What makes so many brag-garts: A boy's will is the wind's will, and winds will blow.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

After last week's discourse on my trials in driving a convertible and my unveiled threat to prepare for the next such ordeal by arraying myself with duster, cap, goggles and mustache, I found on my typewriter, next morning, the most ancient goggles in these parts, with this note attached to the case:

"For convertible drivers. Compliments, Open-Top Cats."
Now, bring on the duster!

SEE YOU IN CHURCH!

Church Population Day in Prestonsburg is next Sunday. If anybody has any objections to such a day, please file them in the nearest trash can.

Early Christians employed an unusual and meaningful salutation. Instead of "Good morning" or whatever their usual greeting was, they hailed their friends with "Jesus Christ is risen!"

With such a declaration of faith in mind, we might drop the usual comments on the weather and this week say to our friends and acquaintances, "See you in church Sunday."

Have you ever thought what kind of community this or any other town or village would be if everybody living in it were in church at a given time? There would not be an angry word spoken, not a drop of whiskey drunk, not an oath voiced, no theft or any other crime committed—at least during that period of worship. And that doesn't include the good, positive effects of worship.

Think that's worthwhile? Then let's try it this Sunday.

MUSICAL FEST NINTH OF KIND

Talent and Pulchritude To Feature Annual Event Of Floyd High Schools

This county's annual springtime exhibit of beauty and talent will be seen and heard here Saturday as the Floyd County Music Festival is held. The event will be the ninth of its kind since World War II and the 24th since its beginning with Blue Ribbon Day festivities in 1930.

Six of the county's high schools have named queens representing both talent and pulchritude, and those six will compete Saturday morning for the title of Festival Queen. The reigning beauty will be chosen at the new Prestonsburg high school, and her coronation will be at 11 a.m.

Coronation of the festival queen will follow a parade of the six school queens in open-top convertibles, accompanied by school bands, through Prestonsburg streets from the grade school building to the new high school.

Girls chosen to compete for the honor by their individual schools are:

Sue Ann Wicker, Garrett high school; Frieda Collins, Martin; Peggy Combs, Maytown; Barbara Gearheart, McDowell; Mary Lynn Sharpe, Prestonsburg; Beulah Hall, Wayland; Flo Bates, Wheelwright; Tamsey Marcum, Betsy Layne.

Auxiliary high school will not enter a candidate for festival queen this year, it was said.

The big, new Prestonsburg high school gymnasium will be used for the afternoon concert to be given by the several school bands. The public is invited to the concert, school, officials emphasized.

DYNAMITE BLAST RUINS CAR OF FLOYD OFFICER

LESTER HOME, OTHERS CATCH BLAST EFFECT

State, County Officers Fail To Uncover Clues; Bootlegging Enmity Seen

A dynamite blast which reduced to wreckage the automobile of Deputy Sheriff Hershel Lester, damaged his home and nearby residences of his neighbors at Martin at 3 a.m., last Saturday was the subject of intensive investigation over the week-end and into this week by county and state officers.

The explosion, caused by a charge of dynamite consisting of 15 to 25 sticks, was the third to blast Floyd officers' autos in little more than a year. Early in 1957, the autos of Sheriff Gorman Collins and Deputy Sheriff Silas Derosssett were dynamited but not with such devastating effect as the Martin blast.

Deputy Sheriff Lester expressed the belief that enmity incurred by persistent raids on bootleggers resulted in the damage inflicted on his property.

The dynamite, placed on the hood of Lester's 1954 Mercury sedan, almost tore the auto in two, shattered every window in his home, ripped off window facings on the side of the house next to the car and broke windows of neighbors as far distant as 300 feet. Bits of the auto were hurled into a yard 150 feet away.

Most of the force of the blast was expended on the east side of Route 80 which the Lester home faces. Neighbors homes damaged were: Everett Tackett, windows inside storm windows shattered, 100 feet from the Lester home; W. M. Patrick home, 150 feet away, chandelier cracked, windows broken; Oscar Arrington home, 100 feet away, chimney cracked, windows damaged.

Roof of the Lester home next to the auto was lifted from the cross-ply by force of the explosion.

M. T. Begley, C. & O. conductor who was leaving work at the time, fixed the hour of the blast. Nobody was seen fleeing the scene.

SLATE INQUIRY INTO TRAGEDY

Court of Inquiry Set For May 13 At Request Made by Grand Jurors

An "attempted" grand jury probe last week of the Feb. 28 school bus tragedy which claimed 27 lives near here was inconclusive, and the jury in its final report Saturday to Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill recommended that a public hearing before a court of inquiry could best handle the matter.

The grand jury report, signed by Willie Music, foreman, noted that the jury interviewed several witnesses but that it ran into conflicting testimony.

The Times learned later that the jury questioned Perry Prater, school bus driver in the upper Right Beaver Creek section, about rumors to the effect that he had driven last year the ill-fated school bus and that he had driven it here and refused to attempt to operate it further after having found it impossible to keep the brakes in good condition.

Prater, it was learned from this source, declared this rumor is untrue, saying that he would not have driven the bus for any period of time if such a brake condition had existed.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said Tuesday that he will convene the court of inquiry, May 13. He said that two of the families affected by the tragedy, worst of its kind in the history of the nation, had requested such an inquiry earlier but that it was decided to await the grand jury investigation.

"I want no particular person or

OPENING SET FOR LIBRARY

Regional Library Serving Five Counties of Section To Open Here May 17th

The Eastern Kentucky Regional Library located in the old high school building in Prestonsburg will be officially opened to the public on Saturday, May 17, it was announced Wednesday by Lon C. It is expected that the library will soon be kept open one or two nights a week and all day on Saturdays, the better to accommodate people throughout the county and those who work during the day.

HALE BLAMES FLOOR LEADER

Floyd Legislator Says Everett Was Responsible For Defeat of Bus Bill

Sam Hale, State Representative of the 96th Legislative district, charged this week that Addison Everett, administration floor leader in the recent General Assembly was personally responsible for defeat of the school bus bill sponsored in the House by the Floyd representative.

"I want to personally accuse Everett for the defeat of my bill," Hale said. Six days before the session ended he promised to call my bill up for its third reading when a vote is automatic. No one in the rules committee voted against the bill. Everett did not keep his promise to me."

The Hale bill, known as HB 610 was read the second time, after a favorable report from the rules committee, on March 23.

It provided that school bus speed was not to exceed 45 miles per hour; the driver was to pass a physical examination annually and was to be certified to the Department of Public Safety; overloading of buses was prohibited; buses were to be inspected monthly. Penalties were provided.

One of Miller's companions in the break, Truman Engle, 20, of Troublesome Creek, was shot through his stomach and kidney by officers as he fled across a swinging bridge at Hazard, and another, James McIntosh, 19, was shot in the foot.

Father Who Lost Three In Tragedy Finds Son

COURT'S TERM ENDS MONDAY

Four Are Convicted, Three Win Acquittals In Last Days of Term

The Floyd circuit court ended its April session Monday with the jury in disagreement as to the guilt or innocence of Ed Wright, Jr., who was given trial on a charge of voluntary manslaughter in an automobile death.

Four convictions and three acquittals were recorded since last Thursday.

Dayton (Bobby) Joseph, who was arrested by Prestonsburg police on a charge of liquor possession, was fined $20 and jailed 30 days. He also was required to execute $1,000 peace bond. His motion and grounds for new trial were overruled by Judge Hill. Raymond Campbell was given a year each on pleas of guilty to charges of selling mortgaged property, but the sentence was probated on condition that he pay $50 a month on his debt of $813 and also comply with the usual provisions of probation.

Travis Akers was penned one year for grand larceny and Lucy Jo Craft received the same sentence for robbery. Both entered pleas of guilty.

Those who won acquittals were Curtis Sizemore, Darrell Stratton and Roy Turner. All three were charged with grand larceny.

Claude Wallen, Bob Green and James Newsome entered pleas of not guilty to charges of rape and their trials were set for Sept. 8. Cases dismissed.

Ernest Conth, shooting and wounding, lack of evidence; Dave Stephens, falsifying, lack of evidence; Homer Tackett, grand larceny. The dismissals were made because of lack of evidence, the court orders showed.

Ed Napier, surety on the forfeited bond of Clyde Hicks, was given until May 6 to deliver the accused man to authorities. Hicks is charged with grand larceny. Motion for new trial for Agnal Jones, who was convicted on a reckless driving count, was overruled.

MOVE MADE FOR BUILDING

Courthouse Architects Named by Fiscal Court; Health Tax Set At 8c

The Floyd fiscal court Tuesday voted to employ the architect-firm of Taylor and Shannon (Gibson Taylor, of Winchester, and George Lee Shannon, Prestonsburg) to do the architectural work in connection with the proposed new courthouse. Their pay would be at standard or governmental rates, subject to court approval.

The court already had adopted resolutions holding that construction of a new courthouse would be to the best interest of the county and authorizing County Judge Henry Stumbo to file an application for federal aid on the cost of the plan of preparation.

The first health tax levy under the authority of the 1957 health tax election results was voted at Tuesday's meeting with the rate per $100 for the fiscal year beginning July 1 being set at 8 cents. The maximum tax voted by the people is 9c per $100 valuation.

The court also budgeted funds for the Soil Conservation Department and the Agricultural Extension Department—$2,700 for the former, $6,300 for the latter. Included in the Extension appropriation are $2,400 for secretary's salary, $900 for County Agent's travel, $900 for cash of the two assistant agents and $400 for miscellaneous office expense.

