Beauty may be only skin-deep but we suspect that the beauty of most Prestonsburg streets and sidewalks is deeper than the concrete we see.

The sorriest of all indoor activities: Playing church.

ALL MIXED UP

A. H. Joppe, he of the Kentucky Power Company, naturally liked that bit of verse relating to high gas charges. Reminded me, however, that I mixed a metaphor when I said the writer of the verse "blew a fuse" when he got his bill.

Friend of mine, elated by the sunshine earlier in the week and over-optimistic about the chances for a bit of fishing, suggested that a few lines on the gentle art of angling might not be amiss here this week.

Now I am being reminded that the walleyes may be about to start running at Lake Cumberland. And I, growing old, Maggie, am singularly unmoved. I say, let them run till they're out of breath; the weather has to improve before I'll have any of that.

What I am most likely to do is, wait till the papers tell about the big walleye others are landing, then, wild-eyed and snorting, pull out for the lake—only to arrive there a day, maybe two, after they quit striking.

The Chinese have a saying that the days man spends fishing are not counted against the number allotted him. I don't know about the truth of that theory, but there have been occasions when I drew such a complete blank that I felt if the days were charged up to anybody the debit shouldn't be against me.

AID TO NEEDY IS DISCUSSED

By Radio Panel, Sunday; Assistance Organization Purchases Delivery Truck

Over 200 needy Floyd county families have been aided by the Citizens Improvement Association in the last three weeks, it was said on a panel of leaders in the relief organization that discussed the program on radio station WDOC, Sunday afternoon.

The radio program, on the air from 2 to 3:30 p.m., had the purpose of acquainting the public with the aid program and to solicit continued support.

Reports were received from several committeemen at the panel meet. A report was made by the screening committee, headed by Mrs. Crit Wells, of Wayland. Finances were explained by Frank Harmon, treasurer, and Mrs. Myrtle Davis, a director of the organization, told of the procurement of shoes for needy schoolchildren in which she said Mrs. John G. Archer had been active. Walter Frasure, social worker with the Floyd county school system, talked on the school attendance problem and said that the group's efforts had resulted in approximately 50 children being returned to school.

Others on the radio panel were Rev. Harold Dorsey, pastor of the First Methodist church, Crit Wells, of Wayland, H. M. Wilkinson, of Wheelwright, Rex Osborne, manager of the radio station who discussed the purposes of the organization.

JUDGE COMBS RAPS REPORT OF CANDIDACY

Says Newspaper Report He Might Run On Ticket With Leary Preposterous

Former Appellate Judge Bert T. Combs terms the suggestion preposterous that he might be a candidate for Attorney-General on a ticket headed by Joe Leary, of Frankfort, for Governor. The Prestonsburg attorney, who was defeated by Gov. A. B. Chandler in 1955 for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, made the statement in Lexington Monday where he was attending to legal matters.

The Combs statement came as an aftermath to an article by Allan M. Trout, of the Courier-Journal's Frankfort Bureau, in Sunday edition of the Louisville paper.

The article included the reprint of a suggested 1959 state ticket published February 13 in The Rowan County News at Morehead. This ticket was headed by Leary, co-manager of Chandler's two campaigns in 1955, and included Combs for attorney general.

Combs has been speculated upon frequently as a candidate for governor again next year. He said Monday he will announce whether he will, will not, be a candidate by the end of the Legislature, March 21 at the latest.

Combs issued the following statement:

"In regard to Allan Trout's article in Sunday's Courier-Journal, I first read about the so-called Leary ticket in an unsigned column of W. E. 'Snooks' Crutcher's Rowan County News. 'Everybody knows that Snooks Crutcher is a paid propagandist for the Chandler machine, so I was not surprised to read this propaganda in his newspaper. I was surprised that Allan Trout would dignify it by republishing it.

"I can't speak for anybody but myself. But so far as I am concerned, there will be no deals. I am convinced that the people of Kentucky would like to have more truth and honesty in government, and fewer deals.

"Our candidate for governor must meet three specifications: "1. He must be able to win. "2. He must not compromise with Chandlerism and/or Learyism, or with the philosophy of

DOCTOR CHOICE BILLS STIR LEADERS OF UMW

Companion bills authored by Dr. J. E. Johnson, of Pike county, in the Senate, and by Representative Sam Hale, of Floyd county, and others in the House stirred United Mine Workers leaders to action this week.

The proposed legislation would prohibit any medical service from denying the beneficiary the right to select his own physician or dentist.

The bill, declared Sam Caddy, of Lexington, president of District 30, United Mine Workers, would destroy the Mine Workers' health-and-hospital program in Kentucky. "It definitely would put all our hospitals out of business with locks on their doors," he declared.

U.M.W. hospitals in the state, including the hospital at McDowell in this county, are staffed by doctors hired by the union.

Private physicians and hospitals over the area have been arguing on the quiet side that beneficiaries of the UMW program be given "freedom of choice" in their selection of a doctor to treat them or members of their families.

Although Mr. Caddy assailed the bill proposed by Dr. Johnson, he did not mention the bill introduced by Representative Hale who is a card-carrying member of the United Mine Workers.

Caddy, speaking against the proposed legislation as senators and representatives returned for a night session, said his organization was prepared for a strong fight against the bill if necessary.

He said: "We are hopeful, of course, that there are enough people with common sense to prevent any consideration of the bill.

Arraigned in police court, Adkins waived his case to the April grand jury. Chief of Police Epp Lafferty said this was the second time police have raided the service station.

Man, Wife Burned While Removing Television Line

Mr. and Mrs. John Meadows, residents of the Katy Friend section near West Prestonsburg, were severely burned Friday at 4 p.m., while removing a television line from the proximity of a high-voltage distribution line. Both were brought to the Prestonsburg General hospital and are responding to treatment, it was said Wednesday.

Organization To Seek Reduction in Gas Rates; Monday Meet Scheduled

Organization of the Allen-Dwale Citizens' Improvement Association has been effected with the immediate aim of either procuring a reduction of gas rates in the two towns or turning to a new source of fuel supply.

Secondary aims of the Association are sanitation and beautification projects in the two communities.

But a lowering of the objective which spurred about 65 citizens to meet in a protest gathering last Monday night, to elect officers and plan a course of action. This action would include a thorough investigation of the Floyd County Gas System which serves the two towns and a move for reduced rates; and, failing to get such a reduction, explore the possibility of a new natural gas system or the use of bottled gas and other sources of heat.

Walter Frasure, of Allen, was elected president of the Association. Ralph Elkins, of Dwale, was named vice-president, and Chester Patton, of Allen, secretary-treasurer. An investigating committee of seven also was named.

The Allen-Dwale group is inviting to its next meeting, Monday night at 7 at Allen, gas consumers from Wayland, Garrett and Bosco which are served by the county system.

It was estimated at last Monday night's meeting that 185 residences and 20 business firms use gas supplied by the county system serving Allen and Dwale.

