CLIVE'S BLOOD RUNS THICK AND THIN

Last Year: "Taxpayers Back Burnis Martin" This Year: "Burnis Backs Taxpayers Over a Cliff"

In a recent issue of the paper, we notice that Clive Akers is reported as being related to Joe Bates. If so, Clive's blood relationship is now conveniently running thick.

In last year's Governor's race, Clive turned his back on Bert Combs, whose wife, Mabel Hall Combs, was also Clive's cousin. This, Akers did at a time when many of his relatives were for Bert Combs.

This year Clive's blood is running thick as molasses, but last year it was running thin as vinegar.

The same article also claims Bates is interested in Eastern Kentucky because of all these so-called relatives. Last year, Bates had the same number of relatives, and was no less kin to them. Yet he turned his back on his Eastern Kentucky relatives and supported a tryant from the Blue Grass for Governor, who has demonstrated beyond doubt that he cares nothing for Eastern Kentucky or its problems, and has given us no thought except to double our taxes.

Last year it was "TAXPAYERS, BACK BURNIS MARTIN, VOTE HAPPY CHANDLER." Now Burnis' governor has doubled your tax. He has his increased, tax-free expense account in the Commonwealth Attorney's office, and his brother, Fred, has a state job. Following his advice has backed the taxpayers into a hole. Burnis' gains are our losses.

May 29th don't back Burnis Martin, back the interest of all the Eastern Kentucky by voting for Earle C. Clements for United

Good Riddance—But More Of Same Is Needed

The Kentucky Court of Appeals last week handed down a decision which means the end of the fee system in the courts of the state. It is a pity that by the same summary action the fee system could not be eliminated from all offices of the state.

The Appellate Court's opinion, and this newspaper's salute to such an opinion, is no reflection on the ability of any Justice of the Peace to conduct a criminal trial. It simply states a standard of justice, which is to the effect that the accused is entitled to a trial beyond any taint of bias because of any possible pecuniary gain the presiding judge might acquire in the event of conviction of the accused.

We are told that the fee system in other offices of the counties of Kentucky cannot be thus and forever amended except by amendment of the state constitution. This may mean that the state is to be afflicted with such an ancient and antiquated system for years to come, but it does not mean that Kentucky should not make a start, now, to rid itself of the system.

If every official in every county of the state were paid by the state treasury a definite and fixed salary, and if these officials were required to remit to the state treasury every fine and all of the fees collected, the whole political atmosphere of the Commonwealth would improve. Fixed income for officials would control the amount candidates could spend with expectation of profit in an election, and in this way slush funds would dwindle, election fraud would be less tempting and the general moral tone of politics would improve.

Getting rid of the pernicious fee system wherever it touches should be a matter of deep concern to every Kentuckian.

Every nominee is either a resident of this county or has once lived here, with one exception. One honorary member was unanimously chosen by the committee. Only one from what was originally Floyd county was named.

The leading woman from all named, was selected. The most distinguished man was chosen, while the foremost young man and young woman were also picked from the many. Each of these four will be specially recognized with awards during the program. In addition, the Citizen of the Year will be paid tribute.

The 'Law' Was An Eye-Witness To Multiple Collisions Sunday

It wasn't necessary to "call the law" last Sunday afternoon at Emma when three cars and two trucks mixed up in one grand slam and hospitalized nine persons. Deputy sheriffs, Jole Maynard, Frank Blackburn and Silas Derossett were parked at the place when the collisions started and were eye-witnesses.

The officers' car had stopped at a roadside stand near the mouth of Moseley's Branch and had parked about five feet off the highway. Down the highway came a Buick driven by Joe Green, of West Prestonsburg, accompanied by Earl Osborne, of Ivel and others. The Green car, according to Maynard, sideswiped a truck going south, driven by W. H. Conley, of Martin. Under the impact of the Green car the truck "tail-spinned", as Maynard expressed it, swung off the road, struck the sheriff's car. Green's car then swung across the road, struck a car driven by a Mr. Conley, of Pike County. From then on until the colliding stopped it was not clear just what happened except that a truck driver unknown, struck the Pike county car in front and another car, driven by another Pike countian, plowed into the rear of the same car.

PEACE SOUGHT BY DEMOCRATS

But Bates Proposal Not Quickly Accepted; Local Chairmen Named

cratic party above personal ambitions.

"I am presently of the opinion that the Democratic State Central Executive Committee has a decision to make which vitally affects the Democratic party in Kentucky and in the nation.

"I am sure that each member of that committee desires to find a method of reaching a decision which will insure a great democratic victory in November.

"For these reasons I am again subordinating personal ambition to party loyalty by offering, through means of this letter, to accept nomination by the Democratic State Central Executive Committee to fill the unexpired term of the late Alben W. Barkley.

"In the meantime, I will continue my present campaign in such manner that, if my offer of compromise is not accepted, I will receive at the hands of the Democratic voters on May 29 a nomination much more desirable to me personally than the one I have offered to accept for the sake of the success of the Democratic party."

Pressed for comment on the situation created by Bates' offer to quit the race against him, Clements issued this prepared statement.

