This Town— That World

WHAT!—AGAIN ALREADY?
This week we pause to remind one and all, is National Newspaper Week. The only fault I have to find with this week is, it seems to come oftener than once a year, of recent years.

One of these days some newspaper is going to earn for itself a national reputation by setting down in gruesome detail all its faults and failures at Newspaper Week time instead of rehashing, as the book suggests, all the fine things newspapers have done.

Lack of space forbids, or we might try to list all our own boo-boos in high celebration of this Newspaper Week of 1956.

THE CAUSE?

Friend of ours stopped in this week to ask if I had heard about the terrible, terrible car wreck in which a Floyd county driver had figured, out in Ohio. Informant solemnly informed me that what caused the carnage was the fact that this Floyd countian hit a curve that was strange to him—one that was banked the right way.

A GOOD QUESTION

And another friend, one of the gals at the courthouse, was commenting on the fact that a proud papa thereabouts was being handed out cigars, right and left, in celebration of an addition to his family. The young lady had an idea that this was just another example of discrimination against women. She wonders why cigars, which just don't seem to go along well with lipstick, are the traditional gifts on such occasions. Hm-m... this will require some thought.

"Land poor" is a familiar term to most of us. Mortimer Snerd now adds to it. Says he's land poor and house broke.

SCHOOL BOARD ELECTION SET

Three of Five Members To Be Named; Dr. Osborne Unopposed, 2 Races Seen

Members of the Floyd County Board of Education are to be elected Nov. 6 from three of the county's five educational divisions, and in two of these hot races are in prospect.

Dr. W. D. Osborne, incumbent, is unopposed in Division No. 4.

In Division No. 3, the incumbent, John M. Stumbo, Jr., of Harold, is opposed by Jack Brannan, Jr., of Bypro. The race in Division 5 is between the incumbent, J. E. Campbell, of Garrett, and James Arville Duff, of Hueysville.

A third candidate, Robert Edgar Layne, filed in Division 3, but it was held that his filing came a day late. County Clerk DuRan Moore said a list of dates approved by the Attorney General shows that midnight Sept. 21 was the deadline for filing. Mr. Layne filed on the morning of Sept. 22.

County Clerk Moore said that Layne has recourse to the courts for a decision. He added that in view of the Attorney General's opinion he had no choice but to refuse the candidate a place on the ballot unless he is directed by court order to do so.

POLITICS HUM AS PRESIDENT IS KY. VISITOR

Clements, Morton Slated For Local Appearances; Organization Effected

The Kentucky political pot came near a boil this week as President Eisenhower carried his campaign into the state with a Monday appearance in Lexington, and the smaller Floyd county pot was beginning to simmer with both parties gearing for the final month of the campaign.

All candidates for U. S. Senator have paid Floyd county at least one visit each, with Ex-Governor Wetherby's three-day stay last week being the most recent.

Democratic Senator Earle C. Clements will speak at the courthouse here at 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday. Two days later—Oct. 12—Thurston B. Morton, his Republican opponent, will speak at the same place and at the same hour. Both men will tour this section, before swinging back to other parts of the state.

An estimated 35 Floyd countians made the trip by bus and auto to hear the President at the Coliseum in Lexington.

George T. Roberts, Prestonsburg coal operator, was recently named Floyd Republican campaign chairman.

Clifford B. Letta, Jr., Prestonsburg attorney, and State Representative Lon C. Hill have been named Floyd county Democratic co-chairmen and will head the vote drive for all party candidates, including those for President and Vice-President, the two U. S. Senatorial posts and for the Seventh district seat in the lower house of Congress.

PAY INCREASE SAID REACHED

Northern Operators Said To Have Already Agreed; Would Put South on Spot

John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers chieftain, has adroitly probed the armor of Southern operators by entering into a new wage understanding with Northern operators, a report circulated widely this week says.

Thus the way could be opened to new raises, industry-wide, with an agreement with the North placing the South in a position wherein it may not be able to delay an agreement and risk a possible work-stoppage.

Responsible industry sources said the 76-year-old president of the United Mine Workers had initiated a memorandum of understanding with Edward G. Fox, newly appointed chief negotiator for the Northern soft coal operators.

The pact was negotiated secretly in Washington. It is subject to revision by the full wage committee of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association at a meeting tentatively set for this week in Pittsburgh. But little fear was indicated on either side that a final accord would be hard to achieve.

Power Pole Breaks, Clifton Injured; Former POW's Automobile Runs Away

Darwin "Blackie" Clifton, 35, of Prestonsburg, suffered a broken back and other injuries Friday morning when a power pole from which he was removing an old line snapped, hurling him 50 feet to the ground. Both legs, back, and his right arm also were broken.

Clifton is in Williamson Memorial hospital, where his condition was described this week as "good."

At the time of the accident he was working with a Harris Bros. construction crew at Vulcan, W. Va., tearing down an old line. He first checked the pole which broke, remarked that "That's the best pole on the job," then climbed near the top and began removing the wire. When only one wire remained the pole snapped 18 inches underground.

Taggett Allen, of Cliff, former prisoner of war in Korea, is thankful his car was headed toward a vacant lot Tuesday noon. He's more thankful that no children were playing in the lot.

As he drove from Patton street, heading north, onto U. S. 23 his car suddenly shot forward across the highway, grazed a telephone pole, raced across the open lot and ramed into the side of a residence owned by Mrs. Rebecca Dingus.

Witnesses said Allen was driving slowly when he turned onto U. S. 23. It is believed the accelerator of his auto stuck. He suffered a slight chin injury. The car was badly smashed.

SCOUTS NAME $50,000 GOAL

Lonesome Pine Council Begins Drive on Oct. 16, Says Chairman Combs

Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, will launch on Oct. 16 a finance campaign to raise $50,000, Judge Bert Combs, of Prestonsburg, announced this week. Combs is serving as campaign chairman for the 15-county area of Eastern Kentucky and Southwest Virginia composing the Council.

Funds raised will enable the Council to employ five professional men who will serve five districts of the Council. The Kentucky River district, including Breathitt, Knott, Leslie and Perry counties, will have a man working full-time out of Hazard. He will also serve the Letcher district. Jim Owens, district executive for Jenny Wiley district, lives in Prestonsburg, and serves Scouting in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, and Martin counties. Bob Baugh, living at Grundy, will serve the Breaks district including Pike and Buchanan counties. Clifford Judd at Wise, Va., will serve the Jefferson Forest district, including Wise, Lee, Russell, and Dickenson counties.

Judge Combs said the annual budget of the Council will also provide for the maintenance of Shawnee Scout Camp on Dewey Lake. This past summer, the camp was attended by more than 400 different Scouts from 47 units. Other expenses of Scouting include the training of leaders, the organization of new Scout units, the maintenance of the Council office located at Pikeville which serves approximately 1,200 volunteer leaders, including Scoutmasters, troop committeemen, Cub Scout leaders, district, and council Scouters.

Judge Combs said that a number of training meetings have been held recently in the various districts of the Council to complete the campaign organization. A. R. Barber, of Hazard, is serving as campaign chairman for the Kentucky River

Highway Department Puts Two Floyd Roads On Federal Aid List

The Kentucky Department of Highways on September submitted to the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads request for the official programming of two federal aid projects in Floyd county.

One of these highways is Ky. 850, the Northern-David road from Hippo to Ky. 404 east of David, a distance of 5.5 miles. Two-lane, medium-type construction was asked for the road.

The other is Ky. 1426, the Harold-Banner road of 7.7 miles. Grade, drain and two bridges are asked.

These requests are the first steps in the procedure required for processing these projects for future federal aid construction. If approved by the Bureau of Public Roads, other steps in the procedure are the completion of surveys and plans and the acquisition of rights-of-way.

Monday of this week brought the first preinduction call of October. Asked to report for tests then were these men:

Joe Hartman Hopkins, Harold Jay Bee Evans, Craynor; Luther Hamilton, Teaberry; Robert Lester, Wheelwright; Thomas Edward Marsillett, West Prestonsburg; Clinton Moore, transferred to Local Board No. 4, Ashtabula, O.; Elwood Carr, Allen, transferred to Local Board No. 34, Ypsilanti; Curtis Reed Burchett, of Emma; Paul Wells, Auxier; Billy Ray Whitt, Prestonsburg; Jerome Dean Music, Auxier; James

Raymond Joseph, who was arrested recently by Police-man Epp Laferty, was fined $50 and given a 30-day jail term by Police Judge R. W. Feiler last week. The conviction was on a count of selling whiskey.