County Judge Henry Stumbo was authorized to attend the Congressional hearing in Washington next week on Big Sandy reservoirs. Salary of Mrs. Lillie H. Parker, clerk in his office, was raised from $300 a month to $350.

The rural road contract submitted by the Rural Highway Department and providing for the expenditure of $68,007 during the coming fiscal year was approved

JAMES EDWARD GOBLE

JURY INDICTS PIKE WOMAN

Mrs. Hackney Accused After Blaze Destroys 15,000 Lake Seedlings

Mrs. Henry Hackney, of South Williamson, Pike county, was indicted by the Floyd grand jury this week "for negligently firing woods and destroying property" as a result of a forest fire started by her in the Dewey Lake State Park area, April 20.

The woodland and field blaze destroyed 15,000 white pine seedlings recently set out by the Division of Forestry, and it spread to the nearby woodland to burn over 35 acres. Actual damages, according to Bill Music, district forester, are $345, plus suppressions costs.

Mrs. Hackney and husband were camping in the reservoir area adjacent to the reforested area in attempting to burn trash at the edge of the field the broom-sedge caught fire, and a high wind whipped the blaze out of control. Music pointed out it is illegal to burn trash before 4:30 p.m. during the month of April and then can only be done after adequate precautions.

The Division of Forestry employs and three volunteers fought the blaze for three hours before bringing it under control and two hours more were necessary to finally put the fire out.

Music said the Division of Forestry has under consideration a civil suit against the Hackneys for damages and if it is brought will be the first of its kind instituted in this county.

"Our fire record, except for that one week of April 20, has been excellent this spring," Music commented. "A combination of things made that week bad. We had had a lot of wet weather and trash burning was delayed. That week it dried up quite a lot and people were negligent about fires. Then, too, high winds made the danger greater."

Three hundred thousand young forest tree seedlings were planted in the lake area this spring by the Division of Forestry as part of a reforestation program. The plantings were inspected March 29 by Conservation Commissioner Laban Jackson and Gene Butcher, head of the Division.

UF PLANNING DEEP DRILLING

United Fuel To Sink Test Wells In Area, Partridge Announces

United Fuel Gas Company plans to drill 30 production and five test wells in Eastern Kentucky it was announced today (Thursday) by John W. Partridge, president. The announcement, coming in the aftermath of the excitement incident to the opening of a new oil field in Breathitt county, points up the revived interest of the industry in this region.

Breathitt county, one of the counties in which United Fuel will drill, has become the center of oil industry interest since a 135-barrel well was drilled in by Estill Creech, a contract driller. Thirty wells seeking oil have been drilled in Breathitt since the Creech find and 20 rigs have moved in to exploit the new field. United Fuel made the first oil strike in Breathitt while drilling for gas.

United Fuel's plans calls for the

26th VICTIM IS RECOVERED, 1 YET SOUGHT

James Edward Goble, 12, Latest Found; Cline Tot Last To Remain Missing

James B. Goble himself was one of the two men who Wednesday afternoon found the last of his three children who lost their lives with 24 others in the Feb. 28 school bus tragedy near here.

He and 74-year-old Will Goodman, of Emma, discovered the body of his son, 12-year-old James Edward, floating in the swollen Big Sandy at 2 p.m., Wednesday, at the rear of the Eagles Club here.

The father himself and the elderly man took the body to a funeral home here.

"Look, there's my boy!" Goble suddenly said as he and Goodman were traveling upstream by motorboat. He recognized from a distance of perhaps 50 yards his son's belt.

The father expressed great joy at finding his son. It was the task he had set out to do, immediately after his other son, John Spencer, 11, had been buried. Since that time he has never left the river except when his daughter, nine-year-old Anna Laura, was found. Day after day he has plied the river; evenings, he has worked with the Prestonsburg Schoolchildren Recovery Committee of which he is treasurer and a director. He has been one of the most liberal contributors to the fund raised by the committee to carry on the recovery work.

The only bus victim yet to be recovered is Paulette Cline, 9, daughter of James Colonel and Audrey Lafferty Cline. For her body the search goes on without

RESCUE SQUAD IS PLANNED

Organizational Work To Follow Aid Course; Classes Start May 8

Preliminary efforts to organize a rescue squad here Sunday afternoon effected a temporary organization and plans were made to conduct a first-aid course as the first step toward a permanent setup. Assisting in the plans was Capt. John Metcalf and others from Greenville, Tennessee, who were here at the request of local leaders.

While temporary officers were elected, permanent heads of the rescue group will not be selected until the completion of a first-aid course scheduled to begin at the armory May 8. Tommy Lemaster and Homer Neeley, authorized Red Cross instructors, will instruct the class. It is thought that permanent leaders of the organization will emerge from the class.

County Judge Henry Stumbo was named temporary general chairman and Fire Chief Amos Gray was selected as training chairman. A temporary board of directors, consisting of Fred James, W. O. Goebel and Carl Horn, was picked. Named to the by-laws committee were Ed Hill, V. O. Turner and Graham Burchett. The group has filed for a charter of incorporation.

It was pointed out that the organization of a rescue squad to survive and operate efficiently in times of disaster and emergencies would necessitate the procurement of considerable equipment. The group will be staffed by a captain, first lieutenant, second lieutenant and sergeant.

Mayor Bill Napier was selected as head of the nominations committee Sunday.

Pikeville organized a rescue squad based upon lines of the East Tennessee groups last week.

ADMITTED TO FEDERAL PRACTICE

Cassie J. Allen, Prestonsburg attorney, was admitted to the practice of law by the United District Court in Pikeville Monday. She was introduced by Claude P. Stephens, former U. S. District Attorney.

RANIER LEADS RECOVERY EFFORTS IN TWO PRESTONSBURG DISASTERS

By HENRY P. SCALF

Three weeks ago Harry Ranier, Prestonsburg contractor, appeared before the Floyd County Schoolchildren Recovery committee and suggested a new method to find the bodies of seven children still remaining in the river after the Feb. 28 tragedy at Knotley Hollow. "Take a bulldozer," he said, "uproot the willows along the bank." It was his firm belief that the bodies of the children were hanging or buried under the riverside trees.

The Recovery committee snatched at the idea but wondered where it could procure the men and equipment.

"I have the bulldozers and the operators," Ranier told the group. "All it will cost you is one dollar a year to make it legal."

Next day, several bulldozers with Ranier operators began to uproot willows. Result, in a few hours, was the finding of the body of Spring buds are nature's promise of everlasting life, the May Reader's Digest says: cut one open and you will find it a tiny folded leaf, complete to the last detail. Some buds even have buds — like the rattlesnake fern, in which tiny leaves are folded, one on the other, for at least three years ahead.

It takes almost 129 hours a year per cow in a 10-cow dairy herd — but only 80 hours per cow in a 30-cow herd, testers found recently in Minnesota. Labor-saving devices seem to be the answer.

Doris Faye Burchett, buried underneath giant willow roots in the mud.

Ranier had been working on the recovery job since 8:27 a.m. that fateful Friday, just 17 minutes after the school bus plunged into the Big Sandy and took 26 children and the driver to a watery grave. The Ranier equipment crowded the river bank near the site. It included five bulldozers, two lowboys, three big trucks, three radio cars and three pickups with two-way radios. Forty-five of his men stood by or operated the equipment.

The Prestonsburg man's bulldozers chewed out a road down the river bank and hauled the bus out of the river after it was found. Cost of the operations at the site for 76 hours of intensive effort, ran into the thousands of dollars for Ranier. He never received a cent, didn't want any. It was but one of the many jobs Harry Ranier could do, and to whom people turned when in trouble.

Prestonsburg had turned to Mr. Ranier 13 months earlier when the raging Big Sandy swept into the town and left a sea of mud and debris.

The town had to be cleaned up. He did it in 14 days, with men working around the clock. At the end of two weeks he tapered his activities only to the day. When he was done the town had been given a bath with giant fire hoses and the debris carted away. Of all the flooded county seat towns of Eastern Kentucky Prestonsburg was cleaned up first.

The 41-year-old Ranier is used to rugged jobs. He now employs 160 men on construction jobs, chiefly pipelines, and has 59 units of motorized highway equipment. He has 30 crawler tractors and dozers.

He was born at Seco, son of restaurateur Tony Ranier, of the Derby Cafe here, who was a contractor himself in Letcher county. His mother died when he was seven. Tony brought Harry to Prestonsburg four years later.

Harry grew to manhood, started working for the gas companies. He tried other business later on but his main interest has been construction work. He bought his first bulldozer in 1950. His first job of any size was the building of a six-inch pipeline for United Fuel Gas Company on Johns Creek in Pike county.

The Pike county job was but a small beginning for a construction career but it was crowned with the big one that began at Maytown, this county, and ran cross country 40 miles to Osborne Gap on the crest of Pine Mountain. That 12-inch pipeline, up hill and down, across valleys and streams, was laid in some of the worst terrain in the Southern Appalachians. It gave employment to 250 men and required the use of several hundred thousand dollars worth of equipment.

Hardened in a rugged school of mountain construction work, Ranier found wide use for his talents and versatility when the flood of January, last year, seized Prestonsburg and held it in a vise-like grip. Many families were isolated without food on the other side of the river south of town.

He found a boat, loaded it with provisions, chiefly milk, hunted up a friend and set out on the swirling stream. Several children ate that second night because Harry Ranier had challenged the angry river.

After the water receded Harry had a caller. It was Mayor Harry Sandige. He wanted the town cleaned up. It was getting late in the day but at dusk Ranier had a crew, in cooperation with the fire department, at the intersection of Arnold avenue and Graham street. The water hoses began to sweep the street and the mud moved along the avenue. In a few days the town's facilities were back to normal with much of the credit due the man in whom the mayor had entrusted clean-up operations.