Keen resentment against high gas bills was expressed at the organization.

Hours Required To Reach Body Of Teaberry Miner Beneath 40-Foot Slab

A rockfall described as "big as a house" snuffed out the life of Snowden Keathley, 53-year-old Teaberry miner, early Tuesday in the Lily May Coal Company mine operated at Tinker Fork by Irvin Hamilton.

A slab of sandstone reported as 40 feet long and 15 feet thick dropped onto the worker without warning. Workmen were forced to cut the bottom of the mine to reach the body which was not recovered till about four hours after the fall.

The victim was a son of the late Dave and Rose Keathley. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Dora Kiser Keathley, six sons, Kenneth, Emory, David, Richard, Howard and Roger Keathley, all of Teaberry; three daughters, Mrs. Viola White, Jackson, O., Misses Wilmalene and Gloria Jean Keathley, both of Teaberry; four brothers and one sister, Joe Keathley, of Virginia, Tom Keathley, of Betsy Layne, Ted and Carl Keathley and Mrs. Margaret McKinley, all of Harold. Two half-brothers, Bert and Wallace Keathley, both of Harold, also survive.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete, it was said at the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Ohio Company Lowest Of 6 On Job Here

U. S. Corps of Engineers Expect Contract Award Made in Next 10 Days

Work on the Prestonsburg flood control project on which bids were opened last Thursday will probably begin within a month, The Times was told Tuesday by the U. S. Corps of Engineers' district office in Huntington, W. Va.

S. T. Kenyon & Co., Inc., Portsmouth, O., was lowest of six bidders on the undertaking here. Its bid of $285,078.15 was $13,294.85 below the Army Corps of Engineers' estimate for the work without profit.

"It appears that there is no problem in making the contract award," a spokesman for the Corps of Engineers said. The contract is expected to be awarded in a week or 10 days, he added.

The project, designed to protect all that part of Prestonsburg south of the Second street fill (Trimbler Branch), includes 265 feet of earth levee, pumping station with full equipment, 213 feet of metal culvert, 1,115 feet of sanitary sewers, culverts and other construction. It would afford protection against flood except in huge rises similar to the 1957 disaster.

Work on the project is to be completed within 350 days from date of issuance of the work order.

Prestonsburg's cash contribution of $22,000 to get federal aid on the flood control job was raised last October in a spirited drive headed here by Dr. George P. Archer and joined in by various civic groups. Pledges from individuals and firms exceeded $21,000, and the city of Prestonsburg provided the remainder and all necessary property easements.

Resolution Asks Renaming Dewey Jenny Wiley Park

A resolution to change the name of Dewey State Park to Jennie Wiley State Park was offered Monday night by Representative Ann B. Hall and Sam Hale, of this county, and Jack Sowards, of Pikeville.

The resolution said the present name of the lake was taken "from the name of an insignificant post office no longer in existence."

The resolution said the park area was the site where Jennie Wiley, "one of Kentucky's greatest heroines," made her escape from a band of Shawnee and Cherokee Indians after nearly a year of captivity.

The pioneer heroine was captured by marauding Indians in Virginia and was forced to witness the killing of her young brother and three of her children before she was taken into captivity in Kentucky.

The woman eventually was reunited with her husband and later made her home near the park site. She is buried in John son county, near the park.

min or so to look at the water. At the mouth of Clear Creek the oil was in Clear Creek but not in the main stream above its junction with Clear Creek. And so the source of the oil was found.

At the mine Stumbo was told a workman had failed to close a faucet after drawing a bucket of oil from a tank to build an early-morning fire during the cold spell. The tank had emptied itself before the mistake was discovered. The company uses the oil mainly for coal-spraying purposes, he said.

Minnows which have died from lack of oxygen in Left Beaver Creek because of the oil film have been discovered in large numbers, and it is feared that the entire fish population of the stream has been destroyed.

BATTLE OF IVY MOUNTAIN

Last summer when Charles F. The article, representing many hours of work, appeared in the January issue of The Register, official publication of the Kentucky Historical Society. It contains much original research and the author trusts that it will contribute a bit to the preservation of our history.

REMY-RAMEY FAMILY

Rev. Robert Regan is doing a bit of research on the Ramey family for a relative. William Remy, as it was originally spelled, seems to have been the progenitor of the main stem of the Big Sandy family. His wife's name was Eleanor, her maiden name unknown. William Ramey, reared seven children, one being Dorcas Ramey, who married a Jayne.

William Ramey's will was probated in 1816 and since he had seven sons and daughter at death it is assumed that he must have been married many years. If so he was married previous to the formation of Floyd county in 1800.

The Remy, or Ramey family came early to the Big Sandy valley and some of the earliest settled in the present Johnson county. However, other Rameys immigrated to Big Sandy in later years and one settled in the rugged section near the present Elkhorn City to become one of Pike county's biggest landowners.

GRAND JURIES MAY INQUIRE

Around three-quarters of a century ago circuit court clerks would have printed a list of crimes for the use of grand juries. A copy recently handed this column bears witness to the passing of customs and the changed conditions that exist.

An important felony was "Robbing or Larceny of instruments of writing." Following that was "Burning a rick, stack or shock of hay, fodder, flax hemp, straw, grain, timber boards, timber cord wood, etc." One grand larceny offense was "Feloniously taking $20 worth of another's timber." That may yet be the law. Other grand larceny offenses, so the old handbill said, were throwing of missiles into a moving train or cutting a corner tree. Maybe "rocking" a train was a custom of yesterday.

One listed offense the grand jury could look into was "Secretly disinterring dead human body from grave or vault." Grand juries should look into matters like that, of course, and if there is such a surviving custom it should be stopped at once. The dead should rest in peace, this columnist thinks. Another offense the inquisitorial body was asked to look into was the throwing of carcasses into springs. It did not specify the kind of carcass so maybe just any old carcass would be a violation.

For the edification of future grand juries herein are set out certain offenses that should be investigated closely:

Permitting glandered stock to run at large; riots and routs; asking sheriff or other officer to place party on jury; using any liquid, berries or powders to catch fish; putting down or opening fence of another; shooting in cities or towns; bribery in election (if it occurs); hunting game on Sunday with gun or dogs; and throwing a car off the track. (It didn't state what kind of car or what kind of track).

All, of which, are named in "List of the Criminal and Penal Offenses of which the Grand Jury have Jurisdiction."

OLD PICTURES WANTED

Do you have any old pictures you would like to see printed in The Times? We would like to have pictures of old schoolhouses, classes, ministers, doctors, reunions, town scenes, boats, pictures of logging and railroading or any other scenes depicting some phase of Eastern Kentucky history.

The pictures will not be injured or lost and will be returned within a few days.

FARM NOTES

By ROBERT M. JONES
County Agent

STRAWBERRY SETTING

The time to set strawberry plants is almost here. Anyone wishing to place orders for plants must do so by March 8. March 17 has tentatively been set for delivery. Weather permitting, plants should be set by April 1.

