This Town— That World

NOW IS THE TIME

Floyd county should get busy, now, and raise the money this Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad needs.

THEY'RE DOING A GOOD JOB

It isn't often that we ever attempt to correct a weekly newspaper. We sometimes like to quarrel with the dailies which is like a terrier worrying a Great Dane, but never our weekly partners in misery.

That group, meeting here recently, did earnestly take Whitesburg and Letcher county into consideration when it talked roads with Highway Commissioner Oates.

One road mentioned was from Jellico, Tenn., east via Whitesburg to Ky. 119, near Jenkins. Another was Ky. 80 branching at Dwarf east of Ky. 119, near Jenkins.

Letcher county has big problems, they are problems most Eastern Kentucky counties share, and we are all for those folks. But we would not be honest, did we not give the Planning Commission the credit that we think is its due.

HOPELESS TASK?

Although the sentiment hereabouts might be called "secesh," there are those who are convinced it can't be done. "Why," said one acquaintance, "I know, we can't secede. My part of the county has been trying to get away from Floyd for 20 years, and we can't even do that."

Some of our excuses remind us of the little boy who, looking in the mirror and seeing a dirty face, washed the mirror.

MINE BLAST UNDER PROBE

One of two mines operated by Wes Vance, of Wayland, on Little Doty Creek, Left Beaver, was dynamited Tuesday night, and a case of dynamite placed in the driftmouth of a second mine operated nearby by Vance failed to explode, the Sheriff's office here was told Wednesday.

Sheriff Hershell Warrens and State Detective Chester D. Potter went to the blast scene, Wednesday, to investigate the dynamiting.

Vance told Sheriff Warrens that the blast in the No. 1 mine jammed its driftmouth with 100 tons of rock. He did not indicate if any obvious clues to the identity of the dynamiters exist.

One report received here said some dissatisfaction had been expressed by workers at the mines, but officials here did not link this with the dynamiting.

LUNG CANCER DATA IS GIVEN

Public Health Service Says Six Died in County During '56 of Lung Cancer

(Special to The Times) NEW YORK, Aug. — Of special interest at this time are figures just released by the U. S. Public Health Service on the proportion of deaths from lung cancer in Floyd county and in other areas throughout the country.

It follows a report made by the PHS, based on a study of 200,000 veterans, that lung cancer as a cause of death is ten times more prevalent among regular cigarette smokers than among non-smokers.

The follow-up report by the health service contains the vital statistics figures for every section of the United States. It shows the cancer toll, by place of residence, for the year ending January 1, 1957. There were 33 deaths in the year among residents of Floyd county caused by cancer of all types, according to the report.

Lung cancer was responsible for 6, or 18.2 percent of them. Nationally, it ran to 13.0 percent of the total and, in the state of Kentucky, to 11.1 percent.

The federal agency sees a strong tie between cigarette smoking and cancer. It finds, in addition, that

Hayes Machinery Division Gets First Large Order, Is Announcement Made

A. E. Hayes, president of Hayes Metal Products, Pikeville, announced this week receipt of a $16,000 order from the Island Creek Coal Co., Holden, W. Va.

The machinery consists of steel loading ramps for shuttle cars, air-driven utility carriers and other air tools and machinery. The utility cars, comparatively an innovation in mechanized mining, are propelled by compressed air and act both as an air terminal at the face and for carrying various air tools which are expected to increase the efficiency in maintenance on each section.

The cars will be equipped to drill, roof bolt, saw timbers, and do other maintenance work.

The coal company plans to replace all of its present expensive and cumbersome roof-bolting machines with the new cars. This is one of the first major orders for the Hayes machinery division. Formerly the Hayes firm manufactured truck bodies exclusively, but the decline in mine business in this area has forced the firm to diversify into other fields.

Public Asked To Help Decide Nights Library Here To Remain Open

The Floyd County and Eastern Kentucky Regional Library here will soon be open two nights a week for the convenience of the public, and this week an attempt was being made to determine which two nights of the week would be best suited to the largest number of people.

Persons to whom letters were addressed were urged to reply, stating the nights they prefer, at once. The library will be open from 6 till 9 p.m., it is planned. Replies will be tabulated and the majority will rule.

Installation by the City Council of outside lights illuminating the surrounding grounds and willingness of library workers to arrange their working hours have made possible the evening hours for library service, Lon C. Hill, chairman of the Floyd County Library Board, said.

SISTER HURT, MOORE HELD

Woman Is Hospitalized After Attack; 2 Places Burglarized within Week

Russell Moore, of the McDowell section of the county, was jailed here Tuesday and charged with attempt to kill on a statement made by his mother, Mrs. Lee Moore. He and two of his children allegedly severely beat his sister, Mrs. Melda Caudill.

Mrs. Caudill was taken to Memorial hospital at McDowell and continued under treatment Tuesday. Hearing for Moore has been set today (Thursday). He was jailed here by Deputy Sheriff Harold Johnson.

Chief of Police A. J. Reed, of Martin, who was booked at the jail here on a peace warrant by Deputy Sheriffs Clyde and Hersell Lester, was released Tuesday afternoon. The case was dismissed, it was said.

County and state officers this week were investigating the looting of two places — the Spurlock store and the postoffice at Printer and the Chat 'n' Chew Drive-in restaurant at Lancer. It was the second break-in at the Lancer place of business in the last two months. The first, committed shortly after it was purchased by Jack Hodge and Clifford Wright, netted about $9 in cash. The loot in the second break was nothing. Cigarette and music machines were opened but contained no cash. The thieves apparently were interested on both occasions only in cash, the owners said.

FLOYD RESCUE SQUAD IN SEARCH FOR CHILD

The missing Debbie Ann Greenhill was found Wednesday morning, about 300 yards from her parents' home, and reportedly in "good" condition. She was barefoot, her feet were cut and she was crying for her mother, but examination at an Ashland hospital disclosed no serious injuries.

Members of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad dragged the Olive Hill reservoir through Tuesday night. They returned here late Wednesday.

Floyd county's Emergency and Rescue Squad got into action on its first full-scale mercy operation Monday night as it carried on through the night the dragging of the Olive Hill reservoir—a 50-acre lake—for the body of two-year old Debbie Ann Greenhill who has been missing since late last Saturday.

Eleven members of the squad went to the scene Monday afternoon, worked through the night. Some remained through Tuesday. Seven fresh members joined the rescue-workers at the reservoir for Tuesday night's work.

Heading the Floyd countians is Graham Burchett, captain of the squad, who led the civilian operations here in the recovery of victims of the bus tragedy. They will remain at the job until relieved or until the child is found. Don Sullivan, one of the group at Olive Hill Monday night, said.

A rugged terrain and dense undergrowth between the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Greenhill, Debbie's parents, and the reservoir make a thorough combing of the area most difficult. A bloodhound used in the search has twice led searchers to the spillway of the reservoir where the water is about 55 feet deep, it was said.

FBI agents appeared on the scene Monday, and one report says their investigation indicates a suspicion of abduction. One man was reported as having been picked up for questioning.

The tot disappeared Saturday while her family was moving into a cabin about half a mile from the reservoir.

Charles E. Weeks, special agent in charge of the FBI bureau at Louisville, said the agents were acting "pretty much as observers now." He said there was no evidence

BLEVINS DIES IN SLATEFALL

Debris Almost Buries Wheelwright Foreman In Inland Steel Mine

A slatefall at an Inland Steel mine took the life of Virgil E. Blevins, 42-year-old section foreman at Wheelwright, Monday. He was found in a kneeling position, buried in fine slate to his neck.

