Taxicab Operators Told To Observe State Laws On Alcoholic Beverages

Frankfort — Charles M. Blackburn, commissioner of the State Department of Motor Transportation, reminded all taxicab operators to observe Kentucky law which forbids the transportation, possession and sale of alcoholic beverages in dry counties.

State law, Blackburn said, provides that any carrier violating the statute or regulations established by his department, may be liable to have his permit revoked, as both driver and employe may be held responsible for violations.

REMEMBER?

Down through the Carolinas the old rail fence still bobs into view, and it's a sight for tiring eyes. It recalls other and perhaps better days. I'm old enough to remember when the old staked-and-ridered rail fence was the rule rather than the exception in these parts, and I can remember, too, when fires broke out that folks worried more about the havoc wrought on their rail fences than about what was being done to their forest-land. Kids these days wouldn't need firecrackers for celebration-time if they had a chestnut rail fence to pop for them.

SUCH FUN!

As you may have guessed, I've been on what is known in some quarters as a vacation. The only thing I can say about whatever it was I was on is, it has served to make home sweeter home. Henceforth, the word, "vacation," is out for me. I shall, unless under duress caused to change my mind, make it a retreat. Or just plain go to hole and pull aforesaid hole in after me.

Thoughts of a man on the beach: This is where tide comes in the large, economy size. The sea, the Great Innomiac. Soft sand for a pillow, cooling depths below, but always restless, rolling, tossing. . . . rock and roll. . . . And then a voice behind says, "Come on to bed—you can't stare it down, you know!"

WASN'T A GOOD TREE DOG

Estill Howell was telling this week about a squirrel hunt he and his brother were on, and they were stalking a squirrel when they lost sight of it, only to see a big cat tear out of the undergrowth and wind up sniffing at a hole at the foot of a tree. Familiar with the predatory nature of the animal, they wondered if the cat had trailed the squirrel to hole. Probing with a stick, they quickly learned that that was what had happened; the squirrel was up there, all right. "I can't say the cat was a good tree-dog, though," Estill added. "He didn't bark at tree very well."

Judge Stumbo Requests State Police To Help In Search for Girl, 14

State police were asked Wednesday by County Judge Henry Stumbo to join in the search for the 14-year-old daughter of J. S. McCray, of Wheelwright, who has been missing since Monday.

Mr. McCray told Judge Stumbo his daughter was barefoot when she left home, that he followed her but could not overtake her Monday. The last trace he had of the girl was on the road to Neon, on Rockhouse Hill, Letcher county, he said.

She was described by the distressed father as 5 feet tall, having short, brown hair and wearing overall pants and a shirt of light color.

adding the vehicle was "making good time." He said the tires were "crying."

He said he remarked that the car would "not make it around the curve."

Donald Kinney, 19, Shelbyana, said he heard the remark by McMillan about the auto not making it around the curve, but did not see the car, adding that he heard wheels "crying."

Witnesses said they could not tell whether there was a scuffle before the vehicle left the road.

McMillan said that he heard one of the youths remark at the scene that Colvin had caused the wreck by attempting to get control of the vehicle but did not "pay much attention" to the conversation.

Sgt. C. D. Potter, Kentucky State Police, who investigated the mishap, said there was a light "shadow mark" for about 165 feet which veered gradually to the left to the point where the car went over the embankment.

He said the vehicle was about 55 feet from the point where it left the road to where the car came to a stop. He could not estimate the auto's speed.

He said the "shadow mark" on the highway was not the type that he would normally expect from a flat tire which, he thought, would make a wobbly mark, but he added that he could not say that a flat tire in every case would make a zig-zag mark.

Potter said he talked to the driver of the vehicle about an hour after the wreck. He said he talked briefly to the younger Bradford, but did not question him closely because of his nervous condition.

Colvin died about an hour after the wreck at Pikeville Methodist hospital.

Ira Frazier, Weeksburg, who described himself as a long-time friend of Colvin, said that he had known the victim for many years. He testified that Colvin's feelings were easily hurt and that he never forced himself on anyone. He said Colvin "drank some" at home but never out anywhere. Frazier added that he was well-liked at Weeksburg.

All of the witnesses testified that there was no evidence of alcoholic beverages at the wreck scene.

No charge was made against the driver.