Land where strawberries are to be set should be plowed as soon as it is dry enough. After plowing, disk the soil, then apply fertilizer and chlordane, and disk it again. This should leave the soil in good shape to receive the plants. It is best if the soil can settle one or two weeks before setting.

On most soils in the county, 1,000 pounds of a complete fertilizer such as 5-10-10 or 6-12-12, is needed per acre. This will be sufficient plant food to produce healthy, fast growing plants that will produce many runners. Chlordane is used to destroy soil insects such as wire worms and grubs. Use 20 pounds of the material per acre. This can be mixed with part of the fertilizer to make spreading easier.

FERTILIZE BERRIES NOW

Strawberry patches that will bear this spring should be fertilized now. Use either 0-20-20 or 0-30-30 at the rate of 800 to 1,000 pounds per acre. Broadcast the fertilizer evenly over the entire patch. Choose a time when the plants are dry, so that the fertilizer will not stick to the plants. The fertilizer should be brushed off the plants.

The application of fertilizer is most important. It will cause the berries to be large and increase yields. When berries become small at the last of the picking season it is a good indication that they have run out of plant food.

If your lawn was not as beautiful last year as you would have liked, it may be that you did not have enough plant food in the soil. An application of fertilizer should be applied now. Use 15 pounds of a complete fertilizer such as 5-10-10 or 4-12-8 per 1000 square feet. This will give the grass a good early growth before crab grass and other weeds start to grow.

Traffic law violations were charged against four arrested by Floyd deputy sheriffs and state police. Homer Clyne was jailed Friday by Deputy Sheriffs Lonnie Herald, Bill Hall and Herschel Lester on a drunk driving count, and Estill Newsom was booked two days later by Deputies George Hall, Jr., and Herschel Lester on the same count. Failure To Convict Violators Of Game Laws Raises Question, Is Famed Goose Hunt To Blame?

ing the classification of the city of Martin from fourth to fifth class.

Mrs. Hall, the only woman member of the House, participated in an exchange of views on the floor of the House after Governor Chandler's hard-fought "force account" bill won after the Governor had attended a Republican caucus.

She recalled that she had spent a great deal of time before coming to Frankfort in studying the rules of the Legislature.

"Yesterday I saw every rule in this little book broken. I never observed such activity in all the days of my life," she said.

She urged members to do some positive thinking and to vote on issues rather than personalities.

"If we ever run for office again, we will find the detour much rougher than the road," she said.

Mrs. Hall allowed it was all well and good to have a minister give the invocation at the beginning of House sessions every day.

"We also need a minister after the session because in the sight of God, we need it," she said.

Speaker Weintraub challenged Mrs. Hall's statement that the rules had been broken. "What rules?" he wanted to know.

"The list would be too long to mention all of them, but Mr. Speaker, Rule 60 was massacred—also Rule 61," she said.

(Rule 61 permits only members and bona fide news correspondents on the floor of the House. Rule 62 forbids lobbying in the House chamber or in the corridors around it.)

Weintraub was then ready to retreat.

"I've been around here since 1940," he told the House, "and if I have learned anything it is never to argue with a woman or with the press."

Failure of Floyd quarterly court juries to vote convictions on game law violations as consistently as in the past gave rise to the belief expressed here this week that the goose-hunting episode in which Governor Chandler and Conservation Commissioner Earl Wallace were recently involved may have seriously damaged the cause of fish and game enforcement.

Until this year Floyd county had one of the best conviction records in Kentucky—more than 90 per cent of those accused paid fines or went to jail.

Since Jan. 1 only three men have been convicted, and two of these were convicted in absentia and won acquittals this week after they had been granted new trials. Meanwhile, only one has received a fine that apparently will stick.

Willis Stone, of Dwale, was fined $31.50 last Thursday on a charge of hunting out of season. But Ed Moore and Kendall Moore, charged, respectively, with hunting out of season, who were fined in absentia at the January court term, were given new trials and went free Monday at the conclusion of their trials.

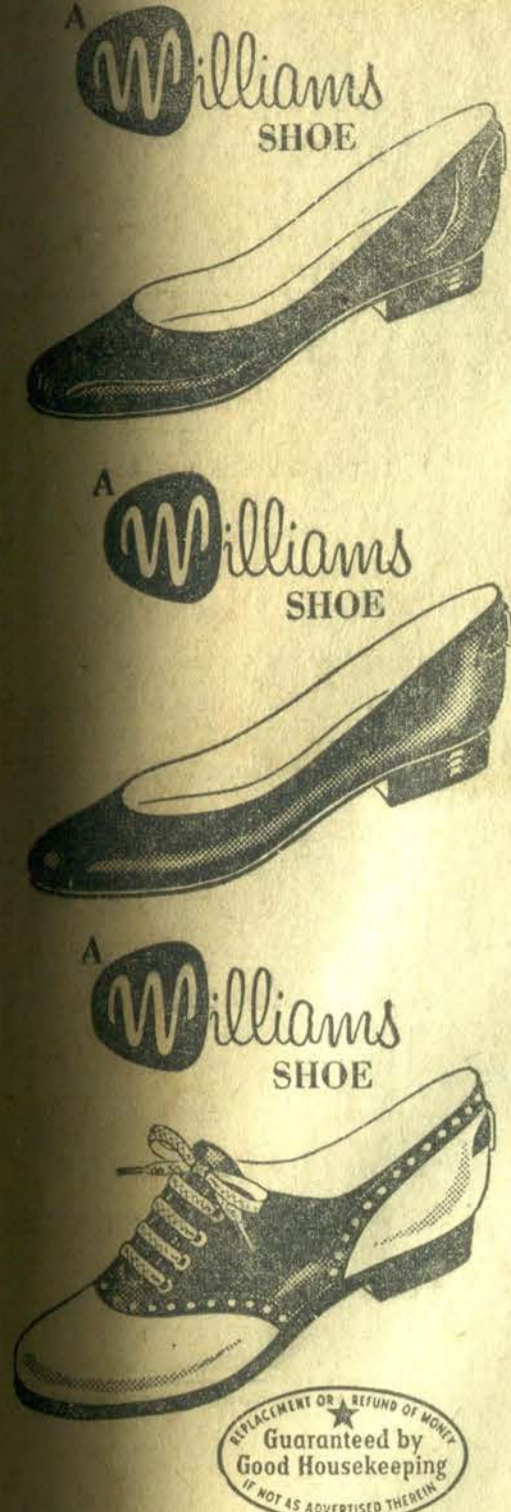

Other quarterly court action Monday included these cases: Luther Keens, accused of drunk driving, fined $150 when he failed to appear; Dennis Brown, fined $100 and cost and his driver's permit revoked for six months after he pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving; Van Ray Stone, drunk driving charge reduced to reckless driving on motion of County Attorney R. S. Wellman, fined $50 and costs; Vernon Akers, drunk driving, plea of guilty, $100 and costs; Willie Mitchell, drunk and possessing whiskey, paid drunk fine; Raymond Joseph, possessing whiskey, beer and gin, plea of guilty, $20 and 30 days in jail, required to execute $500 peace bond for period of 12 months; Jack Mollett, concealed deadly weapon, waived to grand jury, $1,000 bond; Edward Frasure, drunk and breach of peace, pleaded guilty as to drunkenness, $10 fine and $17.50 costs; Leonard Blanton, breaking and entering, waived to grand jury, $1,000 bond; Irvin Stone, gaming, plea of guilty, $20 fine and $17.50 costs.

