man, Tom Underwood was not one of these ivory tower boys, but the comparative seclusion of an editor's office was a poor training ground for the rough-and-tumble of Kentucky politics. He was more interested in politics than IN politics. He was an eloquent speaker before a group of newspapermen. When a group of us heard him at a Kentucky Press Association meeting we were agreed he was a great speaker. When I heard him, several years later, in a political campaign, I decided he was the world's worst. His heart just wasn't in it.

During his ill-fated campaign against John Sherman Cooper he visited Dewey Lake with Senator Clements, and two of us who were interested in more water in the impoundment took him out in a boat to give him an idea of Dewey's possibilities. He was tired, and he looked it.

To make conversation I joshed him. "Which would you rather do, campaign for votes or get out a newspaper?" I asked.

"Don't be silly," he said in his deep rumble of a voice. "This campaign's killing me."

ADD HATCHER STORY

Our Mr. Scalf in his recent feature yarn forgot at least one incident in the country squire life of Col. James Hatcher that I think might be added to the record. He failed to tell about the time Mr. Hatcher decided there was a future in raising jumbo bullfrogs. He fenced off a section in the headwaters of Ivy Creek and stocked it with prime specimens imported from Louisiana, then turned his agile mind to other projects while waiting for the enterprise to pay off. But he failed to take Mother Nature into consideration. A heavy rain fell, Ivy Creek rose, the frogs topped the fence and presumably headed due south.

ANOTHER TALE OF WOE

You have heard and read my jeremiads after ill-fated fishing trips and have stood up under it all without complaint so well that this week I shall tell Russell May, Prestonsburg sign-painter, do the wailing.

Russell is here to tell all and sundry that this business of keeping quiet has nothing whatsoever to do with juring a bass to hook. We quote him, perhaps a bit freely but with reasonable accuracy: "I'm down in the Big Branch part of Dewey Lake fishing one day last year. Everything is quiet, and I help keep it that way. I seat myself clear up on the deck of the boat, and I'm using a featherweight paddle, having heard that oars and oarlocks scare the dickens out of fish. I ease along the bank, dipping the paddle deep and pulling it back with slow, even strokes, just to be sure I make not a sound. I not only don't make any noise, I barely make a ripple.

"And so I go along that bank, casting a flyrod popper. Every two or three feet that bug nestles down on the water. I let it lie there quietly every time, then I just barely wiggle it. Let it rest some more. Wiggle it again. Then pop it, maybe. On I go, fishing and sweating. I even cast onto the bank and pull the bug off into the water. And not a strike—not a wiggle do I get out of anything but the bug I'm throwin'.

"Then, all of a sudden, three fellows in an old flat-bottomed boat round the point with motor wide open, and head in my direction. They run past me, almost washing me up onto the first flat, and stop maybe 50 yards behind me, in territory I've already worked. One of them grabs the oars, hits a can or bait bucket or something, and starts splashing the water with those oars. They make just about every noise three men in a boat can make while one of them starts casting a flyrod bug out into the backwash their own boat has made. And things have no more than quietened down so that I could get back to fishing when I hear one of them yell, 'Hold him—you've got a big'n!'

This fish, Russell judges, would have measured 18 inches. He didn't go back to see, for he didn't want to make any noise. "Well, they start stomping around in the boat hunting a stringer," Russell continues. "They open one or more tackle boxes and slam them together, and finally drag out a stringer to the tune of unseemly rattling and jangling, string their fish up, toss him over the side with a splash, laugh like loons, and the man at the oars hits three or four strokes as clumsily as you can imagine.

"I'm encouraged by their catch, and I work maybe a little harder if possible. Still all that noise back there keeps me disturbed, and I am just at the point of going some place where I can be away from these noisy oafs when one of them sings out, 'Hold everything—you've got another big'n!'

Russell almost concludes his story with the statement that that second bass looked to be at least as big as the first. He does conclude it by saying that he reeled in his line, started up his motor, went home, hasn't been back since. He has decided his business is sign-painting, not fishing.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARD—Ova E. Boggs, Floyd county agricultural agent, has been awarded a grant of $100 by the Kentucky Agricultural Extension Service for graduate study. The grant was one of three given to outstanding Extension agents. Boggs will enroll at the University of Kentucky this summer for a three-week course.

Cleveland's pitching staff had 877 strikeouts last season, 19 short of the American League record set by Detroit's mound corps in 1946.