Joseph has appealed the sentence to circuit court.

SHAD IN LAKE ARE POISONED

Shellcrackers Released In Impoundment Monday By State Department

Work to rid Dewey Lake of one kind of fish and to add another to it was under way this week.

Employees of the Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources, headed by Bernard Carter, biologist, completed rotenone poisoning of the lake Wednesday in another shad-killing operation.

Monday, they released 10,000 shellcrackers in the lake.

The shellcracker is popularly described as the bluegill's big cousin. A native of Florida waters, where they grow to two-pound size, it far exceeds the bluegill in size and retains the fighting ability and tastiness of the bluegill.

This species has been present in Kentucky the last 10 years, has thrived, and two years ago the Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources began stocking farm ponds with shellcrackers.

In the two reservoirs at David the Department released 180 shellcrackers this week.

Although the shellcracker will hit flies in late afternoon, it is taken mostly with live bait. It grows rapidly, and Department biologists believe the species will add to the angling possibilities at Dewey.

Spreading of a rotenone solution designed to kill only shad is being made from German to the Auxier boat-landing.

Eighty young turkey were released in the Dewey Lake game refuge and 80 quail elsewhere in the county a few days ago, Raymond Copley, conservation official, said.

MINE TEAMS TAKE HONORS

Floyd Rescue, First Aid Groups Dominate Safety Meet 2nd Straight Year

For the second year in a row Floyd county mine rescue and first-aid teams took the lion's share of honors Saturday at the 20th annual mine-safety meet sponsored at Pikeville by the Big Sandy Coal Mining Institute and other groups.

The Wheelwright team of the Inland Steel Company grabbed first place in the mine-rescue division, the team from the No. 2 mine of the Princess Elkhorn Coal Company at David took first honors in the first-aid division for white adults while the team from Princess Elkhorn's No. 1 mine placed third.

Inland Steel Company teams from Wheelwright also won in the first-aid contests for three divisions—boys', girls' and colored adults. The Price mine of the same company placed fifth in first-aid for white adults; Consolidation Coal Company's team from Hendrix ranked fourth. The Hendrix team lost to the Inland Steel team in the mine-rescue competition, and was second in first aid, white adult division. In the boys' first-aid work the Consolidation team from McRoberts was the winner.

The safety meet was co-sponsored by the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Operators' Association, the United Mine Workers, Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals and the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

Last year it was the Turner-Elkhorn Coal Company team from Drift which for the second year in a row won the white first-aid contest. The Price mine of Inland Steel won first place in mine-rescue, and both the boys' and girls' teams from Princess Elkhorn won in first-aid.

Floyd Father Admits Charge by Daughter; Family Quits County

G. T. Whittaker, of the upper section of the county, has pleaded guilty to a charge of incest, County Judge Henry Stumbo said this week.

A man of about 50 years, he is accused by his daughter, an expectant mother. She said he threatened her life. Whittaker admitted his crime but said he doubted his parentage of the unborn baby.

Two other daughters have been molested by him, the man's wife told authorities, but the warrant resulting in his arrest did not specify these counts.

All members of the family have left the state, hoping, they said, to avoid further contact with Whittaker and to escape the cloud under which he has placed the family name.

Election Officers Told Duty To Prevent Fraud

Each of the 240 persons named by the Floyd county election commissioners to serve in the county's 60 precincts on election day have been advised by Sheriff Gorman Collins that the voting will be under federal jurisdiction and that any illegal practices will be investigated by a federal grand jury.

Collins also wrote those named to the precinct posts that they will be expected to serve and that the only legal excuse is a doctor's certificate stating that the election officer is physically unable to be at the polls and perform his or her duties.

Election officers were warned: "To protect yourself and the will of the people, hold a fair and square election by keeping voters, vote solicitors, etc. 150 feet away from the voting place. . . . Properly qualify all voters as to legal status, allow no tickets to be brought into the house, allow no one except election officers to assist a voter, vote no one on the table except a blind person and then only in the presence of the poll officials."

He also pointed out that no person should be permitted to vote who has not been in the precinct 30 days, in the county 60 days and in the state one year. Collins said the name of the voter must appear on the registration book, adding, "and even then they are not legal voters unless they meet the above qualifications."

The letter pointed out that in the past "it has been the custom . . . to substitute legally appointed election officers with people of little integrity, and have thereby perpetuated election fraud upon the people and have by doing so disfranchised good citizens . . ."

RABID ANIMAL BITES WOMAN

Anti-Rabies Treatment Is Being Administered After Attack By Fox

Mrs. Martha Rose, of Town Branch, near here, is undergoing anti-rabies treatment at the health department after having been bitten about two weeks ago by a fox which is believed to have been rabid.

The fox attacked Mrs. Rose as she was feeding hogs. The animal released its hold on her leg when she hit it with a bucket, then escaped.

The State Health Department reports that rabies, the fatal disease carried chiefly by dogs, has struck a variety of other animals in Kentucky this year.

Laboratory tests of brain tissue have revealed the infection in four skunks, an opossum, a field mouse, a chipmunk and a bobcat.

The dogs are holding their own against rabies so far this year, compared with 1955.

Rabies in foxes is up 34 per cent from last year. Cases in cattle are up slightly.

Dr. R. L. Hectorne, director of veterinary public health for the State Health Department, reported that 90 dogs heads tested positive for rabies in the first eight months of 1956.

The 1955 figure for the same period was 89.

Laboratory tests are made on the heads of animals killed or found dead whose "madness" symptoms suggested rabies.

Other state figures for the first eight months:

Foxes 67 (compared with 50 in the 1955 period), cattle 30 (com-

CITY REVISES TAXI PERMIT REGULATIONS

Council Seeks To Curb Illegal Liquor Traffic; Passes New Ordinance

Control of taxicab ownership and operation and curbing of any illegal liquor activities in which they might engage is sought in an ordinance adopted Monday evening by the City Council.

The ordinance, which will become effective Oct. 15, will require all cab owners to procure new city licenses, it was said. Refunds on any time due under unexpired licenses will be made.

Main points of the ordinance, which was introduced by Councilman Watt Hale and passed without a dissenting vote, are:

1. No person or driver shall be granted a right to own or operate a taxicab in the city if he is on and after that date convicted of drunk driving, transporting or illegally selling intoxicants in dry territory, or who in the opinion of the Council is not of good, moral character.

2. Upon conviction of a taxicab owner, operator or driver on a charge of transporting intoxicants the police judge shall revoke the license of the owner and driver and each shall be fined $19.50, trial on the charge to be before the police judge and without intervention of a jury.

In each of these cases the burden of proof, the ordinance points out, will be on the owner and driver of the cab.

The new legislation makes responsible for its enforcement the chief of police and the police force. Failure to enforce it may be penalized by fine of $10 and suspension of the offending officer by the police judge to await Council action which may reinstate the officer or permanently discharge him.

Before the right to operate taxicab will be granted under the new ordinance the owner of the cab or cabs must supply the Council name of the owner, amount of insurance carried, number of state operator's license, name and age of each driver (none may be less than 21), number of the driver's license and the number of the cab.

The ordinance specifies that the driver must be of good, moral character and must have the approval of the City Council before he may legally operate a taxicab.

No person or owner of a taxicab license shall lease or permit the use of a cab on a "lease-lend" basis, the ordinance provides. The owner shall be responsible for the operator of any taxicab licensed in his or her name. Penalty for violation of this part of the ordinance is a fine of $19.50 and revocation of city operator's license of both owner and driver. Each day such offense is committed will constitute a separate offense, and trial shall be by the police judge without a jury.

Council declined to contribute any funds toward defraying the Immediately following the meeting here, County Superintendent Turner left for Louisville where he went as a delegate to the Governor's annual conference on education.

Ground-Breaking Ceremony Held For Phone Building at McDowell

Work got underway recently on the Southern Bell dial building at McDowell when State Senator Douglas Hays turned the first shovel of dirt.

Senator Hays was assisted by B. F. Reed, of Drift, former president of the Big Sandy Development Association. Construction of the new building is another step in Southern Bell's program to expand telephone service in the McDowell community. Approximately 300 subscribers will be served by the McDowell exchange at a cost of more than $130,000.