Girl, Shot Near Heart, Calls Help; Ambulance Driver Finds Her Standing On His Arrival

Fourteen-year-old Geraldine Handshoe, of Salt Lick Creek, near Hueysville, is in Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin, apparently on the way to recovery from a rifle bullet wound below her heart.

The girl was shot Tuesday afternoon. A hollow-point, 22-caliber bullet barely missed her heart, but when the ambulance of the Hall Funeral Home arrived from Martin in response to her telephone call she was standing on the porch, weakly leaning against a post. Before that, she had phoned a taxicab whose driver could not come to the home immediately.

"Hurry—I'm feeling weak," she told the ambulance driver.

The girl said the shooting was accidental. She said she was taking cartridges out of the rifle when it fired.

Her father, Beech Handshoe, a gas well driller, was away from home at the time of the shooting. Her mother is a patient at Hazelwood Sanitorium, Louisville.

Sgt. Bentley suffered a skull injury when, after landing, his chute was picked up by a whirlwind which then dumped him back to earth and dragged him more than a mile. His father, John M. Bentley, now of Fairborne, O., said here this week that Sgt. Bentley has at no time regained consciousness and that doctors are uncertain as to final outcome of the injury.

Experts have predicted doubling of demand for electricity by 1965 and further doubling of demand by 1975. Such a rise in electric power use would require 480 million tons of coal for this single purpose 20 years hence.

Safety Award Given To Kentucky Power, Manager Kincaid Says

Kentucky Power Company has been presented an award by the Edison Electric Institute for its safety record in 1955.

The company received the Accident Frequency Reduction award "in recognition of the achievement by its employees of a 25 percent, or greater, reduction in its accident frequency rate during the year 1955 as compared with the preceding three years."

In making the announcement of the award H. H. Kincaid, Pikeville, district manager of the power company, said, "Employees in this area helped win this award by making safety a personal responsibility."

Accident frequency rate is the number of lost-time accidents per million manhours worked by the company employees. Kentucky employees also reached another notable milestone last year, running up a record of a million consecutive manhours without a disabling injury.

A new market for coal is being developed in the processing of taconite ore for steel making. Taconite output is expected to reach 40 million tons a year by 1980, a rate that will take 1.5 million tons of coal each year in the form of electricity.

COAL CONVEYORS USED LONG TIME
Coal conveyors have been used in bituminous mines for quite a while and have led to development of what can best be called "man-veyors" to carry the miners to their jobs. This specially adapted conveyor belt carries mine personnel at the rate of one man every four seconds and allows 10 feet of space per man, or 900 men an hour.

Mrs. Cain told officers she and her husband had followed a policy of taking receipts from their theaters to the banks on Monday. She implied that the thieves grabbed the receipts for last week.
Both Cain and his wife have been ill recently, but Sparks said they were not harmed by the thieves. Mrs. Cain said one of the visitors was "very kind," but that the other was rude.
Officers quoted another neighbor, Mrs. Cordelia Bussey, as saying she saw a strange car parked on a side street near the Cain home about the time the robbery occurred.

The nation's three largest steel companies mined more than 40.5 million tons of bituminous coal in 1955, more than half of which came from the mines of one company, U. S. Steel Corp.

Hughes claims that Martin, under instructions from other defendants, has absented himself from the county in order to permit the 60-day period to expire before signing the letter. The suit also claims that on July 16 Hughes' attorney wrote the defendants advising them that if the letter authorizing processing of the franchise transfer was not signed by Martin suit would be filed seeking an extension of 30 days after the signed letter had been received by the Cadillac distributor. This letter, it is alleged, was sent by certified mail but has never been signed for at the post office here.

The suit asks that a mandatory injunction issue to require Martin to sign the letter in question and an extension of 30 days from the time of the signing of the letter be given for payment of the $19,000 balance due on consummation of the deal. It also claims $2,500 damage by reason of Martin's failure to sign the letter and a like amount for each month signing is delayed.

Coal production in "captive" mines of U. S. Steel Corp., totaled 25,159,319 tons in 1955, making it the largest private coal producer in the nation.

This was the story they told of the fight:
The men inside the house started running out the back, shooting as they went, heading for the timber on the hillside overlooking the house. The officers were in hot pursuit, returning the fire, and it was in this exchange that Dale Hall was wounded and captured.
At this time Duffy and Ralph Stone came up the creek and opened fire on the deputy sheriffs. The officers chased them into the head of a nearby hollow where they threw away their guns. Moonshine whiskey was taken from them when they were placed under arrest. Then the officers returned to the house, looking for another man. Inside, they found a gallon of moonshine whiskey on the floor.