Coroner Carter said the only marks on the victim were on his left arm.

Reservoir Manager Weaver commended the rescue operations immediately started by Park Manager Fred Martin. All park employes were set to work, and were joined by Prestonsburg men in the dragging operations. The car was pulled from the water, and Burton's body was later engaged by grappling hooks towed by Marvin Alley, park employe. Martin said the victim's body was found approximately 20 feet from where the car settled in to about 10 feet of water.

Victim of the tragedy was a son of Mrs. Rachel Gibson Burton and the late Foster Burton. He received his Air Force discharge a few months ago, and was a student at Mayo Vocational School, Paintsville. Surviving besides his mother, are four sisters and five brothers, Mrs. Mitchell Daniels, Mrs. Dennis Daniels, Mrs. Arnold Young, John and Clifford Burton, all of Thealka, Mrs. Worth Goble, Pikeville, James S. and Lawrence Burton, Hamilton, O., and Herbert Burton, of Pikeville.

Burial was made in the Wells-Buckingham cemetery at Paintsville.

William Byrne Givin, Former Coal Operator, Heart Attack Victim

Funeral rites were held here Sunday afternoon for William Byrne Givin, former coal operator and well-known Prestonsburg man, who died of a heart attack last Thursday on a street here.

Mr. Givin, who was stricken as he walked toward his Third street apartment, died before medical aid could be summoned. Until the fatal seizure he apparently was in his usual good spirits. He was 80 years old.

A native of Cadiz, O., he was a son of John C. and Ella Byrne Givin. He was a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan College and taught in Canton, O., high school before beginning his business career. He later was associated with the Purity Cannel Coal Company on Abbott Creek. His last active work was in the offices of the City Elkhorn Coal Company and the Josephine Elkhorn Coal Company here.

PRO-CHANDLER DELEGATIONS

Control Demo Convention At Louisville, Tuesday; Three Resolutions Passed

"When we are a united party we never lose a race," Governor Chandler told approximately 3,000 persons who milled through the Jefferson County Armory at the Democratic state convention.

"It is my duty to elect Democrats and I want all of you to join me in ending this convention on a harmonious note," he said.

The triumphant Governor urged the state's delegates to the Democratic National Convention in Chicago to select a candidate who can win the presidency.

With tears streaming down his cheeks, Chandler urged the convention, "Let's accept the verdict of the people. Let's close ranks and get ready to fight the common enemy in November."

Chandler gave the raspy edge of his tongue to Senator Clements and former Governor Wetherby — the two men he said he would have to get elected to the Senate this fall.

He chided them for their unsuccessful fight to retain control of the party machinery at last Saturday's county conventions.

"Why, all they could carry was five counties. Good gracious alive, Tom Thumb with a broad-ax could do that good."

And he chided his opponents for trying to explain their defeat in the county conventions.

"They can have their explanations. I'll take the scoreboard," he said.

Wetherby and Clements sat smiling a few paces away on the platform as Chandler recited his support of them in their gubernatorial races in 1947 and 1951.

"But when I got ready to run I couldn't find either one of them," he said.

Any doubts that the Chandler faction intended to use in full their newly won party power were dispelled when the Chandler-packed credentials committee made its recommendations on contested delegates in 23 counties.

Perspiring delegates shouted approval of the credentials-committee report, thereby seating 563 pro-Chandler delegates — including 173 from the Third District (Louisville and Jefferson county).

Angered by this, the 408 delegates elected at Third district conventions last Saturday walked out of the Armory convention hall.

Thus armed with support of all but some 400 of the 2,484 convention delegates, the Chandlerites obtained quick approval of:

1. A resolution directing delegates to the Democratic national convention in Chicago August 12 to cast the state's 30 votes as a unit for Chandler for president.
2. Chandler's proposed $100,000,000 highway-bond issue, which the 1956 Legislature has ordered submitted to the voters for approval at the November election.
3. A pledge of "energetic and active support" of the principles and policies of the Democratic Party in the November election.

Mrs. Burchett, Victim At Ashland Last Week Of Cerebral Hemorrhage

A cerebral hemorrhage resulted in the death last Wednesday at King's Daughters' hospital, Ashland, of Winifred Burchett, 39 years old, native of Woods.