Installation of the equipment will be started as soon as building construction permits.

There are no commitments as yet," Ketterhagen said. The two-year contract of the union with the company expires at midnight, October 15.

Other motors in the Evinrude line on display at Home Furniture Co. are: the 10 hp Sportwin; the 7.5 hp Fleetwin; the 5.5 hp Fisherman; and the popular three horsepower Lightwin.

Introduction of a generator, Mr. Horn said, will give boatmen, particularly owners of outboard cruisers, an adequate power supply to feed running lights, cabin lights, a radio and similar equipment without complete dependence upon a battery. The generator, rated at 12 volts with a continuous output of 10 amperes, is available as an accessory for the 35 hp motor. The generator comes as a completely assembled kit and is engineered for simple installation.

In addition to numerous refinements, all new Evinrude motors—except the 5.5 and 7.5 hp units—now use a new slip clutch propeller. A variation of the slip clutch prop has already been in use on the 5.5 and 7.5 motors. Basis for the propeller's action is a rubber hub which has been designed to allow the propeller to slip when an obstruction is hit.

Horn also said that the propellers on the new Evinrude feature a weed cutter which tears or cuts weed or fish line which might wrap around or work between the prop and gear case. Tangled line cannot now damage the propeller shaft seal.

Now for Enforcement!

The Times hails the action taken this week by the City Council of Prestonsburg in an effort to curb bootlegging in the county's seat of government.

Another ordinance on the books does not, of course, mean that the law will be enforced. It could mean much—or nothing.

This ordinance is obviously not intended to be oppressive. It does not go back beyond its effective date, October 15, for those violations which would prohibit any individual from operating a taxicab here.

Its enforcement will never penalize but will protect the innocent.

In the late 19th Century, Kentuckians constructed many "shun pikes" over which traffic might detour to avoid toll gates.

A total of 4,866 physically handicapped persons were given jobs in Kentucky during the 12 months ending July 1.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Questions and Answers by Cost Accountants)

You and your family are going to enjoy greater protection against most of the hazards of life because of the many important changes made in the Social Security law.

This is the first in a series of articles containing questions and answers on the new 1956 Social Security law, prepared by the Louisville Chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants as a public service in answering some of the questions on the latest changes in the Social Security law.

Q. Was retirement age changed for women?

A. Yes. Wives of men retired on Social Security pensions are now eligible for pensions at the age of 62. In the past, women were not eligible until age 65.

Q. Can a wife draw benefits at age 62 if her husband is not yet 65?

A. No. She cannot collect benefits until her husband is 65. Even at age 65, she must retire before she can collect her benefits.

Q. Is a wife's pension received automatically?

A. No. To get the benefits for the wife an application must be filed at the nearest Social Security district office.

this fall reminds me that my grandfather is said to have killed the last deer legally in the Right Beaver Creek section of the county perhaps 75 years ago.

This, local legend has it, is the gentleman who refused to give a rifle gun and hown-daw for a large branch of land. I think I would have enjoyed this progenitor of mine. I have pulled some business deals in my time that tend to confirm my belief in the power of heredity, and I feel like we could have been a great consolation to each other.

THE JUDGE UNDERSTANDS

This charge to a jury by a judge may or may not have been made in Tennessee court. Anyway, it came to us via The Tennessee Bulletin:

"Gentlemen of the Jury: You are the sole judges of the facts in this case and of the credibility of the witnesses. But if you believe from the evidence that this great, big, burly bully—which he is—assaulted and beat up this puny, little, weak shrimp—which he is—and that he beat him wilfully, deliberately, maliciously and without provocation—which he did—then it would be your duty to return a verdict for the plaintiff—which you must do—and to assess his damages at such amount that will compensate the plaintiff for his injuries—which would be the full amount for which he sues."

Map shows county's mileage of roads approved by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads for possible federal construction aid. Note markings are those of federal road agency and not the road or highway numbers posted on the routes.

Special to The Times

FRANKFORT, Ky., Oct. 1 — Floyd county has 225.9 miles of highways approved by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads for possible federal aid, State Highway Commissioner Bert Kiser said here.

As such, he said, these roads, or part of them, could qualify for improvement under the proposed new highway construction program, as needs and priorities are determined, funds become available, and federal approval is obtained for specific projects.

The county's mileage of federal-aid highways include 184.8 miles of secondary and 41.1 miles of primary roads. In all, there are approximately 18,800 miles of such roads in Kentucky.

Kiser's explanation of the federal-aid mileage came after reports that some persons had the erroneous impression that only highways bearing U. S. route markings are entitled to federal aid.

Funds for federal-aid secondary and primary roads are allocated on a 50-50 basis for the next three years. The state is required to put $1 to match each $1 obtained from the U. S. government for construction on these highways.

These roads are in addition to the 641 miles designated as Kentucky's part of the Federal Interstate Highway System. For the interstate routes, under the new highway program, the U. S. will put up $9 for each $1 put up by the state toward the cost.

There is also the federal-aid urban system, which consists of about 225 miles of primary and approved extensions of the secondary system in Kentucky cities also financed on the 50-50 matching basis.

These systems, for which federal aid was increased by Congress last June, are in addition to roads included in Kentucky's separate rural road program. Approximately $19,000,000 in state funds is earmarked annually for the rural highway program.

The rural program would continue operation, under the new law, as in the past, according to the State Highway Department announcement recently dealing with plans for highway construction if the state's proposed $100,000,000 bond issue is approved by Kentucky voters at the Nov. 6 election.

Several tax bills were passed by the 1956 Legislature and they now are in effect bringing in money designed to retire the bonds. The State Revenue Department estimated $4,500,000 a year would be received from these taxes, or enough to pay off all the 30-year bonds and interest. State taxes on ordinary motorists driving automobiles were not raised. One of the boosts was the two-cent-a-gallon surtax placed on gasoline and diesel fuel used by heavy commercial trucks.

If the road bond issue is approved, the highway department said it plans to match all federal road grants with bond money the next three years to catch up some on needed construction that has accumulated through the years and to accelerate road building. This would require $37,500,000 in state bond money.

By matching federal-aid funds with state bond money the next three years, the department said an estimated $37,000,000 in state funds normally used for matching purposes would be released to accelerate new construction on roads for which no federal aid was obtained—on primary, secondary and urban highway systems.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

By Gordon Wilson, Ph. D.

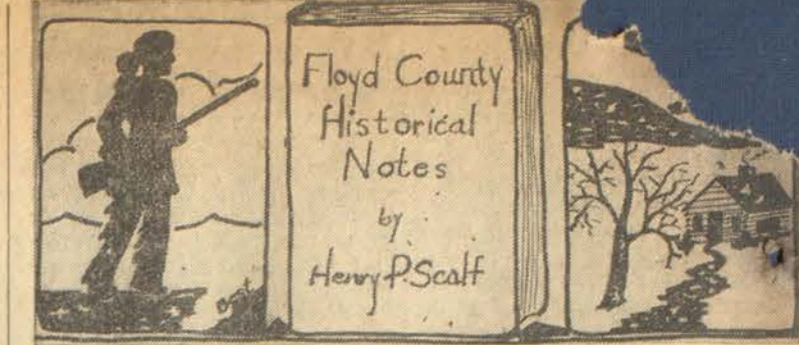

With the death in the summer of 1956 of Albert Woolson, the Grand Army of the Republic came to an end; a whole era in American history stopped abruptly. By the time this article reaches the newspapers, it is perfectly possible that any one or all of the three very aged Confederates who survive Mr. Woolson may have joined their late enemy.

I recall the first time that the Confederate soldier as an institution gave me a shiver of sadness at the passing of time. I was standing in the front yard of Jefferson Davis' old home at Beauvoir, Mississippi, talking to one of the old "boys who wore the gray."

When I try to tell my students that, in my childhood, Civil War soldiers were as common a sight in any gathering as World War I soldiers today, they look at me as if I, too, were already becoming ancient and shaky in my mind. But think of it: in the early nineties, when my memories begin, these soldiers had been mustered out less than thirty years! Many of them were still in the early fifties; some were even under fifty. They were the mature, sometimes middle-aged, men of our time and place. Some bore to a very ripe old age, badly-scarred body as proof of their harrowing experiences. My two uncles, too, lived to advanced ages, unscarred and cheerful, even unprejudiced; they came back; that was that. Even the way they pronounced the word "Yankee" had no bitterness about it; they called themselves "Rebels," as my own mother did to her dying day. The two terms were no more bitter than the names of two adjoining counties; they were Yankees and Rebels, so what?

