close race it could lead to the falsification of results, particularly in a primary.

2. "In order to contest a statewide election a candidate must post bond in the sum of $500 for a recount in each county in the state, or a total of $60,000. This excessive bond is prohibitive for most candidates, but such a candidate may believe that mistakes have been made or fraudulent practices used against him in only a few counties and not wish to have a recount in the others.

3. "A candidate for governor is permitted to spend only $10,000 in his campaign including the amounts expended on his behalf by others. Every major party candidate has several times this amount spent for him. This makes the law a dead letter and leaves the public without any effective control over the collection or expenditure of campaign funds.

4. "Since Kentucky has no presidential primary, the people have no voice in choosing and instructing the delegates to the national nominating convention of their respective political parties, but both our United States senators are on record in favor of a presidential primary for Kentucky."

5. "Until such time as precinct committeemen and committeewomen of the respective parties are chosen by secret ballot in primary elections the members of a political party will have no voice in the control of its affairs, which includes the use of the power of a political organization nominations for public office."

Private Use of State Seal Forbidden, Ruled

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 16 — The seal of the Commonwealth is public property, and may not be converted to private commercial use, the Attorney General's office ruled.

A Long Island firm sought an opinion on the subject which brought a reply from Assistant Attorney General Hugh L. Hollingsworth that "it is the public policy that said seal should be used only for public purposes . . . and it would be illegal for any private person, association or group to undertake to use the seal or a simulation of it for private commercial purposes."

NCA OPPOSES RATE BOOST

Coal Men Says Rails Seek Passenger Train Subsidy Through Freight

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (Spl.)—The board of directors of the National Coal Association, in reaffirming the industry's opposition to any further freight rate increases, charged today that coal traffic is forced to subsidize passenger deficits of the railroads through "exorbitant and excessive freight rates on coal."

In a resolution adopted at the first 1956 meeting, the Directors said that coal is already paying rates far above the cost of providing the service received from the railroads. They decided on the action to emphasize and underscore the coal industry's opposition to the pending petition of the railroads to increase freight rates another seven per cent effective Feb. 25.

The coal industry has notified the Interstate Commerce Commission of its opposition to the proposed increase and has requested a separate hearing on the issue.

"Freight rates on coal are already excessive because coal bears too large a share of the overhead burden of the railroads," the NCA board of directors said. "Coal traffic is forced to subsidize the passenger deficits of the railroads, and coal is already paying rates that are far above the cost of providing the service, as was recently recognized by the Cabinet committee on Energy Resources and Supplies."

The Cabinet committee urged in 1955 that freight rates on coal be reduced by the railroads voluntarily or in the absence of such action, then by the ICC by compulsory order.

Tom Pickett, executive vice-president of National Coal Association, said that it is time for the railroads to end their passenger deficit operations which must be financed out of coal and other freight.

"Rates on all carload freight can be reduced substantially if the railroads were required to eliminate the deficits they incur on passenger and allied services running up to $700,000,000 a year," Mr. Pickett said. "The reduction could be even larger for bituminous coal since coal makes a larger contribution than much of the other freight transported by the carriers to the burden of these deficits."

"We think it is time for the railroads to end their deficit incurring services and reduce the charges on one commodity—coal—which supplies more carloads of revenue freight than any other item and more than $1 billion annually in revenues for the railroads."

"Fresh Viewpoint," a program of colored slides showing how a drab room may be transformed, were shown Jan. 9 at the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club club house for members of the club, Junior Woman's Club and visitors, it was announced this week by Mrs. N. D. Howard, Chairman.

The program was made available to the club by the Celanese Corporation of America, and each slide offered suggestions on such problems as covering up architectural defects, how to conceal an unsightly radiator and how to give an old room a new look. Mrs. Howard read the commentary on the 57 slides shown.

WRAPPING UP

Somewhere along the way from the hardy pioneers, who were supposed to have had too few clothes for the severe weather they had to face, to the generation just before mine there grew up a fear of cold that was almost pathological. We used to declare that Mother wanted us to take an extra blanket or quilt for wrapping up when we were merely driving a few miles to a party, often to a dinner and on days that were not so very cold by the thermometer. And how we padded ourselves with clothes! I should say, "How our mothers padded us!" Why, when I was a little tad, I wore a red flannel "underbody," a cotton flannel body on top of that, a shirt on that, and then my coat and overcoat. Still later, when knitted underwear came into our remote place, I wore "long handles" from early cold weather until late, what seems like spring now. When I was still in short pants, I would have those long-legged things down to my ankles, and over them I would pull home-knit yarn stockings. My legs looked like some diseased members that should have been remedied by surgery, especially after I had trudged to the schoolhouse and had run a few hundred miles playing Wolf over the River. With so many clothes on, we always were too hot or too cold. Our houses, until stoves came in, were drafty, with blistering heat on one side and a regular storm of cold wind on the other. After the arrival of stoves, people stewed in their houses, rarely thinking to remove some of the heavier outer clothing, even keeping on their hats.