Cases dismissed included these: Lois Wilson, grand larceny; Bob Blanton, stealing and disposing of public property; Gene Allen, speeding and failing to stop at signal; Claude Hunter, reckless use of deadly weapon; Johnnie Martin, no operator's license; Ralph Ramey, stealing and felony (separate charges); Fred Castle, bootlegging; Green B. Hall, felony; Anthony Novich, felony; Freddie Newsome, failure to give signal.

Carl Cecil was fined $20 and given a 30-day jail term on his conviction last Thursday of having liquor in his possession for the purpose of sale. Trial of William Jack Ratliff on the same charge resulted in a "hung" jury as jurors could not agree on stiffness of the penalty.

3. Donations of food and clothing were being received from many communities and individuals. Nine boxes of clothing and three of food were contributed by joint efforts of the Betsy Layne churches and delivered at headquarters by Jesse Elliott. Another truck load was brought in by H. M. Wilkinson, of Wheelwright, having been contributed by civic groups there. A considerable amount of donated food and clothing was made by the Lackey-Carrett-Wayland and Woman's Club. Many other communities and groups are getting donations ready.

4. A meeting of the board of directors of the Association and other interested persons will be held with the Woman's Club at Wheelwright Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. The public is invited, it was said.

Lunchroom Supervisor Says Responsibility Lies With Principal

"Studies show that teenagers are the poorest fed of all age groups in America," Mrs. George Arnett, area supervisor of lunchrooms for the State Department of Education, last Thursday evening told the Prestonsburg high school Parent-Teacher Association. "A good school lunch program rests on the support of a group like this," she added.

However the full responsibility for supervision and administration of the lunchroom rests with the principal, she noted.

To improve an existing lunchroom, she offered several suggestions:

1. Help the public to understand the importance of the school lunch. "The lunchroom is not a filling station," but a place where proper food helps the child's attitudes.

2. Get the child to want a balanced diet.

3. Offer variety in the meals. "I can give you plans for 30 meals without repeating the same meal."

4. A good school lunch program needs volume. To improve meal-planning, she suggested the principal meet with cafeteria workers, teachers and parents.

As a former home economics teacher, Mrs. Arnett commented briefly on the Home Economics program at Prestonsburg high school. She pointed out that 78 girls enrolled out of a permissible 80 would be considered a very desirable number for an active Home Economics program.

P.-T.A. committee reports were heard during the business session by 50 members. Claude Allen, chairman for Building and Grounds, suggested that supplies be invited to submit bids on the stage curtains which will be bought with money left over from the bond issue for the gym.

His committee recommended that better janitor service be procured, and that the janitor be a man who could make needed repairs. Repairs are now made by the assistant principal.

City councilman Virgil Warrick commended the school authorities on getting the school plant in repair in such a short time. The principal, teachers and pupils did the waxing and cleaning that preceded the visit of the evaluating committee of the Southern Association of Secondary Schools.

HARMONICA BELIEVED INVENTED IN 1831

Berlin — Some researchers credit Christian F. L. Buschmann with inventing the first modern harmonica and give the date as 1831. He is also said to have invented the handaoline, forerunner of the accordion. Some say Frederick Hotz of Knittlingen made the first harmonica.

For 100 kilowatt hours, enough for lighting, refrigeration and small appliances, local people pay $3.82 a month, compared with an average of $3.89 in the rest of the country.

For 250 kilowatt hours, which is about what most householders consume, the bill locally comes to $7.15 a month. Nationally it was $7.23.

The charges in other cities for this quantity vary widely. They range from a low of $3.15, in Eugene, Ore., to a high of $11.75, in Etna, Pa., states the FPC.

For 500 kilowatt hours a month, local bills amount to $9.22 as against $10.39, on the average, throughout the country.

There is a direct connection, say economists, between consumption of electricity and living standards. As one goes up, so does the other.

The consumption in the region that includes Prestonsburg increased from 1,485 kilowatt hours a year in 1950 to 1,675 kilowatt hours per household in the past year, or 13 per cent.

With the expanding use of electricity and the lack of an unlimited supply of the fuels that are now being used to generate it, the long-range reliance is being placed on nuclear energy as the fuel of the future. Scientists feel that the people of this country may yet, within this generation, be served with electricity generated by nuclear power plants.

BY-PRODUCTS ARE SOUGHT

From Coal By Industry; Coal Tars, Gases Sought As Modern Necessities

The coal industry and its chemical customers are searching for new and cheaper ways to obtain the by-product coal tars and gases that provide many of modern life's necessities.

American coal chemicals got a commercial foothold during World War I when imports from Europe were shut off. Today the chemical industry is one of coal's biggest customers.

Most of the coal chemicals used in the U. S. now come from the by-product ovens that convert coal into coke for use in steel-making blast furnaces. The chemicals are taken off in gas and liquid form.

Consumers get the coal chemicals in myriad forms ranging from nylon hose to plastics and from pharmaceuticals to agriculture fertilizer.

Both the coal and chemical industries are seeking profitable ways to obtain these chemicals in a direct process instead of taking what the coking process discards.

Scientific research has established at least seven sure methods for direct conversion that produce more tars and gases from a ton of coal than the coking process but not one has proven commercially economical.

Dr. R. A. Glenn, Bituminous Coal Research, Inc., chemist, says several of the methods have advanced to the pilot-plant stage in the United States.

The coke-oven process is known as the high temperature carbonization method because of the high temperatures involved.

One of the more advanced direct reduction processes is called the low temperature carbonization method. Scientists say there is a vast increase in the amount of coal tar and gas obtained but cost is a drawback.

In the low temperature method the chemicals require further refining and that increases the cost beyond the competitive prices of today.

There are other processes for obtaining ammonia, fuel gas, and synthetics from which gasoline can be produced. In most cases though they cannot be made competitive with existing sources.

In South Africa, however, a commercial firm is producing the synthetic petroleum at the reported rate of 55,000,000 gallons a year. The price is reported 1 per cent under the import price.

Dr. Glenn says the South African firm reports it can obtain $12 worth of chemical products from a ton of coal that costs 60 cents. The firm uses a direct conversion method.