Ranier gives plenty of credit to his men who have stood with him in two major Prestonsburg disasters. He pays them while on a job and when times are a bit slack he continues to do so, realizing that as an employer he has certain obligations to them. (He offered to pay them for the work done toward recovery of the school bus, but they declined pay.)

"You can't pay men with one hand and take it away with the other," he says alluding to the "other" hand as his inability to continually keep them on a job. And speaking of jobs and hands, if there are ever any more disasters or grave emergencies in the Prestonsburg area, Harry Ranier will be there with both hands.

DETERMINE SHRINKAGE

Housewives who must buy and launder T-shirts, baby clothing or undergarments of cotton knit fabric will find of interest the research done at the U. S. Department of Agriculture Institute of Home Economics, says Miss Dorothy Thekeld, UK Extension clothing specialist.

Four of every 10 homemakers surveyed last summer, who had draperies at their living room windows, said the draperies were made of cotton and it was the fabric they preferred. The homemakers gave as their reasons: Cotton is durable, it is easy to wash, it can be laundered at home, and the fabric is relatively inexpensive and economical.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Times:
Having been the Red Cross Blood donor chairman in Garrett and vicinity during the years had the Red Cross Bloodmobile in our county and Adjutant of George S. Ousley Post No. 295, the American Legion of Kentucky, I have accumulated a list of blood types which have been in great demand in this area. However my list is still very small. People are coming to me from all parts to find out who has the type blood they need for a sick relative or friend. In order to be able to help more of these sick I need more names and types for my list.

I'd like for everyone in this area to come into my office at once and list their blood type with me. All ex-servicemen know their type because each of us was typed and our type was listed on our identification tags. Many people have learned their type from having to be given blood while ill or by giving to someone who was in need. If you don't know your type go to the county health doctor, your family doctor, or any hospital and they will be glad to type you. It is a very simple thing to be typed and takes only a few seconds.

This list that I have compiled is available to anyone, anytime. Never a week passes but that someone comes to me for names of persons who have the type they need and some weeks two or three or more are looking for donors. This listing could very well save the life of someone near and dear to you. As is often said, the life you save may well be your own. It's a very little thing for each of you to do and it can mean so much to all of us. So won't everybody come in and list your type with me if you know

LIKES MEMORIAL IDEA

Editor, The Times:
I have just received the April 16th Times and was pleased and happy to see the editorial about the Memorial Plaque for the new gymnasium. I think that no finer name could be given to the building nor no finer memorial plaque put in than that you mention. To the person who suggested it, I would like him to know that he has my support completely. I will help in any way I can, as far as possible. I too hope that the public and school authorities can see fit to place this memorial at the field-house.

I always look forward to receiving the Times from home. It brings home much close. "This Town, That World" means a lot after a person has been away from Floyd county and the States for 10 months. Thanks for a wonderful column and a wonderful paper.

6. Appointment of a captain and co-captain for each block, their duty being to talk the program and urge cooperation.

Civic organizations are being asked, Mrs. Davis said, to help in dismantling of old, useless structures whose owners are unable to bear the cost of razing. Owners of property will be urged to supplant poor trees with better types.

The community cooperation angle was stressed with the announcement by Mrs. Davis that a plant exchange is to be established here. This will serve homeowners who wish to exchange plants or shrubs of which they have a surplus to others that they do not have.

R. L. Shepherd, of Berea College, will come here later to discuss with all who are interested the work of beautifying Prestonsburg and their individual premises.

"In our overall plans we are thinking about the improvement of the mental and spiritual outlook of the community through beautification as well as about material progress," Mrs. Davis said.

Hale pointed out that a recent editorial of The Times that gave credit for the joint-sponsorship of the bill to him and Mrs. Ann B. Hall, Floyd County's other representative was in error. (The Times editorial was based on an article written by Dr. Robert Martin, state superintendent of public instruction.)

"It was solely my bill," Hale said. "It was drawn up for me by the Department of Public Safety and the State Department of Education and was solely sponsored by me."

Hale pointed out that a bill to regulate school bus operation was co-sponsored by Mrs. Hall, Representative Clay Gray, of Leslie county, and J. J. Isler, of Kenton county, and was HB 591. It died, unreported, in the Rules committee March 6.

The Hall-Isler-Clay bill provided that school bus drivers be between the ages of 21 and 50 years of age; of good character; with no conviction of drunkenness; yearly and semester examination of drivers; and an amendment to existing statutes requiring a 45-mph. governor with an emergency door operable from the driver's seat.

IN RE THE ECONOMY

Some say there's a mild recession, others declare it's the real McCoy, and there are some who contend it's mostly psychological. Here's a story that's making the rounds, proving that we can make things worse than they normally would be:

There was a man who lived by the side of the road, and he sold hot dogs. He was hard of hearing, so he had no radio. He had trouble with his eyes, so he read no newspapers. But he sold hot dogs.

He put signs up on the highway telling all and sundry how good those hot dogs were; he stood beside the road and cried, "Buy a hot dog, mister?" And, lo! people bought.

He increased his meat and bun orders; he bought a bigger store to take care of his trade. He finally got his son home from college to help him—and there he made his big mistake.

His son said, "But, Dad, haven't you been listening to the radio or reading the newspapers? There's a big depression on, the European situation is terrible, the domestic situation is even worse. Everything is going to pot and you don't know it."

Whereupon the father mused, "Well, my son has been away to college, he reads the newspapers and listens to the radio newscasts, and he ought to know . . ."

So the old man cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his advertising signs and no longer bothered to stand out beside the highway to sell his hot dogs. And his hot dog sales fell off, almost overnight.

"You're right son," he said to the boy, "We certainly are in the middle of a big depression."

ANOTHER VIEWPOINT

Having given that side of the matter, we must tell the one that relates to the two groundhogs who met soon after Groundhog Day this year and in the course of conversation drifted onto matters economic.

One allowed this was only a mild recession and that everything would straighten out after a time. The other, however, was more skeptical. He reminded the other that he was older and more experienced, had gone through such times and knew what he was talking about. "This, my ground piglet," he pompously declared, "is a full-blown depression with a capital D, and you may lay to that."

Whereupon the two decided maybe they would do well to dig in deeper to be protected against whatever betide. They sank the hole from its original five feet down to seven, then to 10 feet, to 15 and finally to 20.

"Twenty feet—whew! surely that's deep enough," the younger said.

Then said the older: "You might think so, my little one, but I know better. Our family records show that Grandpa went down to 30 feet back in '32, and they got him."

SUSPECTS

Then there's the oldie about the elderly man of convivial habits who was inclined to sound off his learning when in his cups. Hauled before a judge and reminded that he was charged with drunkenness and was at liberty to speak for himself, the old soak took off in a fight of oratory:

"Man's inhumanity to man makes countless millions mourn. I am not so debased as Poe, so profligate as Byron, as ungrateful as Keats, so intemperate as Burns, so demented as Tennyson, so vulgar as Shakespeare, so . . ."

"That'll do, sir," interrupted the judge. "Seven days, and, officer, take down that list of names he mentioned and round 'em up. I think they're as bad as he is."

TREATMENT TIME HERE

Bluegrass plant bugs, pests which attack seedheads of valuable bluegrass, are beginning to emerge now, says the Kentucky Experiment Station entomology department. Treatment should be started quickly to control these pests; they cut profits considerably during seed-development time.

MARRIAGE LICENSSES

Tivis Colley, 34, Emma, and Final Frasure, 22, East McDowell, Rabon Bradley, 21, and Betty Sue Gibson, 18, both of Estill. Bobby Ray Sykes, 20, and Mary Bess Duty, 17, both of Minnie. Irvin Bayett, 23, Twinbury, O., and Margaret Jarrell, 19, Dana; marriage solemnized here April 29 by the Rev. M. C. Wright. Ruth A. Howard 24, and Robert A. Short, 26, both of Inez; married here April 29 by the Rev. M. C. Wright. Tom Grim, 20, and Alice Prater, 16, both of Bonanza.

The jury also recommended that the Board see that fire drills are conducted in all schools and that the next grand jury call in students from the various schools and question them as to whether or not these various regulations have been put into practice. It called on the State Department of Highways to place guard rails as soon as possible along the Big Sandy at danger points and in other sections of the county where school buses travel and it appears that such protection is needed.

The jury's report described conditions at the county jail as "deplorable." It said: "The mattresses in most instances are not fit to sleep on. The garbage cans were extremely dirty, the odor from the restrooms had a horrible stench. It is therefore recommended that if these conditions still exist at the next term of court action be taken against the responsible person."

Jailer Prock Hayes later commented at length on this statement. He said, in part:

"The grand jury doesn't understand my needs and it doesn't know why I don't have all the supplies needed. All jail supplies must be bought through the fiscal court if I don't pay for them myself, and in recent months I have had to do the buying out of my own pocket."

For example, he pointed out that last fall he bought 50 blankets, only recently bought "factory" mattress covers by the bolt and is having them made up, and that the pump which keeps the jail basement free of water accumulating as the result of a drain pipe that is plugged up under private property was bought by him at a cost of $69. He added that this water is being pumped out onto the surface and that this will later constitute an intolerable situation if the fiscal court does not provide a new drainage line.

He said public abuse of the rest rooms in the courthouse is such that a man posted at each door would be necessary to keep them in proper condition at all times. "We clean them, and a few minutes later somebody with no regard for sanitation or decency has the place looking and smelling like we have never done any work at all."

The jury recommended that all courthouse offices be scrubbed at least one time weekly.