The son of Mr. Pearl Blevins Frederick and the late Hobart Blevins, he was a native of Virginia and had been a resident of Wheelwright the last 11 years.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Pearl Blevins Frederick, Portsmouth, Ohio, his wife, Ida Blevins, Wheelwright, two sons, Ronald V. Blevins, Gallipolis, O., James V. Blevins, Wheelwright, one daughter, Janet E. Blevins, Wheelwright, a brother, Jimmy Blevins, Wheelwright, and two sisters, Mrs. Opal Sims, Portsmouth, O., and Miss Hobart Maren Blevins, Pikeville.

The funeral was held Wednesday at 10 a.m. at the Community Methodist Church at Wheelwright, with the Rev. James Kirk officiating. The body was taken by the Carter and Callahan Funeral Home to Gallipolis where burial was made in the Pine Street cemetery.

Graveside rites were under auspices of the Wheelwright and Gallipolis Masonic lodge.

Miss Roberts and two companions, Miss Janet Hoberson, a laboratory technician at Central Baptist, and Miss Jo Ann Smith an employee at the Bank of Commerce, Lexington, were swimming near the dock.

Mercer County Sheriff L. C. Pinkston said Herman Sanders, of Burgin, and an unidentified companion, snagged the body with grappling hooks.

Miss Roberts disappeared about 9:30 p.m., last Wednesday. It was believed at first that her body might be under Berry's dock.

The dock was moved early last Thursday and searchers scoured the area underneath without success. Recovery operations were hampered by large tree limbs and stumps that litter the lake floor.

Miss Hoberson was quoted as saying that Miss Roberts had fallen and struck her head against a rock about 45 minutes before the drowning.

A child health clinic will be held at David in the doctor's office each third Wednesday from 1 to 4 p.m. Mothers are urged to bring their children for immunization for whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus and polio.

LAKE SECTOR CONTRACT LET

Road to Stratton Br., 4 Miles on Jack's Cr., Slated for Surfacing

Two contracts for Floyd roads—one from the Dewey Lake boat dock to the Stratton branch recreation area, the other on Jack's Creek—have recently been awarded.

Contract for the Jack's Creek project, Class I Bituminous surfacing of 4.6 miles, was awarded to the Adams Construction Company, Paintsville, on its low bid of $91,457. This is a rural secondary project.

Low bidder on the Dewey Lake road—another step in the development of Jenny Wiley State Park—is the Elam & Wingo Construction Co., West Liberty, whose bid on grade, drain and bituminous concrete surfacing was $134,673.

Conservation Commissioner Laban P. Jackson said the Dewey Lake road will eventually be extended from the Stratton Branch area on to Hager Gap where it would connect with an existing road to Dewey Dam.

REA ELECTION IS CONTESTED

Wells-Sexton Suit Says Balloting Not in Secret; Ask Election Be Annulled

A court fight involving the recent election held to name directors of the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative loomed this week as a suit attacking validity of the poll was filed by Bill Wells, of Prestonsburg, and Ellis Sexton, of Hueysville.

Wells, who was a candidate for the directorship from District 6 of the cooperative, claims to have received the highest number of votes cast but that he was disqualified on the grounds that he does not reside in the district. He lives at West Prestonsburg but maintains on Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek, in District 6, a place of residence which is served by the co-op. His opponent Elzie Calhoun, who sought re-election, was adjudged the winner when the ruling disqualifying Wells was made.

The suit names as defendants the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation, Inc., its president, Mort Mullins; its directors, Earl Ward, George Jones, Russell Goble, Wm. Hicks, Woodrow Branh and Elzie Calhoun; and the members of the election committee.

SHERIFF SAYS ORDER HURTS

Claims Enforcement Under New Directive Is An Impossibility

The new order issued Aug. 8 by County Judge Henry Stumbo governing places of entertainment makes enforcement impossible, Sheriff Hershell Warrens said Tuesday.

The order, which sets aside the music and pinball machine provisions of the May 26 order issued by Judge Stumbo, provides that these machines may be operated after 12 noon Sundays "so long as they do not create a public nuisance or disturb the public."

The County Judge is authorized by Kentucky statute to prescribe the hours places of entertainment outside incorporated towns may remain open and when pinball and music devices may be operated. Judge Stumbo's order of May 26 provided:

All places other than Grade A restaurants shall close at 12 midnight and not reopen till 4 a.m. No pinball or music machines shall be played on Sunday or after midnight or before 6 a.m.

Sheriff Warrens said the judge's new order setting aside the music and pinball machine provision renders the entire order ineffective. "Our position," said Chief Deputy Jarvis Allen, "is that there is no law left that can be enforced by the Sheriff regarding pinball and music machines."

He added that, although the new order does not specifically cancel the closing and opening hours for places of entertainment, the provision in the original order exempting Class A restaurants makes that part of the order of little effect.

"Anybody who will comply with the sanitary code, install running water, and a double sink and meet the health department inspection can qualify for a Grade

POLL AGREED TO BY COMBS, WYATT BALKS

Ockerman Suggests Test Of Strength To Select 'Antis' Standardbearer

A suggestion made by Foster Ockerman, of Lexington, that a poll of the voters' sentiment toward the three leading Democratic gubernatorial candidates be taken, with the anti-Administration candidate showing the least strength dropping out of the race, has been flatly accepted by Bert T. Combs, of Prestonsburg.

At the same time, however, the other anti-Administration candidate, Wilson W. Wyatt, of Louisville, has temporized, suggesting a poll now and another 90 days later to determine if and to what extent the sentiment has shifted between him and Combs.

Wyatt also expressed the belief that such a poll, taken by a responsible firm, would cost from $25,000 to $40,000 and that such an expenditure would violate the state's "clean election law" which limits expenditures per candidate to $10,000.

The poll, as suggested by Mr. Ockerman, would also test the strength of Harry Lee Waterfield, who has the backing of Governor Chandler for the gubernatorial nomination.

Combs declared there is "no reason for more than one poll" in the state to determine if voters favor him or Wilson W. Wyatt as the anti-Administration Democratic candidate.

He called a press conference at his Sheraton Hotel headquarters in Louisville to make it clear he does not share Wyatt's desire for an additional poll that would show which of the two candidates is gaining or losing strength during a 90-day period.

Combs said two polls, which Wyatt suggested in response to the Ockerman proposal, would result in delay and "delay can only result in comfort and advantage to the common enemy."

"While Mr. Wyatt and I are

Miss Spradlin and Mr. Salisbury Wed In Church Ceremony, August 3rd

The marriage of Miss Ada Lee Spradlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Spradlin, of Bonanza, and Mr. Philip Salisbury, son of Mrs. James W. Salisbury, of Martin, was solemnized in a ceremony performed at Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here at 2:30 p.m., Sunday, August 3. The pastor, the Rev. Ira McMillen, Jr., officiated.

The vows were said beneath an archway of greenery and white gladioli and before the altar banked with gladioli. Preceding the nuptial ceremony, Franklin W. Moore sang "I Love You Truly," to the organ accompaniment of Mrs. James David Salisbury.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white ballerina length dress of bridal satin, with a princess bodice and tapered sleeves of lace.