The high temperature or coke-oven process extracts about one third of the chemical potential in a ton of coal, the coal producers and scientists report.

The most recent industry figures available show that the value of products from high temperature carbonization was more than $1,000,000 in 1954 when 84,640,000 tons of coal went into coke ovens.

Dr. Glenn said the scientists' big job now is to bring the cost of the direct conversion methods down. If this is done, he said, coal will be an unending source of chemicals that will be limited only by demand.

NATIONAL 4-H ORGANIZATION CELEBRATES WEEK, MARCH 1-8

Kentucky and the nation doff the hat the week of March 1-8, 1958 to that outstanding collection of youngsters—the 4-H Club organization.

That week the nation's adult citizens will salute these youngsters. There are 2,200,000 such youngsters in the nation and some 73,103 in Kentucky.

They'll be recognized during the celebratory week for their work in agricultural projects principally; but these are projects which are aimed at developing "head, heart, hands and health," with emphasis on future leadership.

Civic clubs, religious organizations, business and school groups will devote part of their weekly activities toward recognition of the accomplishments of the clubs. This year the youngsters themselves will salute the parents and adults who act as volunteer leaders for the thousands of clubs scattered throughout rural and urban areas of the world. There are some 358,000 such leaders.

In Kentucky, the crops—field or animal—that the youngsters raise each year sell for thousands of dollars and the total acreage used by the kids in their projects is a large part of the states total arable acreage.

The celebration week will be called "Salute to Parents", with emphasis on the farming, home-making and community service volunteer leaders and their youthful club members render.

STATE HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS WELL PREPARED FOR COLLEGE

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 19 — Present-day Kentucky high-school students are better prepared for a college education than most critics of high-school programs realize.

And, according to a University of Kentucky survey, their preparation has not neglected in such basic fields as science, mathematics, English, and social studies.

The survey, compiled by U. of K. vice-president Leo M. Chamberlain, was based on the records of every fifth freshman enrolling at U. of K. last September.

Dr. Chamberlain said he was prompted to make the survey "because so many loose charges have been made that Kentucky high-school students have little or no preparation in mathematics, science and other so-called 'solid' subjects."

He quoted one "supposedly responsible person" as declaring that not more than 20 per cent of Kentucky high-school students ever studied mathematics. The U. of K. vice-president labeled the statement "absurd."

Findings in his survey, released Wednesday, showed:

Practically 100 per cent of the students entering in the fall of 1957 had four years of English and 95 per cent had two or more units in social studies, including American history.

Fifty-three per cent had two or more units of science beyond general science and 52 per cent had three or more units of mathematics.

Forty-three per cent had two or more units of languages. However, 35 per cent had no credit at all in this field.

The analysis shows that students entering the University of Kentucky have had general programs of study that "are far more 'respectable' than the public ordinarily assumes," Dr. Chamberlain said.

"Things are not as bad as frequently has been charged if more than half the entering students take these subjects."

The analysis was based on the records of 273 students, including 173 men and 100 women. Of the total, 232 are residents of Kentucky and 41 are from other states.

Patterns for resident and non-resident students do not vary greatly, though there is some tendency for the nonresident students to present "solid" subjects more frequently, Dr. Chamberlain added.

This difference is especially noticeable in Latin. Kentucky students, on the other hand, present typewriting more frequently than do nonresident students.

The typical program for a high-school student, as indicated by the survey, would be:

Four units in English; two or three units in mathematics; two units of science, exclusive of general science; two units in social studies, including American history and either world history or government; typewriting, and health or physical education, either with or without credit.

The remaining units may be in the languages or in a wide selection of other subjects, with the total units in "solid" courses rounding out to around 11 or 12.

A more detailed breakdown, with the course listed first followed by the percentage of students showing it on their records, show:

Science—Biology, 77 per cent; chemistry, 56 per cent; physics, 33 per cent, and general science, 57 per cent.

MILK IS CONCENTRATED AT LOW TEMPERATURES

Milwaukee — Fresh milk is concentrated by removing two thirds of its water at low temperatures under vacuum, pasteurizing at 150 to 155 degrees for 30 minutes, then homogenizing. Although perishable, concentrated milk will retain its flavor and sweetness about two weeks in a properly cooled household refrigerator. The keeping period of fresh concentrated milk is lengthened if it is quickly frozen and held at 10 to 20 degrees until ready for use.

San Francisco School Challenges Russians In Science Instruction

With its high-pressure education machine, Russia has built a generation of brilliant bookworms who threaten the world; but at least one American school may have the answer to this challenge.

So reports the March Reader's Digest, in two articles which contrast the six-day-a-week teaching of the U.S.S.R. with San Francisco's George Washington High School—whose pupils are stimulated to think for themselves, and regularly win the highest grades in their state.

In "Russia Rings the School Bell", John Gunther reports that every conceivable pressure is brought on Soviet youngsters to make them study harder.

A Russian high school graduate, Gunther says, has mastered in his ten-year course more years of mathematics, chemistry, physics, and biology than most American college graduates do in 16. One result: a 1956 graduating class of 70,000 engineers as opposed to 30,000 in the United States. But vast areas of knowledge are off limits. Free inquiry is discouraged.

By contrast, Frances V. Rummel, of Berkeley, California, points to the San Francisco school. For the past five years, its graduates have scored the highest freshman grades at the University of California; for the past seven, it has won more than half the city's championships. Between 75 and 80 per cent of its graduates go on to college, far more than the national average.

The secret, she says, lies in personal attention—and well-paid, enthusiastic teachers who encourage original thought and train youngsters to concentrate fiercely on whatever they're doing. A top basketball star studies geometry between halves, not dawdling away a minute. Every student has counselors to guide him individually, and encourage him to aim high. At George Washington, Miss Rummel writes, "The queer kid is the one who really doesn't try."

Her article is condensed from National Parent-Teacher. The Gunther article is from his forthcoming book, "Inside Russia Today," to be published by Harper & Brothers.

Bears Vs. Transy Opens KIAC Play

Pikeville, Ky., Feb. 24 (Spl.)—The Pikeville College Bears, in the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, with a 4-8 mark, will face Transylvania in the opening round of the KIAC tournament Thursday (Feb. 27) at Georgetown, Ky.

The Bears dropped to a 17-12 standing, but raised some of their averages, while losing their last two regular-season games to KIAC rivals last week. They fell, 115-100, to Union College Feb. 19, at Barbersville, Ky., and bowed, 99-95, to the Rebels of Villa Madonna College at home Feb. 21.

John Lee Butcher, the highest-scoring small-college player in the nation, lifted his current average still higher with a 38-point barrage in each game. His total of 942 tallies in 29 contests this season gives him an average of 32.5 points per game.

The Bears, already hitting as a club at 93.5, inched their mean upward to 97.7 points per game as they clung to second place in offensive strength in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. A surprise starting lineup against Villa Madonna included three freshmen—George Carroll, Ashland, Ky.; Jay Dingess, Warfield, Ky., and Paul Sester, Auxier, Ky. Pikeville led briefly before the visitors pulled away for good with six minutes gone.