Jailer Hays said he would not use the trusty system in order to have more help. "I will not make any difference between any of the prisoners. I will pay for the work done, and it will not be done by prisoners." He added that the grand jury could at any time criticize any official.

The final report recommended that the Sheriff's force make more frequent visits to rural areas of the county and, if necessary, that more deputies be employed to do this work.

The Turner hotel here came in for scrutiny by the grand jury. The report said the jury questioned witnesses about the hotel and recommended that the next jury investigate the hotel in detail, explaining that because of limited time it did not have the opportunity to get a detailed picture of the situation. The jury also recommended that all dogs be vaccinated against rabies and that the dog warden "take every precaution possible in destroying all stray dogs."

Certified as eligible to receive stipulus foodstuffs in the relief program were a total 9,590 persons—2,826 in Magisterial district No. 1, 1,989 in No. 2, 2,424 in No. 3 and 2,351 in No. 4.

Deputy Sheriff Lester said he, his three children and his son-in-law were asleep at the time of the explosion. "I saw nobody running away, but I was half asleep and found myself in the kitchen after the dynamite went off," he said.

The Lesters' dog, a St. Bernard which forbids prowlers about the Lester car or home at night, had been missing since last Wednesday, and investigators theorized that the dog may have been lured away to permit the nocturnal assault. The dog returned home, a few days after the blast, and was ravenously hungry, the animal may have been penned up without food for some time, officers theorized.

The investigation has failed to turn up definite clues, it was said Tuesday.

Gilbert, Eugene Spencer, Marcus and Donald Stacey made their escape.

The seven broke jail after having overpowered two turnkeys, Braddock Noble and Ed Ross, tossing Noble down a flight of stairs and beating up Ross.

Engle and McIntosh had been released from jail but officers said they picked up the escapees in a car. The two men were shot in an exchange of gunfire as the car fled through Hazard and later was wrecked.

Indicted here with Miller were Amos Lee Duncan and Howard Hicks. Clarence Nunemaker told the grand jury he identified Miller.

Claude Wallen, James Newsum and Bob Green were named in two rape indictments, with Rosie Meade and Ethel Wallen as the complaining witnesses. Bond of $12,000 each was asked for their release in each of the two counts. Wallen also was indicted on a charge of detaining a woman against her will.

Kermit Joseph and Fred Newsome were indicted on a charge of obstructing justice. They allegedly threatened Lucy Jo McCoy, warning her against giving information against them. Joseph was named in a second indictment alleging the same offense. A grand jury note quoted him as telling Billy Gene McCoy that "if Billy told on him it would be curtains for him."

Thirteen persons were named in liquor indictments. These are: Jack Allen, Howard Stone, Jim Marsillett, Ervin Shepherd, Muncy Prater, Jim and Reba Blanton, Sherman Cook, all for selling; James Lucas, selling, second offense; Bennie Blackburn, selling, third offense; Russell Sammons, Hershell and Ralph Little and Gardez May, possession for beverage purposes.

In all, the grand jury voted 81 indictments, 48 of these having been returned in the last three days of the jury session last week. Other major indictments follow:

Bob Gilstrap, unlawful escape, flight from the county jail here; Frank M. Fitch, obtaining goods under false pretense; Johnny S. Ward, falsifying; Odell Scott and Carl Collier, forgery; Jim Marsillett, and James Newsum, grand larceny, accused of stealing Leonard Marsillett's auto; John May and Harry Wills, cold check; Hewen Spencer, child desertion; James Spears, J. R. Mullett and Arnold Calhoun, each for carrying a concealed deadly weapon; Ollie Thorpe, cold check.

Silas Derossset, unlawful arrest, accused in the Nov. 1957 arrest of John Reynolds, of Bull Creek; Mrs. Henry Hackney, negligent firing of woods and damaging property; Sid Marshall, child desertion; James Wright, grand larceny, alleged theft of a car, cash register and money from the Reitz Service Station at Drift last Dec. 28; George Howell, breaking and entering the Henry Spradlin store at Bonanza; George Patrick, transporting mortgaged property; Frank Compton, obtaining money under false pretense; Tommy Hughes, rape, accused by Gladys Dillon, 25, of the offense as having been committed in November, 1957.

Partridge said the 140 production wells will aid in replacing exhausted wells which are being abandoned. These wells will be drilled in areas which have known gas reserves. Specific drilling sites have not yet been determined.

"Our geologists feel that by drilling deeper, there's a chance of getting much more gas," Partridge explained. "Therefore, five new test wells will be drilled in Eastern Kentucky to explore deeper horizons in fields which have produced gas from more shallow wells."

Three of the test wells will reach a depth of between 9,000 and 11,000 feet, penetrating through all sedimentary rock layers, the United Fuel president said. One million dollars of the drilling budget will be devoted to this attempt to locate deeper reserves. He pointed out that cost of drilling had increased considerably, having risen from an average cost of $17,986 per well in 1948 to $36,000 this year.

The Breathitt oil strike was made in the carboniferous sand at a depth of 1,800 feet. Trainers are taking about 400 barrels of oil per day from Chenowee Hill, locale of the find about midway between Athol and Elkatawa. Much more oil is available there from the Crech and newly-drilled wells but the transportation facilities are inadequate, it was pointed out. Most of the new wells have been capped, awaiting transportation development.

Five oil companies and numerous individuals are interested in the new Breathitt field. Companies drilling or planning to drill are United Fuel, Preston Oil Company, Kentucky and West Virginia Oil Company, Cumberland Petroleum Co., and Petroleum Exploration Co.

The name of our Bible comes from the 5000-year-old city of Byblos—now known as Jebail—in Lebanon, which claims to be the oldest community in the world. The May Reader's Digest says that Byblos once was famous for its Papyrus. The Greeks began calling any book made of Papyrus a Byblos . . . and The Book became The Byblos, or Bible.

expenditure of $7,619,000 this year to locate new supplies of natural gas in Kentucky and West Virginia. Most of the money will be spent for the drilling of 110 production wells in Southern West Virginia. Production wells scheduled by the company in Eastern Kentucky, besides Breathitt county, are in Pike, Knott, Leslie and Martin counties. Of the allocation, $1,153,000 is for the construction of connecting pipelines.

The program was in charge of the Welfare Department. Mrs. Fred Cochran introduced B. F. Reed, who explained what the East Kentucky Planning Commission, of which he is a member, is trying to do—namely, to bring other industry into Eastern Kentucky, but first to remove existing conditions which are objectionable to prospective business.

Dr. Spock Warns Parents Against Becoming Slaves To Their Children

Dr. Benjamin Spock, author of the nation's best-known baby book, is taking a second look into the American nursery, the May Reader's Digest reports. He grew up in a family of two sons and four daughters in New Haven, Conn. His father was a successful lawyer. "Five of us" he recalls, "went into teaching. You don't do that unless you like children. And you aren't apt to like children unless you were happy as a child. We were." The Digest article is titled "The Gospel According to Spock."

"Immunization Week" Scheduled May 4-10; KMS Urges Need Check

A concerted effort to secure complete immunization of Kentuckians against communicable disease is being conducted by the Kentucky State Medical Association during "Immunization Week" from May 4-10. In announcing the drive, Dr. Delmas M. Clardy, Hopkinsville, who heads the KSMMA Committee on Public Health, urged every Kentucky family to check its immunization needs and to take advantage of the protection given by immunization. During the coming week, a special effort will be made by the Association to acquaint Kentuckians with the importance of the protection offered them by the Salk vaccine and the so-called "familiar stand-by" preventive immunizations against typhoid, tetanus, diphtheria, smallpox and whooping cough. "The need for immunization of pre-school age children for protection against diphtheria and whooping cough will be stressed," Doctor Clardy said. "Since most deaths from these two diseases occur under the ages of five and two respectively, if parents wait until their children enter school, they are taking a grave risk." "Immunization Week" is one of the many projects sponsored by the KSMMA in the interest of securing better health for Kentuckians.

Opening of U. of Ky. Med College Reset

Opening date for the University of Kentucky College of Medicine, tentatively scheduled for the fall of 1959, has been deferred until September, 1960.

"It has now become apparent that even a small class would have to face make-shift arrangements and compromises in program which cannot be justified," Dr. William R. Willard, U. of K. vice president for the Medical Center, stated in making the announcement. "By deferring the activation date until 1960, we expect to be able to admit a larger class of students who will be able to work in buildings which have been completed and with faculty who have had adequate time for the careful preparation of all aspects of the teaching program." He added formal applications for admission to College of Medicine in 1960 will be accepted after July 1, 1959.

WHEREAS, the urban area hereinafter described is now in need of redevelopment or rehabilitation as a result of damage caused by a catastrophe which the President has declared to be a major disaster; and

WHEREAS, it is desirable and in the public interest that the Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission prepare surveys and plans, presently estimated to cost approximately $16,171.00, in order to undertake and carry out an urban renewal project of the character contemplated in Section III of said Title I, in that certain area, proposed as an Urban Renewal Area, situated in the City of Prestonsburg, County of Floyd, and State of Kentucky, and described as follows:

"Bounded on the north by Court Street; on the east by Third Street; on the south by the properties of Matt Parsley, and property presently occupied by the Southern Bell Telephone Company; and on the west by South Lake Drive. Said lot consists of approximately 2.74 acres of land, lying in the eastern portion of the central business district, upon which is presently standing the Floyd County Courthouse and Jail and four buildings adjacent to South Lake Drive."