Her sister, Miss Barbara Spradlin, was maid of honor, and the groom's brother, David Salisbury, served as best man. Ushers were Terry Salisbury and Jimmy Gordon Music.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the church annex where the wedding cake served as the centerpiece for table decorations of white flowers and greenery. Immediately thereafter, Mr. and Mrs. Salisbury left to spend their honeymoon in the Smoky Mountain area of Tennessee and North Carolina and a tour of western Kentucky.

They are now at home here. Both are employed by the United Fuel Gas Company.

No Series Of Polls, Please

Bert T. Combs has agreed to a poll of the relative strength of the three major candidates in the campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Wilson W. Wyatt, of Louisville, avowedly an anti-Administration candidate, also has agreed but with reservations.

Mr. Wyatt insists on two polls—one as quickly as arrangements can be made, another three months later to see if perhaps he hasn't picked up some strength.

Assuming that he and Judge Combs share a sincere desire to defeat the Chandler administration and its gubernatorial candidate, Harry Lee Waterfield, we cannot find much of solid merit about the Wyatt suggestion.

First of all he admits, in asking a second and later poll, that he is convinced the poll would now show that Judge Combs is the popular anti-Administration choice. In predicting that the second poll would show that he is gaining strength he fails to convince, for there is little probability that the man running at the bottom will go in any direction but up; besides, his upward climb, made at the expense of a front-runner, still would be too little and too late.

Mr. Wyatt also points out that the expense of such a poll would range between $25,000 and $40,000 and that the state's so-called "clean election law" forbids any candidate for Governor to spend more than $10,000 in his own behalf. He adds, however, that State Representative Foster Ockerman, of Lexington, originator of the idea of the poll to test the candidates' strength, knows where and how the poll may be financed.

Frankly, we know nothing of such matters. But we have an idea that we think would work. We suggest that Wyatt and Combs as men having respect for each other and dedicated to the same cause agree to go ahead with one poll and let the loser pay the bill. After all, that would be the cheapest way for the loser. Running a losing campaign would be far costlier and even far more disappointing both in results for weaker of the two candidates and for the anti-Administration cause the two represent.

If either of these two men, Combs and Wyatt, sincerely feels that he is the man the people of Kentucky want in the fight against the Chandler administration, he should not fear one single poll. Nor should he fear having to pay the fee charged by the poll-takers. As for asking a second poll, does Mr. Wyatt suggest a whirlwind campaign in order to make a good showing in the taking of a second straw vote? If so, what is to stop a third poll, or a fourth?

Come to think of it, there will be a stop to such nonsense. That will be at next May's primary poll. Judge Combs has, in characteristic forthright and unequivocal fashion, agreed to a test to determine, once and for all, which candidate should bear the anti-Administration standard. Mr. Wyatt should be willing to meet him likewise on open ground.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

MEMORIAL GIFT
Editor, The Times:
This week our school received a very nice memorial from Owingsville high school faculty and students. . . The gift is a copy of WEBSTERS NEW TWENTIETH CENTURY DICTIONARY (unabridged).
The inscription on the fly leaf reads:
"Presented to the Prestonsburg School in memory of those students who lost their lives on February 28, 1958, in the school bus accident.
Given by the students and faculty of the Owingsville Consolidated School, Owingsville, Kentucky."
I think the people of our county, particularly the parents of the children, will appreciate knowing of this memorial.

several times if she was all right and she answered, "Yes, I guess so."
Miss Hoberson said she and Miss Roberts had been swimming immediately before Miss Roberts disappeared. She said they were coming up a partly-submerged walkway to the dock when the nurse seemed to push her (Miss Hoberson).
Miss Hoberson said she thought Miss Roberts was playing and she ducked away from her and went on to the dock, still talking to her companion. When she reached the dock, she said she discovered that Miss Roberts was not following her, but still thought the nurse was playing a prank.
After looking for Miss Roberts and calling to her for several minutes, Miss Hoberson said she began to suspect that something was wrong and ran for help.
Mercer county authorities were called to the scene and dragging operations began immediately.
Mercer county Coroner Cecil Robinson said he could find no evidence of foul play or even accidental injury in connection with the death. He ruled that death resulted from accidental drowning.
Miss Roberts, Miss Hoberson and Miss Smith had been vacationing at the camp of friends since Saturday, state police said. The drowning scene was about one and one-half miles from Kennedy Bridge.
Miss Roberts was a daughter of the late Sidney and Nancy Miller Roberts. After graduation from McDowell high school she served three years in the Air Force, then was graduated from the Good Samaritan hospital School of Nursing in August, 1957, and worked at the hospital for a time after her graduation. She had worked at Central Baptist since last April.

A newspaper "filler" found on this desk of mine says that three out of four pedestrians killed in 1956 were men. Which could mean that drivers stop and look more closely when the jaywalkers are women.

We were afraid of something like this. Somehow, we had a feeling that all this talk of the new state of East Kentucky might get him started. Then we wondered out loud who would be Highway Commissioner—and that did it.
So this week, after a long and relieving silence, our old friend Joe, with eyes wide-open and goatee stuck out at a belligerent angle, indited the following:

the death rate among smokers is higher generally—32 percent above that of non-smokers.

The new study states the health service, "generally supports earlier studies that have demonstrated a statistical relationship between death rates and smoking."

The conclusion that heavy cigarette smoking is a causative factor in lung cancer is denied by the cigarette industry. It contends that clinical or laboratory proof is lacking and that statistical figures do not represent scientific evidence.

Taking into account all forms of cancer, including lung cancer, Floyd county had a lower death rate from the disease than average, the report shows. The toll among local residents was 73 deaths per 100,000 population as against 147 per 100,000 nationally.

It was, also, below the rate in the state of Kentucky, which was 127 per 100,000.

Other studies will follow, says the PHS. One will be to determine whether heavy smokers also tend to be heavy drinkers, which is already indicated.

ers we can dare them to take our tax money and spend it in the Bluegrass," Collins said.

"If they want to say outside toilets are good enough for our parks then we ought to ask Virginia to let us come back in Virginia or we ought to set up a new state of our own, and at least we would have our own tax money to spend in the mountains," he added.

"Are we going to pay, year after year, and send the money down to build roads in the Bluegrass or are we going to do something about it?"

Collins continued: "Every four years we have a promise of a road on the top of Pine Mountain, but we never get anything more than promises. 'A man told me four years ago he had been offered a good job in Eastern Kentucky but because of write-ups (in newspapers) he was afraid to come here. They say we are ignorant and they say we are unlearned."

"But you can take a teacher from the head of Ingram's Creek and send him to Ohio or Indiana and I'll guarantee you that the second year he will be principal or superintendent of schools."

In Frankfort Governor Chandler said he'd rather not comment on the "peevishness of one disgruntled citizen." He said he didn't know Collins.

But he was sure that under the circumstances he would not agree to let the mountain counties secede. "I am obligated to keep them; this is a case for the Legislature," he said.

Others disputed the argument that the area has been short-changed. State Revenue Commissioner James Luckett said:

"The minimum-foundation school program is more helpful to that area than it is to others. And the bulk of the general fund goes into that program."

"As for roads, the gasoline tax is a use tax, collected wherever the highways are used and gasoline purchased. The density of automobile traffic is greater outside the mountains."

Highway Commissioner Oates said he will attend the August 22 meeting of Collins' group if it is possible.

He noted that the group is chiefly concerned immediately with obtaining improvements on KY 15 from Whitesburg to Winchester, a prime route from the mountains to the Bluegrass.