One man, they said, whirled and fired on Deputy Sheriff Green Johnson at a distance of no more than 10 feet but missed. A second later, he and a companion were over the ridge.
"We could see glimpses of white shirts in the cornfield, but that was about all," Deputy Sheriff DeRossett and Patton said of the running fight. "We could hear the owner of the crop begging us not to tear all his corn down."

The shooting over, Deputy Sheriff DeRossett, Ambury and Reed came here with 19 prisoners taken on Jack's Creek while Deputies Patton, Blackburn, Compton, Johnson and others went to Melvin and Ligon where they had learned, also via radio, that there was trouble. There they picked up eight more drunks.

In all, between Saturday night and 9 a.m. Sunday, 49 men were jailed here. Most of these were arrested in the Left Beaver and Mud Creek sections.

Ralph Stone, who entered a plea of guilty to a drunkenness charge, was released on bond to appear here for hearing Aug. 13 on charges of shooting at without wounding and resisting arrest. Dale Hall and Duffy Stone remained in jail Tuesday. Hall has been charged with drunkenness, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, shooting at without wounding and resisting arrest. Duffy Stone has not been arraigned but is expected to face the same charges.

Young Stephen was registered this spring for a God and Country Award that is given for outstanding youth church work. He is an usher in the Methodist church here.

Writer Addie Questions Value Of Little Leagues Over U.S.

I think Little Leagues are a waste of time and that too many adults are ducking their responsibilities to teenagers by concentrating on youngsters who are more tractable. Many of the adults engaged in Little League programs are in them for a sort of vicarious thrill, or perhaps for a cheap way of advertising commercial products. Before you start hanging me in effigy, let's look at some of the facts.

I want to start off by saying I was one of the original boosters of the Little Leagues. I thought it was wonderful that these youngsters could learn team discipline and the basic fundamentals of citizenship against the time when they would take their places in society.

I must have helped dedicate some 50 fields throughout the country. I was on a panel with some well-known psychiatrists and doctors who opposed the Little League because of the "pressures" put on the youngsters by adults who believed that winning was paramount.

In countering this argument I pointed out that this is, after all, a realistic world we live in. When 17- and 18-year-old boys were sent to fight in World War II and in Korea, nobody worried about the "pressures" of shooting to kill. In war, winning is everything. I believed that the Little Leagues inculcated something else—sportsmanship, an awareness of the other fellow and a realization that a single game can be just as important in winning a game as a home run.

I don't advocate abolishment of the Little Leagues. All that I say is that the emphasis is in the wrong place. It must be placed on curbing juvenile delinquency, which is growing daily.

Who commits the bulk of vandalism, murder, robbery, mugging and assorted distasteful crimes? Surely not the under-12 age group. The teenagers today have embraced Rock and Roll for a theme song instead of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game."

(Note: According to a report issued by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on April 30, 1953, Director J. Edgar Hoover announced that juvenile crime was on the upswing. The reports submitted by 112 cities during 1955 show the arrests of youths under 18 increased by 11.4 percent. Of the persons arrested for major crimes in 1477 cities, 42.3 percent were under 18 and almost half (47 percent) of these were under 15. Of all persons arrested for auto theft in the reporting cities, 62.2 percent were under age of 18.)

Again, as one of the most ardent supporters of Little League baseball, my confidence has been shaken lately. After musing about the various benefits and detriments, and after interviewing many parents, it occurred to me the emphasis should be on the teen-ager, blossoming out into his role of the citizen and tomorrow's bulwark of the nation.

My argument is that if you shift the emphasis from the Little Leagues to the junior or senior leagues (boys from 13 through 19), these teen agers will begin to feel again that they belong.

A woman who has raised eight sons told me recently: "The hard part is not when they're babies. Then they get a lot of affection because they're 'cute', and so forth. Even strangers stop to pat them on the head and cdb with them. A boy never loses his desire to be loved and he needs it more through the difficult transition from boy to young manhood. He knows a little but not enough. He has a place in society, but it's not secure enough. He's not quite ready to go out and compete against adults. He needs that final haven of being sheltered and worried about and guided until, like a flower that blooms overnight, he is suddenly a man and on his own."