Experience nearly pulled the Bears from behind a 21-point deficit as senior forward Lloyd Mullins and junior forward R. B. Singleton, held on the bench while the score reached 75-54, were sent in with 13 minutes to play. The former Carr Creekers sparked a rally that came within four points of pulling the game out of the fire, and held the visitors scoreless for the last two minutes while the Bears notched 10 points.

Pikeville's junior varsity closed out the school's freshman schedule with a split last week, romping the Lees College Generals 117-88 Friday to avenge the freshmen's 84-76 loss to Lees Dec. 4 at Jackson, Ky. The JV's fell 85-68 to the tricky ball-handling of Marshall College's freshmen the next night.

Most Alcoholics Unaware Their Drinking Abnormal

The word "alcoholic" to the average person creates an image of a skid row bum or chronic offender for drunkenness. While most conspicuous, this type actually comprises only 15 percent of the alcoholic population.

The other 85 percent are employed or employable and are the core of the alcoholic problem. Probably a majority of these have no idea their drinking is abnormal. They would scoff at the idea that they have alcoholic symptoms.

The Yale Center of Alcohol Studies has prepared a colored, animated film, "To Your Health." This vividly presents a true picture of the alcoholic problem. This movie has aroused interest wherever shown and has elicited favorable comment from the press, lay organizations and professional groups.

The Kentucky Commission on Alcoholism has a copy of this 15-minute film available without charge to any group that would like to see it. Address inquiries to 225 Kingsway Drive, Lexington, Ky.

Until 1935 alcoholism was considered hopeless and the alcoholic faced either confinement in a mental institution or early death. Ostracized, many alcoholics resorted to suicide. It is significant that in 1935 two organizations came into existence. The Yale Center approach was academic and scientific. Alcoholics Anonymous was a layman approach, seeking only to help the alcoholic rehabilitate himself. From these separate projects has come a wealth of information.

It is now established that alcoholism is an illness and the alcoholic can be helped. One alcoholic with a history of jail confinement many times is now public relations director for a prominent educational institution. Another came from the gutter to the presidency of a large corporation and another from a mental institution to ownership and management of a profitable business in Kentucky.

These success stories are being duplicated many times and in many places. Public acceptance as an illness is essential. Early detection will come with public education and many will be saved years of suffering.

SIDELINE COACHES

It is highly interesting to hear the comments of various so-called supporters following games in Prestonsburg's new gymnasium, especially when the locals lose. They have forgotten that Prestonsburg has not had a gymnasium in which to practice or play for the past five years; yet, they expect the team to compete on even terms with its opponents.

These self-appointed coaches probably have not seen more than four or five games throughout the season, yet they know all the answers, rules and strategy involved in the game of basketball. They are great at second-guessing the coach, his players and the officials.

From virtually every standpoint, it takes two to three seasons to build a good basketball team with the necessary personnel, gym, etc. Under the circumstances, we feel that Coach Jack Wells has done a highly commendable job this season as his team has posted a 9-9 record. Included in the nine games are wins over Oil Springs and Martin. No other team in the region can boast of this feat, and they all have gymnasiums in which to practice. Five of the nine losses have been under six points and there is only one senior player on the starting five.

No doubt many of the "experts" who make an attempt to practice the coaching profession much more than their own will have all the answers following next week's district tournament.

DEWEY NOT INCLUDED

Sunday's daily papers carried releases from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources stating that this year will be the biggest fishing season in the history of the state. "Prospects have never been better," according to Minor Clark, director of fisheries. "We've had excellent spawns and good growing season," he adds.

"Fishing in Kentucky's major lakes ranked among the best in the nation last year, and we expect it to be better this year," says Minor.

Nowhere was any mention made of Dewey Lake, classified as one of Kentucky's major lakes. We know from experience that it doesn't belong in the major category, but since it is, we trust that fishing will improve there this year.

For the past weeks the lake has been frozen solid as much as eight inches in most places, and no fishing has been done there.

FOOD NOTES

By DIXIE T. HIGGINS
Home Demonstration Agent

Cheese is a valuable food for all ages, three-fourths pound of the American or Cheddar variety supplying more protein than a pound of meat with medium amount of bone. The flavor of cheese blends well with bland foods, such as rice.

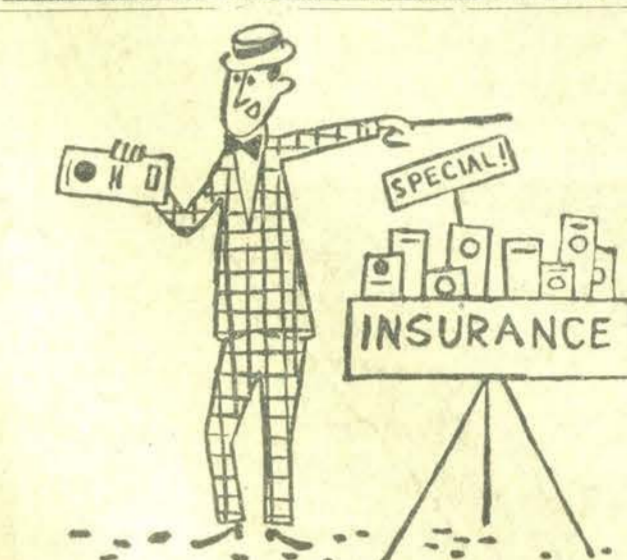

BAKED CHEESE AND RICE

- 1 c uncooked rice
- 3 c water
- 1 t salt
- 1 c milk or
- ¼ c powdered milk
- 1 c water
- 2 c grated cheese
- 2 t butter or margarine
- ¼ c bread crumbs

Steam the rice, (which preserves more vitamins and minerals than boiling it) by heating 3 cups of water in a saucepan with a heavy lid. Do not wash the rice. When the water boils, add salt and rice, stir well and bring to a boil. Immediately place lid on the pan and reduce heat to a low simmer for 14 minutes. Do not lift lid. Let stand 20 minutes. Put a layer of cooked rice in a greased baking dish and add grated cheese. Continue adding alternate layers of rice and cheese until dish is almost full. Add enough milk to come almost to the top of the rice. Cover with crumbs, dot with butter and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes or until cheese is melted and crumbs are brown. Serves 6.

Menu: Bake cheese and rice, green beans, stewed tomatoes, carrot sticks, bread and apple betty.