Mrs. Burchett was stricken while at a Catlettsburg home, and it was at first suspected that she had suffered a head injury in a fall. An autopsy revealed the hemorrhage, however, as the death cause.

A caesarian operation delivered her baby after her death, and the babe survives. Formerly married to James Thornberry, she leaves three other children, Bailey and Pearl Thornberry, of Thomas, and Lauchie Thornberry, of Michigan.

Her father, Lewis Burchett, of Woods, and her mother, Mrs. Nancy Burchett Smith, of Thomas, and one sister, Artie Burchett, of Thomas, also survive.

Mrs. Burchett was a member of the Freewill Baptist Church. Her funeral was conducted Saturday afternoon from the home of her mother at Thomas, the Revs. Isaac Stratton and Henry Crider officiating. Burial was made in the Fraley cemetery at Thomas under direction of Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

BLUEGRASS CAGERS MAKE CLEAN SWEEP

Kentucky high school basketball graduates made a clean sweep of the annual Kentucky-Ohio All-Star series for the first time. Kentucky won, 107-96, last Saturday in the second of two-game series between the best of last season's basketball playing seniors from the two states.

The win in the ninth annual meeting marked the first time either team surpassed the century mark, although Kentucky neared it in winning the first game 98-95 in Bowling Green, two days before. Despite the 1956 setback, Ohio still holds the lead in the series with 12 wins to 7 for the Bluegrass teams.

Pacing Kentucky to the win was the "Star of Stars" for the second time, Corky Withrow, Central City, who scored 23 points, one more than Prestonsburg's Lowell Hughes. In the first meeting Hughes was second to Withrow with 24.

Ironically enough, only five of the 12 players on this Kentucky squad were on the Kentucky teams that played Indiana twice and lost. The "big names" of graduating high school stars appeared to have been left off this squad, much to the sorrow of no one.

MOREHEAD CARDS TOUGH

The 1956-'57 Morehead College basketball team will face some of the best teams in the nation with games carded with National Invitational Champion Louisville, home and away; Cincinnati (two games), Dayton, Niagara, St. Bonaventure, and the usual Ohio Valley Conference powerhouses.

Also Bob Laughlin's Eagles will play in the Senior Bowl Tournament in Mobile, Alabama, January 2 and 3.

COOK WINS AGAIN

Johnny Cook, Prestonsburg, continued his domination of the annual Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce golf tournament. For the third successive year, 17-year-old Cook will represent the local Jaycees in the state tournament.

Cook won out over 13 other Floyd county youths, downing Melvin Stewart, Allen, in the finals at the Beaver Valley Country Club.

One of the most successful Kentucky Women's state golf tournaments ever held ended Saturday at the Paintsville Country Club. The success of the tournament was evidenced by the friendliness and good fellowship among all tournament entrants. ### SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

A houseboat is built for one purpose—to be lived in. It can be a home, it can be your fishing lodge or your hunting cabin. You can move around any time without setting your feet against roll or sway under you. You have everything of the shore cabin except the crackling log fire. But to compensate for this—right outside you have fishing. Anyone thinking about a houseboat should consider most carefully certain aspects of the waterway it will be used on. Slip up and you have to trade it for a smaller one, or haul it to another river or lake. That can be more expensive than you think.

Make sure that the whole length of the waterway is navigable for your houseboat, and remember, river channels have ways of changing. Non-navigable waters might have a bridge that's too low. Don't think that this isn't important since you plan to just live aboard and not move. When you find how economically and smoothly your houseboat moves and what comfort it brings along, you'll want to take water tips, insists Willard Crandall, boating editor of Sports Afield.

Be sure good mooring places are available. These should be sheltered, have free access to a nearby landing, and be not too far from a couple of places where the houseboat could be hauled out. If the water is navigable you may have to get permit to moor.

For all except the largest houseboats, an outboard is ideal power. It can be mounted on the craft; or the houseboat can be moved by simply putting the motor on any small boat and towing. Most houseboat owners want to keep a small outboard boat tied to, anyway. It's a good idea to have two outboard motors, one for the houseboat and one for the small utility.

Some of the larger river houseboats take an inboard better. There's more room for it, the weight of it becomes less significant, and it adds little to the draft.

Animal Rabies Creates State Wildlife Problem

Frankfort, July 2 (Spl.) —During the first four months of 1956 there were 147 laboratory-confirmed cases of rabies in Kentucky, compared with 103 cases for the entire year of 1955, according to Dr. Ronald Hectorne, director of the Division of Veterinary Public Health.