Four years ago, I have previously said in this column, even a well-educated and cultured bus driver on a fast express bus between Omaha and Chicago, I believe, did not know

Just read an advertisement, titled "How to Get a Copy of Collins' History of Kentucky Without Money." "Get four persons to send the money together for four copies; and the fifth copy will be sent to you as a premium."

Sounds nice after these years of searching and answering the old, old question, "Have you seen a volume of Collins' History of Kentucky?" But the catch is that the ad appeared in the back pages, of an old Collins' History of Kentucky loaned this column by a friend in Whitley county. It is the revised edition by Richard H. Collins, and, once selling for $5.00, and is now a priceless item of bibliophiles.

Other ads in the old history are of interest. Lewis Collins, who wrote the original history, has an attorney's card in it. He practiced at Louisville. He refers prospective clients to Gov. James B. McCreary, Frankfort, Hon. Bland Ballard, Judge U. S. Court, Louisville, and Hon. J. Stoddard Johnston, Frankfort.

Then there is the Bickford Automatic Knitter. "Will knit 20,000 stitches a minute. A practical family, knitting machine." That is, of course, a lot of stitches. Maybe grandmother, back in 1873, would have found it a wonderful utilitarian tool.

Quoting from Collins' History of Kentucky, under Floyd County, page 237: "In December 1775 (as appears from depositions copied in the court records in 1796 of Mason county, when that county extend over the entire Sandy river region and north-eastern Kentucky), Wm. Thornton, James Fowler, and Wm. Pittman left Clinch river, in southwest Virginia, on a bear-hunting expedition and came out through Little Paint Gap, thence on to the head of Shely creek, and down it some distance, then took an old Indian track along under the dividing ridge on the waters of Sandy; then left the track and camped on a creek called (by Fowler) Beaver Creek, now in Floyd county. Fowler discovered a salt lick, which he called Fowler's Lick, about 60 miles from Little Paint Gap. They did not cross the main fork of Sandy at all. In March, 1796, Wm. Thornton came again to this lick for salt, in company with Philip Roberts."

The lick has been identified by students of Eastern Kentucky history as at Salt Lick Creek, near the present Hueysville. Who remembers anything about the old lick? Comments invited.

Kentucky has a Historical Markers Committee responsible for the marking of historical spots. Two places of historical interest so marked in this area are Harman's Station and the Battle of Middle Creek. It is regrettable that the marker for Harman's Station has an error in date on Jenny Wiley's captivity. The actual date of the Wiley captivity was Oct. 1, 1789. The marker says 1787.

A recent letter from the Committee gives some background on their work. Charles F. Hinds, Frankfort, is secretary-treasurer. "We had a meeting of the Markers Committee on Friday, August 25, at which time we approved twenty-five additional state markers. The Historical Society, in 1948, publicized the fact that we needed a markers program in the state of Kentucky. It was agreed that the Highway Department was the logical place to initiate the actual program and, in 1950, Commissioner Keck of the Highway Department called the first meeting of the Markers Committee. It has met at least one time every year since then. The members of the Committee represent an excellent cross section of patriotic, historical and artistic interests in our state.

"If you have some place in mind which you consider should be marked, send the name, information about the site, with your sources of information, to me at the Old State House in Frankfort. Your recommendation will go in a file with others, and you may be sure it will be brought to the attention of the Committee at its next meeting. If your selection was not among the twenty-five markers already approved for the coming year, perhaps it may be among the twenty-five selected for next year. "I am sorry that we do not have, as yet, a brochure on the present state of the markers in Kentucky. We expect, however, to get out such a publication within the next year."

Most of the rabid foxes were found in Eastern Kentucky, particularly in Lawrence and Breathitt counties, mainly in the first four months of the year.

Jefferson county had 19 positive tests—from four foxes, 13 dogs, a cat and a mouse.

Dr. Hectorne said cats can be vaccinated against rabies in the same way as dogs. He credited dog-vaccination programs over the state since 1954 for the lack of increase in dog rabies.

There have been no human rabies case in the state this year. Such cases usually stem from a rabid-dog bite. Once symptoms appear, the disease is always fatal. However, anti-rabies vaccine can be given to protect against the infection.

The chipmunk which tested positive was one that six Campbell county boys had been playing with a few days ago, Dr. Hectorne said. He did not have details, but said some or all of the boys were bitten.

Campbell county health officials requested anti-rabies vaccine for the boys.

To The Parents and Voters Of Educational District No. 3

If you are interested in separating our Schools from County and State politics and getting them from under the influence of local politicians—I urge you to support me on Nov. 6, to represent our educational district as a member of the Floyd County Board of Education.

I am not making a fight against any one person. I have three children in school. My only desire is to provide the best education possible for them and all other children with the taxes we pay each year.

I am firmly against intimidating our teachers.

I believe that our teachers, bus drivers, janitors and other employees should hold their jobs on their qualifications and past record and not on the votes they can get. Politics in our school have caused us to lose too many good teachers. If it doesn't stop our children will continue to suffer.

I pledge that I will do my best to improve every school in our district by personally visiting them and talking to all the parents interested and not just to the men with the most votes.

I have no relatives seeking any jobs. I am only interested in improving our schools and making Floyd County a better place in which to live.

IF YOU STAND FOR THIS TYPE OF PROGRAM THEN I ASK YOUR SUPPORT.

SPORTS CHATTER

By GORDON MOORE

PIKEVILLE-PRESTONSBURG

The annual renewal of the Prestonsburg-Pikeville high school football game will be staged on the local gridiron, Friday night at 8 p.m. This close and exciting series now almost surpasses the Blackcat-Pointsville's finale in rivalry.

Games in the past six years have been extremely heated and the victor in five of the six instances has gone on to win the E. K. M. C. Championship.

Pikeville won 20-19 in 1951, 7-6 in 1953 and 13-12 last season. The Blackcats were a 7-6 victor in 1950, 19-6 in 1952 and 33-7 in 1954.

The outcome of the 36th meeting of the schools can be a big factor for Bobby Phillips' Panthers, who have an overall 5-0 record and 2-0 in the loop. Pikeville must win to stay in the chase for the league title and Prestonsburg also needs to win to stay in the running. A defeat would virtually eliminate Prestonsburg from contention.

Bob Wallace's Prestonsburg Blackcats turned in their most impressive performance to date in romping over Jenkins 24-13 last Saturday night. A four-minute third quarter scoring spurt produced three touchdowns for the locals.

NEW STADIUM

Hazard high is in the midst of completing a new $25,000 concrete stadium that will seat 6,000. Perry county school kids are aiding in the project with a donation of 25 cents per week.

CRAGER NAMED AGAIN

Senior Fullback Buford Crager has again been named Blackcat-Player of the Week, by Francis Stores in Prestonsburg, who sponsor the weekly selection.

The Blackcats leading scorer, tallied two touchdowns in Prestonsburg's 24-13 conquest of Jenkins, and was a workhorse on defense along with tackle Bruce Howard.

PLAY FRIDAY NIGHT

Wheelwright high school will play its first football game in 15 years, Friday night, in the Wheelwright park at 7:30 p.m. M.C. Napier high of Perry county is the foe.

Two Floyd Players On Talent-Loaded Five At Pikeville College

Pikeville, Ky., Oct. 2 (Spl.) — Pikeville College's 17 freshman basketball prospects for next season including Jim Cline, Auxier, and Johnny Pack, Hueysville, are "loaded with hardwood talent," John E. Renfro, Pikeville coach, said today.

Four states are represented among the frosh at Pikeville, which opened as a four-year college for the first time this fall. Under the direction of Bill Page, Bowling Green, Ky., a student-assistant coach, they started practice Monday (Oct. 1).

They expect to play a schedule of some 16 games against junior-college and other college-freshman teams, opening about Nov. 20.

Six-nine Dale Fillingame, of Midway, Ga., tops the yearling cagers at Pikeville. Twice an all-state basketball selection in his schoolboy days at Bradwell Institute, Midway, the four-sport Fillingame won all-district and all-regional honors three times.