"Representatives of the press have indicated they feel I should make some statement on the suggestion by my opponent that he will withdraw from this race against me if he can be assured that the Democratic State Central committee will give him the nomination to fill the vacancy in the Senate created by the death of Senator Alben Barkley.

"This proposal by my opponent was not addressed to me, and that is quite proper, inasmuch as I am not a member of the State Central Executive Committee.

"That committee is composed of fine men and women of our party who are qualified to reach conclusions of their own as to what is best for the Democratic Party, for our state, and for our nation."

"Throughout my public career I have never sought to dictate to my fellow Democrats. I followed that policy while I served as Governor and have continued to do so as senator.

"I have no control over the committee and I certainly could not and have no desire to attempt to speak for its membership.

"There is only one course for me to follow and that is to continue as a candidate for reelection to the U. S. Senate.

"I was not responsible for the entry of my opponent into this race nor do I have authority to bring about his withdrawal.

"The rules under which I must make this race have been laid down. Again, they were not made at my request or for my benefit, but I am trying to make the best of a difficult situation by dividing my time between attending to my official duties at Washington and the details of my campaign in Kentucky.

"I do not feel there is any connection between this contest and the filling of the Senate vacancy left by Senator Barkley's death. The Democrats of Kentucky will settle this immediate contest on May 29 by selecting their nominee for the full six-year term.

"The Governor has the authority under law to fill the vacancy until the November election; the State Central Executive Committee has the authority under the law to select a Democratic nominee for the remainder of that term.

"Neither the Governor nor the committee has asked for my advice.

"My position is that I hope my record and Senate standing will justify the Democrats of Kentucky to renominate me on May 29 and that I will gain re-election to the Senate in November. This would give me further opportunity to push forward for greater service to our people."

Jackson Says Teamwork Is Key To Conservation; Pledges His Cooperation

Frankfort, Ky., May 7 (Spl.) — Cooperation between all agencies interested in conservation of natural resources was stressed in a speech to top U. S. Conservation Service personnel from 19 midwestern states by Kentucky Conservation Commissioner Laban P. Jackson at Kentucky Dam Village State Park recently.

USCS Conservationists and their assistants, gathered for an area conference, heard Jackson declare that cooperation between federal, state and farmer's groups is the key to protection of natural resources.

"People in my department have been ordered to go more than half way in their efforts to assist other agencies in the preservation of our resources . . . we're taking the attitude that natural resources not only must be preserved but utilized," he said.

Jackson pointed to predicted shortages of water and noted that Kentucky, with more miles of waterways than any other state, should be developed into a system of reservoirs.

He said, "Kentucky could be the promised land if we would first conserve our water, then attract industry that will utilize products of our fields, mines and forests. At the same time we would create for our people a recreational spot in surpassed in America."

Other Conservation Department officials on the program were Marshall Qualls, Director of the Division of Soil and Water Resources and Robert Lee Bolin, Director of the Division of Flood Control and Water Usage.

Nurses Have Double Role In Tending and Teaching Sick To Heed MD's Advice

If you were asked: "What is a nurse's job?", you'd probably reply without hesitation: "Caring for the sick." But did it ever occur to you that in some cases teaching the sick is also an important part of nursing?

This is particularly true of tuberculosis, a disease that usually requires a drastic change in the patient's living habits. Today, because of the effectiveness of modern methods of treatment, more and more victims of TB are living longer. While the threat of death from the disease has declined, the possibility of relapse—of another bout with the disease—is faced by almost all TB patients. Relapse can, however, be avoided if they learn to adjust their lives to the special problems.

Here the nurse comes in as a teacher. She helps her patients understand their stubborn and long-term disease. She teaches them the precautions they must take to keep it under control. When patients leave the hospital, their future health and well-being depend upon how well they follow medical advice. If the nurse has done a good job of teaching, they will have a much better chance for a healthy and productive future.

The importance of the nurse's teaching extends beyond the individual patient. It affects the patient's family and all those with whom he comes into contact. If the TB patient does not care for himself properly and suffers relapse as a result he endangers the health of those around him.

The nurse in her teaching job helps protect the health of the family and the entire community as well as that of the individual TB patient.

Roberts, Lockin Tell Methods Inland Steel Uses in W'Wright Mines

(Special to The Times)

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 8 — The use of continuous mining equipment has been undertaken at mines of the Inland Steel Co., in Eastern Kentucky in an effort to keep these mines competitive with others in the coal industry, many of which possess less difficult natural conditions.

E. H. Roberts, superintendent of underground maintenance, and G. W. Lockin, production engineer for the company at Wheelwright, Ky., told delegates to the 1956 Coal Convention of the American Mining Congress today.

They said that the coal seam in which they operate supplies coal with good coking qualities to the company's Chicago steel plants but that operating conditions in the mines are difficult and the mineable coal seam varies in height from 28 inches to 72 inches with 42 inches being the average.