The most significant increases in cases by species have been found in foxes, cats, skunks, horses and small wildlife.

"Since the number of cases in dogs and cattle remained almost the same and the increases in cases among other animals, this indicates there is still a definite wildlife problem," Dr. Hectorne said.

During 1955, seven other states reported more cases of rabies among animals than Kentucky. With the use of increased controls the number of cases this year may be reduced," Dr. Hectorne said.

The present Pimlico race track in Baltimore, Md., opened in 1870.

Adams-Craft-Webb Meet Held at Mayking, Draws Clements, Morton, Others

More than 1,000 persons, including two nominees for U. S. Senator and two nominees for Congress, attended the annual Webb-Adams-Craft reunion held last Sunday at the Webb cemetery near Mayking, Letcher county.

Democratic nominee Senator Earle C. Clements, and his Republican opponent, Thurston B. Morton, Louisville, both were present, as were Scott Craft, Paintsville, Seventh District Republican nominee for Congress, and his opponent, Representative Carl D. Perkins, Hindman Democrat.

Members of the Adams, Craft and Webb families came from 40 Kentucky and Virginia counties and 11 states as far away as Oklahoma to the festivities at Webb Cemetery at nearby Mayking.

Morton talked about the reunion, noting he was related to the Adams family, while Clements spoke on the water power potential of the Big Sandy area and about the area's coal industry.

Others present were Judge Astor Hogg of the Kentucky Court of Appeals; Ed Denney, former Republican candidate for governor; and former Rep. Bill Adams, of Blakely.

NEW SHERIFF FOR MAGOFFIN

Elected Official Fails To Execute Bond; Rudd Named Until November

Magoffin county has a new Sheriff this week after the elected Sheriff, Hade Montgomery, had reported to the fiscal court that he had been unable to fill the required county revenue bond due June 1.

County Judge Silas Carty last week declared the office vacant, and appointed Noah Rudd, former Magoffin county jailer and an unsuccessful candidate opposing Montgomery for the Republican nomination for Sheriff in 1953. Coroner Ishmael Caudill acted as Sheriff till Rudd executed $35,000 county revenue bond and his official bond.

An audit of Sheriff Montgomery's books was made two weeks ago by an Ashland accountant employed by the Magoffin Board of Education, and the audit was said to have shown Montgomery to be owing $26,000 to the Board. He claimed some credit against that amount but did not ask for a hearing.

Filling of the vacancy raised the question, How long can Montgomery's successor legally hold the office? Magoffin Jailer Ben Puckett asked the Attorney General's office if a November election will be required to fill the unexpired term. First Assistant Attorney General Walter Herdman wrote that under present law, if the vacancy occurs three or four months before the election the office must be filled by popular vote at the November election.

Since the 1956 General Assembly moved this year's primary back from August to May 29, Herdman said, the time of the vacancies involved in the officials' questions creates a problem as to whether anyone can be nominated to fill them.

Herdman pointed out that under the present law, where the vacancy is created less than 70 days before the primary, the political parties nominate candidates for the general election. Or, the governing authority of a party may fill a vacancy that occurs in a nomination after a primary, Herdman wrote.

But neither of these provisions, Herdman wrote, "takes care of the situation we are now confronted with and the Legislature apparently failed to consider such a possibility when the primary date was changed."

The old August primaries were "about three months prior" to the November election, Herdman said, "and there was little chance of the question with which we are now faced presenting itself."

He added, "in any event, the office to be filled must be placed on the November ballot and if nominations cannot be made, then the candidates must run as 'write-in' candidates."

Herdman sent a copy of the opinion he prepared for Puckett to Magoffin County Clerk H. Green Rudd, who also had asked about the Sheriff's office in his county.

Pfc. Ronald R. Burchett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Burchett, of Lancer, is now stationed at Frankfort Germany. He successfully completed the traffic analyst course with an army security agency school at Fort Devens, Mass., and received a diploma, Oct. 1, 1955. He received his basic training at Fort Knox. He attended school at Auxier high school before volunteering for service Jan., 1955.