Five veterans of military service, including two former U. S. Navy men, two from the U. S. Air Force and one Army veteran, are among the first-year candidates. Jack Tackett, Newcombe, Ky., before his four-year hitch in the U. S. Navy, made both all-district and all-E. K. M. C. ranking while starring at South Portsmouth high school and Donald A. Willis, Pikeville, who spent four years in the U. S. Air Force, twice was chosen all-district from Prestonsburg high school, now Floyd county high.

Army veteran Morris W. Justice, Pikeville, a Virgie (Ky.) high school graduate, played at Pikeville College Academy. Former Seaman Lawrence Lee Baker was a Jenkins high school star, and Walter Coleman, Elkhorn City, an Air Force veteran, played at Hellier high school.

Other freshman players at Pikeville are Gary Caudill and Bob Flynn, who played at Pikeville high school; Jim Cline, Auxier; 6-2; Donald Blake Hall, who played at Dorton high school; all-district John Will Hunt, Feds Creek high; all-area Ken Maynard and all-district Grant Shepherd, Lenore (W. Va.) high; two-time all-district James Moss, English, Ind.; Homer A. "Buddy" Owens, Pikeville College Academy; John Pack, Garrett, and all-state honorable-mention Ralph Tackett, Virgie.

A new electric shovel being built for surface mine operations by the Peabody Coal Co., will have a dipper big enough to take a 105-ton bite of overlying earth and rock. 15 tons more than the bite of its next largest competitor, which handles 90 tons.

Cats Beat Jenkins, 24-13; Hazard Holds Top Spot

Hazard and Paintsville successfully hurdled their major Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference foes last Friday night in retaining the one-two spots in the 10-team high school football league.

On the following night the Prestonsburg high school Black Cats evened their season standing at two wins and two losses by a strong third-quarter attack which downed the visiting Jenkins Cavaliers, 24-13.

Paintsville's surprising Tigers staved off a fourth quarter spurt to ease by Fleming, 13-7, in a game marred by penalties. Both clubs had two regulars out with injuries. The victory was the fifth in a row for Walter Bruhn's charges and their third in the loop race.

League leader Hazard picked up a highly important win from the high-scoring Whitesburg Yellow-jackets as halfback Audry Combs tallied both touchdowns in the 14-7 triumph.

Belfry evened its season's slate at 2-2 with a 33-6 conquest of Chapmansville, West Virginia. Pikeville whipped tough Grundy, Va., 19-12, in a non-loop affair, and Elkhorn City nipped M. C. Napier, 7-0.

All-state H. L. Justice, halfback Buddy Elkins and Larry Phillips each romped for a long touchdown as Bobby Phillips' Panthers chalked up their fifth consecutive win. Now third in the league with a 2-0 record, Pikeville's next four opponents are loop games.

Fleming, minus quarterback Leon Sergeant and Captain Tyrone Bentley, grabbed the opening kick-off after Paintsville bobbled the ball on its own 31 and marched to pay dirt in four plays.

Gary Bentley, sub-quarterback, raced over from 12 yards out after fullback James Hill put the oval in scoring position. Hill booted the point after for the 7-0 advantage.

On the ensuing kick-off Paintsville drove to the mid-field stripe in two plays, then Eastern Kentucky's leading scorer, Frankie Patton, sped 49 yards to the end zone. Quarterback Jim Conley's plunge for the extra point was short.

With three minutes remaining in the second period, Jim Conley began flinging the ball all over the field, and three passes covered 80 yards to put the Tigers on the Fleming 5, following a pass interference penalty. Patton marked up his 13th t.d. of the season on the next play with seven seconds left in the half. Fleming threatened twice in the last half, Tiger defensive star, 270-pound senior tackle Jim Cyrus personally stopped both drives.

Whitesburg, averaging 41 points per game prior to meeting Hazard, sent speedster Carlos Fugate for 53 yards in the opening period for a marker, and Lloyd Hodge for the additional point to jump in front, 7-0.

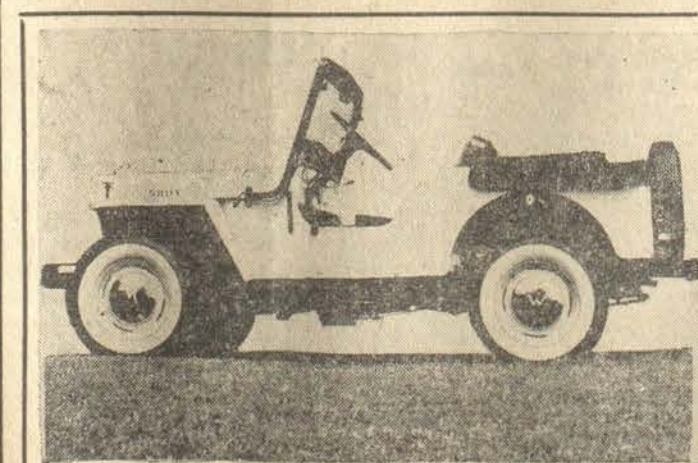

Jim Caudill's Bulldogs retaliated in the second frame on a 53-yard, 9-play t.d., with halfback Aubry Combs scoring from six-yards out and Astor Sizemore booting. Full-

WOODY'S QUIZ....

What's a "Wolf Tree"?

In loggers lingo a "wolf tree" is limby and of low value. It takes up a lot of space where better quality trees could be growing.

On industrial Tree Farms there is no place for wolf trees. With 5,000 technically trained foresters on their payrolls, America's wood using industries are growing and harvesting continuing crops of trees for lumber, pulp, paper and other forest products.

Long Illness

Watson Shepherd, 63, died Wednesday of last week, at 9:30 a.m., at the Prestonsburg General hospital. She had been ill some time but the immediate cause of death was said to be a heart condition.

Mrs. Shepherd was a daughter of the late Frank and Kate Allen Watson, of Magoffin county. Her husband, Lewis Shepherd, survives.

Surviving children are Mrs. May Meece, Warsaw, Ind., June Shepherd, of David, Mrs. Roseann Williams, of Indiana, Mrs. Okie Shepherd, Nerio Shepherd, Okie Shepherd and Mrs. Bertha Prater, all of David, Gordon Shepherd, in the Air Force in Washington State. She was the foster mother of Robert Shepherd, former vocational agriculture teacher in the Prestonsburg school system but now of Berea.

Surviving are a sister, Sis Perkins, of Iynton, and two brothers: Morgan Watson, McGuffey, O., and Branch Watson, in Michigan.

Terms of the proposed agreement were kept secret. However, it was understood that it called for a two-step pay increase similar to the one Lewis won a year ago for the 200,000 soft-coal miners. That pact provided an increase of $1.20 a day on September 1, 1955, with a further increase of 80 cents a day last April 1. The second rise brought the basic mine rate to $20.25 a day.

The pact fitted in with the new role Lewis has carved for himself as a champion of peaceful labor relations in the coal industry. Long known for the crippling strikes he called on a virtually annual basis, he has not authorized a shutdown of the mines since 1952.

Improved conditions in the coal industry helped Lewis gain his new wage advance. Production totaled 350,000,000 tons in the first 9½ months of this year, a rise of 9 per cent over the 1955 level.

The new terms were expected to become effective as of October 1. The Southern coal producers, who have a separate association, are not believed likely to balk at acceptance of a similar agreement.

HOT FOOT
HILO, Hawaii — A tourist from Los Angeles stuck his foot in the mud and came up with a volcanic hot foot here. While touring the site of last year's volcanic eruptions on this largest of the Hawaiian Islands, the visitor's right foot sank into a mud puddle and he came up with first and second degree burns. Hawaii volcanologist Dr. Jerry Eaton said the volcano-heated mud in the area still percolates at 200 degrees some 18 months after the eruption.

Production of electricity in the United States, where coal is the fuel that produces 65 per cent of the total, is greater than the total for all of the next six countries. U. S. output in 1954 was 532,000 million kilowatt-hours, a total greater than that of Canada, Russia, Great Britain, West Germany, Japan and France combined.

In coal-competitive U. S. areas coal in 1955 held 85 per cent of the electric utility fuel market.