Highway planners have been instructed, he said, to study the prospect of improving KY 15 out of Slade in Powell county and building a new road from Slade to Salyersville. The ultimate plan, he said, is to extend the new road to Prestonsburg and finally to Pikeville.

sion, Basil Mullins, James Green and Woodrow Fitzpatrick.

The cooperative's annual election was held at Paintsville, July 12. Claims made in the Wells-Sexton suit are:

1. Mullins, Green and Fitzpatrick "assumed" the title of election commissioner but were not appointed.

2. The election is null and void because the balloting was in open and direct violation of the cooperative's by-laws in that no secret ballot was had. (The petition claims that at the election each member of the cooperative was given a card or tag bearing his name and address, and this was attached to his shirt or coat and that when the member presented himself to the election commissioner to cast his vote the tag was removed from his clothing and stapled to his ballot.)

3. Wells was duly and legally elected under the terms of the by-laws.

The suit, which was prepared by the law firm of Tackett & Tackett, asks that the election be declared null and void; or, in the event the court upholds the validity of the election, that Wells be declared elected.

From Jake Smallwood's car and bath house at McDowell, they confiscated nine half-pints of whiskey, four quarts of wine and 16 cans of beer. The enforcement problem lies mainly, he said, in the operation of music and pinball machines on week-ends. These attract the rowdy element, it was explained. He added citizens now have hope of relief only by filing charges against offending places of entertainment, naming them as public nuisances.

A Pictorial Review of East Kentucky

(Number 5 in a Series)

INITIALS SUPPOSEDLY OF DANIEL BOONE, AT EASTERN

Did Daniel Boone, Kentucky's intrepid frontiersman, carve his initials on a rock high up on Goose Creek mountain, near Eastern, Right Beaver Creek, this county? Many students of the inscription think it is genuine.

Research establishes that in the winter of 1774-1775 Boone was wintering in Southwest Virginia and that he engaged in making a great deal and made one trip to Eastern Kentucky. It is very probable that he carved his initials on the Goose Creek rock in early 1775 and in March after that began the work of marking the Wilderness Road to Boonesboro.

Boone made several trips to the Big Sandy Valley during early settlement days, visited the Auxiers and hunted with them at the mouth of Johns Creek. He, according to tradition, showed William Robert Leslie the bottoms on Johns Creek where the Leslie Settlement was founded.

The First National Bank, founded in 1904 to facilitate commercial transactions in the area, is proud of its tradition of service over the last half century.

to indicate abduction and that his men would offer the uses of FBI facilities to aid in the search.

Police Chief Milt Barker said the possibility of foul play is being investigated but that nothing to indicate it has turned up.

The child's parents said Debbie went into the yard to play before she disappeared.

Earlier searches were made around the rugged terrain surrounding the cabin.

The terrain is rugged and rocky, covered with briars, tall weeds and heavy undergrowth. Copperheads are abundant in the area, residents said.

This led to one theory, by a state trooper, that perhaps the little blonde girl wandered into the brush, was bitten by a poisonous snake and died as a result.

Deputy Sheriff Dewey Gannon, one of the many law enforcement officers who took part in the week-end search, said he didn't see how the child could be near the house.

"We were all over that place," he said. "She's not up there." "It's got us puzzled," Gannon added. "We can't learn much about it."

Logs, stumps and large rocks on the bottom of the lake make dragging operations very difficult, Floyd squad members said. They took to Olive Hill with them all equipment accumulated since organization of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad soon after the last victim of the school bus disaster had been recovered from the Big Sandy.

This equipment was on display at the meeting last Friday evening of the squad's board of directors. It includes a truck purchased from a surplus materials source and repaired and painted by members; a trailer to accommodate two boats and from four to six motors, three built by squad members; three portable generators which were put into use Monday night in flooding the Carter county search scene with light; a resuscitator donated by the Princess Elkhorn Coal Company, oxygen supplied by the R. V. May Company, and various items of dragging equipment.

The discussion at the meeting of the board of directors was mainly concerned with the proposed drive to raise funds to finance the work of the squad and the possibility of acquiring a permanent building for the organization and its equipment.

fiddling, Rome is burning," Combs said. "I am willing to abide by the results of the poll provided Mr. Wyatt will also agree. The fight against Chandlerism is more important than the personal ambitions of any one man."

Asked if he meant he would drop out of the race if he came in second in such a poll, Combs replied, "That is a fair inference of the (Ockerman) letter and I accept it."

Wyatt has expressed reservations about Ockerman's suggestion that Wyatt and Combs pay for such a poll. Of this, Combs said in a prepared statement:

"It is my opinion that the cost of such a poll would not be an election expense within the meaning of the state election laws, and payment of such expense would not in any sense violate any laws of the state of Kentucky."

Combs said he and Wyatt have had no talks about Ockerman's proposal.

What if Wyatt, who could not be reached for comment, feels that the one poll is inadequate and will not agree to it?

"I don't know," said Combs. "If he does feel that way, it is obvious we have a four-man race."

The 1957-58 fiscal year rounded out the first decade of the Department of Economic Security, created in 1948 by the General Assembly to integrate administration of major federal-state programs in Kentucky.

The agency says there was "no special ceremony to mark his tenth anniversary as current events demanded the full attention of the department's staff." The department administers unemployment, public assistance and children's programs.

SPUTNIK AFFECTS STATE
THE DEPARTMENT says two paradoxical events—spiraling unemployment and rising living costs—and a third seemingly unrelated event, the launching of Sputnik I by Russia, had immediate impact upon its program.

The agency explained: Sputnik became a symbol of the need for accelerated national defense efforts, posing the threat of reduced federal expenditures for domestic programs. This was the real reason for the decision by Congress to dump onto states the cost of extending the duration of employment benefits.

WHAT'S NEW?

A CONFERENCE at Hardinsburg Aug. 12-15, arranged by the Kentucky Association of Home Economic Teachers and the home economics division of the Education Department, will hear symposiums on "what's new" in foods, textiles and equipment. That is what's new in symposiums this week.

IT'S A PLEASURE

IT IS RARE that a driver cited for a traffic violation resulting in a $10 fine compliments the officer who cited him. But Joe Capito, of Louisville, wrote Franklin county court concerning State Police Trooper Allen Slayback who had cited him for speeding.

"If all police were as polite and courteous and still down to business as Officer Slayback it wouldn't be so bad to receive a ticket every now and then."

HORSE SENSE

WE DON'T KNOW whether Roy Rogers or Trigger said this, but we have a communication from headquarters of the cowboy star who appears at this year's State Fair which reads: "Too many people figure to get into movies or television because it's an easy way to make a living. That's not true. Ask any of the successful stars. They'll tell you that if you want to be a singer or an actor for the fast buck, you better not start. You'll have to work just as hard in show business as in anything else."

FAIR FEATURES

SOME OTHER FEATURES of the Kentucky State Fair this year are the world's tallest ferris wheel (eight stories high) on the midway and a U. S. Navy band which plays upon oil drums and the brake drum of a Model-T Ford.

NO-ACCIDENT MONTH COOPERATION PLEDGED

James H. Phalan, chief of the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, announced this week he has received expressions of active support from leaders of organized labor, mine operators, state and federal agencies and insurance underwriters, for the eighth annual "Remember September — No Accidents" campaign to be conducted throughout the tri-state mining areas of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia. Mr. Phalan is coordinator of the month-long drive.