THE BURGoyNE CANNON

The Burgoyne Cannon, we may say, was cast in France during the reign of Louis XV. It was the most likely one captured from Montcalm by Wolfe on the Plains of Abraham at Quebec, on September 12, 1759, when the Dominion of Canada was lost by France, and became a British possession. The old brass cannon whose history covers not less than 150 years; that has served first France, then "Great Britain," then the United States, Great Britain again, the United States again, and was a transient trophy of the Southern Confederacy; now stands with mute but inglorious lips in the halls of the Kentucky State Historical Society, at Frankfort.

50 Years of Progress in Electric Power

Electricity costs 1/4 as much today

In 1906, when the American Gas and Electric Company was founded, electric power was expensive to produce and deliver... and the cost to the average residential consumer was over 10¢ a kilowatt-hour.

Today, the cost to the average residential customer served by the six-company American Gas and Electric System is less than a quarter of what it was fifty years ago... or less than 2¢ a kilowatt-hour.

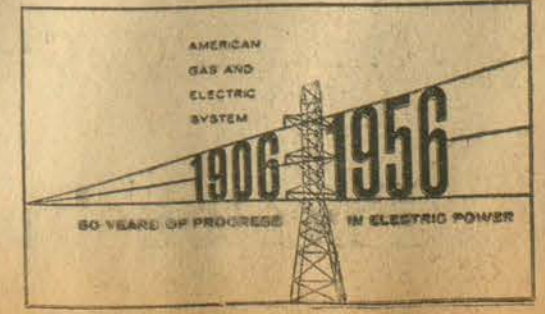

Yet this tremendous reduction was achieved in an era when the cost of practically everything has skyrocketed.

As a result of its continuous research and development program the System today has in service the most modern and efficient power plants and transmission lines available. They make available an abundant supply of low-cost power to every home, farm, factory and store in a seven-state area.

More efficient methods of producing and delivering electricity, together with its greater usage by everyone, have resulted in lowering the cost by more than 75%. This is an example of "50 Years of Progress in Electric Power."

First Flower Arrangement Class Ends In Flower Show At Garrett

The first class in flower arrangement to be assembled in Floyd county ended its six-lesson course with a flower show June 21 at Garrett. The class, taught by Mrs. R. H. Messer, of Garrett, was composed of eight women, and their flower show included 29 arrangements and a shadow box with 10 miniature arrangements.
The arrangements in detail follow:
Mrs. Crit Wells' arrangement was a small white milk glass basket, filled with yellow and purple parishes. Her second arrangement was a blue bowl with red roses arranged in a side triangle with yellow roses as center of interest.
Mrs. Gypsy Hughes chose a large, flat, green bowl with yellow gladioli arranged in a full triangle design. She also did a vertical design with yellow gladioli and brown dock seed spikes in a small deep-brown wooden nut bowl filled with curved lines of tall grass with purple bee balm as the focal point.
Mrs. Noah Howard had as her design a large crescent made with red gladioli, in a blue-green oblong container. Her second design was a vertical in a black bowl, spikes of dock seed and red zennias. Her third design was a side triangle, made with sansverviera leaves and pink and yellow gladioli in a black bowl.
Mrs. Eugene Mullins made a full triangle design in a gray bowl, using red gladioli. She also made a crescent design in a flat, green bowl, using sweet peas and asters. Her third design was a hogarth in a blue pitcher, using ivy as line, and pink roses as center of interest.
Mrs. Roberta Stone made a crescent design in a large white bowl, using red gladioli. She also made a half triangle design in a brass bowl, using sansverviera leaves and white lilies. Her third arrangement was a line design in a flat wooden bowl, lines from dock seed spikes filled in with day lilies.
Mrs. Shirley Stewart made a hogarth design, using a brown jug as container. Her lazy S was made from the curves of wisteria vine; her center of interest fashioned with day lilies. Her second arrangement was a mass triangle in a glass compote, using white hydrangea with red roses as the center of interest. Her third arrangement was a vertical made with pink gladioli in a blue container placed on a black wood block. Her fourth arrangement was a side triangle design, using dock seed spikes and day lilies, in a flat gray bowl.
Mrs. R. H. Messer made a church arrangement, using a tall, white madonna against a black background with tall white gladioli, and regal lilies at the base. Her second arrangement was a symmetrical mass in a large ironstone compote, using red gladioli and white lilies. Her third design was full triangle, using a wooden salad bowl with bamboo sticks and dock seed spikes and day lilies.
A shadow box was filled with ten miniature arrangements, all tiny jewel like, nothing over three inches, including flowers and containers.