Airman Hall, of Bypro, Is Crew Chief in Kent

Airman First Class Jerry R. Hall, 21, son of Mrs. Sharlene Hall, of Bypro, is one of the team members who will represent the United States Air Forces in Europe next month in the world-wide Air Force rocketry competition at Yuma, Ariz.

Airman Hall is a P-86D crew chief with the 406th Fighter-Interceptor Wing based at Manston Royal Air Force Station, Kent, England. His unit won the USAFE rocket gunnery championship in July at Wheelus Field, Tripoli, Libya, to gain the finals at Yuma.

The 406th team is now training at Suffolk County Air Base, West-Hampton Beach, L. I., N. Y., before moving on to the Arizona meet late this month. At Yuma, from Oct. 13-17, the top marksmen in the United States Air Force will fire on Airborne tow targets to decide the team champion for 1956. The purpose of the meet is to sharpen the gunnery and maintenance skills of the contestants for the air defense mission which they perform in today's modern jet interceptor airplanes.

Airman Hall completed training at the Jet Aircraft and Engine School at Amarillo Air Force Base, Texas before embarking for his overseas assignment to England in 1954.

American Gas & Electric Co. plans construction of two 450,000-kw coal burning generators—one to be located south of Terre Haute, Ind.—which will be the largest ever built and which are each expected to use around 1.3 million tons of coal annually. Consumption of coal will be 150 tons an hour.

KY. TEACHER LOSS IS TOLD

2,157 Teachers Lost Last Year As Higher Pay Made Elsewhere

Higher salaries in the teaching profession in other states and better-paying jobs in industry cost Kentucky 2,157 classroom teachers during the last school year.

The loss is reflected by the number of teachers who withdrew their accounts from the teachers retirement system, according to a report by N. O. Kimbler, secretary, and Miss Vera Beckham, assistant secretary.

Their annual study indicates that about 2,000 Kentucky teachers leave the profession each year.

A total of 21,500 teachers were employed in the public-school system in the state last year. The median classroom-teacher's salary was $2,311 in 1954-55 and about the same last year.

About 2,000 qualified teachers were graduated from Kentucky colleges last spring and summer. Some of them were teachers who obtained degrees to receive higher salaries under the minimum foundation program.

Even if all of the recent graduates teach in Kentucky, there would not be enough teachers to replace those who quit.

Why do teachers leave? 1. A total of 295 teachers left Kentucky to teach in other states and countries.

Eighty-five went to Ohio, where the average salary of classroom teachers in 1954-55 was $3,975.

Thirty-nine went to Florida, which in 1954-55 paid its teachers $3,725 on the average; 33 to Indiana, with a $4,100 salary average; 24 to Tennessee, where pay averaged $2,710 a year; 19 to Illinois, where $4,350 is paid the average teacher, and 15 to Michigan, $4,300. The other 80 scattered among 26 states and countries.

2. Another 177 teachers changed professions. The largest number to enter one profession were the 39 who became ministers.

Next, were the 20 former teachers who became secretaries and bookkeepers. Nineteen took jobs with the Federal Government, and two with the State Government. Others entered private business and the medical, nursing, dentistry, legal, and engineering professions.

3. The service credit of 687 teachers lapsed because they failed to teach in Kentucky for six years.

4. The study listed these other reasons given for teachers withdrawing their retirement accounts: Homemaking and family duties, 237; emergency teachers, 60; own business, 24; disliked teaching, 10, and teaching in Kentucky schools not covered by the teachers retirement system, 18.

Insufficient salary, 63; other work not indicated, 125; military service, 10; unmarried women who left the state and did not indicate work, 34; men who moved to another state, 52, and women whose husbands were transferred to other states, 230.

Not re-employed, 11; reduction of teaching staff, 6; illness, not eligible for disability annuity, 51, and death, 67.

Emphasizing the growing importance of barge movement of coal, 21 coal-burning electric generating plants now are operating on the Ohio River between Pittsburgh and Cairo, Ill., a distance of 981 miles, compared with only eight in 1941. Three of the plants use 4 million tons of coal a year.

Auto Dealers Who Place Insurance Must Be Licensed

Frankfort, Oct. 2 (Spl.) — All automobile dealers and their representatives who place insurance on vehicles must be examined and licensed by the State Insurance Department, Commissioner C. P. Thurman has announced.

The new ruling, effective immediately, he said, was based upon an opinion from the attorney general's office stating that anyone representing an insurer in Kentucky must be licensed. Thurman said the ruling would affect about 3,000 Kentuckians in the auto business.

He explained the question of whether these persons should be licensed under the insurance code was referred to the attorney general during an investigation of overcharges for policies on financed cars.

Thurman said the investigation showed that about 18 million dollars in premiums was collected in Kentucky over a 5-year period for physical damage protection on automobiles with drivers under 25 years old. Of this amount, Thurman said, the study showed overcharges totaled about $2,286,000, or 12.7 per cent.

The Department directed insurers to answer questionnaires to holders of this type of policy in effect as of January 1, 1954, to determine if premium rates were correct. Of those replying, Thurman said, 91.6 per cent required premium adjustments, averaging $37.52. He added that only 18.2 percent of the questionnaires were answered.

Thurman said policyholders who fail to return the questionnaires may be depriving themselves of refunds.

He advised those signing time-purchase contracts to make certain they specify the cash sale of the vehicle, amount of down payment, types of insurance coverage, the actual insurance premium for each, and the buyer's classification.

Floyd Scout Troops Slated for Jamboree At Valley Forge, Pa.

Lonesome Pine Council will send three Scout troops, including 114 Scouts and leaders to the Fourth National Jamboree which will be held next year at Valley Forge, Pa., July 12 to 19, according to plans made by the Jamboree committee which met in Pikeville recently.

According to tentative plans, the three troops will be recruited from Virginia, the Kentucky River district, including Perry, Knott, Breathitt, and Leslie counties, and the Big Sandy area, including the Letcher, Pike and Jenny Wiley districts.

Scouts will attend a pre-training camp and travel by bus to Valley Forge. The route will include the camp in the Shendandoah National Park, a half day visit at Washington, D. C., and a visit to Independence Hall, Philadelphia, Pa.

In order to be eligible to attend the Jamboree a Scout must be at least 12 years of age and reach second class rank or be registered as an Explorer Scout. He must have a medical examination, and get the approval of his parents, his Scoutmaster, and the Jamboree committee.

Approximately 50,000 Scouts from all over the nation and Scout delegates from foreign countries are expected to attend the Jamboree.

There is a great difference between a druggist and a pharmacist.

Preparation of a doctor's prescription is a painstaking, exacting process, one to be done ONLY by a registered pharmacist, and not by a mere druggist who has not been educated and trained in the profession.

There is a law which prohibits, under penalty, the filling of a prescription by any other than a registered pharmacist. It is a good law, for nothing is more important than your health, and hit-and-miss filling of prescriptions creates a very real danger.

A registered pharmacist prepares every prescription sent to us. Every prescription receives his individual attention.

All mail orders promptly filled for prescriptions and medicines.

If you have faith in your doctor and believe he is right, have his prescription prepared right.

GOVERNOR'S MANSION

The Governor's Mansion in Frankfort, Kentucky's capital, is located near the capitol building, and some portions of it are open to tourists. The mansion was built in 1912 and has recently been remodeled and redecorated. It faces the Capitol and overlooks the Kentucky River at the rear.

Prestonsburg, Ky.

Labor legislation in this county is older than our nation's history and reflects the attitude of the government and the public toward the destinies of the working man and organized labor.

As you examine this history you will find it to be an arbitrary attitude to deny labor its victories by court order or legislative enactment.

The first recorded labor laws in this county were enacted in the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1630, ten short years after the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock. There, the wages of carpenters, masons and other manual labor were arbitrarily fixed by law, and penalties were imposed upon employer and employees exceeding these rates.

This philosophy prevailed during the next 200 years as wage earners were legislated into an economic bracket and punished by law for any effort to improve that status.

It was not until the beginnings of the Republic, when labor unions first emerged, that this philosophy was challenged.

The shoe-makers of Philadelphia organized in a strong and militant union in 1804, then, their employers reduced the price on piece work. They went on strike and won their strike, and the rates were restored. A short time later, the employers reduced their rates again, a strike was called again, and the employers resorted to the lockout. The shoe-makers lost their strike.