In the hope of demonstrating that the Tri-State area coal mining industry can operate for a full month without a fatality, the campaign is established as a September event because that month traditionally marks the beginning of the year's mining activity. A successful September campaign would thus set a pattern for operations during the year following.

Sparking the program will be safety meetings, distribution of literature and use of 50,000 cap stickers, 20,000 automobile bumper signs and 5,000 posters. These display materials are being furnished by Bituminous Casualty Corporation, Rock Island, Ill., one of the leading underwriters of workmen's compensation and liability insurance in the coal mining industry.

Endorsing the program and co-operating fully in its execution are Charles Ferguson, safety director of the United Mine Workers of America; Marling J. Ankeny, director of the U. S. Bureau of Mines; Rufus J. Bailey, safety director of the Harlan County Coal Operator Association; Robert Dickson, director of the Kentucky River Mining Institute; J. H. Mosgrove, secretary of the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Mining Institute; and the heads of department of mines and minerals of the three states.

"We of the mining industry in Kentucky sincerely believe that through an accelerated program of safety education, the month of September, 1958, as designated NO ACCIDENT MONTH, can well become a reality," Mr. Phalan said.

The theme of the 1958 campaign, "Take Time, Take Care, Save Lives", is intended to illustrate forcibly the absolute necessity of obeying the rules of safety, not only in mines, but on all other jobs, on the highway, in the home, at school and at play.

Road Contracts More Than Twice Last Year Total

Frankfort, Aug. 11 (Sp.)—Kentucky road-improvement contracts awarded during 1958 reached a total of $42,614,194 early this month, the State Department of Highways announced.

This is more than double the total of $18,471,512 awarded during the comparable period of 1947. The figures covered contract awards through Aug. 6 of each year.

The $42,614,194 in contracts awarded in slightly more than seven months of this year also approached the $44,000,000 total for the entire year of 1957.

The largest contract among the latest awards was for $1,036,039. It provides for construction of a new 5.4-mile, two-lane section of U. S. 27 in McCreary county with high type surfacing. The project, generally on new location, extends from 0.6 miles south of Ky. 478 in Whitley City to a point on existing U. S. 27, 5.4 miles north, and includes a third lane for slower-moving traffic on hilly sections.

The Department scheduled a bid opening for Aug. 8 on more than 100 proposed contracts covering about 885 miles of road improvements. Bids are to be opened Aug. 22 on an additional 195 miles of improvements. These contract lettings will bring to about 1,880 the total mileage on which bids have been asked since July 1, start of this fiscal year. Most of these improvements are to be on rural roads.

Tips on Cantaloupe

A good cantaloupe should have a fragrant sweet odor, a yellowish color under the webbing that stands out; a slightly sunken, calloused scar at the stem-end indicates the melon was ripe when picked.

Jobless Benefit Payments Rose During 1957-58

Frankfort, Aug. 1 (Spl.)—Benefit payments from Kentucky's unemployment insurance trust fund rose 47 percent to 42.1 million dollars last fiscal year, the Department of Economic Security has reported.

Additional payments from special federal funds to unemployed Korean War veterans and ex-federal employees brought the total to 45.2 million dollars, the agency added. The department contrasted this sum with the 31.4 million dollars total paid unemployed workers in the 1956-57 fiscal year and 25.5 million dollar total paid the previous fiscal year.

The increase in the 1957-58 year, the department explained, was primarily the result of more beneficiaries, but also reflected a "somewhat higher" average benefit payment for each week of unemployment.

The largest increases, the agency said, were paid to workers from manufacturing industries, who received eight million dollars in fiscal 1955-56, 12.4 million in 1956-57 and 19.1 million in 1957-58. Other large increases were in coal mining and wholesale and retail trade, the department added.

It is said the state's unemployment insurance trust dropped by nearly 15 million dollars during last fiscal year to 104.4 million dollars as benefit payments exceeded contributions collected and interest.

Studies Made Of Teen-Age Drinking Record

Licensed Beverage Industries, Inc., New York City, recently issued a brochure, "Youth and Alcoholic Beverages, A Report," which points out that all states have laws prohibiting sale of alcoholic beverage to minors.

In most states a minor is any person under 21 years of age. The study emphasizes that many youth resort to ingenious schemes to circumvent these laws.

This entire brochure is based on statistical studies made by competent, trained students. The starting fact disclosed is that a majority of high school students have had some experience with drinking and actually are using alcoholic beverages to some extent, without having reached the minimum purchasing age.

A significant quote from a study undertaken by the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Michigan State University of six large state high schools among juniors and seniors says: "More than nine out of 10 students have drunk or tasted alcohol at some time . . . about one third drink with some degree of regularity . . . though not necessarily frequently or heavily."

The study shows use by youth is moderate, generally done with parental permission or by many at home in the presence of parents. The Hofstra College study on the subject of teen-age drinking says: "While high school students are a temperate group, a small number—two to five percent perhaps—are probably intemperate and may be responsible for the alarm with which use of alcoholic beverages by all high school students is viewed."

It may be safely assumed that the two to five percent mentioned comprise a group of potential problem drinkers in later years. Their drinking behavior falls into the first symptom of the "Profile of an Alcoholic," developed by the Lake Center of Alcohol Studies.

Evidence continues to accumulate that the potential alcoholic can be detected early. Understanding this is essential to prevent the potential from becoming a full blown alcoholic. When public educators, parent-teacher associations, youth authorities become aware that 93 percent of people who drink apparently have no trouble and that the minority seven percent are physically or psychologically unable to drink normally, real progress will begin in prevention of alcoholism. Give youth the facts. Make information about alcoholism available. Truly an ounce of prevention will be worth a pound of cure.

ANCIENT HOLLY TREE WAS SIGN FOR BRUSH CREEK GAP HOSTELRY

By HENRY P. SCALF

Over 100 years ago William Hicks, of what is now Wise county, Va., left home to visit in Floyd county, and while here found his bride, Miss Oma Reffett. They settled on the head of Middle Creek at the mouth of a little stream marked by a lone holly tree.

The Virginian set about the acquisition of a large area of mountain land. He built a large log house and constructed a horse mill to do custom grinding for neighbors on Brush Creek and adjacent tributaries of Right Beaver Creek and the few settlers on the headstreams of Middle Creek.

William Hicks didn't know he was building a mountain hostelry when he was erecting his log house by the holly tree at the foot of the Brush Creek hill. But local geography and economic development of the Big Sandy and its tributary valleys turned his home into a mountain "stopping place," favored by merchant teamsters from upper Beaver, Troublesome, Ball and other creeks. The Hicks home was a convenient mid-way point to stay a night, the holly tree its roadside sign for it was the only tree of that species for miles around. It still stands, strong and beautiful, the decades of time and greenery seekers at Yuletide having little effect on its rugged branches.

Time passed and after a lifetime William Hicks as a teacher, miller, farmer and inn-keeper died and was buried at the foot of the hill on Brush Creek. A son, Smith Hicks, built a two-story house up the little branch, now called Holly-bush, a few hundred yards from his paternal home. Smith's brother, James, built a house up Middle Creek, near the Brush Creek Gap.

After the death of William Hicks in 1879 the mountain teamsters, on their way to Prestonsburg or farther down-stream to Whitehouse, which was the railway terminal for many years, still had to have a place to stay at night. They stopped at the homes of the sons, for the William Hicks house was no more. The favorite successor of the old hostelry was the Smith house.