THIS WINTER MILD AS "BABE" COMPARED TO OLD TIME DAYS

The hard winters of long ago in Kentucky and throughout the country generally, would make our winter of 1958 seem like a babe in comparison. Coupled with the long, hard winters, were violent earthquakes that frequently rocked the entire State of Kentucky, record floods, violent wind and hail storms, and severe droughts, not to mention death from cholera and steamboat explosions.
The following excerpts from Collins History of Kentucky reveal much about the hard winters of earlier days.
"1780 the 'hard winter', game frozen in the forest and cattle around stations. Corn sells at $50 to $175 (continental money) per bushel.
"April 4, 1828. In Northern Kentucky snow fell over two inches deep. April 6, another fall of snow of 1 1/2 inches.
"Dec. 11, 1833—Ohio river frozen over and remains so until Jan. 8, 1834. Nine steam boats, 3 at Cincinnati and 6 above destroyed or greatly injured by the breaking up of ice. Estimated at $500,000.
"Feb. 9, 1833. Greatest flood ever known on the Ohio river.
"Jan. 26, 1835. Weather mild. Thermometer 65 degrees, increased in cold until Sun. Feb. 8 when it is 13° below zero in Maysville, 20 at Washington and Mayslick, 15 at Millersburg and 16 at Paris. Notwithstanding the high stage of water in the Ohio between 400 and 500 passengers on steamboats bound up are detained by ice between Portsmouth and Catlettsburg and Wheeling.
"Feb. 1838. Thermometer 6 degrees to 15 degrees below zero.
"Dec. 23, 1839. Ohio river frozen over two weeks.
"1840—Dec. 4-5. Snow falls over northern Kentucky to depth of 12 to 15 inches. Jan. 2 Ohio frozen over for 5 days.
"Mar. 20, 1843 — Remarkable weather; thermometer in northern Kentucky falls to 8 degrees above zero. Large quantities of ice in Ohio for several days.
"June 1844. Greatest flood ever known in Missouri, Mississippi, Illinois and Red Rivers 3 1/2 feet higher than the great flood of 1785.
"Dec. 6, 1846. Ohio river frozen over for first time in 12 years so early in season. It breaks up on 10th.
"Dec. 17, 1847. Deepest snow for 10 years past through middle and Eastern Kentucky.
"Jan. 13, 1850. Snow falls 12 to 15 inches deep. April 13 a fierce, driving snow storm in northern Kentucky. April 17, rain, hail, snow, sleet and high wind at night. In the morning ice forms.
"Dec. 22, 1852. Ohio river closed with ice for 16 days. Deep snow. On Jan. 19, heavy snow blocking up trains on railroad from Louisville to Lexington.

Junior Women Enter Fashion-Sewing Contest

Members of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club are busy cutting and stitching their own interpretations of the "Ideal Costume for the Clubwoman's Wardrobe." These outfits will be judged in the nationwide fashion-sewing contest sponsored by the General Federation of Woman's Clubs, Washington, D. C., with the cooperation of Vogue Pattern Service and the Woman's Club Service Bureau, New York City.

Contestants in the local judging will model their costumes at a fashion show on March 28, at 8:00 p.m. at the Prestonsburg high school. Each outfit is to be judged on the basis of versatility and appropriateness for club occasions, becomingness to wear, over-all fashion effect, and workmanship. The judges will be Miss Hazel Irene Hill, Mrs. Wonell Bussey Godsey and Mrs. Dixie T. Higgins.

Winner of the local contest will be eligible to compete in the judging to be held later at the district level of the Federation. Her prizes in the local contest will include a copy of the Vogue Dressmaking Book and a Vogue pattern of her choice.

State contests will follow the district judgments, with $50.00 cash awards going to the winners. National prizes, for which the state winners will compete, include $250.00 cash for first prize, $150.00 cash second prize and $100.00 cash third prize. First and second prize winners will also receive a trip to the 1958 GFWC convention in Detroit as part of their award.

AGED MAN, WHO IDENTIFIED OUTLAW 'JESSE JAMES,' DIES

(From the Elliott County News)

A 101-year-old native Elliott county man who had identified another centurion, the noted Jesse James when James was 100 years old, died last week at his home on the outskirts of Zion, Illinois.

George Washington Gibson, 101 years and seven months old, a native of Sandy Hook, Ky., died at his home after a life time of "hard work" and "clean living." During his lifetime, Mr. Gibson came in person contact with the infamous bandit two times — the second meeting 73 years later and a direct result of the first.

Mr. Gibson, who was a farmer in this area until 1910, first met the bank and train holdup artist in 1877 after James and his companions had robbed a Huntington bank.

James and his band stopped at the home of Mr. Gibson, then 21 years old, at Sandy Hook while fleeing authorities. They ate dinner at Mr. Gibson's house and he held a lengthy conversation with the outlaws before they rode on.

Some of the traits Mr. Gibson noticed in the outlaw at that first meeting-on-the-run laid the foundation for the meeting and identification in 1950.

Mr. Gibson exclaimed "That's the same man" when he met at Stanton, Mo., the centurion known as J. Frank Dalton, who had announced two years earlier in Lawton, Okla., that he was the long-thought-dead Jesse James.

"I am Jesse James" Dalton said. "I promised not to tell anyone until I was 100 years old."

Skeptical when he heard the report, Mr. Gibson, accompanied by a grandson, Earl of Milwaukee, and a friend, Andy Connors, of Chicago, went by train to Missouri to see for himself.

As Mr. Gibson, then in his early 90's, neared the bed on which heavily-bearded Dalton lay, the bedfast centenarian immediately turned his head in a manner attributed as characteristic of the bandit who ran roughshod over Missouri, Kentucky, Kansas, Indiana, Iowa and Minnesota.

As sure of himself as though he had seen James the day before, Mr. Gibson, blurted out "That is the man." During a witnessed questioning period, Mr. Gibson conversed with Dalton about minute incidents during James' first visit at Sandy Hook. Any vestige of doubt that may have been in the mind of Mr. Gibson was dispelled after Dalton answered two of the question put to him.

Dalton was asked, "What kind of horse did you ride the day you stopped at my house?" and also "Where did we eat?" His answers, entirely correct, were "Why a bay mare that day" and "out on the front porch."

These details which could only be recalled by an actual visitor at the Gibson home in 1877, convinced both Mr. Gibson and his friends, Connors, that Dalton was Jesse James.

A physical mark of identification also substantiated Dalton's story. James was reported to have the end of one finger chewed off and a similar injury was noted on Dalton's finger.

Dalton said that a companion bandit named Charlie Bigelow was killed in his place for reward money by Robert Ford, another member of the gang. Dalton said Bigelow was shot in St. Joseph, Mo., April 3, 1882, for a reward of $10,000 offered for Jesse James "dead or alive" by then-governor of Missouri, Crittendon. Bigelow was also minus half a finger.

Connors explained the difficulty in convincing people that Dalton was really Jesse James this way: "He was an egomaniac, had led a long life, and his history was so well hidden by backtracking to avoid the law that it was hard to get at the truth."