Poverty alone doesn't turn a boy into a juvenile delinquent. The forces are more subtle. He must "prove" himself as a tough guy to his friends, and consequently we get gang fights and the waves of terrorism. But suppose this feeling to be somebody were channeled into something constructive? Suppose his desires were turned into being the best hitter, pitcher or fielder, or even belonging to a bunch of guys who have a lot of fun playing together?

Let me tell you of some of the things that have happened in my experience with Little Leagues. A few years ago a fellow called me and said his community wanted to start a Little League program. He and a group of people needed help in raising money. Would I write a column and help them? I did. I told of the wonderful benefits to the community from the Little Leagues and how the "little men" one day would be the leaders of their own groups, spreading the gospel of good sportsmanship and clean play in the American tradition.

After the column appeared, I got an anonymous call. The man on the other end of the telephone said I had been misadvised—that the fellow who contacted me originally was only looking for self-glorification that HE (my present caller) actually had originated the idea of the Little League. My caller was miffed because he wasn't getting any credit. To heck with the kids.

Look, Maw, I'm flying! Well, not really, but Ricky Goodman is making an attempt at it as he scampers to first base in running out on an infield hit. Jim McDonald is shown on the left backing up first baseman Kermit Baldrige, partly hidden by the umpire.

Then I got numerous telephone calls from businessmen. This one "donated" $10 for uniforms and never got his name or his business in the paper. Another didn't like the way the thing was being run. This one had a kid who was being discriminated against by the coach who wouldn't give him a chance.

Pleasure? Sure. But these complaints were symptoms. "Well," you say, "you must expect some knockers in every program. Look at the tremendous amount of good it's doing."

I wonder about that. The boys clubs throughout the country long have done a thankless job. They struggle every year to get enough money to carry on. They don't discriminate for any one age group. In fact, if there is any concentration, it's on the older boys who need something to satisfy their restless energies.

This is not to say that no boys club member ever turned out to be a juvenile delinquent. But match the few transgressors against the boys clubs graduates who have gone to greater fame in college and in the business world.

In recent years, the boys clubs have had a tough time competing against the Little Leagues. The kids get all the publicity. It's not fashionable to worry about the older boys and they play wherever and whenever they can—most of the time with limited facilities and dubious equipment. Suppose some of that red-hot civic spirit (and cash) were put into the boys clubs, or perhaps, organizations like the Catholic Youth Organizations? I'm just picking out the CYO. It could be the Methodist or Episcopalian or Baptist or Presbyterian Youth Organization.

The point is CYO long ago saw the problems of delinquency and moved early to combat it.

I grew up on the streets of New York, in Greenwich Village, once one of the toughest neighborhoods in the country. It happened that a Presbyterian minister decided he was going to do something about the gangs of kids roaming the neighborhood. He got his church to build bowling alleys. He got permission to use some empty lots as baseball fields. After a while, the big boys were all in sports and we younger kids naturally had to follow. The big boys, you see, set the example. I'm not a Protestant, but I wasn't barred from playing. There was an example of unselfish help to youngsters.

The Little Leagues, of course, were conceived by Carl E. Stotz, a man who held a modest job in a lumber company in Williamsport, Pa. In 1940, there were only four teams in the Williamsport Little League. In 1946, there were 48 teams in 12 leagues, all in Pennsylvania. Within 10 years, Little League teams have increased to over 13,000,000 with more than 4,000 leagues in 48 States.

Stotz became the commissioner of the nation-wide organization known as "Little League Baseball, Inc." Last November, he was ousted as commissioner.

Peter J. McGovern, president of the corporation, said Stotz was out because "he had taken action against Little League baseball and had opened a suit for $300,000 claiming breach of contract."

Stotz's version was that he and volunteer field personnel "no longer have a representative voice in Little League policy decisions."

You see what happens now. It was inevitable with the tremendous growth of Little League baseball. Many communities which refused to entertain the idea of providing recreation for the youngsters jumped in with both feet. The result in many cases has been politics, and personality clashes, which will eventually destroy Stotz's original notion of encouraging all youngsters with a desire to play baseball.

Big League scouts tell you that the Little Leagues haven't solved their particular problem—that is, a constant flow of talent to the majors once almost automatic because of the many sandlot teams flourishing throughout the country.

"After the kids graduate from the Little Leagues, something happens," the scout complain. "We think the older boys haven't enough opportunities, and after a while they get discouraged and give up the idea of baseball."