WHEREAS, Section III of Title I requires that every contract for a temporary loan or capital grant for an urban renewal project undertaken pursuant to the provisions of Section III specify a date for compliance with the Workable Program requirements of Section 101 (c) of Title I; and

WHEREAS it is recognized that contracts for loans and capital grants for urban renewal projects will require, among other things (1) the approval of the urban renewal plan by the governing body of the locality in which the project is situated; (2) the provision of local grants-in-aid which may consist of donations of cash, land, demolition or removal work, and the installation, construction, and reconstruction of streets, utilities, parks, playgrounds, or other improvements or the provision of other public buildings or facilities; and (3) the carrying out of a plan for the encouragement, to the maximum extent feasible, of the provision of dwellings suitable for the needs of families displaced by the major disaster or by redevelopment or rehabilitation activities;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the City Council of the City of Prestonsburg, as follows:

1. That the proposed Urban Renewal Area described above is an urban area in need of redevelopment or rehabilitation as a result of a catastrophe which the President, pursuant to the provision of Public Law 875, 81st Congress, as amended, has determined to be a major disaster, and is appropriate for an urban renewal project.

2. That the undertaking by the Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission of surveys and plans for an urban renewal project of the character contemplated by Section III of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended and supplemental, in the proposed Urban Renewal Area described above, is hereby approved.

3. 4. That it is cognizant of the conditions that are imposed in the undertaking and carrying out of urban renewal projects with Federal financial assistance under Title I, including the requirements of said Title I respecting the Workable Program mentioned above, and that it is the sense of this body (a) that a plan for the encouragement, to the maximum extent feasible, of the provision of dwellings suitable for the needs of families displaced by the major disaster or by redevelopment or rehabilitation activities can be prepared, and (b) that local grants-in-aid consisting of donations of cash, land, demolition or removal work, and the installation, construction, or reconstruction of streets, utilities, parks, playgrounds, or other improvements or the provision of other public buildings or facilities, necessary for carrying out in the Urban Renewal Area the urban renewal objectives of said Title I in accordance with the urban renewal plan, can and will be provided in an amount which, together with the federal capital grant, will be generally equal to the difference between Gross Project Cost and the proceeds or value of project land sold, leased or retained for use in accordance with the urban renewal plan.

5. That the filing of an application by the Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission for surveys and plans for an urban renewal project in the Urban Renewal Area described above is hereby approved.

RECOVERY JOB BIG OPERATION

Twelve Outboard Motors Given By Manufacturers; Contributors Are Named

Operations by the Schoolchildren Recovery committee to find the bodies of the children still in the river after the February tragedy was taking on the magnitude of a large business operation. It was pointed out this week the recovery group, beset with lessening contributions, was having to provide material and supplies in large amounts.

The need of outboard motors at the moment seems to be partially solved, especially in the low horsepower field. Latest acquisition of motors was when Gale Products, Galesburg, Ill., gave three Bucaneers. Ten motors, donated by manufacturers, have already been received. The Bucaneers are yet to arrive, it was noted at the armory, recovery headquarters. Twenty motors were sent by the Coast Guard at St. Louis but they are of greater horsepower and suffice for use only on barges or large craft.

Many supplies were being paid for by the Floyd County Board of Education, some of it being acquired from the Army Surplus depot at Lexington. One order two weeks ago was for 600 pairs of rubber gloves to be issued to searchers. This item typifies the large amount of supplies needed. Over $200 worth of raincoats and rain hats were bought by Graham Burchett, operations director, last week for use by men on the river in rainy weather.

Supplies are checked out each morning by the National Guard or the civilian personnel to approximately 25 boats each day. Large amounts of gasoline, much of it contributed by local dealers, is consumed daily.

Heading the list of contributors to the Recovery committee last week were the officers of the United Mine Workers organization who met at Pikeville. Next largest contributor was James B. Goble, of Emma, who lost all three of his children, with one remaining in the river.

The other contributors follow:
Mrs. Norma Stepp, Fred H. McGinnis, Banner (Ky.) Sunday school, Central Flower Fund, Mrs. Charles Jacobs, Mrs. Andrew Staub, Cow Creek Sunday school, Oscar Horne, Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31, and Mrs. Elizabeth Baker. The Prestonsburg School Disaster Committee, headed by Burl Spurlock, donated $1,500 recently to the recovery group.

These two volunteer rescue squads have spent week-ends searching the river since the tragic bus accident of February. Their efforts to aid in the recovery of the children's bodies have evoked admiration from citizens of this area. Shown in the top picture is the Morristown Rescue Squad and, below, the Knoxville squad. The three women, called the Crewettes, accompany their husbands on missions of aid. (Photos by Quentin Allen)

GOV. CHANDLER GIVES AREA'S DISTRESS DATA

Eastern Kentucky's economic distress came in for a major part before the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, Washington, April 14. He bolstered with adequate statistics his contention that this section of the state was one of the region's most severely stricken areas.

"The most serious degree of economic distress is being felt in the eastern section of Kentucky, which, in addition to suffering severe unemployment, is still fighting to recover from last year's disastrous floods," the Kentucky governor told the Congressional group.

"In February, 35 counties in the eastern quarter of the state, though they contain only 17 percent of Kentucky's insured labor force, accounted for 29 percent of all insured unemployment in the state," the governor continued. "The average weekly number of claims jumped to 21.5 percent of its estimated total insured employment. This rate is more than 50 percent greater than the state as a whole and more than three times the present rate of 7.1 percent."

Chandler, before going to Washington to testify of this section's ills, received a telegram from B. F. Reed, Drift mine operator and chairman of the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission. Reed wired the governor that "unemployment especially critical problem in Eastern Kentucky at present as recent report prepared at our request by Kentucky Department of Economic Development conclusively proves."

Rising unemployment in this area was also reflected in the increasing number of persons receiving surplus food commodities from the Federal government, Chandler told the Congressmen. Twenty Eastern Kentucky counties reported 94,242 surplus food recipients in February, an increase of 9,167 since last November. The number of persons receiving these foods represented 17 percent of their combined populations.

"As is well known, unemployment rates in most of Eastern Kentucky consistently have been higher than normal state and national levels. Conditions have been aggravated greatly in recent years by the steep decline in coal mining employment without offsetting expansion of jobs opportunities in other fields. As a result of increased mechanization, only 29,500 miners were needed in 1957 to produce the same amount of coal as 48,000 workers mined in 1950. Taken as a whole Eastern Kentucky has suffered a net loss of 9,700 insured jobs in all non-farm industry between January, 1950 and January, 1957. Per capita incomes in many counties in Eastern Kentucky are under $600 per year—among the very lowest in the entire nation.

"As you are well aware, the full impact of more than 20 percent of the labor force being without work is not felt until it has persisted beyond the time when the unemployment insurance claimants are no longer eligible to draw benefits. The cushioning effects of these payments will be greater in a low income area like Eastern Kentucky, which is experiencing a substantial influx of unemployed former residents still receiving compensation checks based on higher wages earned in employment in other states. These people temporarily have as much income as many employed persons in the area.

"A very large percentage of insured workers in this Region who have been laid off by Kentucky employers are still drawing unemployment compensation, but the number of unemployed in this area exhausting their benefit rights has been rising—increasing from 430 to 694 for the last two months reported. However, the total of 3,153 exhaustions for the seven-month period ending January, 1958, is small in comparison to the 15,899 persons receiving compensation checks in February and who will be without income in a few months if business conditions do not improve."

Chandler informed the committee that he was not merely interested in alleviating the recession but that he desired long range plans to insure permanent recovery for Eastern Kentucky.

"Coal is one of the nation's most important natural resources," he said, and urged the establishment of a Federally-sponsored Coal Research Institute to develop new uses for coal and its by-products.

"I believe that scientific brains and an adequately-financed program can unlock the door to real prosperity for Eastern Kentucky," he concluded.

Chandler, before going to Washington to testify of this section's ills, received a telegram from B. F. Reed, Drift mine operator and chairman of the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission. Reed wired the governor that "unemployment especially critical problem in Eastern Kentucky at present as recent report prepared at our request by Kentucky Department of Economic Development conclusively proves."

Says Twice-Daily Prayer
Can Change Lives of Men

Prayer is far more than an S-O-S we send up to God in an emergency. It should be like breathing—a day-in, day-out response to our Heavenly Father. That kind of prayer can add an entirely new dimension to our lives.

So writes the Very Rev. James A. Pike, dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York and recently-elected bishop-coadjutor of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of California. No day, Dr. Pike writes in the May Reader's Digest, should be so crowded that definite times are not set aside for prayer: five or ten minutes in the morning, ten or 15 in the evening. Such prayers twice daily—and at any other time we may feel like turning our hearts to God—can make all the difference in the quality of life lived in between.

It is a fine, unselfish thing to ask God in our prayers to help others, Dr. Pike writes, but it is not enough. We should be willing to do something about the things for which we pray. A woman who asks help for a neighbor suddenly taken to the hospital is less than sincere if she does not visit her sick friend, or offer to help. A prayer for good government or world peace can hardly ring true if we do not bother to inform ourselves on public affairs so we can vote intelligently.

"In linking our prayers with action," Dr. Pike writes, "we should be like those monks who not only pray for the unfortunate but also take in the stranger; who not only pray for good crops, but also till the soil."

The Digest article, "How Should We Pray?" is condensed from the book, "The Next Day," published by Doubleday & Co.

Dr. M. D. Flannery, county Republican chairman, vouchsafed another anecdote that Hawkins, a large man, well over 6 feet tall, attended at his own expense the San Francisco organization meeting of the United Nations and proposed his own U. N. charter, which sounded singularly like the Constitution of the United States.

Hawkins, who had obtained his license by "reading law" many years ago, kept no office and seldom practiced. But his occasional appearances in court were usually marked by some humorous, unorthodox interpretation of the law that confounded the opposing attorneys and upset judicial decorum.