Smith was born in 1857, lived to 1939, and in his lifetime probably fed and bedded down more mountain-teamsters than any other man. Merchants from Hindman, Troublesome Creek and all the upper Beaver stores wended their way over the rutted wagon trails to stay the night while en route to Prestonsburg. The Floyd county seat was 12 miles away and they could go there and return to Hick's place with merchandise that had been delivered by a steamboat up Big Sandy to one of the riverside wharfs. The next day they could reach home again, whether it was "head of Beaver," Hindman or Troublesome.

Smith Hicks was twice married, first to Nancy Conley and after her death to Lou Allen. The Holly-bush home was always full of children, Smith's own and that of his neighbors. He was the father of 15, eight by his first wife and seven by the last. In addition to these children he reared four Allen children.

Prices at the Hicks hostelry seem nominal to us today but money decades ago had not the inflated value it has now. Meals were 15 cents at Smith Hicks, and overnight charges were 25 cents. Corn was measured up to the wagoners at 50 cents a bushel. Podder was two cents a bundle. The Hicks families farmed their rough mountain acres and turned the products into cash by feeding teamsters, mule and ox teams.

Surviving sons of Jimmy and Smith Hicks describe the arrival of teams at the hostelry, usually at dusk for the drivers wanted to arrive at that time. Dave Hicks, 83 now living with an unmarried daughter in the old Smith Hicks home, remembers the teamsters when he was a boy. William Hicks, a few years younger than Dave, and who is a son of Jimmy Hicks, also remembers the wagon trains on their way to or from Prestonsburg or Whitehouse.

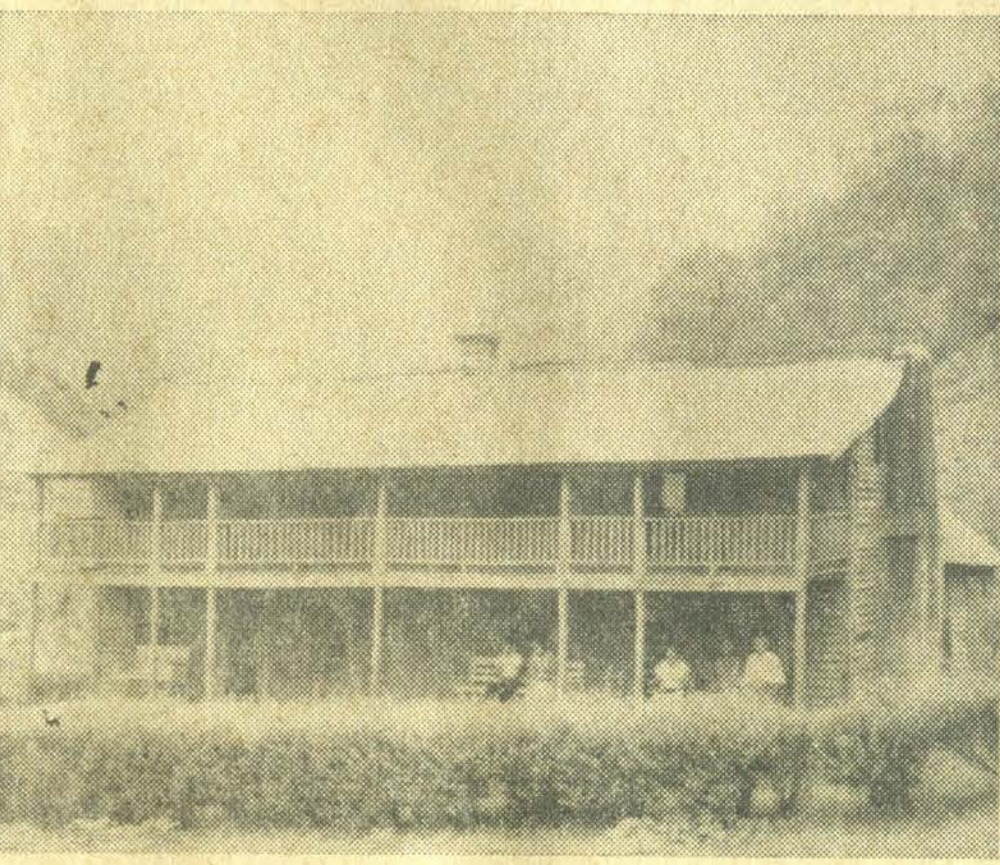

At one time, Dave Hicks remembers, there were 30 wagons filling the barn lot at Smith Hicks, many having to be drawn off to the roadside to relieve the congestion. Many of the freighters were on their way to pick up merchandise, many wagons were loaded and were returning home.

Familiar to the barn lot at Smith Hicks were the Draughts of Knott county, and Jim Perkins, father of Congressman Carl D. Perkins. Many of the Draught wagons were pulled by two and three yokes of oxen. Dave Calhoun, a Knott County driver, always had cattle, three yokes of the plodding beasts, hitched to a mountain wagon piled high with merchandise for the hinterland stores.

The trips by the teamsters from Hindman to Big Sandy points and return were by different routes. A Hindman section merchant started toward Prestonsburg by crossing Yellow Mountain, went up Quick-sand, and fell Lick to the Raccoon, a distance of about one mile, crossed the head of Brush Creek, then through the Brush Creek-Middle Creek Gap to Smith Hicks' hostelry. Most of the way was rough and would not carry heavily-loaded wagons.

The return wagons laden with merchandise, left Prestonsburg at noon, arrived at the Hollybush Branch at evening. Early the next morning the ox whips cracked and the wagons slowly ascended the Brush Creek hill, moved down the stream to Right Beaver Creek, up it to Jones Fork, on to the head of that stream and crossed over to Troublesome Creek, Hindman and other points.

An overnight stay at Smith Hicks' home was a welcome interlude in the life of a mountain teamster. Here was good cheer, bountiful food and deep feather beds. Here was to be heard long yarns of the hills, spun out by tobacco chewing knights of the road as they sat before the fire in winter or on the porch in summer or fall. Jim Perkins, he with the beard that was so long it was twisted around his ears, was a commanding story-teller. They told tales of the Civil War, of the Hays-Jones feud at Hindman, of the gun battles in the streets there. Others whispered of Bad Talt Hall and his friends on Beaver. Many, if not most, slipped out to the parked wagons and procured a potent drink of mountain dew before going to bed.

Upstairs were the giant feather beds, three and four to 16 and 18-foot rooms. At the Jimmy Hicks home there were 12 of these beds, more were at Smith Hicks. On warm nights at the latter home the teamsters could hear the hum of the bees in the log "gums" at the back of the house for the honey from the Hicks apiary was famous with the knights of the bull-whip.

Geography and economics made the Hicks homes hostelries along the Hindman-Prestonsburg road. Geography and economics changed them after the passage of decades to mere mountains homes alongside the road, with little custom from the trail. The railway was extended up Big Sandy from Whitehouse and after 1904 merchandise was unloaded at Mouth of Beaver. The railways inched farther into the mountains south of Hindman and reached London. Teamsters changed directions and found new hostelries along other roads.

The mail continued to be carried horseback up Middle Creek, passed the Hollybush branch, went through the Brush Creek Gap and on its way to Hindman. Soon that was discontinued. A few years ago the Smith Hicks house enjoyed a return to similar days of yore when teamsters and drivers of the gas companies in seeking lodging found hospitality there.