"Buick brakes 100% better than Industry standard"

THE BEST WAY to find out who has the best brakes is to see how long they can stand up under tests like these:

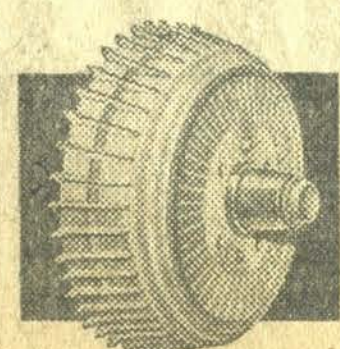

Test #1 California: Driver: Griff Borgeson, an editor of SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED Magazine. Buick CENTURY results: 22 emergency-stops from 60 mph and brakes still fully effective. Buick proved 2 times better than the closest American car tested.

Test #2 Florida: Driver: NASCAR President Bill France. Buick CENTURY results: 176 crisis-stops at 60 mph and brakes still going strong. Buick proved up to 8 times better than other cars tested.

How could Buick be so far ahead of other cars? Buick's brakes get rid of heat fast because they're aluminum. And only Buick has air-cooled aluminum brakes — standard on every CENTURY, SUPER, ROADMASTER 75 and LIMITED, optional at extra cost on every SPECIAL.

So for stopping-power that matches go-power — you'd better buy Buick.

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

TITLES OF HONOR

Nothing has ever amused me more than the almost universal tendency to apply unauthorized titles of honor or respect to people that seem outstanding. There is nothing new in this, but each folk unit does this bowing and scraping in its own way. It seemed natural, at Fidelity, to call all older men who had been slave-owners "Marse." There were Marse Jerry Stubblefield, Marse Peter Rowlett, Marse Joe Meador, and a dozen others in my acquaintance area. Not a few whites followed the ex-slaves in this habit, so that now it seems perfectly natural for me to think of the elderly men with the title. Closely akin to this sort of title was "Uncle," a name applied to elderly people of either color. It was a combination of respect and apology for "Uncle's" deceptitude, or absent-mindedness or shakiness on remembering some facts. Similarly, we called a good many women "Aunt," but not every Uncle's wife was so called; I suppose that the ancient subject of age was as acute at Fidelity as it is today in many another larger place. A very few older people were called "Daddy," a term of respect and wonderment, for old age, contrary to many people thing, was not at all common in those times. "Granny" I sometimes heard, but it was hardly respectful among us.

All these homely ways of speech we shared with most of our generation in all parts of the country; we also shared another custom, that of giving military or legal or other titles to people of local celebrity. I can recall only one officer of the Confederate Army that I ever knew well; he had been what would now be called a second lieutenant, but long before his death he was known locally as Captain Albritten. I occasionally saw another officer, a real Confederate captain, when I visited the county seat. But it was easy to advance any officer a notch or two, especially after the old boys became pretty scarce. It was even more common to call any one who had served as magistrate "Squire" to the end of his life and not merely while he was in office. No county judge ever gave up his title with his office, and many a lawyer who had not held public office, especially after he began to show some age, was "Judge." "Colonel" as a title was not so common at Fidelity; we had not succumbed to the custom of putting this title on every auctioneer or prominent land-owner or just anybody whom we delighted to honor. "Doctor" was very limited and usually meant what it said; every good-sized area had a doctor worthy of the title, though it was hinted that some of the older men with the title had never seen inside a college but had taken up their bottles and boxes and started out on their profession. "Professor" was fairly widely distributed, and I still like the title, the one that I have never objected to. Of course, our professors were mere country school teachers or lanky singing-

11th Kentucky Governor Was Scholarly Man

When Gov. John Breathitt died in 1834, James T. Morehead, the lieutenant governor, succeeded to the office, serving out the term which expired in 1836. Governor Morehead is unique in having been, perhaps, one of Kentucky's "egg-headed" or intellectual governors, a sort of a 19th century Adlai Stevenson.

During the first 12 years of his political life, Morehead's reputation rested chiefly on a series of letters which appeared in Kentucky newspapers under various noms de plume. Some of these letters were copied in a notebook in the governor's handwriting under the title of "Mea Scripta," a manuscript volume now owned by the Kentucky Historical Society.

Morehead was past his 30th birthday when he won his first public office, a seat in the State House of Representatives. He served in the House from 1825 to 1831 and from 1837 to 1841. Although a National Republican, Morehead was elected in 1823 to the second position in State government with a Democrat, Governor Breathitt. When Breathitt died, Morehead replaced the governor without apparent qualms; although in one of the letters in "Mea Scripta," he condemned Governor Slaughter for succeeding to an office to which he had not been elected. Morehead served in the United States Senate from 1831 to 1847.

Morehead was also the author of an Address in Commemoration of the First Settlement of Kentucky, which represents some original research on the history of Boonesborough, and a legal treatise, Practice in Civil Action and Procedures at Law.

As a speaker, he was eloquent and almost inevitably drew a large crowd: He was a manuscript and book collector, and, according to Lewis Collins, the eminent historian, Morehead's library of Kentucky history was the largest in the State.

Morehead was a man of strong convictions, standing chiefly for internal improvements, judicial reform, popular education, and colonization of Kentucky slaves.

SOUND HIGHWAY PLANNING NECESSARY MARTIN AVERS

Highway Commissioner James W. Martin says if "the vast bulk" of Kentucky's road construction can be planned and scheduled in advance under sound budget controls the Department of Highways "can make each construction dollar go farther than otherwise would be the case."

Effective planning "combined with faithful execution of the program scheduled" under budgetary control, Martin declared, can result in "a much improved highway production."

In his first major address since becoming highway commissioner last Nov. 15, Martin said possible benefits "show the obvious necessity for a policy of working out a construction and maintenance program and a plan for its financing."

"While the conclusion appears unassailable," the commissioner said, "the state lacks such a program today although valuable first steps" in the direction of formulating one "have been taken under Governor Chandler's leadership."

Martin spoke at a joint meeting of the Kentucky Section, American Society of Civil Engineers, and the Kentucky Society of Professional Engineers at Lexington.

He suggested a capital budget for highway construction looking perhaps six years ahead. Saving establishment of work-project priorities "is of profound importance," the commissioner declared. "It is the stage at which enlightened politics is important—and the only point in highway planning."

But Martin said, "truly enlightened politics must be based on cost estimates and a knowledge of the potentialities of various highways for serving the people of the state."

Work projects must be selected, he said, "for each road system and for all parts of the state on the basis of sound information regarding cost estimates, road conditions and traffic needs woven into the wisest policy we are able to define. In doing this, we must establish priorities for guidance in timing all phases of our work.

"We must employ technical and political acumen of the highest order. We must have real statesmanship in programing and in establishing priorities," Martin declared. "For the other aspects of our construction plan," he added, "We must avoid political considerations and rely strictly on technical judgments."

TRAVEL SPENDING DOUBLES

New York — The total expenditure of Americans traveling outside the United States has more than doubled since 1947, when the figure was $573,000,000. Europe, however, has more than quadrupled its 1947 American tourist earnings of $107,000,000.