The employers and the dominant political powers determined to suppress for once and for all time the development of organized labor in this country. In January, 1808, eight members of the shoe-makers union were arrested and charged with the crime of "a combination and conspiracy to raise their wages."

The shoe-makers were found guilty and for the next 36 years union men faced the doctrine of criminal conspiracy wherever they tried to organize and bargain collectively.

It was not until 1842 that unions were able to obviate this doctrine. In 1839 the Boston shoe-maker's went out on strike because a non-union shoemaker was employed in a union shop. Seven members of the shoe-makers' union were tried and convicted on conspiracy charges. However, on appeal, two years later, the decision was reversed and the court held that the action of working men seeking to induce all those engaged in the same occupation to become members of a union did not in itself constitute a conspiracy and, hence, was not illegal. It held that the legality of such action depended upon the means used to accomplish this end. This was the first case that recognized labor's right to organize.

For the next several decades labor unions were reluctantly tolerated. As industry developed, the unions became stronger and more assertive by their demands. As their strength grew, the enemies of labor devised a new and wicked legal weapon—the injunction.

By the simple device of a court order, labor unions could be restrained. Failure to comply with an injunction resulted in fines or imprisonment without benefit of a jury trial. It is significant, of the three branches of government—legislative, executive, and judicial—the judicial alone can punish those who violate its rulings.

The outstanding example of strike-breaking by injunction is found in the Pullman strike of 1894. As a result of a federal injunction a great strike was broken. The leadership, including Eugene Debs, president of the American Railway Union, was sentenced to imprisonment.

American labor realized at this moment that this highly dangerous form of oppression, the injunction, by which federal judges became at once legislators, judges, and executioners, could only be offset by unity at the polls. It emphasized the necessity for unions to put into public office its friends and to defeat its enemies.

A further blow at labor appeared in 1902 in the famous Danbury Hatters Case. The Sherman Anti-trust law was intended to restrict the business monopolies and combinations that were oppressing this country. In the Danbury Hatter case the principles of this law were applied to the Union and the Danbury Hatters were found to be "in restraint of trade" in the amount of their strike. As a result of the decision in this case, the union was fined, and the savings and homes of the 286 members of the Local Union were attached and the damages against the union amounted to $252,130.

Thus a new weapon, by court interpretation, was leveled at labor unions.

Soon thereafter, in 1906, the top leadership of the A. F. L. and the United Mine Workers was found guilty, in the now-famous Buck Stove and Range Case, as Gompers and John Mitchell were sentenced to prison for violating a court injunction, for conspiracy, and for acting in restraint of trade.

As a result of this case, union leadership became convinced of the hostile attitude of the courts and that it was essential for labor to secure legislation which would protect the rights of unions to engage in their normal activities and limit the power of the courts to issue injunctions in labor disputes.

In October, 1914, labor secured passage of the Clayton Anti-Trust Law which contained the passage "the labor of a human being is not a commodity or an article of commerce." This law was hailed by Gompers as the Magna Charta of labor as it prohibited sweeping injunctions and specifically provided labor unions were not conspiracies in restraint of trade.

The first case brought under this law before the Supreme Court, The Duplex Printing Press Company vs. Derring, in 1918, completely disappointed and disillusioned labor. By a vote of 8 to 3 against the union, the court held the Clayton Act was merely a supplement to the Sherman Anti-Trust Act and did not protect the unions except in specific instances. Then, by an amazing process of involved logic, the court proceeded to find the union guilty.

Labor was more convinced than ever of the necessity for clear-cut legislation that would in unambiguous terms permit it to carry out its legitimate aims and functions.

In the ensuing years the injunction became a formidable weapon; picketing was restricted; the strike became a conspiracy and organization of labor was held in restraint of trade per court interpretation of the law in various cases.

The depression of the early 30's convinced many the lot of labor had to be improved. In 1932 Congress enacted the Norris-LaGuardia Act which designed to counteract the effects of the various court decisions in emasculating the protection intended for labor by the Clayton Act and to supply effective protection for organized labor against the application of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

Following the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Congress included Section 7 (a) in the National Industrial Recovery Act, encouraging workers to join unions. Three years later this act was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, and the Wagner Act was adopted. The Wagner Act specifically provided labor the right to organize and further provided the employer was obligated to bargain collectively with the labor organization representing the majority of his employees.

Peaceful picketing became a right and was protected as is the freedom of speech.

Yellow dog contracts were outlawed. Labor received immunity from the anti-trust laws.

Company unions were prohibited. Injunctions were limited. There was no limitation on the right to strike.

There was no provision for compulsory arbitration of any kind.

The Supreme Court upheld the validity of this law. The gains of labor during the next years were phenomenal. The membership grew tremendously. Many a collective bargaining agreement was achieved without any real struggle. The place of the labor union in our society seemed assured.

However, labor did not realize the unmixt blessings of this legislation. They failed to realize that what a liberal Congress could give a Conservative Congress could take away and this is what happened 10 years later.

The Supreme Court, in 1947, abridged somewhat the benefits of the Norris-LaGuardia Act by abrogating the period the mines were under government control, the miners efforts to increase their benefits under the contract were opposed by a Federal injunction secured by the government and the miners were fined $3,500,000, and John L. Lewis was fined $10,000 for failure to call off a strike. This fine was later reduced to $700,000, but is further indication of the power of the courts in penalizing labor unions.

The final phase of this historical account is found in the Taft-Hartley law and represents the clash in social philosophies between the dominant political parties.

For the first time since the election of Roosevelt in 1932, the Republicans controlled both houses in Congress in 1946. The roster show 249 Republicans to 185 Democrats in the House and 51 Republicans to 45 Democrats in the Senate. The Republicans were in full control of the legislative branch of the government and could pass any legislation they chose. They chose to pass the Taft-Hartley Law. President Truman vetoed that law but the Congress passed the law over his veto.

The proper name of the Taft-Hartley Law is the "Labor Management Relations Act, 1947." It is less concerned with labor management relations and more concerned with regulating unions, not only in their relations to their members, but even in their political activity.

The Taft-Hartley Law again places the unions as being a combination in restraint of trade and subject to the penalties of the anti-trust laws.

It protects the non-union worker who refuses to join with the majority.

It lists unfair labor practices on the part of the unions.

It outlaws the closed shop, despite the fact there were over 100,000 such agents covering 11,000,000 workers.

Secondary boycotts are prohibited.

It encourages, and in some cases makes mandatory, use of the injunction in labor disputes.

It provides and encourages damage suits against the union and endless litigation, draining the energy and resources of the union in court actions, even though the particular charges were groundless.

It enforces a 60-day cooling off period—which may require labor to work without a contract.

It abridges the use of the strike and in some instances prohibits it.

It makes the union responsible for the acts of its agents, although the acts are not authorized or ratified by the union.

Unions are prohibited from making a financial contribution toward any election.

It encourages more drastic laws by the several states, especially those prohibiting union membership as a condition of employment.

It denies supervisors the right to union membership.

It prohibits strikes by government employees.

It restricts picketing.

It requires joint labor - management administration of welfare fund.

It places in the hands of the employer every means to avoid, delay, hinder, and defeat collective bargaining.

It emphasized the right of the individual not to belong to the union; not to join in concerned activities; not to be subjected to union discipline and to be protected from the union from within; to create division within its ranks.

As a gratuitous insult it requires union officers to sign a non-communist affidavit.

It further requires the government be furnished a detailed financial audit of union income and expenditures with peculiar emphasis upon its elections, membership qualifications, meetings, assessments, fines, policy committees, contract ratification, strikes authorization, insurance plans, its dues, receipts and disbursements, and other procedures incident to administration of a union—the same to be approved by a labor hating, labor baiting General Counsel of the National Relations Board who is an appointee of the party in political power.

But, most of all, the Taft-Hartley Law was conceived in malice and intended to undermine labor unions, create division within their ranks, sap their strength, curtail their expansion and expression, and ultimately provide their demise. The law as it is written is a lawyer's paradise; a confusion, a repetition, a complication impracticable for amendments.

Congressman Hartley boasted: "You are going to find that there is more in this bill than meets the eye."

The law is on the books a shackle upon labor, a travesty upon justice, a barrier to the destinies of organized labor.

This, briefly, is a history of Labor's fight in an arena little publicized.