And ears must be a lot tougher now than formerly. Those caps with earflaps that we used seem rarely used now, except by hunters or woodcutters, and then only on the very coldest, windiest days. As I have said before, many men of my generation should be forgiven for having ears that turn down like some of those of James Thurber's dogs in his numerous cartoons. That special set of our ears was without question helped or even started by our pulling down the ears with the flaps. If we did not have flaps on our caps, we often borrowed a discarded fascinator, and then we were literally "wrapped up," so wrapped up that we sweated copiously but still wore the wool fascinator, as directed by our mothers. It has been years since I have had anything over my ears for more than a very few minutes, even though I am often out for hours in the very bitterest weather. And I do not see very many men and practically never see boys so defending their ears against the cold. Maybe some extra blood vessels have developed in my ears to keep them so warm.

When I think of the loads of cover that I used to sleep under, I wonder why I am not flatter than a pancake rather than so "round and firm and fully packed." There must have been eight or ten quilts, besides home-woven wool blankets. Then there was the fat feather bed beneath and around, so that a sleeper was tucked away as snugly as a bear in his cave or hibernaculum. In an unheated room that was not so bad, but many of us slept only a few feet from what was left of the booming wood fire in the fireplace and probably kept too hot part of the night and cold the rest of it. In those days we had colds practically all the time; maybe this overheating helped as much as anything else.

And how tender the hands of men and boys used to be! Gloves were as much a part of one's being dressed in winter as shoes or socks. Wool gloves, tufted gloves, buckskin gloves—they were everywhere. It makes my hands sweat to think of such things, even when I am out in far-below-freezing weather. Gloves are still pretty common, but not compared with their former use. Evidently we are better able to stand cold or think we are; and we are healthier, too.

Nowadays it is easy enough to buy luxury goods on time—the trouble comes in paying on time.

MISIONARY UNION MEETS

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Union of the Baptist Church was held at the church's on Jan. 11. The program was based on "Stewardship." The prayer request was that God will bless the witness of faithful Christians around the world and help us to know and fulfill our own responsibilities to Him and to those who have not heard the Gospel.

Mrs. Sydia Hall gave a report on a Japanese city of 150,000 population which has no Baptist missionary. "Money and More" was given by Mrs. Fred Cochrane. This report was on a Seminole Indian family who gave craft work for this contribution. The meeting was closed by scripture reading and prayer by Mrs. Cochrane.

Mayo School Structure Given Final Approval; Work Scheduled Soon

A two-story building for Mayo State Vocational School has received final approval for construction, and work should begin before January 25 if weather conditions permit, it was said last week.

Preston Building and Supply Company, of Pikeville, has been awarded the contract at a cost of approximately $145,000.

The new structure will be of brick, 120 feet long, 68 feet wide, and have the same first floor level as the addition completed last year.

The first floor will be used as additional shop space and the second will house the business, cosmetology, and radio departments.

When completed, this building will permit expansion of departments that are over-crowded and enable the school to enroll many people who have been on the school's waiting list for a long time, some of them for about 14 months.

Maytown High School Selected To Receive Library Grant Books

Chicago — The Maytown high school library, Langley, Ky., has been selected to receive one of the 1,600 sets of Great Books of the Western World being distributed through a selection committee of the American Library Association under a grant from the Old Dominion Foundation. Announcement of the names of recipients was made at the ALA headquarters in Chicago by David H. Clift, ALA executive secretary.

The celebrated 54-volume work, including the unique idea-index, the Syclopedia, was produced by Encyclopaedia Britannica in collaboration with the University of Chicago. To assure that an adequate cross-section of universities, colleges and public libraries possessed the set, the Old Dominion Foundation advanced a sum sufficient to distribute 1,600 sets and invited the American Library Association to serve as the agency of selection and distribution. A special ALA Great Books Selection Committee, appointed for this purpose by the ALA Executive Board, has been working at this project for several months.

To get the project under way, the Selection Committee mailed an application questionnaire on September 1, 1955, to approximately 30,000 libraries, using the comprehensive lists of the R. R. Bowker Co., including libraries in the following categories: public, college and university, junior college, public high school, Catholic high school, private high school; as well as to all state library agencies.

Any library, anywhere in the U. S., however, was also invited to make application for a set if the application form had not been received by September 15, 1955. The 1,600 successful applicants were selected from among the several thousand libraries that replied.

Department Income Rises But License Sales Decline

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 16 (Sp.) — Although the income from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses declined during the past fiscal year, the overall income for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources was $109,711 greater during 1954-55 than during the previous year.

The increase in revenue was brought about by a larger allotment to Kentucky from the Federal government.

The Department reported that in 1953-54 the hunting license sale amounted to $773,374, while for the past year the amount was $748,688, a decrease of $24,685.

For the same periods the fishing license total for 1953-54 was $769,710. Last year the revenue amounted to $719,401, a decline of $50,309.

The increase in Federal government funds allotted to the Department was $168,692 during the past year.