Today, Dave Hicks and his daughter, Myrtle, live alone in the house that has so many memories. He has lived there for nearly 60 years himself.

Things change a great deal with the years, Dave notes, but the ancient holly that stood by the old William Hicks home and gave a name to the little branch near the Brush Creek hill, is little changed. Gnarled and rugged it stands, an ancient reminder of a bit of mountain history.

Lady Is Free Of Rheumatic Pain

One lady told us she had rheumatic pain so bad she had to walk with a cane most of the time. The joints of her knees and ankles were stiff and sore. Recently she got RUGON and says the pains began to go within a few hours, and now after one week the pain is gone entirely.

RUGON is helping so many victims of rheumatism and neuritis because this NEW Liquid Formula contains Three Wonderful Ingredients. Not a tablet or capsule. RUGON goes to the very source of pain almost at once and costs but a few cents a day to take. So don't go on suffering. Get RUGON at W. A. Rose Drug Co.

WILLIAMSON ALL-STAR TILT

The eyes of Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference high school football fans will center in Williamson, West Virginia, Saturday night at 8:30, when the 1958 graduates of Eastern Kentucky schools will battle a similar group of West Virginia all-stars.

Eight players on the Eastern Kentucky team were members of last year's All-E.K.M.C. team. Only Prestonsburg's Paul Philip Hughes, Hazard's Astor Sizemore and Nicky Dann, of Jenkins, will be missing from the starting eleven.

John Griggs, Prestonsburg's highly successful grid mentor, will guide the Kentucky forces and will start these familiar players: Ends, Ireland Smith, Belfry; tackles, Fred Stidham, Hazard, and Bill Hensley, Paintsville; guards, Wayne Dixon, Prestonsburg, and Russell Asbury, Jenkins; center, Junior Thomas, Fleming; backs, Gary Harrison, Jenkins and James "Red" Hill, Fleming.

Dixon, Prestonsburg lineman, was captain of the East team in last Saturday's East-West game in Lexington and will again captain the Kentucky forces this Saturday. Hill, Harrison and Thomas also played in the Lexington tilt. In addition to the football game itself, the sponsoring Williamson Kiwanis Club has lined up an array of attractions that will include a halftime exhibition by the U. S. Air Force drill team, and six high school bands will be on hand to entertain the fans.

Eleven high school football teams in the Eastern Kentucky area are in the midst of their pre-season football drills. Prestonsburg will start August 18.

Ernest Trosper, ex-Union College cager and head basketball coach at Whitesburg high school for the past three seasons, has been named head basketball coach at Bristol, Tennessee, high school.

The Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce has virtually worked out all details of matching Kentucky Wesleyan College and Middle Tennessee State College in a basketball game for Prestonsburg's new gym in December or January.

Kentucky Has Three Venomous
Snake Species

As we enjoy ourselves on summer outings, we shouldn't forget that Kentucky has three species of venomous snakes, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources advises.

They are the rattlesnake, the cotton-mouth water moccasin and the copperhead, all belonging to the pit-viper group.

Characteristics include the long curved pair of fangs in the upper jaw, a pit or small hole halfway between eyes and nostril, cat-like pupils of the eye and single underside scales on the last portion of the tail instead of double scales.

The main thing to keep in mind about snakes is to be alert and watch where you step or put your hands, says the department, adding that catching snakes is very dangerous.

The copperhead and rattlesnake are found more or less throughout Kentucky in rock bluffs, timber areas and mountain regions. As a rule the cottonmouth is found in the extreme western portion in swamps, backwaters and bayous.

A rattle on the tip of the tail makes the rattlesnake one of the easiest to identify. The rattle is a series of interlocking hollow skin rings. These snakes shed skins two to three times a year and an additional section is added to the rattle each time, making it difficult to tell the age of the snake by the number of sections. The new-born rattler is equipped with fangs, poison glands and the know-how to make itself dangerous.

The active and alert copperhead prefers high ground and stony hillsides. The viviparous copperhead produces from six to 10 young at a time which have the necessary equipment to inflict poison.

The cottonmouth has long powerful needlelike fangs as well as large poison glands and is the most feared of the Kentucky poisonous snakes. It strikes without warning. It will not try to slip away but will stand its ground and fight. The name "cottonmouth" describes the inside of the mouth, which is pure white.

BIOLOGIST SAYS GAME POPULATION GROWING

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 5 (Spl.)—342,700 shrub lespedeza plants, 887,000 multiflora rose plants and some rabbits, squirrels, quail and the like may be on the upspring.

That is the word from Terry McGowan, Lexington, leader of the state's farm game restoration project, as he began wading through reams of reports here to chart this year's progress in the fight to provide better hunting for Kentuckians.

McGowan believes small game populations across the state are on a general increase and that, correspondingly, hunting prospects also are shooting up.

All of which is good news for hunters facing the opening of the 1958 season on November 20.

However, McGowan won't have any definite trends until he completes his analysis of reports from biologists across the Commonwealth.

The farm games restoration program was initiated nearly ten years ago. It was the result of attempts to bolster up shrinking game supplies knocked for a loop by modern agricultural methods. Quail, rabbit, and squirrel were the hardest hit by these clean farming methods.

The program aids farmers in restoring certain areas of their land for wildlife, utilizing plants which provide both food and cover for game and at the same time are beneficial to the farmer. The most commonly used plants are shrub lespedeza which provides late winter food for quail, and multiflora rose which produces cover and travel lanes for game. Multiflora rose also produces an effective living fence that will, after several years, turn cattle.

Plants are provided free to interested land-owners by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and trained biologists aid them in selecting proper planting sites.

McGowan said literally tons of plants have been distributed to farmers this year, among them,

Tourist Business
Great Potential,
Director Says

Frankfort, Aug. 11 (Spl.)—Tourist business in Kentucky is limitless," according to Mrs. Ben Kilgore, state parks director.

In a speech prepared for Jeffersonville Rotary Club, Mrs. Kilgore said state parks grossed $120,000 more for the fiscal year of 1957-58 than for the preceding year "in spite of unusually cool spring weather and rainy summer."

"Receipts for the month of June were $15,000 more this year than last," she said. "We think this is quite a remarkable gain," she continued, and "it is hard to say what our gains might have been with good weather conditions and without the slight recession."

Mrs. Kilgore explained that the Division of Parks has no desire to monopolize the tourist business but merely to serve as a stimulus and encouragement for private enterprise to follow.

Praising the new resort at Hazard, La Citadelle, she said, "This motel and the buildings being constructed at the Breaks Interstate Park should serve as a standard for other business in eastern Kentucky."

"This lovely section of our state is now coming into its own as a major tourist attraction," she added, "and can lure thousands of visitors there, improving the economic picture."

James A. McGuire, machinist, says:

"My wife and I both work daytimes, which means our little boy stays at home with a sitter. That's why the flameless feature of our electric heat pump is all-important. We leave the house with peace of mind, knowing there isn't even a pilot light burning. What's more, our electric heat pump gives us clean, healthful heating and cooling at reasonable cost...less than $12 per month!"

Mrs. McGuire says:

"There's nothing cleaner than an electric heat pump, and that appeals to me. It saves a great deal of work, like cleaning and redecorating. My range and other electric appliances also save me a lot of time and work. I just couldn't get along without them, working away from home like I do."