In recognition of his party services, his own precinct at Elkhorn City, which he always carried in any election he chose to enter, was named the G. Tom Hawkins Precinct several years ago.

Hawkins is survived by his wife.

Frankfort, April 28 (Spl.)—Kentucky's Department of Insurance has made another attack upon "questionable" insurance companies operating in Kentucky.

This time the attack carried to Texas. Insurance Commissioner C. P. Thurman said a financially unsound firm—Highway Insurance Underwriters, Austin—has been asked to surrender its certificates of authority to operate in the Commonwealth.

An examination of the company's annual statement showed its liabilities exceeded its assets by $364,238, he said.

Colorful Figure
Succumbs Sunday

G. Tom Hawkins, 78, colorful Pike county Republican figure, licensed attorney, farmer and for 52 years a country schoolteacher, died in the Methodist hospital Sunday of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Hawkins was a perennial candidate for public office, but served only one term, as a State representative, 1904-06.

He once won the Republican nomination for attorney general, but was defeated, as he was when he sought the G.O.P. nomination for United States senator against John Sherman Cooper four years ago.

Known widely for his wit and humor, he was said, according to one anecdote about him, to have upset the dignity of the State House of Representatives by removing his shoes and resting his feet on his desk.

Dr. M. D. Flannery, county Republican chairman, vouchsafed another anecdote that Hawkins, a large man, well over 6 feet tall, attended at his own expense the San Francisco organization meeting of the United Nations and proposed his own U. Growing Dahlias
By DAVID Y. GILLESPIE
Assistant County Agent

There are few flowers which offer such variety in-form and coloring as do the dahlias. The tall-growing varieties may be used along borders and hedges, the dwarf sorts are more suitable for bedding purposes, and all types and varieties are wonderful for cutting.

Among the most beautiful of all dahlias both for bloom in the yard and for cutting are the large single varieties such as Newport Wonder and Tango Century.

Dahlias prefer a site protected from severe winds but where they get full sunlight. Any soil that is fairly rich will grow dahlias, but they prefer a deep loam which is well supplied with organic matter and has good rainage.

Dahlias can be planted any time after danger of a killing frost is past. If you prefer the best in fall bloom and color, however, plant after June 15.

Only one tuber with a single growing point should be planted in a hill. Set the tuber on its side with the "eye" up, 4 inches below the soil level in clay soils, and 6 inches in sandy soils. Cover the growing point with 1 to 2 inches of soil, and later fill in as the stem develops.

There are three methods of reproducing dahlias—by division of the tuberous roots, cuttings, and seeds. The most common method is to divide the clumps into individual tubers. Be sure there is an eye or bud on each tuber.

Dahlias should have fertilizer which is low in nitrogen and high in phosphate and potash, such as 5-10-10.

Dahlias require large amounts of water to develop the best flowers. Cultivation and mulching will help increase moisture, but there will be times when watering is necessary. Late afternoon or evening watering is best.

There are many other summer-flowering bulbs which can be used to beautify the home surroundings during the summer and fall months. Among these are the anemones, begonias, gladioli and the iris.

An advertised product will be chosen over an unadvertised one, by nine out of ten shoppers.

HARMAN FAMILY

A letter from one of the Indiana trio who came down to investigate any possible relationship the Floyd county, Indiana, Harmans had with the Floyd county, Kentucky family of the same name. The writer is Orville L. Davis, Director of Church Relations, DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind. His grandfather was a Harman. He thinks he is descended from Cutliff Harman of North Carolina who had a son, Matthias, who moved to Indiana.

"The Harman genealogy certainly was a source of information," he writes. "It would have been fun to spend days tracing the activities and migrations of the descendants of Heinrich Hermann (Harman). Maybe I can get a copy of the book through our college library from the Virginia Historical Society.

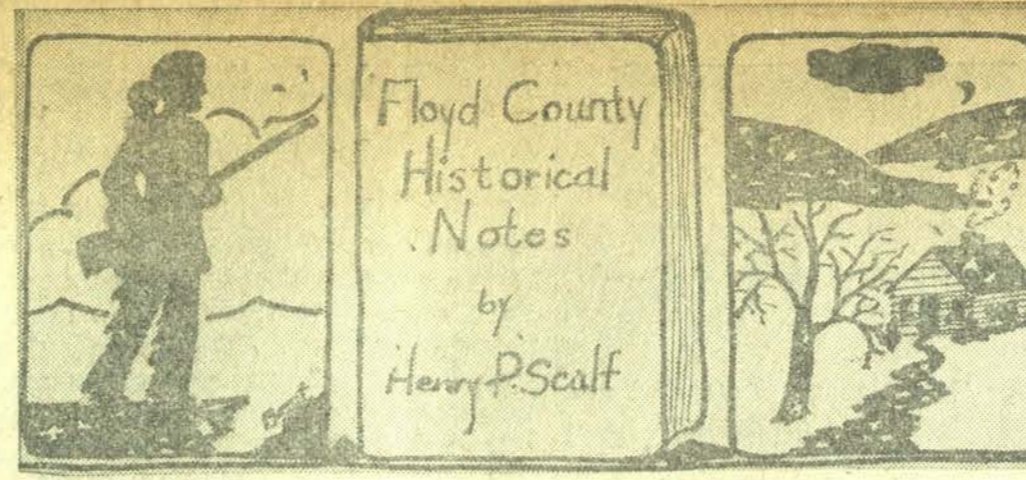

"I managed to copy the brief statement about Cutliff Harman who had a son, Matthias, who came to Indiana, it does not say when or to where. My great grandfather was named Matthias, but I think he was born in 1810. This leaves a gap — a missing link — as you know. Maybe we can fill in the missing link somehow. I am certain that this must be the same family and deeply appreciate the guidance and help you have given. It would be wonderful to come back sometime when there would not be such a hurry."

THE FAUBUS FAMILY

Following the Civil War, scores of Eastern Kentucky families immigrated to Arkansas. Prior to that the Harrells, Hatfields, Browns and others from Floyd county had helped to colonize the state. This columnist had a great uncle, Wesley Stratton, of Mare Creek, who went with the flood tide of immigrants to the new state and settled near Little Rock.

All of which is brought to mind by an article in the Sentinel-Echo, of London, Laurel county, Ky., recently. It is on the family of Gov. Orval Faubus, of pro-segregation fame. His family originated in Laurel and Rockcastle counties and moved to Arkansas following the Great Rebellion.

The article from the Sentinel-Echo follows:

In getting up material for the Diamond Jubilee Edition and Laurel County History, we ran across the Faubus name—variously spelled Forbes, Faubes, Faubus and Faubush — many times, but were unable to learn what had become of the family, though some resided here until the early years of this century.

In one of his several, historical articles in The Mountain Echo in the 1890's, while he was working with the Sue Bennett Memorial School here, Rev. J. J. Dickey related how John Faubus, a Revolutionary soldier, had settled at the mouth of Pond Creek, which was in Laurel county until the creation of Jackson county in 1858.

In a report by Mrs. Anna Walker Burns, March 24, 1932, listing Revolutionary soldiers who had been granted pensions while residents of Laurel county, "John Forbes, private and sergeant, North Carolina line, (made application) March 4, 1831, and (was granted pension) Dec. 2, 1833. Age 76 years." Isaac and Hugh Faubus, apparently sons of John, listed land on "waters of Rockcastle river" in Laurel county's first assessment for collection of 1837 taxes.

We wrote Governor Faubus of these and other items mentioning members of the family, and received an immediate response including this paragraph:

The Faubus family of Northwest Arkansas came to this section from Laurel and Jackson counties shortly after the Civil War. The names of Isaac, Ellis and John are very prevalent among the members of the family here. My father's name is John Samuel Faubus, whose father was Henry Faubus. In fact, the Isaac and Ellis Faubus names you mention could be the same ones who emigrated to Arkansas at that time."

DOYLE LOG SCALES

Recovered as a bit of trivia from old papers is an item that only oldsters or a few logging men would know the use. It is Doyle's Log Scale. With this card a lumberman, logger or timber buyer could determine how many "cubes" were in a log. A cube was a cubic foot. Down the sides were five rows of figures of logs from eight feet to 17 feet long. Down the center were the diameters, from eight to 32 inches. You took this card after determining the size, and figured the number of cubes.

There were other cards, some in use now, to determine the number of board feet in a log. But years ago most timber men used the cube method in arriving at the value of a log. The cube cards were rather scarce in the logging sections and were highly prized.

THEY MISSED THE HANGING

A letter from Miss Maurine Mayo, Washington, D. C., who kindly read my story on the hanging of Bad Talt Hall. In the story I told how a delegation from Prestonsburg started to Wise, Va., to see the Beaver man hanged, but got drunk and turned back at Hindman.

Miss Mayo comments:

"I am sorry that mother could not have read your book for I have heard her tell the story of the crimes so many times. I had forgotten, if she told me, that the folks from Prestonsburg became too drunk to attend the hanging of Talt Hall. I remember she said that folks from home went to the 'affair' but, perhaps, she didn't know that they failed to reach their destination."

Miss Mayo's mother was Mrs. Annie Porter Mayo, wife of John Dick Mayo, of Prestonsburg. She was steeped in the lore and history of Big Sandy people and her remembrances, if she had written them down, would have been a major contribution to our regional history.

COAL WASTE HAMPERING

Recovery Efforts, Said By Committee Searching For Bodies of Children

Coal dust pollution of the Big Sandy is hampering operations to recover the bodies of the school-children remaining in the river after the tragedy of Feb. 28, it was pointed out by the Schoolchildren Recovery committee this week. Visibility under the water is completely blacked out most of the time, according to Graham Burchett, director of operations.