JAMES WATER WELLS
Langley,
Phone Martin

To The Parents and Voters of Educational Division No. 5

I am the son of Rev. and Mrs. James Duff, of Garrett, Ky. I am married and have two daughters, ages two and a half years and seven months.

I am a Korean war veteran with four years in the Air Force.

As I have announced my candidacy for School Board Member of Educational Division No. 5, I would like to explain my reason for doing so.

I have no interest or intent other than the improvement of our schools.

If, elected, my obligation is, first of all, to the children, then the parents and teachers.

No teacher who is qualified and is doing a good job has anything to fear by my election. I hope that restoration of job security and the dignity associated with the teaching profession will make the positions in our county more satisfactory to our teachers and that we will not lose them to other counties and states.

As every other parent does, I want my children to have the best education possible and I want them to get it in Floyd County.

Since no member of the Board of Education can gain experience beforehand, I promise to gain as much knowledge as possible concerning school matters and use this knowledge with fairness and justice to all concerned.

I am in this race to the finish. It is up to the good people to decide whether there should be a change or not. Your support and vote would be greatly appreciated.

This is my platform and pledge.

MARTIN

CLUB MEETS

The Allen-Martin Woman's Club held its first business meeting of the year, Tuesday evening, September 4, at the home of Mrs. T. J. Allen at Martin. The date was changed from the usual Monday evening because of the Labor Day holiday.

The president, Mrs. John J. Sherman, gave a report on the Saturday luncheon held at the Lantern at Pikeville, to elect a new governor for the Seventh District. The club was represented by Mrs. George Laven, Mrs. Belford Reitz, Mrs. J. D. Adams, and Mrs. Sherman. Mrs. Arthur Danbury, Pikeville, was elected governor for one year.

Printed material from the State Federation for all departments was distributed to the departmental chairmen. All members were asked to memorize the Club Collect.

The Club again decided to sell greeting cards and fruit cakes for the holiday season and to start a project of selling fresh doughnuts one day each week throughout the year.

A dessert course was served by Mrs. Allen to the Club members and one guest, Mrs. Emmitt Tackett.

CONSERVATION AID EXTENDED

55,916 Acres Converted
 To Grass, Trees; Reserve
 Goal is 585,000 Acres

Farmers in Kentucky's 121 soil conservation districts last year converted more than 55,916 acres of cropland to grass and trees, according to a summary of conservation accomplishments released today by H. K. Gayle, state conservationist for the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

Mr. Gayle stated that this shift, which has taken place as part of the regular soil and water conservation program, totaled more than 113,841 acres in 1954 and 1955 combined.

The conservation reserve goal in Kentucky for 1957 is 585,000 acres, out of a national 1957 goal of 20 million acres of cropland to be converted to grass and trees. SCS data indicate that in the interest of good land use at least 1,869,000 acres of land now in crops need to be placed in permanent grass cover and 233,000 acres of present cropland should go in trees. Nationally, 47 million acres of land now in crops need to be in permanent grass cover and seven million acres of present cropland should go into trees.

In making land-use shifts called for by conservation plans farmers in soil conservation districts in fiscal year 1956 planted trees on 6,761 acres. Tree planting in districts, in cooperation with SCS and the State Forestry Department has now reached a total of 21,723 acres, of which about 15,594 acres were planted during the past three years.

Farmers in districts carried out 1,095,000 acres of pasture planting in the last three years, the summary indicated.

Pointing to another major accomplishment revealed by the recently compiled figures, Gayle said that 1956 was a high year in the construction of farm ponds. Last year 7,218 such ponds were built, bringing the total to date to more than 48,267 constructed with SCS help in districts.

Some 715,000 farm ponds have been built in districts throughout the nation, serving the multiple purposes of water conservation, better livestock management, and improvement of wildlife and waterfowl habitat. Since they average from 1 to 2 acres each, these ponds have added a total surface water area of more than 1,000,000 acres, Gayle said.

Other items noted as conservation progress in the past year included 162 miles of terracing. Contour farming was applied on nearly 152,000 acres last year. Plantings and other practices recommended by SCS and State Game and Fish Department were established to improve wildlife food and cover on more than 950 acres last year, bringing the total of such work in districts to 19,547 acres.

These and many other interrelated practices are carried out, Gayle explained, as part of SCS assistance to individual farmers through soil conservation districts. As of July 1, 1956, there were 85,495 district cooperators in Kentucky who operate 10,341,000 acres of farm land in 121 soil conservation districts. There are now 2700 soil conservation districts in the nation, including 91 percent of all farms and 86 percent of all farm lands.

Soil surveys, upon which conservation plans are based have now been completed on 12,542,000 acres. This work, done by SCS in cooperation with the State Experiment Station, is being stepped up this year to meet the growing needs for basic soil data in the various soil and water programs, Gayle reported.

Seed Bare Land To Cut Erosion

Seed to small grains this fall any land without grass sod or perennial legume, says Harold Miller, UK Extension Service soils specialist.

This will prevent soil erosion and loss of plant nutrients by leaching during winter months. Fertilization of the plantings is needed to get sufficient growth before winter.

Miller recommends a fall application of 15 to 30 pounds of nitrogen per acre on small grains following corn. Corn is a heavy nitrogen feeder. Nitrogen can be supplied by a straight nitrogen fertilizer, or a mixed one containing nitrogen. If the latter is used, be sure there is plenty of available phosphorus and potassium in the soil. Use Kentucky certified seed if possible he says.

Spring top-dressings of nitrogen produce somewhat higher grain yields, research shows. But fall applications of nitrogen produce better vegetative cover for erosion control, and provide more late fall and early spring pasture.

Nitrogen fertilizer should not be applied on small grains planted on soils high in available nitrogen, Miller says. Some tobacco fields may fall in this category. Excessive nitrogen causes small grains to lodge and increases the difficulty of establishing stands of grasses and legumes seeded in the small grains.

Social Security Office
 Serving 6-County Area
 Will Open in Pikeville

A Social Security district office will be opened in Pikeville, October 15, according to Edmund Baxter, regional director, Region II, U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Charlottesville, Virginia. The office will be located at the corner of 2nd and Division Streets.

The new district office will serve the residents of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties in Kentucky and Buchanan county in Virginia.

Mr. Baxter stated that the primary function of the District Office in Pikeville will be to administer the provisions of the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance program which now protects nine out of every ten workers and their families in the United States. This includes accepting claims for retirement, survivors and disability insurance benefits, and applications for the disability freeze. In addition, it will issue social security account numbers and will assist in maintaining the accuracy of wage records established for individuals in this area. Of greater importance to the general public, the staff of eight employees will provide assistance on all matters pertaining to social security and particularly the recent changes in the Social Security law.

Education Board

Frankfort, Oct. 2 (Spl.) —The State Board of Education has endorsed the proposed 100 million dollar highway bond issue.

Citizens interested in public education were urged by the resolution to support the bond issue vigorously.

Newspapers Are Tops For Grocer
Ads, Trade Told

In the August 18 issue of the Publishers' Auxiliary the following information was released:
Newspaper advertising has been proven as the most important medium for influencing grocery customers.
This is the result of a survey taken in a typical American city, Ypsilanti, Mich., by a team of students from the School of Business Administration of the University of Michigan.
Their findings were hailed by an executive of the Ypsilanti Daily Press, F. G. Handy. He said, "Here is one of the finest testimonials the Ypsilanti Daily Press and newspapers in general could ask."
The survey found that 80 per cent of all large grocery purchases in Ypsilanti went to the chain stores.
The students found that low price, good food and availability of items desired were the three most important factors determining which store would get the large purchase of groceries by the family.
The students checked the shoppers and found that one third said their shopping habits were influenced by advertising, actually going to a particular store because of an advertisement.
Among those influenced by advertising 66 percent said that they were influenced by newspapers compared to 17 percent each for handbills and store signs and none by radio and television.
The influence of advertising showed a direct relationship with income, with 24 per cent in the under $2,000 income group shopping at a particular store because of advertisements compared to 48 per cent among those with incomes of more than $3,500.
For newspaper advertising departments which have been studying the growth of trading stamps the survey had pleasant news. The Michigan students found that trading stamps ranked near the bottom of the list of reasons for patronizing a store. They were cited as a factor by only five percent of those where large purchases were involved and by none where small purchases were concerned.

The special week is being observed nationally. Oct. 6 has been designated "Newspaper Boy Day."