"This is our heat pump," Mr. McGuire tells his young son Cameron. "It gives us the exact temperature we want in our home all the time."

Tips on Honey Dew Melons
The rind of a honeydew melon should be a creamy white or pale yellow and have a distinct, a pleasant odor.

Apricots May Be Higher
Higher prices for canned apricots are probable this year, as California, which usually produce 90 per cent of this fruit had a small crop.

If honeydew melons are greenish in color, let them ripen at room temperature until they are creamy-yellow.

Governor Robinson Union Sympathizer

Governor Beriah Magoffin resigned in August, 1862, and was succeeded by Union-sympathizer James F. Robinson. Robinson served as governor the last year of Magoffin's term.

When Magoffin resigned, he said that he would have vacated the office sooner but that he had been abused and threatened with "impeachment, arrest, even assassination," leading him "to continue in the quiet of duty" until the opportune moment. That time came when Robinson, whom Magoffin respected, was elected speaker of the Senate.

Linn Boyd, the lieutenant governor, had died in office, December, 17, 1859. The line of succession, then, led from the speaker of the Senate to governor John F. Frisk, speaker of the Senate, was persuaded to relinquish his post long enough for Robinson to become eligible to become governor.

The period of Robinson's administration was filled with problems. Shortly after he was inaugurated, the Confederates under General Braxton Bragg and Kirby Smith invaded Kentucky and drove the newly-installed Robinson and other state officials from the state capitol. In Frankfort, on October 4, Confederate Governor Richard Hawes was sworn in, only to be driven out in turn by the advancing Federal army.

The Battle of Perryville was fought October 8. The Federals lost about 4,000 men and the Confederates over 3,000 in the bloody battle. The latter were driven from the state, but returned to fight small engagements almost continuously in Robinson's administration.

Two hundred delegates to the Democratic state convention held in Frankfort on February 18 and 19, 1863, were forced to disband at the point of Federal bayonets. The Union Democrats met for their convention in Louisville where ex-Governor Charles A. Wickliffe was called a "traitor" and a "copperhead" for advocating preservation of the federal constitution with all its guarantees. In July, 1863, General John Hunt Morgan crossed the Ohio River at Brandenburg, Kentucky, on his famous raid into Indiana and Ohio, causing great consternation in Kentucky.

Governor Robinson was born in Scott county in 1800. Following his short term as Governor, he retired from politics to farm and to practice law in his native county. He died there in 1822, a respected and beloved citizen of his community.

HEALTH NOTES By Floyd County Health Department

For many of our citizens, the time for much anticipated vacation is at hand. Vacations have become almost a necessity to provide a release from the pressures of our modern day living, but M. V. Clark, Administrator of Floyd County Health Department, advises some precautions to insure a safe period of recreation and rest.

A certain amount of highway travel is usually involved in most vacations. Most people usually have their cars checked before starting; however, relatively few accidents occur as a result of mechanical failure. Human error is where the danger lies. Check your driving habits and road courtesy.

Once you have safely reached your chosen vacation spot, there are additional worthwhile precautions to observe. Most would come under the heading of over-exposure and over-enthusiasm.

1. A "duel with the sun" will usually find you the loser. It is not smart to try to get rid of a year's city pallor in one day. Start the first day with no more than fifteen minutes exposure and gradually increase.

2. Use the "buddy system;" never swim alone and avoid swimming long distances in deep water.

3. Boats should be in good condition and carry life preservers. If the vessel should capsize, it is usually safer to remain with the boat than to strike out alone for the shore.

4. Avoid too strenuous an activity at the beginning. Exercise is something to grow into as well as with.

5. Prompt treatment should be given cuts and injuries. A tetanus shot may be necessary.

Vacations and holidays can be fun from start to finish. Plan them that way; enjoy them that way. Take your time — relax — have a happy, healthful, and full vacation.

Stack grain or feed, so the stacks won't topple on you.

ANNOUNCEMENTS
We are authorized to announce BILL ARNOLD SPRADLIN of Prestonsburg as a candidate for FLOYD COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION in EDUCATIONAL DIST. No. 1 and DR. J. H. ALLEN, of Langley, as a candidate for the FLOYD COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION in EDUCATIONAL DIST. No. 2.

BROCHURE DATA POINT TO NEED OF NEW JOBS

During the next ten years 52,300 boys and girls of this county will reach the age of 18 and 80 per cent of them will seek employment it was noted in the brochure, "Industrial Resources, Prestonsburg, Kentucky," prepared under the direction of Burl Spurlock in cooperation with the Junior Chamber of Commerce here and the Kentucky Department of Economic Development.

This total will exceed the present population of the county by 7,000 persons. The brochure, published in the interest of bringing industry to Prestonsburg and Floyd county, offers outstanding statistical evidence of the need for plants here and points up the advantages capital would find in the area in the way of labor potential, wages, transportation, communications, utilities, fuel, taxation, education and many other things.

"It is estimated that there are approximately 5,300 men and 10,000 women in Floyd and the five adjoining counties who could be recruited for industrial employment," the brochure says.

The several areas of study in which much statistical and factual data were submitted in the brochure seeking to attract industry to this section, follow:

1. Population. Prestonsburg has grown from a population of 409 persons in 1900 to an estimated population today of 6,000. Floyd county's population has climbed from 15,552 persons in 1900 to 45,229 in 1956. The latter figure represents a decline of 15.5 per cent since 1950.

2. Labor Force. The Prestonsburg labor force area was determined to include the counties of Johnson, Knott, Magoffin, Martin, Pike, and of course, Floyd. Population in the six counties has dropped from 204,336 in 1950 to 171,364 estimate in 1955. Net out-migration from the area in the last 15 years exceeds 100,000 persons.

3. Existing industry. Only three manufacturing firms operate in Prestonsburg with a total employment of 33. The firms were designated as Brown Produce Co., Coal Bit Co., and Prestonsburg Publishing Co. This dearth of manufacturing "indicates something of the demand for labor and products available in the immediate area of Prestonsburg."

4. Transportation. Facilities for transportation in the Prestonsburg area are set out and transit times from here to major cities are listed. Highway distances from Prestonsburg to large regional cities are also listed. The nearest airport is at Ashland served by the Eastern, Piedmont, and Allegheny Airlines.

5. Utilities. Electricity and natural gas sources and availability are studied. The water supply of Prestonsburg has a pumping capacity of 1,000,000 gallons per day, leaving a surplus of 700,000 gallons over the average use of the town.

6. Fuel. Floyd county's coal production in 1955 was 5,138,757 tons. High grade coke and fuel oil are available in the area.

7. Communications. The Prestonsburg postoffice had receipts of $32,037.48 in 1956, indicating demand for industry.

8. Included in the study are local government, taxation, housing, health facilities, education, papers, radio stations, clubs, libraries, churches, banks, news-creation, agriculture, forests, mineral resources, markets and climate.

Speaking of climate the booklet says "the climatic elements of sunlight, heat, moisture and winds are all in moderation without prolonged extremes."

Discussing education it states: "Today a modern high school, one of the largest in Eastern Kentucky, is the culmination of a long period of educational growth."

There are no stereotyped and promotional conclusions on Prestonsburg offered by the compilers of the brochure, since the work was planned for submission to the heads of industry who formulate their own conclusions from the evidence.

But to the lay reader, and it seems it must be so to the industrial leader, the Prestonsburg area approaches the ideal for new industrial locations.