A former president of a Country League was upset over my Little League statements. He wrote: "In my opinion, teen-age baseball is not intended principally, primarily or directly to fight juvenile delinquency. It's a program of baseball and IF its various aspects of sportsmanship and competition are ingrained to mold the character of a youngster, it's strictly a by-product, a happenstance. Managers do not spend 10 to 20 hours a week to re-make a bad boy. They haven't the opportunity to do so, and rotten kids do not expose themselves to fair competition. Baseball is not the panacea, anyway. How can 10 hours on a ball field hope to combat the other 158 hours of home environment? I defend baseball on all its amateur levels—not as a combater of delinquency, but as a sport, as it should be. We use managers out our way, not policemen."

Little Leagues have been sold to the community as the foundation of good citizenship, a creed which makes much of the player living cleanly and never forgetting that he represents the community. The creed also says the coach inspires in his boys a love for the game and the desire to win—that he leads the players by setting a good example.

How different is the gentleman's statement above from such dedicated organizations as the boys clubs which realize because of bad environment, these youngsters should be guided. One doesn't throw up one's hands and ask only for the "good" kids to participate in a program, and the devil take the "rotten" ones. What kind of an endeavor is it where sportsmanship and competition which mold the characters of youngsters are strictly "happenstance" and "by-products"?

It's like saying marriage is strictly for fun and any children from the union are merely by-products and happenstance and who would have a duty to them? I don't believe the Little Leagues should be regarded merely as more toys for amusement.

This gentleman, of course, is not representative of the many people who work diligently to help youngsters. But I say again, the emphasis is in the wrong place. Turn that energy to helping the teen-agers—even for fun—and the by-product and happenstance will benefit us all.

SPORTS CHATTER

By Gordon Moore

TO DECIDE THIS WEEK-END — The Kentucky High School Athletic Association's Board of Control will meet at Cumberland Lake this week-end to determine the site of the 1957 Kentucky state high school basketball tournament.

This will be the second meeting within two months on the vital issue by the eight-man board that controls all of the policies of the association. At the May meeting in Louisville, the board split, 4-4, on the site of the tourney, the four western Kentucky representatives voting for Louisville and the remaining four, classed as eastern representatives, voting to retain the tournament in Lexington for at least another year.

Personally, I favor Lexington for one more year, reasoning that Louisville has more hotels, restaurants and can easily absorb the tremendous crowd of fans without feeling the pinch, but the purpose of the tournament is for the high schools of Kentucky, not the general public.

Factors which we believe should keep the tournament for Lexington next year are: In getting to and from the new fairgrounds, a distance of 16 miles must be covered and this would create an expensive burden on the youths who attend the tourney. Secondly, the fairgrounds are not completed yet, especially the fieldhouse, and no specific rental figure has been given to the board as to daily rental of the fieldhouse.

Thirdly, Lexington is more centrally located for the students of high schools in the state than is Louisville. There are many more reasons why the tournament should stay in Lexington until the crowds surpass any previous ones—and Kelly Coleman won't be playing next year.

ALL-STAR GAMES SET
The fifth annual Kentucky high school all-star games in basketball and football in Lexington, August 11, will climax the annual coaching clinic of the University of Kentucky.

Tronically enough, the first speaker on football will be Georgia Tech's football tutor, Bobby Dodd, whose team plays U. K. first on the 1956 grid schedule.

Lowell Hughes, Prestonsburg's two-time all-star quarterback, will bypass the cage game for the football game.

WHEELWRIGHT HIGH SET TO RESUME GRID SPORT

Wheelwright high school will revive football in the sports curriculum after an absence of fifteen years.

Wilbur "Shorty" Jamerson, ex-University of Kentucky backfield star and later Morehead State College football mentor, will soon start practice in preparation for a limited 1956 schedule.

Since only 450 students are enrolled in the upper four grades, Jamerson will schedule only "B" teams and smaller schools during the fall season, but will unveil a full ten-game schedule for the 1957 season.

The Wheelwright Athletic Association, who will sponsor the team, has one of the finest equipped fields in Kentucky and this field this field will be used for all home contests. Currently the field is being used for night baseball and other related activities.

School officials are hopeful that in the 1957 season they will be admitted into the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference which includes every football-playing high school in Eastern Kentucky. M. C. Napier school in Perry county, will field its first team this fall and was the tenth grid school to be admitted to the mountain loop.