Several moves were being made last week to correct this condition, it was said by M. V. Clark, Floyd county health administrator. Lewis Birkle, head of the Kentucky stream Pollution committee, Louisville, is a representative this week in Pike county checking on three possible sources of pollution there. Three Pike county sources have been identified, two of them have promised to cease and one denied pollution.

It was pointed out to the Recovery committee Monday evening that some of the contamination is coming from Virginia. Laban Jackson, Kentucky Commissioner of Conservation, and member of the interstate committee which seeks to prevent interstate steam pollution, was working with the Virginia authorities this week to get operators on the river's headstreams to dispose of their coal washing residue in places other than the river or its tributaries.

Clark points out that this county has or had six sources of coal dust pollution but he says that two of these mines did not intentionally dispose of washing residue in the river. Sudden stream freshets at these two broke or opened up the remaining dikes and allowed the washings to escape. This was corrected at once, it was said.

At a meeting held here at the courthouse a few weeks ago all mine operators who were asked to attend promised to cease pollution. The meeting, called by County Attorney Robert S. Wellman, was productive of much good, Clarke says, and the degree of pollution lessened after that meet.

As of Wednesday rising water muddied the Big Sandy so it is difficult to say whether pollution is improved much or not.

Kentucky has 1,100 wood-using mills, which employ 18,000 workers with an annual payroll of around $37,000,000.

WHY CAN'T I SAVE?

How many times have you heard this question? Perhaps you have asked it of yourself. FLOYD FEDERAL offers this plan for saving success:

- When money comes in, separate it according to plan—
1. Savings Money.
  2. Fixed Expenses.
  3. Spending Money. Shop Wisely— earmark some for "fun."
- Saving doesn't mean spending.

Saving is choosing how and when to spend. Before committing your dollars to any of the various types of financial institutions, ask yourself some questions:

- IS IT SAFE? Your money at Floyd Federal is insured by an agency of the U. S. Government up to $10,000.00 on each account.
- WILL MY MONEY EARN MORE? Floyd Federal pays 3 1/2% compounded each June 30th and December 31st.
- WILL THE FULL AMOUNT BE THERE WHEN I WANT IT? Your money at Floyd Federal is ready for you when you want it.

The smart saver always gets the answers to these questions. We think the reason Floyd Federal is one of the fastest growing financial institutions in Kentucky is because it furnishes the answers.

MEDICO TEAMS TO TAKE PART

In Foreign Aid Plan To Remote Corners Of Asia This Summer

This summer, six medical teams will head for remote corners of Asia, taking part in an ex-Navy doctor's plan for a new kind of privately-financed foreign aid.

The low-cost operation, titled MEDICO (short for Medical International Cooperation) is the brainchild of Dr. Thomas A. Dooley, of St. Louis, who will head one of the groups. He estimates it will cost the International Rescue Committee $50,000 to keep a team in the field 16 months.

This is how he describes their mission, in his forthcoming book, "The Edge of Tomorrow," condensed in the May Reader's Digest:

"We'll be treating some of the sickest people in the world. We will do our best, wherever we go, to let the plain people know that Americans really care."

This will be Dr. Dooley's third trip to Indo-China. The first time, the Navy sent him, to help Vietnamese fleeing Communism. The second time, he went to the landlocked kingdom of Laos as a private citizen, using his own savings and donated supplies in a 15-month battle against disease, dirt and ignorance.

In Laos, with two million population there was only one other doctor who was a medical graduate by Western standards. Dr. Dooley and his assistants traveled over jungle trails dispensing soap and antibiotics in large doses.

Local witch doctors fought them, until the Americans accepted the witch doctors as colleagues "whose somewhat different methods we respected, though we often disagreed with them." One witch doctor, Old Joe, was a consultant: "We would administer penicillin, and Joe would invoke the proper spirits. We would splint a fracture; Old Joe would tie the magic red, white and black strings around the splints."

When he returned to the United States, Dr. Dooley told his experience to Dr. Peter Commanduras, of George Washington University Medical School. He urged Dr. Dooley to put the idea before the International Rescue Committee, which took the medical aid program under its financial wing.

Dr. Dooley's book will be published by Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, Inc., May 22.

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

A humorous story-teller recently mentioned "careless weeds" and set me to thinking about the weeds that used to grow around our house and gardens and especially our names for them. Sometimes our names are to be found in the botany books; most often they are not. We might start with the jokester's Careless Weed, otherwise Red-rooted Pigweed, or he may have meant Thorny Pigweed. It certainly loves the loose rich soil of a garden and seems to thrive on dry weather or any other kind that will kill off the cabbage or tomatoes or other late-summer plants. It has millions of seeds and has never suffered enough for the breed not to continue and to furnish work for the gardener with his hoe or his more modern instruments. Then there is Lamb's Quarters, a thrifty plant that grows equally fast at the edges of manure piles or at the edges of the garden. Hosts of them used to appear at the side of the sweet potato bed, where there was an ample amount of nitrogen. In the early days of the plant it is edible; at least, I have eaten several pounds of it in wild greens and am still around. Of course, a good, rich place is a "natural" for Cockle-burs. No more adaptable plant grows than this tough customer. If the ground is too wet early in the spring, the bur comes up late but always produces seeds. I have seen Cockle-burs as tall as I am, but I have also seen little stalks, only a few inches tall covered with seeds. All farm boys know about these burs in the manes and tails of stock; these are the ones that used to be in the cow's tail when she switched it clear around the milker's neck. Poets who are used to sing about joys of farm life had never milked such a cow. When I was small, we were told that the Cockle-bur had two seeds (which is true), but that only one would come up in one year, leaving the other one for the next year. When you think how hardy the plants can be, you can believe anything.

"How dear to my heart," goes one of our early sentimental songs. I can truly say that I enjoy Dog Fennel. It is rarely a garden pest; it prefers the barnyard, usually rich, hard-packed land. If Dog Fennel were as scarce as orchids, poets would rave about it, and young women would vie with each other in bragging about the exotic corsages of Dog Fennel that their boy friends had sent. Lowell said that very thing, in a little more dignified way, about the Dandelion. The species of Dandelion now so common and troublesome in our yards had not penetrated to Fidelity when I was a boy; the plants with this same sort of bloom were to be found along the edges of cultivated fields or along streams or in the open woods. Again, if it were rare, what a great to-do would be made over it, such as the International Dandelion-Growers Association!

Over-fertilization of our soils sometimes brought us a plague of dock of several species. The narrow-leaved species was one of the numerous plants added to wild greens, but superstitious people swore that the broad-leaved type was poisonous. I added some of these questionable leaves once and suffered no bad effects. I will admit that I would not want to eat a whole serving of just this sort.

Even weeds reveal the folkishness of the old-time garden and its place in the family economy. Careless Weeds are a key to this interrelation of man and plants.

In the horse lot, which was our local name for barnyard, grew giant Jimson Weeds, with their horn-like blooms. Some of our flower-loving neighbors grew a perennial type of this weed, called, correctly, by them Datura. But it was only our barnyard weed dressed up and growing among exotic plants. When the weeds get mature and tough, it takes a good weed-cutter to chop them down, a task often assigned to me.

Rich, neglected soil also produced its Burdock. Wide, pale-green leaves always remind me of Rhubarb, but I never tried to eat any of them. The burs in late fall are even more pestiferous than the ordinary Cockle-burs. When we raised sheep, we felt anything but pleasure in trying to get the burs of this species out of the wool. Very bad boys sometimes took a handful of them to school and rubbed a few of them into the hair of the girls they liked best.

Funeral rites were conducted Sunday at 2 p.m. from the Big Branch Regular Baptist church at Thomas and burial was made in the family cemetery under the direction of Moore Funeral Home.

Waterfield Urges Greater Emphasis On Higher Education

Frankfort, April 28 (Spl.)—Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield called attention recently to the state government's "vital concern" in education beyond the high school.

Speaking before the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers, Waterfield said in 1956 only 13 per cent of Kentucky's college-age youth were in college, while the national percentage was 19.

The Lieutenant Governor said Kentucky is losing a great potential of brains because many high school students, including bright ones, do not have an opportunity to attend college.

"We hope Kentucky's economic advance will permit us to close this gap, soon," he said.

Waterfield expressed hope that the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers "will do all you can toward interesting young people in the teaching and government professions."

In the speech, Waterfield also said:

"The coming years will challenge state government to make the best use of its resources to meet the needs of our rapidly changing times. Our educational system will reflect the demands of industrialization and a changed agricultural economy and the nuclear and space ages.

"I think the state government should try to interest trained personnel to enter state government service. This offers many opportunities and undoubtedly in the future will be more attractive if adequate laws governing tenure are enacted."

Modern Families Everywhere— are Living Better Electrically...

More time for "fancy" cooking!

More time for relaxation!

More time for hobbies!

"All of our appliances are electric... real time savers! That's why we have more time for hobbies and pastimes!"

"Ours is a busy family," Mrs. Charles E. Buck says. "My husband and daughter Barbara have many interests. In addition to my regular housework, I do a lot of baking, sewing and gardening and much church work. We couldn't possibly participate in these activities to the extent we do without plenty of help from electricity. My range is my favorite helper, and I never feel uneasy when Barbara tries her hand at cooking or baking. It's safe!"

Mr. Buck, a sales manager, agrees. "You've got a lot to like when you have the appliances we have in our home. We're living better with electricity, and any other way of living, in my opinion, would be thought of as 'old-timey'. And penny for penny, I think we're getting more for our money in electric service than anything else we could buy today."