They pointed out that they introduced the first continuous mining machine at their properties in June, 1952 and added other models in 1953 and 1954. They told the mining meeting that their main problem to this time has not been operating the mining machine in coal that approaches the lower cutting height, but that natural seam conditions forces the machine to do a large amount of extra hard cutting. They said that progress has been made in the use of continuous mining at their properties and they are optimistic about its future.

They predicted that a machine will eventually be built which will overcome several problems which they have faced: low height, soft bottom, interference with timbers and excessive noise.

The safety director of the Consolidation Coal Company (Ky.) told the convention that through the use of roof bolting as a means of mine roof support his company had been able to sharply reduce accidents from roof falls, supply handling, and equipment movement over the past six years.

M. E. Prunty, Jenkins, Ky., said that in this period these classes of accidents had dropped by about 80 per cent. He also pointed out that use of roof bolting instead of conventional timbering at his company's mines had resulted in an increase in production efficiency of approximately 70 per cent during the past six years.

Prunty told the convention that the use of roof bolts to hold up the mine roof had also cut the cost of ventilation while increasing the quantity of air throughout the mines, and had stepped up production through the freer and faster movement of equipment into and out of the working faces. He warned coal mining men that while roof bolting has been a great advance in roof control, it "is not by any means the final answer." He enjoined them to "use every effort to improve these methods and further reduce roof fall accidents."

Research Commission Studies Effect of Law

Frankfort, May 7 (Spl.) — The Legislative Research Commission has been asked to study the effect of the new annexation bill passed by the recent General Assembly, one calculated to prevent "corridor" annexation of particular industries.

Governor Chandler said it was not the purpose of the bill to "prohibit, restrict or hamper normal expansion of municipal boundaries if such normal development and expansion extend to and embrace industrial properties," but added that its purpose was "to prevent arbitrary annexation procedures."

He added that the Commission would study the effect of the law during the next two years and "if the report of the Commission, based on the experience of Kentucky communities indicates that changes in the law are necessary, the Administration will give full support to such changes at the next meeting of the General Assembly."

Great Bend, Kan., May 3 — The response has improved since the Rev. Raymond Knowles replaced "Reserved" signs in the East Methodist Church lot with signs reading, "Thou Shalt Not Park."

Rail Lines Continuing Reduced Service Trend

Frankfort, Ky., May 7 (Spl.) — Trend toward abandonment of local freight and passenger service by Kentucky's railroads still continues, the Kentucky Railroad Commission reported today.

"Unless action is taken by the Legislature, Kentucky may find itself without this service," said a report of the Commission. "Three times bills have been offered to change the law so as to make it necessary for the railroads to show a loss in their whole operation in order to discontinue passenger service, but none of the bills have been passed."

The law requires the Commission to approve applications for discontinuance of service if it can be shown that passenger trains operate at a loss, without regard to whether the combined freight and passenger system is profitable.

The tremendous increase in motor vehicle registrations in Kentucky, as well as the entire country, has cut deeply into railroads local passenger service patronage, the report continued.

Mr. Floyd County Voter...

Keep A Real and Effective Friend In The United States Senate

WORK and VOTE for EARLE C. CLEMENTS

For U.S. Senator In Kentucky's Democratic Primary, Tuesday, May 29

There's No Substitute for Experience and Prestige

Earle Clements has both. He learned your problems and your needs:

- At the local level as sheriff, county clerk and county judge.
- At the state level as State Senator and Governor.
- At the federal level as U. S. Representative and U. S. Senator.
- As a World War I veteran.

It's All In The Record...

EARLE C. CLEMENTS — AS YOUR SENATOR:

- Is piloting through Congress legislation to give effective federal help on small watershed programs including those on the Big Sandy and other rivers.
- Led the fight to restore tobacco acreage to Kentucky farmers.
- Is vigorously supporting federal aid to education.
- Has voted consistently in the interests of organized labor. Already he has been endorsed by the Political Action Committee of the A. F. L. and C. I. O. He has received the endorsement of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and has been highly praised in the United Mine Workers Journal of April 1, 1956, for his efforts to procure surplus foods for unemployed coal miners.
- Because of his experience, proven ability and progressive thinking Earle C. Clements was selected by his fellow Senators to be their Assistant Majority Leader, an unprecedented honor for a first term Senator.

EARLE C. CLEMENTS — AS YOUR GOVERNOR:

- Started the expanded rural road program in Kentucky. He was responsible for building more rural roads in Floyd county and in Kentucky than any other governor in the history of our state. Watch for a list of these roads to be published later.
- Appropriated more money for Kentucky's schools than any governor who preceded him in office—and this without additional taxes.
- Made Kentucky's park system second to none in the nation, bringing millions of money-spending tourists to our state. Our present Governor has cut the appropriations for this progressive program.
- Through the A. & I. D. Board encouraged millions of dollars in new industry to come to Kentucky.
- Obtained increased appropriations for Kentucky's institutions and greater appropriations for the teacher retirement fund, the old-aged, the needy blind, the dependent children and the unemployed of Kentucky.
- Was the first governor to speed up the processing and handling of workmen's compensation claims and raised the injured workers' benefits, both medical and otherwise, beyond that of any governor of Kentucky.