Wheelwright gave up the sport in 1941 after trying it for five years. The most famous pupil of that era was Cleo Cordell who later played for the University of Kentucky.

Stockmen Reminded About Vaccinating For Blackleg

"If you have only a few cattle, or if you have many, don't let yourself grow careless about vaccinating for blackleg," is the advice of R. F. Behlow, animal pathologist at the U. K. Agricultural Experiment Station.

Blackleg causes great losses in Kentucky cattle each year, Behlow says, in spite of the fact that the vaccine is so effective that the disease could be practically wiped out if the vaccine were more widely used.

The most practical way to prevent blackleg, the pathologist says, is to establish a practice of vaccinating all young stock. "Vaccinating calves under 3 months of age gives them immunity until they are 6 months old. When they are 6 months old they should be revaccinated. This will give them immunity to the disease for the rest of their lives."

All young cattle purchased should be vaccinated, Behlow pointed out, as well as those raised at home. After an animal shows symptoms of blackleg there is little that can be done in the way of treatment.

The disease strikes quickly. In fact, death often comes so fast that no previous symptoms are noticed. Early symptoms, however, include dullness and lameness, usually followed by fever. Swellings are common in muscles of shoulder, hip, chest, back, or flank, but never below the knees or hock. Usually this is followed by complete loss of appetite, trembling, difficult breathing, and high fever. Death usually occurs in 12 to 48 hours.

The disease is caused by a germ that produces spores which may lie dormant in the pasture for many years and then, when conditions are right, may germinate and produce the disease.

For more details, ask your county agent for Leaflet, 123, "Blackleg of Cattle."

Chevrolet's astonishing roadability is a big reason why it's America's short track stock car racing champion. It can and does out-run and out-handle cars with 100 more horsepower. When you wed rock-solid stability to superb engines such as the 225-h.p. V8 that flashed the Corvette to a new American sports car record—then you get a real championship combination. The world has always had individuals able to answer all the questions involving mankind, but unfortunately the people have been too smart to listen to them.

Truckers Are Arrested For Tax Non-Payment

Frankfort, July 26 — Kentucky revenue men have caught more than 1,600 truckers at road blocks and charged them with violating the state's motor fuel tax laws.

Of the 1,626 arrested between April 5 and July 1, 1,431 were fined. Under state law, truckers are required to procure highway motor fuel users' licenses, post bond and file quarterly tax reports on trucking activity in Kentucky.

A 1956 law requires truckers operating heavy equipment of four or more axle to pay a special two-cent-a-gallon surtax on each gallon of fuel consumed in Kentucky. This is in addition to the regular seven-cents-a-gallon tax on gasoline and diesel fuel imposed on all vehicles.

Proceeds from the new surtax, with other highway usage taxes, will be used by Gov. A. B. Chandler's administration to help pay off the proposed one hundred million dollar bond issue to be voted on Nov. 6.

The roadblock program, Revenue Commissioner J. E. Luckett said, was designed to obtain compliance with law, not to penalize truckers.

The fines and court costs have averaged between $30 and $35. Under the law, a fine could range from $19 to $500.

To My Friends and People Of Floyd County:

I cannot resist the feeling I have to tell you all some of my experiences as a magistrate in making trips to Frankfort to talk to our state officials on business that pertain to all of us and our children of Floyd county.

In 1950 I made a trip to Frankfort along with the rest of the fiscal court. This was on a special interest of my own and of all other Magistrates of the state. When the former administration had taken away almost all the pay we got for our services, when the law was changed so that we were not to be allowed anything for our road work and to hire a road foreman instead. We talked to the key man of that administration, John Keck, and this is the reply we got—"We are against this method of paying the magistrates from the Governor on down. The magistrates are breaking up the counties by working two days and turning in four."

Then Happy Chandler came along. I did all I could do and am not sorry of it. He won. Some of my best friends jumped on me, said that I was sticking my neck out for no good. This time I did not have my own interest at heart, I was thinking about being in a position to help the people of my district, and all of Floyd county. I was not promised any job—I did not get any job. I did not want any job. I did not ask for any job for any of my kinfolks. I won my point. I am so well pleased and so confident, after my first meeting with this administration, in Frankfort on July 16, that I am not afraid to talk about.