Here are some of the Buck's modern electric appliances —

- Range
- Washer
- Clothes Dryer
- Blankets
- Sewing Machine
- Toaster
- Radios
- Television Sets
- Record Player
- Water Heater
- Refrigerator
- Coffee Maker

Floyd County Group Aids Search For Body Of Licking River Victim

J. H. Cole, 19, drowned in the Licking river Saturday, April 12, shortly after noon when he is believed to have attempted to ford the river on horseback.

Searchers worked tirelessly three days and a half searching the river before finding the body about 10:30 Wednesday morning.

Several men and much equipment was sent by the Prestonsburg Schoolchildren Recovery Committee to aid in the search.

With his clothes caught in a vine, Cole's body was found about 18 inches under water and near the bank about half mile below where he drowned.

Coroner L. H. Owens examined the body and found the neck was broken. It was thought the broken neck was incidental to the accident.

Searchers found where young Cole had ridden the horse into the river at a point about a half mile below Gordon Ford. Apparently the bank had broken off when the horse neared the water and the horse and its rider tumbled into the stream.

The youth was last seen a few minutes after noon by his sister, Londa Sue. She said she saw him riding the horse bareback across a field toward the river.

Noah Rudd, of Salyersville, the youth's grandfather and former Sheriff of Magoffin county, said the family began a search and found where the boy had ridden to the river and noted that the brink of the bank had broken off where the horse entered the water. Searching further, they found the horse had come out of the river, downstream about 50 feet. And the bridge was nearby, apparently having been pawed off by the horse.

Rudd probed the river with a pole at the scene and then came to West Liberty to enlist aid in the search. He said the water was about 6 to 8 feet deep at the site and still deeper a little further downstream. Recent rains had swollen the river.

Early Sunday morning Ormand Lewis, Earl Ray Sheets and others went to the scene with motor boats and commenced searching for the body. Later, volunteers commenced a systematic dragging operation. Two ropes were tied across the river, one downstream from the first. Four boats were anchored to the downstream rope and three to the upper rope. Men in the boats probed the water yard by yard, then dropped downstream a few yards and continued.

One of the boats on the upper rope manned by Tommy Brooks of Jones Creek and a Deaton from Breathitt county, found the body.

Additional Funds Seen As Available For State Roads

Frankfort, April 28 (Spl.)—The State Department estimates an additional $67,050,000 worth of federal-aid road-construction contracts can be awarded in 1958 and 1959 because of newly-available money under the recently-enacted Federal Highway Act.

The estimate was announced by Highway Commissioner James W. Martin, who said it was based on preliminary figures available at the State Highway Department and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads office here.

A departmental table of preliminary estimates, prepared under Martin's supervision, gave this picture:

Approximately $70,900,000 in additional federal-aid will be provided for the fiscal years 1958-59 and 1959-60 under the new highway act. State matching funds of $24,950,000 will make a combined federal-state total of $95,850,000 available. Of this, about $67,050,000 will be spent for construction and $28,800,000 for engineering and right-of-way buying.

Martin said Kentuckians' approval of the state's $100,000,000 bond issue in 1956 for highway construction places Kentucky "in a position to match the federal-aid funds without starving other programs," such as rural roads and state-financed projects. A total of $70,000,000 in bonds has been sold already to match federal-aid, the only purpose for which bond proceeds can be used under state law.

The highway commissioner said departmental officials "contemplate having all the additional money available for construction for the 1958-59 and 1959-60 fiscal years under contract in the summer of 1959."

New Law Increases Vets' Home Loan

Frankfort, April 28 (Spl.)—New housing law signed by the President April 1, enables more veterans to buy or build homes. Deadline for application by World War II veterans was extended to July 25, 1960 both for direct and guaranteed loans and deadline for Korean veterans is the same for direct loans but is January 31, 1965 for guaranteed loans.

The new law also increases the maximum amount of direct loans from $10,000 to $13,500. There is $350 million for use in direct home loans to veterans in small cities, town and rural area. An important change in the direct loan program is provisions for builders to receive advance commitments upon payment of a 2 percent commitment fee.

Interest rates were increased from 4 1/2 to 4 3/4 percent. Other laws provide that veterans who have used their GI loan to purchase homes which were later sold, with the loan being completely paid, may have their entitlement restored if certain conditions are met.

Veterans needing assistance or information regarding GI loans should visit a representative of the Kentucky Disabled Ex-Service Men's Board.

SUIT IS FILED TO RECOVER FUNDS PAID TO HALL FIRM

Frankfort, Ky., April 18.—Defense attorneys argued Friday that the Highway Department had full authority to rent equipment from the Hall Trucking Company last year for 13 Knott county road projects.

Lexington attorney John Young Brown, representing the Hall firm, cited a statute that gives the department power to "make such surveys, prepare such maps, employ such personnel, and obtain such equipment" as is needed to establish a rural secondary-road system.

But Attorney General Jo M. Ferguson said that statute does not relieve the department of the legal requirement to seek competitive bids before undertaking any road project with its own forces.

The attorneys clashed in final arguments on the Hall Trucking Company case before Squire N. Williams, Jr., special commissioner hearing the case for Franklin Circuit Judge William B. Ardery.

Williams will study the evidence and law on the case and make a recommendation to Ardery for final ruling.

Ferguson, acting for the State, suing for the return of $66,960 paid to the Hall firm and its predecessor, C. & C. Trucking Company, both of Hindman. The companies are owned by Richard Hall, son of David Hall, the Highway Department road supervisor for Knott county.

Other defendants in the case are Highway Commissioner James W. Martin, who was finance commissioner, Ward J. Oates, then Martin's deputy.

The defendant list also includes Rural Highway Commissioner J. B. Wells, O. J. West, the department's Pikeville district engineer; State Treasurer Henry H. Carter, and the two bonding companies that are sureties on the official bonds of Martin, Oates, Wells, and West.

Carter was made a party to the suit only to determine his rights in refusing to pay additional sums claimed by the Hall firms.

Clifford E. Smith, attorney representing Martin and Oates, said depositions taken in the case do not show any evidence that the two officials are personally or critically liable.

J. D. Buckman, Jr., attorney representing Wells, said his client had every legal right to contract with Hall for the rental of the equipment.

Brown charged the Ferguson suit was not filed to get the state's money back, but was in pursuit of "a line of political command."

He said that the same equipment rental procedure had been followed for years and no one had ever challenged it.

Brown said that "four identical contracts" for the rental of equipment, made by the department in 1950, had been made a part of the Hall record.

Ferguson, he continued, was an assistant attorney general and chief counsel to the Highway Department at that time, and apparently raised no objection.

"A law that didn't apply under the Clements Administration suddenly becomes a holy directive under the Administration of Mr. Chandler," Brown charged.

Ferguson countered that he had never seen the contracts and had never advised the department that such procedure was within the law.

And he said there is no shred of evidence in the record to show that the contracts were not approved after competitive bids had been sought.

The record shows clearly, the attorney said, that the department did not seek competitive bids before entering into a contract with Hall for rental of the equipment.

Ferguson said the "whole procedure" by which the projects were carried out and by which the documents in the case were approved by the Highway department was irregular.

"The papers themselves show irregularity on their faces, because they show the work was done before it was ever authorized," he claimed.

One claim approved for payment to Hall shows that one bulldozer worked 110 hours on May 17 and 18, 1957—when the total possible hours in that period was only 48, he said.

Ferguson said Hall did not own a single piece of equipment but rented it from other firms, complete with operators, and re-rented it to the Highway Department at a high rate.

Finance Department officials knew this, he charged, and after investigation did negotiate with Hall for a reduction in the rates.

Wells, Ferguson said, revealed himself in his deposition as "one of the most forgetful of all State officials. In his testimony, 29 times he used the expression, I don't recall, or I have no recollection of that."

Marines Teach French Lesson At Santo Domingo

One of the many traditional jobs of the U. S. Marine Corps started way back in 1800 during a little-known naval war with France.

France and Great Britain, except for a few local and temporary peaceful gaps, fought each other continuously from 1792 until 1815. The United States, still an infant among powerful nations, found itself in the middle.

Trying to keep its recently won independence by remaining neutral, the United States nevertheless found it economically necessary to carry on trade with both sides. This prompted both France and Britain to capture American merchant ships on the charge of trading with the enemy.

Difficulties with England on this score were more or less settled by the Jay Treaty signed in 1795. But diplomatic relations with France went down hill fast and her attacks on American merchant ships increased.

Finally, on May 28, 1798, a fed-up Congress authorized seizure of armed French ships operating in American waters. This opened the undeclared naval war which lasted until 1801.

To bottle-up French raiders in their main bases, the bulk of the American fleet was sent to blockade French ports in the Caribbean Sea and off French Guiana on the northeastern coast of South America.

The rest of the fleet sailed on Atlantic patrols and convoy duty. Marines served with distinction aboard most of the ships, often turning the tide of a close sea-duel in favor of the Americans.

In those days, it was the job of the Marine Corps to bolster Navy crews with detachments of trained fighters; men who could snipe from the yards, fight on deck or invade a foreign beach—whatever the occasion called for.

May 12, 1800 is remembered most from that period in Marine Corps history.

It was on that date that a force of 80 Marines and sailors sailed boldly from the Caribbean into Puerto Plata Harbor, Santo Domingo. It was broad daylight. There were 500 French defenders in the area.

The object of the expedition was to capture an English ship, the "Sandwich," being held by the French.

Beneath the guns of the defending French fort, they boarded and captured the Sandwich without loss of a single man.