We met with Rural Highway Commissioner J. B. Wells, also met with Bert Kiser, State Highway Commissioner. Those fellows treated us real nice—took all the time we wanted with them, went over the whole program thoroughly. We also met with and in Harry Lee Waterfield's office, then Governor, as Happy was out of state. Just like talking to our home town man. We were not made any wild promises. I am not making any promises here but I can say that I feel in my own mind that here in Floyd county we are not going to be overlooked nor forgotten when it comes for help with our roads. I expect to have something to announce for sure in the near future. Time will tell. I remain a friend to all.

Annual Patients' Picnic At Eastern State Hospital

Lexington, Ky., July 23 (Spl.) — The third annual patients' picnic will be held this year at Eastern State Hospital on Wednesday, Aug. 8. The activities will take place on the front lawn of the hospital during the afternoon and early evening. Included in the program will be softball games, races and relays, midway booths and prizes, a band concert and "supper on the ground."

The picnic is sponsored by the hospital, with the employees giving of their own time for the project. It is also made possible by the cooperation and contributions of interested church groups and civic groups, homemakers clubs, individuals and business firms. This latter group has heretofore furnished all extra treats, such as cookies, candy, cakes, soft drinks and cigarettes.

Last year, 1,350 of the approximately 1,800 patients were on the lawn for the festivities. The patients not able to be brought on the lawn were served similar treats in the wards. This will also be true of this year's picnic. The patients come from the 39 north-east counties of Kentucky. Fifty-six of them are from Floyd county.

College Enrollment To Start August 1

Pikeville, Ky., July 26 — A chance to "enroll early and beat the rush" will be offered to this fall's sophomores, juniors and seniors at Pike-college.

Beginning August 1, college offices will open each weekday to allow upperclassmen to register for the fall semester, Dr. A. A. Page, college president, announced today. Pikeville will enroll its first senior class this fall, as it becomes a four-year college for the first time in its history.

A capacity enrollment of more than 500 students, which may make it necessary to close some classes before the end of registration, is expected. The courses which may be restricted because of limited space and equipment include those in music, art and all the sciences, it was said.

Music will be added this fall to the fields for major study at Pikeville, Dr. Page said. The addition of the music major will help to meet the need for music teachers in the public schools of Eastern Kentucky, which is expected to be even greater under the Minimum Foundation plan, he added.

Highways Claim More American Lives Than War in Korea, Said

More Americans died on the highway in 1955 alone than on the battlefield during the entire Korean war!

The National Safety Council's statistical yearbook, "Accident Facts," just off the press, shows there were 38,200 traffic deaths in the United States in 1955. Official Defense Department records list the battle deaths in the Korean War at 33,629.

"We don't for a moment want to imply that the highway is as hazardous as the battlefield," said Ned H. Dearborn, president of the Council. "But the fact is that the loss to the nation from the 1955 traffic toll is greater in terms of human life than the loss sustained in the Korean war. Therefore, it's certainly worth getting excited about."

Approximately 1,350,000 Americans were injured in motor vehicle accidents during the year, the Council said.

Three Mine Fatalities Recorded During June

Frankfort, July 26 — Three coal mine fatalities during June were reported by Commissioner of Mines and Minerals James H. Phalan.

Two fatalities occurred in the Cumberland Valley district while the other was in the Big Sandy-Tug River field. At the same time last year 7 deaths had been recorded. At the end of June last year 28 persons had died in mine accidents while the number this year stands at 33.

For the sixth consecutive year, September has been designated as "No Accident Month." "The Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals will join with other groups interested in mine safety in an effort to attain this goal," Phalan said.

Frankfort, July 26 — Charles M. Blackburn, commissioner of the State Department of Motor Transportation reminded all taxicab operators to observe Kentucky law which forbids the transportation, possession and sale of alcoholic beverages in dry counties.

Blackburn recommended strict compliance with the law and called on all operators to give strict supervision to employees.

Business Reports for '54, First Since '48, Ready From Dept. of Commerce

The 1954 census of business reports, covering retail, wholesale, selective service trades — the first business census since 1948 — are now being released by the Department of Commerce, according to Robert M. Luckey, manager of the Cincinnati field office. Simultaneously, the 1954 agriculture census reports, the first since 1950, are also being released, Mr. Luckey reported.

In each of the censuses, county, city, and state statistics are available, covering a wide range of economic data, for the respective segments of Industry, Trade, and Agriculture, which should be exceedingly useful to businessmen who want to get the most out of existing markets as well as explore new outlets for goods and services.

Suppliers to the retail trade can determine where their best markets are by county, city, and state and can find out how markets have grown since 1948 and if they have had their share in this business in any particular locality. Approximately 70 kinds of retail business are enumerated, showing number of establishments, dollar sales, and employment. These basic economic factors present a picture of trade trends and are a measurement by which any supplier can size up his own business operations.

In the same way, suppliers of machinery, fertilizer, and other equipment to the farmer can analyze their county, city or state markets to determine if they have shared proportionally in agricultural growth.

While the 1954 census of manufactures shows the very rapid growth in industry since 1947, did every manufacturer share in this growth? The answer can be found in the 1954 census of manufactures reports which present statistics for each industry, by value of products, employment, payrolls, expenditures for new plant and equipment, etc. Approximately 460 industries are included in these reports.

Requests for price lists of these census reports should be sent to the U. S. Department of Commerce field office, Room 442, U. S. Post Office building, Cincinnati.

Thirty-Five From Floyd Are Included in Record Enrollment at Pikeville

Pikeville, Ky., July 19 — Thirty-five Floyd county students are included in the enrollment of 243, which more than doubles the record for the second term of summer school at Pikeville college, and two former Floyd countians also are in the group.

The largest previous registration for the summer's second five-week period was 100, enrolled last year, Dr. A. A. Page, college president, said. The students include representatives of 10 Eastern Kentucky counties and the states of Virginia, West Virginia and Ohio.

A new teacher of English was added to the Pikeville faculty to help care for the large enrollment, Dr. Page said. D., and Clinch Valley Junior College, Wise, Va.

The term is Pikeville's last as a three-year college. A full four-year course, leading to both A. B. and B. S.-in-education degrees, is to be offered this fall.

Kathryn M. Carpenter (Mrs. Paul T. Carpenter), Waverly, O., a graduate of Betsy Layne high school and a Floyd county teacher for eight years, is one of the students at Pikeville. ## PERKINS ASKS STUDY FUNDS

Says Research Program For U. S. Coal Industry Should Get $25 Million

Representative Carl D. Perkins urged last Wednesday that the Government appropriate not less than $25,000,000 for a research program for the coal industry.

The Hindman Democrat said the industry is composed of many small mines and companies and cannot finance such research itself.

"Of the 6,500 mines operating in 1955, over 3,000 mines produced less than 10,000 tons each, a true small-business operation," he said.

"In 1952, 1,665 coal-mining corporations filing income returns indicated profits averaging just $20,000."

Perkins, testifying before the House Interior Affairs Committee, said:

"We all hope that the coal industry reached its lowest ebb in 1954."

He said the industry absorbed the loss of the markets, railroad and domestic heating, which accounted for over a third of sales. The present recovery comes from three expanding markets—steam generation of electricity, increased demands from the steel industry, and foreign exports.

"The recovery is more apparent than real and is unevenly spread," Perkins said.

"Captives" mines, with an assured market from their parent companies, are booming, he said. So are mines with advantageous transportation.

But the bulk of the industry, particularly smaller companies, are leading a hand-to-mouth existence, he declared.

The many small mines in his own district are at a disadvantage when competing with larger companies more advantageously located, he added.

"Yet it is areas like this which must expand in emergencies, that must provide the margin of safety in fuel and energy needs," he said. "This can be accompanied only by a thorough program of research."

AWOL Soldiers Held In Letcher Robbery; $800 in Goods Taken

Two soldiers A.W.O.L. from Fort Knox were held without bond Thursday of last week on robbery charges in the theft of about $800 in goods from the Southeast Coal Company store at Seco, Letcher county.

State Police Trooper Otis Anderson identified the two as James B. Meade, 19, of Whitaker, and Richard Blanton, 18, of near Seco.

The soldiers admitted the early Tuesday robbery after their arrest yesterday, Anderson said. Dragging operations were under way at Jenkins Lake where the two said they threw part of the loot.

Twenty-four watches, three electric razors, four or five watch bands, two shotguns, and 18 to 20 cartons of cigarettes were among the items stolen, the troopers reported.

Anderson said 11 watches, necklaces and razors, and one shotgun had been recovered from the men's homes. Both were held for grand-jury action.
